MR. HARTWELL G. KIRBY will shortly produce a new play entitled The War Cry. The bookings are being made by the well-known American and European manager Mr. Martin Comstock.

MR. MONCKTON HOFFE'S tour of Oscar Wilde's play The Importance of Being Earnest has proved so satisfactory that he intends continuing it into the autumn. The company is playing a successful engagement this week at the Grand Theatre, Leeds.

THE charity matinée in aid of the Children's Seaside Holiday Homes on Tuesday, for which Messrs. Smith and Carpenter have generously lent the Lyceum Theatre, will be supported by a brilliant array of talent. Theatre and music hall will be alike represented in the programme, among the artists who have already volunteered their services being Miss Constance Collier, Mrs. Lewis Waller, Miss Marie Lloyd, Mr. Alec Hurley, Mr. George Graves, Mr. Lyn Harding, Mr. Basil Gill, Miss Marie George, Mr. Norman Partriege, Miss Daphne de Rohan, Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald, Mr. George Robey, Miss Margaret Cooper, Mr. Alfred Lester, Miss Evie Greene, Miss Billie Burke, Miss Nora Kerin, Mr. Malcolm Scott, Mr. G. H. Elliott, Mr. Austin Melford, Miss Millie Lindon, and Mr. Charles Pond.

MISS CLARA BECK, who is to be the principal girl in Mr. Fred Wyndham's pantomime at Edinburgh, has been retained to play the title-rôle in The New Barmaid in the meantime. The popular musical comedy, which is still under the direction of Mr. Alexander Loftus, is booked right through the present year.

A POETIC fairy play, entitled The Magic Arrow, by Francis Chamier, has been accepted for publication by Messrs. Gay and Bird, and will shortly be put on the market. It is in blank verse with lyrics.

A PORTION of the library of Mr. E. S. Willard, who is giving up his country house, will be disposed of at Sotheby's during the early part of July. The portion to be sold embraces a practically complete collection of first editions of the works of Algernon Charles Swinburne and French and German translations of "Atalanta in Calydon," "Chastelard," "Laus Veneris," &c. There are also many books printed on pure vellum by the Kelmscott and other Presses, and several which were specially illuminated in gold and colours for Mr. Willard.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN is concluding his spring tour, which has been so successful that no fewer than five of the theatres visited have been rebooked for the early autumn. After a short rest in the country, Mr. Norman will commence his season of pastoral plays in July.

MR. GEORGE ANTLEY has concluded over three years successful engagement as Uncle Césaire in Sapho.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD has been exceptionally lucky in the Derby sweepstakes. In addition to drawing Orby at the Managers' Club, he also had the rare luck of securing the same horse at the Yorick Club.

THE secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund asks us to acknowledge, with his thanks, a suit of clothes sent to him anonymously. The garments were given at once by the committee to a most deserving actor whom they fitted, and who expressed his grateful thanks to the anonymous donor.

IN connection with William Holles and Nannie Goldman's successful production of The Stepmother at the Crown Theatre, Peckham, the following amusing letter was received by Mr. Cecil Paget, the manager:—"Dear Sir,—Through being urged to witness your play last evening, I am now writing to say that I think it was very good indeed. It was so lifelike, and it seemed to me as though it had been taken from real life, because I am one of those who have gone through the experiences of a stepmother.—Yours truly, E. C. B." Mr. Cecil Paget, who has rebooked the piece, expressed himself delighted with the production, and especially with Nannie Goldman's pathetic portrayal of the broken-hearted boy "Danny." Mr. Arthur Shirley, the author, had the pleasure of witnessing the performance on Saturday in the presence of a a house packed from floor to ceiling.

WE record with regret the death of Mrs. Frank Harvey, widow of the late popular actor, which occurred at Upper Tooting on Tuesday. Mrs. Harvey toured with her late husband, who died in March, 1903, for many years in the chief provincial towns. The funeral was announced for yesterday afternoon.

THOSE who attended the private farewell matinée to Mr. and Mrs. Luther Munday, arranged by Lady Romney on behalf of the Green Park Club, took away an extremely interesting souvenir in the shape of a programme. The inside of the programme was literally covered with facsimile autographs copied from Mr. Munday's collection of letters from "stars in the firmament of art who have, without money or price, taken some part in the thousand hours of play and song in the social gatherings initiated and managed by Mr. and Mrs. Munday."

MR. SOTHERN and Miss Marlowe bade farewell to London at the Waldorf on the last day of the month amid many signs of goodwill. The famous American was called before the curtain enthusiastically at the end, and in the course of a speech said that Miss Marlowe and he came to London fully aware of the great difficulties they had to encounter in presenting themselves in seven heavy and elaborate productions in six weeks before a new community. They believed that in America those persons who had honoured them with encouragement and approval would rejoice with them that, while they had not lacked mild reproof, they had mostly won the golden largesse of praise. They would be gratified that it was in the plays of Shakespeare that they had gained the best opinion expressed by the critics. It was not in their experience nightly to hear cries of "Bravo!" from the stalls, a place where the emotions were said to be under control. While they felt that such evidence of approval sprang from generosity to them as strangers perhaps more than from their work, they were conscious, too, that they had impressed their audiences at least with the sincerity of their endeavour.

AT the Oldham County Court on Saturday, the solicitor for Messrs. David Allen and Sons asked for an order for the committal of Brisbane Doyle, against whom a judgment summons had been made for £50, part of the costs of an unsuccessful action in the High Court against Messrs. Allen for alleged breach of contract. The Judge made an order for the immediate committal of Doyle for forty days, and fined him £10 and costs for the default of appearance on the witness summons, with the alternative of a further term of imprisonment for one calendar month.

"MR. GEORGE" concludes its stay at the Vaudeville on Friday, and on the following evening will be revived Mrs. Ponderbury (originally known as Mrs. Ponderbury's Past). Mr. Hawtrey will reappear as Major Ponderbury, and the cast will also include Miss Marie Illington and Miss Billie Burke.

A PASTORAL performance of A Midsummer Night's Dream will be given by Patrick Kirwan's Idyllic Players, at the Royal Botanic Society's Gardens, Regent's Park, on Tuesday evening, July 2, in aid of the Catholic Hospital of St. John and St. Elizabeth, Grove End-road. The performance is designed to provide funds to enlarge the present nursing accommodation of the hospital, which is served gratuitously by the Sisters of Mercy.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Ellen Terry First Memories.

In the intensely interesting first instalment of Miss Ellen Terry's "Story of My Life," in this week's issue of M.A.P., Miss Terry thus describes the first thing she ever remembered:—"In the corner of a lean-to, whitewashed attic there stood a fine, plain, and very solid oak bureau. By climbing up on to this bureau I could see from the window the glories of the sunset. My attic was on a hill in some large and busy town, and the smoke of a thousand chimneys hung like a grey veil between me and the fires in the sky. When the sun had set, and the scarlet and gold, violet and primrose, and all those magic colours that have no names, had faded into the dark, there were other fires for me to see. The flaming forges came out and terrified while they fascinated my childish imagination."

Bernard Bludgeoned.

Mr. Shaw, says a writer in "Blackwood," is an ideal Polytechnic hero, which, to say the least, is not smart of him. Whenever Mr. Shaw attempts to gull readers on a higher level than that of the empty-headed eccentrics who pretend to a knowledge of philosophy and to an "advanced" state of culture on the strength of a few madhouse smatterings of Nietzsche, his cleverness collapses. Any scholarly critic—of the calibre of Mr. Lang, for instance—with a real knowledge of the broader fields of philosophy and literature, could smash a charlatan like Mr. Shaw in a very few pages, if it were worth the trouble—smash him beyond all hope of repair. It is our desire in this article merely to hasten the process of his own self-induced dissolution; for we are tired of watching him hop over the graves of the illustrious dead and skip like a blue-behinded ape upon the trees of Paradise.

Phelps's Pinches.

"THERE were no understudies in those days," says Miss Fanny Coleman to a Morning Leader interviewer, speaking of her early experiences. "Supposing a leading lady was ill, or could not appear, somebody or other who seemed to have intelligence was popped on. Prompter very busy. Person popped on worried; but, like the pianist of the Far West, doing her best—although the regular members of the company would cheerfully have shot her. Because, you see, a novice, with no knowledge of the part, and few opportunities of having seen it played by the original artist, was not only awkward herself, but by that awkwardness upset the rest of the company. I have played with Phelps. He was gruff, and would come and pinch your arms angrily if things didn't go as he wished."

He Sat by Mendelssohn.

MR. JOHN REYNOLDS, writing to protest against the destruction of Crosby Hall, says:—"For about five years I was musically educated in the Throne Room of the Hall by my old master, J. H. B. Dando. Dando was one of the pioneers of chamber music in London, and in this Throne Room he gave for years a series of quartette concerts, long before the Monday Popular Concerts were dreamt of. I had the run of the concerts, and going in one night I took a modest seat next to a strange gentleman, who had been equally modest. When the programme had reached the point of a performance by Herr Mendelssohn, up got my neighbour, and proved to be the great man himself. He played some of his "Lieder Ohne Wörte," and delighted everybody. For an encore he extemporised on the themes of a quintette by Mozart which had been previously played."

"Uncle Tom" without the Ice.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" is always being played somewhere or other; but this good old theatrical "stand-by" seldom visits New York nowadays. A rearrangement of the ancient stage classic, recently produced at the Majestic Theatre there, is described by an American newspaper as being "minus dogs, ice, and angels," which means that the authors, Messrs. James W. Harkins and Edwin Barbour, have eliminated the bloodhounds and Eliza's flight across the ice; have made Marks and Topsy subordinate characters; and have tried to bring into the foreground the human interest of the story. The auction sale of slaves and the time-honoured "Apotheosis of Little Eva" are also omitted, the latter feature being replaced by a tableau showing Lincoln freeing the slaves. The new version is well received.

Richter and the Rapper.

DR. HANS RICHTER, says the Daily News, is German to the backbone. Although a Teuton by temperament, Richter can, when he likes, be delightfully humorous. Once, during the rehearsal of a musical festival, he was disturbed by someone in the hall beating time on the floor. He requested the offender in his broken English to desist. 'You see,' he explained, with a smile, 'when I am conducting I cannot always keep time with your foot.'"

The Pugilist and His Pay.

ON a recent tour of Sporting Life, the play—in which it will be remembered the hero, Lord Woodstock, has to take part in a boxing match and come off victorious—a professional prize fighter was engaged to give added realism to the character of his opponent. There had been two matinées during the week, and after the first treasury on Saturday the pugilist called attention to the fact that he had only received payment for one, whereas he had given two. "Yes," was the reply, "but we only pay for one." "But I have played two," reiterated the pet of the prize-ring, "and I want paying for each." "We don't do it in this company, and you're not going to get it," persisted the manager. "Well, then," said the pugilist, decisively, "if I don't get my money, Woodstock don't win that fight to-night." "Pay him!" said the manager. And he was paid.

Pawning His Boots.

SIGNOR PUCCINI, who is in London, has told a Daily Chronicle man that when he—the composer—was writing his first opera, Le Villi, he lived for four months on credit at a little restaurant called the Aida, in a slum in Milan. His dinner usually consisted of a piece of badly-cooked meat and a cup of more or less sour wine. He can still recall the half-ashamed manner in which he used to tell the waiter to chalk up the bill; and then he sneaked out of the place because he had no money for a tip. He can also recollect his humble diggings, where he tried to exist on the few francs a week allowed him by the Government as a charity pension. "Two or three of us," he says, "lived together, and we often had to pawn our umbrellas and overcoats and boots in order to get a little ready-money for immediate requirements."

Mr. Sothern's Hamlet.

"MY Hamlet," says Mr. E. H. Sothern to a Daily Chronicle representative, "was the result of long and anxious thought. When I first thought of playing Hamlet, I began systematically to read through not only the various texts, but as many commentators as I could. I soon gave that up, however, as I found them terribly contradictory. I was determined that my Hamlet should not be a composite photograph of other people's ideas about him. Then I threw all theories aside and just went to Shakespeare himself, and somehow or other the whole character seemed to emerge, perfectly clear, perfectly easy to comprehend—though not so easy to explain, for, after all, Hamlet is almost as complex and many-sided in his simplicity as we ourselves."

ACTORS' ORPHANAGE FUND.

Mr. Edward Terry presided at the eleventh annual general meeting of the Actors' Orphanage Fund, held at The Playhouse on Friday afternoon, 31st ult. The theatre was kindly lent for the occasion by Mr. Cyril Maude, and the auditorium, filled as it was with stylishly-dressed members of the fair sex, presented a pretty spectacle. Supporting Mr. Terry on the stage were Mr. Cyril Maude (president of the Fund), Sir James Crichton-Browne, Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. Chas. Cruikshanks, Miss May Warley, Miss Vane Featherston, Mrs. Edward Compton, Mr. Fred Wright, jun., Mrs. Fred Wright, Mr. W. H. Crompton, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, Miss Wynne Matthison, Miss Carlotta Addison, Miss Elizabeth Borden, Miss Braithwaite, Miss Phyllis Broughton, Miss Alexandra Carlisle, Miss Gertrude Warden, Mr. H. Lanham, Mrs. Gay, Miss Cecilia Richards, Mrs. Mangles, Mrs. Walter Abrahams, Miss Viola Compton, Mrs. A. M. Lane, Mrs. Villiers, Miss Cicely Villiers, Mrs. Hodgkinson, Miss E. Foster, Mrs. Synge-Hutchinson, Miss Minnie Turner, Miss Salomons, Mrs. Fredk. Irwick, and Miss Constance Hyem.

In submitting their annual statement for 1906, your committee have the pleasure of reporting a credit balance of £1,000 12s. 4d., the total receipts from all sources amounting to £2,318 14s. 5d., and the expenditure being £1,318 2s. 1d.

To this happy state of affairs the great success of the garden party at the Botanical Gardens very largely contributed, and the committee once more take this opportunity of tendering their very grateful thanks to the hon. sec., Miss May Warley, and her coadjutors, for their untiring efforts on behalf of the Fund.

Throughout the year there has been no cause for anxiety concerning the fifty-two orphans now provided for by this Fund.

Those members of the committee who have from time to time visited the various schools give a uniformly good report on both the conduct and health of the pupils, whilst the reports concerning those children, who from different causes are now in homes, give reason for equal satisfaction.

Donations and Subscriptions. — Considering the liberal amount of last year's special donations (the latter including £160 from the Dramatic and Musical Sick Fund, &c., &c.), the income for 1906 compares favourably with that of 1905. The Rev. Arthur Brinckman, Lord Burnham, Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, Mr. Eric Lewis, and Mr. Alfred Sutro have again been prominent subscribers to the Fund, whilst the gratitude of the committee is also due to a considerable number of other supporters. In this connection the committee urgently repeat their last year's appeal for an increase in subscriptions, as it is chiefly by these that a solid income is provided for the Fund, the claims on which are steadily increasing.

Autographs.—With regard to the sale of autographs, which continues to provide an agreeable augmentation to the Charity's income, the committee have to thank Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Miss Julia Neilson, Mr. Fred Terry, Miss Fanny Moody, &c., &c.

In conclusion, the committee are greatly indebted to Mr. Cyril Maude, who presided at the last general meeting, held by kind permission of Mr. Arthur Bourchier at the Garrick Theatre; to Messrs. Clark, Battams, Lanham, and Co., for their work in auditing the books and preparing the balance-sheet; to Mr. C. Aubrey Smith, hon. treasurer, for his valuable help; to Mr. Eugene Judge, their solicitor; and to Mr. E. W. S. Cox-Sinclair, standing counsel.

CLARK, BATTAMS, LANHAM, and CO.,
Hon. Auditors, Chartered Accountants,
7, Mildred-court, Bank, London, E.C.
March 20, 1907.

THE CHAIRMAN, rising to move the adoption of the report, said:—I have received the following telegram from Mrs. Carson: "May all success attend your meeting to-day." We are all delighted to know that if she is not present here in person, her spirit is with us in our doings. We are all delighted, too, to note the tremendous progress and prosperity of the Theatrical Orphanage Fund. I remember that some years ago, when the idea was mooted of a new building, I was thought a very severe and sad man because I rejected the advice at that time tendered. The methods adopted by the council of the Fund have been most admirable and well carried out. The Fund began eleven years ago with two orphans, and you have now fifty-three in your charge. The majority of the council are ladies, the inferior sex being only allowed to put in a very small number. All the children are doing very well, and you have a sum of £8,400 invested. The subscriptions have slightly fallen off through the inauguration of what was called Actors' Day, and on this subject I feel somewhat strongly, because I think that the amount which is now being held in hand, and was collected on Actors' Day, should be distributed amongst the charities of which this is so delightful a specimen. I shall use every opportunity to see that the money is divided between the three charities—the Theatrical Ladies' Guild, the Theatrical Orphanage, and the Actors' Benevolent Fund. All of these are doing most admirable work, and all are wanting the money that is at the present time hung up. I hope and believe that in a few days we shall realise our wishes in this respect, and that you will have the pleasure of receiving a handsome cheque. I understand that the children sent from the schools are doing excellent work. Reading over the names of some of the children, I feel a little sad to think that their fathers were comrades of mine; but it is a pleasure to me to know that they are enjoying the comforts which, were it not for this Fund, would be denied them. I can only hope that your subscriptions will go up by leaps and bounds, and I sincerely trust that this year the garden party will be very successful. I advise the council to think seriously about the building scheme which has been proposed. I, as you know, have much to do with orphan children, and this will have been my children's day, because I have just parted with 618 orphan boys and girls, and therefore I take a great interest in our young people. But I do impress upon you that, before you enter further into the idea of building, to think thoroughly of the scheme, to work it up thoroughly, and have a good sum of money to start with. You have not merely to consider the actual building of the proposed establishment, but the maintenance of it, which will run into a very large sum of money.

MISS MAY WARLEY briefly seconded the adoption of the report, which was carried.

MR. CYRIL MAUDE announced the election of, as additional vice-presidents, Lady Bancroft, Miss Winifred Emery, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Edward Terry, and Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, to whom he proposed a vote of thanks. Continuing, Mr. Maude said that it was extremely gratifying that the orphanage was in such an excellent condition, and their balance-sheet such a magnificent one. They had cleared over £1,000, besides maintaining and helping every orphan who had claimed the privilege of being helped. It was a matter for congratulation that they had such an assiduous honorary secretary as Mr. A. J. Austin, and such a strenuous helper as Miss May Warley. Hitherto they had had only one vice-president, namely, Miss Ellen Terry, and a few weeks ago the five ladies and gentlemen already mentioned were written to, and readily gave their consent to become vice-presidents. In regard to the idea of a new building, he thought that Mr. Terry was mistaken, because, as far as he (Mr. Maude) knew, there had been no definite expression on the subject, and he was quite satisfied with the present state of things. If there were any rich lady or gentleman present who could present them with a ten or eleven roomed cottage, where they could accommodate the children who were too young to be put to school, and yet would be all the better for being taken away from the wretched homes they at present lived in, the committee would be very pleased to hear about it.

MR. CHARLES CRUIKSHANKS seconded the vote of thanks, which was carried.

MISS CARLOTTA ADDISON read out the list of members who had offered to serve on the executive committee for the year ending May, 1908, and three scrutineers—Mr. Alfred Turner, Miss May Hewitt, and Mr. C. H. Billington—were appointed to examine the voting papers.

MRS. EDWARD COMPTON referred to the good work which was being done in the schools. She hoped that the boys and girls being looked after by the Fund would turn out splendid men and women.

MISS LILIAN BRAITHWAITE proposed, and MISS WYNNE MATTHISON seconded, a vote of thanks to the outgoing executive committee.

MRS. CECIL RALEIGH made acknowledgments on behalf of the outgoing committee, and eulogised the services rendered by their president, Mr. Maude.

MISS MAY WARLEY, in announcing that the Theatrical Garden Party would take place on Friday, July 15, in the grounds of the Royal Hospital, Chelsea, said that she had found it impossible to come to terms with the Botanical Gardens this year. For the past three years there had been great difficulty experienced as to the catering. At the Botanical Gardens there was not the necessary accommodation, there was not the water supply, and the caterers were not accustomed to attend to thousands of people. She had to express her gratitude to Colonel Evans, who every year sent the band of the Honourable Artillery Company free of charge.

MR. FRED TERRY proposed and MISS HELEN FERRERS seconded the re-election of, and a vote of thanks to, Messrs. Clark, Battams, Lanham, and Co., as hon auditors; Mr. Eugene Judge as hon. solicitor; Mr. Cox-Sinclair as hon. standing counsel; Mr. Aubrey C. Smith as hon. treasurer; and Mr. A. J. Austin as hon. secretary.

MR. H. LANHAM, in the absence of Mr. Aubrey C. Smith, suitably responded for the honorary officers.

SIR JAMES CRICHTON-BROWNE, proposing a vote of thanks to Mr. Cyril Maude for the use of The Playhouse, delivered an admirable and stirring address, in which he made a strong appeal for subscriptions in aid of the Orphanage Fund. He himself was opposed to the building of an establishment for these orphans of actors, as he did not believe in barracks for babies or club-life for children. The committee should retain for the youngsters the inestimable benefits of home and family life. He thought that every supporter of the Fund must be grateful to Mr. Cyril Maude for opening his theatre to them on that occasion.

MRS. A. A. MANGLES seconded the motion, which was enthusiastically approved of by the meeting.

MR. FRED WRIGHT, JUN., made a very amusing speech, in which he cleverly put forward the claims of the Theatrical Orphanage Fund.

THE REV. ARTHUR BRINCKMAN proposed, and MISS ALEXANDRA CARLISLE seconded, a vote of thanks to Mr. Terry for presiding, which was gracefully acknowledged.

"THE PLAYBOY OF THE WESTERN WORLD," which caused some excitement in Dublin last winter, will be produced at the Great Queen-street Theatre on Monday.

Mr. Martin Harvey made a welcome reappearance to his London admirers at the commencement of his season at the Adelphi Theatre on Monday evening, in John Rutherford's four-act play, The Breed of the Treshams, in which Mr. Harvey had already been seen at the Lyric, in addition to his performance of the leading part of Lieut. Reresby at the first London production of the piece at the Kennington Theatre, in the December of 1903. Mr. Harvey has won golden opinions in the character, and in his provincials tours it is one of his strongest attractions. The well-knit plot, the close succession of exciting incidents, and the brightly-written, nervous dialogue, all contribute to the sustained success of the piece. As our readers will remember, the hero is Lieut. Reresby, otherwise "The Rat," the illegitimate son of the bad Lord Tresham. Not only has his bearing of the bar sinister spoilt him; he has been unfortunate in having for his father a most accomplished blackguard, who inoculated young Reresby with his vices, and corrupted him by his example. The "Rat" is, in short, a complete specimen of the "soldier of fortune" of the Charles I. period, and is not ashamed to aid and abet his superior officer, Colonel Hungerford, in the latter's attempt to betray the town of Faversham to the rebels. There is little to chose between the villain and his tool; but Reresby, at any rate, is roguishly frank and blunt about his sins, and does not, as the Colonel does, "dissemble and cloak" them with cant and fine manners. A romantic love for Hungerford's daughter, Margaret, induces Reresby to protect her, and advance in every way the prospect of her union with the legitimate son of the late Tresham, the Hon. Francis. And so, when there is danger that the Colonel's treachery may be discovered, his faithful instrument, himself detected in treasonable intercourse with the rebels, will not speak. Torture is applied to force him to betray his instigator; but, pretending that he is about to make a disclosure, he stabs himself, and falls senseless. In the end, the "Rat," as Reresby is called, is pardoned and deprived of his commission, going off to enlist in the ranks and fight for the King.

Mr. Martin Harvey has greatly improved his part of Lieut. Reresby since his first performance of it at Newcastle on Sept. 28, 1903. Many little ingenious touches have been applied to the character since Mr. Harvey's first experiments with it, and, if we mistake not, he has added greatly to its comic and grotesque side. The impersonation is now one of the most weird, ecentric, droll, and yet terrible things imaginable. It combines the most airy oddity with the deepest tragedy of a human soul, and the horror of remembrance has seldom been more vividly depicted than when Mr. Harvey as the "Rat" describes the latter's memories of the tortures he suffered at the hands of some Spanish soldiers, and his loss of a certain beloved Margaret, who was carried off by a party of ruffians, headed by Reresby's own father. Here and there, these passages of broken pride and hopeless remorse come in; but the prevailing note is that of reckless, mocking, and, at times, maliciously monkeyish gaiety. Through all, Reresby exercises a certain superiority by his skill of fence, by his ready wit and resource, and by the directness with which he calls a spade a spade. Mr. Harvey's Reresby is indeed an extraordinary creation. The revelation of the self-contempt of the "lost soul," of the frequent promptings of Reresby's better nature, and of the good that remains in him, in spite of all his experiences, is a deeply pathetic one, and the pitiful story is told with the aid of a most artistic and effective exterior. The blackguardish air of the loose swashbuckler and reckless and hardened mercenary and partisan is given by a costume which is full of character, besides being, in a wild way, very becoming. Altogether, Mr. Harvey's patrons have witnessed this week one of this gifted actor's best and most artistic efforts. He is again supported by Miss N. de Silva, who is as fresh, frank, and rollicking as ever as Reresby's affectionate "follower," Batty. A stern, dignified, and impressive performance of the part of Colonel Hungerford is contributed by Mr. Charles Glenney, who adds to his villainy a flavour of ironical jollity, which is very quaint and curious. Mr. Glenney is a well-practised actor, who is equal to any emergency, and the part of the traitorous officer comes quite within his compass. Mr. Alfred Mansfield gives a neat and effective portraiture of Captain Rashleigh; and Mr. Denholm Muir does excellent work as Lieut. Willoughby. A bold, free, and active embodiment of the Hon. Francis Tresham is supplied by Mr. Leonard Craske, who is personally well suited to the rôle. Mr. Albert E. Raynor and Mr. Fred Wright, sen., give ripe and solid impersonations of Colonels Curwen and Bagshaw; and Miss Maud Milton is unimpeachable in every way as Mrs. Bagshaw. An earnest and artistic representation of Margaret Hungerford is given by Miss Coleridge, who plays the part with admirable purity and tenderness; and Miss Maud Rivers is a pleasing and piquant Helena Pierrepoint. Mr. Philip Hewland is satisfactory as Captain Stanhope; and the leading "rankers" are ably embodied by Mr. Vincent Sternroyd, Mr. George Cooke, and Mr. Leslie Palmer, Mr. P. Alexander doing good work as Will Lumsford. The minor rôles are carefully sustained, and the scenery is both elaborate and illusive. The practised stage-management of Mr. H. J. Loveday secures the complete smoothness of the revival.

What was advertised as the 419th performance of The Walls of Jericho was given at the Garrick Theatre on Tuesday evening, when Mr. Alfred Sutro's drama was again received with the warmest approbation. It was at the Garrick that it was first presented, on Oct. 31, 1904, with Mr. Bourchier and Miss Vanbrugh in the leading rôles, Mr. O. B Clarence playing the Marquis of Steventon, and Mr. H. Nye Chart enacting Harry Dallas. When the piece was transferred to the Shaftesbury in the October of the following year, Mr. Aubrey Smith undertook the character of Jack Frobisher, Mr Lawrence Grant replaced Mr. Junius B. Booth as Bertram Hannaford, and Miss Mabel Moore was seen as Lady Alethea Frobisher. There are a good many particulars in which the present cast differs from that of the original production, chief amongst them being the important assumption by Mr. Eric Lewis of the character of the Marquis.

The novelty of attacking the "smart set" has now evaporated, and the play stands on its merits as a dramatic appeal. Those who deny the existence of certain habits and customs in the "set" attacked will at least own that there are to be found in real life in London the equivalents of the Marquis of Steventon and Lady Alethea Frobisher, and the more or less reputable circle in which they move. Mr. Sutro has simply given us a "variant" on the old story of mixed-class marriage, which has served the stage so well in time past. Nobody can blame him for having picked and chosen his characters, as suited his purpose of making an effective play. The sympathy of the audience is not with Jack Frobisher as a social "outsider," but with him as a husband, a father, and a man. The vices he objects to in his wife and her friends are not confined to any particular class, but are practised, as legal cases every day prove, in all sections of society.

Interest on Tuesday evening was centred in Mr. Eric Lewis's impersonation of the Marquis of Steventon. Mr. Lewis is a finished and delicate comedian, with a style entirely his own, and he gives a delightfully humorous embodiment of the somewhat paltry peer of the realm, making each point with an ease and acuteness which leave nothing to be desired, and supplying an interpretation which is as unforced as it is artistic and effective. The young and ingenuous Lord Drayton is now depicted by Mr. Douglas Imbert, to whom, in the original performance, was allotted the little rôle of James. Mr. Imbert plays the part with bright intelligence, real ability, and agreeable style and distinction. The difficult task of representing Harry Dallas is now in the capable hands of Mr. Cyril Keightley, whose embodiment of the polished libertine is equally excellent in its style and its personal characterisation. Mr. Arthur Whitby does thoroughly good work as Bertram Hannaford; and Mr. Alfred Bristowe is seen to real advantage as the Hon. Wilfred Renton, Mr. Frank Elliott being efficient as Lord Marchmont, and Mr. F. Cecil satisfying all requirements as the Hon. Jasper Twelvetrees. A part demanding considerable tact and experience in its exponent is that of Lady Westerby, which Miss Nora Greenlaw sustains with decided credit. Miss Pamela Gaythorne interprets with much appreciation and intelligence the rôle of Lady Lucy Derenham; and Miss Elfrida Clement, the Miss Mornington of the original cast, repeats her sharp and chic performance. The humour of the card-sharping Duchess of Matlock is none the less diverting now that she has been re-christened the Duchess of Skye; and Miss Mary Weigall—with the make-up of a veritable "Gorgon"—does valuable work in the character first performed by Miss Lena Halliday. Miss Eva Killick is excellent as Lady Parchester and Miss Mary Sumner is unimpeachable as Miss Wyatt. Of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier's performances as Jack and Lady Alethea Frobisher it need only be said that they are as admirable and able as when The Walls of Jericho first delighted a Garrick audience; and Mr. Sydney Valentine's fine impersonation of Hankey Bannister is as sharp and effective as ever. Mr. Bourchier's strong and resolute acting as the husband, his fine delivery of the more forcible passages, and his masterly treatment of the part as a whole, appeal to all; and Miss Vanbrugh's picture of the vain, self-willed, and rebellious wife is, as before, worthy of the warmest praise. The play is liberally and tastefully mounted, and the revival has been received with delight and enthusiasm.

SEVENTY YEARS MARRIED.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Owing to the very large number of letters and telegrams of congratulation that my wife and I have received from all parts of the world, we find that at our great age it is impossible for us to reply to them.

May I ask you, through the medium of your valuable columns, to express our thanks to those kind friends who have thought of us on this happy occasion?—Yours faithfully,

JOHN BRINSMEAD.

Albert-road, N.W.

THE Dalston Theatre will remain closed for a few weeks to permit of extensive stage alterations, improvements in lighting, renovation, and redecoration. Prospective bookings include many West End successes, while the Christmas pantomime will be founded on the story of "Sindbad the Sailor."

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

DRESSES AT THE PLAY.

The latest creations of fashion are to be found in the new play, My Wife, at the Haymarket. In the first act Miss Millie Legarde looks radiant in filmy mousseline de soie, painted with a deep bordering of tulips in delicate yellow and purple shades. The corsage is particularly new and effective, inasmuch as over folds of blue mousseline an elaborate fichu-bolero is arranged, composed of corn-coloured lace edged with ball fringe, and finished upon the long sash-ends with deep fronds of meshwork chenille. Short hip basques of the same ornamentation and touches here and there of narrow satin ribbon complete a remarkably beautiful whole.

Miss Legarde's second evening dress is a gown of primrose-coloured supple satin, the skirt of which falls in graceful and untrimmed folds from the waist downwards, and a corsage completely made of gold "wire net" darned with gold. With it is worn a very elegant cloth coat of a soft shade of cream, that tones in well with the yellow, with a bordering of grey and gold plaided taffetas, and lined throughout with white satin.

Miss Marie Löhr, the heroine of the play, wears a succession of charmingly dainty costumes. Her tailor-made suit of the first act is composed of plaided biscuit and blue cloth, trimmed with biscuit soutache upon the skirt, that boldly outlines the blue motifs upon it. A most becoming little loose coat, with postillion tabs at the back, has a blue vest touched with soutache, and the costume is completed by means of a bronze straw hat massed with white wings in front. On her entrance Miss Löhr wears over the costume a cover-all cloak, built of earth of Egypt cloth (a new shade of tan), lined with white satin and trimmed with turquoise blue and a tinge of gold. The second act reveals Beatrice Dupré in a little white cloth suit, with a pleated coatee, fascinatingly trimmed with ball fringe, and in the third is displayed a very becoming pearl-grey chiffon dress, with a band of embroidered lisse and filet lace upon the skirt, and a Japanese bodice with the characteristic short sleeves of that genre, from which protrude the white lace and point d'esprit elbow-sleeves that appertain to the chemisette. The bodice is touched with tomato velvet very sparingly, but most effectively, and the belt is a curious Eastern-looking melée of three colours—old blue, dull red, and gold.

Miss Mary Moore thoroughly upholds her reputation as one of the most faultlessly-attired ladies on the stage by her costumes in The Liars at the Criterion. She makes an exquisite appearance in her gown of cream spotted net, with a handsomely embroidered zouave and a big pink rose at the breast, the whole crowned by a large black hat wreathed with pink roses, veiled with black net, which falls, curtain fashion, at the back. Another charming creation is her décolleté dress of brilliant green net, over white chiffon, a big chou springing from the waist in front, and finding a restful background in a soft white vest. The gown is handsomely beaded in green bugles, and a green osprey is worn in the hair.

Miss Dupont's gown of pale green net is elaborately embroidered in white silk, and allied to white chiffon. The skirt is arranged with panels of the net, bordered with bands of white silk, proceeding from waist to hem, and supported by a chiffon underskirt; and the bodice is prettily arranged with similar materials, and a lace vest, while a becoming green toque completes the toilette.

Perfection is reached in the dresses which Miss Marie Tempest wears in The Truth at the Comedy. Two of the frocks are made with kimono bodices and high belts. One is of deep cream-coloured crêpe de Chine, the crossed bodice and sleeves (in one) covered with handsome embroidery in gold-coloured silks; and with this is worn a chemisette, showing almost to the waist, back and front, of clear net, surmounted by a very high collar-band of the same, and, for a little while, a sac coat of rich cream-coloured guipure with a chinchilla collar, and a hat of mole-coloured panne. The second kimono dress is of flesh-pink crêpe de Chine, with a crossed bodice and sleeves of lovely blonde lace bordered with the crêpe, two pink tassels dangling in front over the waist-belt, and the filling-in at the neck being of clear net. Miss Tempest's third dress is in soft cloud-grey, the skirt and sleeves of chiffon, and the pinafore bodice all of grey silk embroidery, worked on either net or chiffon. The bodice is cut very low, and bordered with grey satin, and above is a vest of fine lace, while the ceinture is of satin. With this is worn, for a short time, a lovely little coat of silver-grey panne and a purple hat, a ribbon-velvet to match adorning Miss Tempest's hair.

Miss Grace Lane and Miss Sybil Carlisle are also prettily gowned. The former appears first in a Princess visiting dress of pastel-pink cloth, embroidered up the front with satin in a paler shade, a pink straw hat with shaded feathers, and a sable stole; and afterwards in white mousseline, embroidered with satin and silks, with an over-bodice of crêpe de Chine, richly embroidered, and cut square at the neck. This toilette is accompanied by a big black hat crowned with white feather-fronds, and a handsome ermine set. Miss Carlisle was dressed in réséda-green cloth, with a three-quarter coat of green embroidered net, a green feather-boa, and a hat trimmed in the same colour.

Miss Violet Vanbrugh, in the revival of The Walls of Jericho at the Garrick, makes her first appearance in a dress of pure white satin, veiled with white net, showered with gold paillettes. The design consists of a delicate scroll-work of giant daisies, intersected with long 2in. bands of gold paillette net, which take a perpendicular direction, and are specially becoming to the stately and graceful figure of the wearer. The bodice consists of two deep flounces of sequined net, headed with a gauged tucker of snowy silk tulle, the flounces being brought down to a point at the waist behind, while they are caught on the left side and again on the right shoulder with a single glittering gold iris. The little sleeves are of puffed white net, covered with bands of gold sequins, while the dazzling effect of the gown is still further accentuated by drop earrings and a diamond pendant.

Miss Pamela Gaythorne as Lady Lucy wears a dainty "ingénue" frock of pale Veronica pink tulle, trimmed with wreaths of twisted pink satin ribbon, the ring-shaped motifs being continued on the bodice of the gown in the form of a simulated bolero. A little gauged vest of pearl-white lisse, and puffed bébé sleeves, edged with lace, as well as a deep swathed pink satin ceinture, complete the effect, while a charming note of originality is introduced into the coiffure by means of a chaplet of leaves, laid one over the other, and finished on either side with a cluster of ripe cherries in realistic colourings.

In the second act, Miss Vanbrugh wears a gown of a very pale and clear blue mousseline de soie, mounted over white satin, and patterned in panel form with quantities of shaded Delft blue roses, the bodice being arranged in soft folds, crossed in front over a lace vest, and outlined with a narrow hem of Delft blue satin. With it is worn a coat of the finest pale blue net, the long basque of which is slashed up all round, and worked in a broderie Anglaise design of mammoth Chinese roses and marguerites, in shaded blue and white, the back of the coat fitting compactly to the figure, and caught in with a folded satin belt, which is passed under the loose fronts, and fastens over the bodice. Two deep frills of creamy lace fall over undersleeves of the finest spotted net, drawn in with bands of blue satin, and finished with a shower of fuchsia tassels.

Miss Pamela Gaythorne appears in the same act in a simple but charmingly-made dress of white voile. The corsage is formed of rows of fine tucks to the waist, and is supplemented with the favourite ball trimming, the short kimono-shaped sleeves being hemmed with white satin, and slashed up to the shoulder over undersleeves of Valenciennes lace, and drawn together by a lacing of narrow satin ribbon. Miss Nora Greenlaw, in this act, wears a curious and original gown of rich white satin, veiled with deep purple mousseline de soie, the striking effect of this contrast being enhanced by large purple irises, cut out of cretonne and appliqué to the draped folds of the bodice, and repeated on the skirt.

In Miss Eva Killick's dress of black and white striped gauze, the skirt is arranged in close knife-pleats all round, while the bodice is fashioned of white mousseline de soie showered with pin-head black spots, over which is folded a fichu of black and white gauze trimmed with rows of the narrowest black Malines lace, and caught in front with an immense cluster of tempting white-heart cherries, with their green leaves and woody stalks, which is fastened to the corsage with a bow of black and white satin ribbon. The sleeves are formed of crossed folds of the fichu, caught with an encircling band of black and white ribbon, and edged with little frills of white lisse, bordered with Malines flounces, while the vest is of the finest embroidered white lawn, trimmed with black lace flounces of minute size With this costume is worn a hat of bronze-green coarse straw in a modified Charlotte Corday shape, trimmed on either side with great clusters of shot green and bronze ribbon, a single deep pink rose being inserted exactly in the centre of the brim at the back, almost resting on the curls and waves of the hair, while another in a paler shade is placed in front, a little to one side.

Miss Vanbrugh's dress of rose-petal lawn in the third act is adorned with life-size hollyhocks in pink and yellow, which are so skilfully introduced and effectively adapted to the demands of cut and material that there is none of the natural rigidity of the old-world cottage favourite, trails—in addition to those on the skirt—being brought over the corsage and sleeves, and interspersed with insertions of lace and lawn in a shade of convolvulus blue. A broad edging of the same coloured lawn forms a border to the kimono sleeves, and outlines the vest of tucked pink chiffon, the undersleeves being carried out in like manner, while a touch of black is introduced by means of a twist of satin on the sleeves and front of the corsage, the skirt being finished with a deep hem of convolvulus blue linon.

In Miss Pamela Gaythorne's pretty gown in this act the skirt is made very full, and is adorned with gauffered frills of lawn, arranged in fan-shaped groups a little above the hem. The corsage is supplemented with a round yoke of Valenciennes lace, the shoulders being draped with a fichu of lawn edged with gauffered frills of lawn and lace, the same decoration bordering the short sleeves, these being supplemented with dainty undersleeves of lace, edged with rows of Valenciennes. Two large crescent-shaped rosettes, formed of ropes of blue satin in a slightly deeper tone than that of the gown itself, and gold cord, are worn in the centre of the corsage, interwoven with a twist of cerise satin.

Miss Violet Vanbrugh's dress of coral-pink crêpe de chine, in the last act, depends for its cachet on the hand embroidery decorating the corsage. This is carried out in velvet chenille and silk in deeper shades of pink, so as to give the effect of a galon, appliqué to the bodice in the form of bretelles and tabs, in order to give somewhat the appearance of a bolero. A square yoke of white lace is inlet into the corsage, which is further supplemented with rows of darned spots, and finished with heavy tassels, while the black hat which accompanies the gown is trimmed with masses of white convolvuli, entirely covering the crown and brim.

Miss Greenlaw's tea-gown of fine transparent Chantilly lace, dyed a delicate ash-green, is cut away in front to show an underdress of white mousseline de soie, hemmed with a wide border of panne. The front of the gown is bordered with a band of the palest green satin, sewn with pendent berries in silk of a deeper shade, while the bodice, composed of a waterfall of lace, is pouched over a waistband of tangerine-yellow velvet, drawn through rings of old paste.

Miss Killick's dress in this act is of shot brown and gold taffetas, made in semi-Directoire style, the double revers on the bodice being crossed over into a high black satin waistbelt, and fastened with immense black satin buttons. The V-shaped opening at the neck is softened with a fold of white chiffon, whilst her Romney hat of black crin is encircled with a long black plume, finished with a large rose in Nattier blue satin.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Señor Carlos Sobrino on Tuesday afternoon gave his fifth pianoforte recital in the Concert Room, a large audience being present. Brahms' "Variations and Fugue, on a Theme by Handel," was the first item in the programme, being followed by three works of Rubinstein, Señor Sobrino giving a most refined interpretation of the popular "Melodie in F." The pianist's playing of the "Barcarolle in G" also greatly pleased the audience; as well as the brilliant "Gavotte in F sharp." It was, however, in the five examples of Liszt that the talented Spanish pianist made the greatest impression, the "Liebestraum No. 3" being beautifully rendered, and the "Etude de Concert in D flat" and "Valse impromptu" greatly applauded; while Señor Sobrino's brilliant execution in the difficult "Tarantelle de Bravoura" ("Muta di Portici"), and the more familiar "Hungarian Rapsodie, No. 12," roused the audience to most enthusiastic applause, the professor being recalled many times to the platform. Señor Sobrino's last recital will be given on June 18, instead of the 11th.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

The Theatrical Sports Committee met on Wednesday last, Mr. C. Aubrey Smith, chairman, presiding. Among those present were Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, hon. treasurer; Mr. J. Cullen, St. James's Theatre; Mr. A. Palmer, Comedy Theatre; Mr. C. T. Cory, Vaudeville Theatre; Mr. A. Earnshaw, Duke of York's Theatre; Mr. G. H. Dyball, Opera House; Mr. E. Catlin, Surrey Theatre; Mr. H. Porter, Criterion Theatre; Mr. Ed. Stow, Savoy Theatre; Mr. Spaull, and the hon. secretary, Mr. W. Johnson. The minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, the correspondence relating to the arrangements was dealt with. It was decided, in reply to an enquiry respecting the eligibility of the soldiers employed at the Hippodrome, Woolwich, that the stage-manager should be informed the Committee could not depart from the rules confining the competitions to civilians.

The honorary secretary reported that a circular letter had been sent to the stage-manager of every music hall and theatre in the Metropolitan area, with a post-card for reply, asking for the appointment, from the staff or orchestra, of a representative to act for the Sports Committee. The following appointments had been notified: Mr. G. Saunders, master carpenter, the Borough Theatre; Mr. A. Palmer, the master carpenter, the Comedy Theatre; Mr. G. Bailey, master carpenter, the New Theatre; Mr. Hildyard, stage manager, the Chelsea Palace; Mr. W. J. Simpson, box office, Ealing Hippodrome; Mr. G. Fuller, Grand, Croydon; Mr. C. T. Richardson, stage-manager, Palace, Hammersmith; Mr. H. G. Brooke, stage-manager, Duchess, Balham; Mr. Phillip Sheridan, electrician, Crown Theatre, Peckham; Mr. Hook, stage-manager, Hippodrome, Putney; Mr. A. William Goodrich, stage-manager, New Cross Empire; Mr. H. Bolton, electrician, His Majesty's Theatre; and Mr. Geo. Selcraig, St. James's Theatre.

The Hon. Treasurer reported on the letters issued re Prize Fund, and the following donations received and prizes promised:— Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander, a clock, first prize for the 100 yards handicap; Lady Bancroft and Sir Squire Bancroft, two prizes; the proprietors of the Daily Telegraph, £3 3s.; Mr. W. S. Gilbert, £2 2s.; Mr. Alfred Sutro, £1 1s.; Mr. Frank Curzon, £1 1s. Miss Genevieve Ward, £1 1s.; Messrs. Whitbread and Co., £1 1s.; Mr. H. Rayne, £1 1s.; Miss Katherine Compton, £1 1s.; Miss Eva Moore, £1 1s.; and Miss Ina Rozant, 2s. 6d. Mr. John Lawson wrote promising a donation of 10s. Reports were considered relating to the printing of the programme, and the advertisements therein, and arrangements were made for the issue of handbills, posters, and window cards.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday week, in the Board Room at "The Era" offices.

The tug-of-war teams from the various London theatres and music halls will not have the redoubtable Dublin Empire team to pull over the mark. They are giving the contest a rest this year. It is to be hoped that The Era Challenge Shield will remain in London this time. When team meets team then comes the tug of war, and when the Annual Theatrical Sports are being held at Stamford Bridge grounds on Tuesday, July 9, may the best team win.

The assistance of volunteers is invited to make the sports a success. Entry forms will be sent on application, or may be obtained from the Committee, or its representatives. The final list of events is as follows:—

1. 100 yards running handicap.
2. 100 yards veterans' running handicap. (For men over 50 years of age.)
3. Quarter-mile running handicap.
4. Half-mile running handicap.
5. One mile running handicap.
6. 50 yards blindfold race.
7. Quarter-mile obstacle race.
8. 120 yards obstacle sack race.
9. Four-lap relay race. Open to three men from any theatre, or music hall (eligible to compete)—one to run, one to walk, and one to cycle. For a challenge trophy presented by Mr. C. Aubrey Smith, and medals.
10. One mile walking handicap.
11. Half-mile cycling handicap.
12. One mile cycling handicap.
13. Five mile cycling championship. If more than fifteen enter, the best fifteen may be selected. For the championship shield presented by Sir Thomas Dewar, M.P. To be won three times in succession.
14. Tug-of-War competition. For "The Era" challenge shield and ten medals. Open to teams of five men from any theatre or music hall. One reserve man allowed to be entered with the team. Weight of team limited to 60 stone.
15. 100 yards boys' running handicap. Sons under 12 years of age of employees eligible to compete.
16. 50 yards boot race.
17. 100 yards scratch consolation race. Open to those competitors who have not won a prize in the other events.

In answer to an enquiry regarding the benefits of the National Association of Theatrical Employees, we may state that the various branches have different benefits. The London General Staff Branch provide three classes of benefits, which are fixed according to the contribution paid. Members in Class A. contribute 2d. per week, and 1d. per month to the benevolent fund. This class receives the general support of the Association, legal advice free, legal assistance in approved circumstances, and assistance from the benevolent fund. The Association has paid as much as £40 in legal aid for members, and has granted as much as £4 in one year to a member from the benevolent fund, a sum equal to 160 years' contributions. Class B. contribute 4d. per week, for which they receive, in addition to the benefits enumerated, insurance on two lives, £10 at death of a member, and £5 at death of a member's wife. These benefits are equal to over thirty years' contributions. Class C. contribute 6d. per week, for which they are entitled, in addition to all the above benefits, to sick pay of 10s. per week for six weeks, and 5s. per week for an additional six weeks, a possible total sum of £4 10s. per annum (the contribution for this benefit being 8s. 8d. per year), or a sum equal to ten years' contribution. There are few, if any societies, all things considered, which provide such benefits for the contributions named, and every employee would do well to provide himself and dependents with such means of assistance in time of need. If the profession, generally, were not so generous to the improvident, a larger number would, no doubt, avail themselves of the opportunities constantly held out to them of making provision; more especially, as they may do so, in a dignified way with very small cost to themselves. It may also be assumed that even these substantial benefits could be increased with the support of the whole body entitled to membership in the Association.

The Committee of the Bioscope Operators' Association will meet on Tuesday next at the office, 29, Wellington-street, Strand. It is gratifying to know that members are joining at every meeting.

The meetings of the Bradford Branch, N.A.T.E., are held on the last Sunday in each month, in the Oddfellows' Hotel, Manchester-road. The meetings of the Cork branch are held at 105, Patrick-street, every Sunday, at 8 p.m

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. DICK CRUIKSHANKS.

Mr. Dick Cruikshanks is a son of the veteran Surrey actor, Charles Cruikshanks, the highly-esteemed secretary of the Actors' Association, so long connected with the fortunes of the historic old theatre "across the bridge" while the late George Conquest held sway. He was born in the early seventies. He soon felt a desire to place before a discriminating public samples of his abilities; the opportunity occurred, he being requisitioned in his teens for a waxwork show (à la Mrs. Jarley), in which he made a palpable hit by falling off his pedestal and raising a bump on his head. At thirteen he was the manager of a burnt cork brigade of ambitious amateurs, and even went so far as to press his elder sisters into his service. His father was anxious that he should pursue some—well, slightly more remunerative profession than that of an actor, and so, when his education was completed, he sent his son to a City lawyer with the idea of his being articled, and ultimately turned out as a fully-fledged solicitor. He was turned out, sooner than his sire anticipated, for, by his unremitting inattention to his studies, he acquired an undesirable reputation of extreme unfitness for the brilliant career mapped out for him.

While in the solicitor's office, Dick and a chum worked turns at music halls as comedy sketch artists (unbeknown to their parents). These sketches did not rouse the ire of the leaders of the dramatic profession, and therefore the youngsters were left severely alone.

The next venture in attempting to establish a future was made in an engineer's works, where the youth had the opportunity of learning a trade of inexhaustible opportunities He served his time as an apprentice, and, when it was completed, stated his intention of becoming an actor. During his apprenticeship he had established a high reputation in the smoking concert world as a comic singer.

His first theatrical engagement was with the Haymarket touring company, in John a' Dreams. There he remained throughout the tour, and then joined The Shop Girl company, and afterwards several other companies of note, playing almost every line of business. Tiring of the "legit," he tried busking for a while. It was pleasant work, plenty of fresh air, plenty of variety, and plenty of money—at times.

He had had some experience of busking during his "theatrical" career, for, on the first day of a certain Derby week, he and five others who had been with him in a musical comedy company on tour, finding themselves disengaged—not at all an unusual thing, even in those days—blacked up and took to the Downs. And they did not take much else. The "bottle" (buskers' slang for money-box or collecting shell) at the end of the day contained eleven pence and three farthings. No doubt their talents were highly appreciated by the admiring crowds, but less than a shilling was not much to share between six, so they decided to walk home.

Having gained some experience, Mr. Dick Cruikshanks turned his attention to the halls. He toured with George Gray in The Fighting Parson for nearly two years, having appeared in many sketches previously with undoubted success. He resolved to write sketches of his own, and so started straight away, and very shortly produced Bridget's Idea, with his own company, headed by Miss Alice Maydue. This proved a success, both in town and country. He provided his father with a domestic episode, entitled An Old Clown's Christmas, which was presented in due course at the Surrey, with every sign of approval, and at present another work of his, La Vivandière (an adaptation of Ouida's "Under Two Flags") is booked for a lengthy tour in town and country. Another piece, She Loved Much, secured a full measure of success. Needless to state that he has, like most authors, an unlimited supply of sketches of every style and description ready for immediate production, and is prepared to write to order on the slightest provocation. Can any author say more—or less?

Mr. Dick Cruikshanks is a married man, his wife being the well-known and talented Miss Flo Lynn. The rest of the family consists of "Little Tess," who made her first appearance "on any stage" in April last, and, being at present only ten months old, her father has not yet definitely settled plans for her future, and is, for the moment, undecided whether to make her a political reformer or a "Risley" acrobat.

AMUSEMENTS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

DURBAN. May 4.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler; Business-Manager, Mr. P. F. Thompson.—After a lengthy interval the Theatre Royal was reopened this week by the Woods-Williamson Dramatic Company, the production being an adaptation of Marion Crawford's historical romance, "In the Palace of the King," which is the work of Miss Maud Williamson. Don John, Prince of Austria, was admirably played by Mr. Alfred Woods, who acted naturally; Miss Williamson as Dolores also showed exceptional abilities; Philip the Second was artistically played by Mr. Horace Hunter; Mr. Douglas Gordon, who took the part of General de Mendoza, was eminently successful; and Mr. Hylton Warde gave a capital rendering of Adonis, the Court jester. Miss Lily Hammersley showed marked ability in the part of Dona Ana; and Miss May Kenyon as Inez de Mendoza, Dolores' blind sister, contributed some excellent acting. All the minor parts were efficiently performed, and the play was capitally staged and handsomely dressed. Other productions by the company include The Gates of Bondage, The Garden of Lies, Barabbas, The King's Mistress, and The New Magdalene.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA. 1850—1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

Mr. Charles Hannan's fantastic comedy, The Electric Man, the entire provincial and suburban rights of which have now reverted to the author, was recently produced in Cape Town by Mr. Leonard Rayne, and met with similar success to that which attended it in London and elsewhere.

Mr. Edward Michael's programme at the Theatre Royal, Margate, for the next three weeks is of unusual interest. On Monday next he produces, for the first time in England, a powerful play entitled The Daughters of Men, written by Mr. Charles Klein, which has made a great success in the United States; the following week will witness the production of a play adapted by Miss Emma Brooke from her novel, The Twins of Skirlaugh Hall; and on June 24, The Duchess of Marlborough, which had its first representation at the Margate Theatre Royal, will be revived by request. Mr. Michael has engaged the services of several well-known artists, among them being Miss Cecil Cromwell, Miss Eily Malyon, Mr. Henry Renouf, and Mr. Arthur Royston. In the cast will also appear various local favourites, including Mrs. Culling, Mr. Leigh, and Mr. G. W. Elton.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J. B.—We have not heard the line you quote, and therefore are unable to inform you of the name of the originator of the sketch wherein it occurs.

G. E. R. (Brixton).—Miss Louie Freear appeared at Terry's Theatre on Jan. 19 with Mr. Montague Roby's Midget Minstrels, and played the part of Mrs. Stiggins in a farce called Snooks.

FROM THE PIT (Clapham).—Yes. Miss Winifred Emery played the part of Nellie Denver when the late Mr. Wilson Barrett revived The Silver King at the New Olympic—now pulled down—on Jan. 3, 1891.

DIABLET.—We cannot tell you. It was at Kennington last week, but its movements this week are not advertised. Possibly the tour is finished. Write Manager, Hicks Theatre, and send stamped envelope.

NEPEAN BODDY.—The best plan would be to apply to the Secretary of some local society presenting plays and get experience with amateurs. Your success would, of course, depend on your voice, deportment, appearance, and intelligence. Without very special gifts it would be unwise for you to attempt to follow the stage as a profession.

G. E. VICARY (Newington Butts).—Mrs. Patrick Campbell did not play in the piece you mention at the Adelphi, but came a few years later to that theatre. Mr. Charles Warner played Tom Robinson at Drury Lane Theatre, in It's Never Too Late to Mend, on April 11, 1891. The actor who originally took the part on the production of Charles Reade's drama on Oct. 4, 1865, at the Princess's was George Vining.

E. H. FIELDER (West Hampstead).—To answer your question would involve too much searching of our columns.

J. W. H. (Upper Tooting).—Mr. Frank Harvey died in March, 1903, prior to which he and his wife, with their own company, appeared in the chief towns throughout the country. One of Mr. Harvey's dramas, Shall We Forgive Her? was produced at the Adelphi.

T. B. INGLIS.—Put your question to Mr. Otto Twigg at the London Hippodrome, enclosing a stamped envelope.

MISS C. N. GRUNDY.—Apply to the Manager, New York Clipper, New York, U.S.A.

W. W. LEAFER (Harringay).—Miss Kate Vaughan died in Johannesburg on Feb. 21, 1903. In our obituary notice of her stage career her maiden name is not mentioned. Possibly one of her stage comrades of the old Gaiety days could give you the information you seek. Try Mr. Edward Terry, whose address is Terry's Theatre, Strand, W.C., or Mr. George Conquest, Empire Theatre, Southend.

MISS N. MORRIS (Cork).—The last we heard of the lady was that she had married again and settled down in Glasgow; but we are unable to ascertain her address, although we have looked down the list of professional apartments in several of the professional papers.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.

Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.

Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.

Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.

Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for 1907, published at a shilling from 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, is, as usual, a happy combination of record, almanac, and literary symposium. The last-mentioned aspect is one that most commends the work to the lay reader. The literary contributions are signed by well-known artists who have contributed personal experiences of remembered incidents, and whose portraits adorn the pages. A touch of pathos is lent to an otherwise cheery publication by the inclusion of stage and music-hall favourites who died last year, one of whom was Mr. J. L. Toole.—Financier and Bullionist., Feb. 6.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for the current year, besides having all the usual valuable features which make the work so necessary for reference, has, for a special feature, a series of short articles, stories, or sketches by prominent members of the dramatic and musical profession, a well-executed portrait of each writer accompanying the text. The obituary for last year—unfortunately a heavy one—is given in a series of photograph likenesses of those departed. The full-page portrait of Mr. J. L. Toole is, indeed, worth more than the humble shilling at which the Annual is sold. The monthly calendar is, as usual, a storehouse of interesting facts connected with the stage. — Weekly Times and Echo.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
That invaluable annual, "The Era" Almanac, has just made its appearance for 1907. In addition to its usual record of the important productions and revivals of the past twelve months in London and Paris, there is a series of bright contributions by Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Edward German, Mr. Frank Cooper, Mr. Frank Curzon, Mr. Charles Collette, Miss Alma Murray, and other well-known members of the profession.—Sunday Times, Jan. 27.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual for 1907 will be cordially welcomed by the profession, as well as by all who are interested in the modern theatre and concert-hall. It contains some racy little sketches by Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Pollie Emery, Mr. Charles Collette, and other well-known artists; much useful information and many illustrations.—Leicester Daily Post, Jan. 23, 1907.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, JUNE 8, 1907.

PATRONS OF THE DRAMA.

It is an ancient truism that the drama's laws are given by the drama's patrons; and it is of obvious importance to the theatrical manager to know exactly to whom he must look for the "support" which is to pay his expenses. The very interesting remarks by Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER, which we print elsewhere, anent the composition of the audiences which have kept so many successes at the St. James's Theatre running over the hundredth night are very valuable as coming from an expert in the art of attracting the public; and they are the more significant as they emanate from the manager of a theatre which has always borne the cachet which is given by the approval of Fashion. The St. James's has always been carried on in such excellent "form," and its "first nights" have been attended by so many personages of social distinction, that many have been led to the error of supposing that it derives its prosperity from some special clientèle. The old idea of theatrical management used to be that the première of a new play was to be attended by as much of the crême de la crème as could be packed into the stalls and boxes. They were supposed, at dinner-parties and other functions, to give their opinions on the play to their friends. One first-nighter would thus inoculate a score of his or her friends with a desire to see the piece; and the news of the success, permeating the whole of society proper, would, by a process of natural descent, reach those outside the pale, until, radiating from Mayfair as a centre, they reached the ultima Thule of Upper Tooting, and spread from West Kensington even unto Maida Vale. How superficial was this view of the importance of the "fashionables" to the prosperity of a play can easily be understood when we estimate the small number of "society people" in London and the large number of seats that have to be filled night after night during a long run.

It is, of course, an axiom nowadays that the London manager must depend upon his stalls and dress-circle—his stalls especially—to make a profit. It is curious to note how the centre of financial importance has shifted in the past from the boxes to the pit, and then from the pit to stalls. In the early English theatres the pit was the resort of the "groundlings," while the people of fashion assembled in the private boxes or on the stage itself. By CHARLES II.'s time the pit had become "smart." "Among the rest here," says PEPYS, "the Duke of BUCKINGHAM to-day openly sat in the pit; and there I found him with my Lord BUCKHURST, and SEDLEY, and ETHERIDGE the poet." The Right Hon. WILLIAM WINDHAM, Colonial Secretary, and one of the "beaus" of his day, in his "Journals," tells of his frequent visits to the pit of Covent Garden. The advantages of the pit were recognised by society people who were "smart" in more senses than one; and audiences came to agree with HAZLITT that "it was unpleasant to see a play from the boxes." The managers, at last realising the situation, seized upon the best rows of seats in the pit and converted them into stalls, charging for these a larger price than they had ever levied in regard to the boxes. Stalls were first introduced at the Opera House in the Haymarket in the year 1829. Dissatisfaction was expressed at the moment; but there was no serious disturbance, and the public paid the increased price or stayed away from the theatre; for, says a chronicler, "staying away from the theatre could now be calmly viewed as a reasonable alternative. The play was no more what it had been—a sort of necessary of life." The example of the Opera manager was soon followed at all other theatrical establishments; and high-priced stalls became the rule everywhere. The absence of any system of booking rendered it necessary for our ancestors to anticipate the present method of employing messenger-boys to keep places in a queue; they sent their footmen to occupy bodily the places which were to be filled by their masters.

Mr. ALEXANDER, in our pithy interviewette, opines that the bulk of a West End manager's support is to be expected from people of moderate incomes living in or around London. What constitutes a "moderate income" nowadays is doubtful; but that City men and professional men in receipt of between one and two thousand a year are very numerous in London is obvious to anyone who notices the hundreds of smart villas which must take incomes of at least this amount to maintain. The type of man who keeps the theatre going is the paterfamilias with a wife and a few daughters; and with this type of family a visit to a theatre is more or less of an outing and an "occasion." As it does not happen every week, the parent generally makes up his mind to "do the thing well," the visit to the play being coupled with a dinner or supper to his wife and the "girls." Probably the parent is not himself an enthusiastic playgoer; but he recognises what is due to his women-folk, and the wisdom of the policy of occasionally "taking them out." As a domestic emollient, a visit to the theatre has no rival; and, as it is usually undertaken for the sake of the "female element," the influence of that element on the fortunes of a playhouse is very great indeed. The vast well-to-do middle-class are the real supporters of the theatre in London. They have neither the audacity nor the motive to be mean; whereas the aristocratic folk, with greater expenses and—often—smaller incomes, are more hardly pressed. The extent to which begging for free admissions and using the cheaper parts of the house at matinées is carried on would surprise many of our readers. An acting-manager of high position told us the other day that he saw, one afternoon, a carriage with a marquis's coronet on the doors drive up to the theatre at which he officiated, and set down a bevy of beautiful girls and a governess, who all took their places in the queue, and eventually entered the pit. Persons of established position have always been more indifferent to appearances than commoner folk; and we find that important personage Mr. PEPYS expressing a sense of injury when, there being no room in the pit, he was forced to pay four shillings and go into one of the upper boxes, "which," he says, "was the first time he ever sat in a box in his life." Plays, to succeed nowadays, must not, as did the lewd comedies of the Restoration, appeal to the taste of the limited clique known as "the town." They must please the general public; and how healthy and true are its instincts a glance at the list of entertainments at the theatres in London at present distinctly proves.

MR. ALEXANDER ON AUDIENCES.

As several comments have reached us upon our recent leader on "American Dramas" and the question of the component parts of London audiences, we made it our business to call on Mr. George Alexander, and elicit his opinions on the subject. Our readers will remember that, in the article in question, in elaborating the argument that smart society, as such, does not so distinctively "support" the theatre as it did, we became committed to the reverse theory that the theatre was once "supported" by smart society.

"I am aware," said Mr. Alexander, discussing this point, "that in some quarters the approval of the fashionables is deemed to be the great and only requisite for the success of a play. But anyone who will reflect upon the numbers of 'customers' whom a manager requires to fill his stalls and dress circle night after night during a run, must realise that the comparatively small section known as 'smart' can never turn the balance between the long prosperity of a new piece and its speedy withdrawal for urgent financial reasons. I should say that the class which really keeps the play-house going is composed of well-to-do people with modest incomes; the class which inhabits houses in not the very 'best' quarters, and has always money to spend. From these in London, and from visitors of the same class from the provinces, is the great bulk of the manager's receipts derived. Even if a play appealed especially to 'smart society,' and it filled the house night after night, the numbers of paying patrons would be exhausted in a month or six weeks.

"Even supposing that 'smartness' necessarily implies frivolity—a supposition difficult to prove—the most profitable appeal at a theatre like the St. James's would be to the deeper instincts of play-going humanity, and not to the shallowest. Your leader writer, in his estimate of The Princess and the Butterfly, places stress on certain details, while he ignores the deep satire and warm, pulsating human interest of Mr. Pinero's fine play, without which it never could have pleased my public, who are neither morbid nor 'milk-and-water' in their tastes. Lady Windermere's Fan, which is frequently referred to as a kid-glove drama or a collection of epigrams, has one of the deepest, finest, tenderest of 'stories.'

"There can be no greater mistake than to picture the St. James's only as the home of brilliant epigram and feather-headed frivolity. The success of such dramas as, for instance, If I Were King, and of Liberty Hall, As You Like It, Old Heidelberg, Paolo and Francesca, and The Prisoner of Zenda—with the very same public, mind you, that is supposed to care for nothing but glitter and sparkle and 'up-to-date' smartness—is, I think, sufficient disproof of any such accusation."

MR. H. A. LYTTON, the well-known actor, was successful in his action against Mr. D. J. V. Langhorne (carrying on business as the Metropolitan Garage Association) to recover damages for misrepresentation or for secret commission, for neglect in looking after an electric landaulette, plaintiff's property, and for a statement of account in connection with the hiring of the car. Mr. Lytton was awarded £100 damages.

JOHN R. ROGERS.

"'I want to introduce everybody to Rogers,' says a writer in the San Jose Mercury. 'It will do everybody good to know him. He is a philosopher, but I would have hardly dared to tell him so last night. He would have knocked me down with a funny story. He is sixty-seven years of age, and not a white hair in his head. His muscles are as strong and firm as those of a young pugilist. His face beams with merriment, his eye sparkles, and he is as young as the most frolicsome schoolboy. He has been in the show business for forty years, and knows nearly everybody of note who has been behind the footlights in the last half century. He has been fourteen times around the world, and has crossed the Atlantic ninety-eight times—or is it 980?

"'Rogers says that the reason he is not ready to be Oslerized is that he has breathed so many different sorts of air, and lived on so many different sorts of food, and run up against so many different sorts of people; but I know better. He is sixty-seven years young because he is absolutely care free, because he has a merry soul, and because he likes to bring joy wherever he comes. Now you have been properly introduced, I'll let Mr. Rogers talk a little.

"'"We generally find what we are looking for in this world. I knew a fellow once who came around looking for trouble. He wanted to hit somebody. He went into a saloon, ordered a drink, and started out without paying for it. He found trouble all right. They hauled him away a little later in an ambulance. But say, what's the use of hunting unpleasant things when you can just as well have a good time? I'd hate to make folks feel gloomy when I'm around. It must be awful to be a funeral procession. The heavy tragedian's all right on the stage, but folks want the funny man out in real life. You can generally tell what a man is really like before you have been with him long. When I run up against a stack of sadness I try to throw a little sunshine on it, and then if I can't make an impression I get out. I won't stay around with folks who can't smile a little now and then. It's great to be happy, and I'd like to see the man who could make me glum. I won't stand for it.'

"Here the cyclone of words takes another turn.

"'"Did it ever occur to you that every man is a barbarian when he is born? The first thing a baby does when in reach of your watch or your diamond stud (I see you left yours at home), is to make a grab for it. Folks have got to be educated up to civilisation, and its got to be done individually. A youngster is not always responsible for growing up perpetually sour-bawled. I'd like to see a whole bunch of merry fools scattered around over the world. People would begin to grow up happy and everybody would soon feel so good that they couldn't think of fighting and kicking up trouble all the time. Those would be dull days for the lawyers, wouldn't they, but they'd be mighty good days for everybody else.

"'"This show business is great. You see all sorts of people, but most of them think they ought to be in the limelight most of the time. I've been thinking that men and women haven't such an awful lot to be proud about. We're not built so architecturally perfect that we can brag about it. There's the nose, stuck on above the mouth. A fellow can't take a bite of limburger cheese without getting a whiff of it and spoiling his appetite. And then there's your mouth. It's just like capital and labour. The lower jaw does all the work and the upper part of the mouth has the tasting apparatus and gets all the pleasure. Here we have an ear on each side of the head. What goes in one ear slides out the other. One of them ought to be blocked up. There are two eyes in the front of the face. You can see just as well with one and the other one ought to be in the back of the head, so you could see both ways. We're not such remarkable creatures, are we? But, then, what's the use of stewing about that? I can taste, taste and smell and see and hear enough good things to suit me, and I'm not kicking.'

"The tornado at this point takes another whirl.

"'"I've noticed in knocking around the world that there's a lot of difference in people. Everybody has some peculiarity. It's the same among actors as among anyone else. There was Mary Anderson. She never read the newspapers. She would get up in the morning, put on a wrapper and eat a little breakfast. Then she would get a novel, call one of her pet dogs or cats to her, and drop down on the floor for an hour or two at a time. It strikes me that was a funny thing to do. But she enjoyed it. Barrett ate but one heavy meal a day, and that was at midnight. He would eat a few bites for breakfast and for lunch, and then after the show was over he would order the biggest meal he could get and fill up. Said he couldn't play on a full stomach. That's the way with most of them. Emmett was one of the five actors whom I have known who could eat heartily before going on the stage. He ate almost all the time in fact, but his heaviest meal was a late dinner. Lawrence D'Orsay, whom I brought over from England, lived on one note. He never varied. He was immaculately dressed—he wore an extreme English dress. I told him that it would go all right in the East, but he would have to tone it down when he came West. He said that "Whatevah is good enough foh New Yawk and Bawston is good enough for Texaws, you know." He changed his tune when a cowboy shot his hat full of holes. He never would venture back to "Texaws" again.'

"The train came and Rogers had to leave. Next time you meet J. R. Rogers on the street stop him and let him talk to you awhile. The beautiful things he will tell you will convince you that John R. Rogers will always be known as 'Yours merrily.'"

THE new managing-director of the Pavilion Theatre, Mr. Sigmund Feinman, left for New York on Wednesday in last week by the s.s. Kaiser Wilhelm II. A large crowd, including the members of the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company, gathered at Waterloo Station, and the occasion was marked by the presentation of a handsome bouquet of flowers to the departing actor by little Miss Carmel Ephstein. A party numbering twenty journeyed to Southampton to bid the traveller au revoir. Mr. Feinman returns to England on July 1, when he will complete his arrangements for reopening the theatre early in August.

EARL'S COURT.

Whatever be your personal predilections and your tastes, you are bound to find something to interest you in the Balkan States Exhibition, which is now enjoying a career of popularity at Earl's Court. In fact, it is quite a liberal education to stroll through the rooms and examine collections of Servian paintings, sculpture, and engravings, specimens of clothes, embroideries, ornaments, gold and silver work, musical instruments, weapons of warfare, and all manner of food-stuffs. Here, too, the student of ethnographical problems will find much to attract his attention, what with the score and a half of figures, dressed in national costumes, from Servia, Old Servia, and Macedonia, and the other objects from the famous museum at Belgrade. And the statistician will find plenty of scope for his talents in an examination of the tables of figures and information devoted to trade, agriculture, gold, silver, copper, lead, and zinc mines. Then there are also the Bulgarian and Montenegrin sections, each offering special attractions, and each, like the Servian section, under royal and distinguished patronage.

One learns a great deal more concerning the three States mentioned when, wandering through the Balkan Village, one is sufficiently induced by a huge sign which says "Through the Balkans" to enter the edifice indicated and sit down for a few minutes to watch the wonderfully realistic pictures taken by the Urban Trading Co., Ltd., under the direction of the well-known explorer, Mr. Harry de Windt. We start from Trieste, and travel through Herzegovina and Bosnia, countries which were formerly almost inaccessible to a stranger, and it is, therefore, interesting to note how rapidly Austria has converted these one-time lawless States into busy commercial and civilised centres. To-day mosques, minarets, and the mysterious "Veiled Women of Mortar" alone recall Oriental traditions, although it is not such a very long time since Christians were impaled upon the very spot now occupied by a modern and palatial hotel. And now we leave the blue Adriatic to travel through Montenegro, and are shown stirring scenes in Cettinje—the smallest capital of the world—and the wild Montenegrin, with his barbaric costume and customs. The second series of films takes us to Servia. The Bioscope shows us a bright and beautiful city in Belgrade, and, indeed, there seems little of the gloom and mystery one might associate with the capital of Servia when one recollects the terrible tragedy which overthrew the dynasty of the late King Alexander and Queen Draga. While in Belgrade we witness the military evolutions of King Peter's bodyguard, the officers of which organised the coup d'état which resulted in the assassination of his predecessors on the throne. Travelling into the provinces, we are introduced to Servian village life, and towards the close of this journey is depicted a skirmish between Turkish troops and insurgents near the Bulgarian frontier—a frequent outcome of the eternal Macedonian question. The concluding series treats us to magnificent views of Bulgarian life and manœuvres of Prince Ferdinand's army.

Two or three hours can easily be employed in visiting other departments of the Exhibition. There is, for instance, the magnificent scenic production called "Old Japan," which is to be found in all its bright and gorgeous splendour occupying the whole of the Empress Hall. Here one sees temples, pagodas, monuments, and tea-houses surrounded by the trim and picturesque working establishments of the various craftsmen. All around is a wealth of plum, cherry, peach, and wistaria bloom. Whether interested in Eastern workmanship or not, one feels compelled, somehow or other, to watch the nimble fingers of these Japanese engaged in fan-making and fan-painting, wood engraving and carving, manipulating silk and ivory, bronze, pottery, &c., and making artificial flowers. The amusement element is well attended to by the clever juggling and wonderful balancing tricks of a Japanese troupe of artists.

In the Balkan Theatre, which is to be found on the left-hand side as one enters the Balkan Village, free performances are given from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Native peasant dancers and singers contribute their national entertainments and sports, accompanied by a Tzigane band. Just across the way are the Pygmies, an interesting and very happy little family which Colonel Harrison brought from the Congo, and who are going back to their native forest at the close of the Exhibition. Near by is the cabin occupied by Sacco, the champion fasting man of the world, who on Thursday evening commenced the feat of denying himself food for thirty-five days. Sacco enjoyed his parting meal at eight p.m. on Thursday in the presence of members of the public, after which he entered his glass house, which was screwed and sealed up. We are informed that watch is kept night and day over Sacco, who is provided with books, cigarettes, and a typewriter to entertain himself with.

Leaving the Village, we pass under some arches to a domain which is called Elysia. Here and round about one becomes acquainted with "mirrors of mirth," a cycle circus, the "wheel of Avernus," ballooning on a cylinder of steel, the helter-skelter lighthouse, the working salt mine, switchback, demonstrations by restless ants and bees, the electrophone, Pharo's Temple of Mystery, Gondia, "the missing link," and Peerinal and Swami, the Hindoo freaks. Close by, too, is the al fresco theatre where Mr. Harry Loftus presents his entertainment, Pierrot and Co. There is a capital little programme, which includes songs, choruses, and duets from Mr. Harry Loftus, Mr. D. Kopski, Mr. Edgar Edwards, Mr. James Chilcott, Miss Edith Brockley, Mr. Wm. Everard, and Miss Julie Dolaro. Mr. Kopski presides at the piano. Situated in the neighbourhood of what is known as the Queen's Court are to be found the Balkan stalactite caverns, the new water chute, Maxim's flying machine, and the fishing cormorants.

One could not conclude a notice of Earl's Court without referring to the delightful performances given by the military and other bands in various parts of the grounds throughout the day. If one gets somewhat bewildered by the huge congregation of multifarious objects to be seen in the Exhibition, a pleasant few minutes'—hours, if desired—rest may be sought and the mind refreshed and recuperated by taking advantage of the seats in the gardens and listening to the musical selections so finely performed by the band of H.M. Royal Artillery, under the able conductorship of Mr. George Miller, L.R.A.M., and by the London Exhibitions' Orchestral Band, under the conductorship of Signor A. Venanzi. These two bands do admirable work in the Western Gardens, Queen's Court, and Imperial Court.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. Walter Mould, who has been assistant-manager of the Bury Theatre for the past six years, has been the recipient of a dressing-case and writing-case, subscribed for by the staffs of the Theatre Royal and Olympia Circus, Bury, as a token of regard. Mr. Otto C. Culling, in making the presentation, said it was a pleasant yet unpleasant duty to perform. Owing to some re-arrangement in the management of their theatres, Mr. Mould was leaving Bury, and might go to one of their other houses. Mr. Culling testified to the fact that Mr. Mould had done his best for the firm and the staffs also, and said it was with pleasure he presented him with those emblems of esteem. Mr. Mould briefly responded.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In your current issue you state that Miss Adela Bowen is engaged to play the Princess in Adrienne Lecouvreur and Blean in Tanqueray by Miss Nethersole for Paris. It should have been, yours faithfully, ADELINE BOURNE, Theatre Sarah Bernhardt, Paris, June 4.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

At a special meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, held on Friday, May 31, great regret was expressed that Miss Marie Lloyd would be unable to preside at the annual dinner, which it was decided to hold at the place and date advertised, viz., the Trocadero, on Sunday next, June 9, at 7 o'clock, and to reduce the price of the tickets to 6s., exclusive of wine. Tickets can be obtained at the office of the Fund, 18, Adam-street, Strand. Messrs. Lyons have cancelled the original contract, and have promised, under the circumstances, to do all they can to meet the wishes of the committee.

The election of the general secretary of the Variety Artists' Federation is now proceeding. The voting papers which have been sent to all members of the executive now in the United Kingdom are returnable by Tuesday, when the result of election will be announced. The candidates are Mr. Frank Gerald, the present general secretary, and Mr. Monty Bayley.

Another general meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation will be held as soon as the award has been made known. Mr. G. R. Askwith promises that this will be in a few days.

The Paragon anniversary is to be celebrated on Friday next, when a special programme of considerable attractiveness will be presented by Messrs. Fred Miller and Charles Beecham. Mr. David Cowis will be on hand to direct the stage.

An unprecedented "bit o' luck" has happened to Mr. Cremetti, one of the directors of the Palace. There was a Derby "sweep" at that establishment, and the "horses" were drawn in the presence of the leading members of the staff. Much to their surprise, however, Mr. Cremetti's name was called to the first three horses! There are now rumours of a big dinner for the staff.

Mr. Bransby Williams, who is now on the Moss and Stoll tour, has decided on accepting Mr. Percy Williams's tempting offer to revisit America at the end of September. He hopes, however, to be back in London in time enough to join the Christmas entertainment at the Hippodrome. The young actor will visit New York, Boston, Brooklyn, and Philadelphia.

A fashionable matinée in aid of Sir William Treloar's Cripple Fund will be held at the London Hippodrome on Friday, July 5. Mr. Fred Trussell, the manager, has the arrangements well in hand, and is making special efforts to obtain record financial results. The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs will attend in state.

The reappearance on Monday night, at the Palace Theatre, of Mr. R. G. Knowles accounted for the fact that the immense audience included a great number of his fellow-countrymen. The famous American joker had brought with him a rare choice of funny yarns, and a capital new song entitled "Every little bit added to what you've got makes a little bit more." The enthusiasm with which Mr. Knowles was received proved that London had not forgotten him during his two years' absence. He reappears in his familiar white trousers.

An unequivocal success was instantly scored by Mr. George Leyton and his company (including fifteen survivors of the Indian Mutiny) at the Ardwick Empire, on Monday last, with Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate's stirring military sketch in two scenes, entitled Lucknow, and the same company and sketch are due to appear at the London Hippodrome, for an engagement commencing Monday next.

Mr. Joe Elvin was successful on Tuesday in the Evening News competition for a limerick on the leech incident in the second act of the comic opera of Tom Jones at the Apollo. The prize was five guineas, which was given for the following witty lines:—

"This weather's the cause—she can't stick it—
Poor Lizzie dislikes a wet wicket.
She has crawled with a grin
'Neath the hearth of the inn,
Where she's 'kidding' herself she's a cricket."

A "social purity" deputation, headed by the Bishop of London, made a protest on Wednesday before the Theatres and Music Halls Committee of the London County Council against the exhibition of living statuary. Photographs of ladies in statuesque poses were shown to the committee, which stated that it had received previous complaints, and promised to consider the whole question afresh. Mr. H. J. Greenwood received the deputation.

Mr. George Mozart is not in the habit of "giving himself away," but he gave his pretty and accomplished daughter Annie away on June 1 to Mr. Peter Dalziel Brown. It was a most deserving case. The wedding took place at St. Saviour's Church, Brixton Hill, breakfast afterwards being served to some forty guests at Mr. Mozart's residence in the Haytor-road. On all sides it was remarked that Mr. and Mrs. George Mozart looked but little older than the bride and bridegroom, whose joint-ages reached some thirty-six years. The presents were many and costly, and the guests included the well-known sketch-writer, Mr. Chris Davis (of the People) and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Craven. A prettier wedding has seldom been seen in the profession.

Signor Carlo Grossi comes to the London Hippodrome on Monday with high credentials as a thought and mind reader and telepathic expert. He will be blindfolded by any member of the audience and led away beyond the reach of hearing or seeing anything that is going on. Then over a chalked line made as intricate with circles and curves as possible, and on which crosses have been placed, Grossi will walk, pausing on each cross for a moment. He will find pins hidden by any member of the audience in any part of the auditorium, and, always blindfolded, will find a single hair and restore it to the person to whom it belongs.

His most marvellous feat will be to unravel a supposed murder mystery. Whilst he is blindfolded two members of the audience are asked to simulate a crime. Several knives are laid on a table, the supposed murderer takes one of them and pretends to stab somebody. He then takes from the pocket of his victim some article which he hides anywhere he likes. The blindfolded detective will point out the supposed assassin, the victim, the thing stolen, and the whereabouts of the knife. Grossi works unaided by even a single partner, and the sceptics are invited to test him.

The action brought by Mr. Leo Stormont (Mr. William Macpherson Easson) against the London Pavilion has been settled. The plaintiff's case was that the defendant company agreed to produce his sketch, adapted from the French Mephisto en Voyage, and called The Devil's Week-end, for a trial week at £50, and then on the occasion of the day's rehearsal refused it. The defendants denied the breach of contract. On taking his seat on Monday, Mr. Justice Ridley said there had been friendly terms between the plaintiff and the defendant company in the past, and there might be the same friendly terms in the future. Mr. Horridge and Mr. Spencer Bower, the counsel engaged, both agreed, and the jury returned a formal verdict for £50 for the plaintiff, with costs.

Mr. Henry Kemble, the popular manager of the Palace, Cork, on his retirement from that post, was presented on Friday, May 31, with a purse of sovereigns, and the High Sheriff of the town sent a cheque. Sir Alfred Dobbin made the presentation. Mrs. Kemble (Miss Bertha Stuart) was also honoured by a beautiful bouquet.

A company called the Liverpool Theatres of Varieties, Limited, has been registered with a capital of £45,000 (£1) (40,000 preference) to acquire the Tivoli Palace, Park Palace, and Paddington Palace, all in Liverpool, and to adopt an agreement with the Lancashire Vaudeville Syndicate, Limited.

The licensing magistrates granted a full licence on Tuesday to Mr. Richard Thornton's new Empire Theatre, Sunderland, which opens on July 1. This means that drama, musical comedies, and operas can be staged as well as variety shows, and that alcoholic refreshments will be obtainable in all parts of the house.

The Palace Theatre, Dundee, after a successful season, closes for the summer vacation to-day. Mr. E. J. Dexter, an enthusiastic disciple of Izaak Walton, intends to devote part of his well-earned holiday to his favourite sport. If he is as successful with the rod as he has been in the management of the Palace he should be rewarded with some heavy creels.

The plans for the alterations necessary for the conversion of the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, to its future use as a music hall were considered by the Birmingham Licensing Bench at the transfer sessions on Thursday. Moss' Empires in March last acquired by purchase the lease of the house from the Birmingham Corporation for seventy-five years from 1883, when it was built. At present the building was not in accordance with modern ideas of comfort and convenience, and Moss' Empires, Limited, were going to spend a large sum of money in renovation and rearrangement. The proposed alterations included the doing away with a gallery which had been awkward and dangerous, and in every respect consideration would be paid to the safety, convenience, and comfort of the public.

Mr. Frank Matcham, the well-known theatre architect, who gave evidence, said he had prepared the plans for the proposed alterations. The theatre would be to a great extent rearranged and reconstructed, having regard all through to modern requirements as far as the place would allow. He had always kept in the front the safety, convenience, and comfort of the public. It was proposed to spend £10,000 on the alterations. Mr. Chance, for the Bench, had no hesitation in saying that the alterations suggested would be an enormous improvement, both as regards the safety and comfort of the public and the convenience of those who took part in the performances. The plans were approved.

Mr. Walter Smith was presented, on Saturday evening, with a gold watch chain and a purse of gold from patrons, artists, and staff of the Eastbourne Hippodrome on the occasion of his resignation of the position of resident manager. The regrets of the donors were expressed by Mr. E. A. Foster on behalf of the patrons, by Mr. Chas. Austin for the artists, and by Miss E. B. Showler and Mr. W. H. Ash for the staff. The presentation was made by Miss Showler. Mr. Smith replied, thanking the subscribers for their kindness.

Southampton theatrical enterprises will naturally be benefited by four of the largest ships of the White Star Line making the southern seaport their headquarters, as it is well known that after a week or two at sea a little relaxation is eagerly welcomed by all members of the shipping fraternity. Among those invited by the directors of the White Star Co. at the inaugural luncheon on the Adriatic on Saturday were Mr. Frank Macnaghten (managing-director of the Palace, Southampton) and his local manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.

The Mayor of Southampton, members of the Corporation, and a most distinguished company assembled on board, and the tone of the post-prandial speeches was very optimistic as to the future prosperity of the town of Southampton. A special invitation was extended to the officers and crew of the Adriatic by Mr. Frank Macnaghten to visit the Palace, where every facility is afforded all shipping men for their entertainment and comfort, which they readily appreciated and availed themselves of.

Mr. Thos. A. Evans, resident-manager of the Palace of Varieties, Northampton, has been accorded a complimentary benefit by Mr. Fred H. Anderson, the proprietor. It will take place on the 14th inst., when a number of artists have volunteered their services.

Whilst Fred Karno's company was playing the travesty, Mumming Birds, on Monday at the Boscombe Hippodrome, a part of the scenery, representing the stage-boxes, somehow gave way, and fell forward on the stage, carrying several members of the company from a good height to the ground. The curtain was at once lowered, and it was seen that one or two of the members were injured. Bob Lewis and C. Wragg were taken to the local hospital, the former on an ambulance, but after being attended to it was found unnecessary to detain either. Several other artists were slightly injured, but, after a brief delay, they pluckily resumed the performance.

Miss Winnie Stanhope happened to occupy rooms last week in a house where a poor girl fell from a third-floor window on Saturday morning—a very painful experience for the artist. The rumour ran through the town that it was to Miss Stanhope the accident had happened, and that she was severely injured. The news soon reached the ears of the stage-manager, who immediately went to the Infirmary to see the patient, but was refused on account of her precarious condition. He was about to wire the sad news to London, when a happy thought struck him to hear the landlady's version of the whole affair. He was delighted to find Miss S. (although very upset at the occurrence) quite in her usual perfect health.

Pontefract is to have a variety hall, and the site is that of the tan-yard, near Tanshelf Station, conducted for many years by Mr. George Broadhead. The building, the plans for which were passed by the Corporation in April of 1904, is to be of brick, with stone facings, and the length of it will be 85ft., with a frontage to the main road, nearly opposite Tanshelf Court, of 60ft. The building will rise to a height of about 70ft., including the turret-dome. The name is to be the Alexandra Hall. Mrs. S. A. Driver, of Carleton Park, is to be the enterprising owner.

The staff of the Ardwick Empire on the 31st ult. presented to Mr. Harry Hall a handsome gift. The popular manager is to be married shortly. The presentation was made on the stage, Mr. R. A. Roberts, the protean actor, genially presiding.

A large circle of our readers will be sorry to hear of the death of Mr. Harry Baldwin, of the Cricket Players' Hotel, Church Gate, Leicester, which is the headquarters of both the V.A.F. and the Actors' Union. Mr. Baldwin, who was held in much respect by both branches of the profession, died on the 29th ult., at the age of fifty-six. A funeral service was held at 8.30 on Saturday morning, at St. Margaret's Church, Leicester, the body being afterwards conveyed to Burnley, where the interment took place later in the day.

The Variety Artists celebrate Federation at the Crystal Palace on Monday, June 27, and there are also numerous demonstrations in aid of the various charities of the music hall world on the same date throughout the United Kingdom, the Continent, America, South Africa, and Australia. In addition to an enormous array of stars of the variety profession in the theatre, concert hall, and centre transept, there will be numerous outdoor attractions, including the Music Hall Sports on the magnificent Crystal Palace track.

The prizes, that are to be distributed by Miss Marie Lloyd, reach the value of £300, and include the following:—

Challenge cup, presented by Mr. Harry Lauder for the best all-round athlete.

120 Yards Handicap.—Memento Shield, presented by Proprietor of The Music Hall and Theatre Review.

Half Mile Handicap.—Challenge Cup, presented by the Terriers' Association.

One Mile Walking.—Challenge Cup presented by Mr. Frank Allen.

One Mile Bicycle Handicap.—Challenge Cup, presented by Mr. James Buchanan.

120 Yards Hurdle Handicap.—Silver cigar-case, presented by The Era.

Ladies' (V.A.F.) Bicycle Race.—Trophy, value £21, presented by Messrs. Sam Mayo and Fred Earle.

Five Mile Motor-cycle Handicap.—Trophy, value £10 10s., presented by Mr. Harry Tate.

Five Mile Motor-cycle Invitation Scratch Race (professional riders only).—Trophy, value £10 10s., presented by Mrs. Harry Tate.

And the following handsome prizes which have not yet been allotted to any particular event:—

£5 5s. prize, presented by Miss Lil Hawthorne.

£5 5s. prize, presented by Mr. Eugene Stratton.

Other prizes have been generously contributed by Messrs. George Robey, Sandford and Lyons, R. A. Roberts, the Two Bostons, Roxborough and Wright, Brothers Ethairien, Alexander and Hughes, Misses Victoria Monks, Ray Wallace, May Henderson, and by Messrs. White Bros. (Nottingham), New Goswell Printing Co., R. March and Co., Simpkin, Ltd.

We note the occasion is advertised as "The Day of the Year," and certainly the programme embraces every class and form of entertainment, and should attract many thousands to the Palace on the 27th. All further particulars, entry forms, &c., can be obtained from the general secretary, Frank Gerald, 28, Wellington-street.

Mr. Frank Parker, after countless interviews, has decided on Miss May Moore Duprez as his principal lady in the forthcoming ice-carnival, Zuyder Zee, at the London Hippodrome. Miss Duprez, as all theatre-goers know, is a charming singer and dancer. She furthermore complies with Mr. Parker's requirements in being a good actress and a skater. Miss Duprez is just twenty-two, and came to England from America seven years ago. Two years since she undertook a tour of the world, and made an enormous hit in Australia and South Africa. In the last pantomime at the Belfast Theatre she played the part of Gretchen, and her Dutch pattering, singing and dancing were very popular the year before at Plymouth.

Mr. Michael Nolan and his wife, Miss Agnes Hazel, write to say good-bye for the present. This is their second trip to Australia, and there is no doubt they will receive a hearty greeting when they reach the Antipodes. The famous Irishman and his wife are accompanied by their daughter, who should gain experience by her tour. Michael wishes us to say he never was better, and expects to be in grand trim when he touches "down under."

Miss Gipsy Woolf is back in England after a most successful tour in Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, France, Germany, and Bavaria, finishing in Brussels with great éclat. She now starts in London, following with the Barrasford tour, returning to the Continent for a few months before commencing the Stoll tour. She is free for pantomime (principal boy or girl).

Creditors met on Tuesday before Mr. W. P. Bowyer, Assistant Receiver, under the failure of Herbert Clarke, variety comedian. The debtor attributed his insolvency to loss caused by the music-hall strike, and to his having failed to obtain engagements in America owing to bad feeling engendered against him through his having assisted to end the strike. The liabilities were estimated at about £620, and the assets at £60. The matter was left in the Official Receiver's hands, debtor intimating his intention of settling with his creditors in full, and hoped within a fortnight to pay down £200 and the balance by setting aside a portion of his weekly salary.

Harrington and Tate's company, including Miss Phyllis Yorke and Mr. Albert Weston (late principal comedian with Mr. Fred Karno), have been appearing during the week at the Granville, Walham Green, in a dainty new musical comedy sketch written and composed by the first-named gentleman with such signal success that they have been immediately booked for an extended provincial tour.

Miss Margaret Radcliffe was one of the artists engaged to sing at the banquet of the Shropshire Society in London, held at the Hotel Cecil on Monday, when a large and distinguished company was present, including Sir Clement and Lady Hill, the Earl and Countess Kilmorey, Viscount and Viscountess Hill, Lord and Lady Forester, Lord Berwick, Sir A. and Lady Hargreaves, the Mayor and Mayoress of Shrewsbury (Mr. and Mrs. T. Corbett), Mr. W. Clive Bridgeman, M.P., Mr. A. C. Plowden, Col. W. S. Kenyon Slaney and Lady Mabel Kenyon Slaney, and others. Much interest attached to Miss Radcliffe's appearance, she being a Salopian, hailing from that delightful old-world town of Shrewsbury.

At the 514th meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, held at the offices on Wednesday, the chair was occupied by Mr. Harry Blake. There were also present Messrs. Charles Coborn, Albert Le Fre, Bob Hutt, Jeff Vendome, Fred Neiman, J. Welsh, Harry Bancroft, Fred Harrison, and Bernard Stavordale. Mr. C. Douglas Stuart (the secretary) read the financial statement, which showed a total of £55 12s. Fifty-five new members had been enrolled during the week.

No clue of any kind has been discovered likely to lead to the detection of the assailant of Miss Kitty Gordon, the actress, who was shot at three times by a man in Petersham Wood, Richmond Hill, when motoring with her husband from London to their hotel at Richmond in the early hours of Saturday. At the London Pavilion on Saturday evening Mr. George Robey appeared as a deputy for Miss Gordon, who, however, was able to sing later in the evening. She fainted at the conclusion of her turn. Miss Gordon has signed several contracts the last few days through Tom Pacey's agency.

The latest quotations of music-hall shares are as follow: Alhambra, 1⅞; Canterbury, ½; Empire (15s. paid), 1⅜, ditto (10s. paid) 1½; London Pavilion Ordinary, 4¾, ditto Preference 5; London Coliseum, ½; Metropolitan, ½; Moss' Empires, 4¾, ditto 5 per cent. Preference, 3⅞; Oxford, 6¾; Palace, 13s.; Tivoli, 6; Variety Consolidated Theatres, 12s. 6d.

Sir Edward and Lady Moss arrived in London on Saturday last from their Scottish seat at Middleton. They are staying at the Savoy Hotel for the season.

Mrs. John Lawson is at the Hackney Empire next week with The Devil's Sunday, avowedly based upon Father Vaughan's allegations concerning the Sabbath habits and customs of the alleged "smart set."

Brien McCullough has written for Miss Dolly Elsworthy an entirely new version of Jack Sheppard, which will be produced at the Surrey on Monday next, under the title of Jack. He is also playing his latest at the Palace, Walthamstow, next week.

The Terriers' Cricket Club will play Sam Mayo's team on Wednesday next, June 12, at Freeman's Ground, Champion Hill (five minutes' walk from the Empire, Camberwell), commencing at 12 noon, sharp. All friends are invited. The club would be glad to arrange with any teams connected with the profession. Address, the hon. sec., Capt. B. Woodger, Metropole Hotel, Denmark Hill, S.E.

Miss Enid Errol, who has been making such a success with her fantastic dancing episode, "A Magic Vase," has been engaged by Mr. John Tiller as première danseuse for his summer season at Blackpool.

Friends of Miss Kitty Olive will be sorry to hear that she is lying dangerously ill with paralysis. She is being lovingly nursed by her sister, Mrs. Arthur Hewland, who wishes to thank Miss Anna De Grey (secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild) and others for their great kindness.

Miss Mary Ellis, a member of Mr. Fred Karno's Mumming Birds company, has been awarded £100 damages for injuries received whilst going to a rehearsal on a "Pilot" motor 'bus.

Mrs. Adney Payne is giving up her flat in Bedford-court Mansions, the articles of vertu, china, and fine furniture of which will be sold shortly by Messrs. Robinson and Fisher, of King-street, St. James's, W. Feeling the great need of change and rest after the shock of her bereavement, Mrs. Payne departed on Friday for Herne Bay, where letters may be addressed to her care of Mrs. Brookes, St. Elmo, Canterbury-road.

When it became known that Miss Kitty Gordon had been shot at on Saturday considerable doubts were entertained as to her appearing at the first afternoon tea concert in the Floral Hall, Devonshire Park, Eastbourne, on Monday. The popular actress, however, intimated her intention of fulfilling the engagement, and a large audience assembled to greet her. But when Miss Gordon should have appeared on the platform Mr. E. A. Brown (the manager and secretary) stated that he had received a telegram to the effect that she had missed her train and was motoring down from London, and expected to reach the Park at 4.15. At 5.15 Miss Gordon and her husband (Captain Beresford) dashed up in a motor. A great ovation was accorded to the charming artist, who contributed "Because" and "I had my love," and also responded to a most enthusiastic encore.

Miss Edith Cruikshanks has been specially engaged by Mr. John Lawson to sustain her original character (Mrs. Norman) in the highly successful sketch, The Unwritten Law, which will be the main attraction at the Pavilion (way down East) next week. Miss Cruikshanks is booked with Mr. George Dance in the autumn to continue her well-known impersonation of Mrs. Allington in The Beauty of Bath.

Mr. Will Evans met with an unfortunate experience on the night of the 30th ult. While returning home after the conclusion of his engagements his chauffeur, to avoid a collision with a brougham coming suddenly from a side road, diverted the car on to the pavement in the Bayswater-road, but could not avoid striking the back of the vehicle, frightening the horse and causing it to bolt. The popular comedian, however, happily escaped serious injury, but was severely shaken.

Mr. Julius and Mme. Zancig, who have been travelling the British provinces since Feb. 25, have played to some phenomenal business, and have also been the recipients of much pleasant and honourable courtesy and attention. Lord and Lady Burton came down to Burton on purpose to receive them; Sir William Clayton has shown his hospitality at both Malvern and Torquay; and Sir Oliver Lodge attended their performance at Birmingham, and wrote a special letter to the Liverpool Press, in which city the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress gave a reception at the Town Hall in their honour.

The Bishop of Manchester attended their reception at the Midland Hotel; and Sir William Bailey gave a special party in their honour on his beautiful estate at Sale, near Manchester. On Monday, the 27th ult., the Earl of Aberdeen, His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and suite, attended the first performance at the Rotunda, in Dublin.

Mr. Sydney Paxton, the general touring business-manager for the Zancigs, had the honour of taking His Excellency, with Captain and Lady Coates, to Mr. and Mme. Zancig's dressing-room, and presenting them to the distinguished visitors. Lord Aberdeen expressed himself greatly interested, and chatted for nearly half an hour on psychology and mental telepathy. On Friday Mr. and Mme. Zancig, Mr. Paxton, and ladies and gentlemen of the company, were invited by their Excellencies to the Viceregal Lodge and Gardens.

The tour, which has been under the direction of Mr. Alfred Moul, terminates on June 15. Sixty towns will have been visited, and every day two performances have been given. Not one has been missed, even when, as on some occasions, the company have not arrived till 2.30, with the performance due to commence at 3 o'clock.

In the autumn there will be a second tour, also under the direction of Mr. Alfred Moul, when Mr. Sydney Paxton will again be the general-manager.

Venus, the late Lord Leighton's model, toured by L. Austin Millais, is winning golden opinions by her production of A Modern Godiva, which is being rapidly booked up.

On Wednesday, at the West London Theatre, Will Lennox introduced his musical scena with the unique title The Burglar's Extra Turn, which appears to be an exceedingly elastic act, capable of occupying the stage for from five to forty minutes. The turn was deftly woven into Robert Perris's up-to-date and popular drama, A Fight for Millions, in which, by the way, the Welsh comedian, Tom Jones, is so prominently figuring just now. In the pawnbroker's scene reference is made to certain burglaries. The burglar (Will Lennox) enters the shop, and annexes sundry portable properties. In the course of his search he comes across certain musical instruments, on which he plays popular numbers. All the "business" fits in capitally with the surroundings, and as a finish Will Lennox discovers some bells, which are immediately commandeered as accessories towards an effective dance, and the "burglar," having collected his "swag," retires. The trifle went excellently on the first night, and is adapted for any class of audience. It is well worth the attention of managers.

PARIS VARIETY GOSSIP.

Entente cordiale weather, still in progress, is making things bad for the summer theatres, and delaying the closing of many of the winter halls. The Variétés will shut on or about the 12th, and will remain so during the summer season.

The Revue of the Ambassadeurs will be presented in the course of a week or so. Great excitement has been raised by the first appearance of Gaby Deslys after her London success in the successful musical comedy fantasy The New Aladdin at the Gaiety.

The revue, Si ca vous Chante, at the Alçazar, d'Eté, contains many English allusions, and also quite a number of English artists. Miss Withney, a young American lady, who was seen here in the production of The Country Girl at the Olympia, has several parts, her best impersonation being an English barmaid and a suffragette. Miss Cocktail and Tod Cams give us still another version of "The Mattchiche" in a dance called the "Todo-Kama." Messrs. Many and Millions play the spirited steed of a lady cabby, and the Eight Lorrisons appear as English barmaids, suffragettes, soldiers, and jesters.

The commère is charmingly presented by Mlle. De Vassy, who is ably seconded by M. Leprince as the compère.

Miss Lawler has come to satisfactory arrangements with the management of the Palace Theatre, London, and will open there about June 22. She will introduce some of her latest Parisian successes and a big American number with something specially catchy in the way of a chorus.

At the Etoile Palace, called the American Music Hall, several well-known London turns are appearing. Miss Belle Braham is introducing her illustrated songs, which gain much applause; Leo, a ventriloquist, causes much laughter with his comical figures; Huter and Maris are seen in an eccentric comedy act; and Harson's Marionettes and Miss May, wire-walker, are also of the company. Bosanquet, the violinist, is billed, but did not appear the night of our visit.

An arrangement is being discussed by which Messrs. Borney and Duprez, of the Marigny, will take over the Nouveau Cirque. As yet no arrangement has been come to with regard to the Casino de Paris, which is still closed. In a like state is the Hippodrome.

Many London and Continental managers are in Paris at the present time on the look out for novelties. Amongst others are Ben Tieber, of the Apollo Theatre, Vienna; Mr. Brill, of Ronacher's, Vienna, and Mr. Tichy.

Miss Lucette de Varley, who is at present making a big success at the Apollo with her charming chansonettes, will soon be in London, where she goes for the season.

The June company at the Apollo is a great improvement on its predecessors. Tony Wilson and La Belle Heloise, who were some little time ago seen at the Alhambra, present a very fine bar act. The young lady calls for special mention. Mlle. Mado Minty, fresh from the Chatelet, where she played her part of Prince Pif Paf Pouf in the piece of the same name, introduces some speciality dances. The Serenadas, in ancient Venetian costume, sing several Italian songs in excellent style; the Amoros Sisters do singing, dancing, juggling, and acrobatic work, and are equally good in all; the Darras Bros., equilibrists, call forth loud applause; the Eight Apollo Girls sing and dance with success, their dancing being in strong contrast to that of La Belle Vampa, with sacred Egyptian dances. Lucette de Varley sings her songs in a sweet and charming manner; and the Patty Franck troupe give a fine display of gymnastic skill. Other members of the company are Mimi Fritz, eccentric dancer; Mlle. Jackson, chanteuse; La Poltina, and the Apollograph.

Mr. Tom Dunville, whose business has been transacted for many years by the firm (now dissolved) of Oliver and Holmes, has now appointed Mr. Will Oliver as his sole representative, the appointment dating from May 31.

Mr. Ross Gilmore writes that he struck the idea of a burlesque on The Silver King eighteen months ago, and in January last had it written up for him, producing it on Monday, Feb. 25, 1907, at the Palace, Bordesley. Of course, burlesques of the drama, and incidentally of the titular character, date back to the early months of 1883 at the theatres.

Lady Julia, the ape with the human brain, made her début at Hengler's Circus on Friday afternoon, the 31st ult., in the presence of the Princess Royal and the Duke of Fife, with their two daughters. Lady Julia is only two years old, and stands two feet high. After six months' training she can put on a coat without any help, then undress altogether and put on her nightclothes, and get into a little bed that has been specially made for her.

The Sims (Rosa and Kitty) have a new entertainment, entitled From School to Stage, which they will present at the Empress, Brixton, and the Granville, Walham Green, on Monday, June 17. They have been secured by Mr. J. F. Elliston for pantomime, and are being pioneered by the energetic Spot Oliver.

Dr. Walford Bodie presently will go on tour with his own company. Last week, at the New Theatre, West Stanley, he took close on £400, despite the fact of his tenth visit, the Saturday night's receipts being close on £100. He has been re-engaged to return in four weeks' time. This week he is playing to packed houses at the Grand Theatre, Doncaster.

An interesting billiard match—500 up—was played at the Jubilee Hotel, Gravesend, recently, between Little Dando and Happy Attwood, the latter taking 100 start, for a trophy presented by Mr. T. W. Wright (son of Harry Wright and Nellie Garron). After an exciting game, Little Dando won by 7 points. Both the diminutive players received an ovation on their appearance at night at the Grand, Gravesend.

Joseph Adelmann, the xylophone virtuoso, and his two daughters come to the Empire next Monday, and will produce an entirely new act. This consists of orchestral selections of the Xylophone, concluding with a fantasia played entirely on instruments usually associated with a toy shop. Following on the fine pictures of the race for the Jubilee Stakes—which enabled sportsmen to watch every detail of the struggle from start to finish—highly successful pictures of the Derby have been secured, and will be shown nightly.

The manner in which Mr. W. H. Armstrong, the well-known music-hall solicitor, of 1, Renfrew-road, Lambeth, stuck to the case in which Mr. Hampel, the agent, was concerned, and the result obtained, is high testimony to his ability as a painstaking, hard-working solicitor. Mr. Armstrong instructed Mr. George Elliott and Mr. Daniel Warde as counsel, and they had to meet a formidable opposition in the Treasury prosecution, which was represented by Sir Charles Mathews and Mr. Arthur Gill. The result was that the jury, without leaving the box, acquitted the prisoner, and he was discharged.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MR. DAVID DAY'S firm is just placing on the London market some pretty songs acquired from Messrs. Stanley E. Mullen and Co., of Melbourne, notably "There is sunshine my side of the street," by Ella Ogilvie, and "Teach me to forget," by Raymond Hope.

A BUSY week with the first song writers and composers of the day has resulted in Messrs. Francis and Day adding to their stupendous catalogue the following new numbers, among others, "I can't keep my thoughts from thinking of you," by George Arthurs and C. W. Murphy; "Come in my submarine," "Take me up in the mountains, Sammy," and "Here comes the ragman!" all three by Harry Castling and Fred Godfrey; "Always look before you leap" (sung by Miss Agnes Hazel), by C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton; "Don't you love your little Charlie now?" by Charles Ridgewell and Charles Collins; "That old garden seat" and "My Pomona Queen," by E. W. Rogers; "Don't you think it time that you woke up, John Bull?" (Woolmer Young), by Harry Adams and Ernée Woodville; "Yucatan," by A. E. Sidney Davis and Sidney Baynes; "Desdemona, won't you feed me any more, please?" (Will E. Haines), by Albert Bagley and J. Charles Moore; "On the Bonnie, Bonnie Banks of Loch Lomond" (Pat Rafferty), by F. W. Carter; and "I can't forget Auld Reekie" (Miss Jessie Preston), by J. F. Lambe.

MISS LILY BURNAND will shortly be heard in the charming idyll entitled "Under the lilac tree," by Chas. Wilmott, T. M. Down, and H. E. Darewski, jun. Messrs. Francis and Day publish the morceau.

MR. TOM COSTELLO has in "For Auld Lang Syne" a new descriptive waltz song, which he essayed for the first time at Belfast a fortnight ago, a success worthy to rank with his great hit of former days, "Comrades." The unanimous verdict of Belfast has now been endorsed by delighted audiences at Dublin. The number is by F. W. Leigh and Henry E. Pether.

MR. SID BANDON'S new song, "Mary fell in love with a butcher with his Buy! Buy! Buy!" has proved a "roof-raiser" at the Bedford during the week, and possesses in a large degree the two great desiderata of a successful song—a succinct, clean story, and a taking chorus. Mr. Bandon also scores with a powerful descriptive song by Alf Ellerton, "I went to sleep a poor man—I've woke up a millionaire."

CHORUS and ballad singers should not fail to get Maurice Scott's charming number, entitled "When the wedding bells rang out for you and me." Permits may be had of the Star Music Co.

MR. ALF J. LAWRANCE (of Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford), whose song "You shall live in a chalet," published by Feldman and Co., is likely to become a hit of the season, has this week become part proprietor of the permit for al fresco entertainments at Prestwick, N.B., in addition to Ayr and Dunoon, where they are already meeting with unbounded success.

MISS MARGARET ASHTON has just accepted for production a new song, entitled "Don't forget, Mignonette," by Herbert Shelley and Fred Elton, which she will feature shortly at the Oxford and Tivoli. The composer, Mr. Fred Elton, is scoring nightly with this song on the Stoll tour in his scena, "On board an Ocean Liner." The publishing rights have been secured by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.

ONE of the most successful items this week on the Holborn Empire's bill is Mr. Chas. R. Whittle's song, "What you can't get you can always do without." The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Co. are publishing this song, and also that very tuneful little number "Little girl, tell me what I would know," which Miss Madoline Rees has been featuring at the Oxford.

MR. GEORGE LASHWOOD'S song, "Girls all love a soldier bold," has made a terrific hit at the Holloway Empire this week, and is another of the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Co.'s successes. Mr. Lashwood has decided to feature this song in pantomime next season.

MR. GEORGE LASHWOOD is producing next week, at the New Cross Empire, a new song by Fred Allsopp and Will Haines entitled "The tale of a match." This promises to be a very popular number. It is published by the Star Music Co.

MR. MACDERMOTT, Adeler and Sutton's manager at the Pier Pavilion, Rhyl, writes to the Star Music Co. to say their ditties, "On the Isle of Anglesey" and "Swing me up higher, Obadiah," are the two biggest songs in Rhyl this season.

MESSRS. MILLS AND SCOTT, who set the present craze for Dutch business with their phenomenal success "By the side of the Zuyder Zee," have found another big chorus song in "Has anyone seen a German band?" Miss Florrie Forde and Miss Ella Retford are both scoring heavily in town with this song, which is published by the Star Music Co.

MISS ANNIE PURCELL will on Monday, at the Tivoli, produce a song, entitled "In the valleys of Switzerland," which number Messrs. Francis and Day are publishing, and which Miss Purcell will sing garbed as a Savoyard. The ear-haunting refrain is one likely shortly to be the property of the "man in the street."

To the making of new additions to Mr. "Sixpenny Pops" Smith's catalogue of Messrs. Francis and Day's cheap copyright music there is seemingly no end, the latest being the following four new numbers:—"Isn't it wonderful?" "The boy and the eagle," "If you don't want lots of gold," and "I'm going, I'm going, I'm gone!"

UNQUESTIONABLY the song of the year from the pierrot point of view is Mr. J. F. Lambe's delightful creation, "Queen of Old Samara," with which both Misses Margaret Radcliffe and Lilian Lea have been so successful during the week at, respectively, the Palace, Camberwell, and the Empress, Brixton. Mr. John Tiller will specially feature it (and, incidentally, no less than six other Monte Carlo publications) in his big Blackpool production; and Mr. Paul Mill is so enthusiastic about the song that no less than six pierrot companies under his direction will specialise it this season.

SO great has been the success achieved by Happy Fanny Fields in Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate's song, "Den he blow," that this charming Dutch artist has commissioned the same author and composer to supply her with a budget of new numbers for West End exploitation. The successful song already referred to is published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.

THE latest prominent sketch artists to fall under the spell of Messrs. Harrington and Tate's sketch-writing abilities are Miss Haidee Lee and Wallace Kingston, who have just placed a commission for a new musical comedy act with these prolific and successful writers, on the writing and composing of which they are now busily engaged, and the new sketch may be expected at a leading hall at an early date.

"THE JAM OF POTANA."

A Comedietta, in Two Scenes, by Mrs. Fortune, produced for the first time at the Camberwell Empire, on Monday, June 3.

The Jam .....MR. CLIFTON YATES
The Grand Vizier .....MR. TONY COOPER
The Hon. Mrs. Hunter ..MISS VIOLET ROMAINE

Set in two scenes, full of brilliancy and colour, elegantly costumed, and well acted by Mme. Warner's carefully-selected company, The Jam of Potana won an undoubted success before a packed audience on Monday. An Eastern potentate on a visit to England is marked down by a pretty and designing young widow, who is not averse to sharing the dusky monarch's throne. Thus we find the Hon. Mrs. Hunter as chaperon to a bevy of charming English girls staying "up the river" with the full intent of throwing herself in the way of the Jam of Potana. The Prince falls an easy victim to the pretty English widow's charms, and invites her to bring her charges to his Court at Potana. The second scene introduces us to the Palace at Potana, where the widow finally consents to stay and share his Highness's throne. Much of the success of this miniature musical comedy is due to the charming personality and vocal abilities of Miss Violet Romaine, who as the Hon. Mrs. Hunter acts with brightness and vivacity, giving a cultured rendering of the pretty ballad, "Love is ever divine." As the Jam, Mr. Clifton Yates has little to do, but does that little thoroughly and well. The irrepressible Vizier is in the hands of Mr. Tony Cooper, who is the life and soul of many exhilarating passages, his constant animation making him a warm favourite. As the "up the river" girls, the Misses Minnie Saunders, Ada Coral, Dora Lester and Queenie Warren are charming, and give good effect to their boating song and their solo and acrobatic dances. The chorus is tuneful and well-balanced; and, in fine, The Jam of Potana deserves a long lease of popular favour.

Another excellent item in the current bill is supplied by Haidee Lee and Wallace Kingston in their clever pot-pourri of song, dance, and acrobatism, entitled The Only One I Love. This amusing duologue is smartly written and briskly played. The Three San Remo Girls, charmingly costumed in blue, pink, and silver, as the Devil-may-care Brigade, sing and dance with tireless energy, and win loud approbation; Lily Foy has two good songs in "Whoa, Jemima!" and "He took me for a walk around the houses," to which she gives admirable point and expression; Arthur Elvey as the unemployed "Bookie" supplies tips for the races; the Sisters Hall give full effect to their coon duet, "Moon dear"; the Silent Howards gave a séance of silent thought telegraphy that is clever and bewildering; Bob Hamilton, a sturdy Scot, tells funny stories and excels in his concertina solos; Mr. Carl Howard in his comical burlesque jugglery scena keeps the house roaring with laughter; Eugene and Willie are smart entertainers in a skilful musical and acrobatic act; while Jeapes's wonderful animated transformation pictures supply a fitting ending to the liberal entertainment provided by Messrs. Jessie Sparrow and Harry Bawn

KITTY LOFTUS'S WEDDING.

At Thundersley Church, Essex, on Friday afternoon, Miss Katherine Kitty Loftus was married to Mr. William Philipps Warren-Smith, only son of Mr. Alexander Smith, of Tay Bank, Helensburgh, N.B., in the presence of a very large number of relatives and friends of both parties. The bride, who looked very charming, was attired in a crêpe-de-chine dress, with Chantilly lace decorated with appliqué vine-leaves and grapes, with veil and train, the latter adorned with true-lover's knots and orange blossoms. She wore two rows of pearls and diamonds and a diamond pendant and brooch, the gifts of the bridegroom.

The bridesmaids were Miss Ada Welford and Miss Christina Welford, nieces of the bride. They were attired in white satin Empress dresses, with daisy chains round their necks and daisy veils, and wore pearl brooches, the gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. R. E. Saunders was the best man, and the bride was given away by Mr. J. R. Benson. The rector, the Rev. Talfourd Major, officiated. As the bridal party entered the church, which was beautifully decorated with flowers, the choir sang the hymn, "The voice that breathed o'er Eden."

MISS KITTY LOFTUS.

Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was played by the organist. After the ceremony an "At Home" was held at the Rectory. Amongst those present were:—Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. J. Warren Foster, Mr. Fergus Hume, Dr. Sharman, Mr. and Mrs. William Peek, Miss Vivienne Peek, Mrs. George Byng, and Miss Rendall. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Warren-Smith left Leigh-on-Sea Station for Belgium and the Continent, where the honeymoon is being spent. The bride's going-away dress was of white soft silk with appliqué lace and white coat and lace hat.

Miss Loftus, who has been touring the provinces since she was a child, was, as she puts it, "brought up on Shakespeare." Her grandfather was an old Shakespearean actor, and much of her early training was received in Mr. F. R. Benson's company. She began by playing the children's parts in most of the plays written by the Immortal Bard. A few years saw her in more responsible rôles, such as Polly Eccles in Caste and Naomi, as well as in the Gaiety burlesques on tour, including Little Jack Sheppard, Cinderella Up Too Late, generally appearing in Miss Nelly Farren's parts. The Lady Slavey was specially written for Miss Loftus. Coming to London, she played in Santa Claus at the Lyceum under Mr. Oscar Barrett's management; and here it is of interest to state that she did a last performance and a first performance on the same evening, for within a few hours she took her final call before the curtain at the Lyceum in Santa Claus, and made her initial appearance in the production of Gentleman Joe at the Prince of Wales's Theatre with Mr. Arthur Roberts. Remaining for a time at the Shaftesbury, she was seen in Biarritz, The White Silk Dress, and A Pierrot's Life. The last-mentioned was a wordless play, the music being by Sig. Costa, and the company of artists, with the sole exception of herself, were foreigners. Subsequently she performed notable service in The Yashmak, also at the Shaftesbury, and the following Christmas was at the Queen's Hall in a little sketch, The Order of the Bath, produced by herself. In this piece Miss Loftus and Mr. Albert Chevalier were the stars. She was one of those in the company who bade farewell to the old Opera Comique in its concluding performance of A Good Time, a farce by George R. Sims, in which she played the part of Mary. At Terry's Theatre she made herself extremely popular in Mr. Basil Hood's Christmas fairy plays. These were succeeded—as far as Miss Loftus was concerned—with the production of The French Maid and Her Royal Highness at the Vaudeville, in both of which pieces she assumed title-rôles. Engaged for a six weeks' stay in America, she became such a favourite that she remained six months, and before she left signed a contract for two years. She found the work, however, to be beyond her strength, and her managers kindly released her. Back in London, Mr. F. R. Benson secured her for Puck in A Midsummer Night's Dream, the boy in Henry V., Viola in Twelfth Night, Ariel in The Tempest, and Lucy in The Rivals. She next produced and played on tour a play called Baby, by Mr. Kinsey Peile, and, on returning to town, appeared as Foolish Harriet in Shock-Headed Peter at the Garrick. Subsequently she for a while took the place of Miss Marie Tempest as Nell Gwynne in English Nell at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, and played it in the suburbs. In the revival of Morocco Bound at the Comedy she enacted the rôle of Maud Sportington. This was followed by a tour with her own company in Naughty Nancy, Mr. John Le Hay being in the cast. Later she appeared as Betsy with Sir Charles Wyndham at Wyndham's, after which she took the Savoy, and had an agreeable four months' run of Naughty Nancy. After a holiday in France, spent partly in enjoyment and partly in securing good French pieces suitable for adaptation, Miss Loftus returned to take her company on tour with Mr. Frank Stayton's play, The Maid from School, which she produced at Terry's, with an afterpiece called The Duchess of Silliecrankie; or, The Earl and the Cherry Girl on Their Singularly Entangled Honeymoon. Like other famous comediennes, Miss Loftus has yielded to the allurements of the variety stage, and accepted in 1905 a lucrative special engagement at the London Pavilion from Mr. Frank Glenister. At that popular house she made a great success in her "policeman" song. In 1906 she went to South Africa under the auspices of the Hyman management, and appeared both at the Tivoli, Cape Town, and the Empire, Johannesburg.

THE V.A.F. MEETING.

At a special meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation, held at the Empire, Camberwell, on Sunday, at which there was a good deal of heated discussion, Mr. JOE O'GORMAN, who presided, drew the attention of those present to the following three rules, which he stated had been inserted in the book of rules without the knowledge of the Executive Committee, and without having the sanction of the general meeting. "The first rule," said Mr. O'Gorman, "is 13. I was one of eight who signed a book of rules for registration as a trade union. Here is the book, an exact copy of which we retained. We were informed that the rules were lost, and we were asked to sign other copies. I asked if they were the same, and was told they were. We signed them, and discovered later on that the rules we signed were not the same as those we signed originally, there having been certain alterations made without your consent or the consent of your Executive Committee. I will read the interpolated rules:—

13.—Removal of Officers.
(1) Should the Chairman or any member of the Executive Committee be charged with neglecting his duties, violating the rules, or other grave misconduct, either by the Executive Committee, or by any member, the charge, together with the member's reply thereto, shall be laid before the Executive Committee at their meeting, and the vote of the members taken on the question of removing him from office.

The other one is:—

(2) The dismissal of the General Secretary shall be by the vote of the members only.

"On the bottom of the slip you will find the rule which was passed by you practically unanimously at the last general meeting, April 14, which says, "The Secretary shall be elected annually by the members of the Executive Committee then in the United Kingdom voting by ballot." That is the rule that you passed at your last meeting, and when this rule was passed both Mr. Gerald and Mr. Mountford informed you that they were aware of the other rule having been inserted as to the dismissal of the Secretary. As we contended at the last general meeting, the artist who is away in the provinces, however brilliant or capable he may be, is not in a position to know whether the Secretary is prosecuting his duties satisfactorily or not, but the Executive Committee, who are daily in touch with your Secretary, know exactly how he is performing those duties. The next one is:—

(3) Any officer of this Federation neglecting the duties of his office, or violating the rules, may be removed by a majority of the votes of the members present at a meeting of the Executive Committee held for the purpose of considering the conduct of such member.
(4) No officer of this Federation shall continue in office if three months in arrears, and on the happening of such event his office shall immediately become vacant.

"There is already a rule which says if you are two months in arrears you are no longer even a member of the Federation.

31.—Books and their Inspection.—The books of the Federation shall be kept at the General Office, and shall contain a list of the names of all the members of the Federation, and all books shall be open at all reasonable times to inspection by every member or person having an interest in the funds of the Federation.

"I don't know whether this is in accordance with Trade Union principles, but to me it seems preposterous that a person who has practically nothing to do with the Federation should have such a privilege.

35.—Arbitration.—Should at any time any dispute or difference arise between members of the Federation, or any claim be made by one member or members against another, the same shall, in the event of the members concerned so agreeing, be submitted to the arbitration of the members for the time being of the Legal Committee, and the parties shall abide by, and be bound by, the decision of such Committee, and shall pay any such sum awarded against them, or do any act which the Committee shall award to be done.

"When these things creep into our book of rules without our knowledge, it places your Executive in a most unfortunate and invidious position. We wrote to Morris and Rickards and told them that rules had been inserted without the consent of a general meeting, and they sent me this (reading):

4, Mitre Court Chambers,
Temple, E.C.,
Feb. 26, 1907.

DEAR SIR,—We had two long interviews with the Registrar of Friendly Societies on the Rules sent him for registration, and after his perusal of them he required certain alterations, which we made, including an addition to the objects of the Federation, from and including Clause 9 of the objects.

He also required a new rule as to the removal of officers, which you will find inserted as Rule 13.

From MORRIS AND RICKARDS.

Frank Gerald, Esq.,
28, Wellington Street.

"I appeal to you now, ladies and gentleman, to pass rules for the acceptance of the Registrar, who says he did not order those rules to be inserted, and as soon as the General Meeting passes new rules, he will register the Society."

After further discussion, it was proposed by Mr. JAMES RALSTON, and seconded by Mr. ROBERT DUNNING: "That the rules which have been inserted without the cognisance of the Executive Committee in the Book of Rules—rules 13, 31, and 35—be deleted." Carried unanimously.

MR. O'GORMAN: "It is clearly understood that Rule 18, as passed at the last General Meeting on April 14 last, stands?" (Cries of "Yes," "yes.")

Rule 18 reads as follows:—

The Secretary shall be elected annually by the Members of the Executive Committee then in the United Kingdom voting by ballot.

MR. ALBERT VOYCE: "On the advice of Mr. Mitchell, I will make the suggestion that this rule be placed under the heading of the "Removal of Officers":—

Should the Chairman, Secretary, or any other officer of the Federation be charged with neglecting his duties, violating the rules, or other grave misconduct, the charge, together with the officer's reply thereto, shall be laid before the Executive Committee at their meeting, in writing, and the vote of the entire Executive Committee, then in the United Kingdom, shall be taken on the question of removing him from office.

This was seconded by Mr. MOUNTFORD and carried unanimously.

The following rule was then considered:—

35.—Arbitration between members.

Should at any time any disputes or difference arise between members of the Federation, or any claim be made by one member or members against another, the same shall, in the event of the members concerned so agreeing, be submitted to the arbitration of the members for the time being of the Legal Committee, and the parties shall abide by and be bound by the decision of such Committee, and shall pay any sum awarded against them, or do any act which the Committee shall award to be done.

MR. MITCHELL: "I would like to suggest that Rule No. 35 should read:—

Should at any time any dispute or difference arise between members of the Federation, or any claim be made by one member or members against another, the same shall, in the event of the members concerned so agreeing, be submitted to the members for the time being of the Executive Committee, who shall appoint arbitrators, and the parties shall abide by and be bound by the decision of such arbitrators, and shall pay any sum awarded against them, or do any act which the Committee shall award to be done.

Proposed by Mr. WAL PINK, that the alteration as suggested by Mr. Mitchell be adopted. Seconded by Mr. FRED HERBERT. (Carried unanimously.)

Mr. O'GORMAN: "We now come to the alterations in the objects of the Federation (1 to 11)."

1. To regulate the relations between artists and their employers, and also between member and member.
2. To secure unity of action by organisation and otherwise to improve the position and status of the profession of variety artists.
3. To abolish all abuses detrimental to their welfare.
4. To promote industrial peace and progress by all amicable means, and, when differences do arise, to assist in obtaining an equitable settlement by reasonable means.
5. To accumulate from the contributions of the members a fund adequate for the protection of their interests and the provision of the benefits specified.
6. To provide such benefits on the death of a member as the Executive Committee shall decide.
7. To provide legal assistance to secure the due fulfilment of contracts, the payment of money due under contracts, or compensation due to its members, with all or any of the above objects within the limits allowed by law.
8. When the funds of the Federation shall permit, to provide a scheme for the establishing of an old-age pension fund.
9. The securing or assisting in securing of legislation for the protection of the Federation's interests, and for the general and material welfare of its members.
10. The adoption of any other legal method which may be decided to be advisable in the general interests of the members declared by a majority of the members of the Executive Committee.
11. For the purpose of promoting these objects, and of making these methods effective, the Federation may aid and join with other Trade Unions or other Societies or Federations of Societies, having for their object, or one of them, the promotion of the interests of artists or others, within the scope of the Trade Union Acts.

"The part I object to is, and the sooner you give your opinion the better—I object to the words, 'The Federation may aid and join any other Trade Union.' Now, I don't wish to be unkind—whether it is put there wilfully or not I won't say; but it is put there to perpetuate the National Alliance."

After prolonged discussion, a resolution, proposed by Mr. MOUNTFORD that the Alliance should be continued, was seconded by Mr. HARRISON, and lost, five voting for it.

Mr. ALF. LEONARD moved the rescinding of the rule regarding the admission of musical conductors as members of the V.A.F. This was seconded by Mr. JAMES HOWARD, and carried unanimously.

CHARLES COBORN AND THE V.A.F.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Please accept this assurance of my gratitude for your notice in the last issue but one of the fact that for very many years I have striven to arouse the members of the variety business to their need of co-operation for their general welfare. I have delayed a week in acknowledging your kind remarks with the idea that some of the very many who know those remarks to be founded on facts might like to add a word or two of endorsement. Let me say at once that I did not expect it, so that I am in no way disappointed.

I am a little out of fashion just at the moment. That is proved by the fact that though my name came fifteenth in the first election of 126, after I resigned as a protest against a policy of undue coercion and impatience under criticism, and allowed myself to be again nominated, my name was not included in the first forty-nine. Of course, it is always somewhat annoying to be misunderstood by one's friends, but, excepting for that, I am in no way perturbed at a result which is not without its humorous aspect. I am not aware that I have altered or deviated one hair's-breadth from the position I have always maintained and the views I have always expressed; but yet, all of a sudden, I seem to have become an object of suspicion, and to be regarded by my fellow-members as an individual unworthy of their confidence and support. Of course, no invidious action on the part of individuals, nor even the misunderstanding of the majority, can ever weaken my desire and intention to use my humble powers in what I regard as service to the interests of our common business, and if those powers are not required within the councils of the Federation, they can be, perhaps, quite as usefully employed outside.

I seek no cheap notoriety. If I did, I could obtain more with an hour's use of my pen than by a month's attendance in a committee-room. But there is one thing I should like you to allow me to express in your columns, and that is the belief that, if there is one man amongst the music hall artists more entitled than any other to the style and title of leader in the business, it is your humble servant. Some people favour the plan of not replying frankly to a clear and bold statement, but rather prefer waiting till the effect of it may be supposed to have died down. It is thought safer sometimes.

All I ask now is that anyone who may feel disposed to reply to this claim on behalf of someone he may think more worthy of the dignity shall make himself sure of his facts, pro and con, and then he may accept my fullest assurance that he need not spare himself in the very least in his criticism. I am making the claim because I want us all to get to business. I think there has been a lot of time, money, and temper needlessly squandered. As we are now in the position of being told to "open our mouth and shut our eyes, and see what Arbitration will send us," and as we have also our Federation Day to bring to a successful issue, which will need our most earnest and united efforts, I will not detain you longer than to conclude with the hope that my remarks will be received in a temperate spirit.—Yours truly,
CHARLES COBORN.

May 23, 1907.

MISS MADGE BRYCE, now appearing at the Palace, Greenwich, has just refused two engagements for America and Australia. Miss Bryce is a recruit from musical comedy to the music hall stage, and has won great praise over her latest song, "In the good old days of old."

MISS KATIE MARSH has collected for The Era Shilling Fund in aid of the Music Hall Home Fund the following sums:—Katie Marsh, 2s.; F. G. McNaught, 1s.; H. F. Gregg, 1s.; H. Fitzgerald, 1s.; "Girl About," 1s.; Lew Lake, 2s. 6d.

MISS CLARICE MAYNE has been tremendously successful at the Palace this week, in spite of the strong counter attractions, in her delightful rendering of Ballard Macdonald and Donovan Meher's quaint ditty, "Will he answer 'Coo-goo'?" and the Monte Carlo Co. expect a record sale for this tit-bit of mirth and melody, which is included in their "Sixpenny Successes" series.

DESPITE the outcry in religious circles in Coventry, the pageant committee have decided to adhere to their choice of pink fleshings and light drapery as the costume to be worn by Lady Godiva in the forthcoming procession. La Milo will be the heroine.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

This week finds an admirably varied programme provided for the delectation of the habitués of this popular home of vaudeville, and the consistent good business is being fully maintained as a consequence. Sylvester, a magician, assisted by Miss Vera de Courtney, opens the evening's entertainment, and proves himself to be a skilful and resourceful exponent of his business, his egg trick being very smart and his reception very cordial. Miss Rosie Archer, a mimic at the piano, gives some exceptionally clever impersonations of lady vaudeville artists, her subjects including Vesta Victoria, Marie Lloyd, Daisy Jerome, Kate Carney, and Vesta Tilley. Her act, which is very clever, is warmly received, a call, which is well earned, being accorded her. Amy Anderson and company in The Banana Queen still make as good a hit as ever, the knockabout business provoking much amusement; not a little praise should be extended to the newsboy, who presents some clever acrobatic feats. In another song Miss Anderson does equally well. The Eight Empire Girls, in song and dance, make a hit, their turn proving very attractive. La Berat, in a fire dance, gives a most effective act, the novel lighting effects proving very beautiful. Much applause is accorded the lady at the conclusion. Austin Rudd, in a burlesque policeman's song, tickles the fancy of the audience, and his parody on the "Zuyder Zee" also gains him a good reception. Baker and Balfe, two very skilful performers on the xylophone, display their ability to great advantage in an operatic selection, and Mr. Baker later on gives evidence of his ability as a dancer. One of the star items this week is George Lashwood. Needless to say, his number was warmly greeted on being displayed, which was increased on his appearance. He sang three songs. The first, "Beware of the Serpentine," with a catchy melody, caught the ear of the house; the second, a military song, also went down splendidly; and for the third he introduced his new scena, Oh for a Night in the West! This is a somewhat elaborate production, and depicts the reflections of a man about town banished from London to the West by his father in the hope of effecting a pronounced improvement in his conduct. It serves its purpose of providing the artist with a new scope in which to display his talents in a picturesque and effective manner. It is completely successful, and Mr. Lashwood gained a most emphatic call at its conclusion. Another turn of great interest is Jordan and Harvey, the Hebrew comedians, who also secured a very flattering reception. In song and patter these artists are alike clever, and their act was most amusing. The Bioscope this week, in a little drama, entitled Distress, proves very exciting, and Mr. Forbes Russell and his orchestra contribute with marked success to the pleasure of the evening.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

As is the rule here, each house is crowded with enthusiastic audiences, who do full justice to the liberal and judiciously-selected bill of fare submitted for their delectation by the managing-director, Mr. Oswald Stoll, who is so ably and courteously represented by the resident-manager, Mr. Ernest Bridgen. The excellent orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Louis la Rondelle, is one of the pleasantest features of the programme, which contains many admirable turns. First on the bill is Mr. Harry Tate in his laughter provoking contribution, Motoring, which met with its usual reception of laughter and applause. Mr. Tate is a worker who does not spare himself, and scores a huge success when depicting the troubles and trials of the amateur motorist. Mark Sheridan is a great favourite here, as elsewhere, and his popularity is thoroughly well deserved, for besides being a good singer he is a really funny comedian and a capital dancer, while his patter is irresistible. His singing of two songs, entitled "Good-night" and "Days that are coming by-and-by," is decidedly successful. The Mezzettis, in a comedy act on the triple bars, are well applauded for their excellent work; Miss Ella Retford, the delightful Dutch comedienne and coon singer, makes a great success with her rendering of "Has anyone seen a German band?" and "Mr. Grundy," and her dancing is particularly good; Spry and Austin, the popular vaudeville entertainers, appear with much success in "All sorts," which includes admirable dancing, singing, and comedy business; Fielding and Hull are capital vocalists, and win well-deserved applause for their singing of a medley, preceded by some new and smart patter; Francis, the cannon-ball king, gives a clever exhibition of skill and dexterity in the manipulation of cannon-balls, in which he is assisted by Alfred; the American Bioscope presents an interesting series of pictures, entitled "A Struggle for Life"; Miss Amy Clevere, pretty and dainty, sings very pleasantly "I'll meet you under the old oak tree," and dances gracefully; and one of the features of the programme is the appearance of De Gracia's elephants, who are marvellously intelligent, and the football and cricket is most laughable and clever.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

The climatic caprices of the past week have had the result of filling the pretty little Temple of Thespis on Richmond Green The overture, "Catch of the Regiment," is the prelude to other good things. With a vast amount of energy and charm, Miss Belle Harcourt bids au revoir to her little fisherboy, to the satisfaction of the audience. The fun is fast and furious during the eccentricities of Pearce and Ward, whose patter is funny throughout. The boxing scene provokes further hilarity, and proves amusing. Then Mr. Harry Sims discourses on "Girls from seventeen to twenty-two," and infuses into his theme an originality of treatment that may be commended; his second contribution also deals with the vagaries of Dan Cupid, and is keenly relished. Drama finds a place on the bill in the shape of a powerful little sketch, entitled The Sorceress. The plot deals with the fortunes of a Semitic maiden, who combines fortune-telling with that of usury; the combination appears to be a remunerative one, but she is troubled with the fact that she is unable to discover the whereabouts of her daughter, who was abducted from her possession. The close of the first scene shows the discovery of her daughter Naomi's existence by the Sorceress. In the second scene a couple of desperados invade the apartments of the Sorceress, one of whom acknowledges that he had taken part in the kidnapping of Naomi. A bribe from the Sorceress is refused. Anon a visitor appears in the form of the wife of an insolvent nobleman and the guardian of Naomi. All ends happily, and the mother and daughter are united. There are some excellent lines in this sketch, which, however, will improve with compression. It was remarkably well acted, dressed, and mounted. Quite refreshing is the excerpt from Nelly Neil, and Mr. Max Guy's orchestra renders it admirably. A troupe of toy terriers, under the direction of Horace and Olga, do some wonderful feats, not the least amusing being a friendly boxing match between a couple of singularly sagacious "doggies." Miss Sylvia du Barry vocalises pleasingly. After the Races gives Miss Madge Morley's company an opportunity; it causes peals of laughter. The hit of the piece was made by the garrulous landlady, who scored an unqualified success, and After the Races was admirably interpreted throughout. Mr. Charles Bignell confessed he was "The happiest man alive," and certainly looked it; the clever comedian also told of a lady whom he confessed was "only twenty-one"; and then his stories of experience dealt with oysters, polygamy, and the Chatham Railway. He won the entire favour of the house with "Are we downhearted?" The Bioscope scene for the week is entitled "The Struggle for Life," and illustrates the troubles of a tramp, whose vicissitudes are many, but who, after many troubles, succeeds in winning the hand of his employer's daughter.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

The programme this week is headed by Mr. Herbert E. Terry and company in the drama-sketch on Russian life entitled Retribution. Mr. Herbert Terry himself fills the part of Prince Karl Ordinoff, the chief of police, and invests it with all the necessary sinister effect; Mr. Geo. Belmore is a good aide-de-camp, Captain Ruvitch; the part of Richard Kirby, the imprisoned English journalist, is excellently portrayed by Mr. James Fettes; and as Violet Kirby, his wife, Miss Jessie Danvers gives a most sympathetic rendering. Mr. John Cooke is a satisfactory Sergeant Kriloff.

Mr. Tom Foy and company, with their farcical absurdity The Yorkshire Lad in London, cause much mirth. A most pleasing turn is that of Miss Effie Stewart, who sings a Scotch song with excellent accent, and also gives a clever step dance. Quite a change from the usual exhibition of comedy is the performance of Mr. Harry Russon, who in excellent style sang "In the days of good King Charlie," and recited Kipling's poem "Gunga Din," winning enthusiastic applause. The Kirbys, with a smart little dialogue, are responsible for a large share of the laughter of the evening. Mr. Walter Emerson, described as six feet of comicality, well lives up to this description with his two songs, "I think I shall go again to-morrow night," and "I think you would better leave it where it is." The Three Sisters Lee sing a good coon song, and perform several clever acrobatic tricks. Mr. Harry Anderson sings a couple of good chorus songs, entitled "The world will still go rolling merrily round" and "My new pal is my old gal." The Ellimans met with an excellent reception for their rendering of several popular songs on their concertinas. Carney and Armstrong give an amusing skit on an amateur actor, and also a good coon song, partly accompanied by whistling. The excellent programme is completed with Forman and Fannan, Miss Winnie Derson, Clifton and Gibson, and the Edisonograph. The courteous acting-manager, Mr. Lewis Vincent, has as his assistant-manager now Mr. Fred H. Coe, who is a nephew of Mr. John Coe, the popular proprietor.

GRAND, CLAPHAM.

Exceptionally interesting is the programme presented here this week, and houses of the most liberal proportions are nightly testifying their appreciation. The ball is started rolling by Miss Helene Martin, a charming vocalist, who is the possessor of a fine voice, which she knows how to use with the greatest effect. The number she gave was sung in a telling manner, and she was many times called before the curtain. Kahn and Kahn, the illusionists, are making one of their periodical visits to this hall, and again completely succeed in mystifying Claphamites with the cleverness of their tricks. Mimicry has a capable exponent in Miss Nina Gordon, who is giving clever impersonations of some of our leading performers, including Harry Lauder, Vesta Victoria, Camille Clifford, and Margaret Corneille. The fine voices of the Morton Comedy Trio are much appreciated, and their eccentricities are the cause of the heartiest laughter.

Alan Holt and company are presenting a dramatic episode in the life of a society woman, whose husband has been sentenced to a long term of imprisonment for a crime he has never committed. He succeeds in escaping from prison, and, although wounded, immediately makes for home. Hardly has he arrived when a visitor is announced. He proves to be an aristocratic scoundrel, who, under the plea of friendship, is trying to poison the wife's mind against her husband, in order to gain her affections. The wife implores her husband to escape, but, feeling very weak, he retires to another room to rest. The villain enters, and finds the room empty; but he is afterwards accosted by a money-lender, who makes his appearance at the window. It transpires that this man himself is the thief for whose crime the escaped prisoner has suffered. The moneylender suggests that in order to obtain money they shall kidnap the child of the house. The husband overhears the arrangement, and, impersonating the moneylender, assists in the kidnapping of his own child. Eventually there is a terrific combat between a serving-maid and the villain, who is finally disposed of by the outraged husband. The programme does not contain the names of the cast, so special comment cannot be given, but great praise is deserved by the lady who impersonates the wife.

Binns and Binns are presenting their exceedingly entertaining turn, which they bring to a conclusion by the playing on concertinas of Sullivan's "Lost Chord." The Two Bostons go as well as ever in their amusing act, to which some very clever dancing is added. Albert Le Fre is here with his "That's what you see on the halls," which is meeting with a most favourable reception. Professor Dunning has a clever ventriloquial show, and his puppets are ingeniously manipulated. Roxborough and Wright are presenting a farcical sketchlet entitled Cockie, which causes the heartiest laughter and applause. Woolmer Young is singing a song with the refrain "John Bull, wake up!" and a pleasing evening's amusement is brought to a conclusion with the Bioscope. The series of films depicting "A Wonderful Electric Belt" is most amusing. Mr. Harry Ketteman, the popular manager, does everything possible for the comfort of his friends and patrons.

"DAVID GARRICK."

An Episode, in One Scene, produced at the Bedford, Camden Town, on Monday, June 4.

David Garrick .....MR. RONALD BAYNE
Stella .....MISS EVELYN HOPE

Decided favour was won by a little sketch which forms an item of this week's programme at the Bedford. The romantic love affair of the famous actor has been treated in a lighter spirit than is customary, and each line contains a touch of humour. The episode deals with the infatuation of a young lady named Stella, who from a private box in the theatre has watched David Garrick rapturously night after night. Her father induces the actor to pledge his word that he will so disgust the young lady that she will be disillusioned. The actor accordingly visits the house to carry out his purpose, but is dismayed to find that the girl is the very one to whom he himself has lost his heart. He nevertheless pursues the plan arranged, simulating drunkenness so well that the maiden is fain at length to bid him go. Garrick takes his leave, but no sooner has the lady left the room in tears than he returns and sits down to write a letter to the father, telling him the compact is performed. He alters his mind, and discards the letter, which is picked up by Stella, who thus learns that Garrick has been only pretending, and the piece ends with an avowal of love and a determination to set aside the parental injunction.

Mr. Ronald Bayne, who has for some time been playing the part of Napoleon in a sketch written round that personage, displays an acute sense of drollery in the part of Davy Garrick. The dialogue is sentimental and witty by turns, and Mr. Bayne's spasms of tragedy and comedy are cleverly affected, the fun of the part keeping the audience highly amused. The lovelorn lady has a charming exponent in Miss Evelyn Hope, who acquitted herself creditably, both in the melodramatic intensity which she is called upon to assume and in the more vivacious passages of the part.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

CHATS WITH VARIETY ARTISTS.

MR. WALTER MUNROE.

Walter Munroe, "the man who struck O'Hara," enters on his twenty-fifth consecutive annual tour with the Moss-Stoll combine at Hackney Empire next Monday

This celebrated Irish comedian is as firm a favourite with audiences everywhere to-day as he was when crowds were pouring into the old Aquarium twenty years ago to witness his fine top-boot dancing, and to hear his "hurricane voice" telling of "The coming of age of Tim McCarthy's daughter," or that "A fine young fellow is the Earl of Fife," the latter a song sung in every street at the time the Earl of Fife married the King's (then Prince of Wales) daughter. The chorus of this ditty ran:—

"A fine young fellow is the Earl of Fife,
He's large estates and a nice young wife;
He's the finest fellow that you ever saw,
And he never need be frightened of his mother-in-law."

At the Alhambra, where the Prince heard Munroe sing this song, H.R.H. laughed most heartily at the concluding line, and led the applause.

Walter Munroe is probably one of the most versatile men in the variety profession to-day. The public know him as a first-class comedian and dancer; but there are two other worlds that give him every deference—as a diamond expert, and again as a breeder and owner of trotting horses. The latter taste is probably attributable to the fact that Munroe spent some years of his youth in close proximity to a circus stable.

Ballinasloe, Co. Galway, may claim the honour of giving Munroe his first reception in life. Papa Munro was a doctor of music, and when young Walter was five years of age he determined to try his fortune in England. The fickle dame frowned on his effort, and a short while after tiny Walter found himself an orphan and without a friend in the world. The hungry little lad took his fate in his hands, and boldly marched up to a circus proprietor then showing near Liverpool, and asked for employment. This step led to his being apprenticed as a bareback rider, trapeze artist, and singing clown.

"I was very happy," smilingly reflects Munroe, "with the dogs and the ponies and the elephants, and even the wild animals. But one day our show went to Dublin, and there I got my opportunity. The Dublin Exhibition was on, but every singer engaged there was a failure, owing to the enormous size of the place and its bad acoustics. Now, I was noted for my hurricane voice, as it was called, and the manager suggested to me that I should go on. 'If,' said he, 'you fail, we'll stop the singing part of the show.'"

Munroe went on, sang, and was heard by everybody. He has been a public favourite from that moment to this. So pleased was the manager with his act that he presented him with a heavy gold watch, chain, and matchbox. To use Mr. Munroe's own words, "I strutted about like a peacock with my presentation adorning my person. But greater gratification to my vanity was yet to come. I was singing a song, entitled 'Viscount Barney Blake,' and speedily got nicknamed 'the Viscount' in consequence. Shortly afterwards the exhibition manager suggested to me that I should take the name or title of Viscount. I objected, not knowing whether it would be lawful to do so. Judge of my surprise when one day the manager presented me with the rights to the style and title Vicomte Munroe for the next fourteen years. He had purchased a Continental title then in the market, and from that moment I could legally assume the name. I have never paid the renewal fees, and so I suppose all claim on my part to be a Viscount, if I wished to assert it, is lost. Any way, it doesn't much matter."

In the old days Munroe had one engagement that lasted a solid year at the Aquarium. Another lasted five years without a break at the Alhambra, and he was a star turn in the first programme presented at the Empire, Leicester-square.

"Ah! but the darlin' cud dance on iggshills an' niver crack wan o' thim," was the eugolistic, if extravagant, comment bestowed by an old Irish lady on Munroe's dancing. Before Walter "invented" the style of dancing all over the stage at the performer's own sweet will it was the fashion for clog and top-boot dancers to retain one position before an audience.

Walter Munroe is one of those delightful raconteurs who can keep a roomful of people interested in the happenings of his life. One of the stories he tells is as follows:—

Walter was engaged at the old Star, Dublin, during the great coal-porters' strike in that city. On the first night he walked on the stage and got a great reception, and in the ordinary way started to sing. He had got well into the stride of the first verse when a stentorian voice addressed the stage in these terms:—

"Howld on there, Munroe."
"What's wrong?" interrogated the artist.
"Ye'll not sing another note."
"An' why shouldn't I?" said Munroe, indignantly.

And the answer came:—"An' d'ye think we'd be after allowin' ye to prostitute yer talent by singin' to that blackguard blackleg in the circle there until he's gone out?"

The objectionable member of the audience being removed, Munroe was allowed to proceed.

MR. FRED H. COE, a nephew of the popular proprietor, Mr. John C. Coe, is now assistant acting-manager of the Hammersmith Palace.

SKETCHES AT THE GRANVILLE.

"THE CONSTABLE AND THE PICTURES."

An original Musical Fantasy, by Messrs. Wimperis, Davenport, and L. Godfrey Turner, with Music composed and arranged by Miss Marjorie Slaughter.

Lady Lavinia Mostyn .....MISS AGNES FRASER
Sir Roland Stone .....MR. ALEC FRASER
Reuben Pryor .....MR. M. R. MORAND

The fascinating Miss Agnes Fraser as an oil-painting, the figure in which every night steps out of the canvas and walks the haunted chamber of an old manor house as the ghost of the Lady Lavinia Mostyn, should surely present pleasing possibilities. And, sure enough, the possibilities are more than realised when one witnesses the graceful movements, the engaging personality, the irresistible charm of the beautiful Lady Lavinia of Miss Fraser's creation. The story of this trifle, which first bore the title of When Knights were Bolder, may be told in a few words. Reuben Pryor is a policeman on the look-out for coiners and for promotion. There is an old manor house on his beat, and he enters one of the rooms at midnight. After making a search, more for the purpose of his own personal safety than for anything else, he settles down to a soliloquy on a policeman's lot, and upon various other matters. Suddenly there steps out from the frame of one of the pictures a beautiful girl, attired in the picturesque costume of the Tudor period. The policeman becomes quite sympathetic as he listens to the tale of woe unfolded by the lady—how in the long ago her lover, Sir Roland Stone—Rolling Stone, as he is called by the constable—wooed her against her father's wishes, and how just as they were eloping the rope-ladder was cut by the irate parent, and how the lovers came into sudden and dangerous contact with Mother Earth. But she and Sir Roland now meet each other every night in this haunted chamber. And lo! and behold Sir Roland steps forth from the canvas and challenges the minion of the law to a duel. But just as the moment for the firing of shots arrives, the mediæval gallant returns to his place in the picture.

We have already referred to Miss Agnes Fraser's altogether delightful acting as the Lady Lavina Mostyn. Mr. M. R. Morand is intensely amusing as the constable, and he is to be commended for a capital portraiture. His song about a policeman is extremely well rendered. Mr. Alec Fraser presents the serious rôle of Sir Roland Stone in able fashion.

The other sketch, produced for the first time this week, bears the title of The Dairymaids, and is presented by Miss Phyllis Yorke, assisted by Mr. Albert Weston. A pretty dairymaid is singing to herself a love ditty, when a crashing noise is heard, and a motorist, whose machine has come to grief, appears before us. Apparently, however, he is not so much overcome with sorrow at the incident that he can be oblivious to the charms of an engaging damsel, and it is not long before he commences a violent flirtation, in which his propensities for "larking" and for joking are given every opportunity. The amusing trifle causes roars of laughter. Miss Phyllis Yorke is dainty, insouciant, and vivacious, as the dairymaid, and Mr. Weston acts with good spirit and a fine sense of humour as the chauffeur.

QUEEN'S, POPLAR.

Mr. Jack Woolf's long and varied programme this week is extremely good, every item being of interest, and exceptional business is being done. Messrs. Selby and Myers, in a song, "He and I," are responsible for some amusing cross-talk, and their nimble dancing provokes applause. The Four Jumels, a quartet of smart instrumentalists, submit some well-executed selections, their rendering of "The Lost Chord," with bell accompaniment, being both novel and artistic. Mr. Harry Leybourne, the double-voiced mimic, is fully appreciated for his imitations, his "Whisper and I shall hear" causing great merriment. A clever acrobatic sketch, entitled Those Troublesome Slaveys, is presented by the Elvio Trio, who are to be highly commended for their performance; while Mr. Charles Lloyd displays versatility of no mean order in his up-to-date melody, "East and West End." A vigorous exhibition, contributing largely to the enjoyment of the evening, is provided by the Two Andrillas; and Mr. Will Lynn's vocalism is greatly admired. Considerable skill is seen in the entertaining turn, given for the first time in England, by the Matulla Troupe; and Messrs. Walker and May sing and dance with an amplitude of energy and spirit, their numbers, "Don't forget to bring your money home," "My Evaline," and "Coon Town Jubilee" obtain enthusiastic applause, and when it is remembered that Mr. Walker is totally blind, his particularly agile dancing is simply wonderful. The military spectacle, For England's Glory, by the Francis Harrold company, appeals strongly to a poplar audience, and the management are to be congratulated for the admirable completeness in which the sketch is staged. Mr. M. Glenton is seen to advantage as Sergeant Harry Gilbert, his fine, resonant voice being of great assistance to the part. The renegade and brutal Captain Hoffman, who betrays the camp, is portrayed with the necessary intensity by Mr. W. J. Mackay; and Mr. George Edwards is acceptable as Colonel Carter. Miss Edith Hall gives an interesting impersonation of the Red Cross Sister, Margaret Baxter; and Miss Nellie Carr is easy and natural as the bugler boy, Tim Morris. The exciting incidents of "The Camerons to the Rescue" and "The Traitor's Just Reward" fairly brought down the house. The bioscope pictures, including "The Hero at the Fire," were successful; while praise must be given to the Model Band, under the direction of Mr. Fred Venton, for their playing of the intermezzo, "Tres Piquants" (Theo Bonheur). Mr. Jack Woolf spares no effort in his labours for the comfort of the patrons, and the assistant acting-manager, Mr. Morris Abrahams, is ever to the front with his courteous and assiduous attention.

CROUCH END HIPPODROME.

The most exacting of music-hall frequenters could not fail to find his wants satisfied at this beautiful home of variety, for Mr. H. de Groot has made every provision for amusing his patrons with excellent novelties. Every part of the house is well-filled, and all those present show, by hearty applause, that the efforts of the management are thoroughly appreciated. This week's programme includes two clever sketches, admirable songs and dances, and Bioscope pictures. Mr. J. H. Hutchinson fills the conductor's chair with his customary address; and after a well-rendered overture by the orchestra, Miss Jessie Star "opens the ball" with a couple of humorous Scotch songs, and is much to be commended; Mr. Hal Chapter, a quaint comedian, contributes two excellent items, "Where, oh where?" and "We shall all be happy," the latter producing roars of laughter; the Two Stuarts, speciality artists with patter, coon songs, and rag-time dances, do a capital turn; and the first sketch is then presented. It is entitled The Red Letter, and is founded on the recent sensational Thaw case. The cast includes Mr. Leslie Bell, Mr. Fredk. Wilson, Mr. Frank Chapman, Mr. Geo. Harrison, and a lady whose name deserves to be in the programme. It is a smart sketch, with beautiful scenery and effects, and gains much applause. A favourite with the Pavilion audiences, Ambrose Thorne, proves himself a refined comedian, and supplies the next turn, singing in easy style "Aroplane," and describes what he would do if he was a Member of Parliament; Miss Lilian Lowe warbles "I never knew" and "The song that reached my heart," and meets with an enthusiastic reception nightly; the "man with the funny voice," Mr. H. O. Wills, creates great amusement with his song, "I kept waving my flag"; and Miss Lily Flexmore contributes a ditty and some most extraordinary acrobatic feats, making one of the hits of the evening. Mr. Alf Lester, supported by Miss Florence Wakeman, next appears in A Restaurant Episode. A wonderful amount of fun is got out of the little piece, and both the lady and gentleman work with a will to gain the success they undoubtedly achieve. Little Miss Zeta Russell, assisted by two gentlemen, representing a dude and a shoeblack, are to be specially commended on their contributions to the programme; and the performance concludes with a series of Bioscope pictures. On Wednesday evening two extra turns were introduced. Leo, a ventriloquist of no mean order, met with a very flattering reception, his singing of "Rocked in the cradle of the deep" being applauded. Miss Rita Rhyll, though very nervous, made a hit with her two songs, "When you know you're not forgotten" and "Pansy." Among the prospective engagements here is that of Miss Marie Lloyd, who commences a week's exclusive engagement on Monday, June 24.

ROYAL ALBERT.

An excellent, varied, and popular programme is provided here this week, and Mr. Arthur G. H. Hunt can have no doubt as to its entertaining powers when he hears the laughter and applause of his patrons ringing through the house. Undoubtedly the great outstanding feature of the bill is the sketch, Two Up a Tree, as performed by Albert and Edmunds, supported by a clever company. No more thoroughly side-splitting farcical sketch has come to our notice for some time, and, outrageous as may be the doings of those concerned, their extravagance is skilfully blended with that tincture of real comedy that makes the whole thing acceptable to the discerning, and relieves it from the suggestion of mere buffoonery. Where the parts are not individualised on the programme it is impossible to accord praise by name, but we must say that the acting of one of the principals—probably Mr. Edmunds—marks him as a low comedian of the first class and an artist whose talents should enable him to shine on the more "legitimate" stage. At the same time, it must be admitted that he is admirably supported by the other two gentlemen and the two ladies engaged in the cast, the whole combination making for laughter as loud as it is long.

Miss Cissie Esdale is an agreeable singer and dances well. Mr. Sam Mitchello, with a comical face, makes a great hit with his song, "Right opposite me," and an amusing ditty in the character of an eccentric young female. A handsome presence, a gorgeous costume, and a ringing voice combine to render Miss Maude Beaumont a prime favourite, and her two contributions—"Wedding bells ring out for you and me" and "Fatherland"—are received with loud applause. Mr. Charles Gardener is an eccentric comedian, who scores in a good "dame" song, "I'm a lady," and a parody on "When the lights are low." Levano proves himself to be a side-somersault thrower of wonderful dexterity, the difficult turns he makes while holding naked daggers to his breast and firing off other deadly weapons arousing enthusiasm. A dainty, graceful performance is given by the Zampas, duettists, dancers, and bâton manipulators. Both lady and gentleman, besides being blessed with good looks, have plenty of talent, their singing, dancing, and "manipulating" being about equally praiseworthy. In addition, they dress charmingly, and make their performance, refined throughout, all the more attractive thereby. Another pair of duettists and dancers are the Two Wiltons, who both sing and dance with exceeding energy. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux show some pretty pictures and satisfactorily wind up an excellent entertainment.

CAPE CHANTANT AT CRYSTAL PALACE.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard has the advantage of giving this popular entertainment either in the open air in the North Tower Gardens or in the theatre inside the Crystal Palace; and, in face of the recent very unseasonable weather, there has been no reason to complain of the audiences assembled this week to enjoy the efforts of the merry little company of artists, who provide the afternoon and evening amusement. These include the Royal Quintette, who render the songs and dances of many lands; a Highland scena, with pipe music and strathspeys, being followed by a characteristic Irish jig and typical song, concluding with a Spanish dance. Mr. Harry Tomps is a most original mime, full of dry conceits, and a raconteur of marked excellence, his stories being racy and original, with no trace of vulgarity, and, in addition, he contributes a solo on the English concertina, which is loudly redemanded. Miss Lillie Lassah receives a genuine and hearty welcome from her friends in front, who are mindful of the success she made as Aladdin in the Christmas pantomime. She has a new song and dance, entitled "Pearl," and gave also a pretty rendering of "A bungalow in Borneo." The Sisters Clare prove themselves to be alert and practised dancers and duettists, with taking songs and smart appearance; and Messrs. Newham and Latimer are quite up to date with a song about a long-expected infant, and references to the Court of Spain. They repeat here the successes so often gained elsewhere. The appearance of Mr. Alf. E. Passmore is the signal for a boisterous greeting, for was he not the Widow Twankey in last season's pantomime? His songs were both broadly comic, the first having reference to a faithless wife, who left with a policeman, and another, an elaborate nonsense song—a great effort of memory, to say the least of it. The artists will be changed each week, and with brighter and warmer weather, the café chantant is sure to be one of the great attractions of the Sydenham pleasure resort.

ABERTILLERY PAVILION OPENING.

Although not completed, this building was opened for one week on Monday by Mr. Jos. Poole's No. 1 Myriorama Company. After the National Anthem had been sung by Mr. Bert Berry and the members of the company assembled on the stage, Mr. Berry introduced Mr. Tilney, the proprietor, and Mr. E. Pryce, the newly appointed manager, who gave the audience a brief outline of the future of the Pavilion, which, he said, had been hurriedly completed to admit Mr. Poole's company for this special week, this being the last week of their present season. It would then remain closed until August Bank Holiday, when it would be run on the twice-nightly system. Artists would be taken from Mr. C. W. Poole's variety palaces at Gloucester and Porth. There would be a professional band of ten, under a competent musical director, and everything would be conducted on up-to-date first-class lines, and at popular prices. The building itself has sloping floors, with seating accommodation for 1,600. It has an installation of high-pressure heating apparatus, and is electrically lighted throughout. The stage measures 45ft. by 35ft. Proscenium, 24ft. opening, eight dressing rooms being provided on level of stage. There is an available population within four miles of 80,000. As for the performance, a capital series of pictures was presented, and a good company of artists gave an excellent entertainment. The Four Rosaires submitted a smart acrobatic act; Eileen and Mayrie were very successful in their dancing; Mr. Bert G. Berry excelled as elocutionist and vocalist; the Tissots gave a startlingly clever marionette exhibition; Dick Bradley proved an amusing and clever trick cyclist; the Seddons, in their turn, provided much merriment; Mr. Fred Harris, the Welsh comedian and tambourinist, was greeted with uproarious applause; and Mint and Mart, paper manipulators, also entertained in admirable fashion.

THE Burnells have kindly forwarded 10s. 6d. for the widow of the late Harry Kenyon.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

Fairs Ahead.

FOR next week we have only a few fixtures—Cranbrooke, on the South-Eastern and Chatham; St. Austell, on the Great Western; Rawtenstall, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire; and Dore and Totley on the Midland Railways.

Scotch Fairs.

ALYTH, on the Caledonian; Selkirk, on the North British; and Largs, on the Glasgow and South-British Railways.

Welsh Fairs.

LLANDOVERY, on the London and North-Western and Great Western; Brynmawr, London and North-Western and Great Western; and Ferndale, on the Taff Vale Railways.

Portishead.

THIS pretty seaside resort on the Bristol Channel had it pleasure fair, providing open-air amusement for the people last week, under the able management of Messrs. Cole Bros., of Gloucester, who exhibited Venetian gondolas, switchback, helter-skelter, shooter, swings, and games.

Leamington.

GREAT public patronage and appreciation has rewarded the efforts of the showpeople at this inland watering-place. Mrs. P. Collins's magnificent show, "Wonderland"; Wall's midget exhibition; P. Collins's No. 1 motor-set, helter-skelter, and steam yachts; Cordwell's miniature roundabouts and throwing games; Hall's shooter and varieties; Leigh and Jones's highfliers; Parkins's Winchester range; and the fun of the fair by Messrs. Wright, Cordwell, Hall, and Fletcher, delighted great crowds.

Penzance Fair.

ONE of the best of the Cornish fairs was spoilt by two days' bad weather. The local hon. agent to the Guild and show world correspondent, G. W. A. Norton, Esq., accompanied by Capt. Rowland, of Anderton and Rowland's cinématograph theatre, interviewed the Mayor of Penzance, and His Worship most kindly extended the fair two days. This thoughtful concession on the Mayor's part was received by the showmen with great thanks. The Mayor and the Mayoress and party further manifested their interest in the show folk by attending the Guild service, conducted by the Rev. T. Horne in Anderton and Rowland's show. Far-away Penzance thus is brought into line with the best and most progressive boroughs in the United Kingdom.

Truro Fair,

HELD immediately before Penzance Fair, is usually attended by the same shows and other novelties. These included W. C. and S. Hancock's great West of England aggregation of fair-ground concerns—the big machines, helter skelter, &c., &c., Rowland and Anderton's, J. Jones, Lawrence, Broadway, and Alf. Wright; the shooters, swings, big wheels, varieties, throwing games, and stalls of the Jones family, the Oldridges, Locks, Chapmans, Frampton, Harford, Smith, Allen, and others; the roundabout concerns of Chas. Heal, Anderton and Rowland, and Wm. Brewer and Sons were also present.

Derby.

FOR the holidays at this great Midland centre of pleasure were the concerns of the local showman, Mr. A. Twigdon, who exhibited cinématograph theatre and steam and electric riding machines, J. Proctor's cinématograph show, and machines by Alf. Cox, Jervis, and Burton; shooters, swings, and throwing games by S. Hall, A. Hall, Warwick, Saint, Burton, and others.

Grimsby Fair.

TUBY AND SONS' superb Coliseum continues its triumphant career at the Lincolnshire and Yorkshire fairs. At the busy great central town and docks the show scored an instantaneous success. Crowded audiences voiced their appreciation of the up-to-date films and the talking and singing pictures. The other concerns were Taylor's steam horses, Mr. Tuby, sen.'s, Winchester range, throwing games and varieties by Clayton, Webb, Louis, and others.

Adwalton Fair.

HARRY ASHINGTON and Bailey's exhibitions divided the show honours at this Yorkshire fixture; Goldthorpe Marshall exhibited motor cars, and Mrs. Hughes swings. The rifle saloons were those of Rhodes, Burgess, Hayes, Seed, and Lorenzo. The other amusement caterers were Bassett, Vanner, Blackburn, Hough, Thomas, Wain, Pegrotti, and Jacques.

Elsecar Feast.

THE chief attractions at this thriving centre of industry were Farrar's portable Coliseum, Proctor's theatre of animated pictures and varieties, W. H. Marshall and Son's motor cars, Harniesse's racing birds, T. Burgin's steam swings, and the usual attendant throng of funmakers, with shooters, dolly frames, and throwing games.

Usk (Mon.) Trinity Fair.

FINE weather prevailed at this ideal spot for a country pleasure fair. Jacob Studt's magnificent theatre of up-to-date pictures and variety entertainment was the big draw of the fair. Testo's marionettes and animated photography, Prof. Whyle's entertainment, Jacob Studt's switchback, and the fair-ground amusements of Messrs. T. Butlin, Freeman, Clarke, and Davies, and local stall-holders, completed the list of things at Usk Fair.

WE regret to chronicle the death of a clever young showman, Theodore Lloyd, a much-valued employee of Messrs. Anderton and Rowland. He died after an extremely short illness at Gloucester on May 24 last. He is well remembered and esteemed by his former employers, Jacob Studt and W. C. and S. Hancock. He was an expert electrician and good all-round worker. Seven months ago he married Miss Nellie Anderson, comedienne and danseuse, with Anderton and Rowland, with whom she remains. We feel sure that the great heart of showland will go out in sympathy to his bereaved wife.

On the Barrow Round.

AT Barrow Fair itself were George Green's Coliseum, Monte Bros'. similar concern, Wilson's living pictures, and J. Cottrell's exhibition. There were many large machines. These included Geo. Green's motor cars, Wm. Murphy's set of motors, R. Carr's galloping horses, Harrison's Alpine glide, Barker and Son's steam yachts, and gem and miniature horses, cars, and ponies, by Newsome, Casey, Talbot, and Allison.

Shooting Saloons and Varieties.

"ALL the jolly fun of the fair," shooters, and games were provided by Doughty, Sheeran, Casey, Stanley, Geo. W. Newsome, Broughton, Talbot, Wilson, Gilling, and Dearden.

Evesham.

AT Evesham Whitsuntide Fair, held in Byrd's Timber Yards, were Mr. H. Ayer's steam roundabouts, Ayers's and Hatwell's shooting saloons, Ayers's and Rawlings's swing boats, Kemp's toy stalls, and other attractions by Messrs. Ayers, Stanley, Kimberley, Innes, and others. Also Skinner's waxworks and marionettes.

Worcester.

AT Worcester Foresters' Fête were Scott's galloping horses, park swings, shooting saloons, cokernuts, &c.

Great Witley.

Scott's steam galloping horses, park swings, shooting saloons, bottle battery, &c., has been visiting Great Witley.

Bidford-on-Avon.

BIDFORD-ON-AVON Trinity was maintained by Mr. Henry Ayres's steam horses and cockerels, park swings, shooting saloons, &c., Stanley's and Butler's cokernut sheets, Kemp's toy stalls, and other amusements, &c., by Messrs. Innes, Ayers, Kemp, Herbert, Smith, Kimberley, and others.

Broadway.

AT Broadway Wakes were Mr. Albert Curtis, with roundabouts and other attractions.

Fêtes.

AT Fernhill Heath Club Fête were Strickland's gallopers; at Chipping Campden were Curtis's roundabouts; at Pinvin, Fladbury, and Ashton-under-Hill were Scarrott's roundabouts; at Upton Snodsbury were Scott's world's fair; at Offenham Wake were Ayres's roundabouts; and at Harvington Fête were Ayers's roundabouts.

Theatres.

HOLLOWAY'S theatre is at Shipston-on-Stour, and Mrs. Sinclair's theatre is at Stratford-on-Avon.

Pleasure and Horse Fairs in the Midlands.

JUNE 24, Bromsgrove, pleasure and horse; June 26, Pershore, pleasure and horse; June 22, Shipston-on-Stour, horse and pleasure; July 1, Feckenham Wakes; July 11 to 15, Headless Cross Cherry Wakes; Aug. 3 to 7, Redditch Pleasure Fair. Bromsgrove, Pershore, Shipston-on-Stour, Feckenham, Headless Cross, and Redditch are all in Worcestershire.

Dalton-in-Furness.

THE funsmiths here were Messrs. Monte Bros., Wilson, Wm. Murphy, Carr, Allison, Newsome and Son, Doughty, Casey, G. Sheeran, and Wilton. Well and truly did these worthy brothers of the ancient craft work like hammer and tongs to keep the people in a roar of laughter.

Southwold Trinity Fair.

THE provider-in-chief of the people's amusements here was the local showman, Mr. Stocks, and with him were identified Messrs. Keets and Abbot.

Small Heath Fair.

AFTER Birmingham the concerns divide, one section going to Leamington with Collins's big show, and another taking the suburban fair at Golden Hillock-road, Small Heath. The shows here were Sagar's palace of delight, Manders's menagerie, Proctor's circus, and Haydn and Clytie. The machines were John Collins's four-abreast horses, the motor-car set, and wheeley whirley, Cordwell and Mercer's juvenile roundabouts, and shooters, varieties, and stalls by Deeks, Mercer, Dobson, Humphries, and others.

The White City, Old Trafford.

THIS amusement park has been a great attraction every day since Whit Monday, when it was opened (for six months) for the first time, and 58,000 persons passed the turnstiles, 14,000 of whom patronised the new gravitation railway, known as the Figure Eight. Many of the beauties of the Botanical Gardens are retained, and at dark the grounds are brilliantly illuminated by about 40,000 electric lights. The fairy fountain, worked by electricity, is greatly admired. There are plenty of various kinds of amusement to suit young and old. This week the band of the Northumberland Fusiliers play during the afternoons and evenings. Among the amusements well patronised are the roller skating rink, the great water chute (120ft.), dragon slide, Pain's great fire spectacle, Fighting the Flames, Hale's "Tours of the World," Payne's museum and stereopticum, Quinn's pierrots, Parker's Æolian Opera Company.

ON Monday last the veterans of the Indian Mutiny and Crimean Campaigns, in the Manchester district, to the number of 130, were entertained by the chairman (Mr. C. H. Heathcote) and managing-director (Mr. John C. Brown), and they thoroughly enjoyed the side shows. Many of them ascended about 750ft. in Spencer's captive balloon, "City of London.'

IT was stated that the special matinée at the Manchester Palace of Varieties, on May 10, resulted in the funds of the Veterans' Association being increased by £93 17s.

Pageant Week in Liverpool.

THE Corporation of Liverpool, ever alive to the wants of the people, have let to the famous showmen, P. and J. Collins, the whole of the Liverpool parks and Corporation open spaces for the pageant week, Aug. 3 to Aug. 9. The city of Liverpool will observe this week as a general holiday. The Channel Fleet will anchor in the Mersey at the time. Excursion trains and steamers will run into Liverpool from all parts of Great Britain.

FOR a reduction in traffic rates no greater argument is needed from the showmen than the fact that they are continually increasing the passenger traffic on the railways.

Garrick to Boom the Chronomegaphone.

MR. HENRY W. GARRICK, the noted Press manager, has just been engaged by Mr. Bromhead, of the chronomegaphone (Messrs. Gaumont, of Paris and London), to act as publicity agent for this company. Mr. Garrick has just concluded an eight years' engagement at the London Hippodrome, and is now running a publicity bureau "off his own bat."

On the Scotch Round.

SALTCOATS, Ayrshire, held its annual fair the first days of this month. The shows were—Paulo's circus; Henderson's cinematograph theatre; Chapman's trained birds and hares; and Prof. Moore's strength and athletic show. The riding machines were Wilmot's royal motor-cars and J. Wilmot, jun.'s, highfliers. The shooting concerns were by Messrs. Dawson, Wilmot, and Stevenson. The fun merchants and novelty providers were Stevenson, Imring, Wilmot, Smith, Kennedy, Nelson, Gray, Dawson, and others. The business of the fair was spoilt by bad weather, and most of the travellers remain here waiting to move on to Largs Fair.

THE Rev. T. Horne will be at Porth, in the Rhondda Valley, on Sunday next, June 9, when he will speak at the annual gathering of Welsh showmen at three in the afternoon.

NOTWITHSTANDING the unseasonable weather, large numbers of people are finding the entertainments at the White City, Old Trafford, just what has been wanted in the district for some years. An extra attraction this week is the annual June Flower Show, which has been a huge success. Captain Tom Payne's museum, the figure-eight gravitation ride, Hale's cinematograph tours of the world, the great water-chute, and the numerous other side-shows are doing good business. The gardens are in splendid condition, and when illuminated by the 40,000 electric lights at night are a veritable fairyland.

SHOWMEN'S GUILD MEETING AT PENZANCE FAIR.

The first meeting of showpeople in the West of England under the Guild auspices was held in Anderton and Rowland's show (by kind permission of the proprietors), at Penzance, on Sunday last, June 2, at four o'clock in the afternoon.

The ultimate success of the gathering was assured by the amount of preparatory work done by the hon. local agent of the Guild, G. W. A. Norton, Esq., Beachfield, Penzance. The prominent showmen at the opening of the proceedings included Messrs. Wm. and Charles Hancock, Captain Rowland, Messrs. Anderton and Son, John Jones, J. Lawrence, Chas. Heal, Bert Jarvis, J. Leslie, A. Jones, W. Jones, R. Chapman, W. Cribb, Alf. Wright, Lock, Oldridge, Hurford, Brewer and Son, and the working staff of the various shows, machines, &c., on the ground. On the motion of the Rev. T. Horne and Mr. Wm. Hancock, Captain Rowland was voted in the chair. In a pithy opening speech, the chairman said that the great object before them was the important question of trade defence. This work was being done now, and had been well done for many years past, by the Guild. He felt sure that when they had heard their friends, the chief speakers of that gathering, the Rev. T. Horne, and Mr. Norton, their local champion and trade defender, all of them would recognise their duty and their privilege to join the society, and to strengthen its officers in their useful work. (Applause.) He, therefore, asked Mr. Norton to address the meeting.

A Trades Union Necessary.

Mr. Norton was cheered on rising to speak. He claimed to be in complete sympathy with the life and work of the travelling showmen. He knew the arduous and exacting nature of their business in life. Because he knew that he strongly urged them to combine, and to stand together as one man, for trade defence. A trades union was necessary.

In the Showmen's Guild that protective force they needed was found. He reminded them how various corporations had endeavoured to obtain excessive powers by Private Bill legislation; how other corporations had tried to obtain obnoxious bye-laws, penalising and injuring the show business. He submitted that the Showmen's Guild, by reason of its intimate knowledge of the fair-ground business, was best able to cope with such difficulties, and consequently merited the generous and loyal support of the fraternity of the road.

Whilst they readily admitted that the Guild had not been so active in the West as in the North and other parts of the kingdom, yet none the less the victories gained by the organised showmen in other districts had acted as a wholesome deterrent to corporations and public bodies all over the land. They might not know it, yet it was true, that a victory in any part of the United Kingdom strengthened the whole body of amusement caterers. (Applause.) If the travellers would but combine in one federation, such as the Showmen's Guild, and thus present a solid and united front to all their enemies, then would corporations hesitate to propose either obnoxious bye-laws or to seek excessive powers by Act of Parliament. (Cheers.)

The Organising Chaplain on the Guild.

Mr. Horne received an ovation on rising to commence his address. At the outset he explained why no meetings had been held on the West of England round. First of all, they must recognise that only this very year had he, personally, become free to attend those meetings. For many years past he had given his holidays—and a few other days taken from his hitherto fixed clerical work—to organise and to speak at meetings of showpeople. These necessarily limited opportunities had been given to such places as he could readily take. Hence a long journey West was a practical impossibility until this year. This year already he had taken big centres of show-life—at Manchester, Wrexham, Knutsford, Preston, Birmingham—and now he was with them at the earliest possible moment in the West. (Applause.)

He desired to tell them what the Guild had done for the show community in the past, what it is doing in the present, and what, in all human probability stands before it in the near future. "In the past twenty years of strenuous work the Guild has defended the liberty and the sanctity of the showman's home on wheels. We have made our enemies understand that, as loyal British subjects, we repel all mistaken efforts to stigmatise our domestic life, or to mark us and our little ones as fit subjects for special and invidious laws. We defeated the Movable Dwellings Bill of the late George Smith, and we have defeated since all attempts to pass legislation that would impose upon us pains and penalties not applicable or necessary for dwellers in houses of brick or stone. We claim, and the Legislature has upheld that claim, that the laws that govern fixed dwellings are ample enough for movable ones. We recognise that the Public Health Acts rightly apply to our houses on wheels, as to town-dwellers' houses, and we are contented with the same safeguards for health and the laws that secure the liberty of the subject." (Great applause).

Local Government and Show Life.

For many years past they had fought all attacks, whether from individuals or from corporations and local governing bodies, on the showman's mode of life and trade. Powerful corporations had attempted in various ways to injure the show business. He detailed examples of this, and showed how free trade in fairs had been won, how local bodies had been taught that Parliament would not sanction by Private Bill legislation powers in restraint of trade or grant powers in excess of the general law of the land to curtail the hours in which shows, roundabouts, and fairground amusements should be open. (Cheers.) These were the great governing principles of their daily life that the Guild had fought for and had won. It did not matter whether their circuit was east, west, north, or south, the same law, the same liberty was theirs, and it was a most narrow and partial view of their responsibility to even conclude (as he feared some had done in the past, "Oh, it does not affect me here on my round, why, then should I bother to support a movement that defends, the northern, the southern, and the eastern showpeople, but never touches me or mine?" He seriously warned them against any such selfish or narrow view of their life. No matter where the fight raged—here or in the north—the effect on public opinion was just the same. A victory for liberty, life, and work won at Leeds or at Durham was a victory that benefited showpeople all over the land. (Great applause.) He dwelt upon the necessity of maintaining a constant watch upon their enemies, a constant and strong trade organisation to deal with all possible attacks, and to keep before the show-loving public the truth concerning the showman, his family, and his avocation in life.

The Cost of Trade Defence.

The annual report and financial statement had been placed in their hands. A reference to that would clearly demonstrate that the Showmen's Guild was the most economically-worked trade society in existence. They only had one paid worker, the secretary, who kept, and who, under his own personal supervision, dealt with the ever-increasing volume of correspondence. All the other workers, like their great friend Mr. Norton, were honorary and unpaid. (Applause.) In Parliamentary defence work they had spent over £3000; in defence of the people's fairs nearly £1000. Every day the Showmen's Guild kept watch and ward over their trade interests. No matter where the danger arose—in the most distant corner of the kingdom, or in the heart of the land—the battle-ground, in the end, was London. Their rights had to be fought at the heart of the Empire, and most frequently in Parliament itself.

That was why the Guild was centred in the metropolis, in order all the better to do its necessary and benficent work. He concluded a closely-reasoned address, which was followed with the utmost attention, by exhorting those present to join the Guild, and so help to strengthen the work of showman trade defence, and to preserve to the people of their busy Empire the open-air amusements of their popular fairs. (Great and continued applause.)

Mr. William Hancock's Speech.

As one of the oldest showmen on the Western circuit Mr. Hancock begged leave to speak a few words after their reverend friend, whose speech he endorsed most heartily. He especially wished to emphasise what had been said with regard to the necessity of trade defence in order to deal with the growing exactions of Corporations and other public bodies. What more glaring instance could they have than the fair they were now attending? Forty years ago, the biggest show or menagerie attending paid only 30s. for ground rent for Penzance Fair; roundabouts, £1; shooting-games and side-shows, about 10s.; stalls, 1s. 6d. or 1s. a day. Now they exacted £16 to £18 for a big show, £10 to £18 for a machine, £2 for a shooting-gallery or throwing game, and small things on the same exorbitant scale. What were they to do? Why, the answer was for them all to join together and to ask for equitable and reasonable tollage—tolls that would leave a fair return for their labour and capital sunk in their business. (Applause.) He, for his part, would do all he could to help in the matter, whether it were done by the Guild or by active union amongst West Country showmen themselves, with the power of the Guild to back them. His firm would most certainly renew their subscription to the Guild funds.

Captain Rowland's Speech.

The object before them was quite clear. They had to support the Guild and its protective work. He and his partner would set the ball rolling by subscribing 3 guineas. (Applause.) Let every proprietor and every stall-holder join the society, and then its good work would go forward. With increase of funds there would be increased efficiency. He felt deeply grateful to Mr. Horne for all the noble work he had done for them; also to Mr. Norton, whom all Western showpeople respected and highly valued. He concluded by calling upon those present to join the society.

A conference then took place on the question of ground rent at Penzance, Messrs. Hancock, Jones, Rowland, Lawrence and others taking part in the discussion, and a petition to the Corporation was formulated asking for more reasonable tolls at the next fair.

The Guild Service.

Hundreds of people were turned away unable to gain admission to Anderton and Rowland's theatre at the Showmen's Evensong at the fair. The Vicar of Penzance and his choir boys took part in the service. The Vicar of St. John's (the parish church of the fairground) was also present, and amongst the congregation were the Mayor, the Mayoress, and party. The Rev. T. Horne preached an impressive sermon on the story of "Dives and Lazarus," the Holy Gospel of the day.

From every point of view a remarkable success resulted from the first work of the Guild at Penzance Fair.

WEST BROMWICH fancy fair took place on the old Albion football ground, and consisted of P. Collins's No. 3 motors and racing cockerels, also the slipping-the-slip; Mrs. J. Hayes's swings, overboats, and big boat; S. Dobson's juvenile horses; Sagar's palace of delight and animated photography; Mander's star menagerie; Stokes and Scarf with Aunt Sallies; Whyatt's shooting saloon; and cocoanuts by Hayes, Wagstaffe, Whyatt, Humphries, and Price; the whole doing record business considering the bad weather.

A PATENT has been granted in London to an inventor in Victoria (N.S.W.) for an aquatic roundabout, which consists of submergible torpedo-shaped boats, with transparent sides, which are to revolve in a tank of water, ascending and descending as they revolve.

THE Agricultural Hall at Canterbury has been occupied since Wednesday by Purchase's world famed menagerie.

THE bioscope pictures, including many interesting and beautiful films, are still a source of great attraction at the Prince's, Poplar, where record business is being done. The general-manager, Mr. C. Melville Lurring, is to be congratulated upon the remarkable success of his efforts.

PENZANCE FAIR.
A MEDIÆVAL FESTIVAL IN AN OLD-WORLD SETTING.

"Apples of silver,
In a golden frame."

Such is Penzance Fair at Corpus Christi-tide. The Cornishman of to-day may know next to nothing about the origin of the Fair, nor care to recall those wonderful days in the olden time when the winding and zig-zag streets of their picturesque town were thronged with thousands of devout sightseers, come to Penzance to take their part reverently in the glorious procession of the Blessed Sacrament. The fine old church of St. Mary was then but a chapel, served by the monks of St. Buryan, the minster abbey and the mother-church of the Land's End.

We many well picture the moving panorama of life in the Middle Ages, the procession and adoration of Corpus Christi, as it made its way along the principal streets of the town, starting from church, and back again to church—the white-robed choristers chanting "Pange Lingua":—

"Now my tongue, the mystery telling,
Of the Glorious Body sing,
And the Blood, all price excelling,
Which the Gentiles' Lord and King,
In a Virgin's womb once dwelling,
Shed for this world's ransoming."

How the lusty monks—the miners and the fishers of those days—would take up the song as the majestic shrine on which the sacrament was carried, shoulder high, by priests and acolytes, wended its stately way in solemn pageant. Beneath the baldachino of the moving shrine the sacrament was carried for the adoration of the attendant throng, the bishops, the abbot, the monks and clergy in the rich robes of their several degrees and place in the hierarchy of the Church, the guilds and guildsmen, and women in the garb and regalia of their trade and craft. Music, song, and joy of colour—such was the religious pageantry of Corpus Christi in the olden time.

To-day there is no procession through the streets; but at St. Mary's Church—the link with the glorious past is still unbroken—"Pange Lingua" was sung as the white-robed choir, led by cross-bearer, moved to its glorious music in stately dignity through the aisle to the sanctuary and choir stalls—a symbolic joyance of colour, music, and odour of sweet incense. Such is still, in these days of scepticism, of materialism, and religious upheaval, the Feast of the Blessed Sacrament at Penzance at Corpus Christi. In that we had our part and lot, and rejoiced that to-day the olden-time pageant is still expressed, still lived in modern mode and life. The Church side of the festival, as regards its open-air celebration, has not endured; but the secular side of Corpus Christi has survived the wear and tear of the ages. The old charter pleasure fair begins always on Corpus Christi day (the Thursday after Trinity Sunday), and lasts three days. The crowds come into Penzance to keep the feast. The continuity of the people's pleasure fair has never been broken.

With the People at the Fair.

Speeding on from Plymouth to Penzance, through the Cornish Riviera, we were soon told that Penzance Fair was the goal of the throng of people that boarded our train. From Redruth downward to Penzance the stations were crowded by eager men, women, and children, all bound for the fair. Speedily we were packed like pilchards in a barrel, such a merry, joyous pack, such bursting vigour of young life, willing to stand—yes, willing to cling like flies to the carriage roof—that they might reach the fair, and save the awful wait of twenty minutes for the next train. "No. Wait twenty minutes at the dull everyday station, when at Penzance is the fair. Not us'en. We'm bound for Corpus Christi Fair, and we'm agoin' by thicky train." So cheerfully shouted every "Jan" and every "Mary" as they invaded and possessed every inch of standing room. When at length the train reached the end of its journey, and it was emptied of its living freight, what an invasion it was. The station, the streets—crowded—crowded. Oh, the perspiring eagerness of that throng, the rushing pilgrimage to the fairground of that jocund multitude. Who is going to abolish a fair in Cornwall? If any would-be despoiler of the people's fairs contemplates such an adventure, we advise him to pause and consider well the love of the people for their ancient fairs and open-air holiday times. We bid such mistaken zealot remember:—

"Sixty thousand Cornishmen
Will know the reason why."

An Olden Fair in Modern Panoply.

It is a charter fair, and the Corporation of Penzance wisely determine to provide a suitable site. The venue of the fair has been changed four times within the last forty years. Mr. Wm. Hancock, the senior partner in the well-known West of England showman firm, W. C. and S. Hancock, well remembers the changes in the site during that period. It is now held on the recreation ground—in every way an admirable fair-ground. The shows, &c., are arranged in the great quadrangle of the ground, machines one side, shows another side, shooting concerns and throwing games on a third side, and the fourth side is broken up to afford the necessary entrance avenues and commodious exits. Facing the entrance avenue at the top side of the square were the magnificent cinematograph theatres of W. C. and S. Hancock and Anderton and Rowland, and with them the celebrated West of England show, Jones's Theatre of Vaudeville and Animated Photography. Next, in order of position, were, Alf. Wright's Cornish boxing booth, Lawrence's bijou marionette theatre, and "Beautiful Amelia," the giant lady.

Hancocks' Exhibits.

First in order of merit and importance was the show, a superb example of the best kind of cinematography and varieties. The inside performance, amongst the very best of its kind, and the outside parade and the illuminated front (glorious in thousands of many-coloured electric lamps) made it a great centre of attraction and delight to thousands of eager patrons. The motor-car track, the four-abreast gallopers, and the helter-skelter, were the machine exhibits of the firm, and all maintained the high reputation of these well-known caterers of amusements.

Anderton and Rowland's Exhibits.

The magnificent Coliseum of Varieties and Living Pictures was, like its neighbour, the Hancocks' show, deservedly popular, and crowded at every performance. It is but scant praise to say that these enterprising showmen are up-to-date; Messrs. Anderton and Rowland are more than that, they are in advance of to-day, and quite ready for to-morrow. A splendid show inside and out, a capital company of variety artists, good on the outside parade and on the stage within, a thoroughly up-to-date range of high-class films—these things manifest the business enterprise of its proprietors, and the secret of their abounding success. The other exhibit of this firm was the fine set of Venetian gondolas, "Venice at the Fair."

John Jones's Exhibits.

The vaudeville theatre and cinematograph, in which the members of the clever Jones family take the chief part. The excellent programme of variety turns included J. Leslie, comedian, Saldo, the youthful Sandow, winsome and lightsome Sophie Jones, the champion child dancer of the West, and Misses Jones, dancers and vocalists. The pictures were described and the variety items introduced by Mr. John Jones, the inimitable raconteur, descriptive lecturer, and proprietor of the show. The other concerns under Mr. Jones's banner included shooting galleries and throwing games.

Side Shows and Shooters.

There was Lawrence's marionette theatre, a gem exhibition, outside and in, a show that would be welcome on every fair-ground in the country. The miniature stage, the fantocina, and the marionette pantomime were all delightful, and worked as only expert figure workers, like the Lawrence family, can work them. Alf. Wright and school of boxers gave challenge to the brawn and thews of Cornwall to enter the ring in friendly bout with the scientists of fistiana" within. "Beautiful Amelia," the marvel of adipose tissue, yet withal lissome, graceful, and charming of figure, was the object of wonder and admiration to crowds of sightseers. Mrs. Lock, Mr. Hurford, Mr. Oldridge, and Mr. A. Jones provided excellent shooting ranges for the expert and amateur marksmen of Penzance.

Other Machine Novelties.

One side of the fair-ground was fully occupied by the riding machines. Amongst those not already noticed were the machines of Brewers and Sons and Chas. Heal, with splendid electrical plant and orchestraphones, motor-cars, flying motors, galloping horses, and birds; the big wheel and manual swings of Chapman, and gem sets by other caterers.

Throwing Games, Variety Stalls, &c.

Rowland's stalls, Hamlyn's stalls, Cribb's photo booth, Antonio's stalls, and throwing games, strikers, and all the fun of the fair, by Messrs. Hurford, Lock, Jones, Rowland, jun., Chapman, Oldridge, and others.

From Penzance, the bulk of the concerns go to Falmouth, but we understand that Messrs. Anderton and Rowland take a short season of private business at Newquay.

South Wales Notes.

MR. JOHN JOHNSON, Barry Dock, judging by record houses, has certainly endeared himself to the local people. His generosity to local charities and "helping the lame dog over the style" is the success of his popularity. "Electric light throughout."

MESSRS. JOHNSON BROS., at Brynmawr, are having a successful season. James Day is at Aberavon with Mollie's striker and cokers.

IN an interview with Mr. John Studt in connection with the following cutting from the Western Mail of May 31, he intends going through with the matter, as he is on the right side of the hedge, so to speak :—

Curious Contretemps at the Treorky Fair.

THE Treorky annual fair is a well-patronised fixture, and, as usual, on these occasions, Mr. John Studt's concern forms the chief attraction apart from other features; but this week there has been brought about a curious and disconcerting contretemps. It appears that Mr. Studt, the well-known showman, had made arrangements for the use of a waste piece of ground used for tipping purposes by the District Council, near the Tynybedw Siding, the Rhondda River having here been diverted from its original bed for the purpose, and had rented it from the Bute Estate, the owners of the property. After some preliminary work in the direction of levelling the ground, Mr. Studt brought to the spot the paraphernalia of his show, the whole weighing about 120 tons. Now, however, it transpires that the Ocean Coal Co. are sub-lessees of the plot, and have consequently served Mr. Studt, whom they allege to be a trespasser, with peremptory notice to quit, although the fair, which this year is proving an unprecedented success, is fixed to last till Tuesday next. Surveyors are now on the scene, but Mr. Studt sticks to his post, and expresses his determination to remain there until next Tuesday, when his period of tenency expires, and developments are now being awaited with considerable local interest, as the fair mainly depends upon Mr. Studt being allowed to continue in possession.

TO-DAY John Scot's Royal Circus opens at Whit stable.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, APRIL 30. — Brigadier Gerard is Mr. J. C. Williamson's newest bill at the Theatre Royal, and Mr. Julius Knight makes the Gascon braggart and swashbuckler a hero full of finesse and courage. Mr. Harry Plimmer brings Major Ollivier into noteworthy prominence; and Mr. Hubert Willis gives a capital character-study of Napoleon. The wily, chuckling diplomat, Talleyrand, falls to Mr. Leslie Victor, who does his best with him. Miss Marion Grey appears as the Comtesse; whilst Miss Dorothy Sydney fills all the requirements of the maid, Agnes. The play is capitally mounted, scened, and costumed, and as all stories dealing with Napoleon are popular her, the performance was warmly applauded.

"WHAT WOULD A GENTLEMAN DO?" finds the Brough-Flemming Comedy Company all at their very best: a judiciously-apportioned cast and conscientious acting is the rule wherever Mr. Herbert Flemming is directing. Mr. Gregan McMahon makes the hit of his career as Dickie Hood. Miss Beatrice Day is always good, and her Dolly Banter adds another high-class portrait to her gallery. Miss Bessie Major, whom we are too soon to lose, makes Agatha just the author's Agatha. Miss Kate Gair (Lady Nora Harvey), Miss Gordon Lee (Madge Kederby), Mr. Edgar Payne (Colonel Sir Bruce Kederby), Mr. Norman McKeown (Geoffrey Seaton), Mr. Carter Pickford (Sir Christopher Wynne), and Mr. John F. Forde (Sergeant Rodd), were all excellent. Mr. Harry Whaite painted the scenery, and was "called" for it. In Honour Bound preceded the comedy, and in the one-act play Mr. Herbert Flemming, Miss Beatrice Day, Miss Gordon Lee, and Mr. Carter Pickford sustained their old rôles with usual skill.

"MOTHER GOOSE" keeps Mr. J. C. Williamson's patrons at Her Majesty's busy and boisterous. There seems to be no sort of prospect of a falling-off in anything, and the run threatens to break the Melbourne record of thirteen weeks.

THE Tivoli habitués greet Amiel with enthusiasm at every performance. His marvellous contortions are so graceful and devoid of the shudder-provoking element that the theatre is filled with people belonging to the best circles of society. Charlene and Charlene, Fred Bluett, Master Joseph Dewhurst, and others never fail to please. King and Benson appear in a new sketch, The Newsboy's Courtship, in which the lady uses the Yorkshire dialect to perfection. Miss Bijou Russell, the latest arrival, has captured the public with her coon songs.

THE Empire operators will be busy at Olympia next week securing pictures of the Horse Show. Excellent new films of the famous Weybridge Motor Track have been obtained, and, later, pictures of the Richmond Show will be presented. The Empire has secured exclusive rights in these two latter films.

MR. FRED KARNO will produce at the Canterbury, on Monday, the 17th inst., with a special company, a new and original sketch, entitled London Suburbia.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, MAY 8.—Mme. Alla Nazimova has scored an emphatic success at the Bijou Theatre in a three-act comedy from the Italian of Robert Bracco, called Comtesse Coquette. The piece was translated by Dirce St. Cyr and Grace Isabel Colbron, and was produced by Mr. Henry Miller. Comte Silvio and Comtesse Nina have a perfect understanding as husband and wife. She is a noted flirt, and he is to permit her to keep her men friends without displaying any jealousy, having declared that his faith in her is so great that he will never question her actions. Then the Comtesse meets Gino Riccardi, and he taunts her about her honour, daring her to let herself be tempted. She is amused at the man's complacency and self-conceit, and when he declares that she would never dare to trust herself to him alone, in his apartment, where he could bring all his wiles to bear upon her, she laughs and accepts his challenge. She will be at his rooms at two o'clock on the following afternoon. The next act finds Gino laying his net in his studio. On the writing-desk lies a poem which he has just dedicated to her. Hearing footsteps, he sits down at the piano and sings a love song to her. When he turns round he finds to his dismay that instead of Nina it is Silvio, her husband. Gino gets rid of him, and Nina arrives, perfectly cool and charming. She objects to the metre of his poem, criticises his pictures, and finds fault with him in general. Then, removing her cloak, she seats herself, exclaiming demurely: "Here I am. Now tempt me." Gino is nonplussed, and before he can make any progress in his love-making, Nina strolls to the window and discovers that her husband is watching the house from across the street. Gino sees his chance at last. He offers her the key of a side door through which she can make her escape unseen; but she must pay for it with a kiss. Nina scorns him, however, and walking to the window calls to her husband to come up. He enters, believing the worst of her, and they leave together. The third act, several weeks later, takes place in her boudoir. She and her husband are not on speaking terms, and she has written Gino to come and see her. Before Gino arrives, however, Silvio presents himself, and begs for a reconciliation, declaring that he does not care what she has done, he is willing to forgive her. But Nina tells him that his distrust has killed all her love for him as her husband. Then, to add to his despair, she tells him that she has at last found a lover whom she adores. Silvio demands his name, and leaning over to him with a laugh, she whispers "You!" She explains that, after mature reflection, she has discovered that while he has proved a failure as a husband, he will be a huge success as a lover. Gino is announced. Husband and wife run into the bedroom and close the door. Gino titivates himself before Nina's mirror, nonchantly removes his gloves, and hums a tune. Nina and Silvio open the door and peep at him. He hears their tittering, understands, takes his hat, and tiptoes from the room, followed by peals of laughter. Mme. Nazimova, as the Comtesse, acts the part in a most engaging manner, and is ably supported by Messrs. Guy Standing, Arthur Forrest, and Ernest Elton.

NEW YORK, MAY 15.—The Primrose Path, a drama in four acts, by Bayard Veiller, was produced at the Majestic Theatre on the 6th inst. The play is based to some extent on a novel by Lucas Malet, entitled "The Wages of Sin," and was written for the author's wife, Miss Margaret Wycherley, who appeared as the heroine, Joan Treghenna, and made a very favourable impression. There are four scenes, the first being laid in Paris, and the other three in New York. Ned Templeton, a talented young American artist, is lying ill with brain fever in a poverty-stricken garret in the Latin Quarter. Joan, a young Devonshire girl, has been living with him for some months, and her love for him is so great that when it becomes absolutely necessary to obtain money with which to purchase food and medicine for the delirious man, and the landlord refuses to wait more than a few hours for the rent, she betakes herself to the streets, where for the time being she becomes a prostitute. Templeton recovers, thanks to the girl's sacrifice, and is led to believe that the funds came in a letter from Joan's father. In the second act the two are living in New York. Templeton's picture, "The Primrose Path," for which Joan has posed, has attracted the attention of James Cartwright, a millionaire, who has purchased it for $5000, has presented it to the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts, and has given the young artist commissions which will bring him fame and fortune. Cartwright has a daughter, Helen, the sole heiress to his fortune. Whilst Templeton is spending three weeks at the Cartwright country seat painting the millionaire's portrait the two young persons fall in love, and when Ned returns to Joan, flushed with success and with plenty of money in his pocket, he tells her that they must part.

Joan, when she realises that she is to be cast off by the man she has loved and worse than died for, resolves to tell her great secret to any woman who ever attempts to marry her Ned. This opportunity comes in the third act, in the life class of an art school endowed by Cartwright, whose daughter, Helen, is a member of the school. Joan has not seen Ned for months, and has gone back to her old life of a model, while Ned has that very morning been installed as the director of the school. His engagement to Helen Cartwright has just been announced, and while he is out of the room the new model, Joan, has mounted the platform when Templeton returns. Hurriedly dismissing the young ladies of the class, he has a stormy interview with her, and during his absence Helen enters the class room. Templeton returns again in time to hear his former mistress tell his fiancée the story of how she saved his life. This is the great scene of the play, and it was acted by Miss Wycherley in a very effective manner.

In the last act Ned and Joan are together again. They call on Miss Cartwright almost simultaneously, and Joan hears Ned tell Helen that he loves her, and that while he must continue to live with the woman who has sacrificed herself for him his existence has become unbearable. Then Joan steps between the two. She has seen a new light. She is going back to Devonshire, back to her own people. There is something more for a woman to do than to love a man who is unworthy of her devotion. So she bids them both good-bye and passes out into the night alone.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

Last Saturday, June 1, Wagner's opera, Der fliegende Holländer, was given for the first time this season, and in spite of the dismal weather a large audience, headed by the King and Queen, were present. The cast on Saturday was, in many respects, excellent, Mme. Destinn displaying the romantic as well as the dramatic side of Senta's character. Mme. Destinn sang the music with great expression, being particularly happy in her rendering of Senta's ballad. As the Dutchman, Herr van Rooy's fine acting and singing made a deep impression, and the great duet between Senta and the Hollander was beautifully sung. Mr. Griswold, who has been trained at the Royal College of Music, proved an excellent Daland; while Herr Knote acted and sang with great intelligence in the part of Eric, Senta's lover, and the music of the Steersman was capitally sung by Herr Neitan. Mme. Tolli, in the character of Mary, completed the cast. The opera was picturesquely mounted, and the chorus singing admirable. The stage management and scenic effects were most effective, and the orchestral playing, under Dr. Richter, was simply perfect.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual for 1907 is up to its usual standard—in fact, it is, if possible, smarter than ever. There is an excellent budget of articles from the pens of Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Cicely Richards, Miss Pollie Emery, Messrs. Frank Cooper, Arthur Collins, Charles Collette, Frank Curzon, Edward German, Cliff Ryland, and many others. The illustrated obituary, the alphabetical list of plays produced in London and the provinces, and all the other valuable features of the Annual are as complete as ever, and make this handbook extremely useful not only to members of the profession, but to the infinitely wider circle interested directly or indirectly in the drama.—Whitehall Review.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
A welcome friend, with many old features as good as new, and with a selection of contributions in story form by theatrical celebrities.—Evening Standard and St. James's Gazette, Jan. 24, 1907.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

THE LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD.

THE ALGERIAN'S REVENGE.

Code Word, CLIENTELE.

Delightful scene. A white terrace, on it a couch with a veiled lady; by her side a French officer. Evidently these two are lovers. An Arab chief is mad with jealousy, and swears to have his revenge. There is a war going on; the Algerian lady sees Arabs passing by with heads on their bayonets. In fear she goes to the camp of the Arab chief, and finds him about to kill her lover. Fortunately, she is able to step in and kill the chief before any harm is done to her lover. Simply delightful, giving a splendid idea of life in this country.

626ft. The Subject, £10 8s. 8d.

ERRAND BOY WANTED.

Code Word, CLAMPIN.

A young boy, seeing the above notice, applies for the post, and, having obtained same, sets off on his carrier-bicycle. Many and divers are the adventures which follow, causing much fun and amusement.

248ft. The Subject, £4 2s. 8d.

OUT FOR A WALK.

Code Word, CHOCOLAT.

This is a most entertaining film. Who has not been for a walk with a person who goes too quickly for you? The lady in this story undergoes no end of experiences in trying to catch up with her husband.

314ft. The Subject, £5 4s. 8d.

MADAM'S TANTRUMS.

Code Word, CHOUETTE.

A wife who gets up in a temper. She throws things about; nobody is safe. The friend who comes to visit, the servants, etc.—all are victims of her moods.

248ft. The Subject, £4 2s. 8d.

A SLAVE'S LOVE.

Code Word, CAMEE.

Charming scene in Athens. The story of a jealous wife and a devoted slave. This is an exceptionally fine film, the subject is full of interest, the staging excellent, and the colouring simply wonderful.

692ft. The Subject, £11 10s. 8d. Colouring, £6 12s.

A CHARMED UMBRELLA.

Code Word, CAMELIA.

A charmed umbrella comes out of a box, and each time it is lowered a beautiful picture is presented. A Turkish harem. Choruses. Chinese, etc.

297ft. The Subject, £4 19s. Colouring, £2 3s. 6d.

A JEALOUS WOMAN.

Code Word, CALIBRE.

A jealous wife, seeing her husband buy a bunch of flowers, evidently not for her, follows him to his destination, and there lets him have a piece of her mind; so much so indeed that help is necessary, and his little adventure has cost him dear. Very amusing.

248ft. The Subject, £4 2s. 8d.

THE STRUGGLE FOR LIFE.

Code Word, CIGOGNE.

A most exciting story, which grows in interest at every scene and incident. A man is refused work, and utterly broken-hearted tramps on. On the way he sees a scarecrow, divests it of its clothing, puts it on to cover his own threadbare garments. He arrives at a big city; sleeps on the Embankment. Gets his first job running after a cab laden with luggage. Then buys papers; sells them; makes a living; finds a purse containing value; takes it to its owner, who gives him work in his office. He rises to a good position. There is a fire at his employer's house; he saves his daughter, and is finally rewarded with her hand. The story is perfectly carried through. Every episode is more enthralling than the last.

990ft. The Subject, £16 10s. Colouring extra

POOR DOLLY.

Code Word, CIGALE.

A charming picture of children's simplicity. Father brings them some toys. The little boy cuts off the head of a dolly. There is a funeral, to which the other children are invited to witness the obsequies and burial of the doll. Very beautiful quality, and its tender home touch will appeal to all.

248ft. The Subject, £4 2s. 8d.

A MAN OF STRAW.

Code Word, PAILLE.

A resourceful but hungry man is compelled to think of some ruse to satisfy his hunger and thirst. He takes a dummy from outside a shop, and with this he begins. The different experiences he goes through with this absurd figure are screamingly funny. He gets some money and a good dinner; but was it worth it? The film will tell you.

480ft. The Subject, £7 18s. 4d.

A DRUNKARD WILL DRINK.

Code Word, CHLORAL.

Our friend in this film makes up his mind never to drink again, but he meets some old "pals." Well, what can you expect? He enters an—shall we say?—"inn," and comes out—well, never mind how he comes out. Next day he takes his wife to a Cinematograph Show. Madam is delighted, as well she might be, for it is "Pathé's" Show, until she comes to the part where they show the doings of her husband the night before. Tableau!

428ft. The Subject, £7 2s. 8d.

THE POLICE DOGS OF PARIS.

Code Word, CLEMENCE.

A wonderful picture showing the dogs at work tracking criminals. Through streets, country, over the river, they go, finally bringing down their prey in a garret. A remarkable exhibition of what training and a natural instinct for hunting can do.

824ft. The Subject, £13 14s. 8d.

JIM'S APPRENTICESHIPS.

Code Word, CAP.

A father puts his boy to be apprenticed to all kinds of trades—hatter, grocer, hairdresser, pastrycook, inn-keeper, etc.—with much the same result at each, that is to say, most unsatisfactory, until he comes to the latter, which seems, indeed, to be his vocation. Awfully comical.

676ft. The Subject, £11 5s. 4d. Colouring, 6s. 6d.

The Stolen Pig.

COPYRIGHT 1907 BY THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA.

A NEW, NOVEL, AND ORIGINAL COMIC.

An old darkey steals a pig—Pig escapes out of bag—Farmer chases darkey—Darkey chases pig—Lots of screaming fun—Darkey gets home, puts pig in cradle, and is calmly "rocking the baby to sleep" when the pursuers arrive. Not being able to find the pig, they go away, and Rastus and his mammy have plenty of young tender pork to eat.

Length 450ft. Price £7 10s.

A SQUARE DEAL; or, THE END OF THE "BAD MAN."

Copyright 1907 by The Vitagraph Co. of America.

A sequel to our recent success "The Bad Man of the West." It is a "Western Classic," dealing with the love of fair play and honour that prevails in the hearts of the rough Western miners and cowboys. Length 425ft. Price £7 1s. 8d.

THE FLAT DWELLERS.

Re-posed on account of great demand and wearing out of the negative. Better than ever. Funnier than before. Length 400ft. Price £6 18s. 4d.

THE HERO.

Daring rescue of a little child from the dizzy height of a top-storey window. The "hero" climbs up an iron leader pipe on the corner of the building. Flames and smoke are pouring from every window. The crowd watches in spellbound, tense excitement. The climax is thrilling. Length 250ft. Price £4 3s. 4d.

THE PIRATES' TREASURE; A SAILOR'S LOVE STORY.

Copyright 1907 by The Vitagraph Co. of America.

The sailor boy and his sweetheart meet at their trysting place. The betrothal. Girl's father forbids the marriage and locks her in her room. She escapes and runs away with her sailor boy. The marriage. Two years later. In poverty. The sailor's dream of Captain Kidd. Search for and discovery of the treasure. Reconciliation with father and happy ending. A novel and charming subject. Length 715ft. Price £11 18s. 4d.

ON THE STAGE.

A burlesque melodrama from the Bowery in five acts and thirty-six scenes. One of those thrilling scenic productions. The hero. The heroine. The villain. The adventuress. The human chain across the roaring waterfall. Length 715ft. Price £11 18s 4d.

AMATEUR NIGHT; or, "GET THE HOOK."

Copyright 1907 by The Vitagraph Co. of America.

A positive scream from start to finish. A "hit" in more ways than one. The "Amateurs" get "hit" with brickbats, cabbages, tin cans and various other bouquets. An up-to-date skit on the popular vaudeville fad. Length 390ft. Price £6 10s.

LATEST TOP LINERS.

Code Word. PINKERTON.

TRICKED BY PINKERTONS'.

This is an exciting film, and it will grip your audiences from beginning to end. It tells of two daring thieves, one of whom masquerades as a Bank Manager, made up exactly as the original. They cause the real Manager to sign a cheque, then, by aid of the disguise, present it and get the cash. But "Pinkertons'," the detectives, are on their track, and, by means of a clever "fake" article in a paper, induce them to break into another place, where they are caught redhanded.

750ft. £18 15s. (less 33⅓%).

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE. — NEW THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—This week Mr. Neville Claude's company presents The Priest of the Temple. Mr. Walter H. Wilson is a decided success as Valerius; Mr. Arthur Knight is a powerful Appius; Mr. Arthur L. Reed a cynical Decius; Mr. Clem Horlock as Hermanus acts with much force; Mr. Vernon Cockburn is a quaint Albertius; Miss Flora Leslie an excellent Præstantia; and Miss Gipsy Alexander an effective Polita.

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Nell Gwynne is played this week to large houses. Miss Hilda Shirley takes the title-part with much power and winsome grace; Miss M. Fawcett appears to advantage as the Duchess of Portsmouth; and among the other members of the company who appear with distinction are Mr. Ernest Nelson as the tragedian of the King's playhouse, Mr. Owen as Lord Rochester, Mr. Hilliard Vox as Roland Graeme, and Miss Millie Maynard as Abigail.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The turn of the versatile Bensons is brilliantly successful; and another thoroughly enjoyable entertainment is provided by Hector and Sullivan. The Belle of Arizona, a sprightly sketch, is vivaciously played by Miss Emmie Milstead and Mr. Joe Belle; Mr. Percy Curry makes a hit with his amusing songs; Mr. W. E. Hilton is both skilful and amusing as a ventriloquist; Mr. Charles Banks, comedian, and his celebrated dog, Woof, are heartily applauded; Miss Patta Bella is a piquant comedienne; Miss Claire Gretta is charming alike as a Spanish singer and dancer; and the Fordyces are also well received. The Bioscope gives an amusing display.

ACCRINGTON. — PRINCE'S. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—The Three Musketeers is being presented here. Miss Mabel Mannering acquits herself with great credit in the rôle of Miladi de Winter; Miss Gladys Lloyd admirably portrays Anne of Austria; Miss Violet Temple is an effective Mme. Vermont; the part of Raoul d'Artagnan is splendidly interpreted by Mr. Gerald Heather; Mr. J. G. Maine leaves nothing to be desired as the Cardinal; Mr. Louis Edmond is a capital exponent of the King; Mr. A. D. Layland well sustains the Duke of Buckingham; Mr. Allan Carruthers submits a capital performance as Mosqueton.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Director, Mr. F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Parsons.—The chief attraction is Mr. Fred Karno's company, in Mumming Birds and Early Birds. The remainder of the bill comprises Harry Thorp and company, Dan Hendy, J. C. Crawley, Louis Hardt, Bros. Durrant, Cim Maree, and the Bioscope.

ALDERSHOT.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Galdwin.—Aldershot Theatre has temporarily been converted into a Hippodrome, with favourable results. The honours of the evening are shared by Messrs. J. A. Bentham and Harry Scott in a dramatic military episode, and the Three Delaries in a gymnastic act. Miss Joan Deering's dainty singing and playing obtain an enthusiastic reception. The Le Cren Trio are humorous acrobatic dancers; The Missing Will is an American vaudeville that gives opportunity for smart dialogue; Daisy Read, comedienne and speciality dancer, and the Olympian troupe of lady dancers and vocalists find favour. Fred Lester uses a tuneful baritone voice to advantage in comic song and ballad. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope gives great amusement.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The Woman from Scotland Yard is played here. Miss Chrissie Dunbar as the lady detective, Edith Mayne, acts with a fine sense of what is required in assuming the rôle of an officer of the law; Mr. Alex. C. Grant is the impersonation of coolness and deliberation, courage and effrontery; Mr. Geo. E. Clive, a vigorous interpreter of a brave Englishman; Mr. J. L. Schofield does good work as a Nihilist; Mr. Walter Clarke merits praise for his portrayal of a dude, who claims to be the legitimate husband of Lady Stanhope; Mr. Robt. Cromwell as a coast-guardsman is responsible for much of the humour introduced; and with him must be linked Miss Sidney Barrisford, the sweetheart, who is equally responsible for the undercurrent of comic absurdity. Miss Emily Money as Lady Stanhope has a difficult part to interpret, and she manages by judicious treatment of delicate situations to merit much sympathy, notwithstanding her compromising position and tacit admission of guilt as a bigamist and an accomplice in a more heinous crime.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—Mr. Alf. Ripon takes the boards with his doll, the "Komik Skot," a very clever ventriloquial act of patter and song; Mme. Sims Reeves revives recollections of the famous tenor by giving from his great répertoire of songs some of the well-known ballads; the Three Sisters Edwardes, assisted by Larry, their father, and old soldier of Kandahar March fame, introduce the pathetic military scena, The Dying Soldier; favourite comedy artists are Bert and Dora; and the Danbys (Charles and Arthur) are expert singing and dancing comedians. Really funny and clever is the juggling act of Olms and Carbeth; the Jiu-Jitsu Troupe demonstrate the art of self-defence; J. H. Darnley and company appear very successfully in the farcical playlet, What a Night; and Bioscope pictures conclude a good programme.

SANGER'S ROYAL CIRCUS.—Proprietors, Lord John Sanger and Sons, Ltd.—A brief visit was paid to Ashton by the unique travelling combination of circus and menagerie. The show requires big space, and located themselves on the Volunteer Field, where two grand exhibitions were given, afternoon and evening. The programme was of the best in equestrianism, acrobatic, gymnastic, zoological, scientific, fourteen separate turns of artists, educated horses and trick ponies, elephants, &c.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chris A. Wordsworth.—Illustrated songs by Miss Nellie Burke, and an interesting selection of pictures, continue to attract crowded houses here.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. E. Owen.—The Four Rosaires, triple-bar comedians and acrobats, provide a turn of much merit; Miss Mignonette Kokin is a charming and vivacious comedienne, and her dancing is clever; the Saletos, in their graceful head and hand balancing act, are accorded a hearty reception; much amusement is caused by the antics of Galetti's Monkey Comedians; an interesting film is presented by Mr. Clayton on the Attergraph; a pleasing item is the performance of Luigo Salvino, a clever juvenile instrumentalist; Miss Madge Norwood is a refined soubrette and dancer; and Fox and Melville prove popular in illustrated songs.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Miss Emma Litchfield's company in A Clever Impostor is here. The authoress herself plays excellently as Nora Grosvenor, and her delineations of Sarah Ellen, Old Rebecca, and Molly O'Flynn are equally pleasing. Mr. Stuart Cleveland is clever as Manual Teixeira; and Miss Maud Steeple as Margaret Grosvenor, Miss Isabel Singleton as Maisie Grosvenor, and Miss Florence Gorner as Annie Pleasant are each, in their several parts, very pleasing. Mr. Edward Swinton is a humorous Miss Brightside.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The popular comedian, Mr. Seymour Hicks, appeared here on Wednesday, together with Miss Zena Dare, supported by Mr. Stanley Brett, Mr. J. C. Buckstone, Mr. Laurence Caird, Mr. William Lugg, Miss Florence Lloyd, and full company in a triple bill, consisting of Papa's Wife, You and I, Scrooge, which delighted a crowded and enthusiastic audience.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The summer season of picture entertainments is proving a gratifying success, the firm of Raymond quite upholding their high reputation. An additional draw is the series of illustrated songs given by The Lovelaces, which are highly appreciated.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Mr. Lawson Howes.—The Creoles, a sextet of variety entertainers, commenced an engagement here on Monday, in a bright and varied programme, which has been well received.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Variety holds sway here this week, Kennedy's Komiks, clever and jovial pierrots, occupying the boards. Nat Abbatt is a capital instrumentalist in clown's garb; the Cedrics contribute a smart turn, and are well received; Miss Mollie Revell is a capital lady baritone, and Mr. Clarence Turner creates roars of laughter with his songs. Mr. Victor Verney gains much applause for his whistling solos, and Miss Ella Verne is a clever burlesque serio; the Ver-Vains are two extraordinary coon experts; and Miss Queenie Vane dances well, and also sings a good song. A fine display of animated pictures conclude the show.

BELFAST. — PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Mr. Arthur Roberts, supported by his company, tops the bill here with The Woman Who Was. A welcome return visit is being paid by Miss Florrie Gallimore, the delightful comedienne, whose catchy chorus songs have been loudly encored. Mr. Dan Thomas, a big favourite here, has been as successful as ever; and the farmyard imitations of Mr. Harry Carsdale are certainly most realistic. Miss Josie Delaine has been accorded a good reception, as has Miss Lilian Victoria, a comedienne of exceeding merit. The bill is completed by Cribb and Cribb, comedians, Vera Mayne, Canard, and the Palace pictures.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—John Tiller's company tops the bill here with High Jinks; or, Fun on the Sands. The Silver Tone Quartette delight all with their harmonious items; the cycling feats of the Auroras have created a sensation; the Three Sisters Tree delight all with their smart act, Hunting; and the capital comedy sketch, The Lancashire Lass, is presented by Zeta Grey and company. Mr. Fred Elton appears to advantage in the speciality scena, On Board an Ocean Liner; and Miss Elsa Brull and Mr. Arthur Hemsley, in their novel act, Fun in a Music Shop, take well. Others here are the Smarte Bros., novel eccentrics; and the new pictures by the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The star here this week is the famous comedian Mr. W. F. Frame, whose Scotch character songs are inimitably rendered. Roars of laughter greet the Karno Four, in their comedy sketch, The Dinner Hour. Much amazement has been caused also by the clever feats of the Lukushima Troupe; and the Boccaccio Minstrels, including Signor Francia, the famous mandoline soloist, are paying a welcome return visit. Messrs. Frank Bertram and company appear with success in The Chaperon; and the New Macs create much laughter. Mr. Herbert Rule is a good comedian; and also here are the Sisters Dorrell, duettists and dancers; and Miss Minna Merry, described as the "Female Robey."

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Sinclair Neill.—The Alhambra Dramatic company produce here this week the fine drama Her Wedding Day. The piece provides much scope for the abilities of Miss Nina Blake-Adams, who appears with great success in the rôle of Madge Conway. Mr. Horace Denton shares the honours by his clever interpretation of Harold Saxby; and Mr. Cyril Grier distinguishes himself by his able treatment of the arduous rôle of Seth Mayson. Mr. E. M. Heanley fairly earns the loud anathemas of pit and gallery by the realistic manner in which he portrays the villainies of Weedon Kenyon; Miss Kathleen Magee furnishes a skilful impersonation of Dora, alias Mme. Maurice; and much praise is due Mr. Tom H. Solly for his impersonation of Caccles. Mr. Elmore Frith is a capital Sam Klink; and Miss Mattie Crawford all that could possibly be desired as Dolly Klink. Miss Alice Clarke furnishes a capital impersonation of Mrs. Caccles; and Mr. Ed. Smythe's impersonation of Jordan P. Jessop has much to commend it. Mr. Tom H. Solly is, as usual, responsible for the stage-management. The Alhambra Bioscope, under the direction of Mr. W. E. Newlove, exhibits a fine series of pictures this week representing a burlesque melodrama from New York in five acts and thirty-six scenes.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—On Monday last Mr. Harry Starr's company opened in Otto the Outcast. Mr. Starr, a versatile artist, sustains the title-rôle with considerable ability; Mr. Edwin Firth gives a powerful rendering of Roderique D'Estalier; Daddy Bruneau is well impersonated by Mr. Wm. Miller; and Mr. Fred W. Graham gives a humorous performance of Augustine Carrotte. Miss Kate Norris displays considerable ability as Lara; and the remaining parts are adequately filled. Carl the Clockmaker has been produced later in the week.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Jack Lorimer, the popular Scotch comedian, is a leading member of an excellent company, which also includes Miss Peggy Pryde, Dutch Daly, Haverleys, American song illustrators; Dale and O'Malley, comedians; the Three Prestons, in The Liftman's Rise; Miss Rosa Loader, comedienne; Miss Kitty Kearns, comedienne; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BIRMINGHAM.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The Private Secretary reappears here with Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company, plus Mr. J. F. Graham, who, to the general delight, emerges as the unfortunate Rev. Robert Spalding. Mr. Graham's reappearance is obviously a gratification to his friends and admirers here; and, needless to say, Mr. W. Hargreaves' study of the corpulent and explosive Cattermole is highly popular. Mr. Jas. Hussey as Harry Marsland, Mr. Randolfe Reade as Douglas Cattermole, Mr. Vivian Gilbert as Gibson, and Mr. H. Sinclair as Mr. Marsland all prove eminently capable; and the ladies, led by Miss Dora Gray as Edith, make pleasant impressions. These include Mrs. Alfred Davis, Miss Hussey as Harry Marsland, Mr. Randolfe Reade as Douglas Cattermole, Mr. Vivian Gilbert as Gibson, and Mr. H. Sinclair as Mr. Marsland all prove eminently capable; and the ladies, led by Miss Dora Gray as Edith, make pleasant impressions. These include Mrs. Alfred Davis, Miss Cicely Wade, and Miss Mary E. Deverell. My American Admirer precedes this.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo.—A Gambler's Daughter makes a very successful appeal on its first engagement here. Miss Adria Hill, in the dual rôle of mother and daughter, displays talents of an undoubtedly high order, and her success is most deserved. Mr. Robert Ayrton as the emigrant, O'Dare, wins hearty cheers, his portrayal being a very telling one; Mr. Alfred Sanders as Solomons makes a typical money-grabber; Mr. Charles Yorke does full justice to the part of Stephen Brand; Mr. H. Barham embodies the characteristics of "the weasel," Capt. Stanhope, in a clever manner; Mr. Basil Mitchell is well qualified for the rôle of the son, Jack Grant; and Mr. Richard Pitt as John Grant (the father), Mr. Wilford Bailey as Ralph Gillman, Mr. Edward Hobart as Tom Brand, Miss Lizzie Gorden as Carmen Sancho, Miss Harriett Loydall as the faithful negress Auntie Zeb, and others are also very good.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Kennedy's Komiks supply the fare here, with Mr. Keane Harker, a refined burlesque comedian; Miss Florrie Wentworth, the Belle of New York favourite; Miss Dora Price, ballad vocalist; Miss Lily Skelt, of J. W. Turner's opera company; Mr. David Hallam, the refined interlocutor and entertainer; Mr. Albert Vince, the gallery favourite; Miss Dolly Vance, a clever and pleasing vocalist; and the Incemores, in their quaint marionette duet. The electric animated pictures are another great attraction; and the stage, representing Blackpool Tower, is illuminated with innumerable vari-coloured electric lights.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles. —His Dishonoured Wife, presented by Mr. Chas. H. Phelps, Mr. Harry Tilbury, and company is attracting excellent houses here, and much enthusiasm is evinced in the play. Mr. Phelps invests the rôle of the village blacksmith, Frank Lindon, with manly attributes that awaken much applause; Mr. Frank Harvey wins a hearty reception with his fine acting as Neil Locksey; Mr. A. Geo. Fry gives a clever exposition of the villain's rôle, Lord Devant; Mr. Bernard Webb supports ably as Tom Redman; and the author of the play, Mr. Harry Tilbury, scores in the humorous rôle of Mickey Doolan. Miss Belle Tilbury gains unlimited sympathy as the wife, Florence; Miss Arline T. George acts charmingly as Alice Harvey; Miss Mabel Hall shines as the daughter, Mabel Lindon; and Miss Trixie Toole as Araminta creates other diversion, her singing and acting being of a most clever and vivacious description.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Hetty King, who tops the bill here, pleases audiences immensely; Paul Conchas, the Herculean juggler of cannon balls and shells, holds the audience spellbound; Horace White, a capable ventriloquist, provides a good turn; and Will English is an excellent coon artist. The Musical Johnsons are responsible for pleasing xylophone selections; Will Bishop and company present a pleasing sketch, entitled My Gollywog; and the Six Æolians (vocalists and dancers), Harry Edson (with his dog), and Dorothy Drew (comedienne) also provide excellent turns.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Heading the bill is Roland, the illusionist, who mystifies with his latest success, "The Bachelor's Dream." Lotto, Lilo, and Otto are responsible for some clever and novel cycle feats; Duncan and Godfrey give an interesting coster comedy, entitled Me and 'Er; Allen and Hart are excellent vocalists and dancers; and Vasey and Ramsey in Jerks, the Butler, also provide some excellent dancing. Elsie Roby has a pleasing interlude in The Slaveys' "At Home"; Rich and Rich are capital comedians; and Gracie Taylor and Ada Cerito are also responsible for acceptable turns.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Mr. Frank Danby is here with a company in The Chauffeur; the Elgars appeal successfully to the music-loving portion of the audience; Barton and Franklin give a really clever turn; Conway and Garland are funny in a burlesque, entitled Left in Charge; and Juno Salmo (the "devil dandy"), the Henries (juvenile club-throwers), Rosie Bartlett, Maud Walsh (comedienne), Harry Mountford (raconteur), and Harry Vardon (ventriloquist) all combine to give a capital entertainment.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Fred Eustace and company, who are responsible for the production of a comedy-drama, The Amber Light, have achieved a great success. A new eccentric comedy act, entitled At the Seaside, is cleverly presented by Drew and Alders; Powell's marionettes are highly appreciated; Bert Woodward, the "steeplechasing cyclist," is received with great applause; and Frank Cumminger, the Sisters Morgan, and Kitty Marion complete a well-balanced programme.

BLACKBURN.—NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Mr. Frank L. Pitt and Mr. Charles Halling's company is appearing here in the detective drama, £1,000 Reward.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—Haley's Juveniles give the principal turn in a good company. They appear in a carnival scene, and dance and sing in entertaining style. The Spanish Goldinis, in a carpet-spinning and electrical novelty act, take well; and Zarmo, "the mad juggler," is very clever. Marvello and May's performing cockatoos are interesting examples of careful animal training; Obdy and Bushman, in a comedy dog act, and Rose and Calvert supply capital comedy; while Daisy Davonport is a dainty dancer. Mulvey and Miriam present their sketch, In the Studio; and Raymond's Bioscope shows some excellent pictures.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The engagement here this week of the D'Oyly Carte Opera company is fitting and appropriate, as Monday night last saw the eighteenth anniversary of the opening by the self-same company, although the personnel, with one exception, is entirely changed, Mr. Fred Billington being that one exception. The Gondoliers was the attraction on Monday, and drew a good house. The various characters were in safe hands, and all went merry as a marriage bell. Mr. Charles R. Walenn as the Duke of Plaza-Toro, Mr. Billington, of course, as the Grand Inquisitor, Mr. Leicester Tunks as Luiz, Mr. Albert Kavanagh (another old favourite) as Guiseppe, and Miss Theresa Rassam as the Duchess met with the most cordial reception. Iolanthe, The Yeomen of the Guard, Pinafore, and Trial by Jury also find a place on the bill.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Messrs. Ralland and Sergenson's company have changed their programme from melodrama of last week to The Late Lamented this week. Mr. Arthur Gibbons gives every satisfaction as Stuart Crosse, and Mr. Charles Boult effectively presents Major Joseph Marshall; Mr. F. Pennington-Gush as Richard Webb and Miss Chrissie Ralland as Mrs. Webb also play their parts with conspicuous ability; whilst Miss Kitty Cavendish presents an excellent sketch of Mrs. Stuart Crosse.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Harry Randall, who tops the bill here this week, is meeting with a big reception nightly, and his songs and sayings have "caught on" tremendously; Ted and May Hopkins also contribute a very enjoyable turn in the shape of a sketch entitled A Welsh Courtship, which brings down the house; the Eight Lancashire Lads have previously won a reputation here as singers and dancers; Lina Verdi is known and admired as a comedienne and mimic; Jack Cosgrove and Ethel Burns contribute a comedy and vocal entertainment; Ellie Stuart sings and dances well; Jeanette Hall is a clever lady baritone vocalist; Raie Walters is a dainty comedienne; and Burt Danson finds favour

NORTH PIER.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. James Walker.—The entertainment here this week is provided by Mr. Sydney James's Rustic Scholars, an excellent combination of artists, which includes Misses Aileen and Doris Woods in duets, dances, and Maori specialities; Mr. Alfred Wooton, vocalist, Miss Maud Fitz-Stubbs, pianist, Mr. Harker Nicholls, expert instrumentalist and Mr. Gilbert Fernie, humorist.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company are here in The Manxman. Mr. A. B. Cross impersonates with great skill the difficult and arduous part of Pete; Miss Minnie Watersford displays fine emotional power in her rendering of the character of Kate Cregeen; Cæsar Cregeen has an able exponent in Mr. Frank Etheridge; Mr. Sydney C. Kearnes is successful as Philip Christian; and Mr. Maurice Yorke as Ross Christian, Miss Nellie Freeland as Nancy, and Miss Hazel Dent as Miss Christian, do ample justice to their respective parts.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—This week a visit is being made by the celebrated Colley-Dryden variety company, which embraces Mme. Ada Colley, the Australian nightingale; Los Rupertos, equilibrists and jugglers; the Two Neilsons, in refined duologue and dancing speciality; Roxborough and Wright, an inimitable comedy couple; Ed. B .Ford, comedian; Martin Conway, comedian; Baroni and Kemp, comedy quick-change artists, in Fun on Furlough; Mr. Leo Dryden's sketch company, in a funny farce, Charlie's Indian; Mollie Nolan, a charming comedienne and dainty dancer; Mr. Leo Dryden, vocal character-actor; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE. — MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—This week we have a visit from Mr. T. R. Nugent and company in The Little Earl. The characters, which are suitably portrayed, are Harry Dare (Mr. W. Dewhurst), King Ashton (Mr. H. Compton), Billy Barton (Mr. T. R. Nugent), Little Victor (Master Sidney), Claire Sidney (Miss G. Greet), Elsie Woodford (Miss Jean Beresford), and Belle Langrist (Miss Maggie Gardiner).

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—In a répertoire of Shakespearean plays, Mr. Allan Wilkie, the tragedian, supported by a company of sterling merit, is attracting excellent audiences here this week. On Monday night Mr. Wilkie presented a forcible and masterly performance of Shylock in The Merchant of Venice. Miss Carrie Baillie gave a charming and spirited rendering of the part of Portia; Antonio was a dignified and capable effort on the part of Mr. G. A. Alexander Marsh; Mr. Gordon Phillott as the Duke and Mr. G. Munro as Launcelot did well; and amongst others of the company who stood out prominently in a fine representation were Miss F. Hunter Watts as Jessica and Mr. Ernest Digges as Lorenzo. The play was very adequately staged, and Mr. Wilkie was repeatedly recalled. On Tuesday evening a fine performance of As You Like It was submitted, Mr. Wilkie appearing as Jacques, the support being again worthy of the warmest praise. Romeo and Juliet, Othello, The School for Scandal, and Hamlet are also billed.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. Frank Lindo and his very capable company are appearing here with marked success this week in Home, Sweet Home, a drama of sterling interest, which affords excellent scope to Mr. Lindo in the part of the brave fisherman, Stephen Armitage, and Miss Marion Wakeford as Joan, his betrothed. Dora is a promising effort by Miss Daisy Rochefort; Mr. F. Miles Hodgson handles the villain's part with consummate skill; Mr. G. Overs, Mr. D. Laurence Doyle, Mr. J. Patrick, and Miss Ray Rochefort satisfy all requirements in important rôles.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Comedy is the prevailing element here this week. George Formby, the quaint Lancashire comedian; Ernest Shand, with his piquant smartness; and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden, in their Two to One funny duologue, being responsible for much of the hearty laughter that prevails. Les Strads blend good comedy, too, with their fine instrumental work; Tom Moore's character-comedy is excellent; and Brown in Paris is most amusingly presented by Johnny Alexander and company. There is some good vocalism by the Jonghmann Sisters; Daisy Mayer supplies an ideal coon sketch, assisted by Paul Knox; Ruth Lytton is an attractive Scotch comedienne; and there are some good pictures shown by the American Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Rose Cabani, comedienne and dancer, contributes in smart style to a fine programme here this week; and Oakdene, the naval and comedy ventriloquist, provides a good turn, which has the charm of novelty. Webb and Branston's vocalism is finished and artistic; Queenie Essex is a chic and charming comedienne with an excellent voice; Stewart and Evans, comedians, entertain with smart patter and good dancing; the entertainment presented by the clever acrobat and juggler, Larola, is brimful of humour; Maidie Scott is a very bright and charming comedienne; Edwin Boyde elicits roars of laughter; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux show some very interesting pictures.

BRIDLINGTON. — ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Mr. Joseph Sainton and his finely-balanced municipal orchestra are gaining great praise. The vocalist this week is Mr. Ward Cawdrey, a good basso. Mr. Flockton-Foster and his talented company of costume entertainers secure large houses in the Grand Pavilion.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS.—Secretary and General-manager, Mr. Henry Hague.—Herr Simon Wurm and his Imperial Viennese band are rendering some fine programmes here this week. The vocalist is Miss Elsie Tracey, a fine soprano.

THE PALACE.—Managers, Messrs. J. W. and W. H. Delmar.—Topping the bill here this week is Mlle. Florence, the famous globe walker; Abex, in remarkable weight-lifting, justifies his title of "the Miniature Hercules"; the Attawas give a clever patter turn; Fred Ace is a smart novelty instrumentalist; Maude Clifton, comedienne; Alton and Lois, comedy artists; Prof. Wallace, a really versatile and humorous ventriloquist; and Eron and Carlotta, in a sensational illusion, add to the attractions of a big programme.

SUMNER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs. Beanland, Bath, and Danton; Manager, Mr. Charles Beanland.—Fun at the Baths, a most laughable piece, is providing great amusement here this week.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. Seymour Hicks and his company, including Miss Zena Dare, gave afternoon and evening performances here last Monday, and sustained a triple bill, comprising Papa's Wife, You and I, and Scrooge. In the first-named piece Mr. Seymour Hicks as Gerald Singleton and Miss Zena Dare as Kate Weatherby submitted admirable impersonations; while in You and I, Mr. Stanley Brett as the Hon. Herbert Fitzallen and Miss Zena Dare as Miss Middleton were especially effective. Scrooge, however, proved the most attractive feature of the programme. Mr. Seymour Hicks gave a masterly portrayal of Scrooge; Mr. J. L. Buckstone as Bob Cratchit and Mr. Stanley Brett as Fred Wayland were completely successful; Miss Florence Lloyd made a winsome Mrs. Fred Wayland; and Mr. William Lugg was impressive as the Ghost. At Thursday's special London matinée Mrs. Madge Carr Cook and the entire company from Terry's Theatre, London, gave a performance of Mrs. Wiggs, of the Cabbage Patch. The theatre was then closed for the summer vacation and cleaning until July 29.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Mr. Carpenter's company is performing Man to Man here this week. Mr. Roy Redgrave submits a fine impersonation of the hero, George Gordon; Miss Daisy Scudamore is charming and graceful as the heroine, Ethel Maythorne; Mr. Dennis Bryan is powerfully effective as the villainous Richard Ellerton; Mr. Arthur H. Hill gives an admirable representation of the Rev. Philip Ormond; and much amusement is afforded by Mr. Charles Preece as Samuel Plumtree and Miss Lucy Murray as Miss Lavinia Dove. Other characters are well portrayed by Mr. Ellis J. Preston (Bill Burkley), Mr. H. C. Lanceley (Matthew Ellerton), Miss Amy Venimore (Gipsy Madge), and Miss Winnie Barton (Ned Doyle). The drama is admirably staged, and attracts large audiences.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr J. L. Graydon; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—A capital company is here this week. R. A. Roberts, the protean actor, achieves conspicuous success in his clever comedy sketch, Ringing the Changes; Ernest Rees, droll comedian, is a great favourite; the Three Firmans are very warmly applauded for their pot-pourri act; Cedar and Elgar are well received in their comedy act, Ye Dayes of Ode; Arthur Melrose is a clever comedian and word whistler; Percy Hannon, a young American baritone, sings in good style; Belle Green is a humorous entertainer; Fred Bronte is a pleasing vocalist; Lily Esplin, comedy artist, gives a good turn; and the Alhambrascope is up to date and interesting, and includes a picture of the fire at Kemp Town last Sunday.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A very attractive programme is sustained here this week. Lil Hawthorne wins enthusiastic applause for her admirably rendered songs; Kartelli gives a marvellous display in his sensational wire act; M. Slippere, blind entertainer, is well received; Percival and Morley are very effective in Turtle Doves; Tate and Tate are clever comedy trampolin acrobats; Addie Dorina displays some quick changes in the sketch, Dr. Spot's Patients; Tennyson and Wallis, comedians, are entertaining patterers; Clown Barker and his comedy circus provide an excellent turn; Gus Garrick makes a great hit in "Music Hall Tit-bits"; Osborn and Brookes, musical comedy duo, acquit themselves with great success; the Brontes are pleasing in the duologue Saucy Maud; and the Barascope pictures are up to date, and include a representation of last Sunday's fire at Kemp Town.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Rollo Balmain and Miss Sara Mignon and company opened here on Monday with Our Flat. Mr. Rollo Balmain gave an excellent representation of Nathaniel Glover; Miss Sara Mignon was a delightful Margery Sylvester; Miss Louie West made a droll Bella; Miss Miriam Holt was a charming Lucy McCallum; and Mr. J. W. Braithwaite as Mr. McCallum and Mr. Sydney Leyton as Reginald Sylvester added to the enjoyment of the audience. Morning and evening performances are given on the pier by the band of the 16th Lancers.

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Mr. Leslie Gaze's vaudeville company, "The Hollanders," is here this week. The picturesque costumes of the members add to the effectiveness of their performances. The vocal solos and concerted pieces are charmingly rendered and warmly applauded. Mr. Fred Lyne, Mr. Leslie Gaze, Miss Mary Powell, Miss Isabel Powell, and Mr. Dick Henly acquit themselves admirably, and Miss Muriel Lillington ably carries out the duties of accompanist.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. Edmund Tearle and company are here for the week with The Three Musketeers, the drama being staged in good style. Mr. Tearle obtains applause for his exposition of D'Artagnan; Miss Kate Clinton displays power as Miladi; Mr. G. T. Greig, Mr. Bernhardt Turner, and Mr. Clifford Marle are decidedly good as Louis XIII, Richelieu, and Duke of Buckingham; Athos, Porthos, and Aramis are well represented by Messrs. Alfred D. Adams, Ernest Lodge, and Edmund Grogan; Miss Mary Campbell is expressive and stately as Anne of Austria; and Miss Esther Tearle acts effectively as Constance. The remaining characters are all carefully taken, and on Friday evening the ladies in the audience are to be presented with a handsome cloth bound volume of Dumas' famous novel, "The Three Musketeers."

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. T. Alty.—The ever-popular Uncle Tom's Cabin is proving attractive here. It is staged effectively, and well played by Mr. Charles Harrington's company. Mr. J. Carr makes an ideal Uncle Tom, playing the part with simple dignity, and when necessary with power; Mr. Harrington presents a capital performance of Phineas Fletcher; Mr. J. H. Rogers is sufficiently aggressive as Legree; Mr. John Gibson does well as Mr. Wilson; Mr. Leslie Beaufort makes the most of George Harris; Mr. A. G. Wray is advantageously placed as St. Clair; Miss Sylvia Stella makes a capital Topsy; Miss Holly Haselwood is pleasing as Eva; and the remaining parts are all rendered in satisfactory style. The Plantation Festival is well done, the singing being exceptionally good.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Park's Eton Boys present a pleasing turn, the boys being good vocalists, and their voices blending harmoniously; Lonnen Meadows and company score in their smart sketch, Kiss Your Father; C. Wordley Hulse and company have much success with their dramatic sketch, A Fight in the Forge; the Avolos do clever feats on perpendicular poles, and also other acrobatic acts; Walker and May, coon singers and dancers, are very successful, the male partner being stated to be the only blind comedian on the stage; Sybil Montague is a pleasing ballad vocalist; Billy Burns, singing pit lad, is successful; and the performance concludes with animated pictures of interesting and amusing subjects.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Auto-Atlas does a good "strong show," amongst other feats lifting with his teeth a 15 h.p. motor car, with the machinery going at the stated rate of fifty miles an hour, and containing three passengers; George Marriott and company present with much success their effective and well-acted sketch, A Modern Millionaire; the Victoria Duo, two exceptionally pleasing lady vocalists, are highly successful, their voices harmonise beautifully, and a word of praise is due to the orchestra for their clever work in this turn under the direction of Mr. H. E. Hatley; Ray Maskell is an expert speciality dancer; Curwen and Belle, in their speciality, The International Club, amuse with song, dance, and quick-change business; Carl Howard, comic conjurer, is decidedly smart; Mark Henton, comedian, obtains applause; the Katos are successful with their automatic theatre; and Farrell and Miller, comedians and dancers, are good in their line. The performance concludes with some clearly-projected animated pictures of the Derby.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—On Monday a large audience assembled when at 7.30 The Rogues of the Turf was presented. Miss Mabelle F. Barlow ably sustains the part of the adventuress, Marion, and Mr. J. F. Preston appears as Joe Flaxman. Miss Laura Wright worked hard and successfully as Phyllis, and Miss Ethel Rainforth made a charming Nellie. This was followed by the amusing musical comedy-burlesque, An English Belle. Mr. Horace Custins as Sunny Jim, a travelling pedlar and bondescript; Mr. John F. Preston as Consul, a ticket-of-leave man; and Mr. Arthur Lonville as Police-constable Nabbem contrived to keep the house in a continual roar. Miss Gertie Walsey as Alice Oatfield pleased with her songs and charming manner; and Mr. Walter D. Brodie (Jack Trenent), Miss E. Rainforth (Bob Trunion), Mr. Arthur Bell (Capt. Barnacle), Mr. Bert A. Rutley (Squire Harnacre), Miss Mabelle F. Barlow (Mrs. Oatfield), Miss Laura Wright (Dolly), Miss Mary Jones (Madge Merry), and Miss Amy Gribben (Jennie Jones) also lent excellent support.

BURNLEY.—EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Some excellent artists appear here this week. The Ando Troupe of Japanese equilibrists perform a number of very clever feats; the Bouncing Dillons are neat in their turn with the spring net; Marie Jones and Ernest Munroe are acceptable in a quick-change sketch, The Way to Win a Bet; the Alberto Troupe are well received; and Harry Taft provokes roars of laughter with his songs and patter; Kate Lynd, with songs, is amusing; and Charley Dixon, comedian, the Lillian Bros., and the Empire Theatroscope are also attractions.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE (NEW HIPPODROME).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller. — A musical sketch, The Lady Soubrette, is given by Miss Veronica Brady's capable company. In the title-rôle, Miss Brady introduces some charming songs and dances. Two old favourites here, Nelly Gannon and Harry Wright, whose popularity has not waned, are responsible for good turns; a unique performance is that of Winona, the rifle expert; the Bonanzas and Zano Brothers are really clever in their feats; a good share of applause is accorded to J. G. Aitken, Scotch comedian; and also to capital living pictures by the Operascope.

BURY (Lancs.).—CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Animated pictures are still the chief attraction here. The series are very good this week, and include representations of a performance of The Sign of the Cross. Other turns are Harry Zetter, comedian, and Lambert and Hands, duettists.

THE HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Sons; General-Manager, Mr. W. Broadhead, jun.—Excellent turns are provided here this week. Miss Georgette Thierry's sketch company give a capital representation of Oliver Twist; Harry Fisher and company, in a musical absurdity, The Intruders; Yorick and Yorick, smart tumblers and comedians; H. J. Barclay, comedian and dancer; W. G. Wesley, vocalist; Burton and Trent, in a musical act; Le Warren, ventriloquist; and the Danas, singers and dancers, are all good.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—Judge's performing cockatoos, parrots, &c., are a great attraction here; the Brontes, in their sketch, Saucy Maud, give a performance far above the average; Nelson Hardy is a clever mimic; Li-Chang-Hi, a conjurer of remarkable skill, is warmly applauded; Wilfred Heath possesses a fine baritone voice, which is heard to advantage in his well-chosen songs; and A. P. Boswell performs some marvellous feats of strength. The programme concludes with a smart sketch, £1,000; or, The Missing Ward, in which the characters are successfully sustained by Mr. Fred Squire, Mr. Wilfred Heath, and Miss Louisa Hunter.

BUXTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—For Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday this week we had Mr. Sydney Grundy's A Fool's Paradise, played by a capable company. Mr. Cecil Wynne was particularly good as Sir Peter Lund; and Mr. Arthur Claremont made a bright Lord Normantower. Mr. Wylie A. Thompson fairly revelled in the part of Tom Verinder; and Mr. J. H. Twyford was good as Philip Selwyn. Miss Margery Chard played very nicely as Kate Derwent; and Miss Hilda Steriker was well suited to the part of Mildred. Miss Laura Hansen was a capital Beatrice Selwyn. The play was preceded by April Showers.

CAMBRIDGE.—For the third year in succession Mr. D. Lewin Mannering and company, under the management of Mr. W. B. Redfern, gave two pastoral plays on Tuesday in the beautiful grounds of Downing College. In the afternoon The Comedy of Errors was selected, and a fashionable audience was present. Mr. D. Lewin Mannering gave a good reading of Antipholus of Syracuse, and Mr. Stanley Drewitt was equally successful as Antipholus of Ephesus. The two Dromios were cleverly played by Mr. Duncan Yarrow and Mr. Henry Ainsworth; Miss Edyth Goodall was very taking as Adriana. In the evening As You Like It was given.

CARDIFF. — NEW THEATRE. — Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—The New Boy is being presented here. Mr. Leon M. Lion appears as Archibald Rennick, and makes a great success of the character; Miss Katherine Harrington as Mrs. Rennick submits a very pleasing impersonation indeed; as Dr. Candy Mr. Harry Ashford is excellently placed; Mr. George De Lara very creditably fills the rôle of Felix Roach; while other clever representations are enacted by Mr. Wm. J. Rea (de Brizac), Mr. Stanley Logan (Bullock Major), and Miss Nellie Redwood (Nancy). The comedy is preceded by Meg the Mobswoman. On Saturday last Mme. Jane Hading made a visit, and on next Saturday Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Zena Dare appear in a triple bill.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—A Wife's Triumph occupied the boards here on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Saturday evenings, performed by Ernest R. Abbott's company. Mr. Frank Stephens as Frank Wilton gives a vivid representation of the gambler; Mr. W. H. Garbois as Ellis Jordan does exceedingly well; and Mr. Weedon Rose is successful as Julius Hartman. Miss Edith Knight as Alice Wilton gains the sympathy of her audience; and Miss Ada Abbott is suitably placed as Bessie Dewhurst. Mr. Edwin Keene as P.C. Bradford and Miss Marjorie Tennant as Marjory Crib prove to be excellent representatives of comedy. Miss Hetty Jones as Little Frank is undoubtedly a clever little actress. On Thursday and Friday the well-known play Trilby is billed.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. W. Lea; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—This week the Fourteen Black Hussars have been presented by Lasky Rolf and company. Their turn is carried off in a smart and pleasing manner, displaying splendid manipulation of the brass instruments. The famous Craggs, in Billy, present another interesting item, their combination of comedy and skill being greatly appreciated. David Poole is an exceptionally clever ventriloquist, who received a splendid reception on Monday night; the Three Sisters Sprightly, comediennes and burlesque artists; Les Francettis, violin, harp, and xylophone soloists; George Ridgwell, versatile vocalist; Moulier Sisters, clever horizontal bar performers; Will Musgrave, comedian; and an amusing subject on the Bioscope complete the week's programme.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—The stock company this week is producing The Ticket-of-Leave Man. Mr. W. J. Miller makes an excellent Bob Brierley; James Dalton has a capital representative in Mr. Gerald Byrne; one of the features of the performance is the Hawkshaw of Mr. Joseph Millane; a clever piece of character-acting is submitted by Mr. Chas R. Stone as Melter Moss; Captain A. E. Winnington Barnes as Green Jones keeps the house in one continual round of laughter; Mr. Harry Douglas is all that can be desired as Mr. Gibson; Miss Ethel Bracewell is a sweet and pathetic May Edwards; Miss Emily Helsey scores a decided success as Mrs. Willoughby; and Miss Edith Madelle is a bright and lively Sam Willoughby.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Sinclair and Whiteford head the list this week with Getting Even; F. V. St. Clair has some good topical and satirical songs; Bert Williams is a clever young ventriloquist; Frank and Alice Lurin score with their extravaganza, Cinders; the Cheers, with their Dick Whittington scena and performing cats, have caught on immensely; the Sisters Casselli are extremely popular; and Mabelle May is a graceful dancer. The Pepiscope is still a popular item.

CASTLEFORD.—QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and Will H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—A new series of animated pictures is being presented here this week by the Loyal Dominion Co., and large audiences assemble to enjoy the show. The Days cause much astonishment with their second-sight séance.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here in The Sin of Her Childhood. Miss Clara Santley gives a creditable representation of Mrs. Haysel; Mr. James Duncan is a favourite as the Rev. Alan Grey; Mr. Wilson Summers is equal to the occasion as Stephen Haysel; Mr. Frank Liston is a manly Captain Thornton; and Mr. Hugh Brady a rollicking Barney O'Reilly. Excellent support is given by Miss Katie Lever as Eliza Muggins; Miss Effie Bartlett as Mary Haysel gains sympathy; and as Hannah Spry Miss Lissa Young scores a success.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Here we have Harry Bold, comedian; the Claymores, a pair of neat dancers and club jugglers; Beau and Bell, in a well-liked vocal-scena; Charles Denton, whose "I know where to find 'em" pleases highly; W. L. Murray, in artistic poses and weight-lifting; Irene Meldon, a popular singer and dancer; Boden and Bell, a couple of juveniles who prove very entertaining; Nellie Farrell, in an Irish serenade and a laughable low-comedy song; and the Brothers Horne, in their well-known boxing sketch. Lacy's Erascope has a capital film, entitled "The Female Highwayman."

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. F. J. Donne.—Gus Elen is the bright particular star here, and scores nightly with "The pavement artist," after which the Edisonograph shows some excellent pictures of Mr. Elen singing many of his past successes. At the conclusion he reappears, and brings down the house with "The wrong 'un's bedroom." Janet H. Reynolds is paying us a very welcome return visit with "Bright Eyes, my Queen." The Three Amaranths are clever acrobatic dancers; the Ettenas are seen to advantage in a globe-rolling and equilibristic act; and Berth Duckett, male impersonator, Dave O'Toole, comedian, and Harry and May Kent complete the company. The Edisonograph is up to date.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—A capital bill of fare is presented here this week, the chief attraction being Mr. J. F. Elliston's company in the dramatic episode, Madge, a cut-down version of In Old Kentucky. Other interesting turns are presented by J. P. Carroll, expert tambourinist; Chas. Lestre, society juggler; the Sims, vocalists and dancers; Billy French, a marvellous buck-dancer; the Merrions, in Fun in a Music-Shop, and Dolly Denver, in song and dance.

CLACTON-ON-SEA.—PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. M. P. W. Willard.—The above place opened on Monday with the following company:—Little Dando, comedian; the Donnells, expert vocalists and dancers; Edgar Berte, entertainer; the Sisters Brand, comediennes and dancers; Brothers Brooks; Minnie d'Auban, burlesque artist; Walter Curtis, a smart comedian; Talbot and Pearce, in a pretty and effective Japanese scena, Yo-San; and Miss Kate Butler, a clever character comedienne. Good pictures are shown by the Palascope. The band is under the direction of Mr. Algernon Clark, and the following artists, who make up the Lunar Sextette, entertain in the grounds:—Mesdames Blanche Woodford, Adelaide Chadwick, Florence Forester, Messrs. Norton Greenop, Eustace Clare, and Edgar Berte.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. H. Montague; Manager, Mr. E. J. Barrett.—Mr. Harold Montague and his Vagabonds are still here, and have this week given new songs and business, and on Thursday a new sketch, The End of the Story, by A. Helier and H. Montague, in which Miss Ethel Mayaffre and Harold Montague appear. The troupe is made up of Mesdames Olive Spark, Leslie Lulu, and Marie Longmore, and Messrs. Leslie Burgess and Claude Russell.

WESTCLIFF GARDENS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Graham, Russell, and Bentley.—These always-popular entertainers are going as strongly as ever, and in addition to themselves have this week the assistance of Miss Gertrude Shrimpton, soprano, and Mr. James Davis, tenor, from the Queen's Hall.

COLCHESTER.—HIPPODROME. — Joint Proprietors, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot and Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—John Lawson and company are presenting The Unwritten Law and Humanity. In addition to Mr. John Lawson, the cast comprises Mr. Johnston Powell, Mr. William Lindon, Miss Buna Bent, Miss Cruickshanks, Miss Lily Morris, and others, and the nightly reception is highly flattering. Dot Hardy once again scores heavily with her low comedy songs and mannerisms; whilst Gicardo is very entertaining as a juvenile juggler. The Sisters Charnley, also on a return visit, are very clever with their bâtons, and dance extremely well; whilst Billy Bracy does well as a comedian.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—The musical comedy drama, At the World's Mercy, is here this week. As Captain Frank Manley Mr. Loates is very good; and as Charlie Smart Mr. Jess Boxer proves himself an able actor. Mr. Edwin Leigh as Jabez Barber, and Mr. Herbert Newman as Morris Goldstein, are sufficiently villainous to merit the execrations of the audience. Miss Cissie Melford, in the dual rôle of Skittles the stowaway and Kitty the music-hall star, acquits herself commendably; Miss Madge Devereux is a very attractive Alice Lloyd; and as Dot Tiny Carry Johnson is deserving of every praise. The singing and dancing of Miss Melford and Mr. Boxer creates great enthusiasm. The piece is well mounted.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. J. Mackey Glover's children's pantomime, The Forté Thieves, opened a week's engagement here on Monday. As Abdalla Master Jack Frost distinguished himself; Master W. Bishop gave a capital rendering of Ali Baba; Miss Florrie Clarke, a dainty little artist, as Morgiana was good; Miss Jessie Evans as Ganem was most effective; and Miss A. McDonald was successful as Hassarac.

COVENTRY.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—At Duty's Call is proving very attractive here this week. Mr. John Gerant portrays the part of Harold Allison in a powerful manner; and Captain George Allison is in the capable hands of Mr. Henry Watson. Miss Lily Crammonde gives a charming representation of Dora Drummond; the character of General Gordon is in the hands of Mr. Stanley Blake; and Mr. Louis Scott and Mr. Frederick Sandy as Jack Spencer and Teddy O'Hallaron respectively are very amusing.

HIPPODROME.—An enjoyable variety programme is provided here this week. Matthew Brodie and company give a dramatic sketch, entitled The Drummer of the 76th, which was much appreciated. The Sisters Geretti in their gymnastic display, a comic sketch by Messrs. Daly and company, Ernie Mayne with his laughable songs, George Autell, a quaint comedian, and Fred Lincoln and Billy Farrell's songs and dancing are other attractions. The Hippodrome pictures wind up a pleasant evening.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance.—Good houses are being drawn by the capital programme here this week. Marie Kendal proves to be a great attraction, and was deservedly encored; Messrs. J. L. Shine and company give a highly amusing sketch, An Actor's Art, in which Mr. Shine takes no fewer than six parts. Mariedl, the Tyrolean giantess, causes a sensation; the Rinaldo Trio are clever comedy acrobats; Hinton and Wootton, cyclists, give a skilful exhibition of football; the Sisters Poole, duettists and dancers, and Steve McCarthy, comedian, also help to make the programme a success. The Empire bioscope concludes.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Mr. Stanley Carlton's company was here the first three nights of the week in A Life's Story. Mr. Carlton gives a powerful and effective rendition of Count Benger; Mr. Arthur Dudley is a capable exponent of Captain Jack Temple; Mr. Marshall Meade is clever as Detective Tom Berry; Mr. Edwin Beverley is a pronounced success as Max Clifford; Mr. Chas. Wilson is good in the humorous rôle of Tony Crimonini; and Mr. Geoffrey Chate does full justice to that of Lieut. Hugo de Bresson. Miss Ruble Maude finds ample scope for her excellent abilities as Zieka; Miss Muriel Dean acquits herself with credit as Beatrice; and Miss Susie Beaven, who possesses a charming voice, is a decided favourite as Rosa. A Marriage of Vengeance was billed for the remainder of the week.

CROYDON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Herrick.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company, in The Little Bread Winner, is attracting appreciative audiences here this week. Mr. Dunlop Stewart as Lord William Donnington is very impressive; Mr. Matthew Boulton submits a good impersonation of Richard Lawrence; the villainies of Joseph Prior are realistically portrayed by Mr. Alfred Maurice; Mr. Norman Hall may be congratulated on his representation of Charles Prior; Mr. Wallace Carey is good as Doctor Chadwick; Miss Emil Leslie distinguishes herself as Margaret Daventry; Miss Jenny Bostock as Bridget O'Flanaghan is capital; Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam attractively represents Kate Cherry; Miss Kitty Melville as Ruth Cherry is very good; Miss Nellie King does well as Bobby Trott; and Miss Emmie Thomas sustains the title-rôle in an admirable manner.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay. — John F. Preston's company is receiving well-deserved applause here in the Oriental dramatic sketch, Saved From the Harem; Pete and Juno are a clever pair of coloured comedians and dancers; Decima Brooke is a fascinating comedienne; Charles Whittle, comedian, is good; Herbert Clifton has a falsetto voice of much sweetness; Ruby Emerson is a charming comedienne; Max Waldon's female impersonations and dancing create quite a furore; the Ongars work hard and successfully in their dancing turn; and very funny and smart is the acrobatic act of Price and Revost.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—The second week of the stock season here with Mr. F. B. Woulfe opened with The Streets of Darlington. Mr. Clifford Kean as Gideon Bloodgood is a typical villain; the part of Badger is in the capable hands of Mr. Woulfe; Mr. Claude Aymond as Captain Fairweather looks the part; Mr. Bob Anderson as Puffy shows well in comedy; and Mr. R. S. Innes as Paul Fairweather is clever. Mark Livingstone is played in excellent manner by Mr. Holland Day; Miss Ethel Griffies makes a good Alida; Miss Theo. Henries is a charming Lucy; and Miss Edith Lorraine makes up well as a boy. On Friday Hamlet was given.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Owner and Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Managers, Messrs. Chas. Denley and Herbert Taylor.—Bella and Bijou, society entertainers, are the leading feature this week, and their clever répertoire is to be highly commended. The Donnas Trio provide a novel balancing trapeze act, which is quite above the average. Other turns include the Bros. St. Clair, exceedingly neat trick cyclists; the Four Jumels, who render pleasing selections on various instruments; Ada Parker, coon songstress; Adams and Hall, slieght-of-hand entertainers; the Coopers, harmonising vocalists; and A. E. Clifford, vocalist. The Bioscope, with interesting pictures, completes the bill.

DEWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—The leading feature in the enjoyable programme supplied by a strong variety company this week is unquestionably Henry Cadle's production, Casey's Court, a number of juveniles distinguishing themselves and greatly gratifying their audience. The Fergana Four, Continental head and hand balancers, displayed remarkable ingenuity and daring; Clarke and Glenny may claim with confidence that their sketch The Haunted House is a laughter-maker of the most effective type; the Vandam Brothers dance cleverly, and win applause in a series of acrobatic tricks; Geo. V. Campbell achieves success with his diverting songs and business; and the Lyric Five are worthy of warm praise for the variety and quality of their vocal and instrumental entertainment.

DONCASTER. — NEW THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Will Hughes, the boy coon sand dancer, is well applauded; the Belmore Sisters are accomplished in foot work; and Chas. Rowen, eccentric comedian, is popular. Special interest is centred in Menotti, who cycles at the rate of forty miles an hour on a single wire. Other interesting turns are those of Gus Hindell, comedian, assisted by a company of Doncaster lads; Walter Purvis and company, singing is particularly appreciated, also the instrumental solos. Mr. James Clark is a violinist of much capacity, and always secures an encore. The sketches written and produced and by H. H. Cullum are well received. Mr. Dyson is for the most part his own lecturer, and his running commentary on the pictures presented is bright and instructive.

DERBY CASTLE.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Kelly.—This place of entertainment opened for the regular season on Monday evening last. Mr. Harry Wood once more wielded the conductor's bâton, and introduced all the latest dance music. An excellent variety programme was also presented. Mr. Charles Vincent, with his drolleries, evoked laughter; Mr. James Eadie and Miss Cissie Ramsden were clever in a smart duologue, entitled Charlie's Visit. The Three Brothers Lloyd gave their distinctly original performance on the double tight rope. Among other attractions a unique collection of Manx scenes in oil, by the well-known artist the late Frank Horphner, are on view, and secure much attention from judges.

DOVER.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred. C. Dew.—His Sister's Honour is this week being staged by Messrs. B. A. Dall and Chabot's company. Mr. Edward B. Louis's resonant voice and good appearance make his performance as Frank Stanley most interesting; and Mr. Gilson Brook's portrayal of Dr. Godfrey is also a praiseworthy piece of work. The clever acting of Mr. Lincoln Calthorpe emphasises the villainies of Sir Richard Redver; a sympathetic delivery of the many good speeches in the part of P.C. Worthie marks Mr. Harry Mitchelson; while Mr. Harry Ugar is resourceful and highly amusing in the rôle of Timothy Timid. The part of Maria Mickie is played with great success by Miss Janet Lawton, who also introduces a song and dance; while Miss Winnie Kennedy's Dutch yodelling song is novel and effective. A powerful rendition of Dora Stanley is given by Miss Kathryne Eckhart; and Miss Ethel Ashleigh is a pathetic Ivy Merton.

PAVILION PROMENADE PIER. — Lessees, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—A smart performance on the trapeze is given by Zasma; and other turns are contributed by the Godfreys, musical sketch artists; Miss Florrie Groves. Horace Cinquevalli, Cee Mee, The Famoras, Miss Florence Carlow, and Miss Minnie Percivall. Miss Agnes Beckwith and her clever troupe of swimmers still continue to attract by their graceful performances in the crystal tank.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Lessees, The Vaudeville Syndicate; Manager, Mr. Fred Hoult.—Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls and company appear in The Battle of the Belles; Learto, with his clever dog, "Babs," gives a pretty turn; Nellie Nora is a talented instrumentalist; and Ted Wooten, laughing comedian, meets with a great reception. Lade Henderson is the possessor of a beautiful and well-trained voice, and is heard to advantage in several good songs; Henry Hilton's turn is original; and Milner Verren scores a success with his vocal efforts.

DUBLIN. — EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Geo. H. Marsh.—Fred Karno's comedians are the attraction here this week, and evoke continual merriment in The Bailiff; Spry and Monti are as popular as ever; Babs Lloyd is an engaging comedienne and expert dancer; Arthur Gill is deservedly applauded for his rendering of songs in various voices; Amy Russell is heard to advantage in several catchy songs; Mueller and Coyne, the comedy couple, are highly entertaining; and the Emerald Gems, who are retained from last week, are still scoring. The Empire pictures complete the bill.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Chas M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Here we have a return visit of the evergreen Horace Wheatley, whose excellent songs and humorous patter keep the house convulsed with laughter; the Sisters Lee, vocalists, dancers, and acrobats, obtain a cordial reception; Aerial and Astarte are graceful gymnasts; as a character impersonator, Nellie Moore is successful; N. T. Kioto, in a smart equilibristic act, merits applause; a hit has been made by Regan and Ryan, an amusing pair of comedians; the Bendons, duologue artists, are well received; Lil Hartley sings lively songs with spirit; and the Bioscope is still showing good pictures.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL. Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The programme here this week is furnished by Collins and Irene, illusionists; La Bella Rosa, mandolinist; Tom Wesley, descriptive vocalist; Ella Lane, soprano vocalist; Len Delmar, lady impersonator and dancer; and the Cinematograph.

SAMUELS' EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—The following artists are appearing here this week:—The Arthur Ben Anderson Family, musical Oriental Americans; Will Yew, eccentric comedian; Bessie Wilson, serio and expert dancer; Patsy Nolan, female impersonator; Chas. Rivers, comedian and dancer; and Agnes Macdonald, the lasting lady.

PAVILION, KINGSTOWN.—Manager, Mr. Fred R. Heley.—Walter George's Smart Set company commenced a week's engagement here on Monday, when a large audience was present. Miss Georgie Martin, in song and dance, is warmly applauded; Mr. Walter George, with his humorous songs, is cordially received; Miss Lena Hutchings renders her vocal numbers in a charming manner; and among others who contribute to the success of the entertainment are Mr. James Burlington-Rigg, baritone vocalist; Miss Hilda Light, Mr. Arthur Court, Miss Nellie Comber, Mr. Herbert Oliver, and Miss Ethel Wyndham.

DUDLEY.—EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. B. Peberdy.—Frank Purcell's comedians are causing endless amusement here in a screaming absurdity, entitled Three Husbands. Onda and Leon, comedy bar performers, are responsible for a clever and amusing turn; H. A. Borri shows exceptional ability in a comedy juggling act; catchy songs are rendered in dashing style by Florrie Bray, versatile comedienne; J. P. Boston, as a variety entertainer, gives an enjoyable turn; and Chas. Kay, on topics, and Will Ellerslie, comedian, are well appreciated.

DUNDEE.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams. — Dan the Rake figures successfully here, Mr. Johnny McElroy dealing with the title-rôle in a clever manner. The play is produced by Mr. Leslie Vyner's company.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Mr. Roland Yorke's company occupies the boards here this week in The Triumph of Truth. As the villainous Count Raoul D'Orville Mr. Roland Yorke proves himself an actor of exceptional ability; Mr. Herbert Goddard makes a dignified Sir Charles Eversleigh; Mr. Dudley Wynton does well as Captain Jack Eversleigh; Mr. Rawdon Vivian is capable as Inspector Danvers; and the part of Pierre Coppard is well interpreted by Mr. Stephen Crossley. A powerful rendering of the part of Vitteo Mascagai is given by Mr. Leonard Maxwell; Miss Gertrude Hunt acted exceedingly well as Blanche La Croix; Miss Florence Halton made a delightfully clever Coralie; Miss Gertrude Bonser enacted the dual rôles of Lilian and Violet Anstruther with conspicuous success; while Miss Nellie Huges played sympathetically as Little Lena. The comedy parts of Tommy Woodhead and Kate Bright were in the safe keeping of Mr. Fred De Vere and Miss Gertie Rosalind.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Devonshire Park and Baths Co.; Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—The attraction here is Messrs. Lionel Glenister and Wood-Ingram's company, in All-of-a-Sudden Peggy. Miss Decima Moore's work as Peggy has all her individual charm and brightness; Miss Naomi Neilson contributes a sound performance as Mrs. O'Mara; Miss Kate Wingfield is a stately Lady Crackenthorpe; Miss Eva Lonsdale an attractive Millicent; and Miss Estelle Despa an excellent and voluble Mrs. Colquhoun. Very high praise is fully earned by Mr. Lionel Glenister for his easy and pleasing efforts as Jimmy Keppell; Mr. Alfred S. Barker is an amusing Anthony; Mr. Henderson Bland a perfectly satisfactory Major Phipps; Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson a capital Jack; and Mr. Patrick Fitzgerald gives able help as Lucas. After Seven Years is the well-played curtain-raiser.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is appearing here in A Royal Divorce. Miss Edith Cole is a handsome and regal Josephine; Miss Agnes Imlay a dignified and imposing Marie Louise; Miss Helen Richmond a good Stephanie; and little Miss Maggie Cardiff plays prettily as the King of Rome. Mr. Frederick Victor gives a powerful, impressive performance of Napoleon; Mr. William Dexter is an effective Talleyrand; Mr. G. M. Montanini an earnest and convincing Marquis de Beaumont; Mr. Alfred Grenville a spirited Augerean; Mr. Lorton Orme uses a fine voice with excellent effect as Brigadier Pierre; and Mr. George Hudson gives a really clever character sketch of Grimaud.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day. —Miss Dinah Morris and company are heading the bill here with an elaborately-staged sketch, The Village of Dahomey; the Meymotts (Harry and Ada) smartly play in a sketch, Semi-detached; Mr. Sid Bandon is a genial comedian; Miss Venie Belfry highly pleases with her songs; Miss Lily Eyton is a particularly effective and charming vocalist; the Kimberleys sing, dance, and patter very ably; Miss Mabel Le Roy contributes a taking turn; and Mr. Harry Wilson is a successful impersonator.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—Bootle's Baby is being presented by Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart's company. Mr. Stewart gives an excellent impersonation of the good-natured Bootles; Miss Georgina Wynter acts naturally and sympathetically as the injured Helen Grace; the parts of Mrs. Smith and Laura Norris are attractively portrayed by Miss Isabel Roddick and Miss Gladys Harvey; and high praise must be given to Miss Maisie Richardson, an Edinburgh young lady, for the brightness and charm of her acting as Mignon. Mr. Henry Wolston makes a sufficiently cold-hearted Captain Gilchrist, whose brother officers are well represented by Mr. Leslie Owen, Mr. Ernest Gray, Mr. William Midgley, and Mr. Herbert Purser; and some delightfully quiet humour is introduced by Mr. Tom Mowbray and Miss Edith Ife, in their clever renderings of Private Saunders and Humpty Dumpty.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead. —The Romany King is delightfully acted by Miss Lucie Carne, Mr. Lempriere Pringle, Mr. John Doran, and Mr. J. C. Piddock. Amongst other admirable musical turns are the part-songs, given with humour and pathos by the Wakeman Quartette; and the clever vocal and instrumental act by Sterling and Love. Miss Daisy Stratton is warmly received for her bright acting and singing; and Miss Jessie Merrilees is recalled for an enjoyable rendering of "The Banks of Loch Lomond." The dashing gymnastic feats of the Ten Genis in their Risley performances arouse the enthusiasm of the audience; and the Athos Troupe supply an entertainment in which remarkably smart ball manipulation and daring head balancing are introduced. Mr. Mike Cray is a droll, proficient juggler; and Mr. Frederick Neiman is thoroughly amusing in his ventriloquial sketch. A series of laughable films is shown by the Bioscope.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—Mr. Wilkie Bard's turns this week have been more amusing and enjoyable than ever. Miss Nellie Stratton is a pleasing comedienne of talent and promise; Roma and Romani contribute a delightful selection of instrumental music; Fred and Panly exhibit some novel acrobatic feats in the way of balancing and somersault specialities, very deftly performed; and the Celtic Comedy Trio prove themselves good vocalists. There has been no brighter or more diverting sketch seen here for some time than the successful skit, The Would-be Actors, presented in finished fashion by Mr. Carter Livesey, Miss Lilian Rosebery, and Mr. Albert Mason. Howard and Collinson are responsible for another sketch, of the La Poupée kind, entitled The Porter and the Parcel; the Brothers Dean earn distinction as whistlers, and still more as neat and expert step-dancers; Mr. Harry Bedford gives a good comedian turn; and Bioscope pictures conclude the list of attractions.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Ventom Swift.—A lively programme here this week includes Stanley's Urchins, in an exhilarating display of dancing and clever singing; the Lashmars, in a racy sketch, Bits and Pieces; Mr. Jack Ramsay, mimic; Mlle. Du Roche, an excellent singer and burlesque actress; the Sisters Du Barrie, skilful dancers; Mr. George Edney, comedian; and Mr. James Lourey, the Newcastle singing furnaceman.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Arthur A. Horner's company, in Walker, London, is here. Mr. Edward A. Coventry gives an extremely laughable impersonation of Jasper Phipps; Mr. W. René Hammersmith acts with excellent effect as Renard Von Burgh; Mr. Walter Pemberton distinguishes himself as Kit Upjohn; Mr. Forrester Harvey is very amusing as W. G.; Mr. Arthur Flinders deserves a word of praise as Ben; Miss Ruby Wyndham is an efficient Mrs. Golightly; Miss Mary Pemberton is pleasing as Bell Golightly; Miss Ruhamah Catton is a sweet and dainty Nanny; Miss Ethel Stanley and Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite are good in their respective parts of Penny and Sarah Rigg. Hester's Mystery is the curtain-raiser.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager and Musical-Director, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton.—Mr. Fred Rome's concert party, The Orchids, pay their first visit to Folkestone, and are particularly successful. Miss Frances Roscorla is well received; Miss May Windsor's efforts are enthusiastically applauded; Mr. Wilfrid Siracey is a comedian of marked ability; Mr. Leonard Griffiths and Mr. Fred Rome are very clever and highly appreciated.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Arthur Conquest and company, in a North American pantomime named The Sioux, occupy the leading line here this week, and have met with a pleasing reception. Donal McDougal, Scotch comedian, has many admirers; Harry Wenburn, a comedian with genuinely funny songs, is appreciated; little Maudie Francis qualifies for a forefront position amongst our child vocalists and dancers; Martino, a skilful contortionist, presents The Viper's Nest; The Almas, equilibrists and tumblers, Flo Banks, comedienne, and the usual pictures also afford pleasure.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Mr. Fred J. Webb's company in The Hour of Her Triumph forms the fare here. Mr. Leslie Hawkins does justice to Harold Clavering; Mr. T. O. Stephenson is well suited as Jack Vernon; Mr. Webb as Harbury gets through a large amount of work with distinct credit; very humorous are Messrs. Louis Nanton and James Stuart as Ben Brodie and Rosenis Montmorency; Miss Barbara Gott supplies a capital impersonation of Zelia Claremont; Miss Lalla Price gives an excellent character-sketch as Sal Soaker, and later proves highly diverting as Martha Jinks; and Miss Price is a first-class sample of the versatile actress. Nellie Clavering receives good treatment from Miss M. Danvers Smith; Linda Denton is sweet and girlish as portrayed by Miss Mamie Stanton; and Miss Hetty Gale makes an attractive Jennie Jinks.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—The New York Picture Company is in the third week of its visit here, and is showing some excellent and popular pictures. Bu-val, an eccentric, appears with success.

GLASGOW. — KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Mr. Harold Wantage and company are appearing here this week in The Pick of the Bunch. As Halliwell Menit Mr. Algernon W. Lee sings and acts with considerable taste; the Col. Menit of Mr. Percy Baverstock is a highly characteristic and amusing personage; and Miss M. Sadie plays the title-part, Nancy, and infuses a deal of spirit into the character. In the rôle of Martin, Mr. Harold Wantage acts with unfailing humour; Mr. Norman Bowyer makes a quaint and original figure of Dick Seymour; the part of Nellie Mather has a promising representative in Miss M. Christopher; as Ruth Gay Miss Eva Ellis sings and dances gracefully, and Miss Mabelle May makes an attractive Wilhelmina. Several smart dances are executed by the Lottie Stone troupe of dancers.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager Mr. Sam Gething; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Manners. — The genial and only Harry Lauder is packing the house at every performance this week. Harry, by request, is giving a few old favourites, and "She is ma daisy" ranks admirably. In a new song "The tailor's wife," a typical Lauder ditty, he is in fine vein, and his reception is tremendous. In Tom E. Finglas we have a fine coon singer and a neat and agile dancer; in Alfred Lester, a picture song singer of a high order; and a feature in jumping is made by the Hartley Wonders; the Tom Davis Trio, in their sensational act, "Whirling the Whirl," prove another good draw; and the audiences warmly applaud Maggie Walsh for her fine singing; Chas. Frazer and Co. score well in Iona; the Northern Troupe are splendid dancers; and good pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Wallace Seikirk's juvenile spectacle entitled Egypt includes a smart display of naval and military warfare by Glasgow children; Rosina Caselli's Midget Wonders, the smallest canine race in the world, perform many clever tricks; while the vocal scena performed by Verno and Voyce is highly appreciated; a clever ventriloquial entertainment is given by Richardson Taylor; and the Three Rubys perform many daring and graceful tricks as contortionists. Other acceptable turns are given by the Carlyles, clever whirlwind dancers; Clark and Hayden, in musical duologue, An Appointment; Leo Stormont, baritone; Dolly Denton, comedienne; and the Bioscope.

PAVILION, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—The Lorch Family of Risley acrobats are the principal attraction, and give a clever acrobatic display; Lillie Soutter, comedienne, renders several songs in her usual sprightly style; Peter Bermingham, Scotch comedian, is responsible for much merriment with his pawky humour; other interesting turns on the programme include Queenie May, comedienne; Lily Black, vocalist and comedienne; Hans and Lux, patter comedians; the Gilbeys, instrumentalists; Selbo, expert juggler; and the Courtiers, vocal entertainers.

COLISEUM. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Chung Ling Soo astounds the audience with his Chinese conjuring; Percy Honri and his concertina form a combination not easily rivalled, and his turn is deservedly popular; the Bruins contribute a lively speciality item, entitled A Trip to the North Pole; J. W. Rickaby is a comedian with a wealth of original notions, and is a big favourite; first-rate musical items are given by Edith Fink, a sweet singer, and Arthur Aldridge, a tenor of special ability; the New York Nippers, in their Bedtime speciality show smart dancing, and enjoyable turns are given by the Satanella Trio, Nellie Martell, and the Bioscope.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—Chanti, the wonderful quick-change artist, represents nearly all the costumes and dances of the world; the Sisters Marion are two nice little girls, who sing duets in charming harmony; Stave is a weird musician, who makes effective use of electric light; Wallace is a remarkably smart young juggler; Keith and Merson, as jolly huntsmen, keep the fun going briskly with witty patter; Victor Newman gives some realistic imitations of the late Sir Henry Irving; Leah Arden is a ballad vocalist with a powerful voice, which she uses effectively; Oliver Conroy is a favourite comedian; and Jack Neil has always a welcome reception. Moving pictures of winter pastimes by the Palacescope round off a good entertainment.

GAIETY, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—The Cee Mee Family display wonderful skill in their sensational trapeze act, and James and Alexander cause a good deal of merriment; R. C. McGill, Scotch comedian, contributes quaint songs; Sandy and Carl are most amusing in their burlesque boxing act; Kate Gourlay is a singer of pleasing songs, and the Sisters Ross are very successful as duettists; Clara Hastings proves a clever comedienne; the Bioscope, with a capital series of pictures, concludes.

BRITANNIA.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Amy Bathurst is a clever comedienne and charms everybody with her top-boot dancing; Velasco, Demon Painter, deserves credit for his performance, which is much admired; Dennis Glover, tenor vocalist, sings two songs in fine style; Charles F. Bradie, comedian; Daisy Cordelia, comedienne and dancer; and the Bioscope complete the programme.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Le Diabelo presents a sensational act in looping the wheel; the Three Romas are clever in a gymnastic act; Mr. Harry Nelson proves a smart patterer; and Miss May Marton is a neat comedienne. Johnny Fuller as the cat on the wire receives applause; and Miss Nell Brough is a good burlesque artist and sifflleuse. Messrs. Cullen, Carthy, and Little Cluley supply an entertaining turn; Messrs. Merton and Rydon are vocal and speciality duettists; and the Bioscope shows the Derby of 1907.

GRAVESEND. — GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. David Hart. — The juvenile cross-talk comedians, Alex and Lilley, undoubtedly do remarkably well; Dan Kirton sings well and dances admirably; Ena Somers, a many-sided entertainer, is particularly adroit with her concertina; Maude Vera, a descriptive serio and coon artist, meets with a good reception; Piquo, in his solo comedy sketch, causes endless merriment; Mysterious Lilith is a wonderful illusionist; whilst Lilian Warren's illustrated songs are deservedly popular.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Miss Annie Hughes and company are here this week with Jerome K. Jerome's play, Miss Tommy. In the title-rôle, Miss Hughes plays with taste and sympathy; Miss Winifred Pearson is excellent as Mr. Morrison; and Miss Ida Richardson is natural and winsome as Honour. Peter Hope is capitally represented by Mr. Evelyn Vernon; Mr. Willie Hartill is energetic and effective as William Clodd; Mr. Reginald F. Beach is a part Flipp; and Dick Danvers is admirably portrayed by Mr. Rupert Lister.

GREENOCK.—EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—Messrs. Howell Webb and company head the bill, and present with success an exciting dramatic sketch, entitled The Galley Slave, in which Mr. Howell Webb plays the leading part. The Clevers submit a clever juggling and equilibrist turn; Lizzie Laurie's illustrated songs are well received; and Bendon's animated pictures are also an attraction.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—Mr. Belrose and Miss Maud de Velin, who head the bill, are much applauded for their finely-rendered operatic selections. Other contributors are Wyllie, in a humorous musical turn; Mlle. Telka, a pleasing contralto; Titan, a strong man; Miss Minnie Osborne, a charming comedienne and dancer; George Rae, Scotch comedian and eccentric dancer, Harry Maynard, a popular character vocalist, and the Paviscope.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—The drama, As Good as Gold is here this week. The dominating character is the unscrupulous Sir Richard Wharncliffe, and a capital exponent is found in Mr. Jackson Hayes. The parts of Lieut. Stanton and Norah Williams are played by Mr. Fred Lloyd and Miss Isla Garnet Vayne. Miss Agnes Collier is well suited as Kate d'Arville; Mr. Clinton Baddeley is good as Mark Williams; Miss Bertha Baker represents the Kipper; and the comedy parts are played by Mr. Joseph Rowlands (Timothy Nias), Mr. Herbert Fuller as Horatio Spanker, and Miss Gertie Reid as Madge Merry.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Houghton.—A capital piece of burlesque is provided by Culfane's Comedy Four, in their miniature musical comedy, Pipple from Poppleton. The Tokio Troupe of Japanese performers do all kinds of acrobatic and equilibristic work; the De Wynne Brothers give a smart display of head and hand balancing; Chester and Lee cleverly manipulate their marionettes; whilst others appearing are Maud Esmond, burlesque artist; Phern and Phern, in a musical act; T. C. Edwards, baritone vocalist; and Phil Bransby, coster comedian.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN.—Lessee, Mr Edward Marris.—An exceptional treat was provided here on the 6th inst. in the flying visit of Mrs. Patrick Campbell and company in Magda, great interest being taken in the famous actress's appearance in the title-rôle. Mr. Hubert Carter's Leopold was a particularly fine performance; Lieut. Max had an able exponent in Mr. J. Geldard; Mr. Charles Garry gave a clever embodiment of Von Keller; and Mr. Berte Thomas assumed Heffterdingk with broad earnestness. Miss Annie Hill played Theresa intelligently; Miss P. Wheeler was all that could be desired as Augusta; and charming indeed was the Marie of Miss Stella P. Campbell.

HALIFAX. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The Northern Theatres stock company are this week staging the play Shall We Forgive Her? A foremost place is given Mr. Bernard Mervyn, whose forcible enactment of the ne'er-do-well, Neal Garth, is received with spontaneity; a manly and earnest "engraver" is presented by Mr. J. Cook Hinton; Mr. Cyril Austen Lee is good as Parson Elworth; Miss Winnie Tempest infuses passion into the difficult rôle of Grace; and Miss Jessie Belmore, is admirably placed as Nelly West.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.— Six Bros. Luck, Ltd., company are here in The Hotel Grande; Jock Walker has some very breezy Scotch gags, which he expounds quaintly; Otto and Olga are smart with instruments, &c.; some remarkably clever leaping feats are introduced by the Three Bros. Huxter; Burns and Bentley are quaint Americans, and quite adepts at the art of top-boot dancing; a good comedian is Walter Stanley; and the Three Royal Dreadnoughts are expert rifle shooters.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Sam Winks.—The Would-be Actors is splendidly acted by Miss Lily Bertram and Mr. T. W. Rawson; another good item is furnished by Chevalier Cliquot, the sword swallower. Sill and Sillcott, silent comedians, Patty Yole, dancer, James Brady, eccentric joker, the Stein Erretta Troupe, Sisters Ford, duettists, and Russell and Reed's company, in Binks' Blunder, also entertain.

HANLEY.—GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone.—Kelly and Gilette are here in their screamingly funny sketch, Fun in a Billiard Room; Carlotta Levy wins the hearts of her audiences with her excellent songs, which are charmingly rendered; Fred Curran scores a huge success in his songs; the Borghetti Troupe are extraordinary acrobats; Venie Clements is a bright and vivacious comedienne, her song "I'm in love with the trombone," being capital; Cull Pitt patters admirably, and as a comedy magician is capital; Bromley and Fontein return in their sketch, which is made as funny as ever; Terry and Bentley in their comedy act are much appreciated, the male member being a clever contortionists; while the lady is a vocalist of a high order. The pictures are good.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Smith.—For the first three nights of this week Mr. Monckton Hoffe's company presented The Importance of Being Earnest to full houses. Mr. Monkton Hoffe was good as Algernon Moncrieff; and Mr. Nicholson was well placed as John Worthing. Mr. Ralph Hutton was excellent as Rev. Canon Chasuble; Miss Phyllis Manners was good as Lady Bracknell; and Miss Minnie Grey was a fair Gwendoline Fairfax. Miss Lloyd-Desmond was especially well placed as Miss Prism; and Miss Nona Hope made the most of Cicely Carden.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—A smart turn is provided by Will Onda's comedians, who head the bill in their amusing sketch, Hotel Comfort; Atroy gives an exhibition of juggling and hoop bowling that would be difficult to beat; a musical turn that is decidedly novel and entertaining is provided by Mlle. Violi; John Higgins, champion jumper, is paying a return visit; as also is Sam Dalton, eccentric comedian and mimic, and Tom Parker, a smart clog dancer, Lillian Travellie, burlesque artist, and Julia Faviour, comedienne and dancer, are also on the list, which is concluded by a capital display on the Bioscope.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—When It Was Dark is admirably presented here this week by Mrs. Morton Powell's company. The rôle of Gertrude Hunt is filled by Miss Hilda Beverley with an earnestness that gains sympathy; the zeal and enthusiasm of the Rev. Basil Gortre are finely delineated by Mr. E. Stanton Sharp; while his antithesis, Constantine Schuabe, is as convincingly played by Mr. W. J. Butler. The despicable Sir Robert has a good exponent in Mr. Edward Valentine; and Ionides, his accomplice in fraud, is picturesquely played by Mr. D. N. Stornott. Mrs. Morton Powell very pleasingly represents the womanly rôle of Helena Byars; agreeable comedy is supplied by Miss Dorothy Hildebrande as Grace Goldeye; with Mr. Millar Wilson as the Hon. Charles Gayfly. Good assistance is rendered by Mr. Ernest St. John as the Rev. Byars, Mr. R. B. Drysdale as Nunc Wallace, Mr. H. B. Lewis as Harold Spence, and Mr. F. Davis as Ali-al-Murad.

PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr. R. Turner; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. Weedon Grossmith's farcical comedy, The Night of the Party, is attracting good audiences. Mr. Sebastian Smith as Crosbie, the principal butler, gives a remarkably clever sketch of one in an elevated state of mind; Miss Florence French as Gipsy Vandelier, Miss Lillian Williams as Paulina, the housemaid, and Miss Beatrice Mervyn as Lady Hampshire, are excellent; Mr. Douglas Munro as the Duke's servant, and Mr. Frank Denton as Frank Frayne also do well. The comedy is under the direction of Mr. Charles H. Williams.

ST. LEONARDS PAVILION THEATRE.—Pier Master and Entertainment Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Another series of interesting animated pictures on the Bioscope is being shown by arrangement with Mr. W. J. Jury. Humorous slides are also shown by Professor Stanley Collins, who dovetails some clever illustrations of sleight-of-hand into the entertainment.

HORWICH. — PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr A. P. Patterson; Manager, Mr. Alec Harcourt; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. W. Graham.—Messrs. Elliman's company, in A Heart's Desire, form the attraction this week. Mr. Frank V. Fenn plays Lord St. Ives with much feeling; Mr. Eddie Vane as Eric May is decidedly good; Mr. S. Claydon makes the most of the Hon. Bertie Beresford; Messrs. Herbert Lewis and Charles King play Luke Forrest and David McCulloch respectively; and Mr. Walter Kennion is a typical old butler, Coombes; Miss Emmeline Roselle as Julia, lady's maid, is capital; Miss Ida Irving has a good part as Gwendoline Ross, Lord St. Ives' ward, and takes full advantage of it; Miss Amy Dalby's rendering of the Hon. Elsie Beresford is a very careful study, full of merit; and Miss Enid Edoni's Oiya, a half-caste, is a most artistic performance.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. Harry Foxwell has got together a capable company to play the drama A Broken Heart. Mr. John Clyde looks the part, and plays with fine force, as John Barnard; Mr. Scott Leighton is cool and restrained as the villain, Raylton; Mr. Chas. Vivian shows ability in the part of Gash Gills; Mr. Will Lindsay is naturally funny as the bumpkin, Tony Tibbits; Miss Marguerite Trevosper's excellent work in the part of Mary Barnard is worthy of the highest commendation; Miss Florrie Sorsby is good as Little May; and Mrs. Harry Foxwell makes the most of her opportunties as Miss Fanshaw.

HIPPODROME, LTD. — Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The best turn this week is provided by Miss Libby Blondelle and her four Johnnies; Ryan and Hall give a clever and humorous acrobatic turn; the Sisters Hampel are two good singers and humorists; the Solari Duo are talented lady instrumentalists; the Villion Trio are daring and interesting trick cyclists; Miss Mollie Doon is a sweet singer and a delightfully fascinating dancer; and Derenda and Green, a pair of club jugglers, are more than usually expert. Russell Carr, ventriloquist, Haley's Garden of Girls, and interesting pictures on the Biograph are also included in the programme.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Haddon Chambers' fine play, The Idler, is here, under the guidance of Mr. Greenwood-Croft. Mrs. Croft, to whom the rôle of Mrs. Harding is assigned, is seen to the very best advantage; Mark Cross is in the hands of that clever artist Mr. Philip Cunningham; and Miss Celia Gordon realises the rôle of Mrs. Cross with much effect. There is a very pleasing tone introduced into the picture by Miss Zoe Davis as Kate Merryweather, and as Sir John Harding Mr. Stephen T. Ewart gives an able character sketch. The play is well staged and the representation highly effective.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; General Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—A strong drama and one full of exciting episodes is The Master Criminal which fills a place in the programme of this theatre. Mr. Henry Osmond is an actor who could surely find better work to do. He makes all that is possible out of Telford Lestage; Miss Winifred Chalmers paints the adventuress in proper tints; and the detective finds a suitable representative in Mr. John C. Carlyle. The remainder of the cast call for no special mention.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE AND MORTONS, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Go-Won-Go-Mohawk is here once more with Wep-Ton-No-Mah. That capable artist Mr. Pascoe Bioletti, a great favourite in Hull, is cast as the Chief, Gane-Gan; the title-rôle is efficiently played by Go-Won-Go-Mohawk; Mr. C. W. Charles is cast as Capt. Stockton; Mr. Edward Leroy is an able Manuel Lopes; Matilda Sniffle, as played by Miss Jessie Hart, is a pleasing study, and much amusement is afforded by her work.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—The management have sub-let the theatre during the summer vacation, and this week Mr. John Clempert and a strong company of variety artists filled the bill. Terry and Browden are highly successful in a vocal comedy act; Effie Macdonald is a pleasing vocalist; and A. Magnus is also responsible for a clever vocal effort. Mons. Twizto is a smart contortionist; and Thora is a sweet songstress. Little Doris Jeffe is a dainty vocalist and dancer, and contributes a smart quick-change act; Artie Francis, comedian, is successful; the turn provided by Mr. Charles Carte, actor vocalist, is keenly appreciated. The concluding item is the stirring Russian military play, entitled Jedevka, in which the principal character is admirably portrayed by Mr. John Clempert.

Those who find the Standard flavour of Odol somewhat too strong and pungent for their liking should try the Sweet Rose flavour, which possesses a most fascinating fragrance and is especially suitable for ladies. The special Odol properties are the same in both.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The Trail of the Serpent is being played here this week by the company of Mr. A. Campbell-Kelly. Miss Phyllis Elton makes a pathetic Ethel Maynard, and Mr. Campbell-Kelly himself secures marked attention for his impersonation of Gerald Kingston and Old Jack; Miss Nana Cameron presents a capital interpretation of Rachel; Mr. J. R. Tyrell, as William Higgins, and Miss Jennie Risley as Rose Wilson, are amusing; as the villain, Ralph Hammond, Mr. Frank Lyndon is well placed; and Mr. John Cullen as Gipsy Jake is deserving of praise.

IPSWICH. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The great attraction here is the engagement of Hackenschmidt, who has elicited much cheering; Jennie Johns delights the audience with a couple of charming songs; Sandy McNab and company give an entertaining sketch entitled The Egyptian Mummy; and the company also includes Burley and Burley, a pair of wonderful contortionists; McDonald and Hunting, American comedians; Bessie Arthur, a pleasing Scottish vocalist; the Nightingales, song illustrators; and the Four Burnells, who cause roars of laughter in their comic knockabout business.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Rex Sugden.—This week Mr. Edward Sorley's company is paying a visit with The New Magdalen. Miss Yvonne Orchardson as Merry Merrick plays the rôle commendably; Miss Rachel Donne's Grace Roseberry is neat; Miss Bartle Frere is suitably placed as Lady Janet Roy; and Mr. W. S. Hartford makes a dignified Julian Gray. Mr. Horace Logan fills the part of Horace Holmcroft to perfection.

JERSEY.—THE HORSESHOE QUARRY.—A series of al fresco entertainments opened here on Monday with a troupe of pierrots and Veroniques, under the Opera House management. Mr. Tom Payne, with songs and dances, proves a great draw, and Miss Elfie Vincent is a dainty comedienne; Miss Maisie Gerrard is an excellent accompanist; Mr. C. Brunston Williams and Mr. Reginald Hamber sing in good style.

ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—The National Animated Pictures are making a return visit here.

KEIGHLEY.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall.—The Musical Palmers provide an excellent musical show here, and prove a great draw; Mozetto is loudly applauded for a clever juggling act; Sam Redfern, comedian, delights his hearers in song and patter; Miss Daisy Palmer dances nicely; and capital pictures are exhibited by Films, Ltd. Fred Danvers's sketch company appear in Those Awful Twins. Mr. Fred Danvers and Mr. Evelyn, with their bright and breezy quips, amuse all.

LANCASTER.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—Messrs. Kitchen and Lister's dramatic sketch, No. 99, with Mr. Frank Lister in the title-rôle, is exceedingly well presented. Harry Grey, comedian, has a great reception, as also have Cline and Clark, black and white singers and dancers. Olive Armidale, comedienne; Jack Rae, ring performer; the Varleys, duettists; Harris and Worth, comedians; and the Hippograph complete a first-rate programme.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—Mr. Ernest E. Norris's adaptation of that old favourite, The Three Musketeers, is enjoying good patronage at the Grand this week. Mr. Norris is responsible for a dashing and enjoyable portrayal of the chivalric D'Artagnan; Miss Vera Beringer achieves success as Lady Winter; Richelieu is well and carefully played by Mr. Edward Petley; and the Musketeers are represented with rare fidelity by Messrs. Austin Melroy, Archer Brown, and Ernest Stridwell; Miss Enid Ross presents the wronged Queen in captivating style, and Miss Dorothy Chard is a winsome Constance.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—A Wrecker of Men is just the sort of thrilling melodrama dear to the hearts of the Royal habitués, and good houses are the rule this week. The name-part is Risca Mallison, an adventuress, and this is a very fine bit of acting by Miss Ruth Zillwood; the wronged heroine, Doris Melville, is a portrayal of exceeding charm by Miss Gwendoline Talbot, and Miss Beatrice Reynolds also displays much ability in a character of importance; Mr. Eric Campbell is distinctly clever in the rôle of Jim Murley; Mr. Percy Horton proves no less effective as Guise Strange; and much good work is also done by Mr. Milner Noble and Mr. Thompson Carruthers in other leading parts.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—A varied and attractive Empire bill has Edward Lauri and company as star turn, and their comedy sketch, In Her Boudoir, proves very amusing and entertaining. Herbert Darnley's company adds greatly to the merriment with an uproarious screamer, Moving In, which is smartly enacted; a remarkably good show is that of D'Arc's Marionettes, whose antics and imitations are very cleverly executed; the well-known Egbert Bros. are to the fore with a favourite speciality; the American Comedy Four are amongst the most popular turns in the bill; a novel acrobatic speciality by the Wartenberg Bros. arouses much enthusiasm; Fanny Erris, comedienne, does a pleasing turn; and Guy Rider and Frank Seeley are each popular.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece.—By arrangement with Mr. John Lawson, the famous sketch, Sally in Our Alley, is to be seen here this week, and its presentation has aroused the liveliest interest; another notable turn is that of Les Sousloffs, sensational terpsichorean experts; George Prince and Dick Kendal are clever and popular; Ford Williams scores a succes as a vocalist; Maud Beaumont, comedienne, renders acceptable contributions; and the turn of Rose Harvey, vocalist, is also well liked.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—The Minstrel Maids are a merry and talented company. Fred Cary, who leads the comedians, is vastly popular; and other notable comedians engaged are Joe Cheevers, Will Walton, and The Custances. Edie Gray and her clever boys are a great success; the Ringling Trio have a clever eccentric speciality; the Nirdars are juvenile acrobats of merit; Rosalie Jacobi is a favourite soubrette, and Nelly Chandos, comedienne, also contributes.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Amongst the most popular turns here this week is that of the Piccolinos, a company of clever juveniles, who score in song and dance. Tom E. Conover and company are doing an amusing skit, The Drink Cure, with every appearance of success; Gillin, the popular novelty ventriloquist, is having a good week; Lord, Murray, and Lord repeat previous triumphs with a clever comedy sketch; Huline and Le May are successful in a similar line; whilst Mlle. Eldee, with a refined speciality; Ted Waite, comedian; and the Sisters St. Julian, duettists, are also among the best items.

LEICESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—Messrs. Fred Acton and Harry C. Nash's company is here with the drama Between the Lights. Miss Eileen Bamford plays sympathetically and well as Violet Warren, and Mr. Bertram H. Rose as Captain Robert Hinton and Mr. Frederick Garrett as Gerald Warren are both to be congratulated on portrayals of much merit; Mr. William R. Winning is good as Stanley Crofton, and Mr. Fred Acton as Jimmy Tickle is popular; Miss Fannie Williams as Madge Armley is a success; Mr. Frank Orchard capitally enacts the dual rôles of Oswald Warren and Ben Armley; and Mr. F. Daleno as Charles Stott, Miss Millie Doris as Kitty, and Miss Winifred Acton as Ellen are others who fill their parts in commendable style.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—Mr. William Bourne's company appears in Ordered to the Front. Mr. Frank Petley as Captain Mountrevor, Mr. F. Vernon Travers as James Woodruffe, Mr. Allen Wye as Mike Kavanagh, Miss Teresa Osborne as Helen Mountrevor, Miss Alys Eden as Jenny, and Mr. Sydney Compton as Rev. Arthur Graham are to be congratulated on the successful manner in which they play their various parts. Neil Kenyon, the clever and popular Scotch comedian, is making a most successful first appearance here. Billy McClain and company, including Mlle. Cordelia, are making a hit with their enjoyable and exhilarating scena, entitled The Hottest Coon from Dixie; May Walsh is a charming and refined comedienne; Frank Elliston and company create hearty laughter with their farcical sketch, Aunt Matilda; J. A. Wilson, with his well-trained dog, "Private Towser," receives his usual hearty welcome; Lindon's Vaudeville Entertainers are good in an entertaining comedy mélange entitled Monks at Play; Tom and Marie Motrama are capital musical comedy artists. The Bioscope is a feature, and Beattie and Blanche, duettists and dancers, also appear.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—Miss Lois du Cane and Co. are presenting with the greatest success the sensational episode War, in which Miss Lois du Cane as Jessie Grant, Mr. E. Eardley Howard as Gilbert Newton, Mr. P. Barry-Lewis as Sagasi, Mr. Ernest E. Batley as Captain Digby Nolan, and Mr. William Beatty as Colonel Grant give excellent impersonations. A big hit is being made by T. W. Barrett, a really clever and laughter-provoking comedian; Sidney Dolf is smart in his novel act; the Sisters Allen are attractive duettists and smart dancers; Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope remains a very popular feature; Kitty Kirwin, Irish comedienne, and Susie Marney, low comedienne, are also entertaining.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The Mockery of Marriage, a sterling drama by Mr. Edward Thane, affords Miss Constance Medwyn opportunities for fine emotional acting in the part of Alva Kenyon; while strong work is done by Mr. Clavering Craig as the villainous Dick Kenyon, and by Mr. James Chippendale as Seth Pearce; Miss Doris Gilham plays Rosa Vernham charmingly; Mr. James Somerville is effective in the rôle of Mr. Vernham; and Mr. Fred W. Freeman makes an excellent Jack Stanley. Commendable character studies are given by Mr. D. Johnson and Mr. Percival Dye in their respective rôles of Old Pete and Ned Stanley; and Mr. Barry Lupino as Toby, with Miss Sallie Adelstone as Mary Anne, develops the comedy vein most successfully. An interesting display of "Royal Star" animated pictures is followed by a good old farce, in which Mr. Somerville, Mr. Lupino, Miss Gilham, and Miss Adelstone, aided and abetted by a property baby, keep the fun going quite gloriously.

LIVERPOOL. — ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Mr. C. Watson Mill and his able company have done capital business here during the week with his excellent drama A Warning to Women. Miss Rosalind Tate made a good impression as the unfortunate Meira Kennion; Mr. C. Watson Mill ably figured as the wandering minstrel, Shaun; the villainous Dr. Marcus Dread found in Mr. Richard Vane an exponent whose work was followed with the closest attention; another well-drawn character was that of Fergus McNaughton, played by Mr. William Vane; Mr. Henry Rutland afforded the utmost satisfaction as Squire Kennion; Mr. Henry P. Kennedy raised endless laughter with his Mike McQuade; Mr. N. Carter Slaughter did the most with the rôle of Lord Eversleigh; thanks are due to Miss Grace Barton for her thoughtful picture of Sheila Kennion; and Miss Ellen Beverley was an excellent Molly O'Moore. The drama was put on in good style.

LYRIC — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Public patronage of this popular north-end house continues satisfactory. Heading a good bill this week is Nat Clifford, "the nimble one"; Coram, a smart ventriloquist, remains another week; Gus Harris, the Hebrew delineator, presents a remarkably life-like impersonation of Lord Beaconsfield, being assisted by auxiliaries and striking scenic effects; Palles and Cussick, favourite comedians, have a turn which earns general approval; Lily Flexmore has some remarkable dances and dainty songs; a clever exhibition of banjo playing is provided by the Vekeys; the Wallys are particularly good comedy and expert jugglers; and Miss Gladys Williams renders some taking songs. The Bioscope shows the Derby.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Here this week A Destroyer of Men is presented by Mr. James Hare's well-balanced company. Mr. C. P. Wentworth looked well and acted well as Count Starevitch; Mr. Hare played with much feling and power the part of Karl Mischla, the exile; Mr. Hill Creamer did justice to Paul Starevitch; strong support came from Mr. Charles Bickell as Michael Mischla; Mr. Charles Coventry was an excellent type of a police spy; Miss Irene Clifford worthily held the rôle of Olga Mischla; Miss Alice Buckland was a pleasing Nina Pattakake, and sang sweetly; and the characters of Vida Ravel was in the good hands of Miss Jessie Yatman. The scenic effects were very appropriate.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Mznaging-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan. —Top of the bill here this week are Freddie French and company with the laughable sketch The Suffragettes, which has proved greatly diverting; another merry trifle is Kleptomaniacs, presented by Fred Edwards and company, including Miss Bertha Northam; Rachel Lowe has a couple of acceptable novelty songs; some clever work as gymnasts is shown by the Four Rio Brothers; the Two Kays have a neat scena, The Nightingale; Stacey and Williams are amusing cross-talkers, and show some good dancing; several popular songs come from May Edouin; and other turns are provided by Charles Rozel, speciality gymnast; Arthur Woodville, light comedian; Jack Pleasants, comedian; and Nat Watkins, comedian.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. —Brave Hearts is the title of the drama being presented here this week by the Royal stock company. Mr. Harry Tresham makes an excellent Guy Barrington; the villainous rôle of Ralph Craddock is well handled by Mr. Sydney Grant; Mr. Cecil Ravenswood shows to advantage as Edward Grantham; Mr. Robert Wilton makes a humorous Sam Sawyer; Miss Nellie Bonser distinguishes herself as Kate Edwards; and Miss Beryl Ravenswood does well in the rôle of Clara Vivian.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Edwards.—The Royal stock dramatic company, here this week, are giving The New World, from the pen of Fred D'Arcy. The principal rôles are taken by Messrs. Wallace Campbell (Jack Hawley), Frank S. Strickland (Jim Rawlins), H. Hesslegrave (Joe Williams), H. G. Brandon (Brutus Brown), Francis E. Wybert (Sam Smart); Miss Gladys H. Walton (May Walton), Miss Lina Nazeby (Samantha Clayton), and Miss Florence Barnes (Jenny Williams).

HAYMARKET.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Harry Calden and company remain here with their popular sketches. This week they are giving The Foreign Spy; or, Through Shot and Shell. Billy Dewey sings and dances ably; Frances Phillips is a comedienne with many good points; and George Horner has a number of songs which gain for him much applause. The Bioscope is a special feature of the programme.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—Spencer and Marks (Arthur and George) top the bill here this week with their humorous act, The Stage-struck Waifs; Jock McKay, as a Scotch comedian and piper, is a good turn; a clever and refined singing act is submitted by Cliff and Monti; the Sisters Bronson earn cordial recognition for their duets and smart dancing; and "The pillow-fight on the revolving pole" causes endless laughter.

OLYMPIA. — District - Manager. Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Foremost here this week are Fred Ginnett's company with the well-presented equestrian spectacle Turpin's Ride to York, which has proved popular; the wonderful intelligence shown by Lockhart's elephants has been watched with interest; Lily Langtry is as lively as ever; Herbert Shelley submits his one-man play Dan the Outlaw, which is very enjoyable; the Jackley Trio have an amusing and clever acrobatic speciality; and also in the list are Ernest Tilbury, with his choice illustrated songs; Edwin Barwick, comedian and mimic; and L. W. Harris, comedian.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.—Crowded houses nightly have been the rule here this week owing to the visit of Miss Vesta Tilley, whose reception has proved as cordial as ever. Her new song, "The seaside smile," sung for the first time on Monday evening, was most favourably received. In response to a call before the curtain, Miss Tilley returned thanks. She said she had been under nervous apprehension as to the reception of her new number, but now that Liverpool had approved it, it would go everywhere. Tom Costello brought his latest, "The Suffragettes"; the comedy and clever cycling by the Narow Bros. were loudly applauded; W. J. Ashcroft, the original solid man, was given a hearty reception for his songs; the Musical Jees afforded every pleasure with their sketch The Scarecrow; some smart acrobatic work was performed by the juvenile Trapnell Family; William Lee and Helen Bentley presented a new comedy, A Friend in Need, which proved highly amusing; the song-scena, "Pictures in the fire," by Alix Lukos, was much enjoyed; and Ouida Macdermott, a neat comedienne, also appeared.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Liverpool Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. James Marks.—Good business has been done here this week. Top of the programme is Marie Loftus with her latest successes, including "Singers, past and present"; Luis Hardt, the boy Samson, gave an interesting sketch, Flights of Imagination; Florence Yaymen showed herself to be a clever coon caricaturist; some neat and expert juggling was gone through by the Five Geraldos; Henri Cayman pleased everyone with his turn; Dandy George and his canine companion proved exceedingly acceptable; Moon and Morris are funny; the Sisters Belmont sang duets and danced in a pleasing manner; and also in the list were W. H. Downs, coloured ballad-vocalist, with a fine voice; and Mabel La Blanch, vocal comedienne.

THEATRE MODERNE.—Lessee, Mr. Gooes.—This hall (formerly the Parthenon) is largely patronised by audiences who enjoy Pathé Frères' new Passion Play bioscope pictures.

LOWESTOFT. — HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—A full house assembled here on Monday to enjoy the "Derby Day" film, which is the special feature for the present week. Mr. W. Martell possesses a fine voice, and won a great success; Morimuna is neat and original in his conjuring and illusions, and the Four Fouberts are very funny in their sketch, Uninvited.

MAIDSTONE. — HIPPODROME. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The Schenk Brothers head a good bill this week, and are heartily applauded for their clever equilibristic act; Susie and Protti are clever acrobatic dancers; the Cecilias play on a number of instruments, and are well received. W. H. Clemart gives a novel ventriloquial act. Others appearing are Stan Aubrey, comedian; Ethel Loftus, comedienne; and Maude Fenton, comedienne and dancer, together with the Bioscope.

MANCHESTER.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Local audiences are this week interested in the appearance of Mr. Ellerslie Pyne, a young Manchester actor, in The Sleigh Bells, an adaptation of the late Sir Henry Irving's well-known success. Mr. Ellerslie Pyne essays the rôle of Mathias with distinction, the Dream Scene being especially well done. Miss Renie Douglas as Catherine renders valuable assistance. The drama is preceded by the Balcony Scene from Romeo and Juliet.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Mr. Robert Parris's company is playing A Fight for Millions here after a brief absence. A strong individual attraction is in Mr. Tom Jones, the Welsh comedian, as Clara-ap-Morgan; and important parts are excellently played by Mr. William Macready, Mr. Monson Thorpe, Miss Winifred Symons, and Miss Rosie Kearns. The drama is finely staged, and holds the interest of the audience from first to last.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company is here this week in When the Lights are Low. Mr. Ernest Raymond is capital as the Admiral; Mr. George Daiper is well suited as Guy Goldsworthy; and Mr. Stephen G. Scanlan is very good as the villainous Noland. Miss Violet Carlyle and Miss Amy Ellam as the sisters do much toward the play's success; Miss May Ediss acts sympathetically as the blind Stella; and Miss Cissie Podmore contributes cleverly to the fun as Kathleen Kerry. In a humorous direction the work of Messrs. F. Serle, J. Russell Bogue, and James E Abbot is noteworthy; and as a character-study the Isaacson of Mr. Lance Usher is very good.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Manager, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—Mr. Sidney Dench's company still occupy the boards here. This week the play is The Colleen Bawn.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Day.—Miss Lydia Donovan and company present the drama, Her One Great Sin, here this week. Miss Lydia Donovan plays Gracie Warhurst in fine style; Mr. G. Edward Hall is manly and natural as Reuben; and Mr. C. Quinton Fulford makes a capital villain as Arnold Thornhill. Miss Louie Walton's Bet Hundle is a piece of good character-acting; and praise may be added for the Nancy Wimpenny of Miss Nellie Lambert. Others who do well are Miss Phyllis Damain and Miss Maudie Lambert; while Mr. Fred Hodson as Jerry adds to the fun.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—George Gray, in The Fighting Parson, is the star attraction here this week. The Kellinos, extremely smart risley-ists, share the honour of prominence. Fine turns also are Woodhouse and Wells, patter comedians and dancers; Daisy Jerome, the popular comedienne and dancer; Boswell's stage circus of ponies, dogs, &c.; Ian Colquhoun, a powerful baritone vocalist; and Genero and Theol, the india-rubber pair; while Anna Hope features a popular song, and Walter King, comedian, is dolefully quaint. The Bioscope is good, as usual.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—Phil Ray, the well-known comedian, tops the bill here this week, and makes a big hit, his smart patter being particularly enjoyable. The Millman Trio are clever aerial tight-wire artists; Mendel is a wonderful pianist; Charles Norton is a smart mimic; and the Netherlands, in their latest scena, Dutch Pastimes, sing and dance well. A pleasing musical sketch, The Punch Bowl, is given in fine style by Messrs. Frank Wood, G. Ide, Sidney Bracey, Robert Selby, Millroy Cooper, and Ralph Nairn; whilst good turns are also offered by Starr and Leslie, and Cruikshank in music and jest. Two vocal items by the choir and some amusing pictures complete the programme.

KING'S (Longsight).—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. B. Taylor.—Harriet Vernon, the ever-popular burlesque artist, is scoring here this week. Henry Herne and company, in the romantic scena, The Colleen Bawn, are seen to advantage; Leslie Race is a capital swell comedian; the Four Sisters Victoria are pleasing instrumentalists and dancers; Lily Gaston is an exceptionally good dancer; and smart turns are also contributed by Mayne Cannon, comedian and trick pianist; Harry Lee, comedian and mimic; Robins and Collier, in their clever scena, The Lady and the Porter; and the Bros. Robson, comedians and dancers. Amusing films are shown on the Bioscope.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tealor Wade.—A highly expert and entertaining act by Morris Cronin and troupe, A Whirl of Clubs, is the principal feature of this week's programme here. Excellent also in its way is the sensational cycle performance of Tom Grave, flying the revolving wheel. Beside these, Alfred Lester, assisted by Florence Wakeman, is excellent in his scena, A Restaurant Episode; the Athlones are seen in artistic classical poses; Wylie's Dog Circus is very diverting and wonderful; the Bros. Lester dance very cleverly; and good turns are added by W. B. Raby, comedian, and Dan Kennedy, comedian, each in a different style. The pictures complete an excellent programme.

TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A Wilks; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Herr Van Coppee's delightful song-scena, Holland in Song and Picture, by twelve charming Dutch girls, remains here another week, and are deservedly well appreciated. A similar turn is also provided by the original Les Fleurs D'Orange, the "Summer Idyll at Trianon" being particularly pretty and effective. The Maples show How to Treat a Burglar in a humorous manner, and also dance well; Mark Merry is a comedian of the quaint order; and Gladys Archbutt, a delightful musical comedy artist, is an excellent dancer and pleasing singer; Billie Burford, comedienne, has some catchy songs; G. W. Foster is an amusing eccentric; and Rose Waller, comedienne, sings acceptably. Raymond's Vivagraph completes.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—The chief attraction here this week is Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company in Jealousy. The acting of Miss Cissie St. Elmo as Wanda Lubinoff, and of Mr. Beaudyn as Ivan Paulovitch is very fine. The episode is well staged. Miss Florence Smithers, supported by a strong company, is exceedingly good in a comedy sketch, Hard Lines. The Lombards are accomplished acrobats; Lindsay and Harte, the Scotch-American duo, are entertaining; Payne Clarke, operatic tenor, is good; and some wonderful double somersaults are performed by La Troupe Espagnole Juanitos. Others who offer good turns are the Currie Trio, burlesque artists and dancers; and Wilfrid Gregory, contortionist. "The Electric Belt," shown by the Bioscope, is funny.

HIPPODROME (Hulme).—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Kay. —Miss Agnes Molteno heads the bill in the beautiful living tableaux scena, An Old Time Story, and sings delightfully. A gorgeous spectacular musical scena is given by the Seven Zerbinis, including Little Cyril, in a burlesque of Sousa; Wilton Heriot and company, in a protean act, An Anglo-American Alliance, are very good; Harwood's Juveniles, in their novelty scena, A Children's Christmas Eve, are decidedly clever; and Duncan and Brasque, in a smart playlet, The Society Butterfly, are capital. Other enjoyable items are those of May and Ruby, vocalists and dancers; Mi Narom, comedienne; Harry Bentley, eccentric comedian; the Betsons, comedy cyclists; Pete and Minnie Lee, in song scena; and the animated pictures.

RUSHOLME PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles North; Secretary, Mr. Geo. Phillips.—Fanny Newman, a charming comedienne, is paying a welcome return here this week, and is well received. Excellent also are Arthur Bearle, comedian, and Bromley Carter, humorist; Charles North, baritone, and Bernard Rowley, tenor, are first-rate vocalists; John Chesney is a pleasing concertina soloist; Hugh Haines is a quaint comic; and Lucy Wilson is good at the piano.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE AND GARDENS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Captain Cecil Clayton.—On warm evenings the entertainment is held in the picturesque gardens. Bob Stephenson, comedian, gives a good turn; Eva Frere sings excellent songs; Myron Howard's sketch is acceptable; Little Keeno, H. Keeble (comedian), and Gillin's acrobatic troupe are successful; and other good turns are also submitted. A new series of pictures is presented on the theatre bioscope.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Director, Mr. Tom Jennings; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Mr. Frank Ayrton's company is here this week presenting The Power of Gold to good houses. Mr. George Lyttleton gives a powerful rendition of the character of Hadji Zambra; and Mr. H. F. Stacey is well placed as Paul Judson. In the part of Meg Judson, Miss Lily Prescot is quite at home. Miss Madge Seymour as Norah Donnelly and Mr. Frank Ayrton as Sammy Smudge are responsible for a great amount of merriment. The exacting part of Lady Brandon is in the capable hands of Miss Amy MacNeill. Mark Harley is ably portrayed by Mr. Richard Harris.

MARGATE.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Joint Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Another excellent combination of talent this week includes Adey Spencer, comedienne; Kisbey, the funny "call boy"; and the Paiolos, in their speciality act, who, together with Flo Cecil, comedienne, make up the first part of an entertaining number of turns. In part two, Rosie Revell, comedienne, takes well with her comedy coon songs; Bliss and Bliss are smart cross-talkers; and Hanvarr and Anna Lee, the golfer and the maid, introduce some clever club juggling and marvellous acrobatic feats. The show, including the Bioscopic pictures, is an exceptionally good one.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Messrs. Northway and W. V. Garrod's company is this week paying a return visit with The Prodigal Parson. Mr. W. V. Garrod is well suited as the Rev. Tom Godley; a capital delineation of Enoch Jaggins is given by Mr. Paul Beckett; the rôle of Fern Godley is pleasingly rendered by Miss Bertha Kingston; Phil Drive is well accounted for by Mr. Owen Redmonde; Miss Sybil Hammersley is an amusing Gretchen; and Miss Violet Jeffries gives an intelligent portrayal of Myrtle Godley.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—The Alskarno Trio, comedy risleyists, top the bill here in an enjoyable turn; Satida and Vone, Creole vocalists and dancers, are an attraction; Fredk. Austin, comedian and dancer, shows ability; Mons. and Mlle. Fransoli give an interesting exhibition of statue posing; Sullivan's Quartet are successful in their sketch Tommy and the Lady Lawyer; the Woolhafs are paying a return visit; and the Biograph is up to date with the race for the Derby.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE —Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Valentine Beadon's company is here in The Best Must Win. Mr. Sidney D. Miss Cora Linda acts in a dainty manner as Enid Romaine; Mr. Hugh Travers as Nicholas Boris is effective; Miss Fay Norton is good as Harris; and Mr. Chas. Robinson is also praiseworthy as Boris. Specialities are introduced by Miss Amber Wyville, Rosie Watson, and Geo. Byrne.

COLOSSEUM.—Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Miss Bonwin Carlton's company, in The Plucky Nipper, had a capital reception. Miss Carlton appears in the name-part, Polly Hithard, and is quickly on good terms with the audience; Miss Kitty Maynard as Daisy Paget plays capitally; and Miss Esther Lamont is excellent as Ina. Mr. Morris Maud is a manly Captain Frank Leslie; Mr. William Heilbronn does capable acting as the rascally Richard Vanbrugh; his tool and accomplice, Bill Burgess, being ably dealt with by Mr. Edward Surrey. Mr. H. J. Butler is a soldierly Colonel Fenwick; and Mr. Claud Kingston makes a fine Henry Paget. Tommy Atkins is humorously played by Mr. Syd H. Morton; Mr. Frank Dalem as John Grip and Mr. W. Lewis as Van Voch are well placed.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Hal Forde is the star here, and his songs have thoroughly caught on; the Emmell Comedy Company, including Miss Adele Levey, gain much applause with a mythical muddle, My Statue of Grace; Troupe La Faille perform some daring equilibristic feats with success; Miss Maud Courtney, the American girl, with her yarns, is very good; and Mr. C. tells some really funny stories. Gorman's Juveniles submit clever singing and dancing in their scena, The Waif; the Three Rio Tintos do some skilful leg work in African Gambols; J. H. Bray, descriptive vocalist, and a humorous picture by the Dottoscope conclude the programme.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Willie, Wild, and West, the bounding navvies, create much amusement; Harry Pleon and party cause roars of laughter with P.C. Pudden; Madge Allan is a charming comedienne with a good voice; C. H. Charlton, conjurer, mystifies his audience with his mystic kettle; the Lancashire Harmony Boys, assisted by Mr. Cliff Dover, in Home from the Holidays, gain much applause; Harry Briggs sings in different voices, with good results; and Blarney and Kennard provide some smart comedy. Greener, singing pit lad, and Carter and Gale, character duettists, also appear with success. The Dottoscope again shows new pictures.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson opened here on Monday. As You Like It, beautifully staged and mounted, had the best of receptions, and well deserved, too, the acting being good all round. Mrs. Benson played Rosalind with all the old charm and grace; and she had excellent support from Miss Tita Brand, who made an excellent Celia. The Phebe of Miss Gladys Wynne left nothing to be desired, and Miss Leah Hanman's Audrey was just the hoydenish wench that Shakespeare intended. The songs were beautifully rendered. Mr. Benson's Orlando was very acceptable—a powerful and withal tender performance in his scenes with Rosalind; he is always good in business like the wrestling scene. He was well backed up by Mr. Worlock as Charles. Mr. G. R. Weir repeated his clever and highly humorous performance of Touchstone; Adam was exceedingly well played by Mr. Nicholson, and the exiled Duke found a competent exponent in Mr. F. H. Clarke. During the week they performed Don Quixote, Macbeth, Merry Wives of Windsor, The Country Girl, Hamlet, and Merchant of Venice.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE. — Lessees, Miss Winifred Stuart and Mr. C. Watson Mill; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company is here with A Beautiful Fiend. Mr. Herbert Skardon gives a robust and praiseworthy representation of Ivan Paulovitch; Mr. H. C. Robinson makes a capable and convincing villain as Count Fedor Karateff; and Mr. Matt Russell does well as Sergius Strogoff. Mr. Dick Seddon is a humorous Christopher Crackles, and Mr. Patt Quinn is seen to advantage as Malachi; Miss Marie Fontaine is a dainty and amusing Patty Woodlands, and Miss Violet Ingram is successful as Nadine Karateff; Miss Sydney Crowe plays the arduous and exacting rôle of Wanda Lubinoff with considerable skill.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—The J. C. Cummings's animated pictures are still being shown here, the films this week being entirely new, and of a pathetic and humorous character. Jack Chambers is a thoroughly good negro entertainer; Smart and Levine are applauded for their smart dancing; Yettmah, Japanese magician, provides an interesting number; and Miss Doreen Day pleases with mimicry.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Douglas F. Bostock.—In evidence here this week are Charles E. Colby and Lily E. May in a novel ventriloquial turn; Clarke's Nippers, in their club juggling, dancing, and ball punching are greatly enjoyed; Barnard's Mannikins present with success a unique marionette entertainment; the eccentricities of the Boston Twins are followed with interest; Arthur Albert, actor vocalist, scores in his latest successes; Wright and Elton contribute excellent singing, dancing, and eccentric tumbling; a pleasing turn is given by Charles Diamond and Miss Beatrice, instrumentalists; and Hyram Travers and the Hippodrome Bioscope complete the show.

PLYMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Charley's Aunt still proves an immense draw. Mr. Spencer Trevor as the would-be lady "from Brazil, where the nuts come from," is inimitably funny; Mr. Brandon Thomas is excellent as Colonel Sir Francis Chesney; Mr. Sydney Compton has a quaint style as Brassett; and Mr. Walter Beaumont is excellent as Spettigue. Miss Lena McNaughton is amusing as the "real" aunt; and Miss Amy Harpway and Marjorie Murray render material assistance.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—The popular Stowaway forms this week's chief attraction, and Mr. Greene Taylor's presence in the title-rôle is enough to ensure its complete success. Mr. C. A. Melton gives a fine impersonation of Tom Inglis; and Miss Adelina Mercandalli, a new member of the stock company, creates a favourable impression. The Misses Elaine Vanbrugh and Beatrice Hudson act with their accustomed ability.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Sketches predominate this week, the principal being La Vivandière, an adaptation of Ouida's well-known "Under Two Flags." Miss Isabel Derrie is an impetuous Cigarette; and Miss Lettie Fane a graceful Princess. Little Cliff is a good step-dancer; and James Willard's company evokes fun in their contribution, The Little Wonder. Marstro, equilibrist; Bugler Carr, G. W. Hunter, and Kitty Clover and company, complete.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—The attraction at the above is the United English Opera Company, under the direction of Mr. F. S. Gilbert.—On Monday and Thursday Maritana was staged, with Mr. F. S. Gilbert as Don Cæsar de Bazan, Mr. N. Klitgarrd as King of Spain, Mr. H. Blagrave as Marquis De Montefiore, Mr. Fred Featherstone as Alcade, Mr. James Knox as Captain of the Guard, Mr. J. Kineale Campbell as Don José, Miss Doris Gilbert as Lazarillo, Miss Kate White as Marchioness Montefiore, and Miss Elsa May as Maritana, all acquitting themselves admirably. The Daughter of the Regiment, Il Trovatore, and The Bohemian Girl were also billed.

PORTH.—THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting and Stage-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—Cussac Talma, illusionist, is the star turn this week, and is assisted by Mlle. Yvonne de Forge in a marvellous performance; Arthur Croxon, mimetic comedian, scores a thorough success; Ernest Montefiore and company, in The Little Colonel, are deserving of every credit; the Sisters Selwyn are really smart in a refined vocal and dancing act; Johnny Dwyer is greatly appreciated; Hector and Paulus amuse the audience as comedy acrobats; Percy Farrimond, the Lancashire singing collier, receives rounds of applause; Fred Hallam, a quaint comedian, keeps the audience in excellent humour. The Palace bioscope is exceptionally good.

PORTSMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Are You a Mason? is being presented this week here by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. George Fisher is being sustained by Mr. Frank Lincoln with great success; Mr. E. H. Paterson as Amos Bloodgood is excellent; Mr. H. Langdon Bruce is excellent and painstaking as Frank Perry; Hamilton Travers is amusingly taken by Mr. Brown Elliot; Miss Adelaide Grace is efficient as Mrs. Bloodgood; Eva is pleasingly acted by Miss Mabel Younge; Annie and Lulu are well personated by Miss Babs Stuart and Miss Nora O'Neill; and Miss Dora Gregory as Lotti is very good. The one-act episode, A Bad Penny, makes a capital curtain-raiser.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Morton's Powell's company, with the successful drama, Honour Thy Father, is drawing good houses here this week. Mr. Walter M. Cameron takes the trying part of Gabriel Garth in a powerful manner; Mr. Robert Gilbert is a capable Jack Halyard; Mr. Howell Travis does good work as Duncan Bly; Mr. Claude Merton, in the dual rôles of Job Merry, a self-made man, and George Blogg, a lunatic, plays both parts with ability; Messrs. W. H. Melrose and Fred L. Conynghame, as Ned Pennycomquick and Mike Copplestone, are capital; Miss Mabel Coleman portrays the part of Lilian Garth with great distinction; Miss Winnie Donovan is winsome as Mercy Merry; Miss Ada Salmon makes the best use of her opportunities as Poppy Cornleigh; and Miss Kate Newton depicts Gertrude Garth with excellent judgment.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The premier attraction here for the week is Gunner Moir, who is giving a capital exposition of the "noble art"; Easman, a clever and amusing comedy juggler, meets with approval; Charles Carr, juvenile comedian and dancer, is praiseworthy; Bert Byrne gives several humorous ditties; the St. Johns, in a musical comedy act, give satisfaction; Florence and Lilian are highly appreciated for their refined musical entertainment; the Sisters Lytton, vocalists, are pleasing; Jessie Albini has a cordial greeting for well-selected numbers; Lidden and Hayward, comedy team, is capital; the Six Yiulians, Risley acrobats, give a marvellous display; and Payne's Bio-photoscope, with new pictures, completes the bill.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Topping the bill here, Mr. Sam Elton is convulsing the house with his funny entertainment; Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas give a highly meritorious rendering of their amusing trifle, Her Birthday; Miss Jean Hartley is commendable as a comedienne and dancer; Miss Tina Clementa's horse and dogs are deserving of the highest praise; Peggie Lennie and Walter Hast present the poetic phantasy, A Sea Nymph, with complete success; Mr. Morney Cash, "the Lancashire lad," does well; Haydee's Marionettes are cleverly manipulated; Forest and King are capable dancers; Miss Lottie Collard, comedienne, meets with approval; and the Hippodrome pictures complete an excellent programme.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL VICTORIA PAVILION.—Jedbury, Junior, is being played here. Mr. A. W. Tyrer plays the title-rôle in really excellent manner, and Mr. Edward Ouston is very successful as Jedbury, sen. Miss Victoria Addison acts splendidly in the part of Dora Hedway, and Miss Dorothy Rowell makes a fine Nelly Jedbury; Mr. Richard Neville is a breezy young lover, and Mr. Reginald Craven sustains the quite fictitious character of "Mr. Glibb."

AMPHITHEATRE.—This old-established playhouse has been closed during the past fortnight for the summer cleaning and renovation. It will reopen on Monday, when the programme will consist of animated pictures (supplied by the Animated Bioscope Combine), and some clever variety turns.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Milton Bode.—Mr. George Dance's Variety Season; Manager, Mr. E. J. Macdermott.—The Howes (Rowland and Kitty) display their powers in thought-transference; Wilson and Waring give a capital sketch, entitled A Bit of Nonsense, in which Miss Waring introduces some quick changes of costume; Sadie Simpson is a dainty dancer; the Kurios give a startling and amusing pantomime turn; Takio, a Japanese artist, submits some clever imitations of birds, animals, and other sounds; the Brenton Sisters appear to advantage as duettists and dancers; and some good pictures are shown on Vernon's Bioscope.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—Mr. John Leopold's company present their up-to-date absurdity, New Frivolity, with their accustomed ability and success. Smart dances, clever acrobatic work, and amusing situations combine to make a most enjoyable and laughable performance. The Houseboat acts as a curtain-raiser.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Smith and Co.—Pringle's North American Animated Picture Co. is still here and as popular as ever. On Monday evening packed houses assembled, and heartily appreciated the series of new pictures thrown on the screen. The Abodaroff troupe of acrobats appear at intervals with a clever display of tumbling, &c.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—A variety combination here this week has proved highly successful. Messrs. Pallister's American Bioscope exhibit some excellent films; Miss Edna Latonne, chorus vocalist, excels in her songs; and Miss Carrie Victoria, descriptive vocalist, is very pleasing. Cambo, the musical monkey, is responsible for a most amusing turn; Professor Milne is deserving of mention; and Mac and Hill, comedians, are responsible for a good deal of fun. Sketches, entitled Betrayed Friendship and In the Tempter's Coil, are also included in the programme. Mr. Nelson Watt Phillips is clever as Sergt. Eastgate, Mr. W. G. Blunt scores as Captain Clinton, and Miss Lizzie Edare is pleasing as Mrs. Eastgate.

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geoffrey Fulton.—Mr. W. Graham Arthur and company are for the first three nights of this week presenting When a Man Hates. Mr. Arthur as Pietro Donelli gives a vigorous and artistic rendering; Mr. Arthur Jarvis is excellent as Lawrence Hastings; and Mr. F. A. Lester is very good as Sir Rupert Treherne. Mr. Herbert M. King is clever and realistic as Paul; Mr. Fred A. Lewis does well as Detective Smart; as Peter Pimple Mr. Ernest Turner is amusing; Mr. Louis Tucker as Jim Rogers and Mr. A. G. Gillies as Hawk both do well. Miss Maud Burleigh is very clever as Olga Gwynne, Miss Mabel Liston as Letty is well placed; as Dolly Dimple, Miss Jennie Hallworth is vivacious and amusing.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—The Branded Woman on Monday interested a large house. Miss Lilian Ross capably sustains the title-rôle, Genevieve Laroche. She is ably supported by Mr. James Stillwell, who is seen to advantage as Philip Maurice; Mr. W. Cowell Clarke makes an admirable Zarka; Leon is well portrayed by Mr. Walter Steele (who also is general-manager of Mrs. F. Wybert Clive's company); Mr. Harry Liddle is a funny Dick Brown; and Miss Isabel Hunt smartly plays the soubrette part of Jacqueline. Louis Daroc is excellently presented by Mr. Edward Lourie; Miss Alice Campbell does well as Countess Daphne; Miss Morna Dumayne is a charming Marie. The Juvenile Rudolph finds a good exponent in Miss May Warden, and Miss Rose Franklyn fills the part of Mme. Creirer ably.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—An exceedingly smart ventriloquial act by J. W. Winton heads this week's bill. Miss Jessie Elvin cleverly sustains the characters of the twin sisters in the romantic sketch, A Gipsy's Revenge, and is ably supported by her company; the Kirbys do a laughable burlesque scene; Ernie Myers keeps the house in roars with his patter and songs. The other turns include The Phantom Ship; Daisy Martell, comedienne and dancer; Will Johnson, lively comedian; Lillian Elfreda, mimic; Lily Lonsdale, soprano; and Marie Blythe.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—The Szarvaci Ferencz Troupe of singers, dancers, and acrobats give a smart performance; Wyndham and Waters present an amusing sketch, The Professor and His Pupil; Wee Mona Vivian, a child vocalist, dances cleverly; My Friend the Enemy is a comical sketch by Edgar Forrest and company. There is also plenty of variety provided by the Three Parzones, in The Trainer and Two Tramps; T. E. Gilbey on the rocking ladder; Fred Dornan, character vocalist; and Doyle and Gibson, comedians and dancers.

SHEERNESS.—THE HIPPODROME. — General-Manager, Mr. F. Leighton.—Valesco's Australian stage circus, comprising ponies and monkeys, is giving great amusement here this week; Zanfretto and Napio are funny in their musical speciality; Matt Wilkinson and company, in the comedy act, The Registry Office, cause considerable merriment; a capital trapeze turn by the Fitzroys is much appreciated; Morrello and Mooir, in their eccentric pot-pourri act, gain a cordial reception; Flo Mellor, coon delineator, is well received; Violet Beatrice, boy impersonator; and Chas. Hampton, eccentric comedian, are also highly successful.

Kirby ably portrays the part of Count Janski; Mr. Frank Hedley enacts the part of the waiter, Adolphe; and Mr. Harry Clifton did well as the Overseer. Miss May Grayce's delineation of Polly Harris is all that can be desired; Miss Maudie Grayson is excellent as Grace Leslie; Miss Evelyn Gildard is accountable for Mrs. Saunders, and Miss Maud Buchanan for Sarah Drake.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, United Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Maanger, Messrs. Browne and Stringer.—An entertaining programme is being submitted here. Chas. Majilton and company head the bill with a laughable comedy burlesque, entitled The Trippers. Next in order comes the daring Marino, with a loaded 40 h.p. motor-car driven over his body, and other equally startling and daring feats; the Zenora, in a grotesque acrobatic act; Carr and Rose, in an operetta sketch; Evie Hamilton, soubrette and dancer; Stidden and Dunbar, the musical comedy duo; John E. Coyle, comedian; and the Palace pictures complete the bill.

SWANSEA.—THE GRAND.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Brooks and Woodbridge; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Dean.—The Second Mrs. Tanqueray is being given this week by Mr. Norman Macowan's company. Mr. Macowan added another to his list of successes by his able impersonation of Aubrey Tanqueray; and Miss Violet Sterne as Paula acted with great charm. Ellean was entrusted to Miss Isobel Hathorn, who sustained the rôle excellently. A decided success was also scored by Mr. Murray Hathorn as Cayley Drummle; Miss Mary Masters as Mrs. Cortelyon left nothing to be desired; Miss Lester Stephens as Lady Orreyed had a part for which she is perfectly suited; and the Sir George Orreyed of Mr. Sidney R. Palfrey was a clever performance.

THE STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. P. Powell.—Miss Grace Warner received a rare welcome on Monday in Lady Audley's Secret. As the guilty Lady Audley, Miss Warner held the audience throughout by her powerful acting; Sir Michael received full justice from Mr. C. Corri; as Alice Audley, Miss Kate Stewart was excellent; as was also Mr. George Gordon as Robert Audley. George Talboys was ably enacted by Mr. C. Pitt; and a decided success was scored by Miss A. Corri as Phœbe Marks, whose drunken husband was well represented by Mr. A. Page. Editha's Burglar precedes.

THE EMPIRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. Mitchell; Assistant-Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe.—The Prince of Monte Carlo, in which appear Mr. Harry Roxbury and Miss Ethel Bryant, creates roars of laughter; Miss Queenie Leighton, in her songs, and scena, On and Off the Stage, is an unqualified success; Lewis De Burg presents Dida, a turn which leaves the audience highly perplexed; Harry Lewis is a favourite; the Miles-Stavordale Quintette of instrumentalists are one of the features of the programme; Dan Leno, jun., makes an excellent impression; the Two Dixons give an interesting turn of bâton swinging and banjo playing; and Scotch comedy is well provided by J. B. Preston. "The Great Boar Hunt" on the Bioscope concludes a good bill.

TON-Y-PANDY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth.—Under the Russian Flag is being played here by Mr. Jack Haddon's No. 1 company. Mr. Haddon takes the part of Captain Demetrius with great success; Mr. Charles Stafford makes an excellent Ivan Romanoff; the part of Michael Romanoff is in the safe hands of Mr. Sydney Arnold; Mr. Cecil Murray is a good General Romanoff; Mr. Templer Ellis a funny Alex. Skopolopki; being well assisted by Miss Molly Hacket as Ogarita. The part of Vera Vassiloff is ably portrayed by Miss Violet Lytton; and Miss Marie Turner plays the trying rôle of Luka Marischla with admirable skill.

TYNEMOUTH.—PALACE-BY-THE-SEA.—Proprietor, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.—The chief attraction this week is the appearance of the Sabots Concert Party, under the management of Mr. Walter Walters. Another capital turn is that of Charles F. Best, as Macbunker, in burlesque entr'acte, The Mountebank. Other items are submitted by Mr. Owen Clarke, illusionist; the Palace Orchestra, and the Bioscope.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Frank Thorn's company is here this week in the play The Octoroon. Mr. Hugh Montgomery gives an able portrayal as Saleb Scudder; Mr. J. O. Stewart is seen to advantage as Jacob McClosky; Mr. Phil Harper does full justice to the rôle of Wahnotee; and Mr. Olive Birrell proves capable as George Peyton. Mr. Harry Leander is efficient as Pete; Mr. Albert Sinclair creditably depicts the rôle of Mr. Sunnyside; Miss Marie Harcourt acts with power and taste as Dora Sunnyside; Miss Florence Thorne is admirable as Mrs. Peyton; Miss Ethel Day is commendable as Grace; and Miss Ethel Brune is charming as Minnie.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Billy Ross and company give a smart boxing turn; Prof. Fred Earle is a clever conjurer; Ward and Davies (Howard and Louie) present a funny sketch, Wanted, a Typist; Fields and Lewis are successful in a burlesque act; Mr. Arthur St. George, vocalist, sings well; Miss Ethel Yorke, comedienne, is entertaining; and Miss Nellie Sheldon (character vocalist), Miss Maudie Kendal (vocalist and dancer), and Mr. Ted Clifton (comedian) ably contribute.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Heading the bill here this week are the Flying Eugenes, who evoke much enthusiasm by their marvellous gymnastic display; Marie Empress, comedienne, is well received; Fred Hastings, the funny comedian, is exceedingly good; May Mars, musical comedy girl; Gintaro, a neat juggler and top-spinner; and Gracie Moore, in her illustrated song, add appreciably to the success. Kent and Keith, comedy duologue artists; Sid Doody and Edie Wright, are well applauded; and the American Bioscope completes a capital programme.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—Really delightful singing is that of the Primrose Quartette, who head the bill here; Tell and Higgs score a big success in a speciality act; and Billy Hook and Daisy Eye cause laughter with their sketch. Cyril Carle faithfully impersonates the late Charles Godfrey in many of his songs; the Carney Brothers are capable duettists; Earle and Melville, accomplished comedians; and the Sisters Urma, neat performers on the bar. Mamie Iris, a dainty comedienne, and the Royal Bioscope pictures, are also attractions.

PARR HALL.—Lessee, Mr. J. Lyon Whittle.—The Dayton Family and combination are the attraction here this week, and good business has been done. The Daytons are exceptionally smart, and their wonderful feats cause astonishment. The Lauriers are also very clever; and Mlle. Fontain's Mannikins are well received. Other excellent turns are the Royal Pierrots, the Steinway Quartet, the Milfords, Harry Sanson, and George Bernard.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Kuner.—Messrs. Kennedy's Komiks are proving an excellent attraction here this week. Mlle. Lucretia, pantomime favourite, in her vocal entertainment, is a decided success; the performance presented by Mr. James Bert, interlocutor and entertainer, is full of interest; Mr. Dan Noble, comedian, in his latest songs meets with a hearty reception; the two Sisters Deare in their military march duets prove highly successful; and the pictures are good.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—My Sweetheart is being played here this week by Mr. Sydney Spenser's company. Mr. Ed. Rawlinson is responsible for the character of Tony, and acquits himself well; Tina has a vivacious representative in Miss Lizzie Hall; Joe Shotwell is well represented by Mr. Sydney Spenser; the parts of Harold Bartlett and Mrs. Fleeter have able exponents in Mr. Wilson Coleman and Miss Ada Champion; and Mr. John F. Traynor plays well as Dr. Oliver.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Mahatma's remarkable exhibition of second-sight and mental telepathy completely puzzles all; Wake and Dean, comedians, create much merriment; graceful dancing is done by the Twin Sisters Edwardes; Ailsa Douglas is a successful comedienne; the eccentricities of Lanos and Montes are very amusing; Blanche and Powell, in a drawing-room entertainment, win considerable applause; the Juggling Fitzgeralds and the Bio-tableaux conclude the list.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. M. Payne.—Mrs. Charles J. Kirke's company is here this week in In Old Madrid and The Naval Detective. On Monday night the former was presented. Mr. Leslie Austin gave a decidedly good interpretation of the dual rôle, Frank Lyndhurst and Count Corregillo; Mr. C. Chewde made an excellent Mentoza Stillagano; Mr. C. H. Matthews was a capital Fernando Cassilus; very praiseworthy was the Horatio J. Rogers of Mr. W. T. Hybert; and Mr. C. Burns did well as Marmaduke R. Fitzsimmons. Miss Francesca Strickland gave a fine impersonation of Violet Lyndhurst; Miss Louie Fountaine made the most of Lola Stillagano; as did Miss Seymour of Martha Jane; and Miss Edith Claris (Madeline Ellesmere), Miss Amy Shaw (Grace Featherstone), and Miss May Hawthorn (Maude de Vere) are all entitled to commendation.

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. John H. Stevenson.—The So and So's are making their first appearance here this week. Mr. Ernest Thiel sings humorously; Mr. Harold Johnson excels as a raconteur; Mr. Stuart Alexander's fine voice is heard to advantage; Miss Maude Davis is much applauded for her singing; Miss Gwynneth Power shows talent in her recitation, "Music in Our Street"; and Miss Hilda Poel was well received for her comedy items; whilst Miss Millie Gordon excels as a danseuse, Herr Kändt's Austrian Blue Band gains in popularity week by week, and new pictures are shown by the Lens Bioscope.

WHITBY.—SPA THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Payne Seddon.—Important improvements have been effected at this theatre and adjacent grounds since last season, the promenades having received extensive alterations and renovations, whilst the lighting is now of a much superior character. On Thursday last week the boards of the theatre were occupied by Mr. Monckton Hoffe's comedy company, in The Importance of Being Earnest, when a good house was present. The company gave an excellent rendering of the play throughout.

At the Waterloo Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday last week, Mr. Julian Bainbridge, supported by an efficient company, occupied the boards in Ingomar. Mrs. Boughton, in the rôle of Actea, provided a fine rendering; whilst the various other parts were creditably portrayed.

At the Temperance Hall, the Porlatos, a variety troupe, have appeared with much success, the entertainment being diverting, and the animated pictures particularly pleasing.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred. C. Somerfield present The Tyrant. The part of Homodel, the avenger, is powerfully enacted by Mr. Somerfield; and Mr. Roy Fortescue as Angelo, the tyrant, and Mr. John Cecil as Rudolph, Prince de Roma, are each capable exponents of the respective characters. Miss Marie Dagmar strikingly portrays the part of Tisbe; Miss Margaret Frame as Lady Catherine displays a strong personality, with marked histrionic ability; and Miss Olive Lloyd as Reginella imparts a lively humour into the piece.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. F. R. Benson's North Shakespearean company is here this week. Twelfth Night was played on Monday. Mr. Gerald Ames gave an interesting portrayal of Orsino; Mr. Henry Herbert made an excellent Malvolio; Mr. Ross Shore finely enacted the part of Sir Toby; being ably assisted by Mr. Esme Filmer, a quaint Sir Andrew. Miss Dorothy Green as Viola played with force and animation; and Miss Mary Webb's singing was greatly admired. Henry the Fifth, The Merchant of Venice, Macbeth, Hamlet, The School for Scandal, As You Like It, and The Taming of the Shrew, were also billed. On Friday, at a special flying matinée, Mrs. Patrick Campbell appeared in Magda.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. C. W. Collings.—This week, Rita and Roma, vaudeville entertainers, are a big attraction; Moneta and Ford, acrobatic comedy artists, are distinctly amusing; the Sisters Hula dance well; Miss Eva Searle, comedienne, and Fred Arno, actor-vocalist, also assisted materially in amusing the patrons. The animated pictures are both entertaining and instructive.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

THE following additions to the list of donations to the prize fund and the prizes for competition have been received since last week:—Moss Empires, Ltd., £2 2s.; Mr. Martin Harvey, £1 1s.; Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, £1 1s.; Mr. C. Thorogood, £1 1s.; Lord George Sanger, £1 1s.; Jerrard Grant Allen, 10s. 6d.; the Goswell Printing Co., 10s. 6d.; Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter have sent a handsome clock, Messrs. H. Lazarus and Son a chair; and the Bodie Drug Co. £4 4s. for advertisements in the programme.

THE following representatives of the committee appointed are: Mr. F. McMullen, electrician, the Court Theatre; Mr. Max Goucke, electrician, Camden Theatre; Mr. W. C. Weaver, the Lyric Theatre. Mr. H. G. Brooke, of the Duchess Palace, should have been announced in the last list as stage carpenter. Mr. A. W. Saunders writes to say he is the stage-manager.

THE committee of the Bioscope Operators' Association met on Tuesday last, Mr. J. Wood presiding, and a number of applications for membership were granted. Cards of membership have been issued, and those who have not received them are requested to communicate with Mr. Weedon, 29, Wellington-street, Strand, London. The next meeting will be on Tuesday, when all members in London are urged to attend.

THE award in the recent arbitration proceedings has not yet been issued. A general meeting of the members of each society concerned will be held in London on the first Sunday following the issue of the award.

THEATRICAL REGATTA

THE thirteenth annual Regatta of theatrical employees took place last Sunday, the course being the Putney Mile, on the Thames. The programme resulted as follows:—

RUM-TUM HANDICAP (distance half a mile).—Heat 1: W. Miller, 14sec. start, 1; E. Ryan, scratch, 2; F. Hemmings, 16sec., 3. Won by three lengths. F. Hemmings met with an accident and capsized. THE prizes were as follows:—The Dewar Challenge Shield, with gold medals for the winning crew presented by Mr. G. P. Huntley. The Haymarket Challenge Cup, presented by Messrs. Cyril Maude and Frederick Harrison. For the Challenge Pairs: 1st prize, tea service; 2nd, cruets. Rum-tum Handicap.—Silver cup presented by Mr. Cyril Maude, to be won twice in succession. 1st prize, marble clock; 2nd, gold-mounted umbrella; 3rd, silver-plated teapot. Open Fours.—1st prize, case of carvers. Swimming Handicap.—1st prize, silver watch and chain; 2nd, cruet; 3rd, a book.

THE prizes will be presented tomorrow (Sunday), at 9 p.m., at the Freemasons' Arms, Long Acre.

THE Regatta Committee are—E. Wright (Gaiety), F. Hemmings (Kennington Theatre), B. Leinsell (Grand, Fulham), F. Cooke (Grand, Fulham), W. Walker, and R. Forman (New Theatre). The hon. secretary is E. Callaghan, Apollo Theatre, and assistant hon. secretary G. Montgomery, Alhambra Theatre.

THE staff of the Theatre Royal, Colchester, had their annual outing on Saturday, when they paid a visit to the metropolis. Arriving at Liverpool-street at 9.30, the morning was occupied in visiting various places of interest. The "call" for dinner was 1 o'clock, at Pinoli's Restaurant, Wardour-street, W., where an excellent repast was served. Mr. F. Graham Macdona presided, and welcomed the staff, expressing his pleasure at meeting them again, and mentioning the regret felt by Mr. Charles Macdona at being unable to be present, owing to an important engagement elsewhere. The same remark applied to Mr. F. C. Upton, the esteemed manager of the "Royal."

DINNER over, a visit was paid to the London Pavilion, where, by the kindness of Mr. Frank Glenister, the manager, seats were reserved for the party in the dress circle. The return journey was made by the midnight supper train from Liverpool-street. The arrangements were made by the Hon. Secretary, Mr. H. O. Cousins, and the Assistant Secretary, Mr. G. R. Dawdry.

THE STATUS OF THE ACTOR.

The commonest fallacy cherished by many in regard to the actor's art, says Mr. H. B. Irving, in his essay on the above subject, is that it is the art of the mimic and nothing more, an art of sedulous imitation, offering no scope to originality or independent, intellectual exertion. A rough-and-ready answer to this common assertion is contained in the fact that good mimics are as a rule notoriously bad actors, and that obviously the sedulous imitation of actual men and women in the circumstances of our daily life can afford an actor little help in the portrayal of such creations of imaginative genius as Hamlet or Othello. That the art of acting had its origin, in common with the pictorial arts, in an imitation of nature, is possible and probable; that it soon passed from mere imitation to representation is certain; and therefore equally certain is it to my mind that, as a result of that transition, the actor is called upon, in common with other representative artists, to reproduce in idealised form that branch of nature—man—which is his especial study. As one great critic has tersely expressed it, "neither the poet nor the actor pretends closely to copy nature, but only to represent nature sublimated into the ideal," and it is this process of idealism that the actor must apply to every character he undertakes to portray, no matter how nearly that character may seem to approach to everyday reality, if he would present it conformably to those rules of correct and beautiful expression that are as imperative in the art of the theatre as they are in the arts that express themselves on canvas or in marble. The carrying out of this process calls on him for gifts of insight and imagination similar to those we look for in any other form of artist; and as insight and imagination of the highest order are employed in the creation by the poet of such transcendent beings as Hamlet or Lear, so in translating such beings into action, in putting them before the spectator as creatures of flesh and blood, insight and imagination of a high order will alone enable the actor to achieve that "union of grandeur without pomp, and nature without triviality," that supreme idealisation of man in action as we see him about us, which is the fitting and worthy complement of the art of the dramatic poet. Without in any way detracting from the share of the dramatist in the productions of the theatre, it must, I think, be admitted by anyone who takes the trouble to consider the question from an enlightened standpoint, that the actor is not the mere parrot-like reciter of the words of the playwright, that the higher the dramatist soars the greater is his need of some kind of intellectual response on the part of his actors, and that instead of setting up actor and author as rivals who are perpetually endeavouring to extend their frontiers at each other's expense, they should be regarded as equal participators in the highest achievements of the theatre.

The answer of G. H. Lewes to the question propounded by Diderot in his famous Parodoxe, How far does or should the actor really feel the passion he expresses? is not only interesting as a correct solution of a rather simple problem that has given rise to a good deal of ignorant and thoughtless comment, but shows us very clearly the point in his art where the actor is called upon to exercise a faculty for intelligent selection similar to that demanded from any other artist. "As in all art," writes Lewes, "feeling lies at the root; but the foliage and flowers, though deriving their sap from emotion, derive their form and structure from the intellect." Poet and actor must be capable of feeling the emotions they translate into word or action, but must be so far masters of themselves as to be able to select from their emotions those elements that will serve as materials for their art. "The sudden flash of suggestion which is called inspiration may be valuable, it may be worthless; the artistic intellect estimates the value, and accepts or rejects it accordingly." Passion and reflection are the two elements that, happily combined, compose great acting; for passion alone produces disordered results, reflection alone a cold and unreal imitation. If the combination be a rare one, that is a cause for constant regret; we may lament the absence of worthy exponents of an art to our heart's content, but we must not allow the absence of great acting to blind us to the fact that acting is a great art; those who deplore our modern acting, and call for its reform, too often forfeit our attention and respect by telling us at the same time that our art is contemptible and an unworthy employment for an intellectual man. Such criticism can only have the effect of placing the modern actor, who seeks to improve and develop his art, on the horns of a dilemma, from which, however, a moderate exercise of reason and common sense may successfully extricate him.

Another common objection urged against the claims of the actor's art to occupy a place by the side of other arts is that the actor's is an art for which no special training is required, his calling one into which anybody can enter, and, no matter how inferior his attainments, find immediate employment. But the same might be said of the art of literature, or the art of oratory. All those arts which have not, like music and painting, a visible technique written, so to speak, across their faces, which operates as an immediate deterrent to thoughtless aspirants, are liable to reckless invasion at the hands of people whose desires and ambitions are hopelessly in excess of their gifts. To write or to speak or to act seem uncommonly easy to a number of over-confident persons; some of these are content with merely regarding the art from a disrespectful distance, and nursing an obstinate conviction that they could easily practise it if they only took the trouble to try; others do try, and in course of time go to swell the melancholy army of those who have mistaken their vocations in life. But because bad literature, bad oratory, and bad acting are, like the poor, always with us, and there are probably few here who at various times in their armchair, at church, or in the theatre, have not suffered distress at the hands of incompetence in one or all of these forms, are we to deny that writing or speaking or acting, if thoughtfully, instead of thoughtlessly practised, reveal their rules of form and expression to those who cultivate them seriously, and demand the same lifelong adherence on the part of those who follow them in the hope of attaining to some measure of perfection, as the arts whose preliminaries are more obviously technical?

For purposes of legislation, and in everyday talk, all kinds of stage representation, each excellent in its way, are lumped together, and the exponents of these various forms of entertainment, in some of which the art of acting plays a comparatively subordinate part, are grouped together generically as actors and actresses. And thus it is that persons who have never acted in their lives, whose association with the theatre has been dumb and fleeting, do not hesitate to satisfy, when occasion demands, the exigencies of their country's justice by describing themselves on charge sheets and other legal documents of a melancholy character as actors and actresses. No calling is so rich in sutlers and camp-followers, because no calling is so easy to enter in some capacity or other, no term is so loosely employed as that of actor, and no calling offers to the outsider such seeming allurements to decoy the ignorant and unwary. We all of us have known, in some form or other, the glamour of the theatre to those who sit in front of the curtain. How many really well-informed persons find it difficult to believe that acting is not "such fun," and the whole business nothing but one long round of applause and suppers?

Mr. Charles Klein's latest work was produced here on Monday by the Répertoire Theatre Association, under the stage direction of Mr. A. Austin-Leigh. Dealing with the effects of trade unions on present-day industries, the author has powerfully depicted both sides of this momentous question—capital on the one hand and labour on the other. The gigantic firm of Milbank and Crosby, iron-founders and colliery owners, was carried on by two cousins, Richard Milbank and Mr. Crosby, sen.; but upon the death of the latter Richard Milbank retires from active management, and Crosby's two sons, Mathew and Reginald, join the board of directors and take up the reins of government. At the opening of the play their workers are out on strike, and their sister, Grace Crosby, has, in their opinion, brought disgrace upon the family by falling in love with John Stedman, who is helping the men in their struggle. Uncle Richard, who has been summoned to attend a family council, points out to Grace the folly of her becoming entangled with an agitator, and declares the family would be willing to receive Stedman as a suitor for her hand if he will give up his mission as the "People's Champion." Whilst Grace is pleading with Stedman to do this for her sake James Burress, a red-hot Socialist, summons Stedman to a meeting of the Central Council. Grace pleads with him not to go, but he has pledged his word, and cannot withdraw, even at the expense of losing his sweetheart, and he bids her good-bye.

Two months later Stedman is waited upon by James Burress and Louis Stolbeck, members of the Brotherhood, who inform him that they know he is in love with Grace Crosby, and they intend to report him to the Central Council as being unfit to represent the people. Stolbeck's daughter Louise, whom he has brought up as a "Daughter of the People," is madly in love with Stedman, and insanely jealous of Grace Crosby, and there is a dramatic incident between the two when they come face to face in Stedman's room.

Act III. opens on a sitting of the impromptu council. Burress, who has been waiting his opportunity to expose Stedman, learns that Grace is in the study, and goes to the door and calls to Miss Crosby that her friends are waiting to take her home. To his consternation, however, Louise comes from the room. Stedman is recommended to forward his resignation to the Central Council, but so forcibly does he expound his views that Grace can remain in the study no longer, but emerges and begs of him not to resign. The situation is saved, and a happy ending assured by the arrival of Uncle Richard, who invites Stedman and another of the men's leaders to go to his offices at noon the next day to arrange matters amicably.

The piece was admirably played all round, the chief honours falling to Mr. A. Austin-Leigh in the rôle of John Stedman. He brought his long experience to bear with advantage upon the part, and both in the love-scenes with Grace and in his advocacy of the rights of the people he supplied an impersonation of such undeniable excellence as to win for him frequent rounds of applause. Mr. Wallis Clark gave to the peppery, yet warm-hearted uncle, Richard Milbank, just the needed strength, and acted with convincing sincerity throughout. A rather unthankful character was that of Mathew Crosby, the man who is determined to keep the family name unsullied, and, above all, to crush the people. It was a difficult part, which needed delicate handling, and Mr. Arthur Royston was successful in every way. Mr. Ernest Cossart was responsible for the little comedy element which appeared in the piece, and played with quiet humour the rôle of Reginald Crosby. Mr. Robert Grey imbued with considerable force the part of the hopeless lover, James Thedford; and as the three red-hot members of the Brotherhood, Mr. Frank Stone as Louis Stolbeck, Mr. G. W. Elton as Oscar Lackett, and Mr. Henry Renouf as James Burress cleverly depicted the several parts. Mr. J. R. Lefane played successfully the small rôle of Patrick McCarthy, as also did Mr. H. G. Mason as the wavering mechanic Martin; whilst Mr. Richard Trieve was quite satisfactory as Parker. Miss Eily Malyon's delicate and tactful rendering of Grace Crosby was a delightful piece of acting, the character being clearly and artistically defined by this clever actress. Miss Cecil Cromwell as Louise Stolbeck acted with pathetic passion, her scene with Grace in the second act being the crowning success of an exacting part. Mrs. Cullen was good as Mrs. Reginald Crosby; and the maid, Paxton, was entrusted to Miss B. McIntyre.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, June 13.—This piece is not new to Berlin, but not having been given for a good many years it was unknown to most of the audience, who received it with enthusiasm. It has been done into admirable German, but the translator's name does not appear in the bill, and the acting was first rate. The age of the farce is forgotten in the genuine fun with which it is replete, and if the characters are not quite modern they are interesting enough to be warmly welcomed. The plot is no doubt known to your readers, so that a few words will be all that is needful. Perrichon is a typical parvenu, who, having made a fortune and disposed of his business, determines to enjoy his life at any cost. Above all, he means to travel and see the world, and to be seen and admired himself. The adventures he meets with by the way, and those of his wife and daughter, must be seen to be appreciated; there are a good many striking "situations," and the audience laughed with hearty good will.

SERIOUS plays are "off"; the Berliners cannot be got into a theatre in the summer unless they may be made to laugh, or—at least—enjoy their beer in a pleasant garden during the entr'actes. At the Deutches Herren Meinhard and Bernauer are giving a season of burlesque farce, which is proving very successful, and which will last until the re-opening of the theatre with the company proper on Aug. 8. The latest piece is Emil Pohl's burlesque, Der Jongleur, much the same kind of laughable nonsense as is Robert und Bertram, the piece that preceded it. Pohl has been dead many years, but his work lives after him, and as one of our critics tritely observes, there is more life in the dead farce-makers than in the living ones. It is genuine Berlin humour that sparkles in every scene, which humour—when really the genuine article—is not easily surpassed. The couplets, too, are funny, and were well interpreted, it fortunately not being requisite to be vocally gifted to deliver patter-songs. Herr Meinhard gave the rôle of a Saxon tailor capitally, and Herr Wassmann, Fräulein Hellmuth, Frau Grimm-Einodshofer, and others completed the good cast.

THE Royal Opera is fortunate in obtaining Miss Geraldine Farrar's presence at the close of the season, for without some great attraction Berliners prefer to spend the summer evenings out of doors. When the American cantatrice is announced there is a rush for seats, and the huge house is filled to the last place. Miss Farrar sang in Traviata, Faust, and Manon last week, each time with signal success. In connection with the annual review, the customary gala performance consisted this time of Donnizetti's Daughter of the Regiment—the Kaiser's own selection. It was not quite such a representative performance as is usually the case on such occasions; the name-part—which is one of Frau Hertzog's best rôles—was entrusted to Frau Erika Wederkind, of the Dresden Court Opera, and she was not in good voice. The same may be said of Herr Philipp, who gave the part of Tonio, but the remainder of the cast was good, and the chorus—under the conductorship of Herr von Strauss—was splendid. Great pains had been spent upon the misé-en-scène, which created universal admiration. Their Majesties, with their guests, applauded as heartily as anyone.

ON Monday, the 100th performance of Rienzi was pleasurably anticipated as something like a festival, the Germans always enjoying celebrating an anniversary. Disappointment was all the greater therefore when, at almost the very last moment, Die Meistersinger was put in the bill instead. The Royal management is, unfortunately, given to these sudden alterations, whereas theatres of lesser magnitude are more considerate.

A SPECIAL performance of Björnson's interesting play, Ein Falissement, was given on Sunday at the Royal Schauspielhaus by the Kaiser's commands. Their Majesties, with several members of the Imperial family, were present. The performance of Richard III., which was announced for that evening, and for which most of the tickets had been sold, was, in consequence, postponed until to-night. Herr von Wildenbruch's historical play, Die Rabensteinerin, is still holding a place in the bill, and Schiller's Wallenstein Trilogy is given this week, with Herr Matkowsky in the part of Wallenstein.

THE Deutsch-American Theatre has come to an abrupt termination, and the company are not only thrown out of employment, but have, unfortunately, little chance of getting the money due to them. The managers, Herren Paul and Adolf Philipp, suddenly threw up the reins after an unsuccessful season at the Karl-Schulze Theatre in Hamburg, leaving the artists to take their chance. One of the brothers left for America, the whereabouts of the other is not known.

AT the Bernhard-Rose Theatre on Wednesday a new detective play made a distinct hit, the house being crowded with a most enthusiastic audience. Herr Kurt Matull is the author, and the piece is entitled Der Grosse Unbekaunter. The action passes in London, the doubtful hero being nothing less than a "real live lord," and a genius in the art of burglary! This gentleman criminal is, of course, a very good fellow at heart, so that when he fools the police and evades imprisonment the sympathies of the audience are with him. As to the moral of such plays, that is, as the Germans say, a thing for itself. The acting was capital, Director Rose himself giving the rôle of the noble burglar. There is every probability of the piece running for some time.

Two new plays by popular authors have just been completed, both of which are to be produced here next season. One is a drama, in five acts and a prologue, entitled Das Wahre Gesicht, by Max Halbe. It is said to be highly tragic, with a somewhat conflicting plot, the action passing in Prussia under the Polish rule. The second piece is also a serious one—a two-act drama by Fritz von Briesen, bearing the title Die Sandbüchse, which is a North-German dialect term for a manor farm.

THE Prince Regent of Bavaria has definitely declined to grant Herr Mottl's resignation of the post of Court Kapellmeister, so that there is no chance at present of Mottl succeeding Herr Mahler as director of the Imperial Opera at Vienna. Those who profess to know, however, say the change is a mere matter of time.

MANAGERS AND INVESTMENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Rumours are continually reaching me that my different managers have, from time to time, lost money in theatrical ventures organised by me. I wish to state most definitely that no manager of mine has ever invested one penny piece in any of the theatres or touring companies I have controlled, and I am sure they would one and all be the first to contradict any such misleading statement.—Yours faithfully,

SAMUEL JAMES.

CHARITY AT THE LYCEUM.

The Lyceum was kindly lent by Messrs. Henry R. Smith and Ernest Carpenter on Tuesday for a matinée in aid of the Children's Seaside Holiday Homes, instituted by the Rev. A. B. C. Robinson, and a large audience responded to the call of charity, and hugely enjoyed the very attractive miscellaneous entertainment placed before them by the organising committee, headed by Mr. Ernest Carpenter, of which the hon. secretary was Mr. Charles Brooks.

One of the strongest and most exciting items in the long programme was the third scene of the second act of the piece, Her Love Against the World, which, by its marvellously successful run, has proved that Londoners have still a love of good melodrama well played. The excerpt was presented by the famous cast that has done so much to bring success to the house. Mr. Norman Partriege was again a strenuous and noble Eric; Mr. Eric Mayne, by his mixture of cool suavity and grim determination, realised the character of Ulric; Miss Valli Valli interested us all in the sayings and doings of Lionel Strathmere (Nello); and Miss Nora Kerin was entirely sweet and commendable as Iris; the other characters of the scene being effectively handled by Mr. Frederick Ross, Mr. S. Major Jones, and Mr. H. Chapin. Mr. Norman Partriege, Mrs. A. Chapin, Mr. Baliol Holloway, and Mr. Fred Grove were announced to play the Closet Scene from Hamlet; but Mr. Ernest Carpenter announced from the stage that, in consequence of the heavy work entailed in rehearsing the new Lyceum drama, Mr. Partriege felt himself unable to tax his powers further. Mr. George Graves was unable to appear in consequence of the loss of his wardrobe; Miss Evie Greene was unavoidably detained; Miss Billie Burke was kept away by the rehearsals of Mrs. Ponderbury at the Vandeville; and Mr. Alec Hurley wrote to say that Miss Marie Lloyd was indisposed, but enclosed a cheque for five guineas. Shakespeare was not, however, unrepresented at the matinée, the Tent Scene in Julius Cæsar being finely given by Mr. Basil Gill and Mr. Lyn Harding. Miss Constance Collier chose for her recitation Scott's favourite poem, "Young Lochinvar"; Miss Clarice Shirley and Mr. Harry Barford amused everyone by their presentation of the comic misunderstandings in A Pair of Lunatics; and Miss Valli Valli and Mr. Edmund Waller presented with considerable success a duologue by Scott Craven and J. D. Beresford, entitled The Compleat Angler, who in this case was undoubtedly Cupid. Mr. Waller played the part of the Hon. Wylie Walton, who instructs Patience in the art of angling, with the result that he himself is "hooked."

Mr. George Robey kept the house in roars while he sang "What are you looking at me for?" and "Good Queen Bess," with accompanying patter. Mr. G. H. Elliot, the chocolate-coloured vocalist, aroused the house to enthusiasm in his popular lilt, "If the man in the moon were a coon"; and there was hearty laughter for Mr. Charles Pond's clever skit on the out-of-work orator, entitled "On Strike." Other artists announced were Mr. Harry Buckland, Mr. Gus Oxley, Mr. Noel Fleming, Miss Ida Valli, Mrs. Lewis Waller, Mr. Stuart Edwards, Miss Lulu Valli, Miss Millie Lindon, Mr. Malcolm Scott, Mr. Austin Melford, Miss Annie Purcell, Miss Nina Martino, Mr. Will Van Allen, Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald, and Mr. Fred Grove. A picture, painted by Mr. Charles Wylie, was auctioneered from the stage by the genial Mr. Henry R. Smith, who eventually knocked down the pretty work of art to Mr. G. H. Elliot for £4 15s., Mr. George Robey's last bid being £4 10s. The Lyceum orchestra was under the able direction of Herr Raimund Pechotsch, assisted by Mr. A. Bond Sayers (by kind permission of the London Pavilion). The honorary stage-managers were Adolphe J. Tressidder (by permission of the London Pavilion), Ernest D'Auban (by permission of Drury Lane), S. Major Jones (Lyceum Theatre), and Harry Barford (Lyceum Theatre). A large number of pretty girls drove a rare trade in chocolates, bonbons, flowers, and programmes.

"AMY'S BURGLAR."

A Comedietta, by Leonard C. White, produced at the Public Hall, Croydon, on Tuesday, June 11.

Captain Neville ..... MR. ARTHUR ROWSELL
Amy ..... MISS WINIFRED WHITE

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This little play was produced at the Public Hall, Croydon, on Tuesday, and proved very interesting. When the curtain rises it is near midnight, and we find Amy waiting the return of her brother Jack, who has gone to a fancy dress ball with his friend, Captain Neville, whom Amy has never seen. She is alone in the house, and is very nervous, her agitation being increased when she reads in the newspaper of a daring burglary which has taken place in the neighbourhood the previous night. Her terror is at its height when she receives a visit from Captain Neville, who has won the first prize at the ball for an excellent impersonation of a burglar. Amy naturally takes him for the real article, and much amusement is caused by her nervous efforts to quiet the supposed house-breaker. In the meantime, Captain Neville has taken a fancy to his friend's sister, and when it is ultimately disclosed that he is only an imitation burglar it is evident that the affection is mutual, and will end in a love match. The story is pleasingly told, and we have nothing but praise for Miss Winifred White's charming portrayal of Amy. The rôle of Captain Neville was also capitally enacted by Mr. Arthur Rowsell.

FANNY COLEMAN MATINEE.

Once again was Mr. George Alexander's hospitality enjoyed in a kindly cause when, on Thursday afternoon, he lent the St. James's Theatre for the purposes of the complimentary matinée given to the veteran actress, Miss Fanny Coleman, to mark the completion of her fiftieth year of stage work. Mr. Alexander admirably represented the feelings of Miss Coleman's many admirers when he addressed the audience on the subject of the matinée. "There is one name upon this programme to-day," he said, "that I am sure fills you with greater interest than any other, and that is the name of Miss Fanny Coleman. As I know that it would cause disappointment if you did not, figuratively speaking, shake hands with her across the footlights, I have asked her to come forward."

After Miss Coleman had made her appearance on the stage, amid a perfect tornado of applause, Mr. Alexander, addressing her, continued: "I have prepared no speech to say to-day, but I am sure that, representing the profession which you have so honourably adorned, I can say that nothing could give us greater pleasure than to be here to-day and to show you in how much respect you are held by the actor and the actress. I took a hurried survey this morning of your career—an honourable career, of which anyone might be proud. You have been associated in the past with the greatest actors and actresses of their time, and it affords me unqualified pleasure to feel that within these walls you have shown the St. James's audiences the highest and most perfect forms of dramatic art. I have only now to wish you long life and happiness. The only regret I feel in connection with to-day's performance is that we are denied the satisfaction of seeing you act here this evening."

Miss Ethel James and Mr. Bernard Gawthorp started the programme with admirably-rendered songs, after which Mr. H. V. Esmond delivered in stirring fashion the lines of Tennyson's "Defence of Lucknow." The second act of Sudermann's Magda was then given, Mrs. Patrick-Campbell acting in finished style in the title-rôle, Miss Stella Patrick-Campbell making a pleasing appearance as Magda's sister, and Mr. Hubert Carter bringing tragic force to bear on the part of Lieut.-Col. Schwartze. Miss Helen Mar delighted her hearers with several funny stories, after which the audience had the pleasure of renewing acquaintance with The Liars, Sir Charles Wyndham playing his original part of Sir Christopher Deering, and Miss Mary Moore cleverly enacting the rôle of Lady Nepean, Mr. Eille Norwood that of Gilbert Nepean, and Mr. Thalberg Corbett that of Edward Faulkner. Miss Irene Vanbrugh caused some merriment with her recitation, "A Peculiar Attack"; and Miss Ada Reeve sang about the troubles of a mistress with her servants, and how in every case she had to "tell the girl she didn't suit." In A Quiet Rubber Mr. John Hare was seen at his best in his old part of Lord Kilclare, his wonderful acting and make-up exciting general admiration. Mr. Charles Groves made a capital study of the hot-headed Irishman, Mr. Sullivan, while Mr. Ivo Dawson as Charles and Miss May Martyn as Mary Sullivan acquitted themselves creditably. Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw and Miss Constance Collier appeared in The Mummer's Wife, an adaptation by Mr. F. Kinsey Peile of Catulle Mendes' La Femme de Tabarin. Mr. Robertshaw gave a realistically tragic portrayal of Raymond, the strolling player; and Miss Collier acted with convincing earnestness as the unfortunate Bianca. Mr. Lewis Waller, in his most virile style, recited Owen Meredith's poem, "The Portrait." Miss Lottie Venne and Mr. Eric Lewis took part in a delightfully amusing new duologue by Mr. Lewis, entitled Mr. Hunter and Mrs. Shooter, which was extremely well received; and Miss Eva Moore entertained the house with a recitation of "Pa's soft spot."

MISS FANNY COLEMAN AT HOME: THE VETERAN ACTRESS—FOR WHOSE BENEFIT A MATINEE WAS GIVEN AT THE ST. JAMES'S THEATRE ON THURSDAY LAST—IN HER KENTISH GARDEN NEAR LONGFIELD.

EDNA MAY'S UNDERSTUDY.

In Mr. Justice Ridley's Court on Tuesday Miss Ethel Newman sued Messrs. A. and S. Gatti and others for damages for breach of contract. They denied the breach, and pleaded a custom of the profession as a defence.

Mr. Lush, K.C., and Mr. Colam (instructed by Messrs. J. H. Mote and Son) were for the plaintiff, and Mr. C. F. Gill, K.C., and Mr. McCardie (instructed by Mr. J. D. Langton) for the defence.

Mr. Lush said the defendants, in February, 1906, were about to produce The Belle of Mayfair, to follow The Catch of the Season, and engaged Miss Edna May to take the leading part. They were desirous of securing Miss Ethel Newman as understudy, and Mr. Clark, their manager, saw her about it. She consented, and on March 6 a written contract was entered into. By it she was engaged for the run of the play to understudy Miss Edna May at a salary of £4 a week and £1 extra for each performance in which she filled the rôle. She also agreed not to appear at any other place of entertainment during her engagement without the consent of the defendants. At that time she was in receipt of a salary of from £10 to £15 a week, and the acceptance of this offer was a very heavy pecuniary loss, but she thought she could afford to sacrifice it for the sake of the opportunity she was given of the playing of Miss Edna May's part when that actress was unable to perform. The view the defendants now set up was that they were entitled to ignore her and ask some other lady to play it; that they should be able to call on her to play, but that she would have no corresponding right to play. On March 24 the piece was produced, and Miss Newman played at matinées and when Miss Edna May was indisposed. In the summer she heard rumours of an intention on the part of the management to ask someone else to take the part, and she protested to Mr. Clark. In July and August, when Miss Edna May went for her holiday, the plaintiff played the part, and did it to the satisfaction of the defendants. Miss Edna May returned in the first week of September, and resumed the part for about ten days, when she had some difference of opinion with the management and declined to continue. Miss Newman took the part and played it from Sept. 22 to Oct. 6, when, without any sort of complaint against her, and when she was under the belief that the part was hers, she suddenly found herself dispossessed by Miss Phyllis Dare. She was ignored, and asked to understudy the new principal. If she had ever contemplated any such possibility she would never have entered into the engagement. On Oct. 5 her solicitors wrote saying that it was stated in the newspapers that the part was being rewritten to suit the capabilities of Miss Dare, and that being so the plaintiff would decline to act as understudy to that lady, and claimed the right to perform the part till the end of the run of the piece. They also complained that while she was playing the part her name had not been advertised, in accordance with the custom of all West End theatres. The defendants replied that if she did not like to understudy Miss Phyllis Dare they would not object to her terminating her engagement. As a matter of fact, the contract involved an obligation on their part that the plaintiff should be in a position to carry out her part; in other words, they had warranted that there should be a part of Miss Edna May for her to understudy; it was their look-out if they quarrelled with that lady and not the plaintiff's. Her solicitors replied, saying that she did not wish to terminate the engagement, and reiterating her claim. On Oct. 8 the sub-manager wrote:

Dear Miss Newman,—There is a call for understudies at twelve noon to-morrow, which please attend. I have had no explanation of your absence from the theatre to-night and on Saturday night. I trust you will be able to supply me with a satisfactory excuse to-morrow.

The next day the sub-manager wrote again, saying that a doctor's certificate was the only excuse for absence he could accept. Her solicitors answered that she was quite willing to understudy Miss Edna May or to play her part, but that she declined to understudy Miss Phyllis Dare.

Miss Newman, in her evidence, said she had had eight or nine years' experience as an actress. She had played nearly all Miss Edna May's parts in the provinces, and for the last seven years had been receiving £9 to £15 a week.

When the case was resumed on Wednesday Mr. Ben Nathan, music-hall and theatrical agent, said that the form of contract with Miss Newman was most extraordinary. Under the ordinary agreement an understudy had no right to demand the part, but that custom would not apply to this case. In the ordinary agreement the understudy was engaged to understudy the part, but Miss Newman was engaged to understudy Miss Edna May.

Mr. Herbert Clark, manager of the Vaudeville Theatre, gave evidence that Miss Newman asked to be considered in any vacancy in The Belle of Mayfair. He replied that all the arrangements were complete, but subsequently she called, and they discussed the matter of understudying Miss May. The matter was embodied in the contract; he made no promise outside that. At that time the part had not been definitely settled; in fact, the play was altered, and the second act entirely rewritten afterwards. It was also being considered at that time whether the names of the characters should not be altered. When Miss Newman saw from the papers that Miss Phyllis Dare was to take the part, she said that as she had played the part for thirty-seven performances to the satisfaction of the management she might have had the chance of playing it on. He told her that they were perfectly satisfied with her work as an understudy, but she could not replace such a lady as Miss Edna May, who drew a very big salary and very big houses. It would not have spoilt her reputation to have understudied Miss Phyllis Dare, Miss Billie Burke, or Miss Edna May; they were principals, and she, as far as London was concerned, was an understudy. The engagement of principals was a question of drawing capacity.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree, in answer to Mr. Gill, said it was the practice to provide understudies for the principal actors and actresses who had to come to the theatre every evening to see if the principals had arrived. If the principal had arrived and was going to play, the understudy would leave the theatre if not engaged in a smaller part.

Under what circumstances is the understudy called upon to play?—In the event of the principal being ill or being late—(sotto voce)—golfing.

Mr. Gill: When you engage an understudy, is it the practice to engage a person of great importance, one of equal calibre to the principal, or a minor actor or actress?—Well, supposing at the present moment I have engaged at my theatre an actor to understudy my part, he has a minor salary. But if I were to fall ill, I should endeavour to get the most attractive man, in order that the public might continue to come and see the play. It would not be a case of ability but of popularity.

The same thing applies to all the principals. If an important lady went out of the bill, would you replace her by someone in the same position?—I might retain the understudy, or I might engage a person to attract the public.

Is that a matter you would allow the understudy to decide to claim the right to play?—No, merely moral suasion. The ordinary course is to engage a minor artist to understudy somebody else. In an emergency the understudy would play, and might play for the whole run if she leapt into an immediate popularity with the public; but in the ordinary way I should say: "This is a very serious matter. What can I do to fill that part without diminishing the audiences?"

Mr. Henry Dana, business-manager to Mr. Tree, and Mr. Charles Helmsley, manager at the St. James's, gave evidence that the contract with Miss Newman was not extraordinary. In their opinion an understudy had no right to claim to play in the absence of the principal.

Mr. Alfred Turner, acting-manager at the Playhouse, gave evidence to the same effect.

The jury found for the plaintiff, with £300 damages.

The case was mentioned on Thursday, when Mr. Lush, K.C., asked for judgment for the plaintiff. Mr. Gill, K.C., submitted that judgment should be entered for the defendants, on the ground that the agreement was for the Judge to construe, subject to the question whether there was any term of art in it which required explanation. The only word in it which required explanation at all was the word "understudy," and on that the evidence was all one way.

Mr. Justice Ridley said that if it had not been for Mr. Ben Nathan's evidence that the agreement was in an unusual form he should not have left the case to the jury. It was a question whether they held it or not. He did not, but the jury did. The balance of evidence was against the plaintiff, but the jury found in her favour. He should not have done so personally, but he was not entitled to say more than that. He could do nothing for the defendants, who must go to the Court of Appeal.

Judgment was entered for the plaintiff, with costs, with a stay of execution, £100 only to be paid into Court.

THE PROHIBITED "MIKADO."

In the House of Commons on Monday Mr. Trevelyan asked the Home Secretary whether the Lord Chamberlain had yet taken any steps to withdraw his prohibition of the production of The Mikado.

Mr. Gladstone said that the Lord Chamberlain had the matter under consideration at the present time.

Mr. Trevelyan: How soon will the decision be made known?

Mr. Gladstone: If that question is put next week I hope to be able to announce it.

Mr. George D. Faber: In view of the serious loss and inconvenience caused to innocent people, will the right hon. gentleman induce the Lord Chamberlain to hasten his decision?

Mr. Gladstone: I have no doubt that he will lose no time.

Mr. W. Redmond: Will the right hon. gentleman communicate with the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and get him to ask the Mikado if he has any real objection? I am sure that he has none.

Mr. H. C. Lea: Was the prohibition made in consequence of the visit of Prince Fushimi, and did the order emanate from the King? (Cries of "Order.")

No answer was returned.

Mr. George D. Faber: Has the Home Secretary no remedy to suggest to meet the case of the sufferers? Will the Government introduce a Bill providing that, after the granting of a licence for the production of a stage play it shall not be withdrawn unless the play has been materially altered?

Mr. Gladstone: I can promise no such Bill.

Mr. W. Redmond: Is the right hon. gentleman aware that there is being performed in a certain theatre in London a play which, from many points of view, is distinctly offensive to the Kaiser?

Mr. Gladstone: I am not aware of it.

Mr. W. Redmond: Well, it is quite as bad as The Mikado.

The Home Secretary, on the evening of the 7th inst., received a deputation in Leeds of gentlemen connected with amateur theatricals in Yorkshire, who urged the reinstatement of The Mikado. The Home Secretary stated that the power of action did not rest with his Department, but with that of the Lord Chamberlain's. He was, however, willing to do all he could to get the licence renewed. A new title would, no doubt, be necessary, and certain passages might have to be re-written. Some negotiations had, he believed, already taken place with a view to the opera again being produced, and if the deputation would express their views in writing he promised to use his influence in the direction of gratifying their wishes.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, June 10,
Mme. Jane Hading and Co., in
"FROU-FROU."

The management of this theatre is to be congratulated on their enterprise in bringing before their patrons Mme. Jane Hading and her Parisian company in Frou-Frou. The performance on Monday was one of artistic excellence, upon which every member of the company is to be congratulated. The large house was not slow to recognise the exceedingly effective work of the famous actress in the part of Gilberte (Frou-Frou). A clever and resourceful piece of acting was the Sartorys of M. Hauterive; and M. Arnaud gave a capital reading of Valréas. M. Luguet sketched a charming portrait of the light-hearted Brigard; Mlle. Laure Sureau brought all her ability to bear upon the character of Louise; the Baronne de Cambri was ably undertaken by Mlle. Alcimi-Leblanc; and the part of Pauline was effectively played by Mlle. Renée Sauer, M. Alcimi-Leblanc being an acceptable Baron.

On Tuesday and throughout the remainder of the week Hardie and Von Leer's company has been playing Two Little Vagabonds. The impersonations of Wally and Dick by Miss Edie Martin and Miss Josie Beltram are decidedly interesting; Miss Grace Harwood, as Marion Thornton, is to be praised for her natural charm, and in the more pathetic scenes she shows much skill as an actress; Miss Rosslyn Vayne displays talent in the rôle of Barbara Scarth; and Miss Evelyn Shaw is most successful in the part of Biddy Mullins. As George Thornton Mr. Douglas Vigors, in a part which suits his style admirably, has called forth much praise; Mr. Sydney Vautier has a suitable rôle in that of Captain Darville; and as John Scarth Mr. Dunstan Haye gives a performance of merit. Mr. Lionel Harris is good as Bill Mullins; and so are Messrs. Frank Gordon and Dick Winslow as Dido Bunce and the Coughdrop, his confederates. Mr. Harry F. Wright capably portrays Leeson, a soldier servant· and the same may be said of Messrs. Marston Moore (Hargitt), Thomas Blakeman (Dr. Lynn), Hugh Holliman (Gargoyle, the sexton), Henry Buckland (Whiffin), and W. T. Harris (footman). The acting of Miss Lena Vernon as Sister Randall is excellent, and the part of the maid servant, in the hands of Miss H. Leslie, deserves recognition.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, June 10, the Musical Farce, entitled
"THE OFFICERS' MESS."

After the heavy dramas of the last few weeks a pleasant change is made in the programme during the present one, and Mr. W. Penrhyn Forster's company are appearing in the new military musical farce The Officers' Mess. The libretto is from the pen of Mr. Cyril Hurst, who has written some very smart lyrics, while Mr. Mark Strong is responsible for the music, which is very tuneful and catchy, and proves him to be a composer of great merit. The bright particular star of the production is Miss Nellie Sheffield, who as Rose, the maid, is very charming, and works tremendously hard throughout. Miss Sheffield is well supplied with songs, her "Laughing Song" being quite the hit of the piece, though she scores very heavily with her "Newspaper Boy" number, and her dancing met with great appreciation. Mr. Harry Emeric is a most amusing comedian; and as Thomas Rugg he finds ample scope for his talents, and keeps the fun going merrily all the time. Miss Edith Harmer is a very pretty Sybil Carruthers, who acts and sings delightfully, and her song "Please keep away" was very daintily rendered, and was encored. The General is capitally played by Mr. L. Cadwaladr, who fills the part admirably; while Lady Constantia is ably portrayed by Miss Clara Nicholls. Mr. P. Gedge Twyman is smart as the Hon. Claude Melville; a very amusing character is Antonio Wilkins, the theatre manager, which is most amusingly played by Mr. Charles D. Cleveland, who has a very smart song about the troubles and trials of a manager. Miss Mabel Lawrence is smart as the Call Boy; Miss Essie Perrin contributes some very taking dances during the evening; and the Alston Troupe also acquit themselves well and do much good work in the chorus line. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. A. L. Spittle, and adds in no small measure to the enjoyment of the play. Mr. Robert Arthur has introduced an innovation at this theatre in the form of a gramophone entertainment, which is given by Messrs. Imhof and Mukle on the Auxetophone each evening before the curtain rises.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, June 10,
the Drama, by Arthur Shirley,
"THE MIDNIGHT MAIL."

Sensationalism is rampant this week at the Coronet, where Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company, under the direction of Mr. James Willard, is appearing in Arthur Shirley's melodrama, The Midnight Mail. The scene where beery Billy Brewer drugs the easy-going signalman, Jasper Thornleigh, and jambs the lever, Harry Steyne, the weak-minded hero, being just in time to avert a catastrophe, and the scene of the famous struggle on the engine of the midnight mail, are both exciting enough to please the most exacting lover of sensation. The part of the vacillating hero, Harry Steyne, an engine-driver who continually changes his mind according to whether duty or the craving for drink is uppermost, is played by Mr. George Harvard with rugged force and virility. Mr. Fred G. Evison dominates the play as the drunken reprobate Billy Brewer, late stoker on the London and Something or Other Railway, and the audience first roar with delight at his comicality, and then hiss vehemently his wicked ways of deceit and depravity, which do not stop short at murder and outrage. He works hard and successfully in the part. Mr. Austin Mortimer as Leonard Royle, an African explorer; Mr. Charles Spencer as the villainous Hassan Padisha, a Turkish adventurer; and Mr. Harry Emmerson (who stage-manages the show) as the extremely lenient manager of the line, all act well and in keeping with their parts. Miss Ada Oakley makes a pretty and sympathy-evoking heroine, Mary Steyne, the anguish-stricken wife and mother. Miss Sandford as Lady Phyllis Eustace also appeals to the emotions successfully; and Miss Mildred Carr is arch and bright in the small part of Nancy Brewer, the lady who is living a life of "gilded infamy." Mr. H. Dobell Lyle, who is the acting-manager, enacts the part of the criminally negligent signalman, Jasper Thorndyke; Mr. J. Ingledew is a genial Irish Sergeant of Police, chock full of generous sentiment; and the other parts are satisfactorily rendered. The general manager and producer is Mr. James Willard. Mr. Edward Lytton informs us the piece was first produced at the Coronet about five years ago.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, June 10,
the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"EAST LYNNE."

The popularity of East Lynne seems never destined to wane, and it is highly gratifying to find that such a wholesome drama still evokes so much favour with the playgoing public. "If you have tears prepare to shed them now" has been Mr. Bailey's motto in Marylebone this week, and certainly plenty of sympathy has been showered on Miss Julie Kennard, whose portrayal of the erring Lady Isabel touched the sympathetic West Londoners to the quick. Mr. Alfred Beaumont gave a finished representation of Archibald Carlyle; Mr. Frederick Harker brought the polished villainies of Sir Francis Levison well to the fore; Mr. Spencer Goodwin was suitably cast as Lord Mountsevern; Mr. C. C. Gratian enacted the irascible Justice Hare in clever fashion; Mr. Cyril Hayward did exceedingly well as Lawyer Dill; Mr. Harry C. Rutland's efforts as Richard Hare deserve every credit; whilst Mr. Alfred Tate kept the house in a titter with his skilful delineation of the moralising guardian of the law, P.C. Bullock. Miss Ethel Hardacre impersonated Cornelia Carlyle with good effect; Miss Ethel Savill made many friends as Barbara Hare; Miss Jessie Sydney did well as Joyce; and Miss Jessie Bayes touched many hearts with her gentle portrayal of Little Willie. The piece was well staged, and received with much favour.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, June 10,
the Comedy Drama, in Three Acts,
"THE BROKEN MELODY."

Mr. Auguste Van Biene has had many pleasant experiences during the five thousand times on which he has appeared in The Broken Melody, but it is doubtful if any were more gratifying than that which awaited him at Kennington Theatre on Monday, when he opened a fresh tour with this ever-welcome play. The house was crowded in every part with an enthusiastic and appreciative audience, who insisted on repeated encores of the charming music which has made Mr. Van Biene famous. There was a great scene of enthusiasm in the second act, but the culminating point was reserved for the end, when the eminent actor-musician was called before the curtain, and had to make a bright little speech to his admirers before they would disperse. Of Mr. Van Biene's 'cello playing, what can be said that is new? It was as delightful as ever, and his impersonation of the part of Paul Borinski was conceived in a spirit which left nothing to be desired. Mr. Van Biene was supported by a powerful company, the various members of which were happily placed, and skilfully carried out their respective parts. As Mabel Borinski Miss Lena Burnleigh played with charming grace, and in the second act was seen to especial advantage. Miss Grace Lester enacted the somewhat difficult rôle of the Duchess de Verriers with considerable skill. Mr. Henry Ludlow made an excellent General Ivanoff; and Mr. Edward Van Biene was very good as Dickson. Mr. Herbert Colley made a great deal of merriment by his amusing interpretation of the part of Mortimer; Mr. Dudley Stuart deserves warm praise for the manner in which he impersonated Beaujoir; Miss R. Pulleyne as the Hon. Mrs. Spinnaker and Mr. Archie Selwyn as the Hon. Richard Spinnaker did remarkably well; and Mr. W. Thomson was admirably placed as Dr. Magrath. Miss Margaret Gordon could not very well be bettered as Mrs. Dickson; and Miss Mannering left nothing to be desired as Miss Gerrard. The staging and accessories are quite up to Mr. Van Biene's standard, and the orchestral music is well rendered under the direction of Mr. Percival Goffin.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday June 10, the Drama, entitled
"THE MYSTERY OF A HANSOM CAB."

The above drama is the first of four which are to be performed on the two-houses-a-night system, and Mr. Samuel James has got together a capable stock company for the performance. Mr. George Denham as Brian Fitzgerald, a young Irish gentleman, gives an excellent study; Mr. Edward Thane is a satisfactory Mark Frettleby; and as Roger Moorland, an adventurer, Mr. C. Lodge Percy gives one of his usual competent renderings. Mr. George Arthur, first as Oliver Whyte, the murdered man, and later as a detective, is good; and Mr. Albert Wainwright well fills the part of Carlton, a solicitor; Mr. George Wallace plays Felix Roliston, a man about town. Miss Hilda Baynton is a charming Madge Frettleby, and Miss Florence Lovell is particularly good as Rosanna Moore, the mother of Sal. Quite the best performance in the cast is given by Miss Winnie White as Sal, the waif. Mother Guttersnipe is quite safe in the hands of Miss Thurston, and Miss Ethel Green is a clever little Cora Featherweight. The remaining characters are all well filled, and the staging leaves nothing to be desired.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, June 10, the Play, by Walter Howard, entitled
"A LIFE'S REVENGE."

Mr. Samuel James' capable company is doing full justice to this powerful and romantic play, and all concerned are meeting with well-deserved success. Mr. Charles East as Prince Boris Strogoroff presents an impressive and clever study of a difficult character; Mr. H. Gray Dolby is excellent as Michael Orloff; Mr. David G. Noble is an earnest and artistic representative of the hero, Paul Starovitch; and Mr. G. Montague Lane plays Maurice Trevor admirably. Mr. Will Skelton is good as Nicholas; Mr. J. E. Manning is an entertaining Colonel Tumbleoff; Mr. Geo. K. Ashley plays capitally as Clarence Chesterfield; and Mr. Edward Malone, Mr. Martin Edwin, Mr. George Gibson, Mr. Frank Liddle, Mr. Tom Williams, Mr. Frank Ingle, and Mr. Tom Myles are all adequate representatives of their respective characters. Miss Louise Hampton is a delightful Princess Vanda Ivgala, gentle, womanly, and altogether lovable; Miss Grace Emery is bright and pleasing as Daphne Dashaway; Miss N. Lucas is an attractive Aculina, and Miss East Robertson as Marcia Vittoria gives a fine rendering of the part, and one greatly appreciated by the audience.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Tuesday, June 11, and following nights,
the Elizabethan Stage Season,
"THE MERCHANT OF VENICE."

At the Fulham Theatre this week the Elizabethan Stage Society are giving, under the direction of Mr. William Poel, six performances of the Merchant of Venice, "after the manner of the sixteenth century." The modern playgoer will miss the changing scenery, the elaborate costumes of the period, and the glare of the footlights; he will also miss the tedious waits between the scenes. The back and wings of the stage are simply draped and arranged for exits and entrances. No sooner has one set of actors left the stage than the next appears, and thus there is no interval to break the continuity of thought. The costumes are frankly more English than Venetian for the most part, and Portia might have borrowed her dresses from the well-stocked wardrobe of Queen Elizabeth herself. Yet in spite of these eccentricities (which are probably quite correct historically), there is a stately simplicity about the proceedings that will appeal even to the average modern playgoer, and much more to the student of the drama and the lover of fine English. Of the acting, it may be said at once that it is of more than average merit, and characterised by great care and thoughtfulness; in fact, the whole rendering of the play, in spite of the apparent simplicity, suggests that infinite care has been taken with every detail, and, as a rule, the elocution of the actors was admirable. Mr. William Poel is responsible for the production, and also undertakes the part of Shylock. This was a scholarly and refined performance, quite logical, and full of life-like touches. Mr. Lionel Atwill was a good Bassanio; and Mr. B. A. Pittar was a dignified and touching figure as Antonio. Mr. Lionel Belmore was full of spirit as Gratiano, and both he and Mr. Benfield as Launcelot showed a nice sense of humour. The female characters were not (as in the days of Elizabeth) acted by boys, but by ladies. "Master" Margaret Bussé gave an excellent rendering of Portia, and was well supported by "Masters" Lyle McGrath as Nerissa and Winifred Mayo as Jessica. The other characters were ably handled; there was an absence of staginess and a natural dignity of manner about them that was very pleasing, while doubtless the absence of scenery enabled much more care to be devoted to stage-management and elocution, with excellent results. In fact, the whole performance reflects the greatest credit on the management, and should prove intensely interesting to the lover of Shakespeare, and even the casual playgoer will find it well worth a visit.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, June 10, the Drama,
"LIFE'S SWEETEST SINS."

This piece, with its improbabilities, sensational developments, and thrilling situations, is well played here. As Captain Harold Marston Mr. T. Arthur Jones acts in a quiet and convincing manner. Mr. Oswald Douglas takes full advantage of the opportunities offered him in the character of the villainous, scheming Dr. Colebrooke. Kimberley Coutts (alias Flash Jim) and the Rev. E. Grey (alias Sam, the Scribe) are presented respectively by Messrs. Robert Swain and J. A. Whitehouse. Ernie Woodstone finds an able representative in Mr. Alexander Wills. Miss May Ainslie is extremely successful in the rather unthankful character of Fay Colebrooke; and Miss Marie Daventry as Doreen Rivers, the heiress, gives an impressionable study of this important character. Miss Marion Armitage as Bess Crayson and Mr. Edgar Morgan as Bob Tanner, a valet, are jointly responsible for some very amusing scenes; in which they are assisted by Mr. Sydney Belmoré as Jack Larkey, a sailor. Other minor characters are in safe hands. The submarine boat afloat and on the bed of the ocean, in the third act, is aptly described on the programme as an admirable transformation scene.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, June 10,
the Drama, by S. Buchanan Rogerson, entitled
"THE WOMAN WHO GAMBLES."

This week we have a visit from another of Mr. T. Morton Powell's companies in The Woman Who Gambles. The play is very ingeniously constructed and full of exciting situations, the last act especially being fertile in surprises. With scenery of unusual effectiveness, aided by excellent acting, it is not surprising that the play has been attracting good audiences. Miss Lillian Herries wins sympathy and applause for the unhappy heroine, Countess Natalie Steinbach, and her mania for cards and her subsequent repentance and self-sacrifice for her husband's sake are most effectively rendered. Mr. George Steele delivers his lines well as the brave and true-hearted Count Otto Steinbach; and Mr. Percy Ballard gives a firm and impassioned reading of the character of the wicked Baron Cratzlaw. Miss Lillian Rignold is a bright and engaging Zilla Zeyalda; and Mr. Owen Edwin aids her in the fun-making as the foolish but good-hearted Hon. Bertie Bray. Mr. Sam S. Wilford is very amusing as Peter Peteroff; while Miss Lily Malvern does all that is possible with the unthankful rôle of Stella Melakoff. Mr. Reginald Fox is excellent as the brave and self-sacrificing Lieut. Carl Ctzarteriski; and Miss Dora Thrale soon makes herself a popular favourite as Cora Gouldhart. Mr. Arthur Brandhurst as George Orloff and Mr. Ernest Herbert as Stambuloff ably contribute to the general success of the evening.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, June 10,
"MY SWEETHEART."

Brixton Theatre patrons have this week been made quite happy by Mr. David James's capital presentation of My Sweetheart. Mr. Edwin H. Wynne gives a finished delineation as Tom Faust, his German accent being admirable throughout, and in his rendering of the many numbers allotted to him and in his duets with Tina he is very successful. His songs, "Go to sleep, my darling" and "Peek-a-boo," are repeatedly encored. Miss Christine Rayner is a delightfully unaffected and demure Tina Hatzell, and captivates all by her dainty dancing and bright gaiety; Miss Adah Barton as Mrs. Fleeter gives a telling portraiture of an unprincipled adventuress, and deserves praise for the force she throws into her performance. As the cool, calculating villain, Harold Bartlett, Mr. Gerald James is well suited. Mrs. Hatzell is vigorously played by Miss Pollie Marshall, who thoroughly realises the energetic old farmwife, and creates much merriment. Mr. W. J. Robertson gives a careful rendering of Doctor Oliver, and speedily secures the approbation of the audience. The clever, carefully thought-out impersonation by Mr. Fred W. Leonard of the brokendown sport, Joe Shotwell, earns a large propertion of the applause of the evening. Mr. Fred Maye is distinctly funny as Dudley Harcourt, and evokes peals of laughter; Mr. Alfred White is successful as Farmer Hatzell, and Master Varey completes the cast as Peek-a-boo. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Geo. Carter, does excellent work.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, June 10,
Wilson Barrett's Drama, entitled
"THE SLEDGE-HAMMER."

Mr. George Henry's company, by arrangement with G. M. Polini, appeared in this stirring play at the Royal County Theatre on Monday night, and during the week, and it was received with marked favour at each performance. Mr. David Hamilton sustains the rôle of the farmer and farrier, Matthew Derrick; and his three sons, Everard, Jacob, and Simon are impersonated with much success by Messrs. Alfred Burrows, A. Bertram Croucher, and Hardy Macro respectively; the part of Cornelius Derrick is ably embodied by Mr. Bert Howard; Miss Ethel Stuart makes an acceptable Martha Derrick; and Miss Jessie Hope acquits herself well as Rose Maywell, Matthew Derrick's adopted daughter. The play was excellently staged, the last scene, in which the exciting fight with sledge-hammers takes place between two of the Derrick brothers, being a realistic piece of acting.

"THE GOLDEN GOOSE."

Musical Comedy Burletta, in Two Scenes, by J. Hickory Wood, produced at the Theatre Royal and Opera House, West Bromwich, on Monday, June 10.

Widow Wank ..... Mr. John E. Barrie
Jack ..... Mr. Willie Lomas
Landlord ..... Mr. Charles Baker
Sheriff's Officers ..... Walker and Baker
The Golden Goose ..... Mr. Robert Pender

The story opens outside the house (or, as the piece is written, the shoe) of Widow Wank. This lady is supposed to have gone to market with her farm produce, consisting of eggs, butter, &c. On her return with her donkey and cart she is run into by a party of motorists. A general spill gives fine scope for a regular pantomime rally, of which advantage is of course taken. Trouble quickly overtakes the unfortunate widow, who is unable to meet the demands of her landlord. He arrives on the scene with a couple of eccentric sheriff's officers to eject her. Previous to this happening, a stray goose strolls into the garden of the widow, who decides to give the bird a home. A wise resolve indeed! For the goose lifts the cloud of misfortune by presenting to the widow a number of golden eggs each larger than the previous one. Of course the landlord, noting the widow's sudden access of wealth, makes vigorous overtures to her. All this takes place in the midst of a concourse of villagers and motorists. A compromise is arranged, and all are taken to the Golden Palace, the Magic Home of the Goose. Magic it truly is, for in the brief space of ten seconds we are transferred from the humble abode of the widow to a magnificent Palace scene. Here revelry of a very high order is indulged in, the climax being reached when the widow accepts the hand of her once oppressive landlord. The principal parts were effectively played by Mr. John E. Barrie (Widow Wank); Jack, Mr. Willie Lomas; the Landlord, Mr. Chas. Baker; and Messrs. Walker and Baker, who caused an amount of fun as the Officers. The title-rôle was most cleverly interpreted by Mr. Robert Pender.

IRISH PLAYS.

The Irish National Theatre Company, Limited, from the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, have once more claimed the attention of London playgoers this week with a répertoire of plays, mostly of the one-act variety. On their previous visit it will be remembered that they presented several interesting works in the St. George's Hall, and this week their venue has been the Great Queen-street Theatre, where on the evenings of our visits the house was filled in all parts.

Monday was set apart for the first production in London of a Comedy, in Three Acts, by J. M. Synge.

Christopher Mahon ..... Mr. W. G. Fay
Old Mahon ..... Mr. J. M. Kerrigan
Michael James Flaherty .. Mr. Arthur Sinclair
Margaret Flaherty ..... Miss Maire O'Neill
Shawn Keogh ..... Mr. F. J. Fay
Philly O'Cullen ..... Mr. J. A. O'Rourke
Jimmy Farrell ..... Mr. Ernest Vaughan
Widow Quin ..... Miss Sara Allgood
Sara Tansey ..... Miss Brigit O'Dempsey
Susan Brady ..... Miss Cathleen Mullamphy
Honor Blake ..... Miss Annie Allgood

That peculiar Hibernian sense of humour which discovers in the obsequies of a relative or friend a cause for uncontrollable jollification and general congratulation is part of the theme which Mr. Synge brings before us in The Playboy of the Western World. The "playboy" is Christopher Mahon, who, having had a quarrel with his father, strikes the old man on the head with a spade, or what is known in Ireland as a loy, and leaves him for dead. Christopher eventually finds his way to Flaherty's public-house in a village on the coast of Mayo. Here he is worshipped as a hero when he tells the people that he has killed his own father. Indeed, so much is he esteemed by the women for his horrible deed that two of them fall desperately in love with him. One of these ladies is Margaret Flaherty, daughter of the publican, and the other is the Widow Quin. They quarrel over the worthless Christopher, but Margaret assumes the rôle of top-dog, and orders the Widow Quin out of the house. Margaret even goes so far as to jilt her meek-and-mild sweetheart, Shawn Keogh, who had never attempted to make himself popular by killing his "da." And, shure and begorra, as Christopher had committed no weekday kind of a murther, but a thing that would make the peelers afeard of following him, what wonder that a fine, prancing lass of county Mayo should kneel at his feet in admiration, and worship him with heart and soul! Why, as the entranced Margaret says, it was near time such a foine lad as him should have his good share of the earth. Truth to tell, though, the "peelers" are not in search of Christopher; but the foine lad's own father is afther him, for he is not dead after all. Bandaged he is, and it is clear from the story he tells as he comes upon the scene that there seemed at one time a likelihood of his dutiful offspring dancing at his wake. Old Mahon is only prevented from giving his son an ignominious thrashing by the interference of the publican's family, who themselves wish to be revenged for the trick they consider has been played upon them. Christopher is no hero now, for his parent is very much alive, and everyone denounces the younger man in unmeasured language, and are with difficulty restrained from handing him over to the police. Margaret also vents her rage upon her erstwhile lover, whom she now renounces, and the little play of the playboy comes to an end.

The piece was extremely well acted. Miss Maire O'Neill, a young lady of much personal charm, played in an attractive manner as Margaret; and Mr. W. G. Fay presented an interesting and at times amusing character-study of the playboy. Other rôles were capitally enacted by Miss Sara Allgood as the Widow Quin, Mr. F. J. Fay as Shawn, Mr. J. M. Kerrigan as Old Mahon, and Mr. Arthur Sinclair as the publican.

Lady Gregory's one-act comedy, Spreading the News, was also presented on this and other evenings, Mr. W. G. Fay delighting everybody with his comical characterisation of Bartley Fallon; Miss Sara Allgood ably delineating the sorrows of Mrs. Fallon, and Mr. F. J. Fay appearing as the magistrate.

On Tuesday three one-act plays new to London were produced, and Spreading the News was repeated. The first item on the programme was a One-Act Play, by J. M. Synge.

"RIDERS TO THE SEA,"

Maurya ..... Miss Sara Allgood
Bartley ..... Mr. W. G. Fay
Cathleen ..... Miss Maire O'Neill
Nora ..... Miss Brigit O'Dempsey

This is a very morbid work, and shows Mr. Synge in quite a different mood from that which he gave evidence of in The Playboy. In a cottage on an island off the west coast of Ireland Maurya an old woman, sits grieving over the loss of her five sons, who have all been drowned. Now the sixth, and last, is about to ride down to the sea. She foresees his death and prophesies it. Later, and after a good deal of most depressing conversation has taken place between the old dame and her two daughters, the dead body of her son is carried into the cottage, borne on a stretcher. Miss Sara Allgood acquitted herself most creditably as the morose and bereaved mother; and Mr. W. G. Fay as Bartley, her son, and the Misses Maire O'Neill and Brigit O'Dempsey as the daughters submitted praiseworthy representations.

The second piece was

"THE JACKDAW,"
a Comedy in One Act, by Lady Gregory.

Joseph Nestor ..... Mr. F. J Fay
Michael Cooney ..... Mr. W. G. Fay
Mrs. Broderick ..... Miss Sara Allgood
Tommy Nally ..... Mr. Arthur Sinclair
Sibby Fahy ..... Miss Brigit O'Dempsey
Timothy Ward ..... Mr. J. M. Kerrigan

Mrs. Broderick keeps a little general shop, and is in financial straits, so much so, indeed, that she expects the bailiffs to take possession in a few hours. She goes to explain matters to the county court judges while her friend, Joseph Nestor, looks after the shop. Michael Cooney, Mrs. Broderick's brother, who has been away from the country, enters, hears how matters stand, and hands to Nestor banknotes to relieve the widow, instructing him not to inform her who the donor is or how he came by them. Nestor offers Mrs. Broderick £10 for her worthless old jackdaw, and, of course, the lady agrees to the bargain. The villagers, hearing that huge sums of money are being paid for birds by some crank of a visitor, bring jackdaws' eggs to the shop in the hope of securing a small fortune. The laughable situations to which this gives rise were brought before us in the most entertaining style by, among others, Miss Sara Allgood as the widow, Mr. W. G. Fay as her brother, and Mr. F. J. Fay as the advising and comforting Nestor.

Very wearisome and depressing was a Play, in verse, by W. B. Yeats.

"THE SHADOWY WATERS,"

Dectora ..... Miss Darragh
Forgael ..... Mr. F. J. Fay
Arbric ..... Mr. Arthur Sinclair

This is really poor stuff, and everybody in the theatre on Tuesday evening was heartily bored with it. In fact, a general sigh of relief went up when the dropping of the curtain at last announced that it was actually over—an event everybody had been expecting and hoping for fully half-an-hour before it happened. Mr. Yeats tells us in an explanatory note that "The Shadowy Waters, though there is much incidental Irish legend here or there, is not founded on any particular story, and should explain itself to any auditor who can understand, let us say, the love poetry of Shelley. Forgael, dissatisfied with an earthly love, seeks together with the woman chance—or destiny—has cast before him unearthly love beyond what seems to be the limits of the world. By his magic harp he plunges her into the illusions of love which become real, and they pass away from what seems real."

We do not think that Mr. Yeats is justified in associating the "love poetry of Shelley" with this unsatisfactory "play in verse." But we must admit that it was excellently acted, and that the lines, bald as they were in the poetic sense, were beautifully delivered by Miss Darragh, Mr. F. J. Fay, and Mr. Arthur Sinclair.

Wednesday evening saw the production of

"THE GAOL GATE,"
A Tragedy, in One Act, by Lady Gregory.

Mary Cahel ..... Miss Sara Allgood
Mary Cushin ..... Miss Maire O'Neill
The Gatekeeper ..... Mr. F. J. Fay

This was another depressing item. Mary Cahel, an old woman, accompanied by her daughter-in-law, comes to the gaol to enquire after her son, and finds, after a lengthy conversation with the gatekeeper, that he had been hanged a few hours previously. There is a good deal of miserable wailing, and that is about all that can be said of the piece. Miss Sara Allgood, Miss Maire O'Neill, and Mr. F. J. Fay adequately carried out the authoress's melancholy ideas.

Very different is

"THE RISING OF THE MOON,"
A Play, in One Act, by Lady Gregory.

Ballad Singer ..... Mr. W. G. Fay
Policeman Z ..... Mr. Arthur Sinclair
Policeman X ..... Mr. J. A. O'Rourke
Policeman Y ..... Mr. J. M. Kerrigan

This practically amounts to a conversation between two men—one a homeless individual, in the guise of a ballad singer, escaping from the law, and the other a sergeant of police, who is on the look-out for him. There are several extremely amusing passages between the two men, and the ballad singer gains the other man's sympathies to such an extent that he is actually assisted to escape from the law, in spite of the £100 reward that is offered for his detection. Mr. W. G. Fay was highly diverting as the ballad singer, and Mr. Arthur Sinclair acted well in the rôle of the Sergeant.

The same authoress is to be congratulated upon what was undoubtedly the cleverest and wittiest of all the plays that have been presented during the week. This was

"HYACINTH HALVEY,"
A Comedy, in One Act, by Lady Gregory.

Hyacinth Halvey ..... Mr. F. J. Fay
James Quirke ..... Mr. W. G. Fay
Fardy Farrell ..... Mr. Arthur Sinclair
Sergeant ..... Mr. J. A. O'Rourke
Mrs. Delane ..... Miss Sara Allgood
Miss Joyce ..... Miss Brigit O'Dempsey

Hyacinth Halvey is a weak-minded but perfectly virtuous young man, who comes to the village of Cloon with all manner of testimonials, which he is foolish enough at first to read aloud to certain gossips who are not slow in spreading the news of Halvey's manifold good qualities. Indeed, the young man gets so heartily disgusted at being regarded as a milk-and-water nincompoop that he actually and purposely "lifts" a dead sheep which is hanging outside James Quirke's, the butcher's, shop, and throws the carcase into a ditch. Then he comes back and takes delight in boasting of his crime, and is surprised when Quirke embraces him lovingly and tells him that he has rendered a noble service. The fact is, there had been complaints about the worthy Quirke's meat, and an inspector had been instructed to examine the butchery store. The sheep not being in evidence, Quirke was saved from an unpleasant prosecution. The playlet is exceedingly laughable from beginning to end, and was capitally played by Mr. F. J. Fay as Halvey, Mr. W. G. Fay as Quirke, Mr. J. A. O'Rourke as a sergeant of police, Mr. Arthur Sinclair, and the Misses Sara Allgood and Brigit O'Dempsey.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.

Mr. George Alexander kindly lent the St. James's Theatre on Friday afternoon, the 7th inst., for a private farewell matinée for Mr. and Mrs. Luther Munday, the performance being arranged on behalf of the Green Park Club by Lady Romney. During an interval Mr. Alexander appeared on the stage and addressed the audience. He said that he felt it would not be out of place if he uttered a word or two of congratulation to Mr. and Mrs. Munday. He himself had known Mr. Munday for twenty years, and he knew nothing that was not good of him. The members o' the dramatic profession would wish Mr. and Mrs Luther Munday every prosperity and a happy old age.

The programme contained the facsimile autographs of many famous literary, artistic, theatrical, and musical people, copied from letters in Mr. Munday's possession. A capital entertainment was provided. Miss Gladys Marsden and Mr. George Smith-Wright made a somewhat unusual but very amusing departure from the ordinary performance. Miss Marsden was No. 13 on the programme, and as she objected to such an unlucky number she decided to go on the stage with somebody else, so that, presumably, if any misfortune came, it would be divided between two persons instead of falling upon one. The two programme numbers were exhibited concurrently, and when the two artists appeared almost simultaneously before the footlights each apologised to the other for "clashing." However, they decided to remain and see what each could do to entertain the good folk in the auditorium. The result was a capital little "impromptu" entertainment, in which Mr. Smith-Wright gave amusing imitations of Mr. Beerbohm Tree and other well-known actors, and Miss Marsden caused a good deal of merriment by her impersonations of actresses. The biggest item was the Screen Scene from The School for Scandal, Mr. Cyril Maude and Miss Winifred Emery giving their polished performances of the parts of Sir Peter and Lady Teazle, ably supported by Mr. Fred Terry as Charles Surface, Mr. Ben Webster as Joseph Surface, and Mr. King Fordham as the Servant. Coming back to the separate artists, Miss Helen Mar told several amusing and pathetic stories in her most delightful style; Mr. Reginald Somerville was heard to advantage at the piano and in song; and others whose musical and vocal talents proved highly attractive to the audience were Signor Roberto Biletta (accompanied by Mr. N. Lambelet), Miss Kitty Cheatham (accompanied by Mr. Sydney Stocker), Miss Pearl Ladd (accompanied by Mr. Adolph Mann), Miss Janotha, Miss Palgrave-Turner, Miss Kathleen Mayer, Mr. Walter Wheatley, and Mrs. Werner Laurie.

In order to relieve the monotony of the long wait, necessarily imposed upon patrons of the early door, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks, the resident manager and Lessee of the Grand, Swansea, has introduced a giant gramophone, through which medium Melba, Caruso, Ben Davies, and other first-class artists are introduced to the audience.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The following statement regarding the actual financial position of the Association has been issued :—

Before the end of the present year the following expenses will have been incurred in addition to the amount already spent this year—

Salaries	£310
Premises	253
Legal and Administrative Expenses (estimated)	172
Total	£735

To meet this total the Association will have at its disposal—

Present Cash Balance	254	0	0
Invested Funds	73	10	0
Rent from Actors' Day Board	15	0	0
Total	£432	10	0

The estimated deficit at the end of the year will therefore be £303. In addition to this sum, the Association will continue to be liable for £465, the balance of the £860 lent to the Association in 1901 in the form of debentures. £860 was lent to the Association in 1901 in the form of debentures repayable on demand, bearing interest at 5 per cent. per annum on the security of the assets of the Association, which include the liability of each member to contribute to those assets up to £1 in the event of the Association being wound up during the time of his membership or one year afterwards (see Memorandum of Association, par. 7). Of this £860, debentures to the value of £325 have been surrendered by the holders, who have thus made a generous gift to the Association of that sum. £70 has been repaid in cash, leaving a balance of £465 for which the Association is liable. This state of affairs may not be actually so serious as it appears, as the debentures were taken up by persons who were anxious to help the Association; at the same time, the issue of these debentures without any attempt to provide funds for their redemption seems hard to justify.

The Council point out that the causes which have led to this position are by no means new, but have been operating for many years, during which the Association has consistently and continuously lived beyond its legitimate income.

During the past ten years it was only in 1899 that the income from ordinary sources exceeded the expenditure, and that was accounted for by a large increase in the number of life members. Funds obtained from this and similar sources, such as legacies and donations, cannot in any but a charitable institution be legitimately treated as income or used for normal expenditure, but should be placed to a reserve.

One of the most regrettable features of the past financial administration has been that no serious attempt has been made to maintain an adequate reserve fund. The small amount actually accumulated has been almost entirely swallowed up in additional expenditure designed to attract new members.

A study of the accounts for the last ten years shows that the Association has raised from its own resources £10,071.

The expenditure during that period has been £12,852.

The difference during ten years is £2781.

This difference has been met as follows—

Three Matinées	£1184
Legacy	250

That is to say that the Association has depended on outside help for 20 per cent. of its expenditure. Acting on this policy, over £300 would have been expected to be raised from outside sources to meet the coming deficit this year.

THE FUTURE.

The Council is convinced that if the Association is to enjoy the respect and confidence of its members and of the profession it must be self-supporting—that is, it must limit its expenditure to its normal income instead of venturing on schemes which can only be met by appeals to outside help. Hitherto the policy has been to conduct the Association too much on the lines of a charitable institution. Benefits have been offered to the members which the amount of the subscription could not justify.

The executive is certain that the Association can be carried on within the limits of its income, and is now devoting itself to the consideration of such economies as may be necessary for the purpose. These almost certainly must include the abandonment of the insurance scheme and a large reduction in the amount spent on premises.

It is estimated that a membership of 1200 may be counted on for 1908. This would produce a total estimated income of £1000. It would, therefore, be necessary to limit the expenditure on some such scale as follows :—Premises, £200; salaries, £450; legal and administrative, £300. The Council believe that certain of these economies can be effected in time to reduce the estimated deficit this year and some part of that deficit can be carried forward to next year.

Finally, the Council would again emphasise the fact that the Association is at the present moment in no worse position than it has been for the last ten years, and firmly believe that, conducted on the lines of independence suggested, its future prosperity is assured.

The Council of the Actors' Association held their usual weekly meeting on Tuesday, when there were present Mr. Fredk. Morland (in the chair), Mesdames Clare Greet and Wynne Matthison, and Messrs. Lewis Casson, C. F. Collings, H. Athol Forde, Spencer Trevor, and Chas. Cruikshanks (sec.). The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The hon. solicitors reported they had had an interview with a member as to her claim, and she had decided not to proceed further. They also had had an interview with a member, and advised him.

After some discussion, it was agreed that the further consideration of the election of chairman and deputy-chairman of the Council be postponed for the present.

The financial statement of the affairs of the A.A. prepared by the Finance and General Purposes Committee was read by the chairman, and it was agreed that the same be published.

Blake Adams and C. V. France tendered their resignations as members of the Council, owing to their inability to attend meetings. The resignations were accepted with very great regret. Messrs. Roy Horniman and Edmund Gurney were elected to fill the vacancies thus created.

Two cases of disputed agency fees were again under consideration, and the secretary received instructions. Dr. Cecil W. Rowntree, 16, Weymouth-street, W., was elected an hon. medical officer, and Mr. William Black Alexander, of 32, Old Burlington-street, W., an hon. dental surgeon to the A.A.

The secretary reported he had received a complaint as to the condition of the dressing-rooms at a provincial theatre, a copy of which complaint he had sent on to the management and was awaiting reply.

The chairman read a letter from an actress, not a member of the A.A., on a case of alleged bogus management, and was directed to inform the lady that her letter would be filed for future reference and to suggest to her the advisability of writing to the Editor of The Era on the subject of her complaint.

The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received.

The report of the Library Committee was received and the rules suggested were adopted with the amendment of Rule 3 by inserting the word "signature" for "name." It was also agreed that Mr. Beckett might receive from the committee an honorarium. The secretary was directed to comply with the request of the secretary of the Library Committee, and write to Mr. Laurence Irving, asking him kindly to accept the chairmanship of the Library Committee for the remainder of the A.A. year, expiring at the next annual general meeting.

The secretary referred to a letter he had received from Miss Lucy Sibley, asking for a chairman for the next "Social" (21st inst.), and Mr. Fredk. Morland accepted the position.

Six former members were reinstated.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday last, when there were present Mr. H. Athol Forde (in the chair), Messrs. Lewis Casson, Fredk. Morland, and Chas. Cruikshanks (sec.). A discussion arose as to the probabilities of sub-letting the whole or part of the Association's premises. The secretary referred to the different methods which might be adopted if a portion of the premises were retained. Ultimately it was agreed that Messrs. Lewis Casson and Fredk. Morland should act as a committee to inquire into the practicability of sub-letting, and to consider the acquirement of other premises suitable to the purposes of the institution.

The secretary referred to the various estimates received for carrying out the repairs, &c., according to the specification prepared by the hon. consulting architect, and it was agreed that the question of acceptance of any of the tenders should stand over until the question of sub-letting the whole or a portion of the premises was settled.

The chairman read Miss Rose Mathews's letter of May 19, 1907, with regard to the bi-monthly meetings, and it was agreed that the matter should stand over until next week, when Mr. Morland would be prepared to place before the committee a suggestion as to the method of dealing with the question.

A.A. SOCIAL.

Mr. Lewis Casson took the chair at the social meeting of the Actors' Association on the 7th inst., the subject for discussion being "Is the Art of Acting Deteriorating?"

Miss JOAN PEREIRA considered that the level of art attained by English actors and actresses did not come up to that of their French and German confrères. English players were too apt to neglect the fundamental study of a part and to give less attention to facial expression, for instance, than the laws of characterisation demanded. Another evil was that when an actor received, say, a classical part to play, he would often go to see another player in the rôle, and the result was, of course, a mere imitation. An actor or actress should not cease to act when he or she ceased to speak; yet on the English stage it was a frequent thing to see a face suddenly become devoid of expression as soon as the lips were closed. The English actor was never un homme de salon; he lacked that grace which invariably distinguished the Frenchman in the drawing-room in the presence of ladies.

Mr. ROBERT CASTLETON said the modern audience was unsympathetic. He also deplored a lack of good plays, particularly of good melodramas. It was really the conditions of the modern theatre which had deteriorated.

Miss LUCY SIBLEY said there was no scarcity of art upon the music hall stage. It was perhaps necessary for the music hall performer to get his effects upon broader lines, yet there was no necessity for him to be inartistic. An acrobat was an artist in his way, as was also a juggler; and there was a great deal of artistic acting of a high order of merit in many a modern music hall sketch.

Mlle. JULIETTE MILO thought that the art of acting in general in England was not deteriorating; that it was improving, in fact. In her opinion, French acting was vastly over-rated in England; and she herself had heard London audiences applauding French acting which she had thought distinctly bad. She deplored, however, the tendency to specialise.

Miss ROSE MATHEWS said the conditions under which the modern actor worked had a deteriorating effect upon his art. The modern theatre was regarded merely from a commercial standpoint. People had forgotten that the play and the acting were the things; the cost of a production was too often uppermost in their minds. She was of opinion that good acting could never be obtained until more attention was given to art and less to syndicates.

Mr. CASSON, in conclusion, said that actors would do well to realise their own shortcomings; there was always a tendency to blame others. If acting had deteriorated it was due, in one instance perhaps, to the development of the intellect at the expense of the imagination. Technique also was all-important, and constant study and practice were necessary.

Mr. David Belasco's new Stuyvesant Theatre in West Forty-fourth-street, New York, now nearing completion, is the first playhouse in that city to be built in an enclosed rectangular court, with an open passageway ten feet wide extending around the entire structure. This passageway affords protection in case of fire, and permits the arrangement of an unusual number of side exits. Perhaps the most remarkable novelty in the new playhouse, however, is the system of electric lighting, invented by Mr. Belasco, and carried into effect by a firm of electrical experts. Mr. Belasco's idea has been to do away with the ordinary glare of theatrical lighting, and furnish a soft and gentle light, like real daylight. No chandeliers or brackets will be visible in the theatre. Instead, the clusters of electric lights will be enclosed in the space between the fireproof roof of the building and the ground-glass ceiling of the auditorium. This ceiling will be supported by ribs, thus presenting a panelled appearance. The effect of the lights shining through the glass will be mild and all-pervading. The lights beneath the balconies are to be similarly contrived. Behind the scenes, for stage effects, there are to be no less than 4000 lights, with all manner of new contrivances for obtaining all degrees of brilliancy. The distance from the floor of the stage to the roof above is ninety-two feet. Above the stage are to be two large fly galleries on both sides. All the "drops," as well as the curtain, are to be raised and lowered by electric motors. The centre of the stage is occupied by the platform of a large elevator, and below the stage are two separate floors. The purpose of this arrangement is to change the stage settings between acts more rapidly. One stage setting need merely be pushed on to the elevator, and lowered to either of the floors below, where it can be stowed away. This electric elevator is controlled by two buttons. If one of these buttons is pushed, the elevator descends to the first storey below the stage, and if the other button is pushed it descends to the second. The dressing rooms are in a separate structure, divided from the main building by a thick fire wall. They are arranged in six stories, and are all open to daylight and fresh air, with windows on the ten-foot court already described. Besides all the customary modern improvements, there is a shower bath on each floor. The seating capacity of the theatre is to be 1100. The orchestra pit is to have a concrete floor, covered with glass. It is expected that this will be a benefit in disseminating the music.

ACTORS' UNION.

LONDON.

Mr. Campbell Goldsmid presided at Tuesday's meeting of the Actors' Union, held at the Bedford Head Hotel. There was a capital gathering of members and others, including Mr. Rawson Buckley, Mr. Howard Templeton, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Chamier, Mr. Arthur Bawtree, Mr. Oswald Marshall, Mr. J. W. Ryder, Mr. Carlyle Pritchard, Mr. Victor Widdicombe, Mr. R. Cowell, Mr. Alfred Tate, Miss G. Tate, Mr. Percy Everard, Mr. C. C. Grattan, Mr. Percy Braithwaite, Mr. A. A. Murray, Mr. Massey Glenville, Mr. Alfred Bennett, Mr. E. Wolseley, Miss Violet Sims, Mr. Laurence Grove, Mr. Albert Haggen, Mr. Howard Cockrane, Mr. Frank Drew, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley, Mr. Tom J. Taylor, Miss Marie E. Robertson, Mr. Frank Sutherland, Miss Laurence, Mr. J. Skea, Miss Doris Regan, Mr. Barrington Foote, jun., Mr. W. Brougham, Mr. J. Mayall, Mr. C. Medwyn, Mr. Bruce Lindley, Mr. F. Strickland, jun., Mr. F. Litchfield, Mr. F. Jacques, Miss K Herbert, Mr. H. G. Griffin, Miss Carnegie, Miss Lena Delphine, Mr. E. Chester, Miss Georgie Trueman, Miss Nelly Howitt, Mr. W. Ruddle-Brown, Mr. E. Y. Rae, Miss Mary Brougham, Miss Elsie Carew, Miss Helen Vicary, Miss Wolverston, Mr. Leonard Marshall, Mr. G. Goodwin, Mr. Albert Hayzen, Miss May Conrade, Miss Mabel Syringa, Mrs. Horace Booth, Miss May Bessle, Miss Constance Groves, Mr. Alfred Richards, Miss Kate Randolph, Mr. Robt. Whyte, jun., Miss Eva Lumley, Miss Violet Vivian, and Mr. E. Hornby.

The CHAIRMAN very briefly opened the proceedings, after which

Mr. BRUCE LINDLEY said that there was an idea in the provinces that the Actors' Union was a London clique. That was a totally incorrect impression, and he hoped that everybody would do his or her best to remove it wherever it was found to exist. As to the suggested £2 minimum salary, he found that this was a stumbling-block to the progress of the Union in the provinces. He himself was of opinion that this minimum should apply only to fellows of the Union who had had five years' experience, and not to what he would call the probationers in the profession. He thought that if only they approached managers in the right spirit their demands would be met.

Mr. RAWSON BUCKLEY remarked that the £2 minimum was a goal they were aiming at. There was not a soul in the provinces who did not agree that £2 a week was absolutely the lowest sum that anybody could live on comfortably and respectably. As to joint salaries, if an actor was worth £2 a week and his wife was worth similar before they were married, why should they accept £2 10s. as a joint salary after marriage? An another point, he thought that artists who secured "shops" through the agency of the Union should contribute a small amount, say 5s., to the old-age pension fund.

Mr. FRANCIS CHAMIER expressed the view that it was not desirable that the Union should be too aggressive at the moment. The £2 minimum was certainly "in the air," and they all hoped it would come before long. As to the death levy, that would prove to be in existence whenever required, and it should be a comfort to members of the Union to know that if they died to-morrow without leaving sufficient for their funeral expenses, they would not be buried as paupers. It would be a good thing if they were to exercise a little self-sacrifice on one day in the year and have an Actor's Day—or, rather, a Union Day—of their own.

Mr. LAWRENCE GRANT said that the committee should call in the aid of an actuary to form an old-age pension scheme. The original idea of Actors' Day was the formation of a pension fund, and he thought that such a fund could now be established on that basis by the Actors' Union.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I should like to ask why the rules which were passed by a small meeting of members so far back as April 21 have only now been made known to the rest of the members? I can only assume that the Executive Committee were ashamed of them, as indeed they need be.

Is it fair to ask us to become members of a union without first knowing the rules with which we are asked to comply? The rules as now formed are not at all in accordance with the circular issued by the Provisional Committee and on which the members have joined. Again, are not country members entitled to a vote on them? I think the country members will be very foolish if they do not insist on this. The circular states one of the objects of the Union is "to establish and maintain an honest living minimum salary." How does the Union propose to do this in the music halls? What will be the effect of two Societies (the V.A.F. and the Union) dealing with one and the same place? Should we not confine ourselves to the licensed theatre? This, I think, was the object of the founders; anyway, I, and I believe many others, will refuse to subscribe one 6d. towards fighting what occurs in music halls. One of the rules states that "an actor or actress running one sketch is not a manager." How would this apply to a man or woman running one play? The contention, I submit, is absurd. What the few members who have already joined have to think of is not what will benefit themselves, but the majority of our calling.

The Union started out with the cry, "A non-aggressive policy." Is it going to be non-aggressive in dealing with music halls, which, I respectfully contend, are quite outside its jurisdiction?—Yours faithfully,

MABEL SYRINGA.
(Mrs. Robson Paige).

10, Osprirge-road, N.W., June 13.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I find in your last week's issue, under the heading "Actors' Union," the following paragraph: "The chairman, in reply to a question put by Miss Lucy Sibley, said that the rules would be supplied on the 21st inst."; and in the same column, lower down, I find the following paragraph: "Any member wishing to move an amendment to the rules must give notice in writing to Mr. Oswald Marshall, hon. secretary, by June 14."

In short, we are to give notice of any amendments to the rules we wish to propose one week before we know what those rules are. How the ladies who were scorned for their "lack of business ability" must smile!—Yours faithfully,

WILLIAM LOCKHART,

Lyceum Theatre, Sheffield, June 12.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Those of the fair sex who have felt injured at the ungallant proposal to exclude them from direct representation on the A.U. committee may retire behind their dressing-room doors and indulge in a smile at the reflection that, though would-be cavillers may point reproving fingers at the eight rules recently issued, on the score that the wording displays a lack of business acumen, they cannot inquire, "What else could you expect with women on the committee?" Whilst appreciating the difficulties of the position and the good intentions of the members of the committee, it must be borne in mind that actors as a class are not good business-men; that those who are usually become managers; and that, though good intentions are admirable paving-stones, in business a cement of practical knowledge is necessary.

Why not postpone the general meeting, and make another guess at the suitable elucidation of all the rules? I trust my fellow-members will not lose patience because the machines does not run quite smoothly at first. Let us adhere to the original programme, and we shall "arrive."—Yours faithfully,

NORMAN TOWERS,
Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Permit me through your columns to appeal as strongly as I can to all ladies who are members of the Actors' Union, begging them to be present at the general meeting which is to be held on June 21, at Chandos Hall, Maiden-lane, at twelve o'clock, for the purpose of voting for the removal of those restrictions which have been unhappily placed upon their representation in the committee.

Ladies have as much place on the committee of the Actors' Union as they have upon the Council of the Actors' Association, and I trust they will not fail to come forward and insist upon their right with every vote at their command.—Yours faithfully,

LUCY SIBLEY.

A READING OF "CORIOLANUS."

The stage of the Lyric Theatre presented an unaccustomed sight on Tuesday afternoon, when the raising of the curtain revealed an array of actors in morning suits and actresses radiant in exquisite costumes who sat round in a semicircle for the purpose of giving a reading of Coriolanus. The reading was given under the auspices of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, and attracted a large audience, composed principally of ladies, who applauded at frequent intervals. In the centre of the stage sat Mr. Lewis Waller, with Miss Genevieve Ward at his side, while the chief characters were ranged around, and the "crowd" occupied seats at the back. The play, which was cut from the Lyceum edition in order to bring it within the limits of a reading, lends itself admirably to the purpose, and on the occasion under notice it was so well cast that it proved thoroughly interesting. Book in hand, Mr. Waller thrilled the audience in the part of Coriolanus, giving an impassioned rendering of the lines, and investing his delivery with many elocutionary graces. Miss Genevieve Ward spoke the words of Volumnia from memory without any reference to the printed page, and infused into her rendering the utmost feeling and emotional power, moving the audience irresistibly in the final pathetic scene with her noble son. Mr. A. E. George's Menenius Agrippa was distinguished by the earnestness and care which are invariably associated with the work of this excellent actor; and Mr. Arthur Wontner attained perfection in his rendering of Comimius, the long speeches allotted to the part being delivered with artistic effect. Mr. Kenyon Musgrave and Mr. C. Leveson Lane divided well-won honours as the tribunes Sicinius Velutus and Junius Brutus; Mr. Alfred Bristowe spoke with due fervour as Titus Lartius, and Mr. Acton Bond, under whose direction the reading was given, brought to the lines of Tullus Aufidius a dignity of expression and a variety of treatment which gave full weight to their meaning. A musical voice and sympathetic style made Miss Celia Palo's rendering of Virgilia most agreeable. Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay did full justice to the part of Valeria; and to Miss Sybil Ruskin was allotted the small rôle of a Gentlewoman. Not the least attractive portion of the entertainment was supplied by Miss Enid Rose, who read the stage directions with graceful distinctness that was good to listen to. The duties of citizens and servants, who have an important influence in the play, were competently sustained by Messrs. A. Coneybeare Gough, A. Warmington, Norman Wrighton, B. Camplin Smith, T. Cronin Wilson, and A. Caton Woodville; and Mr. Arthur Trantom acquitted himself nobly as a lord.

At the close of the performance, Mr. Sidney Lee, as president, offered their thanks to Mr. Waller, one of their vice-presidents, for the services rendered to the Society that afternoon. He had not only generously lent the theatre, but had contributed to the entertainment by giving a reading of the leading part in that noble play with the spirit and pathos he had taught them to expect in his rendering of a Shakespearean part. Their gratitude was also due to Miss Ward, who had given a masterly interpretation of an impressive part which would be linked with her name for all time. No one who had not had the felicity of hearing her rendering of that character could fully realise the significance of it. Thanks were also due to the others of the cast, not forgetting the members of the mob. Mr. Lee added that reading circles were being formed in all parts of the country, and announced that a conference would take place the following day to promote the welfare of the Society.

DRESSES AT THE PLAY.

Artistic taste is reflected in the costumes in The Merry Widow, which has entered upon such a brilliant career at Daly's. Miss Lily Elsie's most effective gown is of the faintest oyster-pink tulle covered all over with a trailing pattern of gold paillettes. A succession of veilings are introduced on the gown, the foundation being of cream Liberty satin covered with the new gold tissue with a watered effect, which in turn is veiled with silver gauze. The front panel is of gold net sewn all over with great darned motifs in the form of detached flowers, and showered with nail-head sequins, a band of thick silver lace being introduced at the hem. The bodice is worked with large flower motifs designed in silver bugles, and embroidered on a foundation of silver lattice work, and is further adorned with lines of gold tissue and fringes of crystal bugles, the puffed sleeves being caught in with a band of embroidered net.

Of the dresses worn by Miss Firth, one is carried out in Empire style in a shade of bright delphinium-blue over a soft satin foundation in the same colour, the material of the skirt being of the finest crêpe, gathered into the deep swathed belt of folded panne in the same intensely blue shade, and headed with the narrowest piping of lily-leaf green velvet. The skirt is trimmed with long lines of silver and gold tissue, and one and a half inch bands of blue panne with immense circular motifs in graduated sizes, while the skirt falls over a deep hem of lattice work silver lace covered with conventional flowers in the new darned broderie, which looks as though it had been carried out in fine silver straws, the gleam of the flowers under the vivid blue of the crêpe giving almost the effect of the silvery scales of a fish. The bodice, which is composed of fine silk net worked in dew-drop crystals and glittering silver and gold bugles, is crossed with bretelles ornamented with a trellis design of bugles and encrusted with turquoises, a narrow hem of delphinium-blue velvet and lily-leaf green panne giving solidity to the scheme. The kimono sleeves are of white net showered with dewdrops and fringed with silver beads, while a great puff of the palest sunset-pink tulle surmounts each shoulder.

Miss Nina Sevening's evening gown has a basis of phlox-blue taffetas. Although not strictly Empire in every detail, the dress is made with a short waist, defined with a band of shot green and blue and silver tissue, brought high up at the back and finished with a bow and long flat ends. The immensely full skirt is box-pleated over the hips, the front panel being finished at the foot with a ruching of taffetas, the lining being of emerald-green silk. The bodice represents an alliance of paillette and golden-disc sewn net and tinted lace and bugle embroidery, as well as roses in changeant gold tissue, a gorgeous spray of which, in pink, sapphire, and turquoise-blue, emerald-green, mandarin-yellow, and purple, shot with gold, is brought over the right shoulder from the back, and, crossing over the front, is caught on the left side just above the waist. One-half of the cross-over bodice is composed of folds of taffetas, the right sleeve consisting of three superposed frills of the same, bordered with gold and bugle-embroidered galon, and made up over an under manche of paillette net, the other half of the corsage and sleeve consisting of soft folds of the net, showered with gold and star-shaped paillettes.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"UNE AVENTURE DE FREDERICK LEMAITRE,"

Comedy, in Two Acts, by M. Serge Basset, Produced at the Œuvre on June 8.

Clarisse	MLLE. ANGELET
Mme. Graillotet	MME. BRANIANO
Clémence	MLLE. MILLET
Frédérick Lemaître	M. SEVERIN MARS
Graillotet	M. ANDRETON
Le Docteur	M. MOCK
Omnibus	M. BUSSIERES

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, June 13.—The Théâtre de l'Œuvre has given us three new plays, two of which are decidedly interesting. Frédérick Lemaître, one of the greatest actors of modern times, was born in 1800 and died in 1876. Talented, but intensely vain, he deeply resented anything in the way of adverse criticism, and it happened only too often that wags, in order to rouse his temper, would organise a hostile demonstration when he appeared on the stage. The scenes that followed baffle description, and once he forgot himself so far as to offer a gross insult to the public. The uproar was so great that the authorities had to take the matter up, and Lemaître was sentenced to one month's imprisonment. For all that, he was so great a favourite that on his first reappearance the house cheered him and carried him home in triumph. But Lemaître was essentially sentimental, and it is that idiosyncrasy which M. Basset has illustrated in Une Aventure de Frédérick Lemaître. He shows us the great actor advanced in years. The Press treats him unkindly, and Clarisse, his mistress, not only deceives him, but tells him sneeringly that he no longer has the power to awaken emotion. "At one time," she says, "you made the public laugh or cry. Now it is all finished." Clarisse has wounded him more cruelly than she thinks. For the first time during his artistic career he loses faith in himself, and he sends for Graillotet, the impresario. Unfortunately Graillotet has troubles of his own. His child has died suddenly, and the blow has struck his wife speechless. She remains motionless in her chair, and all attempts to rouse her prove fruitless. The doctors say that she is slowly losing her mind, and that only a violent emotion can save her. Graillotet is certain that Lemaître can perform this miracle, and he begs him to try it. Lemaître consents. He is not only prompted by pity; he is also anxious to know whether he has really lost his influence over people. Aided by Graillotet's employee, nicknamed "Omnibus," because he impersonates every rôle, he calls on the sick woman and plays before her the well-known scene in L'Auberge des Adrets, with the love declaration to Mlle. Eloa. But Mme. Graillotet does not listen, and Lemaître understands that he must not try to make her laugh. He reflects a moment, and then suddenly acts before her the part of a man who sees his son die. He trembles, he moans, and the woman looks at him fixedly. She listens to him when he describes the consolation we derive from praying on the grave of those we have lost, and, rising from her chair, she says she wants to visit her child's tomb. She is saved. As to Lemaître, he has forgotten the cruel Clarisse, and once more he has faith in himself. The work was capitally acted.

"PLACIDE" is from the pen of M. Séverin Mars, who played the part of Lemaître in the preceding piece. It is an amusing satirical farce. Placide Tournedos is accused of having murdered an old woman, and the jury find him guilty. The man, however, is innocent, and a M. Lerou is so convinced of this that after much trouble he obtains for Placide a free pardon. Placide is discharged from prison, but his parents disown him, and as he cannot find any work he is on the point of starving. He tells M. Lerou that he was better off in prison, where, at all events, he was fed, and M. Lerou takes him into his house until he can find him employment. Placide makes himself at home. He drinks M. Lerou's best wine, he is very noisy, makes love to the housemaid, and is altogether most objectionable. Things finally come to such a point that Lerou loses patience, and wants to turn his unwelcome visitor out of the house. Placide then flies into a rage, and says that he really did murder the old woman. Lerou trembles. He does not quite believe this statement, but, supposing it were true and became known, he (Lerou) would become the laughing-stock of the town. So he begs Placide to keep the matter quiet, and in return for his silence promises to keep him in idleness till the end of his days. Lerou, however, who until then was opposed to beheading criminals, now becomes a staunch advocate of capital punishment. The farce was greeted with roars of laughter.

"TU VEUX RIRE!" is the title of a little revue by MM. Henri de Gorsse and Georges Nanteuil, brought out at the Ambassadeurs. What with recent strikes and other troubles, the authors have had a splendid opportunity of cracking jokes at everybody and everything. The first to come in for her share of chaff was Mme. Sarah Bernhardt. She has been appointed Professor at the Conservatoire, but, finding the post too irksome, she sends her dresser to replace her. Then we have the waiters' strike. The members of the Government, fearing to lose the pleasures of the café, have replaced the waiters by soldiers. Artillerymen draw the beer, policemen stir the chocolate with their truncheons, and divers wash up the plates. The tableau relative to vaccination also had a great success. Berniquette Brachu, a naïve peasant girl, goes to a doctor to be inoculated. She has no idea of how the operation is to be performed, with the result that when the doctor takes her in his arms she believes she is being vaccinated. Nor is the lady cabby forgotten. The fascinating young creature on the box acknowledges that she cannot drive, but, as her fare is young and handsome, she proposes to keep him company inside her cab. And they spend a pleasant hour together. In another tableau we gather from the conversation between two or three roughs that in all the dangerous quarters policemen have trained dogs, who help them to arrest criminals, but an old ticket-of-leave man has discovered a simple method of making the animals harmless. When he goes out at night he takes with him a fine lady dog, and the police dogs are not proof against her fascinations. The excellent cast, headed by the inimitable Max Dearly, did honour to the revue.

A FRESH difficulty has cropped up between M. Antoine and M. Gémier, at one time staunch friends, now sworn enemies. M. Antoine, director of the Odéon, is going on tour, and as his artists accompany him, he styles the undertaking the "Antoine Company." But M. Gémier, manager of the Antoine Theatre, also goes on tour with his company, and if he calls it, as he has a right to do, the "Théâtre Antoine Company," it can give rise to misunderstandings and mistakes; and M. Gémier vents his anger in a letter to the Press. "M. Antoine," he writes, "is making a mistake—as usual. There is no such thing as a former or a present Théâtre Antoine. There is the Antoine Theatre, founded by him and by me, now under my sole management. The artists of the Théâtre Antoine are not the same as those of the Odéon, managed by M. Antoine. The répertoire of the Théâtre Antoine has nothing in common with that of the Odéon, managed by M. Antoine. In order to avoid misunderstandings, why does not M. Antoine announce that he travels with the Odéon company; and why does he not describe himself on the bills as 'Antoine, manager of the Odéon'? It strikes me, he need not be ashamed to be at the head of a national theatre whose reputation is established."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. EDWARD TERRY was presented at Court on the occasion of the King's Levée at St. James's Palace on the 3rd inst. The distinction was consequent upon the appointment of the popular comedian as a Justice of the Peace for Surrey, and the presentation was made by the Hon. Henry Cubitt.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE has been honoured by the German Emperor with the Order of the Crown of the third class in connection with the recent visit of the famous actor and his company to Berlin. His Majesty has also conferred on Mr. J. T. Grein, to whose initiative the happily inspired visit was due, the Order of the Red Eagle, fourth class.

MR. JOHN HARE'S decision that the coming autumn shall witness his farewell of the provincial towns will be received with regret in all parts of the country. London playgoers are happily for some time to be spared the necessity of bidding the famous actor good-bye, as he hopes to appear in one more original part written for him by Mr. Pinero. Mr. Hare's last appearance in London this year, it may be added, was made in A Quiet Rubber for Miss Fanny Coleman's benefit at the St. James's Theatre on Thursday afternoon.

THE farewell tour will begin at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, on September 30, and terminate on December 7. The special répertoire will consist of a revival of Mr. Pinero's play, The Gay Lord Quex, in which Mr. Hare made one of the most pronounced successes of his career, together with Caste, A Quiet Rubber, and A Pair of Spectacles, while the excellent company engaged includes Miss Nancy Price, Mr. Charles Groves, Mr. Charles Maude, Mr. G. S. Titheradge, Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay, Miss Ada Ferrar, Miss Helen Rous, and Mr. Bertram Steer. Mr. Hare has appointed as his general-manager Mr. Percy Burton, who was for so long connected with Sir Henry Irving and Sir Charles Wyndham.

SIR SQUIRE AND LADY BANCROFT were at the reception at 22, Park-crescent following the wedding of Mr. Charles Ernest Pumphrey with Miss Iris Mary Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moberly Bell, which took place at the Church of the Annunciation, Old Quebec-street, on Wednesday. The assembly was also graced by Mrs. George Alexander.

MR. GEORGE GROSSMITH and the members of the family entertained on Tuesday, at their house in Russell-square, the members of the Atlantic Union, a society which exists for the purpose of strengthening the bonds of friendship between the Mother Country and the Colonies. An enjoyable entertainment was furnished by Mr. George Grossmith, jun., Mr. Maurice Farkoa, Miss Dorothy Scott, and others. Among the guests were the Earl and Countess of Kinnoull, Sir Charles Wyndham, Earl and Countess of Donoughmore, and Mr. G. R Sims.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY has been the object of well-merited praise for the superb colouring and atmosphere which he has succeeded in obtaining in the production of Great Possessions at the Adelphi. The piece cannot, however, be played longer than the week originally announced, and on Monday Mr. Harvey revives The Corsican Brothers, which has not been seen in the West-end for a good many years. Mr. Harvey, in the dual rôle of the brothers dei Franchi, will be supported by Messrs. Vincent Sternroyd, Albert E. Raynor, George Cooke, Alfred Mansfield, Charles Cameron, Paul Barry, J. Barber, Fred Wright, sen., Philip Hewland, Leslie Palmer, P. Alexander, Denholm Muir, H. Earle, R. Allen, and D. Holm, and Misses Coleridge, Maud Milton, Maud Rivers, Bessie Elder, Marjorie Field, Ethel Patrick, and Madge Fabian.

"THE CORSICAN BROTHERS" will be preceded by a new one-act drama in "two panels," by Rosamund Langbridge, entitled A Tragedy of Truth, with Mr. Henry Ainley, Miss Maud Milton, and Miss N. de Silva in the cast. This play is accompanied throughout with music, which has been specially written by Mr. Norman O'Neill, who will conduct the orchestra at the first performance.

AN interesting event of the "Country Fair" to be held in aid of Our Dumb Friends' League on the afternoons of June 28 and 29 at the Botanical Gardens, Regent's Park, will be the cricket match, Actors v. Actresses, with Mr. C. Hayden-Coffin as head of the gentlemen's team, and Miss Vane Featherstone as captain of the ladies. Miss Margaret Cooper will preside over the round-abouts; whilst Mr. and Mrs. George Giddens will take charge of the swings. There is also to be a "Village Green," where impromptu entertainments, dances, &c., will take place hourly, and other amusements will be provided in the form of cocoanut shies, Aunt Sallies, Richardson's show, and Lady Clifton Robinson's art gallery, which is being arranged on an elaborate scale. Mrs. Hayden-Coffin will be in charge of the refreshment department.

WE record with great regret the death, at the early age of twenty-six, of Miss Gertrude Valentine (Mrs. Lauderdaile Maitland), who passed away on Monday at Ferndene, Chiswick-lane, W. Until recently Miss Valentine held the responsible lead in The Coal King, a drama which has enjoyed great success in the provinces. The interment took place on Wednesday at St. George's Cemetery, Hanwell.

MISS CONNIE EDISS illumined the interior of Mr. Justice Ridley's court on Tuesday, when an action for damages was brought against her by a labourer who had been injured last November at Lewisham by a motor-car driven by the cousin of the popular actress. Miss Ediss gave the Court a realistic imitation of the man's movements, as he had hesitated which way to run when the car was upon him. "We frequently have narrow escapes," she said. "People stand in the middle of the road, and don't look where they are going. I drive myself sometimes. We were not going more than ten miles an hour. It was about church time. I don't know if anybody goes to church down there; but I expect they do." Despite Miss Ediss's entertaining contribution to the proceedings, the plaintiff was awarded £135 damages.

THE next "social" of the Actors' Association, which is fixed for Friday next, will take the form of a debate on the affecting question, "What will remedy the present slavish imitation by touring companies of their London originals?" The debate will be led by Miss Italia Conti, and will be presided over by Mr. Frederick Morland.

MISS MARIE TEMPEST has very kindly consented to present the prizes at the Theatrical Sports at Stamford Bridge on Tuesday, July 9. It is to be hoped that many admirers of the popular artist will be present to "support" her on this interesting occasion.

MR. JOHN R. ROGERS writes thus vivaciously on the eve of embarking for this country: "As a comic interview with me is appearing in the Press announcing my age as sixty-seven, will you kindly set your readers on the right line by announcing I sail on the St. Louis, June 15? And, to avoid giving my friends heart failure, don't expect to see a decrepit old man at sixty-seven, but apparently the son of that once known everywhere as 'Yours merrily.'"

"THE FORTE THIEVES, PLAYED PIANO," with which the children of Drury-lane Theatre have recently added to their reputation, will be staged at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, next week. Even as it was the great boast of the Moore and Burgess Minstrels that they never appeared out of London, so also the children of Drury Lane Theatre asserted that they were never to be seen outside the national theatre; but their hard-and-fast rule has been broken, with the kind permission of Mr. Arthur Collins, who lent them the scenery and dresses and enabled them to go on tour "on their own." In the announcements late-comers are politely asked to take a seat on the mat outside, and refrain from whistling through the keyhole; and should the plot prove wild on the wing, members of the audience are requested to capture it and return it to the author.

MISS SOPHIE HARRISS, who is enjoying a well-earned rest at Baron Harriss's place near Maidenhead, was returning from Windsor in her electric launch one day last week when the propeller suddenly snapped, and, despite the efforts of the engineer armed with a boat-hook, the little craft was rapidly carried by the strong current in the direction of Bray Weir. Happily some gentlemen on the lawn of the George Hotel close by witnessed the affair, and put off in punts to the rescue.

MR. ALFRED GRAY and Miss Violet Malcolm Barnett will give a costume recital at the Caxton Hall, Westminster, on the afternoon of Tuesday, June 25. The programme will include a scene from Hamlet, the Balcony Scene from Romeo and Juliet, Gloucester's wooing of Lady Anne from Richard III., the Forest Scenes from As You Like It, and the Quarrel Scenes from The School for Scandal. Miss Lesley Gibson will take the part of Celia, and violin and pianoforte solos will be contributed by Miss Doris Cloud and Miss M. A. Winter. The business arrangements are in the hands of Mr. Ernest Schofield.

AN autumn tour of suburbia has been arranged for Her Love Against the World. The tour will commence on Sept. 23, at the Standard Theatre, and will finish on Nov. 25.

IN the Court of Chancery on Saturday, Greet and Others v. Snape was an application by the plaintiffs for an injunction restraining the owner of a portable theatre from infringing the copyright of the late Mr. Wilson Barrett's play, The Sign of the Cross. It was stated on behalf of the plaintiffs, the owners of the copyright and the licensees of the play, that the defendant had produced a play, which he called The Sign of the Cross, at various places in Lincolnshire. In 1905 he admitted having infringed the copyright, undertook not to do so again, and agreed to pay three guineas damages "when convenient." Those damages had not been paid. Mr. Justice Neville, in granting the injunction, directed an inquiry as to damages, and gave the plaintiffs the costs of the action.

MR. E. M. ROBSON will have an important part in Mr. Edward Compton's production at the St. James's on July 29.

MISS HARLINGTON has been engaged by Mr. Frank Bertram to play Batty in The Breed of the Treshams, and her husband, Mr. Gwyn-Richardson, to stage-manage the same production. Another notable engagement for the same tour is that of Mr. Alfred Holles, who will play the part of Viscount Dorsington, commencing in July.

MR. LEONARD PAGDEN and Mr. G. M. Copping, in spite of the excellent business, are compelled to conclude their tour with Jim the Penman at the Lyceum, Sheffield, to-night, as Mr. Pagden must forthwith devote his attention to his production of The Second Mrs. Tanqueray at West Pier, Brighton, on June 24.

IN connection with the Workmen's Compensation Act, which comes into force next month, Mr. J. Cooke Beresford, of 16, Panton-street, Haymarket, has arranged with a first-class insurance company to cover all theatrical risks greatly below tariff rates.

SIR FRANK BURNAND'S farce, to be revived at the Vaudeville on Tuesday, is to retain its original title of Mrs. Ponderbury's Past. Miss Marie Illington will appear in the title-rôle, Mr. Charles Hawtrey will be Mr. Ponderbury, and the cast will be completed by Messrs. Charles Troode, Russell Norrie, Edward Fitzgerald, Ernest Graham, Henri Laurent, L. Williams, and Percy R. Goodyer, and Miss Billie Burke, Miss Mona Harrison, and Miss Mirabel Hillier.

MISS DECIMA MOORE was among the artists who contributed to the concert given at the Ladies' Army and Navy Club, Burlington-gardens, W., on Monday, in aid of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Help Society, Princess Christian and several members of the aristocracy being among the audience. The programme was also contributed to by Misses Rhoda and Lilla von Glehn, Mlle. Marie de Nys, Miss Betty Callish, Misses Ada and Jessie McLeod, Mr. Albert Archdeacon, Mr. John McCormack, Mr. Frank Ivimey, and the Meister Singers.

THE Marlborough Hall, Regent-street, was filled with a large audience on Saturday night, when a capital performance of Lateiner's operetta, Gabriel, was given by the M. D. Waxman Yiddish Operatic and Dramatic company. Mr. M. D. Waxman in the title-rôle and Mme. Rose Waxman as Dinele repeated their artistic impersonations, and excellent work was put in by Mr. Kempner as Albrecht I., Mme. Fanny Waxman as Chinke, and Mr. N. Hamburger as Dr. Abraham. A feature of the play was the international dancing by the Leonard Gorney Trio. The entertainment was given in aid of the West Central Benevolent Society, established to assist necessitous Jews in that particular district.

MR. STRATTON MILLS will revive on Monday at the Brixton Theatre the famous triple bill, comprising The Highwayman, Faithful James, and the ever-popular Pantomime Rehearsal, which was toured for so long and with such success by Miss Cissy Grahame.

MR. JERROLD HEATHER, the well-known provincial actor, on terminating his engagement as Harry Wilding in Mr. Walter Howard's new drama, Second to None, was engaged by Mr. J. E. Barnes to sustain a round of romantic juvenile parts, such as D'Artagnan, Garrick, and Bob Brierley, during his stock season at Accrington.

MISS FLORENCE GLOSSOP-HARRIS, who has been resting after her spring tour, will support Mr. Ian Maclaren as Portia and Rosalind at Kingston next week, after which she will begin active preparations for her autumn tour, which starts in August. Her répertoire will include most of Shakespeare's best-known works, and also a revival of the Drury Lane drama, The Royal Oak, which has not been seen in the provinces for some years. Miss Glossop-Harris has re-engaged Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., and Mr. Percy H. Vernon, and is making further important engagements.

MR. HOWARD BRENAN, who has achieved much success in the provinces as a romantic juvenile actor, has been engaged by Mr. B. A. Pittar to play Touchstone in As You Like It, together with other important parts in a series of pastorals, commencing at Newbury on June 26. Mr. Brenan concluded a spring tour at Brighton on Saturday last.

WE regret to record the death of Mr. Chas. Gcold, the well-known actor, who passed away in his fifty-fourth year on Saturday last, at his residence, 64, Harpenden-road, Manor Park. Mr. Goold, who was a member of the North London Amateur Dramatic Club at the same time as Mr. Beerbohm Tree, began his professional career with the late D'Oyly Carte as Hildebrand in Princess Ida. In 1888 he entered upon an engagement with The Still Alarm company, which lasted twenty months. A short trip with Mr. Charles Hawtrey's Private Secretary company followed, and in 1891 he toured with the late Sir Augustus Harris's company in The Late Lamented, playing Mr. Fawcett and stage-managing. In 1892 he played the part of the Sheriff in Maid Marion on tour, and remained with this piece, which he took out with his company in the following year.

PARTS played by Mr. Goold during his subsequent touring included Murgatroyd in A Bunch of Violets and Uncle Gregory in A Pair of Spectacles. During 1897 and 1898 he appeared as Balthazar in La Poupée, and the following year toured with An American Citizen company. 1901 saw him as the Lord Mayor in The Forty Thieves, and in the following year he joined Mr. Arthur Roberts in The Cruise of H.M.S. Irresponsible. Tom Cod in The Beauty of the Barge and Eames in The Little Stranger were included in his more recent achievements. Mr. Goold toured twice in America. The deceased actor was interred at the City of London Cemetery, Manor Park, on Wednesday. At his express desire, the followers were limited to his widow (Miss Emelie Holt) and three professional friends. A large number, however, assembled at the grave, and many beautiful floral tributes were sent.

THE celebrated Danish actress, Mme. Clara Wiehe, from the Theatre Royal, Copenhagen, who will be chiefly remembered for her telling performance in the wordless play La Main, has been successfully appearing in matinées at the Coronet, supported by Mons. Wague, in L'homme aux Poupée, in which she impersonates a doll in order to wile away a crank with whom she is in love from his mad infatuation for toys. She has also been appearing in Les Souper d'adieu, which, as its name implies, is a farewell supper-party, in which a man discards his somewhat vulgar paramour. Mons. and Mme. Depas, in the one act, Revue de Snob, also appeared last week with great success.

SO great was the success of the moral drama, A Warning to Women, at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham, last week that Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett has continued the run until to-day. The play is produced under the direction of Mr. Frank Adair, who, with Miss Louie Adair, as leading lady, Miss Lydia Mannington, Mr. Wingold Lawrence, Mr. Chris Mason, Mr. Jack Denton, Mr. Geo. Mitchell, Mr. Geo. H. Asquin, &c., have been engaged by Mr. Bennett for the summer season.

MR. EDWARD MARRIS' enterprise at Jersey is being crowned with well-merited success. Last week at the two matinées given by Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the Opera House was packed from floor to ceiling. This week Mr. Marris has started an entirely new venture by giving an open-air variety entertainment, which is drawing crowds of people.

MR. AND MRS. WILFRID COMPTON (Miss Miriam Holt) concluded on Saturday a twelve weeks' engagement with Our Flat. Mr. Compton has played over 200 times in this comedy, and upwards of 400 in The Private Secretary. Over 300 performances were reached by Mr. Compton in The Breed of the Treshams, and he scored a century in Monsieur Beaucaire. Miss Holt has played with her husband in most of his engagements with every success.

MR. C. ADOLPH SEEBOLD has secured some fine bookings for the Theatre Royal, Worthing, the engagements for the season including Miss Ellen Terry, who appears on the last three days of August.

THE interesting list of artists who will take part in the special matinée in aid of the funds of the Foreign Press Association in London at His Majesty's Theatre on Tuesday, July 2, has been strengthened by the addition of Miss Olga Nethersole (who will come from Paris for the occasion), by Mrs. Langtry, in 'Twixt the Nightfall and the Light; by Mlle. Adeline Génée, in the Riding Dance from High Jinks; and by Mme. Yvette Guilbert.

THE last night of A Royal Family at the Duke of York's Theatre was marked by a scene of much enthusiasm. Each act was loudly applauded, and at the end of the performance the curtain had to be raised many times, the audience repeatedly calling for Miss Alexandra Carlisle and Mr. Henry Ainley.

MR. WALTER HOWARD requests us to contradict the statement that the run of The Midnight Wedding at the Lyceum is limited to any period. His arrangement with the management of the theatre is that the piece shall be played so long as it continues to attract.

MR. CHARLES DODSWORTH, who has been playing Choppard and other leading character parts with Mr. H. B. Irving on his spring tour, is re-engaged for the autumn.

MR. EDOUARD JOSE sailed yesterday by the Araguaya for Buenos Aires, to look after the preliminary arrangements of his first South American enterprise. Mr. José has contracted with Seymour Hicks for a first-class English company. The répertoire includes Miss Hook of Holland, Tom Jones, My Darling, The Beauty of Bath, and a number of other West End successes. The cast is exceptionally strong, and contains such artists as Mr. Stanley Brett, Mr. Martin Adeson, Miss Beatrice Edwards, and other well-known players, together with a chorus of thirty-five.

MR. JERRARD GRANT ALLEN'S tour of The New Boy has been so successful that, instead of terminating the tour in August, as was originally intended, he has decided to continue it until December.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE, Blackpool, this week reaches its eighteenth birthday. The theatre, which has attained such popularity during the administration of Mr. John R. Huddlestone, was opened under the management of the renowned Mr. William Holland on June 10, 1889. The inaugural play was The Yeoman of the Guard, and the attraction for the eighteenth anniversary was also Gilbert and Sullivan opera, a whole week being devoted to the celebration.

THE Grand Theatre, Birmingham, is shortly to undergo considerable alterations and improvements. It is proposed to spend £10,000 upon the work, and the approved plans show many structural alterations and improvements., chief of which is the provision of a large crush-room, with new approaches to the orchestra stalls under the floor of the pit.

MR. EDWARD COMPTON has selected The Eighteenth Century as the title of the play which he will introduce to London at the St. James's Theatre on July 29 next. The play was originally produced under the title of To-Morrow at Paisley in the February of 1904, and is of a fantastic character. Miss Eva Moore will appear as the heroine, and Mr. E. M. Robson will also be in the cast.

MEMBERS of the Actors' Association are instituting a new society, called the Play-Actors, the objects of which are the production of the plays of Shakespeare and other poetical dramatists without scenery or special costume, the introduction to the public of original plays by English authors, and the representation of adaptations of dramatic works by foreign authors. Membership of the society is of two degrees, acting and ordinary, the former being limited to forty, and being confined to professional players who are members of the Actors' Association, and will be cast. The subscription will be 10s. 6d., and will give ordinary members the right of admission to each representation. A sine qua non of the society is that every performer at all performances must be a member of the Actors' Association.

THE season of the new society, which is to consist of eight performances, will begin on Sunday, June 23, at the Bijou Theatre, at 3, Bedford-street, when the programme will consist of the first scene from the fifth act of Measure for Measure, The Parasites, a play by Rose Mathews, and The Sergeant of Hussars, a new play by Cicely Hamilton. Songs will be contributed by Miss Alys Rees and Miss Nance Elmhirste Goode, an Australian vocalist, and Miss Italia Conti will recite. Subsequent performances—which are fixed for Sundays, Sept. 29, Oct. 13, 27, Nov. 10, 24, and Dec. 8 and 22—will be given in a more commodious theatre, yet to be decided upon. The Council of the Play-Actors consists of Mr. F. Topham (chairman and hon. treasurer), Mr. Robert Castleton, Mr. Clive Currie, Mr. C. F. Collings, Miss Cicely Hamilton, Miss Winifred Mayo, Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn, Mr. F. de Quincey, and Miss Rose Mathews, the hon. secretary, whose address is 9, Trafalgar-studios, Manresa-road, Chelsea.

"CHEZ MAXIM," in The Merry Widow, at Daly's, is one of the finest restaurant scenes ever put on the stage, and the dresses and hats which are seen there are, as the fashion papers say, le dernier cri. There is novelty introduced into the last act in the shape of a cutlery accompaniment to Mr. Berry's song, which has a very original effect. The beautiful music, the spirit of gaiety which pervades the piece, and the brilliant setting, should make this last undertaking of Mr. George Edwardes's one of the most successful of his many successes. The reception which was accorded to the piece on the first night was enthusiastic in the extreme.

AN irresponsible musical absurdity, entitled Such a Nice Girl, written by Frank Stanmore, will shortly be toured by a strong company, including Miss Nell Richardson, Mr. Arthur Poole, and the author. The company will visit the County Theatre, Kingston, on July 8.

MR. JOHN GAFFNEY, who, since the erection of the Liverpool Shakespeare Theatre in the year 1888, has been its esteemed manager, had his nineteenth annual benefit on Thursday evening. There was a crowded audience, and all the principal variety artists engaged in the city and Birkenhead came forward willingly. The performance commenced with the one-act farce, My Wife's Dentist, presented by several local amateurs. The event, as usual, was a tremendous success.

IN our notice last week of Hands Up, the cleverly-written revue produced at His Majesty's at the Cripples' Fund matinée, we omitted to give the credit of the Suffragette number and "We don't want to grouse" to Mr. Fred Bowyer, a popular member of the Savage Club, whose political and topical songs have brightened many a pantomime and musical comedy. Mr. Bowyer's "A little bit of sugar for the bird," written by him for The New Barmaid, reached a total of verses almost equalling that of "The whole hog or none," sung by the celebrated Mackney.

THE gala performance at the Royal Opera on Wednesday night in honour of the visit of the King and Queen of Denmark was marred by a tragic occurrence, in the painfully sudden death of Major-General Sir Arthur Ellis, G.C.V.O., C.S.I., Comptroller in the Lord Chamberlain's Department. Just before their Majesties were due to arrive, Sir Arthur Ellis, who occupied a seat in the stalls with Lady Ellis, was observed to faint, and was carried out and placed in the directors' room, where he was attended by Sir J. Reid, King's physician, and Sir Frederick Treves. A hypodermic injection was resorted to, but Sir Arthur did not recover consciousness, and died while the performance was in progress.

"LADY TATTERS" will have a souvenir evening at the Shaftesbury on Friday, when it will reach its 51st performance. To mark the occasion every member of the audience will be presented with a copy of the full score of the light opera, as published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, and sold for 6s. The score will contain all of the twenty-seven numbers by Mr. Walter Slaughter, and the same copy will be given to all regardless of the price paid for the seat. Elaborate alterations in the piece have been prepared for Wednesday, new numbers having been allotted to Messrs. Walter Passmore and Courtice Pounds, Miss Marie George and Miss Claudia Lasell. The novelties will be included in the presentation score.

INTEREST in music and drama in Canada is stimulated by the offer of prizes to amateurs. The second competition for the Earl Grey musical and dramatic trophies will take place in Ottawa during the week beginning Feb. 4, 1908. The competition is open to amateurs in Canada and Montreal, and the rules restricting professional assistance have been very carefully devised. The principal qualities by which the dramatic competition will be judged are stated to be: Originality of production, if written by an amateur; stage setting; excellence of the company in acting together as a unit; the promptness of entrances, exits, and the picking up of cues; grace or ease of carriage and manner; diction, dress, and make-up. The musical productions will be judged by: Attack, precision, accuracy; intonation (playing or singing in tune), quality of tone; technical proficiency, expression, interpretation, and general effect.

MESSRS. VEDRENNE AND BARKER will start their season at the Savoy on Monday, Sept. 16, their inaugural production being You Never Can Tell. On the following Tuesday week the first of a new series of matinées is to be given, and the autumn season will witness the production of new plays by Mr. Shaw, Mr. Granville Barker, and Mr. John Galsworthy, as well as one of the dramas of Euripides, translated by Professor Murray.

A FIRE broke out at the theatre at Narbonne on Monday night, and the whole building was destroyed. It is believed that the outbreak was the work of an incendiary.

MESSRS. ELLIMAN are creating a great success with the well-known romantic play, A Heart's Desire. The piece is booked right into 1908 at the principal theatres in the provinces. The play can boast of an excellent company, elaborate scenery, and everything that goes to make up an up-to-date attraction.

MR. ALFRED CAPPER'S séance of thought-reading and other phenomena is likely to draw large audiences to the Hampstead Conservatoire next Wednesday afternoon and evening. Mr. Capper has lately returned from a successful tour in France, Switzerland, and Italy, and London, where he is such a favourite, has too long been denied the chance of enjoying his entertaining performance.

AN unpleasant surprise befell the management of the Grand Theatre, West Hartlepool, on Wednesday morning, when it was discovered that the building had been burgled during the previous night. The thieves had evidently concealed themselves during the Tuesday's performance of My Sweetheart, for there was no evidence of any doors or windows having been forced. The visitors had helped themselves to a supply of tools from the carpenter's shop, and making their way to the manager's room, forced the lock of the safe, and took possession of the contents, which included the Tuesday's takings and some money belonging to the manager. The chocolate boxes had been wrenched open, the money confiscated and the sweets scattered broadcast. They had then visited the dressing-rooms, and after choosing what costumes pleased their fancy, calmly let themselves out by a side door. At the time of writing no clue is to hand to the identity of the thieves.

UNDER the patronage of the Lord Mayor, the Right Hon. Sir William Treloar, Mr. F. M. Paget will give a dramatic and musical recital at the Steinway Hall on the evening of July 9.

MR. J. C. WILLIAMSON, from the Antipodes, is on his way to England on board the s.s. Mongolia. He has reached Colombo, Ceylon, and if waves and winds are propitious, the popular Australian manager will arrive in England on or about June 30

WE join cordially in congratulations to Miss Nell Sargent, who was married on the 5th inst. at St. Augustine's Church, Cork, to Chauncey Rupert Charles Morris, of Balham, S.W. The ceremony was performed by the Very Rev. William O'Sullivan, O.S.A. The bride is the younger daughter of R. E. Sargent, Golden-grove, Douglas-road, Cork (late agent Bank of Ireland, Bandon), and was given away by her father. She wore a handsome gown of ivory broché silk, trimmed with lace and silver embroidery, and a hat to match. Her ornaments were of gold and turquoise, and she carried a beautiful bouquet of lilies, smilax, and maidenhair, the gift of the bridegroom. Miss Maud E. Sargent, the sister, was the bridesmaid, Mr. David P. Johnstone, R.A.M.C., acting as best man The presents were numerous and handsome. Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Morris spent the honeymoon in London.

MESSRS FRANCIS, DAY, AND HUNTER, with their usual liberality, have sent to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, hon. treasurer of the Theatrical Sports, a massive black marble timepiece. It is intended as a prize for the Theatrical Sports at Stamford Bridge on July 9. Happy will be the winner of this beautiful present!

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN has arranged with Mr. Dan Godfrey to give a short series of pastoral plays at Bournemouth. Mr. Godfrey's well-known band will play all the music, and the grounds will be elaborately decorated.

AN action which arose out of the proposed arrangement between Mr. Ascherberg, the well-known music publisher, of Berners-street, and Mr. Wentworth Croke, in 1905 to take over the Savoy Theatre from Mr. Leigh, came before Mr. Justice Warrington on Wednesday. The facts, shortly put, were that Mr. Ascherberg invited Mr. Croke to take a half-share of the theatre, and after negotiations had gone on for some time it was decided not to proceed further with them. The lessee of the Savoy Theatre, however, commenced proceedings to compel Mr. Ascherberg to take up the lease, and the matter was eventually settled by the payment of a sum of money. Mr. Ascherberg then called upon Mr. Croke to repay him half of what he had paid, and Mr. Croke denied all liability in the matter. In the result, the Judge found that there was no undertaking on the part of the defendant, either expressed or implied, to pay the plaintiff any part of the expenses incurred by him, and gave judgment for the defendant with costs.

MR. GEORGE MUDIE, JUN., evidently intends to follow his father's example and make a study of old men's parts whilst still in his youth. At the Opera House, Jersey, last week, he essayed, for the first time, the rôle of Benjamin Goldfinch in A Pair of Spectacles, and gave an excellent rendition of the part, his make-up being particularly good. Young Mr. Mudie, it may be added, played Dolby in Betsy the previous evening.

THE King and Queen of Denmark dined at Marlborough House on Monday as the guests of the Prince and Princess of Wales. After the dinner an evening party was given, at which a large number of distinguished guests attended, and two plays were acted; Sixes and Sevens, in which Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh took part, and The Impertinence of the Creature, with Miss Marie Tempest and Mr. Gerald Du Maurier as the widow and the "unknown gentleman."

AMONGST those taking part in the variety entertainment in the Old Ball-room, under the direction of Mr. Edward Terry and Mr. Graham Browne, at the Queen's Fête at the Mansion House on Thursday in aid of Crippled Children, were Mr. Leslie Lambert, with a sleight-of-hand entertainment; Mr. Harry Fragson, with a song scena; Mr. F. Clive, accompanied by Herr Wilhelm Ganz, in the Prologue to I Pagliacci; Mr. Lewis Waller, with a recitation; Mme. Alice Esty, with three selections; Master Max Darewski, with a pianoforte solo; Miss Lilian Braithwaite, with a recitation; Miss Helen Mar, with a story; and Mr. Harry Fragson, with French songs. The conductor was Herr Wilhelm Ganz.

AUTOGRAPH money is daily received by the secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund from Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, and Miss Mary Moore. Mr. Harcourt Williams has sent £2 10s.; Mr. C. H. Workman a further sum of 6s. 6d.; and Mr. James Welch, £1 2s. 6d.

MR. H. B. FITZGIBBON, who has been business manager of the Compton Comedy Company, for tours extending over a period of eight years, has received a gratifying offer from Mr. Edward Compton of a further year's engagement, including the acting management at the St. James's Theatre during Mr. Compton's season there. This, however, Mr. Fitzgibbon has had to decline in order to fulfil a contract with Mr. George Alexander, by whom he is re-engaged for the autumn, when he will, as general manager, pilot the first tour of the latest St. James's Theatre success, John Glayde's Honour.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE, says Mrs. Cran, in "Stars of the Stage," is occasionally absent-minded. One day he took a cab and gave the driver the address. Throughout the journey he was reading letters, and when the house was reached he alighted, still reading, and knocked at the door. When the door was opened, Tree looked up abstractedly, and said to the amazed servant: "Come in! Come in!" Still reading, he re-entered the cab and returned to the theatre with his mission all unaccomplished. Of the numerous letters he receives from aspirants, two are given; one from a man who explains: "I have been a bricklayer for five years, but having failed in this branch, I have decided to take on acting, it being easier work"; and another from a Mohammedan gentleman who recommends himself on the ground that "I can lift any grand piano with my teeth."

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Mr. Hare on Actor-Managers.

"I REALLY think," says Mr. John Hare, in an interview with a Tribune representative, "the services of actor-managers have been of the greatest value to dramatic art. They do their best to keep up the traditions of the stage, although they cannot, of course, do as much in this way as certain managers on the Continent who enjoy a municipal or State subvention. Take the case of the Bancrofts. We all know what they did to reform the stage. They banished the old Adelphi style from the boards for ever, and they gave us rooms that really looked like rooms with strong wooden doors and ceiling all complete. Before their time we had blue sky-cloths in drawing-room scenes, flats that did not join, and lath and canvas doors that shivered with every gust of wind that came from the back of the stage. Indeed, if often happened that we had no doors at all."

Stage Traditions.

"FORMERLY actors remained under one management for years. They worked together, and they got a certain set of traditions. Look at the Comédie Française. Go and see Le Malade Imaginaire or Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme. You will see it played exactly as it was in the reign of Louis XIV. The traditions are handed down even to the minutest details, and as the company are always playing together the ensemble is perfect. Here, if we want to revive The School for Scandal we have to it more or less by guesswork. At the Comédie Française you can see not only the plays of Molière, but those of the moderns, Dumas fils and Augier, for instance, played exactly as they were on their original production. Here a good play, say, for instance, The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith, has a run, and then is put away. In France such a play would remain in the répertory. We do nothing to keep alive the literature of our stage."

An Endowed Theatre.

"THE remedy is an endowed theatre, whether endowed by the State or the municipality or private individuals does not matter. But we should have one theatre at least that is not run on commercial lines. In this respect there is hardly a country that is not ahead of us. You will have seen that New York is to have an endowed theatre. Certain rich men have each subscribed a large sum of money for this purpose. The total amount, I believe, is from one to two millions. Of course, the scheme will take a long time to fructify, but after a few years such an institution gathers about it the most valuable traditions."

Who Invented Bullock?

MR. ARTHUR WILLIAMS writes:—"In a case of infringement of copyright which came before Mr. Justice Bingham this week, re East Lynne and the part of Bullock, it was stated that Mr. Chute created that string of gags and wheezes known as Bullock. I have a bill before me of the Theatre Royal, Glasgow (Dunlop-street), dated May 12, 1866, in which East Lynne is decribed as being dramatised by the late J. B. Johnstone, and played by the late Miss Heath as Lady Isabel, Mr. Kendal as Captain Levison, Mr. Fitzroy as Justice Hare, and Harry Paulton as Bullock. Which was the creator of this wonderful classic, Mr. Chute or Mr. J. B. Johnstone? I should like to know."

Ellen Terry's First Appearance.

MISS ELLEN TERRY, in her "Story of My Life," now appearing in M.A.P., thus describes her first appearance on the stage. She was cast for the part of Mamillius in A Winter's Tale. "I can remember as clearly as though it were yesterday," she writes, "the great day when I donned the little red and silver dress in which I appeared as Mamillius. My mother had arranged my hair in sausage curls on each side of my head in even more perfect order and regularity than usual. Besides my clothes I had a beautiful 'property' to be proud of! This was a go-cart, which had been made in the theatre by Mr. Bradshaw, and was an exact copy of a child's toy as depicted on a Greek vase. It was my duty to drag this little cart about the stage, and on the first night, when Mr. Kean as Leontes told me to 'go play,' I obeyed his instructions with such vigour that I stumbled and fell; and, in the laughter of the audience that followed, I thought that I heard the death-knell of my histrionic career. Even now I remember how bitterly I wept, how humiliated I felt."

Beerbohm Tree's Wit.

MRS. GEORGE CRAN'S admirable account of the life and work of Mr. Beerbohm Tree in the "Stars of the Stage" series contains some samples of Mr. Tree's ready wit. When remonstrated with on his early extravagance, he would say, "Thrift is a virtue it is easy to urge upon others." When a young literary dandy at the table waxed witty at the expense of his neighbours, Mrs. Cran heard Mr. Tree whisper: "Why not palliate the pangs of controversial vivisection with the chloroform of courtesy?" The ironic verbiage of the rebuke was exquisitely cruel; the boy, stopped in midcareer, looked unutterably foolish, and the actor, with kindness as quick as his wit was keen, added: "You know, a man is allowed to think, but not aloud."

Hamlet in AP.

"XXX" in the Morning Leader has been "translating" Shakespeare into the "AP." language made famous in a recent divorce case. "Take," he says, "Hamlet's soliloquy as a specimen of the subtle charm of the new language. The lines are longer, but if there are too many feet they must be sawed off in different lengths:

Hamlet: Tapo bape, or napot tapo bape; thapat apis thape quapestion!
Whapethaper 'tapis napoblaper in thape mapind tapo sapuffaper
Thape slapings and arrapows of outrapagapeous faportapune,
Or tapo tapake armaps agapainst a sapea of trapoubaples
And bapy oppaposaping, end thapem?

Who knows what light such a translation, if executed by scholarly hands, may shed on the Baconian theory."

A Pianoforte Joke.

THE Children's Company from Drury Lane Theatre, which has been on tour for nine weeks, and has collected and shared about £700, has had, says the Daily Mail, some very funny experiences, principally in getting licences for the three youngest, who are slightly under age. The play is called The Fortè Thieves, Played Piano, and one magistrate questioned the manager as to the circumstances under which the children were educated, and said, "It does not say much for the children's progress if their principals themselves cannot spell." "I do not quite know what you mean," answered the manager. "Why," said the magistrate, "you spell 'forty'—f-o-r-t-e." "Oh, that's a joke," said the manager. "'Forte,'" with the accent on, 'played piano'—'piano-fortè'—it's a joke." "Oh, it's a joke, is it?" said the magistrate; and he granted the licences.

Joseph's Coat.

L.C.C. INSPECTOR, to first boy in class under examination: "What can you tell us about Joseph and his brethren?" "Please, sir, he wore a coat of many colours." "And what did his brethren do with him?" "They put him in the pit, sir." "And why did they put him in the pit?" "Because he wore a coat of many colours, sir; if he'd had a frock coat and a high hat, they'd have put him in the stalls."

"IOLANTHE; OR, THE PEER AND THE PERI,"

the Fairy Opera, in Two Acts, written by W. S. Gilbert; composed by Arthur Sullivan; Revived at the Savoy Theatre on Tuesday, June 11.

The revival of Iolanthe at the Savoy Theatre on Tuesday evening brings to mind the sad circumstances in which the late Sir Arthur Sullivan conducted the first performance of the opera in the November of 1882. On the evening fixed for the production information reached the composer that all the savings of a lifetime had been lost in the bankruptcy of a public company with whom Sullivan's well-earned wealth had been deposited. In a moment the result of the work of a lifetime and of economy—for Sullivan was never an extravagant man—was swept away, and, financially, the musician was left little better off than when he was a student at Leipzig. It is interesting to look back upon this 1882 performance, on account of the many artists of eminence who took part in it. Mr. George Grossmith was the Lord Chancellor, Mr. Durward Lely Earl Tolloller, Mr. Charles Manners Private Willis, Mr. Richard Temple Strephon, Miss Alice Barnett the Fairy Queen, Miss Jessie Bond Iolanthe, Miss Julia Gwynne (now Mrs. George Edwardes) Leila, and Miss Leonora Braham Phyllis.

Iolanthe is one of the best of the Gilbert and Sullivan series. It contains more of Mr. Gilbert's satire and fancy, and less of his cheaper ad captandum comicalities; more of Sullivan's exquisite melody, and less of those facile compositions with which he was wont to escape from the difficulty of setting some of Mr. Gilbert's verse. Even the "patter-y" Dream Song of the Lord Chancellor is elevated and embellished by orchestration worthy of Mendelssohn; and Iolanthe includes some of the most sincerely sweet and purely pathetic airs that Sullivan ever wrote. The "old favourites" are too firmly fixed in the memories of old Savoy patrons for any need to allude to them in extenso. What was notable at the performance on Tuesday was that the opera appeared to have improved rather than grown out of date in the interval during which it has been absent from the London stage. It may be that it "shone superior" by contrast with many of our recent comedy-musical compositions; at any rate, the reception it had from the audience could only be described as rapturous. At first the management showed a disposition to decline encores; but, after the ice had been broken with respect to the Lord Chancellor's confession of his susceptibility, all the more effective numbers had to be repeated.

The present Savoy company have improved immensely since their first coming to the cradle of Gilbert and Sullivan opera. Mr. C. H. Workman—cheered by the sympathetic applause of Mr. George Grossmith, who was in a private box—played the Lord Chancellor marvellously well, and in a manner which leaves no loophole for carping or complaint. The quaint seriousness of the personage, his droll refinement, his absurd dignity, and his comical courtesy, were given with all the requisite cleverness and tact. Mr. Overton Moyle has an excellent voice for the part of Private Willis, and used it with complete success, besides endowing the contemplative soldier with due stolidity and repose. Mr. Henry A. Lytton was, as was only to be expected, unimpeachable in every way as Strephon; and Miss Louie Réné thoroughly comprehended the way in which the mock-heroic platitudes of the Queen of the Fairies should be delivered. Miss Clara Dow was a delightful representative of Phyllis, and did all that was necessary with the part, both dramatically and vocally; and Mr. Harold Wilde was a thoroughly capable exponent of the character of Earl Tolloller. Miss Jessie Rose has made herself an immense favourite in the course of this series of Savoy revivals, and her Iolanthe was a charming performance, full of tenderness, grace, and musical excellence. The three leading fairies had very attractive and intelligent representatives; and under the able stage-management of Mr. Albert James the chorus had been trained and marshalled to perfection. The dresses, made by Mme. Leon and Messrs. B. J. Simmons and Co. from the original designs, were as dainty, costly, and sumptuous as if the revival were meant to last for a year; and the scenery by Messrs. W. Raphael and A. Terraine and A. Warner was quite up to the high Savoy standard of excellence.

The scene at the close was uproariously enthusiastic. The whole audience joined in a demonstration of the sincerity of which there could be "no possible doubt whatever." They insisted on the appearance of the principal artists; and when the coming of Miss Jessie Rose was delayed they persevered heartily in their demands for her appearance. They were obstinate in insistance on Mr. Gilbert's presence, and paid liberal tribute to his talent. They summoned Mr. François Cellier, whose clever conducting had much to do with the success of the evening, and applauded him to the echo. They called out Mr. Albert James, and paid him a similar compliment; and when—after the most obstinate and not-to-be-denied insistence on her showing herself—Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, dressed in white and bearing a beautiful bouquet, bowed her acknowledgments, they wanted her to make a speech. It was evident that the plucky spirit of the manageress, who, in spite of recent ill-health, has thrown herself heart and soul into the work of these delightful revivals, has been keenly appreciated by the public. It was pleasant to see Mrs. Carte looking so well, and to think that the success of her experiment has been so gratifyingly complete.

THE well-known character-actor, Mr. Mark Paton, who has just returned from Australia, is now in town looking remarkably well after a record tour.

The translation from the German of Karl Rössler which Mr. Martin Harvey presented at the Adelphi Theatre on Monday evening, is scarcely as satisfactory as his other notable productions, though it contains several scenes of real dramatic force. The impression created is partly due to the fact that the leading personage is a feeble-minded dreamer, the helpless victim of the circumstances which surround him. Nathaniel, the reputed son of the rich and avaricious Jew, Asarja, is really the offspring of Asarja's faithless wife and a gay and handsome Greek named Spintharos. Asarja, who is tormented by remorse for the villainous tricks by which he has accumulated his wealth, hands it over in trust to Nathaniel; and the result is that the young man, who has been impressed by the humanitarian teachings of a new prophet, resolves to distribute his "great possessions" among the starving workpeople of the small town on the Lake of Gennesaret, where the scene of the play is laid in A.D. 31. But the workpeople, who are an ill-conditioned and ungrateful lot, turn upon Nathaniel and begin to bully him. He learns from Spintharos of his—Nathaniel's—real parentage; and, taking him at the moment of depression following the disclosure, Ruth, the voluptuous widow of Nathaniel's deceased brother, "throws herself at his head," and leads him off to sin. When old Asarja finds that Nathaniel, in utter despair of readjusting the problem of property, is going to throw the family gold and jewels into the Lake of Gennesaret, he consents to his son's assassination by a lame and envious cobbler named Zaccheus, who stabs the young man to death. There are many other characters in the cast, notable amongst them being Joram, the brother of Asarja, who returns from abroad, reproaches the old Jew with his trickeries, and knocks him on the head with a paving-stone; and an illegitimate son of Asarja's by a blind beggar called Rachel. The lad is insane, and at one point attempts to commit suicide by drowning.

The length of the cast supplied many opportunities for distinction to individual artists. Mr. Charles Glenney gave a very fine performance as the remorseful and avaricious Jew, Asarja, the Hebrew characteristics being very cleverly supplied, and the expression of remorse, indignation, and passionate avarice being quite powerful. With the aid of an excellent make-up Mr. Glenney depicted very graphically the headstrong, emotional, and obstinate nature of Asarja, and filled the part, physically and intellectually, to the utmost. Even Mr. Martin Harvey could do little with such a hopeless task as that of representing the unfortunate Nathaniel, whose share in the story is so poor and pitiful. The more Mr. Harvey emphasised the helpless dreaminess of Nathaniel's nature the weaker, dramatically, the character became. There was just one chance in the rôle, when Nathaniel is inspired with the Spirit of God; and here Mr. Harvey was deeply impressive. But no artist, however gifted, could do anything great with a personage who is everyone's dupe, and who is made strong, sensual love to by an exuberant female in the sight and hearing of the audience. Everyone in the play "scores off" Nathaniel; and the result is that, act he never so ably, the representative of the rôle is reduced almost to passivity. This is the more conspicuous as the "scorers" are such a very self-assertive crew. Joram is perfectly perfervid in his savage earnestness, and Mr. Charles J. Cameron gave the fullest value to the snarling spite of the angry brother of Asarja, besides looking the "very image" of a cantankerous and irrepressible Jew. Mr. Albert E. Raynor, as the Rabbi Jehuda, sketched the familiar Pharisee type clearly and sharply, the hard and crafty character of the cruel formalist being indicated with real skill. Mr. Vincent Sternroyd's gipsy-like Greek, with "Hyperion's curls" and "the front of Jove himself," bore himself nobly, and acted with a picturesque freedom that was quite appropriate. Mr. Phillip Hewland as a half-witted beggar was picturesque and effective; Mr. George Cooke was vitriolically virulent and graphically base as the sandal-maker, Zaccheus; and Mr. Fred Wright, sen., was pathetically senile as the old and dignified beggar, Samaya. Annas had a competent representative in Mr. P. Foster; and Mr. Kenneth Black gave a neat performance of the part of Jesse, Mr. A. Field doing good work as Phabes, and Mr. Alfred Mansfield contributing a weird and vivid interpretation of the rôle of the Stranger. Mr. Denholm Muir was quite efficient as Rechab; and Miss N. de Silva played the insane Simon with the sensitive pathos which she has always at command. Miss Suzanne Sheldon's personal charms enabled her to embody the sensual and seductive Ruth with remarkable reality, and the thoroughness of her acting gave full value to the very voluptuous passages of the play in which Ruth wooes the shy and shrinking Nathaniel to wickedness. Miss Maud Milton made the most of her opportunity as the injured mother of the insane Simon, and delivered her reproaches of her seducer with fine elocution and excellent emphasis; and Miss B. M. de Solla hit off cleverly the 'cute and artful Leah. Miss Coleridge looked very pretty and acted gracefully as Rechab; and Miss Madge Fabian was commendable as Mariamne.

The single scene, by W. Telbin, was a marvel of painting and "building-up," the porch, with its Ionic columns, the solid masonry of the arched tower, and the lovely view of the Lake and its shores, making a picture of exquisite beauty. There was neither overture nor entr'acte music, the orchestra being artificially turfed over; and at the end of each act the lights were lowered gradually, and some tableau curtains, designed by Mr. R. Phené Spiers, descended upon the darkness. Great credit for the marshalling of the stage crowds of oil-pressers and labourers must be given to Mr. H. J. Loveday, under whose direction the stage was placed. The dresses, from drawings by Tissot and William Hole, were realistic, and, where opportunity offered, luxurious. Great Possessions had a hearty reception from an audience which included many warm admirers of the gifted and enterprising actor-manager.

We, who are versed in the geography of the stage—a geography of limitless possibilities, infinitely more interesting though slightly more complex than that of the everyday world—as soon as we learned from our programmes on Saturday night that The Merry Widow hailed from Marsovia, knew that we might reasonably expect to spend the evening in the company of lovely women and gallant men, clothed in most becoming national (?) costume, possessed of boundless wealth, and with a sprightly wit. We knew also that the music by Mr. Franz Lehar had been ringing in the ears of the Continent for the last eighteen months, and that Die Lustige Witwe was one of the most popular persons on the Continent. The fact that the merry little lady was making her London début under the wing of Mr. George Edwardes was sufficient guarantee that she would be launched with lavishness wedded to perfect taste.

On the opening night the opera was conducted by the composer, who received a most hearty welcome from a very appreciative house. His music is sure to become as popular in London as it has been in Germany. Already on Saturday night parts of the house caught up the more "catchy" tunes, and sang and whistled them lustily during the entr'actes. Mr. Lehar has provided music to suit the taste of various classes of music-lovers. There are airs in The Merry Widow with a lilt in them which ring in one's ears after they have been heard once; and there is also music good enough to appeal to the most cultured ear, almost in the style of grand opera. Certainly the most popular will be the waltz in Act 2, while "I go to Maxim's" will be a close second, and a third in the running will certainly be the "Vilia" song.

The plot is ingenious, but clear and coherent. Sonia, the "merry widow," had, in former days, before her marriage, and when but a farmer's daughter, met Prince Danilo, and there had been some love-passages between them; but Danilo, in obedience to the will of his uncle, the reigning monarch, "loved and rode away." When the play begins, Sonia is an enormously rich and very lovely widow, much sought in marriage. She meets Danilo at a ball at the Marsovian Embassy, in Paris, to which the Prince had been brought by the Ambassador of Marsovia, Baron Popoff, in order that he might have a chance of ingratiating himself with the pretty widow, whose millions the Baron is most anxious to keep in the country, as the finances of Marsovia are in anything but a flourishing condition. Sonia taunts the Prince with his desertion, and tells him scornfully that as she is now rich he will probably declare his love. The Prince, stung by her taunts, swears he will never speak of love to her; and, until the very end of the play, and in spite of the severest temptation, he manages to keep his word. Sonia, being a woman, of course does her best to make him break it. Around this central plot several minor intrigues are woven, which lead one to imagine that the ladies of the Marsovian Court are as frail as they are fair. The worthy Baron's pretty wife is no exception to the rule, and, on one occasion, she is only saved from discovery by Sonia taking her place at the last moment, just as the doors of the summer-house in which Natalie had been hiding her admirer, a French Vicomte, are thrown open, Natalie escaping by a back door as Sonia enters. The mock-discovery, while filling the Baron with relief, brings despair to the heart of the Prince Danilo, who goes off to Maxim's to drown his troubles before his departure from Paris. Sonia follows him, an explanation is forthcoming, and the curtain goes down upon a reconciliation.

The part of the Merry Widow is played delightfully by Miss Lily Elsie, who has caught exactly the spirit of light-hearted gaiety, touched occasionally with deeper feeling, which is necessary to the part. She is merry and grave, tender and cold, in turn, one moment using every weapon of a pretty woman to bring her lover into subjection, and the next moment ignoring his existence as she dances gaily off with a crowd of admirers. In the second act Miss Elsie played with fine dramatic instinct. This, and her singing of the "Vilia" song, if nothing else—for her whole performance reached a high standard of excellence—place her at once in the front rank of the bright particular stars of light opera. Mr. Joseph Coyne's rendering of the "Maxim's" ditty was an excellent bit of comedy. Mr. Coyne deftly recited the pretty ballad which the Prince sings to Sonia in the second act, which he gave with fine vigour and intensity. He played the character throughout in the vein of pure comedy, and although the romance with which the authors have evidently invested the part was absent, Mr. Coyne made a manly fellow of the Prince, and got great fun out of the rôle. The humour of Mr. George Graves as the Ambassador, Baron Popoff, was admirable in every respect. Mr. Graves is a past-master in the art of coining quaint, descriptive expressions, and his abuse of the aspiring Nisch, the messenger to the Legation (played with much droll effect by Mr. W. H. Berry), will add extensively to the vocabulary of many of Mr. Graves's admirers. Mr. Lennox Pawle was genuinely funny as a comic French Marquis; and Mr. Fred Kaye's unique methods were as distinctive as ever in the part of General Novikovich. Mr. Robert Evett's voice delighted the ear in his song, "If I might go with you," and his acting as the Vicomte Camille de Jolidan, the devoted admirer of Natalie, was a first-class piece of work. There is always a delightful finish about anything which Mr. Evett does. Mr. Gordon Cleather as M. de St. Brioche supplies a neat piece of work; and as a waiter as Maxim's Mr. R. Roberts makes a hit in a small rôle; while Mr. V. O'Connor plays M. Khadja, Counsellor of Legation, effectively. As Natalie, Miss Elizabeth Firth looks charming in some very beautiful frocks, and sings and acts in her usual accomplished style. Miss Firth's voice is singularly pure, and has a crystalline sweetness. She played Natalie very prettily, at one moment urging the man she loved to forget her and marry the widow, and the next declaring that he should do nothing of the kind. Miss Nina Sevening looked bewitchingly pretty as Olga, the flighty little wife of the jealous attaché; and Miss Irene Desmond was good as Sylvaine, wife of Khadja; while Miss Kate Welch made an agreeably naïve Praskovia. The girls at Maxim's were represented by a bevy of exceptionally pretty and very smartly-dressed damsels. Miss Amy Webster sang excellently; and Miss Mabel Russell as Fi-Fi danced lightly and daintily.

It is rather too late in the day to discuss the merits of Divorçons, which was produced at the Palais Royal in the December of 1880. The English version of the play by Miss Margaret Mayo, which was presented at the Duke of York's on Wednesday, is not the first attempt that has been made to produce an equivalent of Sardou's piece. At the Comedy Theatre in 1892 was performed a version by Mr. C. H. E. Brookfield, entitled To-day, in which Mr. Charles Hawtrey, Miss Lottie Venne, Mr. Granville Barker, and Mr. George Grossmith, jun., took part; and Mr. and Mrs. Bourchier's performances at the Royalty, in his version of Divorçons, under the title of The Queen's Proctor, are still fresh in our memories. Sardou's skill in construction and in the invention of humorous situations was conclusively proved by the roars of merriment that were heard in the Duke of York's Theatre on Wednesday evening. There could, indeed, be no denying the demonstrative delight of the audience with the entertainment provided. Their enjoyment was obviously unalloyed by any recollection of the original; and the funny situations and droll dialogue of the play sent them into convulsions of laughter, their intense satisfaction culminating in the heartiest applause at the end of each act.

We may be grateful to Miss Mayo for having retained the French names of the personages, and for following the original as far as decency permitted. The translation is neatly and pleasantly made, though the Americanisms sounded strangely in a play in which the personages are supposed to be French.

Divorçons was one of the first comedies which dealt humorously with the question of divorce in France. The main thesis is the objection of the French wife to the husband because he is a husband. His "official" position, says de Prunelles, is the cause of his wife, Cyprienne, preferring to him her admirer, M. Adémar de Gratignac, who is really a silly and fatuous personage. The glamour of danger and secrecy, however, gives Adhémar a halo of romance which is wanting to the humdrum, everyday affection of de Prunelles; and, as the new divorce bill is about to be passed, Cyprienne—who is a feather-headed little goose—dreams of a speedy release from de Prunelles, and a prompt and happy union with de Gratignac. It occurs to the latter to anticipate the passing of the bill by a false telegram sent to him by a friend; but de Prunelles divines the situation, and determines to take advantage of it. He adopts the tone of being delighted to obtain his freedom, and shifts on to de Gratignac all the disabilities of the husband—his security, his legality, and his common-place. When Cyprienne finds that de Prunelles is only too happy to be released, she becomes jealous, and sooner than he shall go out to dinner with a pretty widow of his acquaintance, she "throws over" Adhémar, and accompanies her husband—now become, technically, her lover, and, therefore, alluring and attractive—to a restaurant. While they are enjoying themselves, Adhémar, in his character of injured husband, makes himself so absurd that Cyprienne, in disgust, and having learnt her lesson, returns to her allegiance.

The dialogue in the original is too highly spiced for an English audience, and Miss Mayo has omitted some of the most indecent passages. Enough, however, of Divorçons remained to amuse an audience ignorant of the original, and to give Miss Grace George—an American actress, new to London—an opportunity of proving her ability as an actress. Miss George has a pleasing appearance, much energy and vivacity, a distinct delivery, and the flexibility necessary to depict the varied moods of the fickle and excitable Cyprienne. Her representations of jealousy, vexation, joy, and irritation, were done with all the skill of a talented and experienced artist, familiar with every branch of her business, and employing, with easy quickness, all its expedients. Miss George was natural, vivid, at times earnestly expressive, and always active, expert, and effective. We can easily imagine this alert and agreeable actress in a character better suited to her talent than that of Mme. de Prunelles. She has an attractive method, a bright and pleasing style, and a charming sincerity which at once wins the hearts of an audience. Her delivery of the eloquent description of a French marriage from the wife's point of view was smooth, pointed, and admirably fluent and expressive. Her interest in her work was unflagging; her coquetry was quite cleverly done; her expression of emotion was keen and telling; and the earnestness, ability, and energy which she employed had their reward in the hearty applause of the audience. But, to say the best of it, the part of Cyprienne must always present difficulty to an actress of Anglo-Saxon blood. If she give it its full strength and value, her performance must necessarily prove distasteful to English ears and eyes; if she omit the indelicacies and the sensualities of the rôle it loses a great deal of its meaning and comic effect. Miss George at once made herself a favourite with the audience at the Duke of York's Theatre, and we hope soon to see her in a character better suited to her charming style and pleasant personality. Her reception was warmly favourable; and there was no mistaking the success of her Cyprienne with the Duke of York's audience.

Mr. Frank Worthing's reading of the rôle of de Prunelles did not err on the score of frivolity; but perhaps the philosophic nature of the ingenious husband was all the more firmly insisted on. Mr. Worthing seemed at first a little nervous, and inclined to dwell upon his dialogue; but he regained confidence as the performance proceeded, and his reading of the rôle was certainly very original, the idea being carried out with most praiseworthy conscientiousness. Mr. Max Freeman contributed a remarkably quaint and clever embodiment of Joseph, his funny "broken-English" diverting the audience immensely, and winning for him the warmest approval of the audience; and that admirable artist Mr. J. D. Beveridge performed a rather thankless task conscientiously as M. Cravynac, the friend and confidant of de Prunelles. Mr. Richard Bennett gave to de Gratignac the necessary suggestion of silliness, coupled with a fairly prepossessing style and exterior; he wisely abandoned any attempt to "Frenchify" de Gratignac, and endeared him to the house by a kind of sheepish amiability which was genuinely comic. Miss Ruby Ray played Mlle. de Lusignan with a refinement and clear lucidity which were very welcome indeed. Mr. Frank Collins was quite satisfactory as Bastien; and the same may be said of Miss Jane Corcoran as Josepha; Miss Ruth Benson played Mme. de Brionne boldly, and Miss Sadie Jerome did sound work as Mme. de Valfontaine; Mr. Richard Wilson acted ably as Jamarot, and Mr. J. W. Macdonald was quietly effective as M. Bafourdin. The piece was produced under the direction of Mr. Frank Hatch.

"HELEN'S LITTLE SUBTERFUGE."

A New and Original Comedy, in Three Acts, by Roland Bottomley, produced at the Queen's Gate Hall, on Wednesday, June 12.

Lady Sarah Jennings ..... Miss Dulcie Derada
Helen Stanhope ..... Miss Mary Thornhill
Benson ..... Mrs. Isabel Edsell
Esther Graeme ..... Mrs. Hardy-Corfe
Mr. Carlton ..... Mr. Edward Landor
Mrs. Carlton ..... Miss Kate Hodgkinson
Derrick Carlton ..... Mr. Roland Bottomley
Miss Bensusan ..... Miss Carlotta Crayge
Alice Traynor ..... Miss Blanche Wilmot
Nina Martin ..... Miss Terrell
Marie Grey ..... Miss Cecily Stuckey
Mrs. Ralston ..... Miss Edith Bottomley
Thomas "Tops" Dalton .. Mr. R. C. Harcourt
Archie Gossett ..... Mr. Tom Shelford
Reginald Rivers ..... Mr. Robert Bottomley

Mr. Roland Bottomley, who has already done good work on the stage, and is certain to do a great deal more, has taken to playwriting, and produced on Wednesday evening, at the Queen's Gate Hall, two pieces from his pen. The more important of the two is entitled Helen's Little Subterfuge, a comedy, in three acts, which appeared to give much satisfaction to a very friendly audience. The piece opens with a conversation between Lady Sarah Jennings and Helen Stanhope. The former complains that for four seasons she has chaperoned Helen, whose matrimonial prospects are as nebulous as they were when she originally came out. Helen is not quite of her aunt's opinion. She has given her heart to Derrick Carlton, and has received telegrams from two other suitors, Archie Gossett and Reginald Rivers, making appointments with her alone on business that concerns her very nearly. Both these young gentlemen arrive, and make themselves more or less ridiculous. Helen contrives to get rid of them by cajoling them to take her friend Esther Graeme, to the Academy. The coast being cleared, she is able to receive Derrick, and to make an appointment with him to get married on the following morning. He is not quite sure that his people will receive with open arms such an impulsive and highly unconventional wife; but she assures him that she will make everything all right if he will allow her to carry out a little scheme she has devised. This is the "subterfuge" of the title. In the second act, when the guests are assembled in the hall at Carlton Manor, the residence of Derrick's parents, a scream for help is heard outside the portico, and Helen, who is now Mrs. Derrick Carlton, apparently fainting and in great distress, is brought in.

She invents a very thin story about an attack by a strange man, and meets with much sympathy from her mother-in-law, the kind-hearted Mrs. Carlton, sen. Her portmanteau is found by Derrick; but he does not discover the marriage certificate, which is picked up in the porch by his pater. The old gentleman immediately determines to have a little game with the young couple, even though it is a family tradition that more than one of the Carltons in the remote past married the stranger that accepted chance hospitality within their gates. Helen is treated, therefore, with some suspicion by her kind host and hostess, and has to run the gauntlet of unkind remarks and innuendoes from her mother-in-law's guests, especially from a Miss Bensusan, a frowsy spinster in spectacles. Of course, everything comes right in the end, and Helen and Derrick, we hope, live happily ever after. The comedy did not strike one as very stimulating, but the author has a sense of humour, and possesses the instinct of the theatre. He borrows occasionally from authors wittier than himself; but he sins in excellent company. His best character is the old maid, Miss Bensusan, a part that was played with drollery by Miss Carlotta Crayge. Miss Mary Thornhill, in spite of her lisp, scored as Helen; and the men in the piece were invariably good, Mr. Edward Landor, Mr. Roland Bottomley, Mr. R. C. Harcourt, Mr. Tom Shelford, and Mr. Robert Bottomley all scoring.

Preceding the principal piece came the farce, by the same author, entitled

"A QUIET EVENING."

Hargreaves ..... Mr. Tom Shelford
M. de Trappe ..... Mr. Robert Bottomley
Mme. de Trappe ..... Miss Ella Daincourt

The title is "writ sarcastic," for Hargreaves, a bachelor, is interrupted continually by De Trappe, a Frenchman furiously jealous of his English wife. He has actually patented a special perfume, and can follow the scent wherever she goes. Of course, she comes to Hargreaves, who cleverly gets rid of her without arousing the Gallic Othello, who is eventually mollified. Voilà tout. The piece, which has but little merit, was briskly played by Mr. Tom Shelford as Hargreaves, by Mr. Robert Bottomley as the conventionally excitable Frenchman, and by Miss Ella Daincourt, an attractive Mme. de Trappe.

The report of the committee appointed by the National Fire Protection Association of America to investigate the subject of theatre fires and the better protection of audiences, includes the following recommendations and requirements: The three great safeguards are found to be: First, the providing of ample, automatic, quick-opening smoke vents over the stage; second, the thorough equipment of the stage with automatic sprinklers, by means of which the action of the heat will promptly release over the burning scenery a rainfall tenfold heavier than the heaviest thunder shower, drenching the scenery and extinguishing the flames; and, third, the providing of especially ample exits and stairways from the gallery. The fireproofing or flame-proofing of scenery is found to be of doubtful value under the practical conditions of use. The so-called fireproof paints are of very small fire-retarding value. The asbestos curtain is found to possess much less endurance against heat and flame than had been supposed. The steel curtain covered with non-conductor on the stage side is far better than the asbestos curtain, but may give trouble in lowering, or may permit large quantities of suffocating gas to be forced into the auditorium around its edges. Dry powder fire extinguishers and hand grenades are likely to prove worse than useless, by promoting waste of valuable time. The stage should be separated from the auditorium by a self-supporting brick wall of the same thickness as required for outside walls and the entire width of the building, and should extend full thickness of the wall at least four feet about the stage roof, or the auditorium roof if the latter be higher, and should be coped. There should be no openings in this wall except the curtain opening, and not more than two others, to be located either below the stage level, or one on either side of the stage on the first floor, but no openings of any kind above the first floor.

The above new play is from the pen of Mr. Geo. S. King, the manager of the theatre; the incidental music being written and arranged by Mr. E. Graham-Dunstan, the musical director of the theatre. The plot is as follows:—John Mawle is the manager of the Silchester Branch of the London and Western Banking Company, Ltd. Ursula, his daughter, is engaged to Reginald Dalston, a clerk employed in the bank. During Dalston's absence Ursula is ruined by Edward Parker, the manager's chauffeur. Learning she is to be married to Dalston in a month's time, Parker induces her to go through a form of marriage with him. The couple go on the Continent, but on reaching Venice, Parker confesses he is a married man, who has deserted his wife, and Ursula then leaves him and returns to London, and is just in the act of throwing herself into the Thames, when she is prevented by a Salvationist, who proves to be no other than Parker's deserted wife. Ursula returns to her father's home, and there meets Dalston, who declares he is willing to marry her.

The story of Ursula's betrayal is told in the Divorce Court, where the marriage with Parker is declared to be null and void. Dalston returns one night, to find Silas Maitland (a friend of Parker's) in his wife's bedroom, Parker having previously told her he would blow her husband's brains out unless she confessed to illicit relations with Maitland. Parker hides behind a dressing-table and covers Dalston with a revolver. In order to save her husband Ursula makes the required confession, and Parker escapes through an open window. Dalston refuses to believe his wife's statement that the whole affair was a plot to deceive him, and he denounces her. Ursula leaves her husband, but ultimately Parker, foiled in his purpose, admits that the plot was made up, and subsequently poisons himself. The company is a very able one, outstanding features of the performance being the acting of Messrs. Richard Webb and Douglas C. Phelps and Miss Maude Lynton.

THE LATE MRS. FRANK HARVEY.

A few particulars of the career of Mrs. Frank Harvey, whose death we briefly recorded in our last issue, will no doubt be of interest. After a painful illness, Mrs. Harvey passed away on the 4th inst. at her residence, 56, Drakefield-road, Upper Tooting, at the early age of forty-eight. Mrs. Harvey joined the famous Mlle. Beatrice Company some thirty years ago, and it was during her association with this company that she first met Mr. Harvey, to whom she was married three years later. On the death of Mlle. Beatrice, the company was carried on by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harvey, who toured for more than twenty years round the country, visiting all the principal provincial towns.

THE LATE MRS. FRANK HARVEY.

Owing to Mrs. Harvey's ill-health, they retired for five years, and took an estate close to Oldham. It was during this period that Mr. Harvey wrote his last play, The Milestones of Life, and for the purpose of producing it he started out on a "farewell tour." It was a farewell tour indeed, for it was during this itinerary that Mr. Harvey developed the illness that resulted in his death, in March, 1903. Mrs. Harvey, not caring to tour after her husband's death, left the stage for good, and took up her residence in London, where her untimely demise came as a shock to many.

Mr. Bannister Howard had an excellent company of artists during the past week at the Café Chantant in the North Tower Gardens of the Crystal Palace. They included Nell Emerald, Wal Robbins (musical comedian), Cissie Lupino (transformation dancer), Harding and Preston, Frances Ferina and company, and Li-Chang-Hi, the great Chinese musician. Next week the programme includes Fanny Robina in her great medley, "The Albert Hall Concert," "Coming back home again," and "My little baby boy"; Neil Hardy, the new and eccentric comedian; Florry Cooper, in her great song, "The stars are angel faces"; Stewart and Evans, in their comedy dialogue, "Aunt Amelia"; the Cosmans (George and Nellie) in their refined comedy act; and Haig and Russell (comedians).

(copyright.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

"EAST LYNNE" LITIGATION.

In the King's Bench Division on Tuesday, before Mr. Justice Bigham and a Common Jury, Mr. John Pitt Hardacre and Mrs. Frances Mary Gumley were the plaintiffs in an action for an infringement of their copyright in what is known as the Bullock version of East Lynne. Defendants were the Arthur Carlton Theatres (Limited), Mr. Herbert Barrs and his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Oswald Barrs, and Mr. Arthur Roscoe Carlton. The statement of claim alleged that at Bromley and Stalybridge in August and September, 1905, defendants, by a performance of East Lynne, infringed the plaintiff's copyright. Defendants denied there was any infringement.

Mr. Shee, K.C., for the plaintiffs, said East Lynne was adapted some years ago from a novel by a gentleman named Chute. The novel was a very sad story, also the play, and as the play did not succeed on the stage—it wanted something to relieve it—Mr. Chute added a comic part—viz., that of a policeman, who was named Bullock—and the play had been a great success. Mr. Hardacre acquired the rights to produce that version. There had been many attempts to alter the name of the comic policeman, but, counesl said, they were an infringement of Mr. Hardacre's rights. The infringement of which plaintiffs complained took place, and was persisted in, pending an action for an infringement of a similar character, at Birmingham. That action was tried at Manchester, where it was decided that there was an infringement of Mr. Hardacre's rights. In that case they had adopted the titles of the acts. The present action was in regard to representations of the play at Bromley and Stalybridge, where the policeman, instead of being called Bullock, was designated Jorkins, and it was alleged that the dialogue of that character was copied word for word from the Bullock version.

Mr. Cecil Elgar, business-manager for Messrs. Armitage and Lee, who are touring with a company playing Mr. Pitt Hardacre's version, said he saw the performance at Bromley, and in his opinion it was a copy of the Bullock version. There was very little alteration made, compared with that at Birmingham, in respect of which the plaintiff successfully brought an action.

His Lordship asked why defendants had on their bills, "This is not the Bullock version."

Witness said that was because a writ had been issued, claiming all rights under the Bullock version.

Mr. Shee asked the witness if he thought a comic policeman in itself was an infringement of Mr. Hardacre's play?

Witness: Yes. There is none in the original book.

Mr. Pitt Hardacre stated that the Bullock version of East Lynne was the only one that had held the stage. He had advertised in theatrical papers warning companies against infringements of his rights in respect to that version. He had brought many actions, and was always successful.

Mr. Rafferty, on behalf of Mr. Arthur Carlton, said his client was managing-director of the Arthur Carlton Company (Limited), and he made every effort to prevent any infringement of the Bullock version.

Mr. Barrs, another of the defendants, gave evidence, and denied that the words alleged were spoken at Bromley or Stalybridge. He agreed to perform the piece, and he denied that it was similar to the Bullock version. The words for the comic parts were taken from a recollection of comic pieces during an experience of twenty years. He crossed out that he thought resembled the Bullock version. In the action at Manchester the plaintiff got a verdict against witness for penalties amounting to £28, but they had not been paid.

The jury found a verdict for the plaintiffs against all the defendants, and his lordship entered judgment for £12, and granted an injunction.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

FRANK HENDERSON.—Both Mr. Joseph Mackay and Mr. Wallis Mackay have joined the great majority. We do not know the names of any plays from their pens. You might find them by searching The Era Almanacks for the last twenty years.

ARTHUR WILLIAMS.—The adaptation by Edmund Falconer of Victor Hugo's famous drama Ruy Blas was produced at the Princess's on Oct. 27, 1860, with the following cast: Ruy Blas, Mr. Fechter; Don Cæsar de Bazan, Mr. A. Harris; Don Salluste de Bazan, Mr. Walter Lacy; Count of Alba, Mr. Meadows; Don Pedro, Mr. Garden; Don Campo, Mr. Raymond; Gudiel, Mr. Moreland; An Alcade, Mr. Paulo; A Huissier, Mr. Daly; Marianne of Neuberg (betrothed and wedded by proxy to Charles II. of Spain), Miss Heath; Doña Casilda, Miss Rose Leclercq; and Duchess of Albuquerque, Mrs. Weston.

AMBIGUOUS.—An interesting summary of the action brought by the late Mr. George Adney Payne against Miss Marie Lloyd will be found in A. A. Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law," to be had at our offices.

GARSTON.—Judged By Appearances, play, in one act, was produced at the Comedy Theatre on March 22, 1902, the night of the transference of The New Clown from Terry's to the Panton-street house. Mr. Frederick Fenn is the author, and as he writes for The Tribune a letter to the office of that paper would no doubt reach him. He is also a member of the Green Room Club, 48, Leicester-square, W.C.

M. A. SCHEFF.—The Prince of Pilsen was produced for its first public performance in this country at the Shaftesbury Theatre on May 14, 1904. It was previously "copyrighted" at St. George's Hall.

SEABANK.—We regret to say that the number you require is out of print. You can see the file on application at our office and by payment of a fee.

CRAWFORD.—In loving memory of my husband, Alexander Cumming Rutherford Crawford (Harry Linn), who died June 11, 1890.

LE FRE.—In ever-loving memory of our darling Albert (son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Le Fre), who was taken from us June 17, 1905, aged 13 years.

"Beloved and loving, he has passed away,
While we who mourn his loss can only pray
To meet him again in that blest home
Where sorrow and death are all unknown."

IN spite of the lateness of the season, another new play was produced last Monday at the Astor Theatre, New York. It is called The Builders, and was written by Marian Fairfax. A young man of good family, after serving a term of imprisonment for manslaughter, goes to Arizona to begin life anew. Here he builds an irrigation plant, and is about to win fame and honour, when his prison record is produced. He is deeply in love with a girl, who turns from him when the crisis comes, and he ends by wedding his typist, who, like himself, is burdened with a past, and is able to sympathise with him.

We shall be obliged if our readers will send us any amusing anecdotes they may hear, or accounts of any quaint incidents they may witness while acting or rehearsing.

APPLICATIONS.

12166. Thomas Smith Jacobs, Hereford House, Southend Green, Hampstead, London. Anchor-stay or grip for securing tables, chairs, and other furniture to the floor of a theatre or other place.

COMPLETE SPECIFICATIONS ACCEPTED:

13110. Stockall and Checkogram, Ltd. Apparatus for delivering, receiving, and registering the delivery and receipt of tickets, checks, or the like for admission to theatres, halls, athletic and race-grounds, and other places.

2948. Darlaston. Illuminated means for indicating programme and similar references in theatres and music halls.

8573. Salge. Process for treating the human skin for theatrical and like purposes.

COMPLETE SPECIFICATION:

3633. Theatrical appliances. Dyball, G. H., Tivoli Music Hall, Strand, London. Tableaux curtains are partly balanced by a weight attached to lines passing over pulleys, and are first opened and then raised, by lines from a winding-drum. A line from a compensating balance weight is wound on a fusee barrel on the shaft of the winding-drum instead of on a cone pulley, thus preventing any slipping of the line.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.

Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.

Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.

Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.

Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, JUNE 15, 1907.

THE THEATRICAL SPORTS.

Again the time approaches when the "stalwarts" amongst the employees of the theatrical profession will meet to test their strength, activity, and endurance. At Stamford Bridge Grounds on July 9 the annual contests will take place in connection with the Theatrical Sports. These interesting and amusing competitions promote good fellowship throughout the body of workers, and encourage the acquisition of the healthy body in which the healthy mind is said to preferably reside. This paper has always been foremost in encouragement of these sports; and The Era Challenge Shield, for which the tug-of-war teams from the various London theatres and music halls will compete at Stamford Bridge, stands as a shining testimony to our sympathy with the object. The redoubtable team from the Empire, Dublin, who have hitherto won this shield and carried it to Ireland, will not compet this year. Mr. and Mrs. GEORGE ALEXANDER have sent a clock as the first prize for the 100 yards handicap, and Lady BANCROFT and Sir SQUIRE BANCROFT have contributed two prizes, while Mr. W. S. GILBERT has also donated. Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter have sent a magnificent timepiece as a prize. Mr. ALFRED SUTRO, Mr. FRANK CURZON, and Miss EVA MOORE are among the subscribers. The meeting of the committee last week, which included the chairman, Mr. C. AUBREY SMITH, Mr. F. H. PEDGRIFT, the hon. treasurer of the sports, the hon. secretary, Mr. W. JOHNSON, and representatives from several of the leading London theatres, was a most satisfactory one. The application of the committee for a representative from every music hall and theatre in the Metropolitan area has been freely responded to, and already over a dozen have been appointed. No fewer than seventeen "events" will be found on the card on the 9th prox., including such interesting items as a 100 yards veterans' running handicap, for men over fifty years of age; a 50 yards blindfold race; a four-lap "relay race," open to three men from any theatre or music hall, one of whom has to run, one to walk, and one to cycle; a five-mile cycling championship for the shield presented by Sir THOMAS DEWAR, M.P.; a 100 yards running handicap; and a 50 yards "boot race." With such an attractive ménu, it is to be hoped that the attendance at the sports will exceed even those of previous years. These annual theatrical sports are deserving of wide notice and general support from the profession at large. Year by year the sports have grown in popularity and interest; and there are many reasons why this gathering should rank among the most noteworthy professional gatherings of the year. The sports serve a three-fold purpose of undoubted importance; there is first their benevolent intent, the scope of which has been so enlarged as to disarm objections from those who do not care to support efforts to augment funds intended for a minority. The proceeds of the sports will be placed to the credit of a National Benevolent Fund for employees, male and female, which will be administered most carefully for the benefit of the deserving. That the fluctuating nature of theatrical business inevitably involves some hardships among the ranks of the employees is notorious, and that such a fund will serve a useful purpose may be taken for granted. The second object of the sports is social—to bring employer and employed together in aid of charity, and to encourage athletic exercises by employees. The man of affairs in a theatre must be in close touch with his staff, and exercise a supervision over the performance of their multifarious duties. To take an interest in these sports is to show an interest in their affairs and to encourage them to forms of exercise beneficial to the individual and helpful in keeping alive the love of physical skill. To cultivate an esprit de corps in the staff of every theatre is not without its economic advantage to employers. When men take interest in the doing of their champions, and follow to the field their teams who compete to hold or win some trophy that carries honour and distinction, they are brought into "comradely" relations; and when they know that their manager takes an interest in their efforts their respect and affection for him increase. A keen interest in these athletic exercises helps to soften the asperities inevitable in the profession, and to bridge over the divisions of caste and rank.

The Theatrical Sports are under the auspices of the National Association of Theatrical Employees; and those competing are for the most part engaged in the more practical and mechanical labours of the stage. There would be no difficulty, however, if it were deemed desirable, in organising an Athletic Festival which would be joined in by the "shining lights" of the theatrical profession, many of whom are college men and excellent amateur athletes. There can be little doubt of such sports being well attended; indeed, the chief objection would be that the general public would flock to the spectacle from motives which would involve some loss of dignity in the competitors. The sight of Mr. BEERBOHM TREE, Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER, and Mr. MARTIN HARVEY taking part in a "sack race" would certainly "draw all London," and would result in a splendid "gate" for the benefit of theatrical funds; but, though we daresay the devotion of these gentlemen would induce them to sacrifice themselves in the cause of charity, it would be base to take advantage of their good nature. It might be argued that, considering the uncertain nature of theatrical speculation, a "blindfold" race was only a physical parallel to the competition in which a manager takes part whenever he produces a new play; and the oppositions which every London entrepreneur meets with in the course of ordinary business must familiarise him, morally, with those of an "obstacle" race. But if all that we hear of the difficulty of the experienced actor obtaining an engagement in the provinces be correct, the veterans of the profession would find a competition like that mentioned above a painful reminder of the fact that they are badly "handicapped" already in the struggle for existence. We hope that, even though they cannot compete personally in the arena, the leaders of the profession will assist and encourage the Theatrical Sports in every possible way.

MATINEE AT THE ROYALTY.

Two new pieces were produced at a special matinée at the Royalty Theatre on Monday in aid of the Ladies' Work Association, an institution that is quite helpful to needy gentlewomen in the disposal of their handicraft. A so-called Bohemian comedy in two scenes, by Francis Toye, formed the opening item in the programme. It was entitled

"THE EXTRA SHILLING."

Richard Allingham .....MR. ROBERT HILTON
Walter Ravenscroft ....MR. PHILIP DESBOROUGH
Bateson .....MISS ELSA SINCLAIR
Mary Carrington .....MISS ESME HUBBARD
Olive Trevorton .....MISS INA PELLY

By the use of the word "Bohemian" as a description of his comedy the author evidently considers it allowable for the men characters to swear at their own sweet will before ladies without the slightest semblance of apology. To our thinking both Dick Allingham and Walter Ravenscroft were most objectionable bounders, and it seemed a pity that Olive Trevorton and Mary Carrington did not possess brothers to resent their caddish behaviour. Dick, at the opening of the piece, has been apparently successful in his suit to Olive, who, however, allows Walter to dangle after her; and when, later, Dick calls at the flat to tell her that he is going down to Putney to propose to the rich Miss Rosie Beale, she takes it quite calmly. After his departure, however, she discovers that her heart is not quite so indifferent to him as she thought, and, telegraphing, she brings him back to her side. Extraordinary conduct, truly, for any girl of such independent notions as Olive! He returns, proposes, and is accepted. There is some attempt at epigrammatic writing in the comedy, but when the dialogue is not vulgarised by unseemly language it is dull and stupid. Miss Ina Pelly, in spite of an evident lisp, almost succeeded in making Olive interesting; and Miss Esmé Hubbard was easy and natural as Mary Carrington. Mr. Robert Hilton and Mr. Philip Desborough did as well as one could expect with the men characters, whose words and actions, we hope, are not typical of the smart young men of the day. Miss Elsa Sinclair completed the cast as the maid Bateson.

Midway in the bill came the representation of Le Passant, by François Coppée, played with a real tinge of romance by Miss Aimée Lowther as Zanetto and Miss Rita Jolivet as Sylvia. The concluding item of the bill had apparently aroused considerable interest among the audience. Its author, Mr. Brinsley Trehane, has trenched on dangerous ground, but though his piece is Biblical he has skilfully avoided offending religious susceptibilities, and some of his lines have considerable power. It is entitled

"THE DAUGHTER OF HERODIAS."

Herod .....MR. ROBERT HILTON
Astrologer .....MR. PHILIP DESBOROUGH
Executioner .....MR. EVERITT COMBERBACH
Slave .....MR. J. BRAITHWAITE
Salome .....MISS MABILIA DANIELL

The overture, by Robert Hilton, suggests the tragic subject somewhat cleverly, and the incidental music by Granville Bantock is appropriate. Herod, seated in his palace, is warned by an astrologer against his infatuation for the "daughter of the dust of hell"—Salome. She dances before the monarch, and her snake-like movements fascinate him. In his rapture he exclaims: "Now ask thou, daughter of Herodias, what thou wilt; rack heaven itself for thy reward." She whispers in his ear, and the messenger of death to John the Baptist departs with a warrant. The deed of blood is proclaimed in the streets by the wailings of the people, and the curtain falls. When it again rises, Salomé is being attacked and maltreated by the revengeful Jews, and is eventually stabbed to the heart by the executioner. Mr. Robert Hilton would have been an impressive Herod had he not been so indistinct. He endeavoured to be intense, but succeeded only in being inaudible. Mr. Philip Desborough may be complimented on his sincerity as the Astrologer. There was nothing particularly distinctive or impressive about Miss Mabilia Daniell's dancing or pantomime as Salomé, but she certainly looked the part. The piece was produced by Mr. Robert Hilton and Mr. Montague Wigan, the latter officiating as stage-manager during the afternoon.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Mr Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

THE Princess Christian of Schleswig, the Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein and suite, were present at the performance of John Glayde's Honour at the St. James's Theatre on Thursday evening.

"JOHN GLAYDE'S HONOUR."

100th PERFORMANCE.

Mr. Alfred Sutro in his treatment of his dramatic thesis in John Glayde's Honour has shown an unconventionality as daring as it is interesting. Had he followed the methods of the brilliant Dumas, or even the French dramatists of the present day, he would have been open to the charge of plagiarism or conventionality, or both. Had the ending of the successful St. James's play been the customary duel between the two men, or the more violent expedient of killing the wife, there would have been little chance of success. By making the American millionaire occupy a higher plane of philosophy than is customary with men possessing wives who announce frankly their intention of being unfaithful, the author has raised an enormous amount of discussion. This has spelt success, and on Friday, the 7th instant, when Mr. Sutro's play reached its hundredth performance, a large and enthusiastic audience expressed its pleasure by fashionable applause, and the curtain had to be raised several times after each act.

This gratifying success has been secured by the delightful acting of the whole of the cast; and the production boasts throughout that cachet which has come to be regarded as a special feature of Mr Alexander's management. Everything is in perfect taste, and throughout the play we realise the stress and cares of a modern business American who has devoted his life to the making of money. The character is perfectly natural. John Glayde, in spite of his wonderful success—a success eloquent of financial genius and of the making of opportunity—is deeply conscience-stricken that while the millions stick to him the wife whom he won in the more romantic days of his youth is slipping away. Mr. George Alexander's fine, thoughtful features suggest this idea in Glayde's first interview with Muriel in the first act, on the unexpected return of the husband from America. There is apprehension of coming trouble in the quick, anxious glance at Lerode. How tender are Mr. Alexander's tones in the scene wherein he sketches the future of husband and wife as Darby and Joan, and how powerfully he strikes the chord of sympathy in John Glayde's forgiveness of the woman who goes out from his presence to betray him. In the last act his just wrath—never over-emphasised—is terrible in its biting irony and its freezing patronage.

Miss Eva Moore has had many more attractive parts than that of Muriel Glayde, but rarely one of greater difficulty, or one that demands so much quiet force and intensity. It were so easy to be melodramatic in the wife's reproaches of a husband whose pursuit of business has obliterated all memory of his early devotion and tenderness. Muriel's specious reasonings for her treason, it is true, convince no one but herself, but Miss Moore makes us understand the character of the woman who utters them. Of course, there can be no sympathy for the Delilah-like behaviour of Muriel in the third act, and such a cruel piece of deceit makes the portrait seem out of drawing. But the actress nevertheless triumphs, and presents very cleverly the woman, racked with doubt, carried away by an impulse of infatuation.

Mr. Matheson Lang as the lover Lerode has not a long part, but his rendering is full of passion, especially so in the scene where the artist tears up the millionaire's cheque in payment for his unfinished picture. As a jeune premier Mr. Lang had already made his mark, and his engagement at the St. James's has added materially to his already high reputation as an actor.

Mr. Norman Forbes has long held the position of one of London's most original actors, and his appearance in the part of Christopher Branley gives it considerable importance. Christopher has set theories concerning life which are the result of a deliberate trifling with opportunity. He has what may be called a kink in his disposition; but as a theatrical character he is decidedly interesting as presented by Mr. Forbes, whose sketch adds appreciably to the colour scheme of Mr. Sutro's dramatic canvas.

Mr. W. Graham Browne as Howard Collingham suggests most agreeably, and with no little earnestness and sincerity, a bright, chivalrous youth with a wisdom beyond his years. The interviews between Collingham and John Glayde contain some good dialogue, and Mr. Browne makes every one of his lines tell by his well-bred restraint and dignity.

Miss Henrietta Watson cleverly avoids the melodramatic note as the Princesse de Castagnary—more sinned against than sinning—and depicts with considerable power the anxiety of the woman who has suffered to prevent her inexperienced and infatuated friend from taking the fatal step that leads only to remorse. The actress scores most unmistakably in the final scene in the studio.

Miss Helen Ferrers succeeds in giving character to Lady Lerode; and Miss Gwendolen Floyd's Mrs. Rennick adds to the interest of the lighter scenes. Miss May Martyn's Dora Longman has considerably improved, and her portrait of the young ingénue is winsome indeed.

Mr. Michael Sherbrooke as the confidential valet does much to raise the curiosity and excitement of the audience, especially in the second act. Michael, whose life seems to be spent in deciphering codes and sending cablegrams, is a man of very few words, and Mr. Sherbrooke makes them tremendously effective.

Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds has but one scene as Walters, that in which the confidential valet hesitates to tell his master of the clandestine interview between Trevor Lerode and Mrs. Glayde. It is a scene, however, that requires the tactful treatment of an experienced actor, and it is only a just tribute to Mr. Reynolds's power to say that he is perfect. Mr. W. Hann's fine interior in the first and third act suggests artistically the luxury and taste of a Parisian home; and Mr. Joseph Harker's studio in the last act is particularly good.

STAGE SOCIETY PRODUCTIONS.

A long but not unprofitable afternoon was spent in the Imperial Theatre on Monday, when the latest discoveries of the Incorporated Stage Society were given to the public. The first was a one-act piece translated from the German of Frank Wedekind by a member of the Society, and entitled

"DER KAMMERSANGER."

Servant .....MR. CHARLES GIBSON
Lift Boy .....MR. A. B. IMESON
Gerardo .....MR. JULIAN L'ESTRANGE
Isabel Coeurne .....MISS IRENE CLARKE
Professor Duhring.....MR. EDMUND GWENN
Music Mistress .....MISS FLORENCE ADALE
Helene Marowa .....MISS CONSTANCE COLLIER
Muller .....MR. JAMES R. SINCLAIR
Charwoman .....MISS ALYS REES

A sublimely ridiculous point is reached in the above play, which, despite a number of smart sayings, occupied a tedious hour. Art has no place in the vocabulary of a German Court singer named Gerardo, whose one idea of duty is to keep faith with the public, by whom he is idolised. He is engaged to sing Tristan in a distant town, but his departure is delayed by the appearance of a child of sixteen, one of the many who have fallen madly in love with the tenor. No sooner has he succeeded in dismissing her with his photograph and a few words of fatherly advice than he is broken in upon by an old musical composer, who beseeches him to listen to a few bars of an opera to which he has devoted his life. The tenor has only half an hour in which to catch his train, but gives ear to long speeches by his visitor, and answers them in equally protracted terms. The old man is succeeded by a smartly-dressed lady, who has forced her way past the servant. She has been on terms of illicit affection with Gerardo, declares she cannot live without him, and threatens that unless he takes her with him she will commit suicide. Gerardo refuses, and the lady, pressing a revolver to her forehead, falls mortally wounded. Gerardo can see only one way to avoid breaking his contract, and that is to get himself arrested for the crime. He sends for the police, but they are nowhere to be found. Ten seconds only remain for the singer to catch his train, and, leaving the unconscious woman lying on the floor, he rushes off to the railway station, secure of fulfilling his contract.

The little piece was strongly cast. Mr. Julian L'Estrange adopted an easy method well in keeping with the part of the popular but pedantic Gerardo, and delivered his formidable length of lines with easy assurance. Superbly arrayed, Miss Constance Collier did the best possible with the character of Helene Marowa. The depths of despair to which the woman descends were portrayed with tragic significance, and the sight of the beautiful suppliant at the feet of her idol almost compensated for the unreality of the scene. Mr. Edmund Gwenn invested the part of the old composer with deep earnestness and emotional power; and the artlessness of the infatuated young girl was sweetly expressed by Miss Irene Clarke.

The more important item of the programme was a play in three acts by Charles McEvoy, entitled

"DAVID BALLARD."

Mrs. Ballard .....MISS CLARE GREET
Gladys Ballard .....MISS LILIAN M. REVELL
Louisa .....MISS SYDNEY FAIRBROTHER
Mercy Hainton .....MISS DOROTHY MINTO
Percy Ballard .....MR. NORMAN PAGE
David Ballard .....MR. MILTON ROSMER
Simon Ballard .....MR. EDMUND GURNEY
Darwin Snodge .....MR. NIGEL PLAYFAIR
Leo .....MR. JULES SHAW
Rosace .....MR. KENYON MUSGRAVE

The hero of the story proves to be no hero after all, and his adventures, exciting at times, have a tame and conventional ending. The play, however, is ingeniously filled in with a number of characters, and the dialogue put into their mouths has a freshness and humour which is very welcome. The dissension which exists in the Ballard family is owing chiefly to the eldest daughter, Gladys, who has ideas beyond her station, and with her sharp tongue controls the house. Percy, the younger son, who enjoys life as far as his means will permit and perhaps farther, is the hope of the family; while his brother David yearns to get away from his desk in the counting-house and to achieve literary distinction. He tries to borrow £5 from his father in order to start on a career as an author, but is refused, and accordingly leaves the house with the determination to do or die. A year elapses, and the family, minus David, is found in a restaurant at Soho, whither they have repaired at the invitation of Darwin Snodge, a cheap picture-painter, who is giving a dinner in celebration of his engagement with the irritating Gladys. The dinner has scarcely ended when David staggers into the room in a starving condition. Despite the protests of Gladys, Snodge, fearful of having such a character as David as a brother-in-law, aggressively insists on the young man returning home; but David refuses until his pretty cousin, Mercy Hainton, adds her entreaties. The third act finds David, evidently reformed, and occupying the position left vacant by his father, who has died during the year that has elapsed. Percy, however, has taken an opposite road, and presently comes to Mercy with the confession that he has embezzled £700 of his employer's money. He coolly proposes that Mercy shall devote a sum of £500 which she has inherited to refund the money, and thus save him from gaol. David is indignant at the proposal, and while he is persuading Mercy to sever her connection with such a family the pair discover that they are in love with each other, and, after agreeing to devote Mercy's money and £100 which David has won by a poem on Sunlight Soap to pay off Percy's theft, they leave the house with the intention of getting married. Each character of the play is cleverly contrived, and the chief success was made by Miss Clare Greet as the h-less Mrs. Ballard, who is responsible for some of the most amusing dialogue of the piece. Miss Greet was natural and unobtrusive, and acted the part to perfection. No less effective was the Gladys of Miss Lilian M. Revell, who happily caught the asperity of tone required and represented the hard-natured girl with fidelity. Much was expected of Miss Sidney Fairbrother, and in the part of an oppressed "slavey" she did not disappoint, and gave an original rendering, teeming with real touches of comedy. A clever conception of the selfish and little-minded Percy was supplied by Mr. Norman Page, who suggested exactly the low cunning and conceit of the part, which yielded a wealth of drollery. Miss Dorothy Minto gave an earnest and delicately sympathetic impersonation of the gentle Mercy, and a companion picture was provided in the kindly and genial old father, acted in fine style by Mr. Edmund Gurney. Mr. Milton Rosmer skilfully simulated the unrest and passionate vehemence of David, his acting in the scene in the restaurant being very powerful. A clever caricature of the superficially sage Darwin Snodge was supplied by Mr. Nigel Playfair, whose rich voice and vigorous style stood him in good stead Excellent impersonations of a German waiter and a restaurant proprietor were given by Messrs Jules Shaw and Kenyon Musgrave respectively Much laughter was the outcome of the performance, but the audience were too fatigued at the end of four hours to make any great manifestation of approval.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

Bizet's popular masterpiece, Carmen, was produced on Thursday night, June 6, to an overflowing house, and vocally the performance was an undoubted success. Mme. Kirkby Lunn, although not an ideal Carmen, sang the charming music to perfection; indeed, it may be questioned if the famous Habañera or Mme. Lunn's share in the duet with Don José was ever so beautifully rendered. Histrionically Mme. Lunn did not quite realise Prosper Merrimée's passionate and fascinating heroine, which was so admirably acted by Mme. Minnie Hauk when Carmen, on June 22, 1878, at Her Majesty's, was first heard in London, with Campanini as Don José and Del Puenti as the Toreador.

Signor Caruso, who was in excellent voice, sang the Rose song so finely that the audience tried hard for an encore. In the part of Micaela Mme. Donaldo sang most sympathetically; and the characters of Frasquita and Mercedes were adequately represented by Mesdames Lejeune and Paulin; while M. Gilibert made a capital smuggler and Signor Scandiani a picturesque Toreador. Signor Campanini conducted; the chorus was bright and effective, and the stage-management excellent.

On Saturday last the double bill, Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci, so familiar in the late Sir Augustus Harris's time, was given at Covent Garden, and, to judge by the immense house, these works have by no means lost their popularity. In Mascagni's opera a new-comer, Mr. Wheatley, appeared as Turiddu, and revealed a pleasing though not powerful tenor voice, which Mr. Wheatley has at times a tendency to force. Miss Scalar, another American, who sang with such success in Aida last year, impersonated the unhappy Santuzza, receiving a hearty welcome from the audience on her rentrée. Miss Scalar sang with intensity and acted in a dramatic and powerful manner; while Miss Gleeson-White sang Lola's music charmingly. M. Scandiani made a fairly effective Alfio; and the character of Lucia was undertaken by Mme. Severina.

Pagliacci was, on the whole, a finer performance. Miss Destinn made a most dramatic Nedda, as well as singing the music admirably, adding another artistic triumph to her already long list. Mr. Sammarco, who was excellent as Tonio, sang the Prologue finely, being received with enthusiastic applause; and Mr. Bassi, a new American tenor, acted and sang with distinction as Canio, although the monologue at the end of the first act was delivered in somewhat too exaggerated a manner. Mr. Bassi, however, made a good impression, and will be a welcome addition to the Covent Garden artists. Messrs. Venturini and Scandiani were successful as Silvo and Beppe; and Signor Campanini, who conducted both operas, secured excellent results.

A gala performance, by command of King Edward, in honour of the King and Queen of Denmark, was given at Covent Garden on Tuesday night. The house presented a most brilliant appearance. Round each of the balconies in the auditorium, trellis, covered with smilax and roses, had been fitted, while five boxes on the grand tier, thrown in one and draped with yellow and white hangings, constituted the Royal box, in front of which, on a medallion in yellow flowers, were the initials "E. and F." On each side of the box, also constructed of flowers, were the Union Jack and the Danish ensign. Over the Royal box was a Tudor crown, also in flowers, and from the balcony tier numerous baskets of roses hung, while all round the proscenium ran a deep border of crimson and pink roses. At nine o'clock the immense audience rose as His Majesty the King entered the Royal box with the Queen of Denmark, followed by the King of Denmark with Queen Alexandra. After them followed the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught, the Duchess of Connaught, and Princess Patricia of Connaught. Other members of the Royal Family were the Princess Victoria, the Princess Royal, the Duke of Fife, Prince and Princess Christian, and the Princesses Elizabeth and Victoria of Bentheim, and the Duke of Argyll, while among the audience was a perfect host of the rank and fashion. The Danish National Anthem and "God Save the King" were played by the orchestra when the Royal party arrived. The performance consisted of the first act of Madama Butterfly, in which Mlle. Destinn, Signor Caruso, Signor Scotti, Mme. Lejeune, and Signors Zucchi, Marcoux, and Galletti appeared; La Bohème, Act 1, with Mme. Melba, Signor Caruso, Signor Sammarco, Signor Marcoux, M. Gilibert, and Signor Gianoli in the cast; and selections from scenes 1 and 2 of Die Meistersinger, Act 3, Herr Van Rooy playing Hans Sachs, and Fräulein Hempel and Frau Tolli the characters of Eva and Magdalene. Detailed criticism of these examples is unnecessary. All the principal vocalists were in good voice, Mme. Melba and Signor Caruso having two recalls after La Bohème. Puccini's two works were conducted by Signor Campanini, and Dr. Richter the excerpts given of Die Meistersinger. A sad event occurred during the gala performance. Sir Arthur Ellis died through heart seizure while he and Lady Ellis were conversing with Sir Frederick Treves. It was thought at first that Sir Arthur Ellis had simply fainted, but though Sir James Reid and Sir Frederick Treves did all that was possible, he never recovered consciousness. It was thought best merely to state to the Royal party that Sir Arthur Ellis had fainted and had been carried out from the stalls. Sir Arthur Ellis had suffered for a long time from heart disease and fainting fits, and had been advised not to go where excitement was, or attend race meetings.

BOURNEMOUTH MANAGER DROWNED.

An inquest was held on Wednesday at the Bournemouth Coroner's Court before the Deputy Coroner, Mr. F. G. Lefroy, on the body of Mr. Rowland Stewart, manager of the Theatre Royal, Bournemouth, whose body was found in the sea at Bournemouth the previous day.

A boatman in the employ of the Bournemouth Corporation said that he was in charge of the Bathing station at Meyrick Steps, to the east of Bournemouth Pier, on Tuesday morning. At about a quarter to eight he saw a body in the water, and went in and brought it to the shore.

Dr. Harold Simmons, police surgeon, said the body was externally much bruised, especially about the head, face, and chest. The lungs were congested, and there was water in the lungs and stomach. The appearances were those characteristic of death by drowning. The injuries were such as were usually found on bodies which had been buffeted about against rocks or piers. The body had been in the water two days or more.

The jury returned a verdict of found drowned. The Coroner said he was asked by Mr. Hounsell, who represented Messrs. Mouillot and Co., in whose employ deceased was for a long time, to state to the jury—and he had much pleasure in making the statement, for he knew deceased as a fellow townsman—that Mr. Mouillot had the highest opinion of the deceased, that he valued his services greatly, and much regretted his death.

MR. THEO. BALFOUR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In reference to Mr. Theo. Balfour's letter in last week's Era, it is more than evident that there are other Balfours in the profession.—Yours faithfully,

SUSIE CAMPBELL.

Kennington Theatre, June 10.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

We understand that the Board of Trade Arbitrator's award in the matter of the recent music-hall dispute took concrete form yesterday, when it was signed by Mr. G. R. Askwith. The award is to be issued to-day.

Miss Marie Lloyd will make her first appearance on the Paris variety stage at the Folies-Marigny on Sunday night, and will give altogether eight performances at this house. Among Miss Lloyd's artistic comrades will be La Belle Otero. Two real tip-toppers! Miss Lloyd will appear in some delightful gowns.

The office of general secretary to the Variety Artists' Federation will now be filled by Mr. Monte Bayly, and Mr. Frank Gerald, who was so prominent during the strike, now retires from the position. He polled 23 votes to Mr. Bayly's 81.

Miss Marie Tempest has very kindly consented to present the prizes at the Theatrical Sports at Stamford Bridge on Tuesday, July 9. It is to be hoped that many admirers of the popular artist will be present to "support" her on this interesting occasion.

The new "mirth and mystery" sketch, with the clumsy title of The Constable and the Pictures, which was given a first trip in London at Walham Green, is coming to the Tivoli on Monday, the 24th, Miss Agnes Fraser makes a most engaging and picturesque heroine, and Mr. M. R. Morand, her comrade in The Earl and the Girl, and Mr. Alec Fraser give able support.

Among Mr. Alfred Butt's most interesting forthcoming engagements are Miss Lawler, long associated with the stage in the part of "La Cigale," and Miss Maud Allen, who will introduce a sensational attraction entitled The Vision of Salome.

Mr. Frank Macnaghten, with his ever-widening circuit, which now embraces some twenty houses, has found it absolutely necessary to establish a London booking centre, and henceforward the preparing, signing, and issue of contracts, and the engagements of artists will be principally carried out at Oakley House, Bloomsbury-street, W.C. The financial offices will remain as hitherto at York-street, Sheffield.

Miss Adeline Genee and Miss Dorothy Craske will both be absent from the Empire at Christmas, the Danish prima donna assoluta going to America, and Miss Craske to the Lyceum to play her first speaking part—that of Robinson Crusoe. This young lady at the Leicester-square house has played "boys" for years past with most expressive gestures and eloquent pantomime, and her grace, refinement, and charm should make her an ideal choice for her new part.

Mrs. Adney Payne has announced her intention of returning to the stage, and the pictures and drawings belonging to her, which include works by F. Goodall, R.A., T. B. Hardy, James Baldock, Edwin Ellis, J. F. Herring, and others, will be sold on Thursday next, June 20, at their rooms, King-street, St. James's-square, by Messrs. Robinson and Fisher, who have also received her instructions to sell at the same place on July 2 and 3 the decorative china, bronzes, carved ivory figures, a buhl table, a Bechstein pianoforte, a bedroom suite, and other effects belonging to her.

Miss Margaret Ashton, who heads the list as the result of the third week's voting in the annual Pelican Competition, has been spending a few days in Paris preparatory to enjoying a holiday tour in the Norwegian Fjords. The popular American lady sails on Tuesday for Bergen, thence to Trondjhem, and—if time permits—as far north as the Lofoden Islands, which lie within the Arctic Circle. In July Miss Ashton resumes her London engagements at the Oxford.

"Zuyder Zee" is due at the London Hippodrome on Monday, June 24. It is Mr. Frank Parker's fortieth production at this theatre. The "book" has been written by W. H. Risque, and the music by Carl Kiefert. The cast includes Mr. Tom Shale, a tenor-comedian, who has done some excellent work in leading operatic and musical comedy parts in the provinces. He will play Van Schunk, a Dutch cheese and sausage factor; and the chief comedy interest will be safe in the keeping of Mr. Bert Gilbert, an old favourite at this house, and Mr. Jimmy Milburn, whose youthful appearance belies the fact that he is a veteran comic of the halls. Nipper Lupino Lane comes with excellent family credentials; and Baby Betty Green, who is to play Wee Gretchen will be remembered for her delightful performance last year in The Prince Chap at the Criterion. Of Miss May Moore Duprez, who is to play Greta, the queen of the carnival, we spoke last week.

The champion skaters engaged, in addition to the foregoing, include Hess and Lisbon, the Ashley Team, the Four Figaros, the Snow Family, and the Tiller Troupe of Dutch clog-dancers. The first scene shows a carnival in progress at Amsterdam in summer, with the picturesque details of a Dutch setting. A quick change will show the same spot in winter. Again it is carnival, and snow-covered skaters will give the most realistic aspect to this scene.

De Gracia's Royal Assam Elephants, while proceeding from New Cross Empire to the Empire, Stratford, on Sunday morning, were stopped at Blackwall Tunnel by the police, who considered that the gigantic pets were in some way breaking the bye-laws; but the constable could not detain them, owing to their ponderous weight, and affection for their keepers. There was no damage done, or any excitement, but when a policeman takes one's name and address it is generally a prelude to a summons.

Having regard to the disturbed condition of variety business in January and February last, on account of the strike, the net profit earned by the Oxford for the twelve months ended April 30 may be summed up as entirely satisfactory. After providing for interest on the Debentures, it amounts to the sum of £16,092. The payment of a further dividend of £6 per cent. (less income tax) for the half-year ended April 30, together with a bonus of 1s. per share (free of tax) equal to £11 per cent. for the year was passed at the fifteenth annual meeting of shareholders held at the hall yesterday afternoon. The directors dealt with the surplus by applying £5000 to the general reserve fund, and carrying the balance to the current year's accounts. It will be seen by the balance-sheet that the directors have been enabled to redeem on satisfactory terms £20,650 of the Debenture issue.

We understand that the Theatres and Music Halls Committee of the London County Council has postponed for a week a decision with regard to the appeal to stop the exhibitions of living statuary in order that four members of the committee who have not seen the performance may do so in the interval.

Mr. Percival H. Gallagher has been appointed acting-manager of the Grand, Clapham, and entered on his duties on May 20.

Operations have commenced towards the providing of the new theatre in Lodge-lane, Liverpool. Messrs. Broadhead, of Manchester, are now rapidly demolishing the old property on the site, and there are hopes that the handsome building will be ready for opening early in the new year.

Mr. Fred Coles, who, after ten years' service as acting-manager of the Liverpool Lyric, has resigned through ill-health, was last week given a bumper benefit. On behalf of a number of well-wishers, he was presented with a substantial cheque, while his colleagues handed him a silver-mounted dressing case, and a handsome inkstand.

The erroneous impression formed that the Glasgow magistrates had forbidden the exhibition of living statuary has been dissipated by the appearance of the twenty professional French models of Mlle. de Serris at Glasgow Empire this week, by the special permission of the magistrates to the proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.

The Star Theatre, Swansea, is, we are informed, going to be entirely rebuilt, at a cost of £15,000. The auditorium will be gutted, and a handsome dress circle added, with gallery above. Boxes will also be provided. The stage will not be interfered with. Plans are now being prepared by a well-known firm of theatrical architects, and will be presented to the Swansea Watch Committee in a few weeks' time. These intended alterations will make the Star one of the handsomest theatres in Wales.

Miss Vesta Tilley, who will be the leading star at the opening of the New Empire, Sunderland, on July 1, may be said to be the mascot of the many houses associated with the name of Mr. Richard Thornton, Sir Edward Moss, and Mr. Frank Allen, in the North-Eastern district of England. Miss Tilley was intimately associated with the opening of the Empire, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and on Sept. 29 last year laid the foundation-stone of the Sunderland house, which is the thirty-ninth established in conjunction with the great Moss-Stoll, Thornton, and Allen combine.

Miss Tilley was then presented with a beautifully-designed jewel casket and jewel tray, the former being inscribed, "Presented to Miss Vesta Tilley on the occasion of her placing the foundation-stone of Mr. Richard Thornton's New Empire Theatre, Sept. 29, 1906. W. and T. R. Milburn, F.R.I.B.A., Architects; J. W. White, Builder." The Mayor of Sunderland, referring to Miss Tilley, said, "She had endeared herself to everybody, and the stone which she had placed in position bore on it a name that would always be loved—Miss Vesta Tilley. He asked them to thank her and drink her health, and he was glad to be able to announce that, when the building was ready, she would appear on the opening night." Now the building is ready, and Miss Tilley appears on July 1.

Chappell's Promenade Concerts, Great Yarmouth, of which the proprietress is Mrs. S. Lawton and the general-manager Mr. Harry Barker, will open on Monday next for the summer season with three performances daily, 11 a.m., 3 p.m., 7 p.m. The following artists will appear:—Minnie Leverentz, Bros. Hannaway, J. H. Crew, Cissy Trent, Leslie Reed, Lulu Langley, Byden Currie, Bob Stephenson, Ernest D'Almaine, Maie Duncan, J. E. Fletcher, Amy Bellwood, Bu-Val, William Kingsley, James Law, Clark and Gold, Lack and Ford, Miss Maie, Henry Foden, Curtis Leo, Bros. Lavelle, Robert Gilbert, The Deroneys, Alfar, Les Blancs, Fife and Fife, Hector and Sultan, and Harry Barker.

The report of the directors of the New Gaiety Theatre Co., Dundee, Ltd., to the second annual meeting of the shareholders, together with profit and loss account and balance-sheet, as at May 15, 1907, has just been issued. The profit and loss account shows a surplus for the year, which the directors propose to deal with by paying a dividend of five per cent., free of income-tax, and carrying the sum of £90 to the reserve fund.

In connection with the visit of the Three Royal Dreadnoughts, expert rifle shots, to the Palace of Varieties, Attercliffe, last week, a miniature air-rifle competition was inaugurated, for which Mr. T. Allan Edwardes, the proprietor, offered a number of valuable prizes, consisting of a silver cup and gold and silver medals, all of which were keenly contested for with excellent results. The whole arrangements were made and carried out by Mr. J. Lacy Lyne, the popular manager, in a highly satisfactory manner.

Mr. Irving Bosco (Poole and Bosco), formerly joint proprietor of the Hippodrome, Chichester-street, Belfast, was the defendant in an action brought before Judge Gibson, in Dublin, on Friday, the 7th inst., by David Lynch, a petty officer on board H.M.S. Emerald, to recover damages (£1000) for personal injuries sustained by him. Plaintiff, it appeared, attended a performance given under the defendant's auspices at Queenstown on May 14, 1906. A trick rifle-shot was showing what he could do, when a bullet glanced off the target and hit the plaintiff in the right eye, of which he had lost the sight, and had been deprived of further promotion in the naval service and of his pension. Mr. Justice Gibson directed the jury to award substantial damages. The jury assessed them at £750.

Mr. Justice Darling and Mr. Justice A. T. Lawrence, in the Divisional Court on Saturday, dismissed the appeal of Harvey and others v. Tivoli, Manchester (Limited). This was an appeal by plaintiffs from a judgment, by Judge Woodfall, at Westminster County Court. They entered into a contract with the defendant company to give a speciality entertainment in October, 1906. The agreement was signed in October, 1903, by the "Harvey Boys." Eddie Harvey, a member of the trio, died two months before the date of the performance, and the defendant company consequently cancelled the contract, although the vacancy in the troupe had been filled by a substitute. Plaintiffs sued the defendant company for £32 10s., or damages for breach of the agreement, but the Judge decided in favour of the defendant company.

Mr. Justice Darling, in delivering judgment, said it was contended that the Harvey Troupe, having once existed, no matter what changes might take place in its component parts, the entity existed, and would continue to exist for ever. He did not think that could be maintained. Therefore the appeal failed. Mr. Justice Lawrence concurred. He said it was a personal contract, and they could not force the defendant company to accept other persons than those agreed upon.

Mr. Morris Abrahams, the hard-working assistant acting-manager of the Queen's, Poplar, is taking a well-earned rest this week at Blackpool, which at this time of the year is seen at its best.

At a meeting of the Birmingham Watch Committee on Wednesday, the Estates Committee forwarded a complaint from some of the tenants of houses adjoining the Gaiety Theatre. They expressed their intention of leaving their premises unless the annoyances caused by the queue system, the striking of matches on the paintwork, the throwing of orange peel, and the use of bad language were abated. The Chief-Constable, who said that there were already police on special duty at this queue, said he would have a report prepared on the matter by the superintendent of the division.

Mr. Stanley E. Mullen, of the new Melbourne music-publishing house of Mullen and Co., is now on a visit to London, a visit in which he is combining business and pleasure. His name will be remembered as a former terror to evil-doers in the nefarious trade of the music pirate.

Mr. Fred Day, looking fit and well, arrived in London on Saturday last, having journeyed from New York on the Lucania. As is well known, the American branch of Messrs. Francis and Day's great business has been under his control since its inception, and has proved a hugely-successful undertaking under his management, and he is now enjoying a well-earned holiday. He was met at Euston by Mr. David Day, and heartily greeted by many members of the staffs of the Charing Cross-road and Denmark-street establishments.

Mr. Fred W. Millis, who has recovered from his serious operation, is leaving the Gordon Hospital, Vauxhall Bridge-road, this week. He will not be able to work for a few weeks yet. He desires to put on record the extreme kindness he has received from the matron, the nurses, and all connected with the institution, not forgetting Mr. Miles, the clever specialist, who so skilfully operated and watched his case.

Mr. Herbert Shelley, who is at Camberwell and the Metropolitan next week, has concluded his successful tour of Dan the Outlaw at the Olympia, Liverpool, this week. The Press in every important city visited have been high in their praise of his Gaelic protean play, and Mr. Oswald Stoll has secured the attraction for the whole of his tour in 1908.

The river outing of the Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. and friends will be held on Sunday, July 28. The party should travel by special train from Waterloo to Reading, and thence by one of the largest steam launches through Caversham, Mapledurham, Whitechurch, Pangbourne, Goring, Streatley, and Moulsford Ferry as far as Wallingford and back, luncheon and high tea being provided on board.

The usual monthly meeting of the Management Committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held on Wednesday at the York Hotel, York-road. Mr. W. J. Wainratta (vice-president) occupied the chair, and there were also present:—Messrs. Frank Heath, Tom Carney, H. E. High, W. West, and R. T. Baines (secretary). On the motion of Mr. High, seconded by Mr. Heath, it was resolved that Mr. Arthur Oldred Clarke, of Holloway-road, be appointed hon. solicitor to the Fund. After the transaction of some business of a private character the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman. The annual general meeting of the Society will be held on Wednesday, July 10, when the principal business will be the election of officers and committee for the ensuing year.

Mr. Fred Karno's No. 1 Company is appearing this week at the Canterbury in Saturday to Monday. On Monday next that gentleman will produce a new and original sketch entitled London Suburbia. Of course, the subject will be treated in that broad humorous spirit which has animated so many of this gentleman's productions.

Mr. Horace Goldin, the well-known illusionist, was sued on Thursday by John Moore and Co. in respect of certain posters made to his order. The defence was that the posters were not suitable or made according to order. Judge Woodfall, in giving judgment for the plaintiff for the amount claimed (£10 17s. 1d.), said that it was absurd to think that a photograph could be properly reproduced on a poster—which did not show a good likeness of Mr. Goldin; but then, neither did the others. He therefore found that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment, with costs.

In The Fisher Girl, which is to be presented at the Paragon on Monday by Charles Fisher's Opera Company, we recognise the musical comedy-drama originally produced in London at the Grand, Islington, by Mr. Oswald Brand, who wrote the lyrics, the music being by Mr. W. T. Gliddon. The mysterious character of Vanderdecken, the Flying Dutchman, is introduced, and will be played at Mile End by Mr. J. M. Jones, its original representative. Miss May Glenn will play the heroine; and others in the cast will include Mr. Edward Kipling, Mr. Jerrold Manville, Mr. John Donald, and Miss Dorothy Vernon. Miss Beatrice Harold's troupe of dancers and a powerful chorus will add to the importance, attractiveness, and musical excellence of the production, which is to be under the personal supervision of Mr. Charles Fisher.

Mr. James McCarthy, the popular resident manager of the Britannia, has been an inmate of Guy's Hospital, where he underwent an operation for abscess in the jaw. He is now convalescent, although still attending the hospital, and hopes to go away on a short holiday to recoup his strength. Mr. Burton, the assistant-manager at the Surrey, is acting as his deputy during his absence.

Mr. Will Ashworth has been specially engaged to manage Charles Parsons' companies.

Miss Mabel Sinclair, the premier lady ventriloquist, having concluded a highly successful tour of the Keith and Procter Circuit in the States, has returned to England to fulfil engagements at the London Pavilion and on the Stoll Tour. She is specially engaged by Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger for a return tour of the States.

Mr. Alfred Butt, the managing-director of the Palace Theatre, is assiduous in his attention to the sporting public. Derby Day by Bioscope, from 3.30 a.m. until the actual running of the classic race, which, of course, is taken in detail, has received great attention. The films of the great Horse Show at Olympia are changed nightly, and the public therefore have an opportunity of being kept thoroughly posted in the various results, not merely by announcement but by picture. Another item on the Bioscope programme is the Ladies' Sports at Ranelagh, and it may be mentioned that an excellent set was taken of the visit of the King and Queen of Denmark to the City on Monday.

The Empire has the advantage of being the only theatre showing Biograph pictures of the Richmond Horse Show, the first series of which was presented on Friday night. As all the principal entries for the International Show at Olympia are also entered for the Richmond Show, the event will this year undoubtedly constitute a record. The Biograph pictures of the Olympia spectacle are now being presented nightly.

Miss Harriett Vernon, who presented such a charming lilac song, has a new number, entitled "On beautiful Lake Lucerne," which has every appearance of being one of the year's winners.

Our readers will hear with deep regret of the sad bereavement of Mr. James Stewart, "the tramp at the piano," who has sustained a terrible loss in the death of his wife.

Mr. Jack Woolf is thoroughly reorganising and making several important improvements behind the curtain at the comfortable Queen's, Poplar. At present the stage is being entirely re-floored without the slightest disturbance or inconvenience to any of the performances, which shows how excellently the work is being supervised.

Consequent on the decease of Mr. George Adney Payne the following changes in the boards of the syndicate halls have been announced:—Mr. Walter Payne has been elected upon the boards of the Tivoli, the Oxford, the Variety Theatres Consolidated, and the United Varieties Syndicate. Mr. Henry Tozer and Mr. Henry Sutton have been appointed managing directors of the Oxford and the Tivoli. Mr. Henri Gros (in addition to continuing managing director of the Metropolitan) becomes senior managing director, and Mr. Joseph Davis joint managing director of the Euston, Chelsea, South London, Walthamstow, East Ham, and Tottenham music halls. Mr. H. H. Wells becomes managing director of the Canterbury and Paragon, Mr. Henry Tozer joining the board of the company.

Concerning Federation Day, Mr. Charles Coborn writes from 40, Perran-road, Tulse-hill, S.W., June 13:—"In the forthcoming gala performance at the Crystal Palace, organised by the Variety Artists' Federation for Thursday, 27th inst., there will be, as part of the grand scheme, high-class concerts in the Concert Hall, and I have been honoured by the Executive Committee with the task of seeking the brotherly help of the artistic fraternity of the opera and concert world, and a goodly number of well-known and highly-esteemed artists have already generously promised to help. But I want to ask through your always hospitable columns that artists of the theatres, opera, or concert platform who find themselves both able and willing to support their professional cousins (so to speak) to be so kind as to send me their names in order that the list may be recorded as soon as possible." Mr. Coborn's telephone number is 277 Brixton.

Among the chief attractions on Federation Day at the Crystal Palace on the 27th will be the sensational acts given in the centre transept by Juan Caicedo, King of the Wire, the Villions, bicyclists, and others. Miss Anna de Grey, the secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, is organising a hat-trimming competition, and Mr. Horace Wheatley has gathered together a mirthful contingent of his countrymen to assist him in an unique entertainment to be given in the Irishmen's Tent. Among those who have volunteered their help are Walter Munroe, Pat Carey, Tom Costello, Pat Doherty, Tom Carney, T. C. Callaghan, W. J. Ashcroft, and others. There will be a baseball match between the Old Thespians and a London team.

The latest events added to the Sports at the Crystal Palace on June 27 are the 440-yards Championship (running) for the Johannesburg Cup (open to members of the V.A.F. only), and a 440-yards running handicap for members of the Press only. Mrs. Bob Hutt will give a prize to the lady who sells the most programmes. The entries to the Sports close on June 19.

Will Oliver made a special journey on Wednesday to Chester in order to see the Simms (Rosa and Kitty) before they open in town on Monday. He was much pleased with the brightness of their number. As sister turns have almost died out, the Simms will no doubt become a welcome addition to our London favourites.

The many friends of Miss Sheila McNeil will be pleased to learn that she is now on the high road to recovery from the sharp attack of rheumatic fever, which caused her to be out of the bill at Collins's from the middle of last week. She hopes to resume work shortly, and wishes, through our columns, to thank all and sundry for their kind inquiries.

The staff of the Empire, Camberwell, will have their first summer outing on Sunday, July 14. They will go by brakes to Long Ditton, where dinner and tea will be provided, afterwards returning to town. Messrs. Jesse Sparrow, Harry Bawn, Percy Ford, E. Webb, Fred Neiman, and several other gentlemen have subscribed handsomely towards the expenses.

Mr. Joseph Adelmann, the wonderful xylophone player, and his two daughters have recaptured all the enthusiasm with which they were received on on their first appearance at the Empire, and now repeat some of their best known selections on the xylophone.

Mr. Ivan Berlyn, who has recently been touring successfully in Veronique, is now playing in the principal provincial towns Mr. John Lawson's part in Sally in Our Alley, with which he has made a big hit during the month.

Mr. Walter Norman, the popular manager of the Hastings Hippodrome, was the recipient of a tremendous ovation when he stepped on to the stage at his benefit matinée on Wednesday, June 5, and returned thanks to all concerned in a neat speech. A large array of brother and sister artists lent their services in honour of the occasion. In addition to the regular company, several came from Eastbourne by permission of Mr. S. W. Winter, manager of the Eastbourne Hippodrome. These included Miss Nora Moore, Miss Phyllis York, Gus Hindle, the Dancing Gilberts, and Fred Carey. Mr. George B. Bohee appeared, and Mr. Arthur St. John came by permission of Mr. J. D. Hunter, of the Hastings Pier Pavilion. Local talent was also represented by Mr. John Fuller (comedian), Leslie Barton (baritone), and a sketch company composed of Miss Bessie Watson, Miss Carmen Collyer, Messrs. Bert Forss and Bert Overs, produced The Wrong Box. Miss Emie Winson gave her singing picture turn, and Mr. Frank Lane some amusing patter. Some lightning portraiture was introduced by Mr. Charles Hughes, and Mr. J. E. Stanborough, the latter cleverly giving a sketch of a tramp. The long programme was thoroughly enjoyed.

Managers who are on the look-out for fresh talent should pay a visit to the Theatre Royal, Oldham, next week, where two new acts will be produced—viz., The Excelsiors, who are well known in concert circles, and who are putting on a singing scena; the second item is a strong show by two gentlemen who will be known as the Milano Bros. Both are anticipated to be very big successes, and will be in the hands of Mr. Dottridge, the well-known agent.

The latest quotations for music hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra 1½, Canterbury ½, Empire (15s. pd.) 1⅜, Do. (10s. pd.) 1½, Lon. Pav. Ord. 4⅜, Do. Pref. 5, Lon. Coliseum ½, Metropolitan ½, Moss Empire 4⅜, Do 5 p.c. Pref. 3⅜, Oxford 6⅜, Palace 13/0, Tivoli 5, Var. Cons. Theas. 12/6.

Mr. Fred Herbert occupied the chair at the 515th meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, held on Wednesday, when Messrs. Charles Coborn, Harry Blake, R. Abel, Harry Bancroft, Jeff Vendome, Fred Harrison, Bob Hutt, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary), were present. Mr. Blake made the welcome statement, in his report of the visit of the deputation to the Ocean Accident Insurance Company, that the company had agreed to a reduction of nearly £50 off £449 18s. 8d. due to them. The accountant's statement for the half-year ending May 31 put the total receipts at £2,517 18s. 8d. The expenditure, including £870 on charitable donations, totalled £1,803 6s. 1d. In that period 1,356 new members were enrolled, while 3,284 were renewed. £156 19s. 6d. was transferred to the reserve fund, which stands at £522 6s. 6d. The deposit account is £150; the current account, £387 13s. 1d.; and petty cash, £20. The secretary's weekly financial statement dealt with £43 15s. 6d., and twenty-four new members had joined.

The Theatre of Varieties, Pitfield-street, Hoxton (known to music-hall readers as Harwood's), is announced for absolute sale, by order of the mortgagees, and Messrs. Barker and Finch, 13, Hart-street, Bloomsbury, will submit the valuable free lease for nine years of the property to public auction at an early date (unless sold privately in the interim). The theatre has for years past been a highly successful concern, and earned fortunes for previous proprietors, and the public-house attached occupies a fine position in a marketing thoroughfare. The rent is £300.

Mr. C. W. Somerset, whose work in strong character parts has made his name famous at His Majesty's and other West End houses, made one of the hits of his career when he appeared at the Duke's of York's Theatre on September 25, 1895, in a play by Walter Frith, entitled Her Advocate. In this he played the part of Dr. Marshall, a guilty poisoner, who, in the witness-box, cowers before the fierce cross-examination of a barrister, originally played by Mr. Charles Cartwright. A condensed version of the play has been produced at the Empire, Glasgow, under the title of The Great Poison Case.

Mr. Frank Coyle, after a short London season, will take a holiday next week in Paris with his wife. Mrs. Coyle will look at the shops in order to pick up new ideas for her millinery business in Leeds and Mr. Coyle will acquire some sketches of character to be embodied in new comic songs.

One of the most useful adjuncts of the library of the artist or the office of the agent is the table of distances published by Messrs. H. and M. Rayne, of the Theatrical Stores, 49, Charing Cross-road, and 115 to 119, Waterloo-road, S.E. By a glance at this one can immediately ascertain—let us say—the exact distance between the Paragon and the London, and Collins's and the Oxford. With the barring clause always with him, the variety artist should immediately secure this framed certificate of distances between hall and hall, which is revised and certified by Edward Stanford, geographer to the King.

Miss Dora Lyric is performing this week at the Hippodrome, Ealing, and singing the song, "I'll tell Tilly on the telephone," which was first introduced by her and published by Francis, Day, and Hunter. It is an enormous chorus song, and is being sung all over Ealing. She has two more numbers in preparation by Castling and Godfrey, who are keeping her busy with numbers. Miss Lyric leaves town on Monday for Chatham, Sheerness, and Southampton, returning to the Clapham and Bedford. She has had several offers for pantomime, but has not settled yet. Mr. Walter Bentley is her business manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Nolan and their daughter departed for Australia last week. Amongst those present at Liverpool-street to see them off were Mr. Dick Knowles, Mr. Wal Pink, Mr. Joe O'Gorman, Mr. Tom Pacey, Mr. Mike Asher, Mr. Jeff Vendome, Mrs. Pink, Miss Nora O'Gorman, Mr. Alf Chester, Mr. Charlie Brady, Williams and Warden, Mr. George Gunnop, Mr. Frank Halter, Mr. Tom Carney, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Fitch, Mr. and Mrs. Pocock, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Anstead. At Tilbury they received numerous telegrams wishing them God-speed, and among the final leave-takers were Mr. and Mrs. Pocock, Herbert Nolan (their son), and Miss Marie Balfour.

Tom Jones—not Fielding's hero, but the new Welsh comedian, who comes from Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwll-llantysiliogogogoch, and in confidence proclaims this fact to audiences—has been engaged by Mr. Milton Bode to play Dame in pantomime next Christmas season. Tom Jones has quite a style of his own, possessing a genial communicative method which is decidedly in his favour, and his quips and cranks are delivered with a sly humour that is irresistible. He is at present starring in the popular drama A Fight for Millions, which has been toured so long and so successfully by Robert Perris.

Mr. and Mme. Zancig return to the Alhambra on Monday for a short season, after a successful tour in the provinces. They will present exactly the same entertainment as set all London talking about the mysteries of mental telepathy. During their tour their thought-transmission power has been tested by many of the leading scientific men of the kingdom, none of whom has been able to discover their secret.

The programme at the Alhambra on Monday will also be reinforced by the presentation for the first time in London of M. Houdin's electrical ballet, which has been imported direct from Paris. It will be performed by the Alhambra's own corps de ballet, and some remarkable electrical "effects" are promised. On the same evening Signora Maria Bordin returns to the Alhambra to take up the part of première danseuse in The Queen of Spades ballet.

Mr. Frank H. France and Miss Edith Stewart open at the Tivoli on Monday in their successful sketch, The 100 to 1 Chance, for a four weeks' engagement. Wherever played this smart little racing sketch always meets with great approval, and, with the exception of a few weeks in August and September, it is fully booked until next Easter. Miss Edith Stewart (Mrs. France) has recently been ill, and obliged to cancel several weeks' bookings; but after recuperating in the bracing air of Deal she is now quite ready for her London season.

The Brewster Troupe, who recently returned from an extended tour through Spain and South America, are now at the Os Bavvatra Theatre, Buda-Pest, where they are meeting with the usual success. They return to England for Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's Aladdin pantomime, with Miss Kitty Brewster in the rôle of principal girl.

Mrs. Bennett and Mr. Edward Cranston are having a complimentary benefit given them at the Canterbury on Wednesday evening, June 26, prior to their departure for Australia. A host of stars have promised to appear.

Mr. Leipold will present a novel turn at the Tivoli on Monday. He will play a violin solo and accompany himself on the piano, without mechanical assistance of any kind, using his hands only.

Mr. Edmond Bosanquet's success at the Etoile Palace, Paris, has been so conspicuous that the director of that house has placed him at the top of the bill for two weeks running, a most unusual proceeding. Mr. Bosanquet is one of the very few London music-hall orchestral directors who has conducted a Paris theatrical band.

The Terriers' Cricket Club and Sam Mayo's XI. played a match on Wednesday at Freeman's Grounds, Champion Hill, S.E. A number of professional friends put in an appearance, and enjoyed a delightful day's sport. The Terriers, who won, ran up a total of 115. They consisted of the following:—F. Barker, Woolmer Young, G. Burgess, W. Stebbings, E. Martin, W. Clarke, E. Webb, H. Bawn, W. H. Brownson, F. Hurst, Kloof, and Leon Bassett. Mr. Sam Mayo's team made 70. They were:—F. Morrison, H. O. Wills, L. Zampa, G. Walters, Edgar Budden, G. H. Elliott, Sam Mayo, F. Cowan, B. Womack, L. Young, S. Wood, and Mark Leslie. The Terriers will play next Wednesday at the above grounds. Teams wishing for matches with them should address Capt. B. Woodger, Hon. Sec., Metropole Hotel, Denmark Hill, S.E.

PARIS VARIETY GOSSIP.

JUST at the present moment most of the music halls are vieing with each other to produce something extra special in the way of shows on Sunday night, the evening of the Grand Prix.

AT the Folies-Marigny the entente cordiale will be celebrated by two stars of equal magnitude: one is La Belle Otero and the other Marie Lloyd. Miss Lloyd's London reputation is well known here, and tout Paris will flock to see her if there should be room enough in the house after the English contingent has finished booking seats, which they are doing at this moment. Miss Lloyd will give eight performances at the Marigny.

AT the Alcazar d'Ete a grand ball has been arranged for the evening of the Grand Prix.

A GREAT success was scored on Tuesday by the Ambassadeurs Revue, Tu Veux Rire. A fine cast has been gathered together, and the current topics of the day have been very humorously treated by MM. H. de Gorsse and G. Nanteuil. Gaby Delys and Max Dearly carried off the honours of the evening. Their chief successes were gained in the lady cabby and her fare and in a very quaint Dutch dance, which is very reminiscent of Miss Hook of Holland. In this number they have the assistance of Miss Vera Barton, a charming little dancer, whose pas seul earlier in the evening was one of the hits. Mlle. Delys also introduces a ju-jitsu song, in which she is assisted by M. A. S. Eida. Others who did much towards the success were Mlles. Derminy (commère), Foscolo, C. Martens, Moreau; MM. Alberthal (compère), Gerier, Strack, and Ferdinand Frey.

AT the Capucines, Mlle. Marguerite Duval and Polin are still playing with great success in the play, Son Petit Frere.

MISS JOSEPHINE SABEL is back in Paris after her African trip.

MR. TED MARKS, with his button-hole bouquet, and Mr. Mark Klaw, of Klaw and Erlanger, are also paying the Gay City a visit.

THE programme at the Alhambra for the last fifteen days before the annual closing consists of the El Tampico Trio of South American instrumentalists; the Geerts Family of Gymnasts; Mlle. Amylla, in an allegorical pantomimo, entitled Phydra; and several other excellent turns. Quite a special feature is being made of the Cinematograph, which runs forty minutes.

PARIS is at present suffering from a very bad attack of "cinematomania," as Max Dearly very aptly puts it in the Ambassadeurs Revue. From one end of the Boulevards to the other is one long string of Cinematograph theatres, outside of which stand gaily-dressed attendants, who inform the passers by (as in the old showman days) that they are just about to begin.

AT night the Cinematograph has taken the place of the illuminated advertisements, and at many points crowds may be seen watching the manufacture of Somebody and Co.'s hats or whisky. And now the last move is the theatres, which used to be content to shut their doors during the summer months, are giving Cinematograph shows at reduced prices. Things must be looking particularly rosy for the trade at the present moment.

Teddy Smiles, produced at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday, was received with marked favour by a good house, and will admirably serve its purpose as a twenty-five minute pot-pourri of tune and fun. It is well presented by Mr. Will Hebden and his company. The slight story admirably serves its purpose. In the first act we find ourselves at the Old Horseshoe Inn. To this peaceful spot come Teddy Smiles, a welsher, his two confederates, and a flash-note gang. These worthies soon discover that Lord Anglefish carries with him a large sum in notes, and striking up an acquaintance with him, they cleverly exchange his genuine flimsies for their flash ones. The gang soon find that discovery is certain, and when a missionary, the Rev. Quaker Oats, arrives at the inn they exchange Teddy Smiles's suit-case for his, and find in it three complete clerical outfits, which they immediately annex, leaving their own in the place of them. Smiles and his two confederates now masquerade as the Rev. Quaker Oats and his two curates, while the parson, left with only Smiles's glaring suit, puts it on, and is given into custody by Lord Anglefish, who has discovered that he has been robbed. The parson protests, but Smiles and his gang declare the parson an impostor, and he is removed in custody. He is able to satisfy very soon the authorities as to his true identity. In the last scene—Lady Cawson's baronial hall—Hawkseye, the detective, has the flash-note gang under observation, and enlists the services of Fidgetts, the butler, and Mabel Martin, the maid, to bring the bounders to justice. This is soon effected, but not before Teddy Smiles and his pals have upset everybody and everything at Lady Cawson's mansion.

As Teddy Smiles Mr. Will Hobden is the life and soul of the whole production. He is not only funny, but sings admirably "I'm a bishop," and joins Mr. H. C. Storey—who assumes the dual rôle of the parson and the detective—in a capital duet, "Did you ever." Mr. Storey gives a fine effect to a pretty ballad, "My own bright eyes." The brothers Mat and Joe McCormack as the welshers in their duet, "We know a thing or two," create roars of laughter, and their dancing contributes to their success. Miss Millie Auguardo invests the part of Lady Cawson with dignity and grace; as the Count and Countess Mr. V. A. Vincent and Miss Clara Vincent fill their parts with distinction; Mr. Bertie White as the dude, Lord Anglefish, is decidedly good, never for a moment getting out of touch with the character. The minor characters receive adequate attention from Miss Ray Montrose, Messrs. Frank Zaza, Draper, Brandwood, and F. Lever. The chorus and the quartette of policemen, in their excellent number, "Hush, hush, it's the footstep of the policeman," deserve a special word of praise. The scenery and costumes are elaborate and tasteful.

MR. NORMAN G. ACTON will produce a new American episode on Wednesday next (matinée) at the Empress, Brighton.

MR. FRED CURRAN, who has returned from a successful tour in Australia, opens on Monday at the Oxford, Middlesbrough.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

LARGE audiences at the Tivoli have shown in no uncertain manner during the week their enthusiastic appreciation of Miss Annie Purcell in her new and delightful number, entitled "In the valleys of Switzerland," written by Charles Wilmott, and for which Hermann E. Darewski, jun., has composed a delightfully characteristic and flowing melody. Miss Purcell has been identified with many successful songs, but with this item has eclipsed all her previous triumphs. Mr. David Day's firm has the morceau in the press.

BY special invitation of Mr. Tom Costello, Messrs. Fred W. Leigh and Henry E. Pether on Tuesday paid a flying visit to Liverpool so that they might, at the Empire, have auricular and ocular demonstration of the huge successes made by the celebrated comedian in their new number, written specially for him and entitled "For Auld Lang Syne; or, my home is far away." Mr. Costello will on Monday introduce the number, which is being published by Messrs. Francis and Day, to London audiences, and will also be heard in a new humorous song by Bennett Scott, entitled "The tenbob rise."

NEW numbers just added to Messrs. Francis and Day's "Sixpenny Pops" include "The Empire Barn Dance," by James Fitzgerald; "All alone in Old Cologne," one of the most melodious of the songs of the day; and Felix McGlennon's Manxland craze, "She lives in the Isle of Man." At its present rate of progress Mr. John Smith's catalogue will very soon embrace 400 items.

AMONG new songs just accepted for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day are the following:—"She used to push a basinette," written, composed, and sung by Charles Coborn; "My Southern Queen" (sung by Miss Nell Emerald), "Come back to baby and me," and "Up in an airship," all three by H. Taylor; "Is there a doctor about?" (Wilkie Bard), by Worton David and Shirley Ilton; "I don't want no one," by G. A. Stevens; "The old cracked basin" (Harry Randall), and 'You may want a friend some day," both by T. W. Connor; and "What is it makes the girls love you?" by Harry Leighton and Charles Hilbury.

MISS BERTHA STUART, the sweet singer of Scotch songs, produced last week a new number by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott entitled "You are still my Highland laddie," and writes to say the song was an instantaneous success. Miss Stuart will shortly open at the Tivoli and Oxford, where her London admirers will have an opportunity of hearing her latest acquisition.

SEASIDE entertainers from all points of the compass write to tell of the phenomenal success of "Sailing in my balloon," the Star Co.'s great hit. Closely rivalling this number in popularity are the same firm's "Isle of Anglesey," "Has anyone seen a German band?" "You can't do without a girl," and "Swing me higher, Obadiah."

BENNETT SCOTT has returned from his trip to New York, and he and A. J. Mills have "started in" by writing one of the daintiest numbers imaginable. The title is "Pretty little maid of Norway." It has a most contagious chorus, and will be issued in due course by the Star Co.

MISS FLORRIE BRAY has been appearing at the Empire, Dudley, this week with some catchy songs. She has a happy knack of taking the audience into her confidence and making them take up her choruses.

Two eleventh-hour successes have suddenly come to light amongst al fresco songs, namely, "In an old sedan chair," published by Feldman and Co., and "Take me back to Dublin Town," published by Francis, Day, and Hunter. Both numbers are already popular at certain seaside towns, and al fresco proprietors should lose no time in including them in their programmes. Both are from the prolific pens of Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford, who were respectively responsible for "I wouldn't leave my little wooden hut" and "I've built a bamboo bungalow" last season.

ENORMOUS, indeed, has been the success of Messrs. Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford's new "Dutch" winner, "I'm goin back to the Fatherland," with pierrot troupes all over the country, particularly in Blackpool, where it is a veritable rage. Mr. Will Evans is specially producing this number in a new sketch he is pioneering, with appropriate costumes and effects; whilst Mr. John Tiller is doing ditto with the same song in his shortly due big Blackpool production. The Monte Carlo Publishing Co. issue this morceau.

MISS MARIE LOFTUS has been scoring very heavily with a new "simple country girl" song, entitled "Devonshire Cream," by Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate, and has given the same author and composer a practically unlimited order for specially-written new comedy numbers.

MISS KATIE MARSH scored an instantaneous "hit" at Collins's this week with Messrs. Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford's Rocky Mountains romance, "Don't go back to Carolina," with which Miss Rosie Lloyd has also been winning "golden opinions" everywhere; and pierrots galore furthermore report great things anent the seaside success of this "taking" Monte Carlo Co.'s publication.

MISS BIJOU RUSSELL, on her opening night at the Tivoli, Sydney, scored a phenomenal success with Mr. J. F. Lambe's delightful song, "Queen of Old Samara," and had to respond to encore after encore before her Australian admirers were satisfied. The Monte Carlo Publishing Co. have been simply inundated with Australasian orders for this successful song; and in consequence of the ever-increasing popularity of their "Sixpenny Successes" series "down under," the well-known Australian publishers, Messrs. Allen and Co., are now issuing special editions of all this successful young firm's principal numbers.

So great has been the success at the London Hippodrome this week of Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate's stirring dramatic sketch, Lucknow, in which Mr. George Leyton and some dozen or more actual survivors of the Indian Mutiny appear, that this well-known author and composer have been simply flooded with commissions for new sketches for leading artists in this line of business. Truly, nothing succeeds like success!

MISS MARIE LLOYD, who, by the way, has just gone to Paris, has placed a special commission with Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate, author and composer of her celebrated "Customs of the country" ditty, to supply her with several new songs specially designed for her forthcoming campaign in America.

PERCY STANHOPE'S concert party, which includes Marie Westcott, Florence Bell, Charles Austing, and Hickmann-Smith, is scoring a record success at Lowestoft, where they are engaged for a month.

THE music of The Merry Widow, which is being performed at Daly's, has become so instantaneously popular that a great rush has been made for the gramophone records of the principal numbers. The various depôts of the Gramophone Co. are, we understand, overrun with orders for this new music.

SONGS IN THE STATES.

A CHAT WITH MR. BERT FELDMAN.

The news that Mr. Bert Feldman had returned from his visit to America brought hosts of friends to welcome the enterprising principal of a famous firm. In an incautious moment Mr. Feldman gave us admission to his sanctum, where the intermittent tingle of the telephone bell mingled with the strains of the latest composition played on a piano in an adjoining room. Mr. Feldman's retreat is a veritable gilded chamber, sumptuously furnished and tastefully decorated. On the ceiling is an artistic fresco, representing rosy Cupids gambolling beneath a cerulean sky, while the walls present a charming study in plastic design. In the centre of the room stands a grand piano, whereon are played the numberless scores which are submitted to Mr. Feldmann's experienced ear before being given to an eager public.

"Yes," says Mr. Feldman, light-heartedly, "I have just returned from America, and my trip has been a most satisfactory one from a business, as well as a social, point of view. The success of 'By the side of the Zuyder Zee' has been phenomenal, and immediately on arrival I placed it with some of the best performers in the country. When I left it was being featured in the new musical comedy, Fascinating Flora. 'Au revoir, my little Hyacinth,' is also an established success in the New World.

"I have fallen in love with America," Mr. Feldman confessed. "Everybody treated me so hospitably, and I was entertained right royally. A fine future is in store for English artists, and I feel thoroughly convinced that there is going to be one of the greatest booms in English songs imaginable. A wave of popularity for British-made melodies is passing over the land of the Stars and Stripes, and the latest importations from this country have become quite a craze. I have the greatest possible faith in our song-writers, and feel sure of their capability to write successes both for this country and the other side. It is a most difficult thing to please a fickle public. What is wanted is a pretty idea wedded to a haunting melody, and that is bound to catch the popular ear."

Mr. Feldman had to submit to a good many interviewers, but one of his most amusing experiences was the result of the fertile imagination of the American reporter, by which Mr. Feldman awoke one day to find himself a millionaire—on paper. The article is headed

"HOW I MADE A MILLION DOLLARS OUT OF ONE SONG."

"'Sing a song o' sixpence,'" the time-honoured nursery rhyme," Mr. Feldman is reported to have said, "has no doubt turned thousands of dollars into the pockets of publishers who have been reprinting it from time to time, in connection with the other good old moss-grown chestnuts. But I believe I am the only publisher who ever actually made 1,000,000 dollars out of a single song. When A. J. Mills, who wrote the words, and Bennett Scott, the composer of the melody, submitted the song to me, I at once foresaw great possibilities, but not quite such possibilities as have since been realised. Within an incredibly short time all England was singing the song, and the result, at least, from a financial point of view, may safely be said to be the most astounding that ever fell to the lot of a publisher." Mr. Feldman readily admits the enormous success which attended the song, but he can scarcely claim that it made him a millionaire.

"During my sojourn in New York," said Mr. Feldman, "I had the felicity of meeting Miss Alice Lloyd and Miss Vesta Victoria, who may well be said to have been the rage of the American capital, and the constant evidence on all hands of the success of these popular English artists formed one of the most gratifying events of my trip to the States."

A survey of B. Feldman and Co's. extensive premises, which look out from Arthur-street on to New Oxford-street, gave an idea of the facilities which are offered in what is practically the rendezvous of the most prominent artists. The establishment consists of three buildings, to which adjoining premises are shortly to be added. The publishing department, waiting-room, &c., occupy the ground floor, while the basement is devoted to shipping orders. On the upper floors are elegantly-furnished rehearsal rooms, and apartments where dances are arranged. It is no uncommon thing for four pianos to be going at once, and sixty performers rehearsing all day for the coming pantomime.

"The success which my firm enjoyed last Christmas was phenomenal," said Mr. Feldman, "and I haven't the slightest fear but that we shall excel ourselves this coming season. We have already the finest selection of pantomime songs that I have met with in my career, and I have every hope that our prosperity of last year will be repeated. Oh, the pirates," added Mr. Feldman, with a sigh. "Yes, there is happily no fear of them now. Music publishers as well as composers owe a life-long debt of gratitude to Mr. T. P. O'Connor in getting the Musical Copyright Act passed, and I have no hesitation in saying that 'T. P.' is the most popular man in musical circles in America."

What need is there to enumerate the song successes that have emanated from the firm since Mr. Bert Feldman came to London some ten years ago, and started in a small way in Oxford-street? The hits of the house number "Say au revoir, but not good-bye," Arthur Lennard's "Smoke," and many of Vesta Tilley's most famous productions. "Could you be true to eyes of blue?" "Mr. Moon," "When there isn't a girl about," Gus Elen's "Wait till the work comes round," and "The old Bull and Bush," among many other triumphs. At the present time the firm is issuing one of the most wonderful books ever placed on the market in Feldman's "12th Song Annual," which contains the words and music, with tonic sol-fa settings, of upwards of forty songs. The firm's 6d. edition also offers an unexcelled choice.

THE BENEVOLENT FUND DINNER.

It is extremely regrettable to know that the continued existence of the chief fund for the relief of the "poor distrest" members of the music-hall profession—a fund that has been established for some eighteen years—is threatened by divisions in the variety profession itself. Miss Marie Lloyd was originally announced to preside at the Music Hall Benevolent Fund dinner on Sunday night, and the occupancy of the chair by such an immensely popular and so good-hearted an artist would certainly have been a great draw, and therefor an immense gain to the fund. Unhappily, after considerable expense had been incurred by the issue of circulars and tickets, Miss Lloyd found herself unable to fulfil her promise. This non-fulfilment not only proved a serious set-back to the charity, but imposed upon its committee the task of choosing Miss Lloyd's substitute. No easy matter, as it happened; for not until the company had assembled in the reception-room at the Trocadero did Mr. Horace Marriott succeed in securing Mr. Harry G. Hibbert, the chairman of the Fund committee, to direct the proceedings. For once there was not the slightest suspicion of a discordant element, the gathering, though small, being governed by heartiness and jollity.

After the usual loyal toasts, proposed by the Chairman, "The King" being given with musical honours, MR. FRANK GERALD rose to ask all present to join him in a tribute to one who was no longer with them. The place that had been vacated was one which it would be a long, long time before they would see filled. He asked all present to drink to the memory of the late Mr. George Adney Payne. The work performed in connection with their Fund by the late Mr. Payne was work familiar to them all; it was work which all must appreciate, no matter whether they were proprietors, agents, or artists. He felt that an assemblage such as the present one, gathered together in the cause of a charity which the whole of his auditory, however few in number they might be, wished to see kept alive—(hear, hear)—would agree unanimously and enthusiastically that in losing Mr. Payne they had lost one of the strongest supporters of the Fund. The toast was drunk upstanding and in silence.

In giving the next toast, "The Music Hall Benevolent Fund," the CHAIRMAN, to illustrate the impossibility of saying much in the nature of variety in a speech on behalf of a charity, told the story of a village sexton, a bit of an artist, whose efforts with the brush were confined to public-house signs, and for the most part to curious ornithological specimens—shaped something like a duck, though they bore the titles of "The Spread Eagle," "The White Swan," &c. A sailor who had bought a hostelry in the place wanted his house to be known as "The Ship," and, on giving the order to the village Morland, received the reply, "Well, sir, I'll paint you a ship, but I expect that it will be very like a duck." Though he had been called upon at a moment's notice, he was extremely proud to occupy the position which was his that evening, and all the more proud that it was not every man who could boast of having been Marie Lloyd's understudy. (Laughter and applause.) They had no orator in the chair, and he therefore thought that the voluminous notes that had been prepared by his friend on his right, Mr. Ben Nathan, were to be handed over to him; but when he tried to appropriate them the author grabbed them as if they were ten per cent. (Laughter.) He had been two years chairman of the committee, and he was therefore qualified to speak of it. He knew how hard its members worked. It was not the business of a charity to distribute its fund to all comers. Their liberality should be—and was—tempered by discernment and discretion. The speaker then related his experience in connection with an applicant who had succeeded, by clever fraud, in extracting something like £80 from a theatrical charity, and described an interview with an acrobat, another pretender, who could not speak a word of English. In the main, however, they had to deal with urgent appeals from most deserving people, whom it was their wish, and would be the wish of everyone there, to relieve. It would be idle to ignore that their numbers on the present occasion were not so large as on some occasions in the past, yet he did not recall any of the Fund, dinners that had been so delightfully representative. Not only was the present the first occasion upon which they had had ladies among them, but they had a larger proportion, he thought, of representative working members of the profession with them than ever before. While he would meet a diminished subscription list with undiminished cheerfulness, he believed that this demonstration on the part of the Fund might prove a fair beginning of a nobler time for them. From his friend Mr. Nathan came the suggestion that the ladies should put the cards in their pockets and collect £5 each. At any rate, he would ask them all to do their best, and try and appreciate the crisis with which they were face to face.

MR. BEN NATHAN, who proposed the Music-Hall Profession," prefaced an earnest speech for unity among artists by an amusing anecdote and many interesting reminiscences. Looking back on the days of his youth in Birmingham, his first remembrances of the halls were associated with Day's Crystal Palace. Then, when anyone joined the variety profession, the inquiry was made, "What's he been up to?" He questioned very much whether there was any great difference between the entertainments of the past and those of the present. The comic songs of the old days were neither better nor worse than they are now; the great improvement was found in the audiences and in the magnificent establishments of to-day. Much discussion had been rife lately which was not calculated to cement friendships; and the wild and irresponsible statements concerning salaries in America did no good. If they were true, then across the Atlantic was a land flowing with milk and honey and streets paved with gold. Anyone who had the good of the music-hall profession at heart should join together now and at once in sinking any imaginary differences. There was a period of prosperity coming over the music halls of this country which nothing but disruption could delay. Life was so rapid nowadays that business-men valued the crisp, clean, and wholesome entertainment which music halls provided, and it behoved them all to sink their grievances, real or imaginary, and to work together for the good of their profession. (Hear, hear.) He felt sure that existing differences would be settled amicably. Coupling with the toast the name of Mr. Charles Coborn, he concluded with a high compliment to the artistic and personal qualities of that popular comedian and cosmopolitan character-vocalist.

MR. CHARLES COBORN, on rising to acknowledge, was greeted with loud demands for a song, demands which he did not for the moment satisfy, much to the disappointment of a little group of connoisseurs whom he had been charming with a French stanza, sotto voce, from his exquisite "Je suis vieux, je suis vieux." One of the duties incumbent upon them all, declared Mr. Coborn, was most decidedly to support the Fund. The establishment of that Fund had removed the stigma which for many years had rested on the variety profession of not possessing an institution for the poor and needy of its class. They would all regret to see the Fund sink, but he did not believe it would sink. He was sure that means would be found to enable it to continue its active existence. He had very much pleasure in stating that Mr. George Robey had informed him of his intention to make a donation of £50 to aid in the continuance of the institution. (Loud applause.)

MR. FRANK GERALD, in proposing the toast of "The Chairman," referred to his deep interest in the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and to his untiring efforts in connection therewith. He read on the menu that this was the seventeenth annual dinner, and though the gathering there was not large, everyone present was an enthusiastic well-wisher of the charity, which he felt certain would not flicker out. Something was going to happen that would go far to place it on a sound financial footing. They would celebrate Federation at the Crystal Palace on the 27th of this month, and there would be numerous demonstrations in aid of the various charities of the music hall world on the same date throughout the United Kingdom, the Continent, America, and Australia, and he looked forward with confidence to seeing the Fund in a healthy state financially. It was with great pleasure that he asked them to drink to their Chairman.

After MR. HIBBERT had replied, MR. HORACE MARRIOTT read out the list of subscriptions, which included £50 from Mr. George Robey and £60 from the M.H.A.R.A. Harmony then ruled the proceedings. Mr. Charles Coborn, who opened the ball with a poem by C. S. Calverley, "The Heartless Anna," afterwards contributed, at the unanimous request of those present, "Two lovely black eyes," accompanied by Mr. Angelo Asher, who directed the band at the old Trocadero Music Hall (the site of the restaurant), when the famous number became so popular that it was known as the "Trocadero Anthem." Miss Marguerite Broadfoote sang a charming ballad; Mr. Harry Mountford told some good stories; Mr. George Reeves related in amusing fashion the history of a cigar—one of those things that did not require puffing; Mr. Frank Gerald recited "A Tale of the 10th Hussars," by the late Clement Scott; Mr. Ben Nathan recited "The Villain at the Vic"; and Mrs. George Reeves sang "The Airship and the Swallow." Mr. Angelo Asher accompanied throughout.

Among those present were the following members of the committee:—Mr. Tom Pacey, Mr. Charles Coborn, Mr. Angelo A. Asher, Mr. Claude C. Bartram, Mr. Frank Gerald, and Mr. Harry Mountford. The company also included Mrs. Tom Pacey, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Edelsten, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Edelsten (Miss Marguerite Broadfoote), Mr. John Carney, Mr. Edgar Lee, Madame Fourauld, Mr. Appleyard, Mr. Frank Desprez, Mr. G. S. Edwards, Mr. Sam Bury, Mr. and Mrs. Laurie Graydon, Mr. Patrick Doherty, Miss Evelyn Vaudry, Miss Minnie Mace, Mr. Ben Nathan, Mr. Harry Blake, Mr. H. Belcham, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Reeves, Mr. C. Douglas Stuart (secretary of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association), Mr. W. Payne, Mr. Charles Berte, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hardie, and Mr. Horace Marriott (secretary to the Fund).

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, MAY 29.—Several of the leading theatres are closed, but there is plenty of theatrical entertainment still to be found along Broadway. Fascinating Flora, just produced at the Casino, is intended to be the regular summer attraction at that popular playhouse, but it will need considerable improvement to be as successful as other Casino "shows" of the same character have been during the hot weather. The Orchid, with Eddie Foy and a large cast, seems to have settled at the Herald-square Theatre for the summer. Mr. George Broadhurst's play, The Man of the Hour, is expected to remain at the Savoy Theatre for several months to come. Brewster's Millions, with Edward Abeles at the head of the cast, is running indefinitely at the Hudson; and so is The Rose of the Rancho at the Belasco, where Miss Frances Starr continues her delightful impersonation of the Spanish heroine. The Red Mill, with Montgomery and Stone, is still going strong at the Knickerbocker Theatre; and The Parisian Model, with Miss Anna Held, is doing equally well. Mr. William Collier, in Caught in the Rain, is nearing his two-hundredth appearance in that farce at the Garrick Theatre. Mr. John Barrymore has assumed the leading rôle in The Boys of Company B, replacing Mr. Arnold Daly, who will soon be in London. The Road to Yesterday, with Miss Minnie Dupree, is another play that retains its hold on popular favour. The Hippodrome closed last Saturday after a very prosperous season under the management of Messrs. Shubert and Anderson, many thousands of people having seen the gorgeous spectacles Pioneer Days and Neptune's Daughter.

"FASCINATING FLORA," a musical comedy, by R. H. Burnside, Joseph W. Herbert, and Gustave Kerker, drew a big crowd to the Casino on the opening night. The piece has been adversely criticised, but it is the sort of thing that can be "built up" and altered out of all recognition without disturbing the relevancy of the title, so it is not likely to score a failure. Miss Adele Ritchie, handsomely gowned as usual, appears in the title-rôle; and Mr. Louis Harrison has a prominent rôle. A capital bit is "The Subway Express," a duet by Mr. Harrison and Miss Ritchie, with the entire chorus hanging on the straps of a crowded subway car in the background. "Romance and Reality," a topical ditty, written and sung by Mr. Harrison; and "Ballooning," a lively number by Paul West, win the approval of the audience. Miss Ada Lewis makes a distinct hit as Winnie Wiggles, a country girl with an ambition to shine in grand opera, particularly when she sings the duet from Il Trovatore with Caruso, the latter being represented by a phonograph. Miss Ella Snyder as Dolly Wagner was cordially welcomed after her long absence in London. Mr. James E. Sullivan again exploited his broken-German dialect; and Mr. Frederick Bond made the most of a not very important rôle. There are two acts. The first shows a Conservatory of Music in Paris; while the second, divided into two scenes, is laid in a New York broker's office and at Manhattan Beach.

MISS FAY TEMPLETON made her last appearance on the stage on the 18th inst., at the Grand Opera House, the play being Forty-five Minutes from Broadway. She was born in 1865, and bred in the atmosphere of the theatre. Her father, John Templeton, now on the editorial staff of a New York newspaper, was then in the theatrical business, and her mother, known on the stage as Alice Vance, was also in the profession. Miss Templeton made her first regular appearance when she was only four years old, with the Templeton Opera Company, in Charleston, S.C., reciting "Babes in the Wood," and singing some of the old familiar songs of the time. A few years later she made her New York début with the late Augustin Daly, playing Puck in his production of A Midsummer Night's Dream. Miss Templeton's first rôle in comic opera was that of Ralph Rackstraw in Pinafore, and at the age of fifteen she had become a light opera star known throughout the country. She appeared in a number of E. E. Rice's productions, such as Evangeline and The Corsair. Then she married Howell Osborne, and retired from the stage, living for several years in Paris. When Mr. Osborne died in 1895, it was announced that he had bequeathed $100,000 to his wife. Miss Templeton made her reappearance in New York in the burlesque of Hendrick Hudson. She made a big success in E. E. Rice's production of Excelsior, Jun., and afterwards joined the Weber and Fields company. For the last two years she has been appearing under the management of Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger in musical comedies.

MR. HARRY TOMPS, a new and novel performer, with a budget of dry stories, a good comic song, and a clever concertina solo, is being well booked up at the principal halls.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE ALHAMBRA.

The palace in Leicester-square long since established a reputation for international courtesy, and many nationalities have been entertained within its walls, which on Tuesday night echoed back the applause of a contingent of Japanese sailors from the famous man-of-war commanded by Vice-Admiral Goro Ijuin, K.C.B., now in British waters. Admiral Ijuin was seated in a private box, and among the other Japanese officers were Captain Heitaro Takeno-Outchi, Captain Tanin Yamaya, Captain Tochinai, C.V.O., Engineer Captain Heihachi Tsukui, Commander Chuzaburo Sakakibara, Flag-Commander Isam Takeshita, Lieutenant-Commander Count Tsuneha Sano, A.D.C., and Flag-Lieutenant Shinjiro Yamamoto, of the Imperial Japanese Navy. The First Lord of the Admiralty, Lord Tweedmouth, who had entertained these gentlemen to dinner at his official residence in Whitehall, also occupied a box. Accompanying him were Lord Redesdale, Admiral K. C. Douglas, Admiral Winsloe, Captain Pakenham, R.N., Captain Hutchins, R.N., Captain Jackson, R.N., Captain Morgan, R.N., and other naval officers. The sailors—many of whom wore the medals won by them in the late war—were accommodated in the balcony. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers and bunting, the Union Jack and the Japanese flag being everywhere. The special programme, printed in the Japanese language, with the names of Mr. Alfred Moul and Mr. George Scott in the picturesque alphabet of our allies, will no doubt be treasured by the hardy little men, who gave such a good account of themselves under Togo. They were evidently greatly impressed by the pretty groupings, the gorgeous dresses, and the fine dancing and miming that have done so much for the success of The Queen of Spades. Interested spectators, too, were they of the modern magic and the sleight-of-hand of De Bière, whose art is most agreeably and amusingly presented, and rightly evokes much laughter.

They may have been puzzled somewhat by the eccentric behaviour of Les Gignac, from the banks of the Seine, the comedian's make-up as a gawky girl in short frocks probably appealing more to their sense of humour than his lady partner's appearance in a breeches part. A special turn of the evening was contributed by a couple of Japanese fencers, who seemed to emulate in their system of attack and defence the old English sport of quarter-staff. The stick-play was of the vigorous give-and-take order. The Five Whiteleys, in their pot-pourri of acrobatics and wire-walking, were warmly applauded; Mr. Carl Lynn's imitations of animals arrested attention and commanded applause; Urbani and Son, with a drawing-room gymnastic act of surpassing merit, won hearty recognition; and nothing was more laughable than the blunders of a short-sighted cyclist, presented by the far-famed Urbanora methods, which enable us to enjoy the Derby once again, after seeing the famous race on Epsom Downs. L'Amour and Maria Vinent, the attractive French chanteuse, were also in the festival bill. Mr. George Byng's magnificent orchestra contributed to the significance of the occasion by a musical pot-pourri of the songs of the battle and the breeze.

BOW PALACE.

In the current programme pride of place is held by the sketch, For the Honour of the Regiment, and the patriotic sentiment with which it teems is just to the liking of the hardy workers who form the major part of the patrons of this East End variety theatre. Execrations are freely showered at the head of the traitorous Major Carr, who would not only betray the secrets of his country to a foreign Power, but is villain enough to attempt to compromise the honour of his comrade's wife, and it is a moment for general satisfaction when in a spirited duel with swords between the Major and Captain Dare the former is worsted. How the gallant Captain forgives his enemy, and how the latter, stricken with remorse, blows his brains out to save the honour of the regiment, are thrilling events which follow, and at its conclusion the playlet is vociferously applauded. Its interpretation by Mr. Frank Hardie's company is in every way admirable. Mr. R. Cruikshanks as Major Randall Carr, and Mr. Harry Hiller as Captain Harry Dare, V.C., are both excellent; Mr. Frank Hardie as the foppish but courageous Lieut. Bertie Clive has a capital part; Mr. Fred Dobell is a soldierly Colonel Clive; and Miss Irene Carlton charmingly plays Vera Dare.

Sammy Shields is a prime favourite, and he has a fund of racy stories which go remarkably well. Three items have to be contributed before the audience are satisfied, the most popular being his depiction of a Scotchman watching the Chelsea football team play. Mack Ollive, in the whistling scene from The Belle of New York, provides a most welcome contribution to the programme, and his whistling solos afterwards are much enjoyed. Daisy De Roy creates a highly favourable impression when she sings of "Annie Green," and afterwards gives a "yodelling" song with fine effect. Mackintosh and Royal, who possess championship awards for their prowess, give an expert display of clog-dancing, which is keenly watched and applauded.

The Pichell troupe of acrobats perform numberless feats of balancing and tumbling with great dexterity and ease, and their Risley act is given with that agility and unconscious effort which betokens the skilled performer. Jack Dawe is a most popular occupant of the stage, and both his songs are well received. Tod Lowan is very quaint, and has an original style which adds to his success. Harry Hillier provides a versatile turn, which finds much favour, and the gymnastic feats of the Peritas are accomplished with grace and daring. George Bendon wins a cordial reception when he sings "Lulu," and he is equally successful in his second item. The Bio-Tableaux pictures this week show "The Two Sisters," the passing of which is intently followed. Mr. James Manning conducts with his customary skill, and Mr. Charles Harvey is highly popular in his managerial capacity.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

An exceptionally interesting programme is being presented at this hall this week—of such a length that the performance has to commence at 6.30, and popular support is still extended to it with unfailing strength, the holding capacity of the house being fully taxed at each show. The Delevines in a mélange, Flipp and Flopp, submit a particularly smart turn, comprising song, dance, acrobatic, and knockabout business. The comedian of the troupe works hard and with success, the lady sings and dances very prettily, and the scarecrow dance of the two gentlemen playing Flipp and Flopp can only be described as wonderful. Walter Munroe sings his song, "The man who struck O'Hara," in his own inimitable style, and then gives a very clever imitation of a one-legged man dancing, following with a dance of the type that the older generation of comedians finished their turns with. Bonnie Goodwin's Apollo Picaninnies, assisted by Miss Marie Goodwin, gave an exhibition of dancing which, considering the age of the youngsters, was phenomenal, and a most enthusiastic reception was accorded them at the end. M. H. Melot, a conjurer, presented a smart and clever act. His neatness in submitting his experiments was much in evidence, and the interest and pleasure his performance gave the audience was evidenced by the applause which made it necessary to bow his acknowledgments twice. Charles Fisher's Pocket Opera Company are responsible for a musical interlude of great merit; Messrs. Fisher and Dwyer, who wrote and composed the trifle, have supplied just enough coherence in the shape of a story to introduce their ability as vocalists with effect. Miss Zella Lusano, as Kitty, possesses a soprano voice of great power, which is utilised to considerable advantage; and Mr. Fisher also displays a tenor voice with similar happy results. Mr. Michael Dwyer as the much-tried composer has unquestionable gifts as a comedian, and his piano playing is beyond reproach. The Six Lancashire Lasses, singers and clog-dancers, make a successful bid for popular approval, both items coming in for every sign of appreciation. Mrs. John Lawson and company in the Devil's Sunday form one of the principal features of the bill. Mrs. Lawson herself in the part of Mrs. Faber enacts that somewhat unpleasant rôle with much skill, and she is capitally supported by her company, of whom particular mention should be made of the gentleman who played her husband, but is not billed. The Chronomegaphone is an invention that would seem to make the actual presence on the stage of an artist a matter of little moment in the future, comprising both the features of a gramophone and bioscope. The house listens to Mr. Harry Lauder in three of his popular successes, and must have found it difficult to realise that the artist himself was not entertaining them, the illusion being remarkably convincing. No sign was wanting to show that a very complete hit had been secured by the invention, and it will doubtless arouse great interest during its tour. Other artists completing the programme were George C. Doughty and Phyllis Atherley, in Captain Cupid; and Little Dot Mors, a child comedienne. Mr. Walter Johnston's fine orchestra still remains a feature of the evening, giving as an overture Schubert's "Rosamunde" prelude. Mr. John Christie is most courteous in the discharge of his duties in the front of the house, and Mr. W. R. Gillander, the Press representative for Messrs. Moss and Stoll, is geniality itself.

EMPRESS, BRIXTON.

The high level of excellence which the programmes that are weekly being presented at this most popular hall attain is, judging by the animated appearance of the house, very much appreciated. Undoubtedly the tit-bit of this week's entertainment is Apollo, the "ideal athlete," who is having a great reception. Walking on in an ordinary blue suit, his appearance does not savour of the extraordinary; yet, after a few minutes, in which he has shown some wonderful feats of strength, he brings the fact home to all that his claims as a strong man are undeniable. The easy manner in which he tears in two a pack of cards is marvellous, and then he puts two packs together, in all 104 cards, and calmly proceeds to serve them in the same manner. All through, his style is neat and facile in the extreme, and this is one of the greatest charms of his entertainment. Whatever he does is done in a perfectly natural manner, and without apparent effort. He also shows several interesting tricks of ju-jitsu, demonstrating how easy it is to defend oneself in case of sudden attack. He brings his turn to a conclusion by allowing a motor-car, containing several people, and weighing well over a cople of tons, to be driven over his body. This seems to affect him as little as if the weight were only a few pounds. The applause he gets on rising from the floor is deafening, and he has many times to bow his acknowledgements. A word of mention must also be made of his assistant, who introduces some comic business with excellent results. Miss Crissy Bell, a musical comedy actress, from the Aldwych and Vaudeville Theatres is appearing to advantage with a couple of numbers which are admirably rendered. In that entitled "She was a fisherman's daughter," which is set to very pretty music, she makes a decided hit, and her naïve and demure style of rendering it is a very great factor of its "scoring" power. Dion Wade has a most amusing song, "Wouldn't you be better in a home," which causes roars of laughter. In his second, he gives an impersonation of George Robey, and certainly he has "got" this famous artist to a "t." An amusing "sketchlet" entitled The Amorous Prince, is being presented by the Hatton-Russell Trio. This is admirably acted, and is causing much laughter. The Prince, who is supposed to be a Russian, is the possessor of a good voice, which he uses with good effect. Bert Coote's Kiddies, some sixteen in all, are introducing the most interesting numbers from the children's scene, in The Fatal Wedding. These youngsters are quite "old stagers" at the game, and their singing and dancing are a treat to witness. The entertainment presented by the Selbinis, trick cyclists, is both novel and interesting, and is full of unique and original tricks. One of their number introduces laughable comic business with considerable effect. The Two Bostons are making one of their periodical visits to this hall, and are meeting with their customary success. The dancing of the showman's assistant is most clever, and he proves himself no mean exponent of the art of terpsichore. Miss Alice Yorke and company are appearing to advantage in their sketch, The Unbidden Guest; and Lloyd Morgan, described as a "new comedian," is singing with success a number which certainly bears the hall mark of originality. Harry Nation is giving, "He's a seaside Johnny," which goes very well. Sydney Mason and company are presenting a dramatic episode, entitled Dr. Parker. This is cleverly written, and is followed with great interest. It certainly gives Mr. Sydney Mason plenty of scope for scoring. Of this he takes the fullest advantage, and, on concluding, is the recipient of hearty applause. Other contributions to a most enjoyable entertainment are being furnished by Miss Sylvia du Barry, the possessor of a fine voice; Baby Betty Green, a very clever youngster; and Carrie Foy. The Bioscope is again showing some exciting and laughable pictures, the series of films depicting "The Wonderful Electric Belt" being very interesting. The orchestra renders ably the overture and incidental music, and adds in no small manner to the evening's pleasure. Mr. Francis Winchcombe, the genial acting-manager for Mr. Francis Nelson, does everything possible in the front of the house for the comfort of his friends and patrons.

BARNARD'S, GREENWICH.

Last week there was an exceptionally good bill at this popular hall, so ably managed by Mr. Bert Dent. The programme included three capital sketches, including The Artist's Dilemma, which is a cleverly-written playlet, and met with considerable applause. Some very amusing situations arise out of the difficulties consequent upon the desire of a father to marry his son to the wrong woman. This week's bill is of the usual length and strength. Young Glenroy, the juvenile coster comedian, is warmly applauded for his songs, entitled "The Coster's Benefit" and "The Paper Boy." An excellent turn is provided by Hughes and Holden, creative comedy jugglers. Nancy Wentworth is a charming comedienne, while her dancing is very good, and her singing of "Mary" and "Pass round the hat" capital.

Ruffell's Bioscope is a great feature of the bill here; the pictures are well chosen and most interesting. Marie Parkinson is a clever coon comedienne, and gives an excellent rendering of "The old home across the sea" and "Have you seen my Henry Brown." Itrama is very successful in what is billed as "a great, original perch act." Aline Leslie sings sweetly, "Once" and "Land of the sunset glow." Goodfellow and Gregson are irresistible in their song, dance, and patter. Les Fleurs, Anglo-Continental singers and dancers, are well received in their novel entertainment, which consists of a song in five verses, each verse being rendered in a different language. Gus DaHon is a capital ventriloquist and conjurer, and his contribution is well received. Nash and Noel are smart comedians, and the patter is very funny.

Miss Hulo Hodgson and Harry Lowther's sketch, entitled The Barmaids, goes well. Mr. Harry Lowther is excellent as Dixon, and he is well supported by the members of the company. A turn not on the programme is that of Miss Rosie Gaston and company, who appear with considerable success in a sketch, entitled A Late Rehearsal. The band, under the direction of Mr. William Skerry, dispenses good music.

THE BRITANNIA.

Although this popular place of amusement is now without its variety licence, there appears to be no diminution in the attendance; indeed, a marked improvement is noticeable. The most important item of the programme is a sketch adapted from a series of stories now running in a popular periodical, and deals with the doings of Sexton Blake, a detective, who is anxious to capture the head of a gang of blackmailing criminals. The numerous and exciting incidents are skilfully treated by a capable company, including Miss Carlotta de Yonsen as Leah Coursell. Mr. C. Douglas Carlisle, who is the usual intrepid detective that nothing can harm, gives a powerful delineation of Sexton Blake. The master criminal and his blackmailing associates are adequately represented by Mr. Charles A. Carlisle, Mr. W. Loupe as Silas Strong, Mr. Phillip Astere as Teddy Baker, Mr. M. Langdale as Makeroff; and Tinker, Blake's assistant, is capably undertaken by Mr. Lee Gilbert.

Miss Jane Moore's company appear in a startling episode, For a Sister's Honour, a playlet written by Mr. E. C. Matthews, and dealing with that terrible scourge, the white slave traffic. A pretty young girl has been drugged by Pierre Dupont, and taken to his house, where she is seen by his so-called wife, who recognises her as a younger sister, and is determined to save her. Pierre, finding his plans thwarted, determines to kill her, and an exciting struggle ensues on the staircase; but the villain is eventually captured by the police. The piece was well played by Miss Jane Moore as Cora Coyne, the heroine, Miss Dora Haggett as Nellie Boyne, Mr. Frederick George as Pierre Dupont, Mr. Lewis Norton, who gave an amusing study of the dude, Charlie Lamley, Mr. Albert Bernard as Pecksniff Sharp, an old hypocrite, and Mr. A. E. Mayne as Honri Dardles, Pierre's accomplice, were heartily received by the audience.

Mr. Leonard Mortimer's company provided a third sketch, entitled The House of Evil, a brightly-written and smartly-played item, full of thrilling scenes, which received capable representation at the hands of Mr. H. Pearce as Lieut. James Heath, Mr. Murray Yorke as Dan Heath, Mr. Albert Guyon as Murray Warren, Mr. Chas. E. Ludlow as Jeff Janders, Miss Guinevere Shelton as Cissie Janders, and Miss Helena Wallran as Lou Heath. Mr. Fred Southern's company produced their amusing sketch, His Lordship's Birthday, which evoked hearty laughter; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux introduced some very interesting pictures. Mr. Carl Hamlin and his efficient orchestra played some melodious pieces during the evening.

A DENIAL.

Sir,—As some misunderstanding has arisen in connection with the visit of some artists to the Grand, Bolton, last week, I should take it as a favour if you would kindly make the following facts known:—To enable them to leave the town, I, with the assistance of the members of the Colley-Dryden Company, raised subscriptions on their behalf. Mr. J. F. Elliston, with his characteristic generosity, gave 2 guineas; Mme. Ada Colley also handed me a cheque for 2 guineas; and these sums, with other contributions, enabled me to meet the cost of their fares from Bolton to London. I regret to say, however, a report was circulated in the town to the effect that I was the individual responsible for their being left stranded here, having—so the rumour said—promised to purchase the sketch in which they appeared, and its scenery for £12. This I absolutely deny. I never made any such promise. I was only too glad to do what I could to help them to raise sufficient money to get out of the town. I have never seen the sketch in question, and in common fairness to those who so kindly responded to my appeal I trust you will insert this.—Yours truly,

LEO DRYDEN.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

Last Saturday evening saw the first of a series of al fresco concerts in the Grove, the band of H.M. Coldstream Guards being in attendance. Tschaikowsky's ever-popular grand overture, "Solennelle," or "1812," was given with suitable pyrotechnical effects by Messrs. James Pain and Son, the illumination of the surrounding foliage of one of the most enjoyable parts of the Park grounds making the entertainment more than usually attractive. The vocalists, Miss Ethel Dexter and Mr. A. H. Gee, met with flattering receptions for the excellent renderings of their respective numbers, and an additional item of some of the Urban well-known productions of animated pictures in the open air, was a feature which met with general approval from a large and appreciative audience. The theatre is occupied for the fourth and concluding week by Mr. Chas. W. Poole's Royal Myriorama, which unique entertainment continues its successful career. Miss Kitty Woodford contributes in a pleasing style the refrain, "Life's game of see-saw," accompanied with appropriate coloured photographic pictures. All the other numbers in Poole's varied programme likewise call for commendation.

MOUNTFORD V. GIBBONS.

At the Wandsworth County Court on Monday, before his Honour Judge Russell, Mr. Harry Mountford, of the Mountford and Walsh combination, sued the Grand Palace of Varieties, Ltd., Clapham Junction, to recover £26 13s. 4d., by way of damages for the wrongful cancellation by the defendants of two dates upon which the plaintiff had been engaged to perform at their music hall, namely, on April 24, 1905, and November 20, 1905.

Mr. Cannot appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Walter Payne was counsel for the defendants.

In the course of his opening statement Mr. Cannot said that by Clause 14 of the contracts it was provided that if the directors decided to give two performances nightly instead of one the artist was to be paid extra remuneration to the extent of one-third of the salary agreed upon. As a fact, the defendants did change their performances into two-shows-a-night, and gave the plaintiff a month's notice of the change. The plaintiff was willing to perform, and sent in his bill matter 14 days in advance, but the defendants refused to allow him to appear. It seemed that the defendants had entered into some arrangement with Mr. Walter Gibbons, who was now running the hall, and Mr. Gibbons approached the plaintiff and suggested that other dates should be substituted for the two in question, and the plaintiff agreed to accept the whole of Mr. Gibbons' tour. But for this the plaintiff would have brought his action in 1905.

Mr. Harry Mountford stated that during the late strike he was chairman of the National Alliance, and had always fought Mr. Gibbons. The two contracts in respect to which he was now suing he entered into with Mr. Arthur Yates, the then manager of the Grand. They were for £10 a week each, the management to provide a piano. He sent in his bill-matter in accordance with the contract, and afterwards received a letter stating that his name had been taken off the books. This letter was signed "Walter Gibbons," but he did not know that Mr. Gibbons had anything to do with the Grand. Witness replied stating that he did not recognise his right to cancel the contracts, and that he would see the directors. "Information was then given through the Press that the house had been turned into a two-houses-a-night show" said another letter from Mr. Gibbons, "and as you failed to inform me that you were willing to perform, the contract is null and void." To this witness wrote pointing out that he called to the Grand to rehearse, and was not allowed to do so, and he asked for an interview. This was granted, and he called at the Grand and asked to see Mr. Gibbons. Correspondence ensued, with the result that Mr. Bawn, Mr. Gibbons' manager, promised him dates for the whole of the Gibbons' tour. The first date that was sent him was for February at Ealing, and he sent in his bill matter. When he presented himself at the Holborn Empire the manager told him that he had broken his contract with regard to Clause 18. As a fact, he was expected to be in two different places at the same time.

Cross-examined by Mr. Payne, witness said that when he went to the Grand to perform in April the manager said, "I don't know what is the matter, but you can't play here to-night; Gibbons has taken it over." Mr. Gibbons entered into an agreement for him to appear at all his halls, wherever they were. He was given contracts for eight dates at salaries ranging from £12 to £14 a week. This was in January last, and they were to be in lieu of the two contracts which had been cancelled. There was no dispute about his appearing at the Holborn Empire, as he was there ready to appear, but the manager said he had broken his contract, and he was stopped.

Re-examined by Mr. Cannot, the witness said he was to have the whole of the Gibbons tour, which included the Duchess, Balham, but he had never been given a contract for that hall.

For the defence, Mr. Walter Gibbons said he gave the plaintiff £99 worth of contracts in satisfaction of the whole thing. The first fell due on February 18 last. The plaintiff expressed himself as being very well satisfied, and witness wished to treat him generously. Witness advertised in The Era that all artists must send in their bill-matter a fortnight previous to opening. If the plaintiff did not send in his bill-matter, he would be taken out in the ordinary course, and witness was of opinion that he did not send in his bill-matter, or he would have appeared. It was Mr. Reed, his manager, who arranged the dates with Mountford, and the strike soon afterwards took place.

His Honour said the difficulty was this: admittedly, the first contract was made with the New Grand, and not with Mr. Gibbons at all, and the plaintiff had admitted that all the new contracts were given him in substitution of the others; he forewent his right to those, and took others from Mr. Gibbons. Surely his right of action against the New Grand had gone? Was it admitted that Mr. Gibbons was acting for the New Grand?

Mr. Cannot said Mr. Gibbons made the arrangement because he had taken over the business, and the contracts of the New Grand. The plaintiff had received no consideration for waiving his right of action.

His Honour: He agreed to take the contracts. I think you must examine your witness.

Mr. Gibbons went on to say that the Holborn contract was cancelled because the plaintiff did not appear at rehearsal.

Mr. Reed, manager to Mr. Gibbons, said the latter told him to do his very best for Mr. Mountford, and he gave him eight weeks. He could not give him Balham, as that was full up, but Mr. Mountford said, "You have done your best," adding that Mr. Gibbons had treated him most generously. They subsequently sent the plaintiff Balham, but the contract was returned, because the net salary had been put in.

His Honour pointed out that Mr. Gibbons and the New Grand had not so far been connected so as to make the arrangement between Mr. Gibbons and Mountford binding as between Mountford and the New Grand.

Mr. Payne agreed, remarking that Mr. Mountford had written stating that he did not wish to sue the New Grand if he could arrange matters with Mr. Gibbons, who said he would meet him in a friendly spirit. He submitted that the correspondence showed that the plaintiff always looked to Mr. Gibbons, and that if there was a claim existing between him and the New Grand it had been satisfied.

Mr. Cannot argued to the contrary, and said a strong point in his favour was that Mr. Gibbons had never advertised the plaintiff. He submitted that there had been no novation, and no contracts to which the New Grand had been a party. He had advised the plaintiff that he could not succeed in that Court if he launched an action against Mr. Gibbons, so it had been discontinued. He submitted that the plaintiff was entitled to the full amount claimed, and that he had no contracts with Mr. Gibbons that he could enforce.

His Honour said he thought his judgment ought to be for the defendants. It was perfectly clear to his mind that the plaintiff was aware of the change in April, 1906, and that he subsequently entered into a new arrangement with Mr. Gibbons which was satisfactory to both parties, and it was nothing to do with the New Grand. Judgment for the defendants with costs.

In our last week's report of Blackburn, Larola, the juggler, was, by an obvious printer's error, described as "of the three Brothers Huxter." There is, of course, no connection between the turns.

The Bioscope pictures still continue to attract large audiences at the Prince's, Poplar, a gratifying result which is due to the excellence of the films and the variety of subjects presented.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

An excellent concert was given by the students of the Guildhall School on Wednesday evening. The somewhat lengthy programme commenced with Miss Helen M. Squire's able pianoforte solo, "Hexentanz" (MacDowell). Two little duets, "Snowdrops," by Liza Lehmann, were well sung by Miss Grace Cole and Miss Fanny Cuthbert. The novelty of the concert was a trio mandoline of Rossini's "Tancredi," capitally played by Miss Lilian Branston, Miss Lilian Cooper, and Mr. J. Stein, pupils of Mme. Waldahoff. Miss Gretta Dawson essayed the waltz air from Gounod's Romeo and Juliet, and Miss Alice Edwards may be heartily praised for her crisp and neat execution in Brahms' piano solo, "Scherzo in E flat minor." In the difficult aria from Leoncavallo's Pagliacci, "Vesti la Guibba," Mr. Frederick H. Blamey displayed a good and well-trained tenor voice but an utter absence of dramatic feeling. A clever violin solo by Miss Elaine Dickens, who chose Vieuxtemps' "Ballade et Polonaise," was much applauded; but Miss Gertrude Mayo, who has a fine contralto voice, might have given us something fresher than the inevitable "My heart is weary," from Nadeschda, though it is due to the vocalist to state that her rendering was far above the average. Mr. F. J. Daff proved an able executant in his piano solo of Tausig-Schubert's "March Militaire." Miss Ethel Oliver was not happy in her choice of so poor and inartistic a song as "A song of innocence." Two cleverly-written violin solos, entitled "Chanson gracieuse" and "Moto perpetuo," by Ethel Barnes, were most skilfully played by Miss Edith Clapham; and Master Cecil Hay showed great ability in his piano solo, "Impromptu in A flat," by Chopin. A word of praise must also be awarded to Miss Jenny Hyman for her clever accompanying.

The organ recital of Mr. G. F. Vincent was given on Wednesday afternoon in the concert-room of the Guildhall School, the programme being agreeably varied, and including a very clever composition of his own, a Minuet in G. J. S. Bach's famous Prelude and Fugue in B minor was admirably played, and the audience were also greatly pleased with Mozart's charming Larghetto from Clarinet Quintett. The Prelude on a Choral—"Was Gott thut das ist Wolhgethan" (Krebs)—was included in the recital, as well as H. Smart's Postlude in C and Guilmant's Sonata in A major, No. 8, Op. 91. At the close of his recital the organist met with a hearty reception.

MR. STANLEY ADAMS AND MISS CARRIE FRASER'S CONCERT.

At Steinway Hall, on Friday afternoon, June 7, under the distinguished patronage of the Right Hon. the Lord Strathcona, Mr. Stanley Adams and Miss Carrie Fraser gave a highly successful concert in the presence of a large and fashionable audience. Mr. Adams, a Canadian baritone who has studied at Milan and under Signor Lorenzo Valenti, has a pleasing voice of good compass, while his experience as a writer of plays and sketches is shown by the success with which a musical comedy sketch, Willie Off the Yacht, has met with recently at the London Pavilion. Mr. Stanley Adams was first heard in three of Frank Lambert's songs, "Look down, dear eyes," "I love you," and "Speak but one word." He was also heard in Hahn's "Rêverie" (by request) and "Non chiedermi se t'amo," by Tosti, and, being encored, responded with "Barbette." Later in the programme Mr. Adams sang "I know" (from "Three Little Songs"), by Eileen Quayle; "Till I wake" (Amy Woodforde-Finden), and Leoni's "Coolan Dhu." In addition to these Mr. Adams was most cordially received for his clever acting in a duologue, The Ninth Waltz, by R. C. Carton, in which he was associated with Miss May Haysack, a talented comedienne, who appeared by kind permission of Mr. James Welch, of Wyndham's Theatre. The duologue, which relates how Dick, after seven years' absence, returns to Florence just in time for "the ninth waltz," met with a hearty reception from the audience. Miss Carrie Fraser also greatly pleased by her display of comedy in "Isn't it like a man?" by Paul Mill, and "How we play Bridge" (Fane), given by request. Miss Fraser's other songs were "Singers and talkers" and a highly successful rendering of "The curate and the maiden," and, being encored, she gave "Philosophy." Miss Fraser has a really capital laugh, which quite infected the audience. Her other items were "Kisses and kisses" (Clarke), and Paul Rubens' "I don't seem to want you when you're with me." Mme. Elsa Oswald, a pupil of Mme. Marchesi, who has a pure and refined soprano voice, sang "Si mes vers avaient des ailes" (Hahn) and "Lenz," by Hildach, with marked success; and later on in the concert gave a brilliant example of Chaminade's florid song, "L'été." Clever violin solos were played by Mlle. Elsa Bignardi, daughter of Pietro Bignardi, the noted tenor, and in Massenet's "Méditation de Thäis" and Hubay's "Hejre Kati" Mlle. Bignardi was much applauded. The Trio, Cavalleria Rusticana, was played by Miss Gertrude Tipper (violin), Miss Dickinson ('cello), and Miss Carrie Fraser (piano), and the concert concluded with a lively duologue, Tried to Tell His Wife (Anon), arranged by Mr. Adams, in which Miss May Haysack and Mr. Stanley Adams appeared. Miss Carrie Fraser presided at the piano.

MASONS AT WORK.

The Thornhill Lodge, No. 3,163, celebrated the first year of its existence on the 16th ult. by installing Mr. W. E. Piper as their Master for the ensuing year. In order to demonstrate his eagerness for work, Mr. Piper called an emergency meeting for the 6th inst. for the purpose of raising Messrs. E. Snow, S. L. Manchester, A. T. Newman, H. T. Dudd, W. Jervis, A. Newns, and C. W. Adams (the latter gentleman being the popular manager of the Holloway Empire). The ceremony was performed in a manner which gained great admiration from the members and visitors present.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught has granted the Chelsea Lodge a Charter for the purpose of holding a Chapter in connection therewith, and the consecration will take place in the Masonic Temple at Frascati's Restaurant, Oxford-street, at 3 p.m. on Friday, June 28. The ceremony will be performed by Sir Edward Letchworth, assisted by W. H. Turner, M.A., Messrs. Frank Richardson, Harry Nicholls, Henry Neville, Percy Fitzgerald, Charles Cruikshanks, James Weaver, and H. Sadler. The officers-designate are Messrs J. W. Mathews, Z.; Albert Le Fre, H.; Herbert Chenery, J.; Wolfe S. Lyon, treasurer; Charles J. Doughty, S.E.; Fred Clay, S.N.; Serpentello, P.S.; H. Baroni, 1st A.S.; and G. H. Dyball, 2nd A.S. Amongst the founders the following names will be found: W. Hitch, F. H. Pedgrift, Harry Bawn, G. Grahame, T. Burnetti, Frank Hardie, Atlas, Dr. Ramsden, F. McNaughton, Valazzi, R. W. Duce, Scott Adaker, Albert Christian, William Jeapes, H. R. Mayville, Geo. Mozart, Fred Neiman, E. L. Robertson, Fred Farren, W. G. Mosely, &c. We understand that this is a record number, and it speaks volumes for the enterprise of so young a Lodge as the Chelsea, which was consecrated only two years since.

FRED NEIMAN, THE GREAT VENTRILOQUIST, IN EDINBURGH.

But a music hall audience is a very uncertain quantity; last night's gave as kindly heed to a ventriloquial entertainment on lines which have come down practically unchanged since the day of Valentine Vox. Still, Mr. Neiman compelled respect by his clever handling of his troupe.—Edinburgh Evening News, June 11, 1907.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

FOR next week there are Taunton, on the Great Western; Thorne (Yorks), on the Great Central and North Eastern; Falmouth, on the Great Western; Abingdon, on the Great Western; Coleford, on the Great Western and Midland Joint; Kidderminster, on the Great Western; Maidstone, on the South Eastern and Chatham; Dronfield, on the Midland; Mexborough, on the Midland and Great Central; Newport Pagnell, on the London and North Western; Selby, on the Great Northern, Great Eastern, North Eastern, and Midland and North Eastern Joint; Shipston-on-Stour, on the Great Western; Staveley, on the Midland; and Wadebridge, on the London and North Western and Great Western railways.

Derbyshire Feasts.

THE following small fixtures occur next week:—Tideswell, Unston, Staveley, Woodthorpe, Coal Aston, and Hardstaff; Marbury Park, in Cheshire; and Lambert Castle, in Dorset.

The Organisation of the Guild

CONTINUING his itinerary of British Fairs, the Rev. T. Horne hopes to hold meetings at Mexboro' Feast on Sunday, June 23, and at Halifax Fair, June 30.

Lanark Fair.

THE exhibitions at this fixture were: Mrs. Manders and Sons' coliseum of varieties and living pictures, Buckley's show of trained animals, &c. The riding machines were John Wilmot's steeplechasers and Walter Wilmot's gallopers, and W. Wilmot's park swings; shooting concerns by Messrs. McIndoe, Broughton, S. Freeman, Wright, and Dawson; all the fun of the fair by Messrs. Anderson, Knowles, Wright, Freeman, Broughton, McIndoe, and other caterers.

Falmouth Fair.

THE principal show present was John Jones's celebrated West of England Variety Theatre and Animated Photography. The other fairground novelties were Rowland and Anderton's gondolas, W. C. and S. Hancock's electric roundabouts and helter skelter, and Brewer's gallopers. The minor shows and novelty booths were Alf Wright's school of boxers and Spinck's giant lady show. The shooters, emma sheets, and cokers, swings, and variety stalls were by Jones, Oldridge, and a contingent of caterers from Penzance Fair.

Scunthorpe.

TUBY AND SON'S Coliseum and Theatre of Varieties continues its successful season at this Lincolnshire centre of busy life. The minor novelties and side exhibits are provided by Messrs. Webb, Tuby, sen., Illingworth, Lewis, Clayton, and Harry.

THE Charles Urban Trading Company, Limited, were, by the courtesy of the directors of the International Horse Show, afforded facilities in choice of positions specially suited to their purpose of obtaining cinematograph portraits of the Royalties present on arrival at, and departure from, Olympia. In the series thus secured are included representations of trotting, single, double, and tandem; riding, driving, and jumping. Other interesting films depict the arrival of the King and Queen of Denmark at Portsmouth, the State visit of the King and Queen of Denmark to the Guildhall, London, and the Royal review at Aldershot.

THE Midsummer Fair at Bilston lasted from Friday, the 7th inst., till Tuesday last. Amongst the shows were P. Collins' racing motor-cars and cockerels, Mrs. J. Hayes' overboats, swings, and big yachts, P. Collins's slipping the slip, J. Stokes' Emmas, and cokernuts by Whyatt, Humphreys, Hayes, Wagstaffe, and Walton.

GUILD subscriptions, per G. W. A. Norton, Esq.: T. Whitelegge, 5s.; C. Spinck, 5s.; Alf. Wright, 5s.; J. Russett, 5s.; F. Hurford, 5s.; W. Barlow, 5s. Per Mr. Chaplain: T. Cooper, 5s. Per Mr. Walter Wilmot: Miss L. Dowson, 5s.

PORTH FAIR.

The Valley of the Rhondda was within the memory of the present generation almost a terra incognito; its fertile vales and uplands peopled only by sturdy Welsh yeomen, whose herds of sheep and kine found rich pasture on its glorious mountain ranges. Fifty years ago the Rhondda was dotted here and there by sparsely-populated villages. Then you could count its population in units of thousands; now you must estimate its industrial pushing life by tens and even hundreds of thousands. "King Coal" was discovered, and the black diamonds brought wealth and prosperity to the erstwhile sleepy hollow of the Rhondda. Now, from Cardiff right away to the seaboard beyond Treherbert, we have immense congeries of human life—huge coal-pits, with their tens of thousands of busy workers at the coal-seam. The giant mountains act as grim sentinels over these busy hives of human life and enterprise and exhausting labour. Pontypridd, Porth, Ferndale, Ton-y-Pandy, Treorchy, Ystrad, Treberbert form almost one unbroken line in the Rhondda Valley: a line of busy, throbbing life—the old pastoral calm of the Rhondda gone never to return. "King Coal" reigns, and all is well. Work is plentiful, the workers a sober and thrifty class, and the result is a happy and contented people.

The Genesis of Modern Fairs.

The fairs in the Welsh coal-fields most aptly illustrate the economic demand that originates and determines our fairs. Wherever the people are massed in their multitude there the showman comes and makes a fair for the amusement and recreation of the toilers. The Studt family are not only providers of fair ground amusements; they are originators and founders of fairs in industrial Wales. The Rhondda Valley, Taff Vale, Ebbw Vale, and other parts of the Principality owe their fairs almost entirely to the genius and enterprise of the Brothers Studt, the Rhondda round of fairs being the special territory of Mr. John Studt, who is the founder and lessee of the principal fairs. When we visited Porth on a busy Saturday nights its streets were literally alive with eager, throbbing life. You were caught up and carried forward in the stream of it. Here were the people. Every shop was doing a roaring trade—no lack of supplies, no lack of money to obtain them; a prospering town—a contented people. Such we found Porth in the Rhondda.

The Pilgrims of Porth.

All roads led to the fair at Porth. If you wished to avoid it you could not, for the irresistible compulsion of fifty thousand people turned facewards to the fair magnetised you, and so you fall into step and line, and go with the merry pilgrims of the Rhondda to the fair. You may break step for a moment and solace yourself with ice-cream or toothsome ginger-bread, but it is only refreshment by the way. On—on you are hurried to the fair. Oh, what a merry medley of joyous life it is at the end of the pilgrimage! Now you are caught up and cast willy-nilly into a motor-car, speeding round a switchback track. You tootle the raucous horn to warn the motorists ahead of you and behind you that your prize Daimler 40 h.p. has a monopoly of the track, and that all and sundry must take note of you in all your glory—"playing the millionaire" at tuppence a time.

The Sportsman at the Fair.

Having played the millionaire, you remember that somewhere in your town-bred nature you retain hereditary tendencies to British sport. Hey, presto, pass a nimble penny and you find yourself behind a gun. You are aiming at flying birds, leaping hares or rabbits in a makebelief jungle. Oh, indeed, you are a sport! You make further essay—you wish to break loose and smash something. Well, it's quite easy. Another magic penny, and you can throw at dummy heads or milky cokers. But that is not all that your now bursting physical exuberance may achieve. You may enter the boxing saloon. You may peel off the garb of your city servitude, and the "Cardiff Crusher" or the "Birmingham Bruiser" will kindly oblige with a few friendly taps on your claret-box, or on your "bread-basket," and there you are—a British bulldog, and all for a penny a time.

Optics and Mystics at the Fair.

Our fair of to-day is eminently scientific. Our leading shows run to sciences applied quite readily. Hence the popularity of the optical illusion, the cinematograph picture; or we dabble in occult marvels. Hence our second sight and Egyptian mysteries at the fair. At Porth fair we have those kings of the Kimato picture—the Dooners and the Wadbrooks—and the prince and princess of occultism, the Samoudas. These be tuppenny and thrippenny shows, and worth a shilling, so up-to-date, so perfect in every sense are these portable palaces of the people at the fair.

The Funmakers at Work.

Swing high, swing low; pull, pull hard, and away you go; the miniature Eiffel Tower, the Big Wheel—

"Wheeling upward car, Rising, rising like a star."

"Here you are, sir, all the jolly fun. Three shots a penny." "Try your skill; win 'em and have 'em." "Come along, gents; come along, ladies; three a penny—three a penny." "No waiting, no waiting, always showing. Ada Russell, the giant fat lady. A penny is the charge for admission to see this marvel of human nature. No waiting." What a wonderful blend of competing merry music of lusty lungs and winning eloquence. Such is the trade and calling of the fun-smiths at the fair.

Wadbrooks' Electrograph.

The enterprising proprietor of this excellent show (Mr. H. Scard) is justly famous (in Wales and out of it) for the refined and up-to-date character of the entertainment under his direction. He styles his latest range of films "Marconigrams of passing events day by day'.' His vaudeville company comprises many favourites of the variety stage. Mr. Scard, whilst still retaining the old name ("Wadbrooks") of the firm, is in every sense in the front rank of modern showmen.

J. Dooner and Son's Coliseum

is another of the perfectly-equipped palaces of popular amusement that cast distinction upon our best fairs. Mr. Dooner is justly regarded as one of the oldest and most esteemed showmen on the road. The name "Dooner" is a guarantee that only the very best and the most refined and acceptable pictures and variety turns will be seen on the bijou stage of the theatre. R. Dooner, his capable and talented son, and the junior member of the firm, is also well-known in showland as being a worthy son of a worthy sire and a showman to the manner born. Dooner's show is well known in the Welsh towns and cities, and the name "Dooner" is a household word in the valleys where "the steam-coal comes from."

Princess and Prince Samouda.

The more we wonder and the more we marvel the oftener we see this highly gifted pair. Sometimes we stand amazed at the skill of the Black Prince, and conclude in our stupefaction, "Ah, it is the quick by-play of the Prince that does the trick." Then we turn and notice the exquisite finish of the Princess in her part of the delusion (or is it illusion?), and we balance our partial judgment and say, "No, it is not one, but it is the two of them acting in perfect psychometric sympathy." "Two minds with but a single thought," that is the latest formula. Undoubtedly clever, really smart, and altogether fresh each time we see them in their unique occult performance.

Scarrott's Palace of Fistiana.

Talk about "moving with the times," why here you have sparring by electricity. Fisticuffs by arc lamps, light and heavy-weight boxing in the glowing light of electric lamps. Why, it is enough to make the old show lover gasp with surprise to see the gold and silver fittings, the recherché appointments that now attend putting on the gloves for a friendly bout. We most heartily congratulate Professor Scarrott on his palace of boxiana.

Frank Gess and School of Boxers.

Here again British pluck and British stamina finds popular expression; but this is the dear old boxing booth, with the old-time watchman's rattle, and "the orator" of the ring setting forth in sturdy speech that "Taffy Jones," of Merthyr, will engage "Scotty Campbell" or "Paddy Murphy" (names to conjure with) in 10 rounds for £20 a-side. Queensbury rules," &c. A rattling, bustling good show, "which no one dare deny."

John Studt's Exhibits.

The popular king of shows in the Rhondda, whose majestic presence is known of all Welshmen and honoured everywhere, still maintains his long-since acquired position as a leader in the world of shows. His magnificent motor-car machine, colossal in its proportions and complete and beautiful in all its rich appointments, attracted great attention and streams of patrons. The No. 2 set, "The Zoological Carroussel," and the fine range of park-swings were also deservedly popular.

Henry Studt and Son's Exhibit.

The magnificent Gordon-Bennett racing motor-cars are the latest novelty in electric riding machines. Messrs. H. Studt and Son are to be congratulated on this perfect example of up-to-date and popular exhibit of delightful motion.

The "Russell" Abnormal.

This marvel of human growth, as usual, attracted much attention. The extraordinary size and weight of Ada ponderous and Ada beautiful delighted the numerous patrons of this capital show.

John Fossett's Exhibits.

This veteran provider of fair-ground amusements was, as ever, well to the front with his aggregation of novelties, the shooting ranges, the photo saloon, and other attractions under his direction being well patronised.

J. B. Bullin's Exhibits.

The miniature Eiffel Tower and over-boats, the gem roundabouts, the throwing games, and other varieties obtained their full share of public approval.

Wm. Freeman's Novelties.

These included shooting gallery, throwing games, variety stalls, and sheets.

North and Son's Exhibits.

The aggregation of novelties controlled by these enterprising showmen comprised shooters, mollies, cokers, and varieties; and well patronised they were by the vast crowds at the fair.

Winsper's Varieties and Sheets.

These included throwing games, swings, and shooters.

The Olla Podrida of the Fair.

The other varieties, games, &c., were provided by Messrs. Jones, Kinder, Jeffreys, Potter, Unwin, Matthews, Towers, Williams, Haley, Phillips, and numerous local stall-holders. Porth Fair both in the high-class nature and the variety of its entertainments may claim to rank with the very best of modern fixtures, and its ever-increasing success and importance reflects the greatest credit upon the lessee, Mr. John Studt, and also upon his indefatigable lieutenant and manager, Mr. John Gage.

SHOWMEN IN COUNCIL.

ANNUAL MEETING IN WALES.

The ninth annual meeting of the Van Dwellers' Protection Society (the Showmen's Guild) in the Principality took place at Porth Fair on June 9, and was in every way a big success, "Little Wales" still maintaining the proud position of enrolling the largest number of members registered at any one of the provincial meetings of the society. The gathering took place in Mr. Henry Scard's magnificent pavilion (Wadbrook's Electrograph), kindly lent for the occasion by the proprietor

Amongst the showmen at the meeting were Mr. Henry Studt, V.P. (who occupied the chair), Mr. John Studt, V.P., Mr. James Dooner, Mr. Richard Dooner, Mr. John Fossett, Mr. John North, Mr. Wm. Freeman, Mr. John Gage, Mr. Frank Gess, Mr. F. Towers, Mr. Jacob Butler, Mr. Wm. Kinder, Mr. John Scarrott, Mr. W. Jones, Mr. J. North, jun., Mr. T. Unwin, Mr. L. Williams, Mr. G. Winsper, jun., Mr. M. Haley, Mr. W. Jeffreys, Mr. J. Gaze, jun., and others. Mr. Jacob Studt, V.P., whose show and machine novelties are now at Newport (Mon.), and Mr. John Johnson, of the Theatre Royal, Barry Dock, motored to Porth and took part in the latter portion of the proceedings. There were a number of ladies present, and great enthusiasm marked the gathering.

The Chairman's Speech.

MR. HENRY STUDT, in his opening remarks, dwelt upon the loyalty of Welsh showmen to the Van Dwellers' Society. For many years they had gathered in large numbers to listen to the organising chaplain's statement of the good work done by the Society, to protect their trade interests, and to vindicate their business and calling in life. He called their especial attention to the serious question of railway rates, the proposal on the part of railways to increase the rates for carriage of their goods by special train 50 per cent. Here was a matter of vital importance to all of them. They could only meet the combination of the railways by combination amongst themselves. He had no doubt that Mr. Horne would tell them, in his address, what steps the Society had taken in this extremely urgent matter. The proposed rates would so seriously cripple their business that they would be compelled to carry their grievances before the Railway Commissioners, and if not successful they would be driven to adopt other means of transit from town to town. (Cheers.) He needed not to remind them of the great and good work their trade organisation had done in the past. The annual report and balance-sheet, in their hands now, would demonstrate that, and, further, would absolutely satisfy them as to the economical working of the Society and the good use made of their money by the executive council and officials of the Guild. He confidently appealed to them to subscribe liberally and supply the sinews of war to their trade protection society. He called upon their reverend friend to deliver his address. (Great applause.)

The Need for Guild Propaganda Work.

THE REV. T. HORNE reminded the showmen present of the remarkable growth in usefulness and in public esteem of the Guild. The secret of that success was only found in the persistent and consistent way in which they, as a body, had maintained the justice of their aims and the integrity of their work. In the great fight for the liberty of their individual life, the sanctity of their homes, and the reality of their claim to be citizens of the commonwealth and loyal subjects of the King, they had been blessed by complete success; and now everywhere, throughout the length and breadth of the land, the showman was recognised, and his avocation in life understood and appreciated to an extent never before realised. This great work was entirely done by their strenuous labour in that society during the past twenty years. This was the propaganda work of their Guild, to claim for show-people the same even-handed justice, the same trade liberty and protection accorded to all lawful and necessary industries in the national life. The same laws of trade, the same laws of domestic security that all other workers enjoyed were good enough for them; they did not need special legislation or special by-laws. The ordinary law of the land, governing all other trades and industries, was quite sufficient for their work and for their workshops, the shows and novelties of the fair. The Public Health Acts applied just as effectively, just as stringently to their movable dwellings as to immovable ones. They claimed the safeguards and the immunities of the ordinary laws of the land, and they opposed all proposals to inflict upon them as a class in the community restrictions and invidious rules and regulations that other classes were exempt from. That was their charter—to proclaim that charter was the object of their propaganda. (Applause.)

The Victories of the Guild.

They had killed the mischievous and mistaken proposals of men like the late George Smith, and the later proposals to label and mark them as creatures needing special coercion either as parents or as citizens. Showmen were not gipsies; they were not marauding tramps, without homes or visible means of honest subsistence; they were just ordinary men and women, carrying on, to the outward seeming, a somewhat out-of-the-common and extraordinary trade and avocation in life. That was all; their lives were just as honest, just as cleanly, just as pure and law-abiding as all other classes in the commonwealth, and they repudiated all efforts, all attempts, whether by individuals or by corporations, to stigmatise them as being fit subjects for special and restrictive legislation.

The Parliamentary Work.

Corporations like Halifax, Mansfield, Eccles, Hyde, Rotherham, Buxton, Aston, Radcliffe, Selby, Swindon, Acton, East Ham, Pontefract, Gateshead, Wallasey, Rawtenstall, Colne, Newport, Carlisle, Penrith, Middlesex County, Chester County, Lancaster County, and many other smaller public bodies had endeavoured, either by Private Bill legislation or by by-law enactments to cripple and penalise them in their business; but in all these important places they had fully vindicated their right as lawful traders to carry on their work under the ordinary law, and without special and invidious restrictions. Three great principles had been fought for and won—free trade in fairs, no legal enactments in restraint of trade, and no limitation by public bodies as regards business hours other than the ordinary laws that regulate the opening and closing of ordinary business premises. (Great applause.) On this work they had spent over three thousand pounds, and every penny was well spent, and in their interest and to their lasting benefit. He asked them to consider, if these corporations had obtained their proposed additional powers, how long would the other public bodies have been content without them?

The Guild a Bulwark of Defence.

It was upon that work, but not that alone, that he based the claim of the Guild to their continued support. Another great branch of their work was to preserve the fairs and holidays of the people. Whenever attacked, and by whomsoever attacked, the Guild stood for the defence of the people's fairs. In that department of their work last year they fought memorable battles at Burslem and at Mitcham, and spent over one hundred pounds in defence of the fairs.

Railway Rates.

There was, he believed, still a possibility of the railway rates question being settled by mutual understanding and agreement. Whilst that open door was there he would only reiterate what he had said before—that any increase in the rates would seriously cripple the show industry, and compel the show traders to adopt other means of transit. He had set out in an article that appeared in The Era the serious position of affairs that the increased rates would inevitably create. He had shown that the show and fair-ground business, in maintaining the fairs and the public holidays of the nation, had created, and were still creating and increasing, year by year, by opening up new fairs, the enormous volume of passenger pleasure traffic that constituted so profitable a portion of railway income. Why, instead of increasing rates for their goods they had a reasonable claim for a reduction; instead of decreased facilities, their trade because of the trade it brought with it, ought to be fostered and encouraged.

What Had Been Done?

A deputation of the principal traders in the showmen world, representing the trade organisations and every business interest at stake, laid their views before the traffic managers at the Railway Clearing House. That deputation came away with but little satisfaction. He was connected, as all showmen knew, with The Era newspaper, their old champion and friend in all their struggles and fights. In that paper he had set out their just and most reasonable and moderate claims. A copy of The Era containing that manifesto of the organised showmen was posted to every traffic manager, to every general manager, to every chairman of every board of directors, of every railway in the United Kingdom; and, more than that, to the editors of all our principal newspapers. (Great applause.) So sure are we of the justice of our claim that we felt that the great mass of public opinion would support us if it comes to an appeal from the railways to the Railway Commissioners.

Advance as Well as Defence.

Great as their trade defence work had been, and truly effective as vindicating their life and character as other parts of their work had been, yet that was not all. He stood there for advance as well as defence. He defended them because he knew their life and understood them and their work. He claimed for them higher reaches of work and enterprise than liberty of life and defence of their livelihood. He enlisted them in the great and most necessary work of lifting up and bettering the open-air amusements of the people. He asked them to recognise that their mission to entertain and to amuse the toiling millions of their motherland was in reality a great and grand work. Let them be proud of it. It was part and parcel of our complex civilisation and the outgrowth of our national life. He claimed for the Guild in its latest development of public work—the Guild services in show-booths such as the one they had taken part in that day—that they were advancing, uplifting the whole conception of their work and life in public esteem and respect. All these spheres of the Guild work and enterprise helped to create and to maintain an intelligent and tolerant public opinion. It was the loyal response of little Wales in the past years that had led him to the practical conclusion that he could best help his brethren of the road by freeing himself from fixed clerical work, and so to come amongst them at all the great centres of their life and work and plead with them and for them in all parts of the country—east, west, north and south—that their own society might continue in increased power and usefulness its truly necessary and most beneficent work in the world of shows. (Great and continued applause.)

Mr. John Studt's Speech.

The genial vice-president, in a characteristic few words, emphasised the need for continued and loyal support. "Little Wales" had been for years past at the top of the tree in the number of members enrolled at any provincial centre. Welsh showmen were proud of that fact, and meant to maintain that honourable position. (Applause.) He could not add anything to what his brother, their chairman, had said; but this he must say, how proud and thankful they were that their reverend friend and advocate, Mr. Horne, never tired of the good work he had started in their midst. His example ought to be enough to inspire, to encourage them. (Cheers.)

Mr. James Dooner's Speech.

In response to the chairman's request Mr. James Dooner addressed the gathering. As one of the oldest travelling showmen on that road he could well remember that their work and life used to be much misunderstood, and subjected to the petty tyranny of every "Jack in office," who, dressed in a little brief authority for the moment, took upon himself to hector over the travelling showman. Those bad old days were past and gone for ever. (Applause.) The better state of things now existing was the direct result of their efforts to defend themselves and to improve their calling in life. The Guild had led the way, and had done splendid work. A glance at the statement of accounts before that meeting would prove that the Guild, with limited funds, was doing most important work, and that, with the exception of a small salary to their secretary for keeping the books, all the workers were quite voluntary and unpaid. He and his son were quite ready to renew their annual subscription, and to do all in their power for the good of the Society and its work (Cheers.)

Nomination of Welsh Officers.

In accordance with the suggestion of the annual committee at Manchester that local centres should nominate their own committee-men at provincial gatherings, the following names were proposed for office in 1908: Messrs. Henry Studt, John Studt, James Dooner, and R. Dooner as vice-presidents; and Messrs. John Johnson, John North, John Fossett, and J. B. Butlin as members of committee for 1908. The Welsh members also resolved that it be an instruction to the annual committees in Manchester and London in 1908 that all officers of the committee subscribe not less than one guinea to the Fund. Messrs. R. Dooner and John Gage acted as secretaries, and the following members were enrolled per Mr. John Studt, V.P.:—

The Guild Service.

Despite a tremendous downpour of rain, the showmen's service in Wadbrook's show was well attended. The Rev. T. Horne was assisted by the hon. local chaplain, the Rev. G. Francis (who read the Guild Office) and the Rev. R. P. Martin (who read the Lesson). The organising chaplain preached the sermon, taking for his subject "Love the brethren." The choirs of St. Paul's and St. John's Churches sustained the sung parts of the service. Mr. Horne in the morning assisted at the High Celebration at St. Paul's, and at the conclusion of the service spoke a few words on the work of the Guild to the congregation. As a thank-offering to the church and choir the showmen sent a subscription of three guineas to the choir funds.

FILM GOSSIP.

Pathé Frères.

WE were extremely interested the other afternoon in witnessing several new films of the Pathé Frères. The first picture bears the title of "The Reluctant Dog." Burglars are seen emerging with their booty from a residence, and a few seconds later the householder and his wife, evidently realising that a dog would be an excellent protector of their property, decide to get one. Forthwith, then, goes the master of the house in quest of a faithful canine. We see him enter a dogs' home, make his selection, and start for home. But the brute whom he has secured has not yet known its new owner sufficiently long to bear any great affection for him, and it accompanies him not of its own free will, but by the fact that it is pulled along by a chain, and frequently brings its master to the ground. Most ludicrous incidents follow when, later, the dog rushes ahead of the man and drags him along.

"Too Late for Lunch."

A MAN suddenly awakes from a prolonged sleep, and realises that he is "behind time" for an appointment at a friend's. Hastily dressing himself, he rushes out into the street, over bridges, down steps, knocking down people and other obstacles that may be in his way, and eventually he is chased by an infuriated crowd of victims, who are, however, finally frightened away from the friend's house by the ferocious attitudes and actions of the porters, assisted by the man who has arrived just "too late for lunch."

"A Drama of the Riviera"

has a tragic story to tell, and, briefly, shows how a married woman improperly countenances the attentions of a certain individual, how the husband finds them in each other's embrace, how he shoots the intruder and thrashes his wife, and how he eventually takes her back to his heart. Some very pretty and artistic scenes of the Riviera are realistically depicted in this series.

In "Realities of Life"

a young man, feeling his work at the desk some what irksome, takes a trip round town with the object of thoroughly enjoying himself. One of the first persons he meets is an old fortune-teller, who sells him a glass which, on being used, enables the owner to "see behind the scenes." Thus, he stops to look at a well-fed and apparently happy individual who has just emerged from a restaurant. The youth consults his glass, and sees the diner at home with a bandaged leg, suffering no doubt from gout. A beggar comes along and solicits a copper. Again the glass is utilised, and the mendicant is at home, counting hundreds of coins. He is a pauper in public and a miser in private. The young man is brought face to face with other phases of life, not as they appear sometimes under a veneer of gilt and glitter, but as they really are in their very nakedness; and eventually he is perfectly satisfied to return to his work.

"No More Children Wanted"

illustrates the troubles of a father and mother who have six or seven youngsters, and have been turned out of one house and are now in search of another. Everywhere they are met with the prohibition as to children, and their attempts to smuggle their offspring into a flat by hiding them in trunks, and the adventures they meet with in doing so, form a number of exceedingly laughable incidents. Altogether Pathé Frères may be congratulated upon several fine new sets of pictures, which are as clear and well-defined photographically as they are attractive in subject, and which our showmen friends will not be slow to supply themselves.

The Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd.,

are now publishing a unique descriptive series of the gorgeous, imposing, and brilliant State ceremonies in connection with the visit of the King and Queen of Denmark. The first subject depicts the arrival of the King and Queen at Portsmouth, scene on the jetty, inspection of the Guard of Honour, and the departure of the Royal train for London. The State visit of the King and Queen to the Guildhall follows, with scenes in the courtyard, arrival of the Royal party, reception by the Lord Mayor, and the pomp and circumstance peculiar to such an occasion.

THE great International Horse Show at Olympia forms a particularly beautiful subject, and in this Mr. Urban introduces close portrait views of the monarchs as they arrive. The scenes in the arena are most vividly portrayed, the horses, of course, forming the centre of interest. Parades of magnificently-handled teams, exhibitions by trotting horses, single, double, and tandem, riding by the world's experts mounted on champion horses, exhilarating jumps, judging and awarding the honours, &c., present an exceedingly attractive display. Preliminary private trials, under superior conditions of lighting, with the actual horses engaged at Olympia, are also introduced.

THE series concludes with the Royal review of 21,000 troops at Aldershot in honour of the visit of the King and Queen of Denmark. Portraits were secured of their Majesties, Princes, General Staff, &c., on their arrival at the Royal Pavilion. This was only possible by the special courtesy of the Aldershot command. All the pictures are remarkable as affording close portrait views of the Royal and other distinguished personages present on each occasion.

The Vitagraph Company

are also able to submit some attractive novelties. One of these is a film called

"Forty Winks."

Blinks is awakened by the alarm clock, which has been set for eight o'clock. He jumps out of bed, looks at the clock, then decides to have just "forty winks" more. What happens subsequently is all a dream. He jumps out of bed and gets into his clothes with great celerity, dressing himself in about five seconds, dashes downstairs, knocking over a chambermaid who is just ascending. Rushing out of the front door, he collides with the baker, and runs into a nursemaid with a baby carriage, a bicyclist, and several pedestrians. He jumps into a waggon standing at the kerb, but the wheel comes off. He then engages an automobile, which starts away rapidly, and tears along at frightful speed, cutting around corners and zigzaging along the road in a truly awful manner. Suddenly it explodes, and Blinks wakes again and finds himself still in bed.

"One Man Baseball."

ANOTHER of the same firm's publications that should also prove exceedingly popular bears the title of "One Man Baseball," and is a kind of amusing pantomime showing a baseball player on the diamond talking to the umpire, the pitcher, the base-men, and the fielders. He dons his catcher's mask, and cleverly goes through all the movements and actions of a regular game. A fly is hit, and he watches the flight of the ball away up into the air. It goes so high that he is obliged to get a telescope to watch it. Next we see him at the bat. He makes several wild swings, and finally knocks a home run, runs around the bases, slides for home plate, is put out, argues with the umpire, and finally gets into a fight with him.

BOZ AS BOBADIL.

Amongst the many books which were disposed of at the sale of the property of the late Mr. J. L. Toole was a morocco-bound prompt copy of Ben Jonson's comedy, Every Man in His Humour, used by the amateurs known as the "Splendid Strollers" in 1847-48, and marked by Charles Dickens.

A few particulars concerning the play will not be out of place before coming to the performance itself, given by the band of distinguished amateurs nearly sixty years ago. Every Man in His Humour, which Mr. A. W. Ward refers to as "the first important comedy of character proper produced on the British stage," was originally performed in 1598 at the Globe Theatre, and by "the Lord Chamberlain's servants," including Shakespeare, Burbage, Condell, Hemings, Kemp, A. Phillips, W. Sly, T. Pope, C. Beeston, and J. Duke. Proving a success, the play was printed and published in 1601. John Downes, who, besides writing "Roscius Anglicanus; An Historical View of the Stage," was prompter to "the Duke's servants" in the theatre at Lincoln's Inn Fields, from 1662 to 1706, states that the comedy was revived at the Theatre Royal between 1663 and 1682. It was again revived, "with alterations," at Lincoln's Inn Fields in January, 1725; and, in November, 1751, Garrick produced the piece at Drury Lane, fitting it with a new prologue, and himself playing Kitely.

Other notable revivals followed, and in the month of September, 1845, a private performance of Every Man in His Humour was given in Miss Kelly's Theatre, Soho, under the direction of Charles Dickens, who, writing to John Forster, gives a humorous description of the difficulties he experienced in engaging the little theatre in Dean-street, now known as the Royalty. Miss Kelly, it should be explained, was a very eccentric personage, governed by whims and fancies. Dickens writes:—"Heavens! such a scene as I have had with Miss Kelly here, this morning! She wanted us to put off until the theatre should be cleaned and brushed up a bit, and she would and she would not, for she is eager to have us and alarmed when she thinks of us. By the foot of Pharoah, it was a great scene! Especially when she choked, and had a glass of water brought."

In his Life of the great novelist, John Forster thus refers to the performance:—"The play was played on Sept. 21, 1845, with a success that outran the wildest expectations, and turned our little enterprise into one of the small sensations of the day. The applause of the theatre found so loud an echo in the Press that for the time nothing else was talked about in private circles; and, after a week or two, we had to yield (we did not find it difficult) to a pressure of demand for more public performance in a larger theatre, by which a useful charity received important help." Forster goes on to say that "it would not be safe now to assume that ours was much above the average of amateur attempts in general. Lemon certainly had most of the stuff, conventional as well as otherwise, of a regular actor in him, but this was not of a high kind; and, though Dickens had the title to be called a born comedian, the turn for it being in his very nature, his strength was rather in the vividness and vanity of his assumptions, than in the completeness, finish, or ideality he could give to any part of them. It is expressed exactly by what he says of his youthful preference for the representations of the elder Mathews. At the same time, this was in itself so thoroughly genuine and enjoyable, and had in it such quickness and keenness of insight, that of its kind it was unrivalled; and it enabled him to present in Bobadil, after a richly-coloured picture of bombastical extravagance and comic exultation in the earlier scenes, a contrast in the later of tragical humility and abasement that had a wonderful effect. But, greatly as his acting contributed to the success of the night, this was nothing to the service he had rendered as manager. It would be difficult to describe it. He was the life and soul of the entire affair. I never seemed till then to have known his business capabilities. He took everything on himself, and did the whole of it without an effort. He was stage-director, very often stage-carpenter, scene-arranger, property-man, prompter, and band-master. Without offending anyone, he kept everyone in order. For all he had useful suggestions, and the dullest of clays under his potter's hand were transformed into little bits of porcelain. He adjusted scenes, assisted carpenters, invented costumes, devised playbills, wrote out calls, and enforced as well as exhibited in his proper person everything of which he urged the necessity on others. Such a chaos of dirt, confusion, and noise, as the little theatre was the day we entered it, and such a cosmos as he made it of cleanliness, order, and silence, before the rehearsals were over! There were only two things left as we found them, bits of humanity both, understood from the first as among the fixtures of the place: a man in a straw hat, tall and very fitful in his exits and entrances, of whom we never could pierce the mystery, whether he was on guard or in possession, or what he was; and a solitary little girl, who flitted about so silently among our actors and actresses, that she might have been deaf and dumb, but for sudden small shrieks and starts elicited by the wonders going on, which obtained for her the name of Fireworks." The straw-hatted mystery revealed itself eventually as a gentleman in training for the tragic stage.

With regard to other members of the company who appeared in Every Man in His Humour, Mr. Dudley Costello (Downright) was the author of several popular tales. Mr. Douglas Jerrold was regarded as the first comic dramatist of the day. Mr. Mayhew (Knowall) was another successful playwright. Mr. Leigh (Oliver Cob) was well known as the author of "The Comic Grammar." Miss Fortescue (Dame Kitely), of the Haymarket Theatre, is best remembered, perhaps, as the original representative of Barnaby Rudge.

Turning to The Era of Feb. 28, 1845, we find quite a glowing notice of the performance at Miss Kelly's Theatre. Says our critic:—"The comedy was sustained with a degree of animation and intelligence not often attained at a regular theatre. Mr. Forster adopted what may be called a Macready view of Kitely, but it would be the height of injustice to ascribe to him the merit only of a successful imitation. Bobadil was played with admirable spirit by Mr. Charles Dickens. He assumed the swagger of the 'Paul's Man' with an ease that belonged to a stage veteran rather than to an amateur. The perfect change which he brought over the whole manner and bearing of the character after the beating, the substitution of the sneaking, pitiful-looking wretch, for the gallant, flaunting boaster, was a masterly transformation. He was excellently supported by Mr. Leech as the empty, frivolous, and foppish Master Matthew. Mr. Jerrold's Master Stephen was a fine study; and Brainworm found an adequate representative in Mr. Mark Lemon, the editor of Punch, and a popular dramatist and novelist." The writer concludes his notice with the following outburst of enthusiastic flattery:—"To sum up all, we have never seen a play rendered more truly interesting than this comedy was by the gentlemen who sustained it." Jonson's play was followed on this memorable occasion by one of the versions of Passé Minuit, called A Good Night's Rest; or, Two in the Morning, by Mrs. Charles Gore, "excellently played by Mr. Dickens and Mr. Lemon. We will venture to assert that, as long as memory retains her seat, none who were fortunate enough to be present will forget the intrinsic merit of the performances, nor the peculiar associations with which they were environed." The cast included Dickens's younger brothers, Frederick as Edward Knowell and Augustus as Thomas Cash.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER,

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
Another book which calls for attention is that excellent and almost indispensable work of reference, "The Era" Almanack and Annual. In this handy shillingsworth one has a complete record of the past dramatic year, and the arrangement is so admirable that no time is lost in finding the desired subject, title of play, revival, or new production, and all that appertains to the drama of the year. The same remark applies to the information concerning the stages of Paris and Berlin; and I should like to see next year the American stage included, because it is becoming so intimately allied with our own, by reason of the production of plays, the interchange of actors, and the comprehensive interests of managers. In addition to the solid pages of facts, there are included short tales and stories by well-known actors and actresses, and altogether the book is one which should find its way into the hands of all genuine lovers of the drama.—Morning Advertiser, Feb. 23, '07.

FRESH SUBJECTS EVERY DAY. LATEST NOVELTIES.

LIFE'S REALITY.
Code Word, CALENDES.

A young student is shown, through the aid of a wonderful glass, that everyone has some trial or worry. Those who seem to be the most successful carry some load or other. He tries all kinds of means to secure happiness, truth, and sincerity, but the only thing that satisfies, he finds, is work. From this very impressive film one could learn a splendid lesson, and at the same time spend a very delightful quarter of an hour.

696ft. The Subject, £11 12s.

LATE FOR LUNCH.
Code Word, CLAPOTAGE

Horace is invited out to lunch, but does not wake up until very late, and there is a grand stampede to arrive in time. On his way he knocks over sundry and divers people, causing them various injuries. He succeeds in getting to his destination just as they are finishing lunch, followed by a large crowd, who demand satisfaction. Awfully amusing.

297ft. The Subject, £4 19s.

A SLAVE'S LOVE.
Code Word, CAMEE.

Charming scene in Athens. The story of a jealous wife and a devoted slave. This is an exceptionally fine film, the subject is full of interest, the staging excellent, and the colouring simply wonderful.

692ft. The Subject, £11 10s. 8d. Colouring, £5 12s.

A REBELLIOUS DOG.
Code Word, GLIDHE.

Having had burglars, Mr. and Mrs. S. decide to have a dog. Off goes Mr. S. to purchase one from the Dogs' Home. If you have ever taken a dog for a walk who declines to go the way you are going, you will fully enjoy these pictures. The dog finishes by arriving at his own home, with a portion of the garments of Mr. S. in his teeth. Screamingly funny.

297ft. The Subject, £4 19s.

TOO MANY CHILDREN.
Code Word, CLOTURE.

Like the old woman who lived in her shoe, the couple in this film have so many children they really do not know what to do. Their endeavours to seek lodgings are most laughable. They finally pack all the children into trunks, and thus they arrive, but, being discovered, are again turned out and compelled to sleep under the blue sky of heaven.

577ft. The Subject, £9 12s. 4d.

DRAMA ON THE RIVIERA.
Code Word, CHOIX.

Dramatic story of love and jealousy. A husband discovers his young wife with a gipsy, and shoots the man, and ties his wife to a tree and has her beaten. Thrilling, realistic, and faseinating.

510ft. The Subject, £8 10s. Colouring, 10s.

THE POLICE DOGS OF PARIS.
Code Word, CLEMENCE.

A wonderful picture showing the dogs at work tracking criminals. Through streets, country, over the river, they go, finally bringing down their prey in a garret. A remarkable exhibition of what training and a natural instinct for hunting can do.

824ft. The Subject, £13 14s. 8d.

JIM'S APPRENTICESHIPS.
Code Word, CAP.

A father puts his boy to be apprenticed to all kinds of trades—hatter, grocer, hairdresser, pastrycook, inn-keeper, etc.—with much the same result at each, that is to say, most unsatisfactory, until he comes to the latter, which seems, indeed, to be his vocation. Awfully comical.

676ft. The Subject, £11 5s. 4d. Colouring, 6s. 6d.

A CHARMED UMBRELLA.
Code Word, CAMELIA.

A charmed umbrella comes out of a box, and each time it is lowered a beautiful picture is presented. A Turkish harem. Choruses. Chinese, etc.

297ft. The Subject, £4 19s. Colouring, £2 3s. 6d.

Look for this Trade Mark, so as to avoid Poor Imitations.

THEIR MAJESTIES THE KINGS AND QUEENS OF ENGLAND AND DENMARK

AT THE

GREAT INTERNATIONAL HORSE SHOW, OLYMPIA.

By gracious permission of THEIR MAJESTIES, the courtesy of the Directors of the International Horse Show, and Messrs. Winans, Vanderbilt, Armour, Guinness, &c

The Directors accorded us facilities in choice of positions specially suited to our purpose, from which we were fortunate in obtaining the best Cinematograph Portraits ever secured of Their Majesties on arrival at, and departure from, Olympia. These, with the incidents, contests, and displays of the Great Show, form

THE PICTURE OF THE YEAR.

In the series are included delightful scenes in the Park-like arena of horses acknowledged first of their class in their own Countries, assembled in great trials for the World's supremacy. Magnificently handled teams, coach and dray; trotting, single, double, and tandem; riding, by world's experts, on champion horses; driving; jumping—high jump, water jump, fences and hurdles—form an exhilirating series unexcelled.

Being most fortunate, before the Great Show, in securing pictures of private trials of the champions, under superior advantages of lighting, straight roads and great stretches of park, we reproduce these trials of the principal events before the actual occurrences at Olympia. By these means we are enabled to publish a more comprehensive series, with the identical horses and riders engaged. Each private trial is followed by the actual competition in the more circumscribed arena at Olympia.

New Comedy of the Right Sort.

FORTY WINKS; or, A STRENUOUS DREAM.

Copyright 1907 by The Vitagraph Co. of America.

Blinks is awakened by the alarm clock. Lies down again for "just forty winks more." Jumps up and into his clothes at lightning speed. Rushes downstairs knocking over a chambermaid. Tucks table cloth into his neck in mistake for napkin. Devours his breakfast in four gulps. Dashes madly away carrying everything on table with him. Collides with baker, butcher, nursemaid and bicyclist in his mad rush for the train. Jumps into wagon, it starts, and wheel comes off. Engages auto. It tears along at frightful speed, then suddenly explodes and Blinks awakes again and finds it just Five Minutes since the alarm went off. Length 270 feet, and all good. Price £4 10s.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE ERA

VOL. 70. No. 3,586. SATURDAY, JUNE 15, 1907.

THE AWARD

Which has been waited for so patiently and so earnestly by

MANAGERS, ARTISTES, STAGE EMPLOYEES, AND MUSICIANS.

It is with much pleasure that we have been enabled by the enterprise of our printers to place before the Theatrical and Variety World the full text of

MR. ASKWITH'S AWARD.

The copy of this Award was obtained three hours after we had gone to Press, but the energy and determination of the Proprietors of THE ERA, that its readers should be in early possession of the particulars of the much-discussed and expected Award, overcame all obstacles, and the Award is now given to the Amusement World. The provisions of the Award we leave to our readers—for future discussion and comment.

THEATRE OF VARIETIES IN GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND.

ARBITRATOR'S AWARD.

In consequence of certain disputes between managers of theatres of varieties in London and the provinces and their artistes, musicians, and employees, and following upon a strike of artists, musicians, and employees it was agreed by the parties to refer all matters in dispute to me, George Ranken Askwith, and it was agreed, for the purpose of bringing the award under the terms of the Conciliation Act, 1896, to request the Board of Trade to confirm the reference, and such confirmation having been granted, I, the undersigned, have heard the parties and their representatives, and, having received and considered the evidence of more than one hundred witnesses during twenty-three formal sittings and the statements there made and at many conferences, award and declare, in addition to three interim awards already published, that the following rules, regulations, and rates shall be applicable to theatres of varieties in Great Britain and Ireland :—

ARTISTES.

Existing Contracts.

In existing ontracts upon request by the managers to make such award and declaration as may be reasonably necessary with respect to clauses generally inserted in existing contracts, I hereby award and declare that :

(a) Where clauses are inserted providing that the management may transfer the engagement at their option to any other theatre or theatres owned or controlled by or associated with the management, and then in such cases the artiste may be transferred during the whole or any part of the engagement (not less than one week) to any other theatre owned or controlled by or associated with the management with the consent of the artiste, such consent not to be unreasonably withheld. If such transfer is made in the provinces reasonable expenses shall be allowed.

(b) Where clauses are inserted providing that the management may, by notice in writing to the artiste to be given at any time during the expiration of the engagement, extend, prolong, or renew the term for a further period, and that in the event of such option being exercised, the same provisions, so far as may be, are to apply to the extended term, and that during such term the artiste shall perform at such theatres, and for such periods as the management shall direct, and that, in the event of such option being exercised, the same provisions are to apply, so far as may be, to the renewed engagement, and that during such term the artiste shall perform at such theatres and for such periods as the management shall direct, the following proviso shall be deemed to be annexed, viz., that, in the event of any such notice being given, such extension, prolongation, or renewal shall be subject to the terms of the award if, and so far as the terms of the contract and the award may differ.

(c) Where clauses are inserted providing that the management may at their discretion, or for causes which they in their absolute discretion shall consider adequate, close any of the theatres to which the contract applies during the whole or any portion of the periods of employment, and that no salary shall be payable on any day on which the artiste shall not perform in consequence of such closure then, and in such case no salary shall be paid for days upon which the theatre is closed by reason of national mourning, fire, epidemic, strikes, lock-outs, disputes with employees, or order of the licensing or any local authority. No salary shall be payable for any performance at which an artiste may not appear through illness or his own default, nor for days upon which the theatre is closed by reason of alterations, decorations, or repairs, or any cause which the management may reasonably consider adequate, provided that two months previous notice has been given to the artiste.

(d) Where clauses are inserted providing that the artiste shall when so required by the management appear at all matinées weekly without the payment of any additional remuneration, artistes shall in future only be called upon to perform at such matinees as were the usual weekly practice at the time the contract was made. Any additional matinées shall be paid for at the rate of one-seventh of the salary in one-show-a-night houses and one-twelfth in two-shows-a-night houses.

(e) Where clauses are inserted providing that performances by artistes are to take place at such times as may be notified by the management with the option of varying such times at their discretion, the management in future shall notify the times for appearance to the artiste, and may vary the same at their discretion on or before Friday in the week previous to the performance, but not later, unless the time can be varied without unreasonable interference with times at any other theatre.

(f) Except as hereinbefore mentioned no existing contract shall be deemed to be affected by this award.

ARTISTES.

FUTURE CONTRACTS.

1. I AWARD AND DECLARE that under contracts to be made in the future all matinees are to be paid for at the rate of one-seventh of the weekly salary in one show a night houses and one-twelfth in two show a night houses for each matinee.

2. I AWARD AND DECLARE that managements shall not be allowed a greater bar either in times and distances than I have allowed in subsequent clauses which specify maximum bars, and nothing therein contained shall prevent artistes and managements from agreeing to relaxation of conditions either in the contract itself or subsequently in writing.

3. I AWARD AND DECLARE that in all future contracts where clauses are inserted dealing with matinees and the transference of artistes, the form and conditions of Clause 2 (matinees) and Clause 4 (transfers) in the form of contract hereinafter set out shall be obligatory, and that the two months' notice required in Clause 10 shall be obligatory, and also that in contracts falling within sub-section (d) of the barring clauses the conditions relating to variation of times as mentioned in Rule 2 shall also be obligatory.

ARTISTES.

FUTURE CONTRACTS (MODEL).

WHEREAS attention has been called to differences which have arisen or may be likely to arise from the terms and conditions hitherto used in certain contracts and request has been made that a contract for ordinary use by theatres of varieties in London and the Provnces should be drafted in order that uniformity should as far as practicable be obtained, and that difficulties and discrepancies should hereafter be avoided, and that the said contract should form a model for future contracts between managements and artistes, with such proper alterations and additions as may be suitable for particular localities or circumstances, I hereby append the following form of contract drafted with the above purpose and object for the use and guidance of managements and artistes.

FORM OF CONTRACT.

AN AGREEMENT made the day of 190 BETWEEN hereinafter called the Management on the one part and hereinafter called the Artiste of the other part WITNESSETH that the Management hereby engages the Artiste and the Artiste accepts an engagement to appear as (or in his usual entertainment) every evening at the theatres and from the dates for the periods and at the salaries stated in the First Schedule hereto subject to the said theatres being in the occupancy and possession of the Management and upon and subject to the undermentioned conditions.

1. The word "Artiste" shall when more than one is included in the performance include the plural.

2. The Artiste agrees to appear at any Matinees required by the Management and shall be paid at the rate of one-seventh of the weekly salary in one show a night houses and one-twelfth in two shows a night houses for each Matinee.

3. Where this contract relates to a partnership, troupe, or sketch, the Artiste shall at the time when the contract is signed furnish the Management in writing with such names as the Management may require and shall not substitute a performer for a person so named without the written consent of the Management.

4. The Artiste may be transferred during the whole or any part of the engagement (not less than one week) to any other theatre owned or controlled by or associated with the Management, with the consent of the Artiste, such consent not to be unreasonably withheld. If such transfer is made in the Provinces reasonable expenses shall be allowed.

5. Barring Clause.

Upon breach of (any of) the barring clauses the Artiste shall pay to the management as liquidated damages one week's salary for each breach thereof but nothing in this clause shall affect the right of the Management to apply for an injunction to restrain the Artiste from performing or rehearsing in breach of the said clauses nor the right to determine the contract.

6. The Artiste shall not infringe any copyright patent or other proprietary rights of third parties and in the event of infringement shall be liable for and on demand pay the amount of all damages penalties and costs incurred by the Management.

The Artiste shall not give or permit to be given any colourable imitation or version of his performance within the radius or time prescribed by the barring clauses.

7. In case the artiste shall, except through illness certified as hereinafter provided, or accident proved to the satisfaction of the Management, fail to perform at any performance, he shall pay to the Management as, and for liquidated damages, a sum equal to the sum which the Artiste would have received for such performance, in addition to costs and expenses incurred by the Management through the default of the Artiste.

When the management own or control two theatres in any provincial town, the Artiste shall act as deputy in cases of emergency upon request, and be paid at the rate of

8. The Artiste undertakes that his performance shall not be dangerous to the Artistes, Audience, or Stage Employees. If any accident or injury results from the performance of the Artiste, the Artiste shall pay for any loss, damage, or costs incurred by the Management.

9. The Management shall not be liable to the Artiste or to the legal personal representative of the Artiste for any loss, damage, or injury to the Artiste's person or property during, or in connection with, the engagement, unless caused by the negligence of the Management.

10. The Artiste shall not assign, mortgage, or charge his salary, nor permit the same to be taken in execution. No salary shall be paid for days upon which the theatre is closed by reason of national mourning, fire, epidemic, strikes, lockouts, disputes with employees, or order of the licensing or any public authority. No salary shall be payable for any performance at which an Artiste may not appear through illness or his own default, nor provided that two months' previous notice has been given to the Artiste for days upon which the theatre is closed for alterations, decorations, repairs, or any cause which the Management may reasonably consider adequate.

11. The Artiste agrees to observe and carry out conditions and regulations imposed by statute, the London County Council, or other public authority, and to comply with the requirements of any public authority, that scenery and properties used by the Artiste shall be non-flammable. All flammable material brought into the theatre by the Artiste may be required to be made non-flammable by him, or at his expense, by the Management.

12. The Artiste declares that at the time of signing this contract he is under no engagement with any other Management that can preclude him from fulfilling the engagements shown herein, and that he has not concealed any change of professional name or description.

13. The Rules and Regulations subjoined shall be read and construed as forming part of this Contract, and the Artiste agrees to abide by all reasonable rules which may from time to time be made by the Management for the good and orderly conduct or special requirements of their theatres, provided that the rules shall have been served on or brought to the notice of the Artiste.

14. Upon the breach by the Artiste of any of the terms and conditions in this contract, or of Rules 1 to 10, the Management, without prejudice to other remedies, and in addition to rights given under the terms and conditions aforesaid, or the rules may forthwith determine this Contract, and the Artiste shall have no claim upon them for salary (other than a proportion for performances played), expenses, costs, or otherwise.

The same provision shall apply upon breach by any member of a troupe or company if not remedied after complaint by the Management.

15. Any notices under this Contract may be served upon the Artiste by posting the same to his last known address, or to the agent through at any theatre in the manner specified in rule 11.

16. The Management may by notice in writing, to be given before the termination of this engagement, re-engage the artiste once subject to any engagements existing at the date hereof, to appear at any of the theatres herein mentioned for a like period not exceeding weeks, to commence not later than 18 months subsequent to the date of the notice, and the Artiste shall, if so required, perform accordingly upon the same terms as in this Contract.

17. If the artiste's performance is contrary to law or is objected to by any licensing or other public authority this contract may be cancelled by the management.

If the management be threatened with legal proceedings in respect thereto the contract may be cancelled unless the artiste forthwith provides indemnity to the satisfaction of the management.

18. Matter for billing, programmes, and advertisement, and the words of all songs must be sent to at days before opening.

SCHEDULE.

Week at commencing at the salary of per week.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

1. The Artiste shall attend Rehearsals if required at the places and times notified by the management.

2. The Artiste shall be present in the theatre not less than five minutes before.

The Artiste may be put on ten minutes later than the specified time and if required must do the whole of his performance. The Management may vary the times specified for appearance at their discretion on or before Friday in the week previous to the performance but not later, unless the time can be varied without unreasonable interference with times at any other theatre.

3. In the event of an Artiste being unable to perform through illness, a medical certificate must be sent immediately to the Management at the Theatre setting forth the nature of the illness and that the Artiste is unable to appear. If the Artiste is prevented by illness or from any cause whatever from performing on the first night or for three consecutive nights the engagement may either be determined or be treated as postponed to such date as the Management decide, subject to engagements entered into by the Artiste.

4. The Artiste giving expression to any vulgarity or words having a double meaning or using any objectionable gesture when on the stage shall be liable to instant dismissal and if dismissed shall forfeit the salary for the current week. Any question under this clause to be decided by the management whose decision shall be final and binding on the artiste.

5. Any artiste being in the theatre in a state of intoxication may be fined one week's salary or dismissed.

6. Artistes shall not address the audience except in the regular course of the performance nor interfere in any manner with other artistes or employees nor go into the front of the house without permission.

7. Singers shall, if required, sing at least three songs at each performance. The management may prohibit the whole or any part of the performance which they consider unsuitable or displeasing to the audience and in the case of songs may require a copy to be forwarded for approval days before a song is to be sung and no variation will be permitted from words so approved.

The artiste agrees to produce new or revert to any old song, sketch or business on the reasonable request of the management, and to provide suitable dresses and properties.

8. Artistes must respond to encores or not as the management shall reasonably direct.

9. No naked lights shall be carried or matches used, nor any lighting apparatus interfered with by the artiste. Artistes shall not bring into the theatre combustible or explosive materials without the written permission of the management.

10. Smoking is strictly prohibited in dressing rooms or anywhere in proximity to the stage.

11. The artiste must furnish the hall-keeper with his address and while performing at any threatre notice shall be sufficiently served if sent to such address or if no address is furnished by deposit in the place for deposit of letters at the theatre.

12. The management shall have the sole right to determine the position of the artiste's name, the size and nature of the type, and the description of the turn on bills, programmes and advertisements.

13. No person not employed at the theatre shall go behind the scenes without permission.

FUTURE CONTRACTS (BARRING CLAUSES).

Whereas it has been customary in contracts for engagement of artistes to insert clauses commonly known as "barring clauses" restricting appearance of artistes within specified areas and for long periods of time before, during, and after engagements and whereas evidence has been tendered before me upon all points referring to the said clauses and I have carefully weighed and considered the same and the requirements for the welfare of the industry as a whole and its just and proper conduct and deem it expedient that maximum restrictions should be declared I award the following in respect of future contracts :—

(a) The barring of theatres of varieties for a period after the termination of any engagement, except for not more than two weeks after the termination of an engagement in provincial towns, is abolished.

(b) In contracts made by a management for the performance of an artiste, either with or without an option to renew, at a West End treatre of varieties, i.e., a theatre situated within a radius of one mile from Charing Cross on the northern bank of the Thames, to the entire exclusion of any other theatre of varieties the termsa nd conditions, including extension and re-engagement, shall be such as may be agreed between the parties.

If a management shall contract with an artiste for an engagement of at least £40 per week, the artiste consenting to perform concurrently at two theatres either (1) both, now open, in the West End, both now open, such contract may include conditions that the artiste can be barred from performing at other theatres not making exclusive contracts and situated within a radius of four miles from Charing Cross and (or) within a radius of two miles from the outside theatre specified in the contract, for a period of nine months prior to the performance of the artiste, and from performing at theatres giving exclusive contracts and situated within the said radius of four miles and (or) within a radius of two miles from the outside theatre specified in the contract for a period of eight months prior to the performance.

(c) In contracts made by a management for the performance of an artiste, either with or without an option to renew, at a theatre outside the West End but within the Metropolitan Police District to the entire exclusion of any other theatre of varieties the terms and conditions shall be such as may be agreed between the parties, except that no artiste shall be barred prior to appearance beyond a radius of two miles nor within such radius of two miles nor within such radius for a longer period than fifteen months.

(d) In all other contracts made by management for the performance of an artiste within the Metropolitan Police district the terms and conditions shall be such as may be agreed between the parties, except that as to contracts made for performance at theatres of varieties situated within the West End no artiste shall be barred prior to appearance (a) beyond a radius of one mile nor (b) within such radius for a longer period than four months, and as to contracts made for performance at theatres of varieties situated outside the West End but within the Metropolitan Police district no artiste shall be barred prior to appearance (a) beyond a radius of two miles nor (b) within such radius for a longer period than eight months.

(e) In contracts made by a mangement for the performance of an artiste in the provinces, i.e., outside the Metropolitan Police district, the terms and conditions shall be such as may be agreed between the parties, provided that no artiste shall be barred from performing prior to appearance (a) beyond a radius of ten miles nor (b) within such radius for a longer period than fifteen months, except that no town shall be barred which has a population of more than 70,000 inhabitants (according to the A.B.C. Railway Guide) and is situated beyond a radius of six miles.

(f) In the contracts mentioned in the above subsections, excepting sub-section (e), if the period between the date of the contract and the performance exceeds the period of bar the management may insert a provision in the said contract requiring the artiste during such period of excess before accepting an engagement at another theatre within the barred area to offer his services to the management on the terms mentioned in the said contract, and thereupon the management shall accept such offer in writing and specify the theatre for the performance within a week, or be deemed to have refused the same.

(g) Artiste includes troupe, company, partnership, or other combination of two or more performers, and the word theatre, when used in relation to barring clauses, shall be deemed to include theatres, theatres of varieties, music-halls, clubs, concerts, or other places of entertainment.

FUTURE DISPUTES.

In the event of any dispute arising hereafter no strike or stoppage of work shall take place, and if any change be desired in the rules and conditions hereinbefore declared six calendar months' notice in writing must be given either by managements or artistes, such notice to expire on 30th June in any year (except that neither side shall give such notice prior to 1st January, 1912), and shall state clearly the nature of such alteration and the reasons therefor and the theatres affected thereby. The party receiving the notice shall have the right of replying to it within two calendar months within one calendar month of the said counter-two artistes shall meet together and endeavour to come to an unanimous understanding before 30th June, failing which both parties shall refer the question to arbitration. A party upon receiving notice as hereinbefore specified may within seven days demand that a like notice shall be served on any other managements whom he shall deem to be affected, and upon such demand notice shall be served forthwith upon such other managements and shall be deemed to have been served on the 1st January.

In the event of no understanding being arrived at between the parties affected, the question, in accordance with agreement now come to, shall be referred for final determination to me, or, failing me, to another agreed arbitrator, or, failing agreement, to an arbitrator appointed by the Board of Trade. Upon such reference each party shall as a condition precedent to arbitration deposit the sum of £20 with the arbitrator, who may out of such sum award costs to either party. The decision of the arbitrator shall be final and binding on the parties.

MUSICIANS.

Provinces.—A local dispute at Leicester having been decided by me in the course of the proceedings, I award and declare that no dispute exists at the present time in the provinces requiring my adjudication.

London.—Minimum wage. I award and declare that in existing theatres of varieties where the average wages of the musicians, exclusive of the conductor, in the first full week of January, 1907, amounted to less than thirty shillings per week per musician, exclusive of matinees, there shall henceforth be paid at such theatres a minimum wage of thirty shillings per week to all musicians, except drummers; drummers, twenty-eight shillings.

In all theatres and in new theatres commencing during the continuance of this award the minimum wage to be paid to all musicians, except drummers, per week for evening work shall be thirty-two shillings; drummers, thirty shillings.

Matinees.—Matinees in all theatres of varieties in London shall be paid for at a rate of not less than five shillings in one show a night houses per matinee, and three shillings in two show a night houses per matinee.

Ordinary rehearsals are included in the salary paid, as formerly. Special rehearsals are to be paid for extra at sums to be agreed between the management and musicians.

I make no order with regard to deputies or with regard to any other claims on behalf of musicians.

EMPLOYEES.

(1) Provinces.

No proposals for alteration or change on behalf of the Employees (stage hands, etc.) in provincial theatres of varieties was brought before me and I award and declare that no dispute exists at the present time in the provinces requiring my adjudication.

2. London. Minmum rate of pay. Daymen.

Assistants employed during the day in addition to evening work in the stage, including flies, properties, etc., assistant electricians, lime-light or gas men to be paid a minimum of 27s. 6d. per week, exclusive of overtime.

OVERTIME.

All work done after twelve (midnight) to 7 a.m. or on Sundays, Good Fridays, or Christmas Days to be paid for at the rate of elevenpence per hour.

Nightmen.—Including all those engaged for stage work during a performance.

DUTIES.

To be the setting and striking of the scenery the operation of lights used and the general stage work during the performance, and the clearing of the stage after the last item on the programme not later than midnight.

MINIMUM RATE OF PAY.

In one-show-a-night houses 2s. per performance and 2s. for each matinee of the present average duration.

A special performance exceeding the usual duration of a matinee or evening performance to be paid extra.

In two-shows-a-night houses, 2s. 3d. per night, and 1s. 6d. for each matinee of the present average duration.

REHEARSALS.

Nightmen for rehearsals between 7 a.m. and 12 p.m., 7d. per hour, with a minimum of 1s. 9d., and for rehearsals after 12 p.m. (midnight), on Sundays, Good Fridays, or Christmas Days, 11d. per hour.

All men employed for rehearsals to be paid from the time of the call, if on duty.

CARPENTERS.

Bench hands. The rate of pay to be 10½d. per hour, or the London rate.

Carpenters to work 8½ hours before charging overtime.

OVERTIME. On week days from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. time and a half; from 8 o'clock p.m. to 7 o'clock a.m. next morning, double time. After 1 o'clock Saturdays and on Christmas Day, Good Friday and Sundays double time to be paid.

Two hours grinding money to be allowed on finish of a job after working 48 hours. Carpenters to give two hours' notice on leaving after working 48 hours. Carpenters to give two hours notice on leaving after working 48 hours.

OTHER DEPARTMENTS OR EMPLOYEES.

Minimum wages for stage managers (stage foremen), 36s. per week.

Minimum wage for electricians (switchboard attenuants) 30s. per week.

HOURS The same as for daymen.

OVERTIME. All work done after twelve (midnight) to 7 a.m. or on Sunday, Good Friday, or Christmas Day to be paid for at the rate of 1s. and 11d. per hour respectively.

NOTE. The variety in the extent of electrical knowledge and skill in dealing with electrical appliances required for different theatres of varieties is so large that no dividing line between electricians (qualified switchboard attendants) and electricians paid under the title of chief electricians or master eletricians can be fixed for the purpose of gradation of minimum wage, and in my opinion no minimu mwage for such chief or master electricians is required, and I make no order in regard to them.

MUSICIANS AND EMPLOYEES (FUTURE DISPUTES).

(1). In the event of any question arising as to whether the award is being observed or not, it has been agreed that such question shall be referred to me, or, failing me, to another arbitrator to be appointed by the Board of Trade, for decision and upon any decision that the award has not been observed, and neglect to comply with the order thereupon made, the persons aggrieved shall have liberty of action to take such course as they shall deem fit, or as the arbitrator shall direct.

(2). Any proposal for the alteration of any of the rules, regulations, and rates fixed after this enquiry, and specified in this award, shall be subject to not less than three months' notice, to expire on March 31st or September 30th in any year, stating the alterations proposed and the grounds therefor, and such proposal, if made in 1908, shall state the changed circumstances which would justify such reopening, and it has been agreed, shall be examined and stated by me to be satisfactory, before such reopening is allowed. Upon notice being given under this clause, the procedure laid down in the following clause shall be followed.

(3). For the adjustment of all future disputes, and to avoid stoppage of work, any difference arising between managements and their musicians or employees shall be first considered by the parties concerned and (or) their authorised representatives, and in the event of no agreement within a period of three months shall be referred to three persons, two to be appointed by the parties and one by the General Federation of Trade Unions and if such persons shall not be able to meet, or do not agree upon a decision within one month, it has been agreed that such differences shall be referred to me, or, failing me, to another arbitrator to be appointed by the Board of Trade, whose decision shall be final and binding.

4. Upon any difference being referred to me or to another arbitrator as aforesaid, it has been agreed that both parties shall, as a precedent to arbitration, deposit the sum of £20 each with the arbitrator who may out of such sum award costs to either party.

This award shall come into operation one month from the date hereof.

AND I FURTHER AWARD AND DECLARE that with regard to the whole of this award any questions upon the construction or interpretation shall be referred to me for decision.

AS WITNESS MY HAND this fourteenth day of June, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Seven.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The Sorrows of Satan is the play for the week. Mr. Hoffman gives a powerful representation of the part of Prince Lucio Rimancz, and Miss Hilda Shirley plays very skilfully as Lady Sibyl Elton. Miss Marion Fawcett shows much talent in her portraiture of Diana Chesney; Mr. Herbert Hollister as the Earl of Elton, Mr. Hilliard Vox as Geoffrey Tempest, and Mr. H. P. Owen as Viscount Lynton all act most capably; and the parts of Mrs. Mardum by Miss Brandon Gower, Miss Fitzroy by Miss Julia St. George, and Mavis Clare by Miss M. Maynard, are also remarkably well done.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The two Dents—Fanny and Harry—play very cleverly an amusing sketch, Mary and the Squire; and another admirable turn is provided by the Wakeman Quartette, a combination showing remarkable musical ability. The versatile Bandoni, "the one-man orchestra," is exceptionally popular; and Piece and Riwost keep the house in a continuous state of merriment by their drollery. Miss Lily Stewart is a graceful comedienne and dancer; Stidder and Dunbar most agreeably blend music and comedy; Mr. Jack Ramsay is a resourceful comedian; and Copeland and Son are unrivalled as clog-dancers. A new pictorial series, "The Race for the Derby," is shown by Vernon's Bioscope.

ALDERSHOT. — HIPPODROME. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Gladwin.—A well-arranged and attractive bill is provided here. Dick Cruickshank and Co. are seen in an absurdity, Bridget's Idea; Adelina as a facialist impersonates many celebrities; Miss Belle Ray sings with excellent results to limelight illustrations; the Danbys prove themselves versatile comedians; Mr. T. Cliffe dances and sings; Little Vio Lette is a clever young artist in singing and male impersonation; and last, but not least, is La Vivandiere, a capital version, in four scenes, of "Under Two Flags," Miss Isabel Derrie giving a clever portrayal of Cigarette; others who also do well are Mr. D. Cruickshank, Miss O'Neile, Miss Tess Florence, and Mr. Geo. Vincent.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—This week's bill is provided by Adrian Hill and Robert Ayrton's company, with A Gambler's Daughter, mounted with special scenery. Mr. Robert Ayrton sustains with dramatic skill the part of Desmond O'Dare; and Miss Adria Hill gives two finished portrayals of Mildred and Miriam Grant, mother and daughter. Mr. Richard Pitt as John Grant gives a vivid interpretation of the cunning and ferocious nature of the man.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—This week's programme includes Barton and Trent, in their original eccentric musical comedy act. Pete and Minnie Lee, with some amusing business in a song-scena; Harwood's Juveniles, in A Children's Christmas Eve; The Enimell Comedy Company, with My Statue of Grace, cleverly interpreted by Miss Adèle Levey, Mr. Fred Heming, and Miss Jeannie Watson; the Sisters Wilfred, duettists and dancers; and Wee Mona Vivian, the favourite child actress and dancer. The chief item of the programme is a realistic representation of the lake of Killarney, a real masterpiece of stagecraft, which absorbs thirty minutes in production. We have also The Colleen Bawn, with suitable scenic equipment, enacted ably by Misses Ida Millais, Alice Brunnette, Messrs. H. Herne, Jno. Forman, C. F. Young, and Matthew Corry. The Water Cave is a real lake.

ATTERCLIFFE.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. E. Owen.—A programme of all-round excellence here this week is headed by the Royal Tokio troupe of Japanese, who give a remarkable performance of top-spinning and feet-balancing; a popular turn is that of Picitt and Lizette, in an illusionary scena, The Crazy Cook; Mr. Dick Bradley is most amusing as a tramp cyclist; the Sisters Hypatia, in pretty costumes, sing nicely and dance gracefully; Mr. E. C. Clayton, with his Attergraph pictures, is well received; Mr. T. C. Edwards, the Australian baritone, has a good reception; Mint and Mart are to the fore as comedy-sketch artists, a fine exhibition of paper-tearing being given by the lady; and Mr. Billy Dewey, coloured comedian, wins deserved applause both for his singing and dancing.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. James Hare's company, in A Destroyer of Men, is here. Mr. Hare plays well as Karl Mischla; Mr. C. P. Wentworth is satisfactory as the villain, Count Starevitch; and the Fedor Strellitzke of Mr. Charles Coventry is praiseworthy. Miss Irene Clifford as Olga Mischla gives a fine character study; Miss Jessie Yatman is a pleasing Vida Ravel; and Miss Alice Buckland as Nina Pattakake, and Mr. Ross Warren as Coco Tatchoski are acceptably humorous.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar Laban.—Fred Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford, in their breezy farcical comedy, Getting Even, are very well received. George Fife, comedian, Geo. Prince, the crazy comic, and the Sisters Cusselli, duettists and expert dancers, all give good turns. Bert Williams is a capital ventriloquist, and Miss Maud Cherry a pleasing eerio comedienne; while Barnard's Mannikens, wooden actors, proves an interesting and pleasing item.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Kennedy's Komiks look very smart in their pierrot costumes, and the scene, which depicts Blackpool's Eiffel Tower, is enhanced by numerous electric light bulbs. Mr. Nat Abbott's laugh is still infectious; Mr. Clarence Turner, "fra' Lancashire," has grown more popular, and his "Walk round, Sammy," scores every time. Mr. Victor Verney cleverly imitates the nightingale. An exceedingly clever tramp wire walker and an interesting display of animated pictures are among other items in the evening's entertainment.

BELFAST.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Apollo's remarkable feats of strength have caused quite a sensation. Mr. Lempriere Pringle and Mr. J. C. Piddock appear with great success in their operatic episode, entitled The Romany King. Mr. Alfred Lester, assisted by Miss Florence Wakeman, creates much amusement with his restaurant episode; Mr. Fred Neiman's ventriloquial sketch is an acquisition to any programme; and nothing but praise must be accorded Colby and May, The Ventriloquist and the Doll, for their decidedly clever act. Also appearing are Farr and Farland, Leah Arden, Mike Cray, and the attractive Palace pictures.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Mr. John Tiller's company provides plenty of enjoyment with their exhilarating piece, A Trip to Paris. A hit of no small magnitude has been made by Chanti, the celebrated quick-change artist. The Waldrons create much laughter with their comedy sketch, and Mr. Barney Stuart's character impersonations reflect much credit on this capable actor. The Three Sisters Lee please with their vocalism and dancing; and the new pictures exhibited by the Hipposcope are certainly most entertaining. Also appearing are Miss Nellie Moore, character impersonator; Margutta, in speciality act, and Miss Madge Allan, vocalist and dancer.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Gaumont's Chronomegaphone gives a faithful representation of Mr. Harry Lauder's voice in the several songs identified with his name. Mr. Lew Lake, Mr. Fred Lawrance and company create such amusement with their comedy drama, My Landlord; and a welcome return visit is being paid by Mr. J. W. Rickaby. Mueller and Coyne delight all with their smart comedy number; and the New York Nippers, in Bed Time, provide a most entertaining act. Miss Nellie Martell is a capital comedienne and dancer; and praise is also due to Miss Babs Lloyd, comedienne and dancer, and the Bioscope.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Sinclair Neill.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company, directed by Mr. M. Montgomery, are presenting this week the powerful drama, Queen of the Night. Mr. Horace Denton has been most successful in his treatment of the rôle of Frank Featherstone; and Miss Nina Blake-Adams deserves much praise for her delightful impersonation of Maude Sylvester. Mr. Cyril Grier could not easily be excelled as Old Briskett; and Miss Kathleen Magee acquits herself with distinction as Paulina. Mr. Elmore Frith gains much approval for his impersonation of David Pentreath; and Mr. Tom H. Solly is delightfully droll as Adolphus Briskett. Mr. Edward M. Heanley's realistic impersonation of Philip Stoneleigh gains loud execrations; and Miss Dora Bishop distinguishes herself by her clever impersonation of Mary Pentreath. Miss Alice Clarke was eminently satisfactory as Mrs. Briskett; and Miss Mattie Crawford could hardly be excelled as Kitty White. Mr. Ed. Smythe was quite capable as Jack Trent; and other rôles were adequately sustained by Messrs. J. E. Davies and T. Moselle. Mr. Tom H. Solly was responsible for the stage management. The Alhambra Bioscope, under the direction of Mr. W. E. Newlove, exhibits a fine picture, entitled "A Square Deal."

BILSTON.—AL-FRESCO PAVILION.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby.—Although performances have had to be given temporarily in the theatre building adjoining, owing to stormy weather, the attendance so far has been very satisfactory. The regular entertainers, under the title of "Imperial Pierrots," have been supplemented by W. H. Whiteman, tenor vocalist, and Otto Ethardo, the juggler.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Miss Go-Won-Go Mohawk's American company is on a return visit with Wep-Ton-No-Mah. Miss Go-Won-Go Mohawk repeats her powerful and picturesque rendering of the Indian mail-carrier and C. W. Charles is unexceptionable as Colonel Stockton. The rather up-hill rôle of Manuel Lopes is well played by Mr. Edward Leroy; Miss Bessie Frank is an interesting Nellie Stockton; and Mr. Dan Ryan a capital Garry Cullen.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—The Kellinos, in their musical and acrobatic entertainment, A Fête in Venice, are a leading feature. Cruikshank, comedian and instrumentalist is also a favourite turn; and an excellent combination also includes Sid Doody and Edie Wright, versatile comedians; Mr. Jack Pleasant, with some capital comic songs; Miss Ida Brophy, comedienne; Mr. Walter Emerson, comedian; Miss Crissie Cross, comedienne; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BIRMINGHAM.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo.—My Sweetheart is playing to packed houses nightly, Mr. Collingwood's enterprise—this being the only theatre in the city remaining open—thus meeting with its just reward. Mr. Sidney Spenser's company is responsible, Miss Lizzie Hall, as the artless Tina, winning great applause with her captivating style and appearance. Miss Ada Champion as the adventuress, Mrs. Fleeter, is very effective; Miss Mary Drummond gains many smiles as Mrs. Hatzell; and Miss Olive Downs is pleasing as Peek-a-Boo. Mr. Edward Rawlinson enjoys the utmost popularity in his clever and quaint portrayal of the simple-hearted Tony; Mr. Wilson Coleman acts with fine dramatic ability as the scheming Harold Bartlett; Mr. Sydney Spenser as the "old sport," Joe Shotwell, makes his appearances the signal for uproarious mirth; and Messrs. Frank Wilson, J. F. Traynor, Newton Turner, and the Misses Lillie Smith and Violet Fielding do well.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Kennedy's Komiks continue to score here, this entertainment having, since its former introduction, made wonderful progress both in popularity and ability. This week the company includes Dan Noble, who is really very good; Harker and Wentworth, in a most entertaining turn; Noble and Yorke, a clever and refined couple; Miss Dora Price, whose operatic selections are charming; Miss Josephine Townshend, who contributes much to the enjoyment of the programme; the Sisters Deare, in a smart military scena; Mr. David Hallam, whose efforts are well rewarded; and the electric animated pictures, in which the pathetic as well as the comic and novel is well distributed.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—The Nihilist is presented here by an excellent company, for which Messrs. Silverstone, Wright, and Belton are responsible. Mr. Felix Pitt comes in for chief notice as Ivan Nowasky, the efforts of this sound and experienced actor, as usual, commanding admiration; Mr. Carl Rovenelli simulates the villain admirably as Prince Alexander; Mr. Kenyon Gray shows clever acting qualities as Karl Orloff; Mr. O. Silverstone makes a most interesting rôle of Petoff; and Messrs. Morgan Richards, Edward Dowds, and James Hamilton support. The acting of Miss Florrie Kelsey as Alexina is remarkable for its charm; Miss Mary Dawson displays fine talent and tact as Princess Olga; Miss Jessica Ford is a vivacious Katrina, and Mr. Harry Wright shares in the popularity as Bobbie.

EMPIRE PALACE. — Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matchan.—A leading feature in the bill at the Empire is a sketch of a sensational character, entitled The Storm, based on a tragic story, which is well told by Percy Murray and company. Launceston Elliott, the "British Hercules," displays his wonderful strength; Dusty Rhodes is very successful in his droll doings; Donaldson Brothers and Ardell present a funny comedy, entitled A Zoological Comedy; Arthur Aldridge is a fine tenor; and Ross and Lewis, the Yankee duo; Gladys Mavius, the Canadian girl; David Stewart, baritone; and W. H. Ashcroft complete an enjoyable programme.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Tom Graves, in a remarkable cycling feat, easily heads the bill this week. Other turns include the American Comedy Four, in part songs; the Gladenbecks, in a ring act; Stelling and Revell, acrobatic comedians; Sid Cotterell and company in the sketch, entitled The Substitute; Harry Marte, in a dancing act; Dale and O'Malley, comedians; and Gus Harris, Hebrew delineator.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Heading the bill this week is an exceedingly humorous sketch, entitled The Suffragettes, presented by Freddie French's company. Clown Barker's Comedy Circus is very quaint; George D'Albert enjoys much popularity; Tennyson and Wallis are extremely funny as cross-talkers; and the same may be said of Stacey and Williams; Hartelli is amazing in his wire act; there is something that is clever as well as funny in the trampolin acrobatic work of Tate and Tate; and Osborn and Brooks, Dan Thomas, and Frank Cass are also responsible for capable turns.

BORDESLEY PALACE. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Mariedl, who is 9ft. high, and weighs 390lb., is the big attraction here. Philip Reid and Percy Ford present a military sketch, entitled A Test of Friendship; the Three Sisters Jonghmann obtained a number of encores by their singing; J. Alexander and company, in Brown in Paris, and James Stewart, "the tramp at the piano," receive their share of applause; and Daisy Mayer and Mark Merry wind up an excellent entertainment.

BOTANICAL GARDENS, EDGBASTON.—Mr. F. R. Benson's (North) company appeared here this week in a series of delightful pastoral plays. On Monday evening and Wednesday afternoon As You Like It revealed a charming Rosalind in Miss Dorothy Green; the Orlando of Mr. Frank Darch was full of the romance of the part, and Mr. Gerald Ames as the Duke, Mr. Ross Shore as Touchstone, Mr. Henry Herbert as Jacques, and Miss Louise Graeme as Celia, among others, gave creditable performances. On Wednesday evening The Merry Wives of Windsor showed Mr. Henry Herbert to fine advantage as Falstaff; Mesdames Dorothy Green and Mary Webb acquitted themselves of the respective rôles of Mistress Ford and Mistress Page with clever cajolery; and Messrs. Gerald Ames, Philip Merivale, Esme Filmer, E. Spencer Geach, Frank Darch, and the Misses Louise Graeme and Rosa Burgess contributed well to the success. Much Ado About Nothing on Tuesday afternoon, and Twelfth Night in the evening, completed the series, which has been attended by fairly propitious weather and good "houses."

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—The principal turn this week is the miniature musical comedy, A King for a Day, played by Messrs. Sidney Dooley and Charles Seymour's capable company. Other artists are Maidie Scott, comedienne; Les Zelovas, acrobats; Sisters Kilner, duettists; Oakdene, ventriloquist; Webb and Branston, operatic duettists, and Queenie Essex, comedienne.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. Allan Wilkie and company are here. The Merchant of Venice was carefully presented on Monday night, when Mr. Wilkie submitted a very painstaking performance of Shylock, and Miss Carrie Baille elicited applause by her admirable impersonation of Portia. Mr. G. Alexander Marsh's Antonia was also a meritorious performance, and Miss F. Hunter Watts played Jessica very satisfactorily. Romeo and Juliet was Tuesday's attraction, Mr. Wilkie contenting himself with the part of Friar Laurence, and Mr. Marsh playing Romeo.

GRAND THEATRE. — Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—The Ring of Iron is played by Messrs. Ralland and Sergenson's company. Mr. C. B. Vaughan very ably portrays Sir John Graham, and Mr. J. Herbert Beaumont is well suited to the part of Wilfrid Meredith. The wronged heroine is charmingly and sympathetically presented by Miss Mary Anton Laing; whilst Miss Ada Marius contributes a creditable impersonation of Nancy Drake.

PALACE.— General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Fred Karno's comedians in their pantomimical burlesque, entitled Jail Birds and Early Birds, evoke roars of applause. The Brothers Leslie supply a very clever musical turn, and R. H. Douglas scores as a monologue entertainer; the Olmars are clever acrobats, Little Cliff is a favourite boy comedian, Florence Schubert finds favour as a burlesque actress, Harry Bedford is a quaint comedian, and the Ramlos are expert gymnasts.

NORTH PIER.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. James Walker.—Mr. Ernest Hastings contributes several humorous sketches with his well-known ability; Mr. Owen McGiveney is a successful impersonator of Dickens' characters, and Mr. Bridge Peters enjoys a high reputation as a baritone vocalist. The orchestra is again under the conductorship of Professor Speelman, now for the twenty-fifth consecutive year.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Chung Ling Soo, the marvellous Chinese magician, supported by a strong company of variety artists, has fulfilled a most successful engagement here; Lena Wylie, Scotch vocalist, has a pleasing voice; Arthur Albert also renders some excellent numbers; Burns and Bentley, a pair of mirth-provokers, deserve praise; Caroze and Keeth present a fine comedy and juggling act; Norah Bremner is a finished dancer; George Westland, Scotch comedian, scores a hit; Billy Richardson, the stump orator, is well received; the Marros, in their comedy triple bar act, win applause; and Slippere, the blind wonder, is a clever instrumentalist.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Tudor.—Pictures by the New Bioscope Co., of London, have proved attractive here. The variety company includes Percy Curry, Tyneside comedian; Lille Carrick, comedienne and dancer; Gipsy Ann and her fortune-telling dog; and Mlle. Rosini and her miniature menagerie.

BOLTON.—GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Mr. Charles Draycott and his company are appearing in The Stolen Birthright. Mr. Charles Draycott undertakes the difficult part of Count Marco Taddeo, and Miss Muriel Thompson that of Princess Mirando. Other characters are capably filled. The play is followed by the sensational Bret Harte episode, entitled Madge, and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE. — MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—Mr. F. H. Neville and company are here in The Trail of Sin. As Philip Meredith, Mr. John Soden gives a fine performance, anod Miss Ella Forest is a sympathetic Estelle Meredith. Mr. F. H. Neville supplies a powerful rendering of Nan Vedder; Miss Evie Conway sings and dances prettily as Anita; much fun is created by Mr. J. Scarth as Joe Jorum, and Miss Doris Cameron is a dainty Polly Lockwood.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—A great attraction is here this week in the person of Miss Kate Carney, with her company in Liza Johnson. Miss Carney received a most gratifying reception, being recalled many times; the Martine Brothers execute some clever somersaults, and also give a comedy acrobatic display. Kisby, "the call boy," submits a humorous burlesque of variety turns; the Paolias exhibit a series of classical poses; Polly Gerome is a neat and clever gymnast; Adey Spencer supplies an agreeable item; and the Hippodrome pictures include some good films.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. Ernest E. Norris presents here this week his own version of The Three Musketeers. Miss Vera Beringer gives a clever performance of Miladi; Mr. Norris himself is virile and interesting as the adventurous D'Artagnan; Miss Dorothy Chard plays Constance well; Miss Enid Ross is acceptable as Anne of Austria; Mr. E. S. Petley's Richelieu is cleverly drawn, and Messrs. Austen Melroy, C. Arthur Brown, and Harold Wagner picturesquely fill the rôles of Athos, Porthos, and Aramis.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—An excellent performance of Mr. Charles E. Clarke's interesting drama, A Broken Heart, is being presented here for the first time this week by Mr. Harry Foxwell's company. John Barnard is powerfully represented by Mr. John Clyde; Mary is played by Miss Vera Trevosper with fine effect; Mr. Scott Leighton leaves nothing to be desired as the unscrupulous Stephen Raylton; and as Gash Gills Mr. Charles Vivian is distinctly effective. Mrs. Harry Foxwell is particularly good in the dual rôle of the heiress who marries Raylton, and also an Irish landlady. Barnard's child is acceptably played by Miss Florrie Sorsby. Mr. W. Lindsay and Miss Nancy Mitchell relieve the serious situations by some good comedy.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Mr. John Lawson, who is supported by a capable company, is appearing here this week with much success in a finely-staged and thrilling society episode, viz., The King's Minister. The acting is excellent. The delightful entertainment by Belloni's cockatoos is again a much-appreciated feature; Frank Couch, comedian, is responsible for good patter; the graceful and clever juvenile acrobats, the Trapnell Family, are on a return visit; a fine character sketch is presented by Edwin Barwick, actor-vocalist; Kitty Marion, comedian, presents a bright turn; Frank Seeley's comedy is delightfully quaint; in his usual clever and humorous style Dome accomplishes his clay-modelling; Nellie Coleman's male character sketches are quaint and clever; and Lily Langtry, comedienne, appears again, bright and active as ever.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—An item of much interest here in an attractive programme is the Carnival Scena by Haley's juvenile company of smart dancers and vocalists. Daisy Davenport, comedienne, submits an acceptable turn; a very remarkable hoop trick is presented by Carl Rosine, a clever magician; warm applause greets the Satanella Trio in their Continental and acrobatic feats of dancing; R. C. Note is a good vocalist; Gladys Huxley, comedienne, is good and much in evidence; Roze and Calvert, who are favourites, are responsible for delightful comedy; and the Two Sparks, duettists and dancers; and Ramond's Bio-Tableaux complete the bill of fare.

BRIDLINGTON. — ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—A striking feature of the Promenade Concerts at this popular resort are the splendidly played pianoforte solos of Mr. Joseph Sainton, the talented conductor of the municipal orchestra.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Henry Hague.—Herr Simon Wurm and his orchestra continue to give great delight to the frequenters of the Spa.

SUMMER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs. Beanland, Beth, and Danton; Manager, Mr. Charles Beanland.—The feature of the programme this week is an amusing burlesque, Madame Samina's Orchestra, in which the company give a very amusing performance. Miss Nan Farren, a taking comedienne, is highly applauded for her talented contribution to the general programme.

BRIGHTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Mr. Carpenter's company is performing Her Wedding Day here this week to large audiences. Mr. Philip Darien submits a fine impersonation of the hero, Harold Saxby; and Miss Daisy Scudamore acquits herself admirably as the heroine, Madge Conway. Mr. Roy Redgrave, as the villainous Weedon Kenyon, presents a capital character-study; Miss Amy Venimore is seen to much advantage as Mme. Maurice; Mr. Ellis J. Preston is highly successful as Seth Mayson; and great amusement is afforded by Mr. Charles Preece (Mr. Caccles), Miss Lucy Murray (Mrs. Caccles), Miss May Day (Dolly Klink), and Mr. Arthur H. Hill (Sam Klink). The remaining characters are satisfactorily sustained.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—A capital programme is sustained here this week. Harry Tate's company achieves great success in the original concoction, Fishing; Binns and Binns, "the vagabonds," submit a pleasing medley of comedy and music; Bromley and Fontein are very entertaining in a vocal sketch; Charley Dixon is an eccentric comedian; Parker and Parr, Welsh comedy vocalists, are well received; Pueblo and Cropp, Creole speciality artists, win cordial applause; Maud Vera is a pleasing descriptive serio and coon artist; Henri Bekker, assisted by Mlle. Maie, gives an effective turn; Kate Lynd is a dainty comedienne; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—There is an excellent company here this week. Frank and Jen Latona win enthusiastic applause for their delightful comedy and music; Kelly and Gillette are highly successful in their billiard table act; H. La Martine is a capital vocalist and eccentric dancer; Bliss and Bliss are a pair of very droll comedians; Will Walton, comedian, is cordially received; Walter Wade is a clever comedian; Carlotta Levey sings in excellent style; Lillie Lassah, comedienne and dancer, gives a good turn; Harry Vardon is an entertaining ventriloquist; Lucy Coventry is a dainty comedienne and expert dancer; the Elgars are refined vocalists, and the Barrascope pictures are amusing.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—A London company, under the direction of Mr. Charles H. Williams, is here this week with The Night of the Party. Mr. Sebastian Smith gives a highly entertaining impersonation of Mr. Crosbie; Mr. Douglas Munro cleverly enacts the pompous Mr. Flambert; Mr. Percy Robinson is well suited as Mr. Raundle; and Mr. Stanley Arthur is very droll as Mr. Bogle. Mr. Frank H. Denton submits an admirable portrayal of Mr. Frank Fayne; Mr. Eric Forth's Sir Charles Hampshire and Miss Beatrice Mervin's Lady Hampshire are well played; Miss Florence French is forcible as Gipsy Vandelier; and Miss Lillian Williams makes a great hit as Paulina. Mr. Ernest Rivarz (Alderman Hargen) and Miss Marion Lewis (Mrs. Young) also merit praise.

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Mr. Fred Beck's company is here this week with Nicholas Nickleby, My Wife, and The Kiss in the Dark. In the school scenes from Nicholas Nickleby, Mr. J. E. Cowell, who has adapted them from Dickens' novel, gives a very clever representation of Mr. Squeers; Mr. Cyril Fairlie plays the part of Nicholas Nickleby effectively; Miss Emmie King is a pleasing Miss Squeers, and Mr. Fred Beck makes the most of his opportunities as Mr. Snawley. In My Wife, Mr. Beck achieves distinct success as Timothy Twitters.

BRISTOL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—Miss Winifred Maude's company, under the direction of Mr. Victor Du Cane, is here for the week with The Stowaway, the play being staged in a liberal manner. Miss Winifred Maude is in every way pleasing as Althea Dale; Miss Ethel Tinsley acts well as Florence Etherington; and Miss Jenny Hackett makes a capital part of Chucky. Mr. Victor Du Cane obtains applause for his impersonation of Dicky Dials; Mr. Vincent Carlyle is effective as Tom Inglis; Mr. William Bradford is consistent in the unpopular rôle of Charles Etherington; Mr. James Carson does well in the short part of Paul Inglis; Mr. Leonard Harrison is amusing as Percy Ewart; and Joe Hickey and Sandy Prowse have capable exponents in Mr. W. E. Simpson and Mr. Harry Johnson.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—The Casey Court company heads the bill successfully; Jock Whiteford, Scotch comedian, is decidedly clever, his turn being highly diverting; James Willard's sketch company score in The Little Wonder; Rose Elliott, a pleasing vocalist, obtains considerable applause; Jimmy Shields, one-legged comedian, dances cleverly; Sinclair and Parr, actor-vocalists, are appreciated; and Linton, equilibrist, is successful in a daring cable act. The performance concludes with animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—The Conn and Conrad company amuse with their speciality, Twentieth Century Burglars; Lazern does some smart conjuring; Perrette and Mona have a good speciality in Teasing the General; Florence and Lilian present a refined musical act; H. Scott Leslie is successful with his monologue, "Don't know, don't care"; Goodfellow and Gregson score with their song, patter, and dance; Venie Belfry, comedienne, is an acceptable vocalist; and Millie Engler, Louie Tinsley, and Fred Knight amuse with their sketch, Beauty and the Burglar. Animated pictures complete the bill.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—The idea of presenting two separate plays is proving a success. This week's plays are the spectacular drama Soldiers of the Queen, by Max Goldberg, and the musical farce The Caliph's Carnival. In the drama Mr. John F. Preston plays the part of Hans Müller; and the dual rôles of Capt. Richard Forrester and Ralph Forrester are well played by Mr. W. Howard Barlow. Miss Mabelle F. Barlow also sustains the characters of Grace Forrester and Dick Forrester. Mr. Robert Faulkner portrays the hero, Jack Willoughby, in fitting style; comedy is provided by Mr. Horace Custins, as Tom Pinch, and Miss Gertie Wasley as Mary Ann. Miss Laura Wright, Miss E. Rainforth, Mr. Walter D. Brodie, and Mr. Arthur Lenville give excellent support. In The Caliph's Carnival Mr. J. F. Preston is good as O'Sullivan Pasha; the Caliph is sustained by Mr. Arthur Lenville. Mr. Robert Faulkner (Mustapha), Miss Mabelle F. Barlow (Balkis), Miss Ethel Rainforth (Kissi Kassi), Mr. Horace Custins (Tommy), Miss Laura Wright (Polly), Mr. R. J. Webster (Cruso), and Miss Gertie Wasley (Mabel), and the other members combine to keep the house in roars. The music is catchy, and the staging is good.

BURNLEY.—EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Very clever is the performance of Les Martineks, with their inanimate rag doll act; "The Lost Chord" is charmingly rendered by the Four Jumels; Corman's Juveniles give some pleasing songs and dances; and Jeanette Hall, lady baritone, is greatly appreciated; Blarney and Kennard are funny patterers and songsters; Sterling and Cashen introduce some funny military comedy and dances; and Flo Warner, vocalist, is good. The Empire Theatroscope depicts a smart picture, "Police Dogs."

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE (HIPPODROME).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Manager, Mr. John Waller.—A novel entertainment is given here by the Tennessee Guards, a coloured troupe, who excel in military exercises; the Original Legleres submit a skilful acrobatic performance; the Gelders succeed in mystifying the audience by their clever conjuring tricks; humorous songs by Wallace Whitney and Beattie Foster; and graceful dances by Ivy Deane, together with the Operascope, conclude.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—For the closing week of the season, Miss Dorothey Cacey's company is presenting When We Were Twenty-One. It is rather to be regretted that Miss Cacey is seen in one act only, as her rendering of the unattractive part of the Firefly is admirable. The important character of Richard Carewe is in the capable hands of Mr. Riddell Robinson, whose powerful acting receives high commendation. Mr. Edgar J. Coyne submits a fine portrayal of Sir Horace Plumley, his quiet humour being very effective; Mr. Frank Powell (Col. Miles Garhame) and Mr. F. Chas. Poole (Terence McGarth) are also largely responsible for the success of the piece; while Mr. Gerald Henson is to be congratulated upon his faithful rendering of the Imp. Miss Mildred Hodson's delineation of Phyllis is a charming piece of acting; Miss Flo Preddy is very good in the rôle of Mrs. Ericson.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's company entered on its third week at the Royal on Monday, the piece billed for the evening being Lady Audley's Secret. Miss Ada Abbott filled the rôle of Lady Audley in a praiseworthy manner; Mr. Frank Stephens is well placed as Robert Audley; Mr. Weedon Ross as Captain Maldon displays histrionic powers; and Mr. W. H. Garbois is seen to advantage as Sir Michael. Little Miss Hetty Jones, a remarkably clever child-actress, deserves much credit for her rendition of Master George. Other parts are capably filled by Miss Majorie Tennant, Miss Louise Gilmore, Miss Edith Knight, and Mr. Edwin Keene.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Lea; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—Full houses are attracted this week by the ideal coon, Eugene Stratton, who presents several new songs with his customary success. A couple of amusing and entertaining musicians are Seeley and West; a beautiful display is made by David Canty's illuminated water grotto, in which Mlle. Da Silva appears with brilliant effect; the performance of Little Agnes Tina is greeted with continued applause; Carlos Menard introduces some clever trick violin playing; Gus Garrick does well with his amusing items; Josh Dixon is another smart comedian; Flo Esdaile is a charming songstress; the Three Cape Girls work hard for the applause bestowed on their big boot dancing; and the Bioscope supplies excellent pictures.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—The Shaughraun is being played here by the stock company. As Conn, Mr. Chas. R. Stone is well suited; Captain Molineaux is neatly played by Capt. A. E. Winnington-Barnes; Corry Kinchela has an admirable representative in Mr. Joseph Millane; Mr. W. J. Miller is well placed as Robert Ffolliot, and the Harvey Duff of Mr. Harry Douglas is a fine bit of character acting. As Claire, Miss Ethel Bracewell scores her light comedy scenes being brilliant; Miss Mabel Rose is a sympathetic Arte O'Neil, and Miss Emily Kelsey as Mrs. O'Kelly, and Miss Edith Madelle as Moya are excellent.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Hetty King is heartily applauded here; the Bensons are appreciated in their speciality act; Muir and Bartlett create roars of laughter by their sketch, The Collar Stud; Arthur Croxon, mimetic comedian, has "caught on"; Edgar Budden scores as a bone soloist; Arthur Woodville, swell comedian, takes well; and Queenie May is a dainty comedienne. The Pepiscope concludes the entertainment.

CASTLEFORD.—QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—The Loyal Dominion Company's dramatic and humorous animated pictures, and an excellent variety company, continue to do good business here. The good programme includes Mme. Alecia, a clever rolling ball equilibrist; Harry Drew, Welsh basso; and Mme. Fontainebleau, with an intelligent troupe of performing dogs.

CHATHAM.—BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Miss Dora Lyric's songs go with a rare swing; Harry Cotton still scores with his burlesque pensioner's ditty. Others are the Cecilias, with selections on cornet, post horn, and bugle; Tom Yorke, coster comedian; Dave Laird, comedian; Lacey's Erascope; Percival and Morley, in an amusing duologue, Turtle Doves; and the Six Brothers Luck Pantomime company, in The Demon of the Cellar.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis.—Rosie Reval opens the ball here with neat song and dance; the Larrisons are an amusing couple, who appear as the amiable idiot and the dainty soubrette; the Bros. Brooks give a well-liked comedy act; Fred Land is very freely applauded for his parody on the coon song; the Sisters Brand make a most favourable impression; Ella Shields' songs go remarkably well; Duncan and Godfrey make a most decided hit with Me and 'Er; and the Edisonograph shows up-to-date pictures.

CHESTER.—ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Premier position here is occupied by Mlle. Von Etta in a mixture of legerdemain and quick-change, which enjoys a great measure of success. Bert Bowden, comedian, scores in his ditty, "I think we shall have trouble." Geoffreys and Benson make a decided hit with their clever duologue, "Spoofed"; Mlle. Renne is a smart girl juggler; Ellis Barrieton sings pleasingly "Could we recall"; the Carney Bros. gain well-deserved applause for their song-scena, Rich and Poor; Roy Bevis presents magical problems; and "The Automobile Thieves," a dramatic film, is projected by Vernon's Bioscope. On Monday evening a sketch entitled School was presented by Miss Zona Joy's company.

CLACTON-ON-SEA. — PALACE-BY-THE-SEA, LTD. — Managing-Director, P. W. Willard, Esq.—The following make up a good variety show: Zara and Arno, a couple of very smart bar performers; Tom Collins with his topical song, "Fly away Peter, come back Paul"; the Three Danbrooks, who give a smart musical turn; the Three Sisters Grovini, clever acrobats and contortionists; Probyn and Bates, eccentric entertainers; Beattie Benson, a clever young dancer; George Barron, a good comedian; Miss Maude Lavern, burlesque singer; and Mr. Edgar Berte, with his monologues. The Palascope showed some good pictures. The Lunar Sextette still give al fresco shows in the grounds, and the capable orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Algernon Clark.

HIPPODROME (late OPERETTA HOUSE). — Lessee, Bertram C. Ross; Manager, N. Sargant.—The Sylvenes top the bill, and the gentleman is a very smart and clever equilibrist and hand balancer; the Musical Keiths give a very bright musical turn, they are clever; Petite Carlina, a smart costume dancer; Woolmer Young, a good descriptive comedian; Lottie Bray, banjoist and dancer; the Musical Silvo, who gets sweet music from glasses and the silver chimes; Will Lear, comedian; and Lola Dalby, comedienne and dancer.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. Harold Montague; Manager, Mr. E. J. Barrett.—Mr. Montague and his Vagabonds are still here, and have been giving their bright little vaudeville shows to good houses.

WESTCLIFF GARDENS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Graham Russell, and Bentley.—In addition to the three proprietors, Madame Gertrude Shrimpton, soprano, is here this week, and Mr. Harry Barrett, the well-known Queen's Hall bass.

COLCHESTER.—HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Frederick Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Miss Ella's performing lions are here, and form an attractive turn. Hanvarr and Anna Lee are wonderfully clever with the clubs, and the lady is intensely droll with her eccentric tumbling. Groves and Chalmers are a versatile duo, whose most pleasing feature is a very pretty dance, which is loudly applauded. Maud Wilton, chic comedienne, has a voice above the average, and, moreover, has a charming stage presence. Burnard and Yalsku are an entertaining pair of dancers; Arthur Boyne repeats his well-known eccentricities, with a new and original cough; and Jock Campbell appeals to the lovers of Scottish humour.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Charles March's new play, The Saint and the Woman, is the attraction here this week. Mr. John Burton essays the rôle of the Vicar of Llandilas with commendable effect; whilst as Ivor and Evan Llewellyn Mr. George Gaisford and Mr. Leonard Brookes are good. Mr. Monson Thorpe is an able Richard Grainger; Lady Hardinge is well played by Miss Sybil Winter; Miss Emma Victor does full justice to the part of Margery; and as Olive Meyrick Miss Gwendolin Hastings well merits the applause accorded her.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—The house was well filled on Monday to give a hearty reception to the sensational drama, Guilty Gold. The hero is admirably portrayed by Mr. Alex. Alexander; Ralph Bartlett (bigamist and blackmailer) is well taken by Mr. Charles Burden; Martin Haldane is in the capable hands of Mr. Tom Roydan; Miss Violet Crauford is greatly admired in her powerful impersonation of Rhoda Hampton, Miss Elsie Capel making a graceful Elsie Middleton.

HIPPODROME.—There is a good variety entertainment here. Mr. Sam Elton, in a wonderful turn, keeps the audience roaring with laughter; the Jantureas troupe of American artists give a clever acrobatic turn. Amuurt, strong man, holds a pianoforte and boy on stool for a considerable time; and Harry Nelson, comedian; the Sisters Hall, duettists; and Daly's comedy sketches are all good. The animated pictures show photographs of the Tourist Trophy races. During an interval in the second performance on Monday night at the Hippodrome, Coventry, Mr. Lennox Barry, the newly-appointed manager, made a brief speech, in which he assured the patrons that the best artists obtainable would be engaged during the coming months, and he hoped the people of Coventry would rally round him. At the conclusion of his speech, the audience rose and sang, "For he's a jolly good fellow."

THE EMPIRE. — Proprietor, Mr. George Dance; Manager, Mr. K. D'Laco. — An exceptionally good programme is submitted at this popular house this week. The Carmos, Australian jugglers and balancers, are a very clever pair; the Horne Bros. appear in their boxing sketch; the Sisters Pine are responsible for some clever patter; and others contributing to the bill are the Gothams; Sydney Lee, card manipulator, &c.; Harry Conlin, comedian; and the Leonards, in a comedy act. The Bioscope pictures, as usual, are included.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wallace Davidson.—Mr. Hartwell J. Kirby's company, in Man's Enemy, opened on Monday to a large and appreciative audience.

CROYDON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. Fred Jarman's company is appearing here twice nightly in Under the Czar. Mr. Wilson Howard renders sterling service as Nicholas Verosiaft; Mr. William Matthews is well placed as Zakhar Kovesky; Mr. R. Merring is good as Michael Granoviski; Mr. Cecil Morand wins favour in the part of Paul Ignat; Mr. Carl Vallender is droll as Alexis Petroff; Mr. J. Leicester acts with effect as Egor Gregorovitch; Mr. Victor Gordon is praiseworthy in the rôle of Victor Kleff; Miss Madge Clair is picturesque as Zara Bhura; Miss Violet Vivienne deserves a word as Siomka; Miss Carlotta Anson gives a sympathetic rendering of Sonia Gregorovitch; and the remaining characters are adequately enacted.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—George Robey is the star here, and his reception is most cordial; Tom Lloyd is a first-rate eccentric comedian; the Westwoods give a smart comedy cycle act; Hanid Alexander is a clever pianist, comedienne, and dancer; the Brothers Etharin are a whimsical pair of comedians; Bert Coote's Yankee Doodle Girls are high-class vocalists and dancers; Harry Anderson's songs go with a swing; Huline and Le May, musical clowns, make a big hit; the Imperial Bioscope is enjoyed; and Rauschle is very good in his life-like impersonations of great men.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Chas. Denley and Herbert Taylor.—The chief attraction here this week is Alexandra Dagmar, who, with pretty songs and amusing anecdotes, is making a decidedly favourable impression on large audiences. The Three Merrills, American comedy cyclists, are also to be complimented, their turn being quite the neatest seen locally for some time; the Three Behans, quick change artists, appear to great advantage in some clever speciality dances; and the tuneful part songs of the Sisters Grosvenor certainly leave nothing to be desired. Joe Conroy is a promising young comedian; and the Four Rosaires cause hearty laughter in a clever triple bar act. Chester and Lee's marionettes are very entertaining; and Madge Norwood is successful in song and dance. The Bioscope concludes with this year's Derby.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—The Green Hills of the Far West deals with the lighter side of life in the Far West, and is admirably rendered by the stock company, under the able direction of Mr. D. C. Phelps, who also assumes a leading part in the performance. Miss Olga Andre makes a fascinating heroine as Ameni; Mr. Leonard Aardale is a capable villain; and Mr. Larry Clements is amusing as Scrubbs. Miss Cissie Cleveland, an old pantomime favourite, is also a welcome member of the company.

DOUGLAS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Gray. — Mr. Herbert Ralland's company appeared on Monday evening in Sir Charles Young's fine drama, Jim the Penman. The play and the players were received with enthusiasm. Miss Kitty Cavendish's interpretation of Nina Ralston was marked by sincerity and power; Miss Chrissie Ralland as Agnes Ralston did excellent work; Mr. Charles Boult gave a fine dramatic performance as Jim the Penman; Mr. Arthur Gibbons, well made-up, was forceful as Baron Hartfeldt; Mr. F. Pennington Gush was interesting as Louis Percival; and Mr. Arthur Dennis effective as Captain Redwood.

DERBY CASTLE. — Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.—Mr. Charles Vincent, a clever comedian, has established quite a reputation; Mr. James Eadie and Miss Cissie Ramsden present a smart sketch; the Cromwells give an up-to-date juggling performance; the Derby Castle orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Harry Wood, invite dancing.

Other amusements in Douglas are Mr. Fred Buxton's Pierrots and Mr. Charles Dare's Burnt Cork comedians.

DOVER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company is here in A Beautiful Fiend, and is proving popular. Miss Sidney Crowe as Wanda Lubinoff succeeds in interesting the audience; while a capable impersonation of Fedor Karateff is contributed by Mr. Harry C. Robinson. A fine manly portrayal of Ivan Paulovitch is given by Mr. Herbert Skardon; and Mr. Matt Russell is impressive and convincing as Sergius Strogoff, whose sister Nadjne has an emotional and charming impersonator in Miss Violet Ingram. Comedy is introduced by the eccentricities of Mr. Dick Seddon as Christopher Crackles and Mr. Pat Quinn as Malachi, the latter gentleman's acting in the stronger scenes being worthy of praise; while Miss Marie Fontaine is a captivating and engaging Patty Woodlands.

THE PAVILION, PROMENADE PIER. — Lessees, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. C. Dew; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter.—A very bright series of concerts have been given this week by a costume concert party called the Dutch Serenaders. Mr. Alec Davidson's magnificent voice has won him many warm admirers; Mons. Jules Charmettes has a pleasing manner of rendering light comedy ditties, and is also a talented performer on the 'cello. A voice of great power and flexibility is possessed by Miss Sissie Read; Miss Dora Harrison is a piquant soubrette; and Miss Vera Desmond accompanies and also contributes pianoforte solos.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Lessees, The Vaudeville Syndicate; Manager, Mr. Fred Holt.—Macdonald and Hurtington, expert dancers, give a clever turn this week; and the Czar's Royal Russian troupe of dancers are also well received. Jack Foley, a funny comedian; and Louie Hurman, burlesque actress, work well; and Mlle. De Rose has a wonderful baritone voice. Other turns are contributed by J. H. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist, the Coopers, harmonising vocalists, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

DUBLIN. — EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—An excellent variety combination provides the amusement here this week. The Lukushima Troupe, who hold premier position, cause quite a sensation in a daring and clever acrobatic act; W. F. Frame's quaint mannerisms and songs are heartily enjoyed; the Boccaccio Minstrels meet with a flattering reception; the New Macs are popular; Frank Bertram and company, in an amusing sketch entitled The Chaperon score successfully, as do also the Sisters Dorrell, vocalists and dancers. The Karno Troupe, in their pantomimic absurdity, The Dinner Hour, create great hilarity, and Herbert Rule and Raie Rosenthal also give pleasure with their contributions. The Empire Pictures make an attractive final item.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The Aurora Troupe of Cyclists, who were billed to appear here this week, were unable to fulfil their engagement owing to the melancholy accident which resulted in the death of a lady member of the troupe in Belfast last week. Their place is well filled by the Banzai Japanese Troupe in a startling performance; a hit has been made by the Silver Tone Quartette, in their singing and dancing act; Jack Ross is heard to advantage in a number of well-chosen songs; Brull and Hemsley, in an amusing sketch, Fun in a Music Shop, are warmly received; as is also Lil Barrington, comedienne; Frederica's terriers and pony supply an interesting item; and the Boston Twins prove as big favourites as ever. The Custances' sketch, A Game for Two, causes laughter; Harry Taft is a comedian of more than ordinary merit; and the Bioscope never fails to amuse.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The bill of fare here this week is furnished by Tom Wesley, descriptive vocalist; La Bella Rosa, mandolinist; Len Delmar, lady impersonator; Ella Lane, soprano vocalist; Collins and Irene, illusionists; and the Cinematograph.

SAMUELS' EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—The artists engaged here this week include Will Yew, eccentric comedian; Bessie Wilson, serio and expert dancer; Arthur Ben Anderson Family, Musical Oriental Americans; Charles Rivers, comedian and dancer; Patsy Nolan, female impersonator; and Agnes Macdonald, the fasting lady.

PAVILION (KINGSTOWN).—Manager, Mr. Fred R. Heley.—The Rustic Scholars opened for a short season here on Monday to a well-filled house, and were accorded a hearty reception. The programme, both vocal and instrumental, was excellently gone through, and the several items contributed by Messrs. Gilbert Fernie, Alfred Wooton-Harker, Nichols, and the New Zealand Twins were all appreciated.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Kennedy's Komiks are supplying a capital evening's entertainment here. The programme includes Little Hatch, a diminutive and versatile comedian; the Verne Sisters, duettists and dancers; Mr. James Burt, described as of Geo. Dance's company; King and King, comedy couple; and the Four Godfreys, clever singers and dancers. Animated pictures complete.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson.—Mr. Will Sargent, vocal comedian; and Chummie La Mara, burlesque artist, are both old favourites here, and secure a good reception; and Dolly and Madge McCalla, juvenile entertainers, give a good turn. Excellent pictures are shown.

DUNDEE.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—This week we have a musical farce comedy, entitled The Barber. Mr. Johnny McElroy is very amusing in the title-rôle; Mr. Anthony Gordon, Mr. Leslie Vyner, Mr. Charles Kean, Mr. Herbert Cecil, Mr. Harry Vane, Miss Dora Hammersley, and Miss Maude le Ray are also much in evidence, and all give good accounts of themselves. An excrutiatingly funny one-act drama emanating from the fertile brain of Mr. Williams also proves exhilerating fare. Janet Alexander returns to the scene of many of her former triumphs, and receives a brilliant reception; Michael Kemble, who appeared as the Demon King in Mr. Williams' last pantomime, has to respond to a double encore. The Motorscope, with a splendid series of new pictures, completes a varied and very enjoyable bill.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The Kingston Dramatic company presented on Monday evening the Scottish drama, Jeanie Deans. In the title-rôle Miss Madge F. Young was seen to much advantage; an emotional Effie was supplied by Miss Emily Peel; Miss Madge Locke was responsible for a clever Madge Wildfire; Mr. Harry Egan as Dumbiedykes created huge merriment, his dialect and make-up being alike excellent; Mr. J. T. Dale was a splendid Geordie Robertson, his singing of several Scotch ballads fairly bringing down the house. As David Deans, Mr. A. W. B. Kingston gave a fine character study of the part. The following plays have also been given throughout the week, viz., For Fame and Glory, Ivanhoe, Charles Peace, Peggy Armstrong, and Queen of the Prairies.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE. —Proprietors, the Devonshire Park and Baths Co.; Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clarke. —Mr. W. Penrhyn Forster's company is appearing here in The Officer's Mess. Miss Nellie Sheffield as Rose Smith provides the house with numberless laughs, and sings, dances, and acts with much brightness; Miss Edith Harmer is a capital Sybil Carruthers; Miss Clara Nicholls is a satisfactory Lady Constantia; and Miss Essie Perrin as Selina Celeste is a most graceful and finished dancer; Mr. Harry Emeric is a really excellent comedian as Thomas Rugg, and the extensive fun he provides is always legitimate; Mr. L. Cadwaladr is a brisk effective Major-General, whose songs are splendidly rendered; Mr. P. Gedge Twyman as Captain Melville is all that can be desired in appearance, acting, and singing; Mr. Charles D. Cleveland works hard and well as Antonio; and Mr. H. Vivian is a very good Dick Potts. Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch is announced for Thursday matinée, and for this the booking has exceeded all records.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Gerrard Grant Allen's company is occupying the stage with The New Boy. Mr. Leon M. Lion causes much merriment as Archibald Rennick; Mr. Harry Ashford is a humorous Doctor Candy; Mr. William J. Rea an amusing Theodore; Mr. George De Lara a good Felix Roach; and Mr. Stanley Logan a very satisfactory Logan. Miss Katherine Harington plays briskly and well as Mrs. Rennick; Miss Nellie Redwood is a bright Nancy Roach; and Miss Beatrice Manning does well as Susan. Meg, the Mobswoman is the curtain-raiser, and in this Miss Katherine Harrington is a particular success. Miss Annie Hughes appears later in the week in Miss Tommy.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day.—Miss Esta Stella is at the head of a good bill offered here this week, and her smart style, singing, and dancing, are very successful; Miss Arabella Allen again supplies one of the most popular turns with her wonderfully fine acting and make-up in characters from Dickens; Lyster and Cook are novel instrumentalists; Mr. and Mrs. Shelley score in their amusing sketch, Miss Summerton's Baby; the Victoria Duo are cultured vocalists and musicians; Mr. Herry Walker is a funny comedian; Messrs. Haverley and Homer dance and joke in approved fashion, and new exciting pictures are added.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—The Pick of the Bunch is being presented by Mr. Harold Wantage and company. Mr. Percy Bayerstock is genuinely humorous as Col. Joseph Menit, and there is an easy style in Mr. Harold Wantage's impersonation of Martin, servant to Halliwell Menit, the latter part being capitally played by Mr. Algernon W. Lee. Other performances of merit are the Dick Seymour of Mr. Norman Bowyer, the Ruth Gay of Miss Eva Ellis, the dashing Nellie Mather of Miss Madge Cristopher, and the quaint Wilhelmina of Miss Mabette May. Miss M. Sadie as Nancy gives a vivacious piece of acting, her burlesque of a melodrama with Mr. Baverstock being one of the greatest hits of the evening. The dancing of Miss Mabel Coleman was greatly admired.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead. —Into the musical mélange A Trip to Coontown about a score of coloured performers put considerable light and shade with an unlimited amount of spirit and vivacity. The two Lilliputian Wonders, Les Piccolinos, give a versatile entertainment, including rifle-shooting, cycling, balancing, wire-walking, and dancing. Wild, Wille, and West impart novelty to a clever comedy acrobatic turn; Mr. Charles Banks and his trained dog Woof are cordially received; and the most demonstrative marks of favour are bestowed on the instrumental performances of Diamond and Beatrice, Percival, and Mr. Edmund Bosanquet. Cosgrove and Burns contribute acceptably to the harmony and humour of the evening's amusement; the veteran Mr. F. V. St. Clair creates great enthusiasm; and some fine films are exhibited by the Bioscope.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole. —Mr. Bransby Williams is impressive alike in his Dickens impersonations and his Shakespearean monologues; he has rarely done anything better than his sketch of Othello, which he added to his répertoire on Tuesday evening. Signor and Mme. Borelli present their clever imitations of foreign singers and skilful pianoforte playing; Mr. Victor Travers is amusing in his travesty of a coon song; and Little Ganty catches on with his droll sketches. The Gasch Sisters give a particularly dashing acrobatic performance; and Mr. Bert Woodward does some wonderful feats on the bicycle, his somersault throwing with his machine over two tables being especially daring. Lew Lake and company act with dramatic effect in the little play My Pal Jerry; Mr. Lake and Mr. Bob Morris handle the pathetic dying scene with real power and feeling. Lieut. Travis, ventriloquist, Miss Leonie Dixon, a charming dancer, and Miss Madge May, comedienne, contribute interesting turns to a good programme.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Ventom Swift.—Leslie Curtis once more provides a bright and enjoyable turn; Smiler Lee is also prominently in favour with the audience; Howard Ward and Louie Davis give an amusing duologue; George Marquis and Gracie Mignon appear in a refined comedy act; and the comedian and comedienne element is further happily developed by Ally Miller, Donal Macdougall, Ada Kingsley, and Gracie Bard; while Clara Hastings, a pleasing vocalist, and Yettmah, an expert magician, also contribute to the programme.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mrs. Morton Powell's company, in When It Was Dark, are here. Mr. E. Stanton Sharp plays impressively as the Rev. Basil Gortre; Mr. W. J. Butler gives a forcible representation of the fiendish Constantine Schwabe; Mr. Edward Valentine is excellent as Sir Robert Llewellyn; Mr. Ernest St. John does well as Rev. Byars; Mr. Millar Wilson effectively fills the part of Charles Gayfly; Mr. Harold B. Lewis is a praiseworthy Harold Spence; Mrs. Morton Powell gives an excellent rendering of the part of Helena Byars; Grace Goldeye finds a charming exponent in Miss Dorothy Hildebrande; and the trying rôle of Gertrude Hunt is well sustained by Miss Hilda Beverley.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager and Musical-Director, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton.—"The Orchids" have scored a great success, and have been re-engaged this week; Mr. Fred Rome is irresistibly funny, and wins rounds of applause; Miss Frances Roscorla is a dainty comedienne; Miss May Windsor, in her songs at the piano, is a general favourite; Mr. Leonard Griffiths is the fortunate possessor of a powerful well-trained voice, which he u brette and dancer, met with success; Johnnie Quinn is an acceptable vocalist; and the American Bioscope is much admired.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Miss Madge Daly at once gets on capital terms with her audience with a couple of catchy choruses; Kavados is an expert juggler and cannon ball manuipulator; and Johnny Norman, in eccentric songs, causes continuous laughter. The Schiavonys, comedy acrobats, are excellent; Miss Marie Weston entertains with song and dance, and Mr. Percy Maye presents a refined female impersonation; Elton and Elma, on the triple horizontal bars, give a smart and humorous show; Belrose and De Velin possess cultured voices, which are tastefully blended in duets. The Daunton-Shaw troupe of trick cyclists are wonderfully good. The programme concludes with the Bioscope.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Fred Karno's company in the pantomimical farce, His Majesty's Guests, occupies the boards this week. Mr. Geo. Hester causes plenty of laughter as Sergt. Lightning, and is ably assisted by Mr. Frank Morton as Lord Easem, Mr. Charles Usher as Mr. Miffin, Miss Lenora Castelle as Lady Maude Easem, Miss Edith Ager as Dolly, and Miss Kitty Brunton as Miss Manley.

GREENOCK.—EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—Mr. Howell Webb's company is here with a drama, entitled The Convent Bell. The principal parts are in the capable hands of Mr. Howell Webb, Miss Magdalen Moore, Miss Vana St. George, and J. P. Marsden; while the humorous element is clevely exploited by Mr. Newton-Pearce and Miss Pauline Desborough.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—On the 13th inst., the general-manager, Mr. Chas. A. White, held his first benefit, which was an enormous success. Lily Soutter is the principal attraction this week, and had a capital reception on the opening night; the Seven Wulfrunas arouse enthusiasm by their clever acrobatic performance. The Orchids, vocal and comedy artists, are well received; and Tom Basett proves amusing in his Shakespearean burlesques. Peter Bermingham, Scotch comedian, and Stave, in a novel musical turn, also entertain.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—An Unwedded Wife is here this week, presented by a company under the direction of Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty. Miss Van Praagh appears as the deceived wife, Marion, and her acting evokes much appreciation; Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes represents the gentleman criminal, Phillip Blakston, in suitable fashion; Mr. Logan Darra is impressive as John Hawthorne; and Mr. Valentine Henry and Miss Elsie Walton accomplish good work as Frank Armstrong and Elsie Langham; while Little Doris is pleasing as the child, Reggie. Mr. Whitty causes much amusement as the eccentric P.C. Runyin, and is well supported by Mr. Will Casey as Napoleon Boomer and Miss Jessie Gillette as Caraway Crumpet.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T A. Edwardes.—Le Diabelo's sensational feat of Looping the Devil's Wheel is attracting much attention; Galetti's Monkeys give a very amusing act; Mignonette Kokin scores a success as a comedienne; Burg, Hand, and Wise appear in a laughable burlesque; Fox and Melville contribute good illustrated songs; Luigo Salvino is an accomplished instrumentalist; and others appearing are Marie Beresford, comedienne, and Ted Saunders, comedian.

THE PIER PAVILION, CLEETHORPES.—Manager, Mr. W. T. Bolland.—The Creole Concert Party are providing the daily entertainments. The party consists of six talented artists, and the programmes include excellent vocalism and refined comedy, &c.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—It's Never Too Late to Mend was played on Monday by the Northern Theatres' Stock company. The fugitive, Tom Robinson, was characteristically presented by Mr. Bernard Mervyn; a clever study of Peter Crawley was given by Mr. Ernest Plumpton; George Fielding had an admirable delineator in Mr. Cyril Austen Lee; and Mr. Lallen looked the part of Parson Eden. A breezy representation of Jackie was capably submitted by Mr. John Hames; Mr. J. Cook Hinton doubled the rôles of Isaac Levi and Mr. Hawes in fine style; Miss Winnie Tempest had much to recommend her as Susan Merton; while Miss Nellie Taylor was well suited to the rôle of good-natured Mary; Miss Jessie Belmore struck a high note as a young felon.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—The Columbia Comedy Trio, in their operatic and humorous absurdity, command great attention; Charles Mildare is a marvellous siffleur, his imitations of birds being thunderously encored. In a refined musical mélange the Sisters Carina carry all before them; a little domestic episode is well played by Mr. and Mrs. Royston Dene. The Spanish Goldinis' amazing electric dancing evokes well-deserved approbation; Blanche and Powell in a drawing-room act, Sidney Dolf, and Schenk Bros., equilibrists, receive their fair share of the honours. The Bioscope concludes.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sam Winks.—This week Miss Dinah Morris and her talented troupe of Southern State artists, including Mr. Sam Morris, in his original creation of Col. Martin Mugg, stage an exciting plantation scena, entitled The Village in Dahomey. May Lloyd, descriptive vocalist, Ted Marlow, impersonator, Wragg and Wragg, the Fallons, the Almas, lightning equilibrists, Dan Kirton, the Allens, speciality artists, and Phil Bransby, are well received.

HANLEY. — GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynes.—A good all-round bill is headed by the Countess Romanow in a series of classical poses entitled Iris, all of which are carefully chosen and beautifully staged. The Eight Lancashire Lads are exceedingly smart; the Three Sisters Urma contribute an interesting triple trapeze performance; Ernie Mayne creates roars of laughter; the Sisters Lunelle are a clever and vivacious pair; Harry Carsdale, the farmyard linguist, is most successful; Ethel Dunford's nice voice is heard to advantage; Alma and Rosi do well; and the pictures are excellent.

HARTLEPOOL. — EMPRESS. — Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—The principal attraction in an altogether strong programme is E. Hoggan Armadale, long associated with the late Sir Henry Irving's Lyceum company, who is giving his weird impersonation of Mathias in a specially-prepared sketch of The Bells. Charlie Craston, in comedy, is very amusing; Sibb and Sibb (Gertie and Willie) do some remarkable trapeze work; Maggie Rimmer goes as well as ever; Margaret Ismay and her White Coons are capital dancers; Harry Leaton is a sound singer of sensible songs; the Juggling Fitzgeralds show remarkable dexterity; and the pictures are more than usually amusing.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Walker, London, is being successfully played here this week by Mr. Arthur A. Horner's company. An excellent impersonation of Renard von Burg is provided by Mr. W. René Hammersmith; Mr. Edward A. Coventry is amusing as Jasper Phipps; and charming and dainty are the Misses Mary Pemberton and Ruhamah Catton as Bell and Nanny. Miss Ruby Wyndham makes an excellent Mrs. Golightly, and the remaining rôles have good exponents. The one-act play, Hester's Mystery, precedes Mr. Forrester Harvey pleasingly acting the rôle of Mr. Owen Silverdale, Miss Ruhamah Catton being convincing as Hester; and able support being given by Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite and Messrs. Walter Pemberton and W. René Hammersmith.

PIER PAVILION.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Delafoire is singularly clever on the zylophone, and gives various musical selections; as a variety entertainer, Mr. Douglas Beaufort, in introducing ventriloquism, sleight-of-hand, and pianoforte sketches, delights his audience; a capital comedy sketch, The Lady Soubrette, is smartly acted by Messrs. Fern, Pounds, John Nolan, Cyril Bydar, and Miss Veronica Brady. A miniature theatre is cleverly exhibited by Mlle. Haydee; Miss Beattie Lyndon gives a good turn as a comedienne and dancer. Some new and pleasing views are shown on Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope.

ST. LEONARDS PAVILION THEATRE.—Pier-Master and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Mrs. Ann Hughes' company are appearing in The Young Lieutenant. The principal characters are supported by Messrs. Buchanan Wake as the Admiral, Wilfred Norman, E. B. Davies, and Douglas Phillips as Lieutenants. The lady artists are excellent throughout, playing with intelligence and grace. The most important are the Misses Madeleine Stone as Lady Harlington, Madge Davies and Miss Mollie Elliston as Lady Winifred and Lady Evelyn Archer. The augmented orchestra, with a full operatic chorus, is under the direction of Mr. Alexandra Humphreys.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—A Fight for Millions is being played here by Mr. Robert Perris's company. Mr. Tom Jones, a Welsh comedian, who plays the part of Clara-ap-Morgan, is a decided attraction.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Madame Ada Colley makes admirable use of a fine voice; Vasey and Brown, comedians, are particularly neat dancers; a screaming farce, entitled Charlie's Indian, is presented by Mr. Leo Dryden's company; Martin Conway's funny stories and comical make-up are greatly amusing; and Los Rupertos, equilibrists, Miss Mollie Nolan, a dainty comedienne and dancer, the Carlyles, in a clever dancing act, Leo Dryden, character vocalist, and new pictures on the Bioscope, are included in the bill.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The fine play, The Importance of Being Earnest, presented by Messrs. Hoffe and Campbells's company, has scored an all round success. Miss Prism could not have a better representative than Miss Lloyd-Desmond; Miss Hester Newton makes the most of the Hon. Gwendoline Fairfax; while Miss Nora Hope is a creditable Cicely Cardew. The Lady Brackenbury of Miss Phillis Charmers is a creditable performance; as Moncrieffe, Mr. Monckton Hope has a part which he admirably sustains; Mr. Nicholson is excellently cast as Worthing; The Queen's Messenger is an interesting curtain-raiser.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The Woman from Scotland Yard meets with popular approbation. Mr. Alex. Grant is a fine Paul Obanoff; and in the title-rôle Miss Chrissie Dunbar makes a hit; the Adventuress is skilfully sustained by Miss Emily Money; as the Stepson, Mr. G. E. Clive does reliable work. The comic relief is strongly evident.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons' Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Home, Sweet Home is just the sort of play to please a popular audience, and the company which presents it here this week is one of much merit. Miss Marian Waterford has in Joan just the part to reveal those excellencies which make her work so noteworthy; Mr. Frank Lindo is an excellent Stephen Armitage; Mr. D. Laurence Doyle furnishes a fine character sketch as David Armitage. As the child, Dora, Miss Daisy Rochefort gives a very intelligent reading; and Capt. Gerald Gambier is a consistent Duke.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Juno, a musical play, is being presented this week by Mr. Julian Graham's company. The title-rôle is effectively taken by Miss Kate Graham Beck; and Miss Florence Wood is quickly in favour as Priscilla Strong; whilst Miss Edith Barnes as Mrs. Marie Strong gains admiration; Miss G. Lawson as Lottie Stimson is much applauded for her clever dancing; Mr. Harry Walsh as Timothy Twinkle keeps the audience in roars of laughter; Mr. Richard Teasdale gives a smart performance as John Murphy; and Mr. F. Carrington deserves praise for his impersonation of Samuel Strong.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Jim Morley.—The following turns are appearing here with success:—Dizart, the handcuff king; the Rollins, duettists and paterers; Fred Knowles, eccentric comedian; and Vesta Nellie, comedienne and dancer.

IPSWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. R. Bostock.—Clarence C. Corri's company heads the programme here this week with the pantomime sketch, Office Hours. Other items include Bob Hamilton, Scotch comedian; Ted Curtis's Piccaninnies, who gain much applause; Speedwell, a lightning portrait painter in oils; Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard, in the droll sketch, Coming Home; May and Lilly, pleasing musical entertainers; and Burns and Burns, with their absurdity, Scenes in a Museum.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Rex Sugden.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Wilson Benge's company with The Eve of Her Wedding. Mr. Arthur Keand gives a good account of the part of Squire Liverton; Mr. Wilson Benge gives a manly portrayal of George Tremain; and Mr. Charles H. Gallier is well placed as Dick Leverton; and Mr. Charles Digby causes much amusement as Rudolph Earle, being ably assisted by Miss Sybil Hare as Gwendoline Younger and Miss Sadie Smith as Mavis Leverton. Mr. Lewis Hector plays with force the part of Dean Clifton; Mr. Norman B. Cannon is an excellent Jack Herne; and Miss Adeline Raby a satisfactory Renée. Mr. David Beattie as Giovanni proves himself a capable actor; and Mr. K. Arthur is an effective Bill Groggins.

JERSEY.—THE HORSE-SHOE QUARRY.—The Pierrots and Veroniques are still drawing big crowds, the new programme being a good one. The duet given by Mr. Payne and Miss Vincent proves very popular.

THE ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—The National Animated Pictures are still doing good business.

THE TRIANGLE PARK.—The Dagonets opened here for a fortnight, under the direction of Mr. Joseph Blascheck.

LANCASTER.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. W. J. Fergusson and John Porter.—Otto Menotti heads the bill this week with a most sensational cycling trick; Les Montaldos, slack wire artists, have a good reception; and Ted E. Box is a smart comedian. Nellie Merton and George Rydon, comedy artists, Woodhouse and Wells, patterers, J. T. Wolstenholme, vocalist, Dene and Dawson, in a comedy act, Stage Aspirants Lilian Elfreda, a pleasing mimic, and the Hippograph make up an excellent programme.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Zena Dare visited Leamington on Monday, when they appeared at the Theatre Royal in a triple bill. There was a crowded attendance, whose reception of these most distinguished artists was one of great enthusiasm. The pieces played were Papa's Wife, You and I, and Scrooge, the wonderful adaptation of Charles Dickens's "Christmas Carol." In Papa's Wife Miss Dare gave an exceedingly clever impersonation of Kate Weatherby, whilst Mr. Seymour Hicks played the part of Gerald Singleton to perfection. The second piece, You and I, was most amusing, and in this Miss Dare played with charming naïveté. Others who gave excellent performances were Mr. Stanley Brett, Mr. Laurence Caird, and Miss Florence Lloyd. Scrooge was undoubtedly the finest piece of the evening, and proved an admirable contrast to the others. Mr. Seymour Hicks gave a magnificent performance of Ebenezer Scrooge, in which he clearly illustrated his wonderful versatility. Other characters were ably sustained by Messrs. Stanley Brett, William Lugg, J. C. Buckstone, Miss Florence Lloyd, Steadman's choir, &c. At the conclusion of the performance there was an outburst of enthusiasm, during which Mr. Hicks thanked the audience for their hearty reception, and expressed a hope that both he and Miss Dare would visit Leamington again.

LEEDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—A Warning to Women is played by Mr. C. Watson Mills' company. Mr. Henry Rutland's portrayal of Squire Kennion is powerful and convincing; Mr. Richard Vane's representation of the villain, Dr. Dread, shows a high order of ability; and Mr. Godfrey Tearle has much to do with the success of the piece by his clever efforts as the humorous Shaun. The squire's daughter Moira is a performance of rare charm by Miss Molly Malone; Miss Elinor Glover does well as Hildred; and Miss Phyllis Brook leaves nothing to be desired in her personation of Lady Colner.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—The Empire patrons are this week favoured with a visit from that prince of comedians, Harry Lauder; the wonderful blind pianist Mendel again delights all with his splendid performance at the piano; the Norman and Leonard Trio also win the favour of their audience in a musical speciality; an up-to-date and clever comedy duo, Collins and Rice, provide a bright and enjoyable sketch; and Tom Owen's comedy contributions are well liked. A couple of pleasing comediennes, May Walsh and Maude Mortimer, find a ready acceptance of their items; whilst C. Randolph King, a clever character-actor, brings up the rear in great style.

PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece.—Prominent in this week's Palace bill is the George Bonhair Troupe, a company of remarkably expert risley acrobats, whose feats arouse great enthusiasm; that clever little lady, Gertie Gitana, foots the list with neat song and dance; Cole and Herbert, a pair of smart juggling eccentrics, are deservedly popular; Will Lytton is a favourite comedian; and Tom Dunsmore, in a similar line, is also having a good week. Lily Black proves a pleasing and acceptable comedienne; and Cyril Carl, an actor-vocalist of merit, also makes a successful appearance.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—The amusing sketch Kleptomania is a feast of fun, in which Fred Edwards and Co. distinguish themselves, Miss Bertha Edwards being particularly clever and entertaining; uproarious merriment is also the keynote of a specialty by Joe Nightingale and Arthur Stigant, and the presentment is much enjoyed. May Edouin is singing new items in her best style; and, in a similar line, Molly Doon also scores good success. The Sisters Marion are again doing well; Arthur Goodman presents a burlesque specialty; Juno Salmo arouses interest with his weird electric turn; and further capital entertainment is subscribed by the Heures, club manipulators; Smith and Johnson, coloured comedians; Charles Faning and Nat Watkins, comedians.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Harry Pleon is well applauded for smart new items, rendered in his best style; Mr. H. O. Wills is another prominent comedy purveyor who hits the popular taste; the Three Gregsons also provide capital comedy entertainment; Wyndham and Waters are to the fore with a clever specialty; Lil O'Gorman is a pleasing vocalist; the mimicry of Tackio is interesting and amusing; and other contributors to a good bill are Phillips and Merritt, in comedy sketch, and Fenton and Dwight, eccentrics.

LEICESTER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont. Mr. Herbert Barr's company is here with the musical drama Life. Mr. Herbert Barrs, the actor-author, makes a manly Jack Lockhart, and as the evil genius, Sir Horace Lester, Mr. Ronald Grahame is a success. Miss Dorothy Oswald is excellent as Beatrice Ferrars; and Miss Maudie Vincent as the waif, Jess, is to be highly complimented. Miss Edna Hana does well as Ruth Thorpe; Mr. Will Sherlock is good as Zac Krabbe; and Mr. A. B. Lyons, as Joe Pippet, Mr. Willis Collins, as Detective Blake, Mr. H. Evans, as Peter Thorpe, and Mr. Alf. Selwood, as P.C. Nabbs, are others who should be singled out for praise. In the last act a variety entertainment is contributed to by Miss Maudie Vincent, Mr. Will Sherlock, Mr. A. B. Lyons, Miss Ethel Bateman, and others, which meets with success.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—The chief attraction here this week is the historical sketch, by Louis Cohen, entitled The Drummer of the 76th, presented by Matthew Brodie and Co. Both Mr. Matthew Brodie, as Napoleon, and Miss Dorothea Vivian, as the drummer-boy, are to be highly complimented; Miss Augusta Tullock as Frau Wagner and Mr. J. Rosier as Marshal Launes also render capable assistance. Marzella's Birds show the acme of training, and prove a most popular item; Harry Cadle's funny eccentric act, Casey's Circus, creates much laughter; Gintaro, the Japanese juggler and top-spinner, is very smart; Ruth Lytton scores a well-deserved success as a Scottish comedienne and dancer; Rose and Grayson are excellent vocalists and dancers; Fred Hastings is a funny comedian, who provokes hearty laughter; the Sisters Morgan are charming duettists and dancers; Allan Hanbury, the new comedian is also a success. The American Bioscope throws on the screen some entertaining pictures.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—Miss Lois du Cane and company enter on a second week's engagement here on Monday with the episode, Bluejacket, Mr. Eardley Howard as Harry Franklin, and Miss Lois du Cane as Nellie Drake, being especially good; Keith and Merson maintain their popularity in their funny hunting absurdity, The Meet; Phedona gives a clever and prettily-staged musical entertainment; Mollie Seymour is a capital vocal and musical expert; Bert and Dora are amusing comedy artists; Harry Milton, Dutch comedian and smart dancer, appears in place of Cissie Esdale; Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope, a standing feature here, shows an excellent series of pictures.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—The second week of the Pavilion Pierrott season is being greatly appreciated. Miss Nell Reine, comedienne and descriptive vocalist, is a success; Messrs. Sam Johns and Leen Neville are smart comedians; in the farce, I've Sent My Wife to Golborne, Mr. Harry Brousby makes a hit as Timothy Honeybun; Miss Nance Neill is a successful vocalist; and the pictures on the Bioscope are good.

LEITH. — NEW GAIETY THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—East Lynne has been a strong attraction this week, with Miss Constance Medwyn appearing to advantage as Lady Isabel, well supported by Mr. Fred Freeman as Archibald Carlyle, Mr. Clavering Craig (an ideal Levison), and Mr. James Chippendale (excellent in the short part of Lord Mountsevern). Miss Doris Gilham is a pleasing Barbara Hare; and both Miss Paulina Gear and Mr. Barry Lupino succeed in thoroughly amusing the audience as Miss Cornelia and Mr. Dill. The Hares, father and son, find characteristic impersonations at the hands of Mr. James Somerville and Mr. Percival Dye; Willie Carlyle is played in promising fashion by Miss Bessie Craig; while Miss Sallie Adelstone and Miss Trevor Dunn do useful work as Joyce and Suzanne. Following an interesting interlude of Royal Star animated pictures, a farcical sketch entitled The Outfit gives Mr. John Darlison opportunities for a bit of refreshingly droll comedy acting, cleverly assisted by Miss Gilham and Miss Adelstone.

LIVERPOOL. — ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—An able company, under the control of Messrs. John B. Shinton and Alexander Greenwood, has been producing here this week The Price of Her Soul. Miss Bessie Rignold was seen to great advantage as Olga Lanovitz, playing with much dramatic strength; Mr. John B. Shinton acquitted himself well in the rôle of Lord Mandeville; Miss Ada M. Ryder was a powerful Countess Inez; little Mabel Ronald was an intelligent Vera; Mr. Archie Gear handled the character of General Lanovitz with every satisfaction; Mr. Arthur E. Pringle looked the part of Major Ivan effectively; Miss Grace Garside made a humorous Lady Jemima; and the other rôles were effectively presented.

LYRIC.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Heading a capital bill here this week are Rastus and Banks, smart coloured American entertainers, vocalists, and dancers; another good turn is that given by the Martelloni troupe of lady acrobats, whose work is remarkably skilful; Thorpe and Coe raise endless laughter with their absurdity, My Burglar; the vocal scena, Dreamland, by L. B. Athol, is richly enjoyed; Hook and Eye (Will and Daisy) have a merry comedy duologue, The Latch Key; Alice Maude, a child male impersonator, is a neat turn; Ernest Montefiore and company please greatly with The Little Colonel; Entwistle and Robeiro submitted an appreciated musical mélange, The Window Cleaner; and Durant Brothers, with their wonderful airship, also appear.

STAR THEATRE. Proprietor, and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—A Woman's Past is presented here this week by Messrs. Warden and Sandford's combination. Miss Maisie Hanbury is a charming Bessie; Miss Mary Mallalieu proves equally pleasing as Dorothy Heath; Mr. Horace E. Herbert has a flattering reception for his David Heath; the part of Frank Dalannoy is in the capable hands of Mr. Charles V. Sandford; Mr. A. Hamilton Warden is an excellent Clement Harper; Miss Eva Bertram does justice to the part of Clara Darrel; Mr. G. Moreton-Williams gives satisfaction as Uriah Craven; and other rôles are in the able hands of Miss Phyllis Moncton, Mr. Philip Nailer, and Mr. Frank Hayling.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Top of the bill here is Frank Danby, supported by a company of artists in a musical comedy sketch, The Chauffeur, which is richly enjoyed; Jan Rudyeni and company please everybody with their musical romance, The Power of Music; Verno and Voyce, popular singing comedians, appear with advantage; the Jimsons have a humorous novelty sketch, The Burglar's Surprise; several musical instruments are skilfully played by Barton and Franklin; Fields and Lewis are a couple of excellent burlesque artists; Conway and Garland are responsible for a deal of fun with their Left in Charge; Harry Thurston has a merry burlesque monologue, The Silver King; and Wright and Elton, comedians, score decisively.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Here this week the Royal stock company are presenting Walter Howard's Man and Wife. Mr. Harry Tresham makes an excellent Paul Revere; Mr. Sydney Grant distinguishes himself as Captain D'Esparre; Mr. Robert Wilton and Mr. Leo Montgomery ably fill the rôles of Bimbo and Bambo; Miss Beryl Ravenswood makes a sympathetic Ruth Revere; and Miss Nellie Bonser plays with distinction as Marcelle.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The dramatic stock company here this week are presenting Denounced. Mr. Francis E. Wybert plays with care as Ivan Nicholai; Mr. Frank Strickland makes a sufficiently villainous Wolf Nicholai; Mr. Wallace Campbell does well as Karl; Mr. H. G. Brandon is immensely funny as Boko; a telling Michael Gortz comes from Mr. Hesslegrave; Miss G. H. Walton is effective in the rôle of Ogara; and Miss Lina Nazeby acquits herself ably as Catherine.

HAYMARKET.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Harry Calden and company are still here this week presenting the sketch, A Fight for Gold, or, a Man's Sacrifice; T. C. Callaghan, in his songs and patter, proves very diverting; Kitty Kearns is a dainty vocal comedienne; and Fred Fletcher has a number of popular songs.

WESTMINSTER. — Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery. — The Brothers Smarte, novel eccentrics, arouse a deal of laughter; George Young, a blind musician, displays extraordinary skill; the male impersonations of Vesta Fay are creditable; Mark Lane, as a comedian, meets with approval; and Monti Santos shows much skill as a juggler.

OLYMPIA, LTD.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—The ever-popular Neil Kenyon has a budget of good things; Jack McKenzie and company present an enjoyable musical comedy extravaganza, The Garden of Glitter; Spry and Monti bring their smart military scena, The Dandy Guardsman; John L. Shine and company have a charming sketch, An Actor's Art; the St. Clair Brothers, comedy cyclists, provide a clever football match on bicycles; the Three Rubys, the singing contortionists, present an uncommon and highly pleasing show; and Arthur Gill, the man with many voices, Amy Russell, a sweet-toned soprano, and the Netherlands, with their pretty scena, Dutch Pastimes, also appear.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Nellie Wallace, returned from her American tour, has a warm reception; Phil Ray keeps his audience in a continuous roar of laughter; George Kirk and company's sketch, Grip, or the Fatal Hand, is immensely enjoyed; the Bruins present the latest edition of their smart trifle, A Trip to the North Pole; Zaid, assisted by Orienta, has a novel speciality on the rings; Tom E. Finglas is a clever delineator of negro life; the Millman Trio's tight wire feats are characterised by grace and skill; Madge Grey, a clever comedienne and mimic, tells some delightful children's stories; and Ruby Dahl, with her merry mannikins, has a much appreciated show.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Liverpool Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. James Marks.—Heading a capital bill here this week is Amy Augarde, with La Carmencita, an enjoyable little sketch, in which she is supported by Wilfred Howard, E. E. Coleman, James Dallas, and William Newland. Barney Armstrong proves exceedingly popular, his songs and patter creating great laughter; Palles and Cussick render their audience hilarious; Cedar and Elgar are a particularly funny couple; Miss Ruby Bijou, the barefoot dancer, is received with much favour; Rose Harvey renders enjoyable numbers; the vocal duets of the Sisters Melba are highly pleasing; the Athlones submit a neat posing and speciality act; some excellent banjo playing comes from the Vekeys; and Miss Lucy Weston, comedienne, also appears.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmott.—A smart pair of comedians, Farrell and Miller, are here this week, together with Cim Maree, with his novelty act, "The Human Coil"; and the Sisters Bronson, clever duettists and dancers. The Bioscope shows some excellent films.

LLANDUDNO.—PIER HEAD PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. Arthur Sutcliffe.—Messrs. Adeler and Sutton's Pierrots draw crowded audiences nightly. Miss Lillian Barnes, contralto, contributes some good songs in excellent style; and Mr. Percy James, baritone, is also in good form. Mr. Fred Barnes, light comedian, finds favour; and Mr. Tom Stuart's musical monologues, dramatic recitations, and comic songs, are hugely enjoyed. Mr. Arthur Sutcliffe, the local favourite, is all that could be desired as a comic. Mr. J. A. Tunbridge is the able accompanist.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. A. E. Vaughan; Manager, Mr. J. Ritson.—This week the above theatre is occupied by a return visit of the Parisian Animated Picture Co., with an entirely new set of pictures, coupled with which is the appearance of Colvill Dyke, magical and ventriloquial entertainer, the absurdities of his mechanical figures evidently appealing to young and old alike.

LOWESTOFT. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—The seasons apparently have no effect on the fortunes of this comfortable resort. Packed houses are the rule, and good management combined with generous catering are winning their deserved reward. High-class pictures are well backed up by such strong variety turns as Caban's performing ponies, donkeys, dogs, &c.; Princess Fayette's Parisian driving; Jack Heath's comic effusions, and Daisy Silcott's dainty songs.

MARINA.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—The season's attractions commence this week with All-of-a-Sudden Peggy. Anthony finds a humorous representative in Mr. Alfred S. Barber; and Mr. Lionel Glenister is thoroughly at home as the Hon. Jimmy Keppel; Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson as Jack Menzies does excellent work. Miss Decima Moore is admirably suited as Peggy, and presents a well-thought study. Miss Kate Wingfield (Lady Crackenthorpe) and Miss Eva Lonsdale (the Hon. Millicent Keppel) are charming representatives.

MANCHESTER.—ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Mr. W. Alexander Dallas's company is here in The World's Great Snare. A capital performance is given, in which Mr. Leonard Williams is excellent as Royal Keene; Mr. A. Fellows Bassett plays the renegade La Mort in strong style; Miss Lily Forsyth makes a charming and sympathetic Wild Rose, the queen of the plains; Miss Fay Garnet-Vayne provides a telling study of the Indian chief's daughter, Star Eye; and Miss Lillith Gabriel is an effective Louise Granville. Among many other distinct and varied characters, all well played, the lively rôle of Patrick Maloney is in the very capable hands of Mr. Hyland O'Shea, who makes the most of it.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn.—The Royal Hungarian Szarnaci Ferencz Troupe sing and dance well, and perform astounding acrobatic feats; Miss Georgette Thierry's company in Nancy Sikes, an episode from "Oliver Twist," is also a big attraction; the Brothers Robson, "the Hielan'men frae Argyle," are humorous in song and dance; and May and Ruby, vocalists and dancers, are warmly received. Other acceptable turns are those of the Brothers Lillian, acrobats on the silver chain; Payne Clarke, tenor vocalist; Olms and Carbeth, Continental juggling comedians; Pheon and Pheon, instrumentalists; and Fred Dornan, actor-vocalist. The animated pictures, "Sports in Galway" are interesting.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Manager, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—Mr. Sidney Dench and company are here for a fourth week, in another old favourite, The Streets of London. Miss Dora Dench as Lucy is one of the prominent successes of the cast; and among others who help to make the play interesting and attractive Mr. Leonard Laurence is seen in a clever rendering of Gideon Bloodgood, and Mr. Sidney Dench plays Badger in his usual effective style.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Day.—A Royal Divorce signalised its fiftieth visit to Manchester this week. Miss Edith Cole as Josephine and Mr. Frederick Victor as Napoleon are at the head of the cast, and the performance of these two is transcendently good. Of many other ladies who figure more or less prominently, Miss Agnes Finlay is deserving of special praise for her depiction of Marie Louise; while the splendid work of Mr. F. Victor is admirably supplemented by Mr. William Dexter as Talleyrand, Mr. G. M. Montanini as De Beaumont, Mr. A. Grenville as Augereau, and Mr. George Hudson as Grimand.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Fred Ginnett and Co., in Dick Turpin's Ride to York, is the top attraction here this week, and proves an interesting and sensational show. Paul Conchas, the Kaiser's strong man, adds a fine exhibition of Herculean juggling. Capital turns are given also by the Musical Jees in The Scarecrow, and J. A. Wilson, the recruiting sergeant, assisted by Private Towser. Other clever and varied business is provided by Ernest Tilbury, a popular tenor vocalist; Little Tichbourne, comedian and big boot dancer; Leo Stormont, the well-known baritone; Clark and Hayden in a musical act; and Edith Fink, a pleasing comedienne from the musical comedy stage.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—Lasky Rolfe and company present here, with decided success, their latest novelty, The 14 Black Hussars; another turn of note is that of Rosina Caselli and her highly trained troupe of Chihuahua dogs of Mexico, whose performance is nothing short of wonderful; as usual Tom and Marie Motramo are delightfully entertaining, and make a hit; May Mars sings well in her effective song scena, "In the Shadow of the Pyramids"; and extremely clever and amusing are the Narow Brothers, trick cyclists and acrobats; the Jackley Trio in their acrobatic speciality are very dancers. Some very smart hand and head balancing is done by the Pasquali Brothers, and the Bioscope pictures are attractive and amusing as usual.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Miss Maud Western and company are presenting The Prodigal Son. Mr. W. A. Buckstone is a soldierly Captain Fanshawe; the Jack Fanshawe of Mr. Claude Seaton is a well-studied rendering; Mr. Alf. Stretton gives a very vigorous portraiture of the villain, Ralph Marsden; while the rôle of Bill Burke is played with remarkable vividness and great emotional power by Mr. John Levey; Mr. Robt. Earl as Larry M'Gehan typifies abundantly the humour of his race; Miss Maud Western plays cleverly in the character of Dick, the outcast; Miss Ada Hender is excellent as Margaret Marsden; as Nellie Burke, Miss Helen Thompson is most acceptable; and Miss Connie Meadows displays sprightliness and verve as Mary.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Dr. Walford Bodie is this week paying a visit here, and he gives a clever exhibition of his powers. Russell and Reed's company create roars of laughter in a sketch, entitled Binks's Blunder. The Musical Acmes provide a refined musical entertainment; and Helford and Mars, singers and dancers, prove a delightful turn; Bella Skene gives a clever vocal turn; and Mr. Tom M. Mills, actor-vocalist, pleases. Little Dolly Robson, the child wonder, and T. Duriah, comedian, also add attractive turns to the programme.

OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, The Middlesbrough Grand Opera House Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—The Dayton Family give a clever and comical acrobatic turn; and some excellent singing is provided by the Meister Quartette. The Star Pierrots, speciality artists, please; and W. Belliman and company cause much laughter in A Night's Frivolity. The Milford Bros. do some clever tricks on the trapeze; and Geo. Bernard, vocal actor, scores a great success. Other turns are given by Stanley Baltimore, comedian; Mlle. Fontain's Mannikins; the Lauriers, and Vernon's Bioscope.

EMPIRE PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles Rembges.—Mrs. John Lawson and company, in a sketch, entitled Devil's Sunday, are here this week. The Three Demons perform their cycling act on a track revolving in mid-air at the rate of 60 miles an hour; Raie Walters proves a most pleasing turn, her latest song, the "Camera," being well received. Selbo is a clever juggler; and Moon and Morris, comedians and dancers, do well; Daisy Davideon gives some excellent singing; and other turns are provided by James Brady and the Empire pictures.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Alf. Graham; Manager, Mr. R. L. Griffiths.—Alfred Graham's troupe of juveniles are retained another week; and the Three Prestons cause much laughter in their absurdity. Life in the Slums is exceedingly well portrayed by Will Vay's Juveniles; and the Bros. Onda please in their athletic act. Will Onda's comedians create much laughter in a sketch, Hotel Comfort; and other turns are given by Fred Curran, comedian; the Great Vincent, tumbler; and Chas. Lilburn, comedian.

MORECAMBE.—WINTER GARDENS.—Manager, Mr. Tom Atkinson.—The Du Gros comedy acrobats have proved a sterling attraction. Satsuma, the Japanese juggler, is as clever as ever; Marie D'Alcourt sings with pleasing effect; and the Irish songs of Marie Connolly are also good.

WEST END PIER.—The choir of coloured singers from Jamaica, brought to this country by Sir Alfred Jones, have been filling a highly successful engagement, and excellent programmes have been submitted during the week.

NEW BRIGHTON.—TOWER THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Davey.—The Mystic Hussars, in a clever and mystifying military mélange; Fred Gifford, tenor vocalist; Nellie Bridger and Edith Chandler, duettists; the Sisters Iris, comediennes and dancers; Nipper Anton, in a successful and enjoyable plantation scene, are all well received here. The Imperial Bioscope shows some interesting pictures.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Bootles' Baby is here, played by Mr. Hamilton Stewart's company. Mr. Stewart, as Capt. Ferrers, realises the gallantry and grace of the character, and Mignon is prettily played by Miss Maisie Richardson; a convincing interpretation of Capt. Gilchrist is given by Mr. Henry Wolston, and the officers of the Scarlet Lancers are ably represented by Mr. Leslie Owen, Mr. Ernest Gray, Mr. Wm. Midgley, and Mr. Hubert Palmer. Other members of an able company are Mr. Tom Mowbray, Miss Isabel Roddick, Miss Georgina Wynter, Miss Gladys Harvey, and Miss Edith Ife.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Thomas W. Rowe.—The Best of Her Sex is here, played by Mr. Wm. A. Armour's company, the leading rôles being assumed by Miss Alice Defoe, Miss Dora Price, Miss Nell Ingram, Mr. Herbert J. Walton, Mr. W. F. Armour, Mr. C. Conway, Mr. Edward M. Hamilton, Mr. Herbert Ashton, Mr. Philip Forster, and Mr. Fred Rignold.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—The Hour of Her Triumph is being played here by a company under the direction of Mr. Fred J. Webb. Among those prominent are Mr. Leslie Hawkins, Mr. T. O. Stephenson, Mr. Fred J. Webb, Mr. James Stuart, Mr. Louis Nanton, Miss Barbara Gott, Miss M. Danvers Smith, Miss Lailah Price and Miss Mamie Stanton.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton.—Mr. Ernest Shand's patter songs are as popular as ever; Miss Peggy Pryde's woman's rights song brings the house down; the Musical Johnstons are experts on the Xylophone, and in song and patter Fred Poplar amuses immensely; an imposing spectacle entitled Egypt is given by Wallace Selkirk's juveniles; and others in a good company are Buy Ryder, the Twin Andersons, Lena Verdi, and Kitty Wager.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Mr. John E. Coyle, comedian, is very popular here this week; Nat Clifford, a nimble comedian, scores with his "Grand Hotel" song; a dainty singer is Miss Rachel Lowe; and the Minstrel Maids in a vaudeville act keep the audience interested; Mlle. Lumiere, serpentine and fire danseuse, gives a novel and picturesque performance, and the Macdonald Trio are very amusing; Chas. Rozel is a clever gymnast, and the Ringling Trio, comedy tumblers and eccentrics, the Four Rios, in a gymnastic novelty, and Edie Gray, with "the Boys" in harmony, are notable.

NORTHAMPTON.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—For the summer season the management is presenting a series of high-class Bioscope pictures by Pathé Frères, which are cleverly shown by Clement Vincent, and pleasingly varied by the musical mimicry of Adderley, the operatic vocalism and instrumentalism of the Solari Duo, and a humorous interlude A Lesson in Magic, by Corelli.

NORTH SHIELDS.—CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Stanley's Urchins are here this week, and present an enjoyable act, consisting of singing and dancing. Mme. Du Roche, soprano and burlesque actress, meets with an enthusiastic reception; and Messrs. Wright and Lawson, eccentric duo, create much hearty laughter. Mr. Will Harvey and Miss Hettie Holt are pleasing comedy artists; the Sisters Du Barrie, comediennes and dancers, are well received; Mr. Frank Newbury, whistling comedian, meets with his usual success, and the Bio-photoscope is still showing some good pictures.

NORTHWICH.—THE PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Glanmore Jones; Manager, Mr. Lindon Wyatt.—Mr. Charles Parker's Komedy Koncert Kompany are here this week. The company consists of five ladies and two gentlemen, each of whom is an artist of the highest ability. Mlle. Rosa Rosette is a brilliant violinist, and plays most difficult selections with a graceful facility; Miss Marie Cooper, a charming soubrette, wins unstinted applause for her songs; Miss Gertrude Martini meets with a hearty reception; Miss Lille M. Blythe possesses a beautiful soprano voice, and sings her songs with telling effect; Miss Violet Vaughan, the pianist and accompanist, in undoubtedly clever at her work; Mr. Arthur Linton, the humorist, is deserving of the highest praise for his artistic contributions; whilst Mr. Lauri Wylie, with his mimicking mannikin, produces some exceedingly clever imitations of George Robey. Fred Wright, jun., Eugene Stratton, and Dan Leno; Mr. Teddy Whittle has become very popular with his quaintly-humorous songs. Some new pictures by the Raymond Bio-tableaux Co. are shown.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's Juvenile Musical Comedy company present a bright entertainment. Wee Geo. Wood, a diminutive comedian of eleven years, sings and patters in a way that convulses the house. Miss May Gibson is a soprano vocalist of no mean order, and her numbers are much appreciated; Miss Dolly Dodds possesses a contralto voice which she uses with fine effect; as a dancer, Miss Katie Le Blanche is a prime favourite; Master Jack Harrison possesses a rich fund of humour, and his mimicry causes much amusement; the Bros. Armstrong, female impersonators and dancers, are good; the sketch, Little Paul Pry, by the principal members of the company, concludes an entertainment which was thoroughly enjoyed by the crowded audience.

NORWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—The musical Elliott Savonas give an exceedingly attractive half-hour's performance; the Raynor Trio are highly successful as equilibrists; Mr. Richard Taylor is a good turn as a ventriloquist, mimic, and whistler; O'Malley and Brown, in their sketch, create much amusement; Ivy Adelaide is a charming comedienne and dancer; the Laville Bros. are good acrobats, and appreciated; whilst Dan Filmer is well received as a comedian and dancer. The Hippo. Bio. is especially good this week.

AGRICULTURAL HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The Royal Canadian Animated Picture Co. opened here on Monday for the week, and exhibit pictures combining fun with interesting scenes in Canada, South Africa, and life in the Far West. They are well patronised.

NOTTINGHAM. — GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—Messrs. Frank J. Pitt and Charles Halling's company are presenting the drama, £1000 Reward. Mr. Chas. Halling has a congenial part as Vincent Ramsworth; and Mr. Frank Dallas causes much amusement as a detective of the old school. Mr. Frank J. Pitt essays the rôle of Fred Ingleford, the younger, with gratifying results; whilst Mr. J. Newton Cowling is equally at home as the elder Ingleford. Messrs. Fred Wilberforce and Joe English are well placed as Gilbert Lisle and Dick Springthorpe respectively; whilst Messrs. Arthur Merton, Charles Parker, George Owen, William Vincent, and James Ashton all do good work. A great deal of the success of the play depends upon the acting of Mme. Sanson, the adventuress, and in this rôle Miss Daisy Halling is distinctly good, and carries through the difficult situations with the ease of a perfect artist. Mrs. Sydney Halling is good as Mrs. McCarthy; as also is Miss Rose Conroy as Kitty Springthorpe. Miss Lynn Darlington is an ideal Meg, and in the third act sings in her sweet soprano, and in inimitable style, "Eileen Alanah."

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—Frank and Albert Boisset and company, in The Bricklayers, provide plenty of boisterous mirth and rollicking fun, and are proving themselves a great attraction; Edward Lauri, Miss May Beatty, and Miss Lily Drury are seen to great advantage in the sketch, In Her Boudoir; Miss Marguerite Broadfoote has hosts of admirers, and again demonstrates her power to please; whilst Horace White is amongst the first-class ventriloquists who employ modern methods, and do not rely upon the stereotyped style of the past. The Phydoras are exceedingly clever knockabout musical artists, and the Sisters Poole look very dainty and present a refined entertainment of song and dance. Powell's Marionettes are very elaborately staged, and represent high-water mark in puppet shows; Harry Reynolds sings in good style songs illustrated by limelight; Frank Cumminger gives an excellent turn of sand dancing, and the programme is completed by the usual Bioscope pictures.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton (in conjunction with Messrs. Mathew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond) are presenting A Soldier of France. There was a good house on the opening night. Mr. Arthur Hinton gives an excellent portrayal of Corporal Jean; Mr. W. Travis Green makes a capable Judas Delara and Count D'Laban; Mr. Victor Millard does good work in the double rôle of Captain and Lieutenant Lorraine; as Duke D'Laval, Mr. M. H. Glenville is seen to advantage; and Miss Leila Zillwood wins hearty applause for her interpretation of Pauline Lorraine. Mr. Fred Osman as Pollyput Jollyboy, and Miss Hetty Zilwood as Mayol, supply good comedy.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Messrs. Fred Acton and H. C. Nash opened here on Monday evening with Between the Lights. Miss Eileen Bamford as Violet Warren plays in a sympathetic manner, and Miss Fannie Williams is very good as Madge Armley. Mr. Bertram H. Ross gives a smart portrayal of Captain Robert Hinton; and Mr. Wm. R. Winning is very good as the scheming Stanley Crofton. Mr. Frederick Garrett and Mr. Frank Orchard are very good as Gerald Warren, and the latter artist doubles the parts of Oswald Warren and Ben Armley very cleverly. Mr. Fred Acton is a success as Jimmy Tickle. Miss Millie Doris as Kitty and Mr. Frank Daleno furnish the comedy, and sing some capital songs.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley are here with A Sister's Sin. Mr. H. Arnold Allen makes a capital Harold Raymond, and Mr. Andrew Money is very good as the villainous George Oakley. Mr. Edward Bikker as Walter Hastings does well; Mr. Ernest Frere and Mr. Harry Lyndon make a good Ikey Moses and Theophilus Hope respectively. Miss Mabel Scudamore was a charming Minnie Hastings; whilst Misses Lillian Radburn and Violet Langley as Charzel and Redempta do same capable acting. Miss Dorothy Love is good as May, and Miss Iza Lyndon makes a capital Jack. Miss Edie Macklin as Floss Perks and Miss Effie Macintosh as Nell Stubbs, with Mr. T. Power as Larry Murphy, keep the audience in good humour.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Miss Ray Wallace, mimic, earns several recalls in a delightful manner. Lord's Excelsior Opera Singers, including Miss Ona Ashton, a local favourite, sing some capital melodies with success; the Pickel troupe are clever and clean in their risley performance; Manson and West are very good in Telling the Tale; Milano Bros. are smart dental athletes, one of whom lifts a motor-car whilst balancing on his hands; Bert Danson is a funny comedian, and Laurina Lindley, operatic vocalist, sings well. Little Tim and the Dottoscope complete the bill.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Raglus, eccentric, causes much laughter in a novel act. Gladys and Alber are very good in a comedy act, and they have caught on. Fenton is an expert in sand and smoke pictures, and his shadowgraphy is very good; Effie Stuart, Scottish comedienne, is one of the smartest dancers who have appeared here; the Two Kays are capital vocalists, with a good scena, The Nightingale; Rose Pink is a dainty little maiden in song and dance; Tom Leo, comedian, also appears, and the Dottoscope concludes the programme.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—On Monday, Miss Annie Hughes opened here with her company in Miss Tommy. Miss Annie Hughes gave a most delightfully fresh and bright performance in the title-rôle, and quickly enlisted the sympathies of the house; she received splendid support from Mr. Rupert Lister, who played Dick Danvers in a convincing fashion that showed genuine power; Mr. Evelyn Vernon was just what was required as the father, Peter Hope; the parts of Clodd, the manager, and Flipp, the office boy, were lled in a most satisfactory manner by Mr. Willie Hartill and Mr. R. F. Beach; Miss Winifred Pearson played the part of the heartless and vicious Mr. Morrison with considerable effect; and Miss Vera Pole made a most interesting and fascinating child as Honner. On Thursday Mr. Symour Hicks and Miss Zena Dare are billed to appear here in Scrooge, Papa's Wife, and You and I.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, Miss Winifred Stuart and Mr. C. Watson Mill; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here with The Sin of Her Childhood. Mr. James Duncan gives a very natural and careful rendering of the Rev. Alan Gray; while Mr. Wilson Summers depicts Stephen Heysel with considerable skill and due restraint; Mr. Frank Liston enlists sympathy with his quiet delineation of Capt. John Thornton; and Mr. Hugh Brady is responsible for a good deal of fun as Barney O'Reilly; Miss Clara Santley is true to life as Maria Heysel; and Miss Kate Lever makes a bright and vivacious Eliza Muggins; Miss Lissa Young has a good reception as Hannah Spry, and is vociferously encored for her songs; while Little Dorothy is a great succes as Eric Dugdale; and Miss Effie Bartlett is good as Merle Heysel.

PAISLEY.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Douglas F. Bostock.—Prominent here this week are the Cee Mee Family of gymnasts, who execute difficult and amusing feats; the Yankee Comedy team submit a capital drawing-room entertainment; Luis Hardt, the boy Samson, demonstrates his ability in weight lifting; much laughter is aroused by Harry Grey in his versatile entertainment; Emmie Milsted and Joe Bell, in an Indian musical comedy scena, The Belle of Arizona, are deservedly well received; R. C. Magill, Scotch comedian, scores with his humorous songs; Olive Armadale is a pleasing ballad vocalist, and receives encomiums; a much appreciated turn is the marvellous juggling of the Clavers; and the Hippodrome Bioscope terminates an excellent programme.

PLYMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, M. J. Longden Lee.—Mice and Men is played by Mr. Michael Dempsey's company. Mr. W. H. Rotherham gives a careful portrayal of the systematic and dry-as-dust Mark Embury; Little Britain is admirably played by Miss Helena Parsons, her gradual evolution from the cumbersome child to the graceful girl being eagerly followed; Mr. Edmund Lee as Roger Goodlake, is a mainstay of the performance; and Miss Mabel Osborne capably acquits herself as the frivolous wife, Joanna. Miss Dot Seilby is an amusing matron of the Foundling Hospital; and Mr. Edward Percival is entertaining as the Beadle.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—The attraction here is Arthur Shirley's Passion's Power. Mr. Gerald Spencer gives a clever representation of a remorseless villain, the scenes with his attempted victim (admirably played by Miss A. Mercandalli) being particularly dramatic. Mr. C. A. Melton plays the forgiving lover with his accustomed ability; and Mr. Greene Taylor, in accordance with expectation, makes a great success of the comic business.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Leoni Clarke's trained cats, rats, mice, canaries, and monkeys give a finished, and, at the same time, amusing animal performance; Miss Sybil Montague, ballad vocalist, has a voice of fine range and power, distinctly above the average; Park's Eton Boys are heard to advantage in some single and combined numbers; Walker and May, a blind comedian and expert dancer, were deservedly encored for a very clever exhibition; and Hulse and company present a stirring dramatic episode, entitled The Fight in the Forge. Other contributors are Jack Walker, Meadows and company, and Vernon's pictures.

PORTH.—THE PALACE (late Opera House).—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—Pearce and Ward, dancers and patterers, contribute greatly to the evening's enjoyment here; T. E. Hughes is a comedian with a real sense of humour; Welda and Wyne, introducing juggling, dancing, and tumbling, are smart; Lily Lonsdale is accorded a hearty reception for her singing; Robins and Collier, in a musical comedy scena, The Lady and the Porter, make a big hit; the Valdos, eccentric motor-'bus men, provide amusement; the Avolas, comedy acrobats, are successful; Ernie Myers is a good comedian; Kata's Komical Kidgets are also entertaining; Johnny Fuller scores as the Great Little Cat on the wire, and the Palace pictures are very interesting.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. Charles Macdona's Gay Parisienne company is fulfilling a week's engagement at this house. Mr. Will Harmen played with unctuous humour the part of Mr. Ebenezer Honeycombe, and was ably supported by Miss Holford Beringer as Mrs. Honeycombe; Major Fossdyke was amusingly taken by Mr. Squire Day; Mr. T. Kennard as Tom Everleigh did well; and Mr. Clifford Seyler in the rôle of M. Pompier was droll. Miss Alice Nixon as Julie Bon-Bon gave an excellent interpretation; Miss Nance O'Neill was quite satisfactory as Norah; and Miss Madge Soutter as Ruth was decidedly good. The vocal quartettes, in which Messrs. Hoddy, Rose, Kennard, and Fitzjames took part, were much admired.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—The thrilling drama, The Biggest Scamp on Earth, is being staged here by Miss Frances Delaval and company. Miss Delaval in the rôle of Naomi, has a part that suits her admirably; Vivian Wakefield found an excellent exponent in Mr. Jack Cleve; Mr. Fred Emery well sustained the part of Derrick Knight, "the biggest scamp on earth"; Napoleon Hawke was characteristically acted by Mr. William H. Burton; Miss Dorothy Milne well portrayed the heroine; Miss Violet Mignon as Bobby was very good indeed; and Miss Rose Vernon Paget depicted the lodging-house keeper, Mother Hawke, with great success.

EMPIRE-PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—A well-varied bill this week is being put before the patrons of this house. John Marx, monarch of muscular might, is nightly astonishing the audience with his extraordinary feats of strength; the Elvio Trio, in the amusing scena, Those Troublesome Slaveys, are laughter-provoking; the Brooklands are dainty soubrettes and danseuses; Walter Stanley, eccentric comedian and dancer, with quite a style of his own, receives a hearty greeting; Patty Yole, a comely and tuneful comedienne and danseuse, gains approval; Regan and Ryan, in a high-class comedy act, do well; Rita and Roma are very clever in their business; Gwennie Hasto is a charming and refined vocalist and fancy dancer; the Bros. Ashley and company, in a laughable and clever boxing act, Next, Please, score well; the Warsaw Bros., in a musical comedy act, are highly amusing; and Payne's Pictures finish a meritorious programme.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. de Frece; General-Director, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—The programme submitted here this week is of excellent quality. The Six Bros. Luck, in their original pantomime, Hotel Grande, are screamingly funny; Mr. A. G. Spry is the quintessence of drollery; Miss Violet Carlyle, in her capital scena, My Mountain Maid, is favourably received; E. R. Dainez's circus is a very popular turn; Susie and Protti, whirlwind dancers, give an extremely good terpsichorean act; Francini, Olloni, and Page, Continental comedy instrumentalists, are clever in Une Soirée Musicale; Miss Harriett Vernon, burlesque actress, has a flattering reception; Mr. Dan Robans is a capable vocalist; Miss Florence Somer, a dainty comedienne; and the Hippodrome pictures complete the bill.

RAMSGATE. — AMPHITHEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Bowman.—The Alliance Bioscope combination of animated pictures and clever variety turns fill the bill at the Amphitheatre this week, the performances being much enjoyed by the audiences. Messrs. G. Egerton Burnett and Harry Tindell, who introduce the show, are to be congratulated on its excellence. The variety turns are by Le Brun and Mlle Irena, jugglers and equilibrists; Little Edie, talented child vocalist; and Miss Katie Kyrle, vocalist, whose songs are illustrated by means of dissolving lantern view. The Amphitheatre has, during the past fortnight, been thoroughly cleaned and overhauled, and now presents quite a smart appearance.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Ramsgate Corporation; Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jules Richeux.—A Fool's Paradise, staged in first-rate style by Mr. Wylie A. Thompson's clever company, has constituted the attraction here this week. Miss Laura Hansen gives evidence of the possession of splendid histrionic power in the rôle of Beatrice Selwyn; and Miss Margery Chard plays finely as Kate Derwent. Mr. Cecil Wynne makes a delightful study of the part of the physician, Sir Peter Lund; and Mr. Arthur Claremont impersonates Lord Normantower with admirable effect. The juvenile parts of the Hon. Tom Verinder and Mildred Selwyn are capably sustained by Mr. Wylie A. Thomson and Miss Hilder Stericker respectively; while Mr. J. Henry Twyford effectively portrays Philip Selwyn, the husband of Beatrice. A Fool's Paradise is preceded each evening by the curtain-raiser An April Shower.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor Mr. Milton Bode; Mr. George Dance's Variety Season, Manager, Mr. E. J. Macdermott.—A specially attractive programme is provided for the Ascot Race week. Henry Coutts and company present a very clever sketch entitled Outflanked, in which a variety of marvellously quick transformations are introduced: Mr. and Mrs. Lucas display much artistic ability in their interpretation of Scenes from Dickens; the Cumberlands performs some agile and clever feats as trick cyclists; the Stella troupe of speciality dancers are again well received; Mr. A. W. Scott, coon delineator and dancer, gives a good turn; and Nettie Starr is a pleasing comedienne. The entertainment closes, as usual, with some excellent pictures on Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hogue.—The Octoroon occupies the boards here this week, and finds great favour with the popular parts of the house. Mr. Hugh Montgomery submits a powerful impersonation of Salem Scudder; Mr. J. O. Stewart cleverly impersonates the unscrupulous Jacob M'Closky; Mr. Oliver Birrell makes the most of George Peyton; and Mr. Harry Leander is a typical old negro as Pete. Miss Marie Harcourt is all that could be desired as Dora Sunnyside; Miss Florence Thorne is capital in the part of Mrs. Peyton; and the title-rôle is enacted by Miss Leslie Warner, whose spirited acting was greatly appreciated.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Co.—Pringle's North American Animated Picture Company is still here drawing large houses. Capital pictures of varied descriptions are shown on the screen, with variety turns at intervals by Hector and Sultan, comedy sketch artists, and Three Tivoli Girls, duettists and dancers.

EMPIRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves. — Animated pictures by the Empire Bioscope are the chief feature here this week. A capital series is submitted, which the audience thoroughly appreciate. The Markies, musical comedy sketch, and Mollie Malone, Irish comedienne, also appear with success.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—The Best Must Win, by Myles Wallerton and Frances Gilbert, is this week presented by Valentine Beadon's company. Mr. Sidney C. Cranston (who is the general-manager) successfully portrays the hero, Paul Dumaresq; and the villain, Gaston, is ably sustained by Mr. Graham Woods. Much fun is contributed by Mr. J. D. Clyde as Minos; Mr. A. H. Menzies as Jacques Courcel and Miss D. Humphreys as Suzette. Miss Marie Robson undertakes the dual rôles of Terese and Lucelle with distinction; Miss Marie Menzies plays Denise with advantage; Mr. G. H. Child gives a fine study of the old soldier Sabertache; Miss Dorothy Lane is successful as La Marquise de Marcel.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson. — Miss Daisy Dormer is a charming artist, who gets much applause for her songs and dancing; the vaudeville entertainers, the Courtiers (eight), under the direction of Paul Mills, are very clever singers; Ariel and Astarte are smart aerial gymnasts; Brothers Curran, in farce, Taking the Census; Cull-Pitt, assisted by Adele, in clever illusion tricks and patter; Spencer and Marks, in their sketch, The Stage-Struck Waifs; Charles Coverdale, eccentric comedian; and Charles Rowen, comedian, also appear.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead.—A very pretty musical scena, called The Enchanted Garden, by the Zerbinis troupe of seven, is enthusiastically applauded. The wonderful illusion, "So-da," mystifies the audience; Gustave's Royal Pierrots (five ladies and five gentlemen) do some very good business; "There's going to be a show" is a smart moulding in clay and sand act by Gravetta and Parr; topical songs by Harry Barclay, smart juggling and good dancing by the Sisters Belmont, Mme. Collard's scene with trained boarhounds as lions and tigers also give much pleasing entertainment.

SCARBOROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs. Henry Mayhew; Manager, Mr. Fred P. Morgan.—Miss Augusta Tullock and company, in The End Crowns All, are playing here this week. Miss Tullock gives an able portrayal of Vera Romaine; Mr. Arthur Plummer as Lord Lyndhurst makes a capital hero; Mr. Roy Milton as Prince Borinsky acts with considerable power; Miss Amber Wyville as Lola Ivanovitch sings creditably; and Mr. Hugh Travers as Nicholas Boris does well. All the other parts are in excellent hands.

AQUARIUM.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—The chief attraction here this week is Stylo, who produces effective results from hoop manipulation; Mlle. Corri sings character songs with good effect; Mlle. Rosa is a clever dancer; the Neilsons submit a duologue, entitled Silly Billy; Miss Dolly Andrews, comedienne, is very pleasing; and Arthur Stratton has a humorous sketch, while Fred Duxbury, elocutionist, also appears. Mme. Levante's orchestra of ladies play selections during the day.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Zalva.—Taylor and May, coloured duettists and dancers, show great skill; Sam Dalton, comedian, is full of humour; Lillian Travelli sings agreeably, and Carr and Rose please with their speciality turn. The animated pictures prove most interesting.

SHEERNESS. — THE PALACE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond.—An excellent all-round company is here. Daddy Breezer is very funny, and causes roars of laughter; The Slavey on Strike has made a big hit; Mr. Phil Reymond is still to the fore as a first-class vocal comedian and character actor; Miss Topsy Levane is a capital low comedy artist and an expert dancer; and the Crown Sketch Company concludes with the laughable A Fight for a Wife.

SHEFFIELD. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr. Harry Roxbury's company opened to a good house on Monday in A Little Vagrant. Mr. J. W. Gallighar caused roars of laughter as Slideaway Bates, and Miss Vashti Wynne, Mr. Cecil Collins, and the other artists were all successful in their respective parts.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Mr. Charles Harrington and his celebrated combination, in Uncle Tom's Cabin, are meeting with their usual success this week. Mr. Harrington repeats his amusing impersonation of Phineas Fletcher, and the other characters are well played. In the third act a very entertaining plantation concert is introduced, in which the coloured members of the company greatly distinguish themselves.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan P. Dunbar.—A house packed from floor to ceiling welcomed Mr. Fred Karno's talented company on Monday in the new farcical absurdity in three scenes, The Bailiff, with Mr. Fred Kitchen, the genial comedian, in one of his quaint and inimitable comic creations. A charming little extravaganza is performed by Miss Lennie and Mr. Hast, the talent of the artists being helped by beautiful scenery and effects. D'Arc's wonderful variety marionettes are enthusiastically applauded and very cordially received are Mr. Charles Norton, an original mimic and comedian; Mr. Tom Wootwell, an old favourite; Mr. and Mrs. Finden, sketch artists; Fred and Parly, hand balancers; Starr and Leslie, vocalists and jugglers, &c.

CENTRAL HALL.—Proprietors, Jasper Redfern, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Fred W. Holmes.—"Forty Winks," "A Brigand's Story," and other new films are well received this week, and smart turns are done by Jack Renson and Miss Rose Waite, two old local favourites; the two Balzens, in a novel act; and Mr. Leonard Bean.

FITZALAN HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Edward Ranier.—In addition to the stock dramas Professor Bluett, a clever conjurer, is appearing to good audiences nightly.

SOUTHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—The attraction this week is Mr. John Humphries' company in First-Class. Mr. Humphries, in the part of Dan, a miser, beggar, and thief, acts admirably; and another favourite member of the company is Mr. Bay Russell, who is seen to great advantage as Jack Stroud.

PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell. — R. A. Roberts, the protean artist, is starring here in Dick Turpin, and he meets with a cordial reception. Other excellent turns are given by Lanos and Montes, Continental eccentrics; Les Sados, juggler; Rell and Butt, patterists and dancers; the Lombardi duo, operatic vocalists; Vere and Royal, comedy artists; Ethel Arundell, serio, and Master Carr, juvenile comedian and dancer.

HIPPODROME. — Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. P. Howell.—The Albert and Edmunds comedy troupe top the list, and evoke continuous laughter with their sketch, The First Mrs. Banbury. Another popular feature of the bill is the irresponsible trifle submitted by Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas, entitled Her Birthday; Helen Charles is a delightful society entertainer; and Tina Clementa's horse and dogs are remarkably clever. Resau's trio of equilibrists are smart; the Sisters Charnley, duettists and dancers; Lottie Collard and Nellie Dunbar, comediennes, also appear.

PIER PAVILION.—Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Sait.—The Hollanders, a merry and bright concert party directed by Mr. Leslie Gaze, provide the attraction here this week, and their original entertainment, given in dainty Dutch costumes, proves very attractive.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power—Mr. John Leopold and company are here with New Frivolity. Mr. Watson Hume gives an agreeable impersonation of Oliver Buckwheat. Mr. John Leopold, jun., who takes the rôle of Daniel Teething in creditable style, sings well and thoroughly deserves the hearty recall accorded him for his smart and clever dance with Miss Amy Hall, the later artist giving entire satisfaction as Lucy Buckwheat. Mr. Willie Leopold imparts a vigorous portrayal

Lloyd was a manly Leonard Murray; Mr. Owen Edwin as Bobbie Vane and Mr. Elton Morgan as Glory were both very amusing; Miss Flo Norman as Phyllis assisting with them in several laughable scenes; and Miss Annie Hylton as the heroine proved herself an accomplished artist.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Vic Carnell.—Charles Majilton and company of comedians are here in the evergreen comedy, Round the Clock. Arthur Kennedy is undoubtedly one of the finest trick cyclists that have appeared at this house; Jenny Hartley is a clever dancer; Cim Maree a contortionist of exceptional ability; Gladys Williams is amusing in a burlesque lecture, Man; and Jules Kiora is a clever hand balancer.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun.—This week we have The Manxman, the fine impersonation of Pete by Mr. Alfred B. Cross commanding everyone's appreciation. Miss Minnie Watersford acts impressively as Kate Cregeen; and Nancy has a capable representative in Miss Nellie Freeland. Mr. Sydney C. Kearns is thoroughly effective in the character of Philip Christian; and Mr. Frank Etheridge gives a clever portrayal of Cæsar Cregeen.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Black.—The Edgertons, trapeze artists, accomplish some daring feats. Among others are Miss Agnes Molteno, in a charming scena, Dolly and a Coach; W. B. Raby, a comedian with tuneful songs; Sam Redfern, with his amusing patter; the Collier and his Child (Retsyl and Myra), in a clever second-sight performance; Miss Alice May and company, in a laughable sketch, Tranquillity, in which Miss May shows marked versatility; the Belmont Sisters, pleasing comediennes and dancers; the Maritana Opera company, in scenes from Il Trovatore and The Bohemian Girl.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—HIPPODROME THEATRE.—General-Manager, Robt. A. Nicholson; Assistant Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—The Stein Eretto troupe of acrobats provide a fine entertainment; J. C. Scatter is a popular comedian here, and is greatly appreciated; Maggie Walsh is a delightful soprano vocalist; and Ingram and Irving present a highly amusing sketch, The New Office Boy. The Musical Palmers are also well received; the Saletos present an elaborate gymnastic act; the Dancing Gilberts are a pair of artistic dancers; the Hartleys are an excellent troupe of acrobats, and the pictures are very humorous.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Councillor J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—Fred Curran, the comedian, has made an immense hit here; Oswald Williams provides an elaborate illusionary show, and is both amusing and interesting. Jennie Johns is one of the most delightful artists witnessed here, and is greatly admired; Bugler Carr provides a pleasant entertainment as a bugler; and the Days, second-sight seers, offer a sensational turn. Helene and Emilion are greatly admired in their gymnastic entertainment, and William Gourlay is a very funny comedian. The pictures are very humorous.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. J. H. Miller.—Mr. H. Leslie Bell presents Miss Lily Pearl and company in the New York Society sketch The Red Letter, which is most interesting. Daisy Jerome scores a huge success in her songs; A. E. Clifford is a capital vocalist; the Sivanes, in their comedy act, are well received; Harry Tate's company in Motoring causes screams of laughter; Ada Parker is a good coon singer; Chas. Lestree is a juggler with much ability; and the Bioscope shows some capital pictures.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Stevens and Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Carlo.—A rare treat is being offered to Wearsiders this week by the visit of Mrs. T. Greenwood-Croft's company in The Idler. Mr. Phillip Cunningham plays Mark Cross with dignity, smoothness, and polish. Mr. Stephen T Ewart, in the trying character of Ivo John Harding, comes through the ordeal with infinite credit. Mr. Wm. Attfield gives an unconventional rendering of the American millionaire, Simeon Strong; and Mr. Reginald Myers is efficient as Bennett. Mrs. T. Greenwood-Croft sustains the rôle of Lady Harding with great finish; Miss Celia Gordon, as Mrs. Cross, is deserving of more than passing mention, her histrionic ability calling for praise; Mr. C. W. Spencer submits a capital study of General Merryweather; and in Miss Zoe Davis is found a captivating Kate Merryweather. Miss Lucy Edwin is advantageously placed as Mrs. Glym-Stanmore.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Theatre Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—Mr. Chas. Watson Mills' A Wrecker of Men company occupies the boards here this week. Mr. Eric Campbell simply rollicks in the part of Jim Murley, the slogger; Mr. Percy Horton is well placed as Guise Strange; as is also Mr. Thompson Curruthers as Eric Melville. Mr. Milner Noble as Pharosaphus the Egyptian, and Mr. Leslie Ross as the Hon. Reggie Verincourt are adequate. Miss Ruth Zillwood invests the trying part of Risca Mallison with distinction. Miss Gwendoline Talbot is exceedingly pleasing as Doris Melville; and Miss Beatrice Reynolds is amusing as the slavey, Vavasole Slopper.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Alfred Browne and Syd. B. Stringer.—The programme this week includes the Ten Loonies in their lively musical sketch, Dotty, which has a tremendous reception; Johnson and Wells, clever coloured vocalists and dancers, are invariably well received; the Fordyces are a neat and nimble pair of entertainers; Russell Carr has a soldier automaton in his ventriloquistical turn. The bill also includes Claire Greta, vocalist and dancer; the Kirbys, in an amusing absurdity sketch; Alec Kendal, patter comedian; and the usual display of bioscopic pictures.

SWANSEA.—THE GRAND.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Brooks and Woodbridge; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Dean.—An admirable presentation of The Tyranny of Tears is given this week by Mr. Norman MacOwan's company. Mr. Arthur Somers is to be congratulated on his excellent impersonation of Mr. Parbury, the literary man, whilst Miss Mary Masters, as Mrs. Parbury, adds considerably to her reputation. The versatility of Mr. Norman MacOwan is further proved by his able rendering of the part of Mr. George Gunning. As Miss Hyacinth Woodward Miss Violet Sterne plays with a depth of feeling that ensures the plaudits of the audience. Mr. Murray Hathorn, as Colonel Armitage, is one of the successes of the evening; Mr. Robert Entwhistle as Evans, the butler, is really good; and Miss Isabel Hathorn makes the most of the maid, Caroline.

STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. P. Powell.—The drama, Under the Russian Flag, is well received here. Mr. Jack Haddon, as Captain Demetrius, is supremely good. Miss Violet Lytton, as Vera Vassiloff, is a great success. Joan Romanoff was cleverly presented by Mr. Charles Stafford. Miss Marie Rayner is capital as Luka Marischla. Mr. Edward Avinal, as Wolf Marischla, is excellent. The comedy of the piece was well sustained by Miss Molly Hackett, Mr. Hal Forde, and Mr. Templer Ellis.

EMPIRES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. Mitchell; Assistant-Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe.—The wonderful Craggs, who top the bill here this week, combine skill and comedy to an astonishing degree. Joe O'Gorman is, as usual, a huge success. The Three Sisters Sprightly provide a brisk and bright turn. Some excellent violin-playing, together with harp and xylophone selections, stamp Les Frasettles as high-class musicians. George Ridgwell has an excellent baritone voice which he uses well. A clever ventriloquial turn is contributed by David Poole. The Moulier Sisters display wonderful prowess on the horizontal bar, and Will Musgrave, comedian, is a host in himself. The Bioscope has some excellent films.

TON-Y-PANDY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth.—Hackenschmidt heads the programme here, and his fine physique and excellent bouts meet with great favour. The St. Johns, musical experts, provide a smart turn; while the Alskarno Trio are clever Risley artists. The Woollhafs also merit much approbation; and the same remark applies to the Moncktons in their sketch.

TORQUAY.—PRINCESS PIER CONCERT HALL.—Proprietors, The Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. A. T. Tremlett.—The Medleys are paying a return visit here this week. Miss Ada Gaskill renders some songs in dainty fashion, and also does well in a duet with Mr. Geo. Blackmore, who is amusing in his humorous songs. Mr. J. M. Campbell provokes much merriment in his sketches, and Mr. Francis Ludlow has a good baritone voice. Mr. Geo. Swaine is an efficient accompanist; Mr. Wallis Arthur also does well.

TYNEMOUTH. — PALACE-BY-THE-SEA.—Proprietor, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.—The bill here this week is headed by Gillin, a humorist and ventriloquist of considerable ability; M. Loudoun Cameron, magician, also contributes an interesting turn; Mary Ambrose, vocalist and violinist, is well received; Eugene and Willy contribute a capital musical act; the Brothers Cress, acrobatic grotesques, perform many wonderful feats; Mr. Travers this week introduces a new aspirant for stage honours, namely, Wilfred Bernand, who proves himself to be a character impersonator of no mean order. The evening entertainment winds up with a good show of animated pictures.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—At the World's Mercy is presented here this week by Mr. Cairn Loates and company. Mr. J. R. Murray gives a capital rendering as Jabez; Mr. G. D. Knight does well as Morris Goldstein; Mr. Jess Boxer is seen to advantage as Charles Smart; and Mr. W. H. Irving proves efficient as Stoneling Sam; Mr. Carr Loates gives a clever and convincing portrayal as Captain Frank Manley; Miss Madge Devereux is an able exponent of Alice Lloyd; Miss Minnie Dalton is effective as Mrs. Roukes; Miss Cissie Milford gives a clever impersonation in the dual rôles of Skittles and Keitty, a music-hall star; and Miss A. Hunter is pleasing as Rosie.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Messrs. O'Connor and Brady, old favourites here, create much merriment; Miss Georgina Leonard is an attractive comedienne; Tony Iveson, tramp musician, wins applause; James Shingleton, singing collier, sings with telling effect; Allen McAskell, conjurer, takes well; and Clarke and Glenny, in The Haunted House, rouse much mirth; Richard Finberg displays ability as a character actor.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd. General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—All-round attractiveness marks this week's programme, which is headed by Arthur Lennard, character vocalist, in his latest successes; the Three Sisters Chester, banjoists, vocalists, and dancers, meet with a good reception; Barrett and Knowles, patter comedians; the Lafaille Troupe, in a clever equilibristic act; the Regals; Minna Merry, eccentric comedian; Harry Edson and his wonderful dogs, are all highly appreciated. The American Bioscope completes the bill.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—Coram, the ventriloquist, makes his re-appearance, and increased patronage has been the order. Stelling and his clown-dog Kiswaski supply a capital turn, and Bonnetti and Corrie are clever comic jugglers. Eileen and Marjorie are smart patterers, and Mac and Hill good comedians. Lily Flexmore also does well, and the Bioscope is showing Pathé's films.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—Miss Emma Lichfield's company, in A Clever Impostor, is here. Miss Lichfield in a quartet of characters is a great success, her acting throughout creating a deep impression. Mr. Stuart Cleveland, in the rôle of Manuel Teixeira, is powerful; the comedy, which is allotted to Mr. Edward Swinton as Jim Brightside and Miss Florence Gomer as Annie Pleasant, is enjoyable; and Captain Desmond has a capital representative in Mr. Arthur Mervyn.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson. — Marvelle and May's performing cockatoos and macaws give a wonderful performance; the Maples, in a speciality, How to Treat a Burglar, are responsible for many aching sides; much amusement is afforded by Larola, "the funny man with funny ways"; the dog show and table act by Abdy and Bushman is a smart turn; there is much that is original in the comedy act, In the Studio; Mulvey and Miriam fully deserve the applause awarded them; Will Johnson, the lively comedian, repeats his success; Rose Cabini is a dainty comedienne; and Daisy Martelle is smart.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE. — Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—The United English Opera Company is making its first appearance here this week. On Monday night The Daughter of the Regiment was staged. Mr. F. S. Gilbert is in excellent voice, and gave a fine interpretation of Tony. Mr. J. Kneale Campbell as Sergeant Sulpice, Mr. H. Blagrave as Bruno, Mr. T. Hamilton as the Corporal are commendable. Miss Doris Gilbert is thoroughly artistic as Marie; as the Countess of Berkenfeldt Miss Evelyn Gilbert is entitled to commendation; and Miss Kate White is good as Babette.

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. John H. Stevenson.—The Dandies are paying a most welcome return visit here. Miss Josephine Gordon is heard to much advantage in For a Dream's Sake. Miss Mabel Carlton sings with artistic effect, "Pussy had another sardine." Mr. Stephen Fitzgerald's humorous items fairly bring down the house. Mr. Henry J. Corner's musical monologue, "Devil ma' care," proves a rare treat. The selections played by Herr Kändt's Austrian Blue Band are rapturously encored; and some very fine pictures are shown on the Lens Bioscope.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co. — Mr. Morton Powell's company is here in The Woman Who Gambles. The title-rôle is played with great emotion and effect by Miss Lilian Herries. Miss Dora Thrale, as Cora Gouldhart, is also an admirable exponent of the character; Mr. Geo. Steele as Count Otto Steinbach, Mr. Percy Ballard as Baron Cratzlaw, and Mr. Reginald Fox as Lieutenant Carl Ctzarteriski all give powerful representations of their parts.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. Charles La Trobe's company opened here for the first three nights with Jedbury Junior. Mr. Edward Ouston is good as Christopher Jedbury, sen.; Miss Joan Wellman is well placed as Mrs. Jedbury; Mr. A. W. Tyrer gives a manly delineation of the character of Christopher Jedbury, jun.; Miss Dorothy Rowen is a winsome Nelly; Mr. George Raines characteristically enacts the part of Whimper; Mr. Claude Vernon does well as Job; Mr. Frank Stoney is a typical soldier as Major Hedway; Miss Victoria Addison is excellent as Dora, and soon installs herself as favourite; Mr. Reginald Craven as Mr. Glib is funny; Mr. George Percy is very good as the scheming Mr. Simpson; Mr. Richard Neville makes a good character as Tom Bellamy; while Miss Leonora Thomas is all that could be desired as Mrs. Glibb. On Thursday Mr. Jerrard Grant Allen's Co. presented The New Boy.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. C. W. Collings.—The chief attraction here this week are Yorick and Yorick, in their eccentric acrobatic performance; and the Three Royal Temples, operatic vocalists, including Mme. Louis Gilbert, a brilliant soprano. They are ably assisted by Luke and Logan, in a screaming absurdity, The Waiter; and by Wallie Gilbert, a capable descriptive vocalist; while the animated tableaux are as pleasing as usual.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—The Sporting King is being played by Messrs. Whitlock and Rutter's company. The former plays exceedingly well as Joe Brave, and Miss G. V. France gives a winning portrayal of his daughter. The villainies of Renard are fully maintained by Mr. Leonard Yorke, and the humorous element is in the safe hands of Mr. Alfred Terriss and Miss Eva Reed.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—Wilbur Hill and Willette Walker are an amazingly clever couple, and have proved a great attraction this week. Hilton is a ventriloquist of much merit; and Dolly Denver is a smart little lady, whose energy never seems to flag. The House of Tinn, as played by J. Gar Kiddie's company is amusing; and Bertha Duckett, Talberto and Douglas, Allan and Hart, and the Bioscope complete the bill.

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, MAY 14.—Mr. J. C. Williamson revived Monsieur Beaucaire at the Theatre Royal on the 11th, with Mr. Julius Knight as the bête noire of Beau Nash and the Bath water drinkers. The actor has acquired polish and accent through his recent visit to England, and his Beaucaire was good. Miss Elbert-Orton made a distinct advance in public favour by her admirable acting as Lady Mary Carlisle, and justified her position as leading lady. Mr. Harry Plimmer made the Duke of Winterset a strong characterisation, arrogant and unscrupulous. Mr. Herbert Bentley was a manly Major Molyneux; and Mr. Denniston got all fun possible out of the lines allotted to Mr. Rakel. The mounting was Williamsonian.

"THE WALLS OF JERICHO" is a trump card with the Brough-Flemming company at the Palace, for Miss Beatrice Day and Mr. Herbert Flemming give of their very best in art and nature as Lady Alethea and Jack Frobisher, the autocratic wife and Queensland squatter husband. We had also again Miss Bessie Major as the Duchess of Syke, Miss Madeline Meredith as Lady Westerby, Miss Kate Gair as Lady Derenham, and Miss Mary Milward as Lady Parchester. Mr. Norman McKeown again replaced the late Mr. Robert Brough with signal success; and Messrs. Edgar B. Payne, Carter Pickford, and J. Paulton had their old places in the cast. Next come three nights of Quality Street, and then we are to see Olivia, from Sir Henry Irving's own specially marked manuscript.

"MOTHER GOOSE" has been running ever since Christmas Eve, and seats are still booked days ahead. When Mr. Williamson sends this pantomime away from Her Majesty's to New Zealand, its place will be taken by the Royal Comic Opera Company.

AT the Criterion, Mr. William Anderson is still running Honor Thy Father; but at the end of the week a new play, by Edmund Duggan and Bert Bailey, called The Squatter's Daughter, will be staged with all the necessary Australian colouring.

THE Tivoli has new-comers. The best are Miss Doris Tindall and Mr. Don Royall, who do a military song and dance; and Miss Elsie Brown made her Australian debut as a serio-comic songstress. The Bicknells came back, and were rapturously welcomed; and Charlene and Charlene continue to make folks wish that their stay will not soon come to an end. Emil Anniel, Fred Bluett, Bijou Russell, Nellie Kilburn, Harold Reeve, and a heap more talent, provide Mr. Harry Rickards' supporters with money's worth every time.

WEST'S Pictures and the Brescians turn money away every night from the Lyceum, and, so far, no note of departure is sounded. Mr. Joe Brown is the business manager.

THE National Amphitheatre has new-comers in the shape of Miss Winnie Bond, a charming song-and-dance exponent, and Mr. Albert McKisson, who is an expert knockabout comedian. Mr. J. C. Bain, who is also manager, is a great favourite in his well-selected budget of songs; and a long list of artists is provided by Mr. Brennan.

HERR GERARD VOLLMAR, for over fifteen years in Australia as a first-class violoncellist, died on the 3rd inst., and was accorded a funeral from Paling's Concert Room on the 6th. He was forty-five years old.

MR. JOHN A. DELANEY, the best all-round musician in New South Wales, died on the 11th, and was buried on the 13th in Waverley Cemetery. He was fifty-five years old, and, from his earliest youth, was connected with St. Mary's Cathedral, where he was organist and conductor to the last. Mr. Delaney has also been conductor of opera companies, the Sydney Liedertafel, and Philharmonic Society. All the resident musicians attended his funeral, and thousands lined the streets.

MELBOURNE, MAY 13. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. Bland Holt; Business-Manager, Mr. Simonsens. — The powerful melodrama The White Heather continues to attract large audiences. The acting of Mr. Bland Holt's talented company is quite up to the standard. Notwithstanding the success achieved by The White Heather, Mr. Holt will adhere to his rule of giving playgoers quick changes of bill, consequently the run of the present production is limited to a few more nights only. It is understood Mrs. Bland Holt will leave for a trip to England early in July.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon.—On Saturday evening King and Benson made their reappearance for a short farewell season, and met with a flattering reception. Fred Russell continues prime favourite with his inimitable partner, Coster Joe; Leonard Nelson has leapt into popular favour with his illustrated songs; Frank Hartley has introduced some new juggling items into his turn; Mr. V. L. Granville impersonates characters from various well-known plays with great success; while Gracie Grahame, Art Slavin, the Three Gibson Girls, Miss Lyons, little Marjorie Bray, Addie Leigh, Grace Compton, Will Lochrane, and a host of others add to the success of the performance.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Joe Solomons.—Kavanagh, the boy juggler, made his first appearance on Saturday, and met with a good reception. Miss Ailsa Sherbrooke, soprano, also appeared for the first time, and charmed all with her singing. New turns were presented by George Sparks, Clara Keating, Claude Sullivan, Ettie Williams, Fred Garnett, Frank Yorke, the Crystals, George Jones, and Fred Ireland; while a series of new Biograph pictures called forth loud applause.

ATHENÆUM HALL. — Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Marsh.—The series of Biograph pictures, entitled "Living Scotland," are proving highly successful, the hall being filled nightly. The pictures are undoubtedly some of the finest we have had in Melbourne, and are almost entirely devoid of any "flicker' In addition to the "Living Scotland" series, a number of humorous pictures are shown, which meet with great approval. Mme. Carreno, the celebrated pianist, will inaugurate a short season at the Town Hall on Monday evening next, under the management of Herr Benno Sherek. The Glaciarium is proving a source of delight to all lovers of ice-skating, the attendances both during the day-time and at night being very large.

FARQUHAR THE DRAMATIST.

It was doubtless in 1705, says Mr. William Archer, in his admirably-written and very scholarly and pithy Introduction to Mr. T. Fisher Unwin's "Mermaid Series" edition of George Farquhar's plays, that Farquhar's military duty took him to Shrewsbury, in search of recruits for Marlborough's army. He was well received, he tells us, by the local magnates, whose kindness made recruiting, "which is the greatest fatigue upon earth to others," the greatest pleasure in the world to him. He seems to have returned in good spirits: for the comedy which he founded on his experiences abounds more than any of his other plays in the joy of life. The Recruiting Officer was produced at Drury Lane on April 8, 1706. With it Farquhar's luck revived, so far as the theatre was concerned. "The Duke of Ormond," he writes, "encouraged the author, and the Earl of Orrery approved the play. My recruits were reviewed by my general and my colonel and could not fail to pass muster." Genest says the play was "acted ten times," but its success was far greater than this figure would indicate. It at once became one of the stock comedies of the English theatre. When, in the autumn of 1706, the leading members of Rich's company went over to Swiney at the new Haymarket Theatre, the two houses played it against each other. Most of the original cast were now at the Haymarket; but Rich advertised that "the true Serjeant Kite"—that is Estcourt, whom Steele so warmly praises in the part—was to be seen at Drury Lane alone. Genest mentions fifteen notable revivals of the play, the last taking place at Covent Garden in 1829; but, as a matter of fact, the comedy was constantly being revived, whether in London or the provinces, throughout the eighteenth century. Contemporary gossip identified the leading characters of the play with local notabilities of Shropshire; but their names mean nothing to the modern reader.

The success of The Recruiting Officer, unfortunately, did not fill Farquhar's exchequer. A "pretended patron," said to have been the Duke of Ormond, advised him to supply his present wants by selling his commission, and promised "to provide for him"—that is, to give to him another commission—in a very short time. Farquhar acted on this advice and paid his creditors; but the patron was so dilatory in carrying out his part of the arrangement that the poet sank into dire poverty. The sequel may be given in the words of Thomas Wilks, who professed to have had the account from Colley Cibber:—

"Mr. Farquhar was a constant attendant on the theatre; but Mr. Wilks, having missed him there for upwards of two months, went to the house where he lodged in York Buildings to inquire for him, and was informed that he had left it, but could not learn where he lived. Mr. Wilks a few days after received a letter from Farquhar desiring to see him at his lodgings in St. Martin's-lane. Wilks went there and found him in a most miserable situation, lodged in a back garret, and under the greatest agitation of mind. Wilks inquired the reason of his distress, and Farquhar acquainted him with the whole affair [of the commission]. . . . Wilks advised him to write a play, and that it should be brought on the stage with all expedition. 'Write!' says Farquhar; 'it is impossible that a man can write common sense who is heartless, and has not a shilling in his pocket.' 'Come, George,' replied Wilks, 'banish melancholy, draw your drama, and I will call on you this day week to see it; but as an empty pocket may cramp your genius, I desire you will accept of my mite'—and gave him twenty guineas. Mr. Farquhar immediately drew up the drama of The Beaux' Stratagem, which he delivered to Mr. Wilks, and it was approved by him and the managers, and finished in six weeks. Mr. Farquhar, during his writing this play, had a settled sickness on him, and most part of it he wrote in his bed, and before he had finished the second act he perceived the approaches of death. The first night that it was performed, his good friend Mr. Wilks came to give him an account of its great success. . . . On the third night of its being performed, which was for his benefit, he died, which was the last week in April, 1707. Among his papers was found the following note directed to Mr. Wilks, viz.:—

"'DEAR BOB,—I have not anything to leave thee to perpetuate my memory, but two helpless girls; look upon them sometimes, and think on him that was to the last moment of his life thine,

'G. FARQUHAR.'

"He was buried in the church of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, at the expense of Mr. Wilks."

There is no reason to doubt the substantial accuracy of this account, though the death of the author on the very night of his benefit is probably a concession to the common taste for apt coincidences. Genest gives March 8 as the date of the first performance, and although we do not know his authority, it was probably trustworthy. The statement that Farquhar died in the last week in April is borne out by the register of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, which records the burial, on May 3, of "Mr. George Falkwere." Thus there would be a good seven weeks between the production and the author's death; and this is all the more probable as there was certainly time for him to write a prefatory note to the first edition of the play, speaking of its established success, and praising its representation ("which cannot be matched") in such terms as to suggest that the writer had actually seen it. It is well-nigh impossible, at any rate, that this "advertisement" should have been written between the first representation and the third.

Wilks, it is said, secured a benefit for Farquhar's family, and apprenticed the two daughters to mantua-makers. But the widow seems to have died in great poverty, and the daughters to have sunk rather than risen in the social scale. One of them married a tradesman and died soon afterwards; the other was living so late as 1764, in the capacity, says Leigh Hunt, of a domestic servant. During the sixty and odd years of her life, how many managers and actors must her father's plays have helped to enrich!

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA. 1850—1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

LADY TRICK CYCLIST KILLED.

Before the eyes of her father and brothers, a German girl trick cyclist named Hildegard Morgenroth, aged fifteen and a half, belonging to the Aurora Troupe, was killed in the Belfast Hippodrome on Friday afternoon, June 14, while performing gratuitously in a Queen's College fête. The family acted together, and the girl had given expert cycling exhibitions ever since she was five. She met with the accident during her performance of the ride inside the teacup track—the climax of the act. Four of the men cycling in one direction supported the track in which she rode, and somehow she lost her balance and fell. Doctors in the audience at once attended to her, but she breathed her last behind the scenes before the ambulance sent for had arrived.

At once the curtain was rung down, and the manager announced the sad news and the cancellation of the night's performance. The audience, greatly shocked, passed out in silence. The father's grief was almost uncontrollable. The Dowager Lady Dufferin and others who were patrons of the fête deeply deplore the tragedy. The Auroras were recently performing at the London Hippodrome.

THE INQUEST.

At the inquest, held in the Belfast Recorder's Court on Saturday, before the City Coroner (Dr. James Graham), Mr. A. J. Lewis appeared for the proprietors of the Hippodrome, and Mr. C. W. Henderson, chairman of the directors, and Mr. H. T. Downs, general manager, were also in attendance. Mr. W. H. Davey, Barrister-at-Law, represented the Queen's College Fête Committee, and Head-Constable M'Guigan conducted the proceedings for the police.

The father of the deceased was present, but as he could not converse fluently in English, and was naturally much affected by the accident, he was not called as a witness.

Harry Morgenroth said he was a member of the Aurora troupe of cyclists, which also comprised his three brothers and the deceased, Hildegard Morgenroth, who was his sister. The latter was fifteen years of age, and had been performing on the stage since she was four years old. Witness said he took part in the matinée performances on the 14th inst., and saw his sister on the platform, which was raised in the usual way. She was riding in the cup-shaped track, when she came over the top and fell on her head. That was the first accident that had ever occurred during their performance.

To Mr. Lewis: The appliances used in the performance were the property of his father, and they took them about with them from theatre to theatre.

The Coroner: How long had the deceased been performing on that particular construction?

Witness: Since October last. She had been working on another track for about two years before. Continuing, witness said the machine was in perfect working order, and the accident did not occur through any defect in the appliances.

The Coroner: What height was the top of the cup from the ground?—About ten feet.

A Juror: Was she in perfect health?—Yes, she was very well.

The Coroner: Did she ever have a fall before?—Yes, once; but my father caught her. It was on the old track, and the present one is much safer.

Did you consider it safe?—Yes.

Speaking in German, the father intimated at this stage that the appliances were tested regularly at rehearsals in order to see if it was possible for the girl to fall out of the cup-shaped construction, and it was not; she was bound to fall inside.

Continuing, witness said he could not understand how the accident happened.

In answer to a juror, witness said deceased and her brothers cycled in the same direction, and not in opposite directions. He was of opinion that something must have blinded her for a moment, and caused her to fall.

The Coroner: Was she licensed for these performances?

Mr. Lewis: No license is required, as the girl was over fourteen.

Fred Wilby, stage-manager at the Hippodrome, stated that the performance given by the Aurora troupe was under the immediate management of the father, who superintended it. The turn lasted for about twelve minutes from beginning to finish. The last trick consisted of the girl being placed in a cup-shaped construction before it was lifted from the ground, and the four brothers, who were on bicycles, then raised it on their shoulders. On a signal being given, the male cyclists began to ride round the stage, and the girl also cycled round inside the cup. Half-way through the performance the father fired a revolver, and at the finish he blew a whistle as a signal for the girl inside to stop pedalling. There were three men, in addition to the father, on the stage, and when the whistle was blown they came to the assistance of the brothers. Witness was on the stage at the time of the of the accident. After the whistle had been blown, the girl seemed to lose her head and go up too high, with the result that the front wheel got out of the cup, and she fell to the ground, a distance of about ten feet. The width of the construction was forty feet at the top and about twenty feet at the bottom, and it was five feet high.

Mr. Harry Downs, the general-manager, was called, and asked by a juror if he could offer any explanation as to how the accident happened. Witness said he was at the top of the gallery at the time. He saw the bicycle running up, and did not think that the girl made the slighest effort to save herself. The accident happened in an instant, and the deceased did not go an inch away from where she fell out. At the time of the accident the cyclists were going about three miles an hour.

A Juror: Was the machine stopped with great suddenness, which might have precipitated the girl out?—No.

The Coroner inquired if the father of the deceased had any complaint to make against the management; and Mr. Morgenroth, who was weeping piteously, replied in the negative.

Dr. Kirkhope deposed that he was in the Hippodrome at the time of the accident. The girl was picked up unconscious, and in his opinion death was due to a fracture of the base of the skull.

The Coroner: Did you consider it a safe performance?—I think it was a trivial thing that caused the accident.

Asked as to his opinion of how the accident happened, witness said previous to performing the concluding feat the girl had been engaged in another trick which necessitated her standing on her head for some little time, and he thought that probably the circulation had not sufficient time to recover itself in the cranium. The slightest vibration of the handle-bar would affect the girl, and that might have caused the accident. Otherwise the performance was a perfectly safe one.

Dr. C. R. Harvey, Royal Victoria Hospital, said he agreed with the previous witness as to the cause of death.

Mr. Lewis did not think anyone could suggest that the unfortunate accident was in any way brought about by any defect in connection with the theatre. The place itself was perfectly equipped, and the entertainment was always of a high order. His intention was simply on behalf of those whom he represented to offer their sincerest and heartfelt sympathy to the parents and brothers of the deceased girl. It was terrible to think that one who was just on the threshold of life should be cut off so suddenly.

Mr. W. H. Davey said on behalf of the Executive Committee of the Queen's College Fête he wished to express the deep regret which they all felt at the unfortunate calamity. Their grief was intensified a hundredfold by the fact that that young life had been cut off in the midst of an entertainment which was in the interests of the college. As Mr. Lewis had stated, they intended devoting the entire proceeds to any object the parents might select as a memorial of their daughter.

The Coroner, in summing up, also expressed his sympathy with the bereaved family.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death, and added a rider to the effect that no blame was attached to anyone. They also expressed their sympathy with the parents and brothers of the deceased.

At the close of the inquiry the coroner mentioned that Dr. Kirkhope and Dr. Harvey had generously handed over their fees to the fund in aid of any memorial to the girl.

Mr. Downs said the family intended to retire from the business and return to Germany. They were in comfortable circumstances, and would not accept the money. He had been speaking to Mr. Davey on the matter, and they thought the best thing would be to do something in connection with the Royal Victoria Hospital

The proceedings then terminated.

Mr. Wal Grace, as a member of the company engaged at the Hippodrome, Belfast, on the occasion of the above shocking accident, adds the following additional items for the information of those particularly interested.

The unfortunate little lady when she fell was at once promptly attended to by medical men, who pronounced her quite dead from a broken neck.

She was immediately removed to the mortuary attached to the hospital, and I, as an executive member of the Variety Artists' Federation, was requested by the parents to at once make in their name all arrangements for her removal to Germany for burial. Messrs. Thos. Cook and Son, tourist agency, the undertakers (Messrs. Melville and Co., Ltd.), the Rev. Dr. Murphy (chaplain in Belfast to the Actors Union) were communicated with with the view to a memorial service being held in St. George's Church, Belfast, prior to the removal of the deceased from the city. The coroner promised to hold an early inquiry the following morning, and at the various halls and theatre in Belfast notices were put up that the memorial service would be held the following afternoon at 3.30, and inviting all sympathetic friends, artists, and others to follow the hearse containing the coffin from the hall to the church. The students of the Queen's College—the beneficiaries of the matinée—had already signified their intention of joining this procession from the hospital to the church, and to give the entire proceeds of the fund raised at the matinée to the friends of the deceased

The following remarkable and never-to-be-forgotten scene was the result of this arrangement of the procession. Two hundred students from the college followed the hearse from the hospital to the church, and were joined by the managers and the artists of the variety theatres and theatre, also the acting-managers, staffs, musicians, to the number of about 300, and by the citizens of the city (quite 2,000), who fell in behind, and Belfast saw a sight it had never before witnessed: a funeral cortége in Ireland with so many ladies following.

The church was nearly full on arrival of the sad procession. Room, however, had been reserved for the artists and immediate friends, and shortly afterwards the church was hushed to stillness as the grief-stricken father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Morgenroth, entered, accompanied by the four brothers, whose sorrow found an echo in the sobs of the entire congregation. The impressive scene when the mother dropped beside the coffin in an agonised shriek just as the last strains of Chopin's "Funeral March" died away can never be imagined.

The funeral service was in German and translated afterwards in English by Doctor Murphy. The choral service rendered by the largely-attended choir, and the soul-stirring address to the congregation will be remembered by all who were present, including Mr. Arthur Roberts, Mr. W. F. Frame, and Miss Florrie Gallimore.

After the ceremony in the church the coffin was removed to the s.s. Donegall, en route with the family to Germany.

It was covered with floral tributes, broken harps and wreaths, sent by students of the colleges, wreaths and floral designs from ladies and others who were in the audience and witnessed the accident; but what touched the hearts of the poor girl's family more than all were the huge wreath of immortelles in a glass shade, 2ft. by 3ft., subscribed for by the Belfast Hippodrome artists; another from manager Downs, and a magnificent "In Memoriam" book lying in a silver casket bearing the names of all the artists in Belfast, who assembled on the Palace stage early on Saturday morning by special request of Mr. Arthur Roberts, notified by Bro. Fred Elton, another fervent V.A.F., who assisted greatly in all the arrangements.

At this gathering (attended by 120) Mr. Arthur Roberts, in a loving and sympathetic address, alluded to the terrible accident, and the following resolution was proposed by Mr. Wal Grace, seconded by Mr. W. F. Frame, and carried in silence, all standing:—"That this meeting of artists visiting Belfast begs to express its profound grief and sorrow at the sad end of our little comrade, Hildegard Morgenroth, who, in the cause of charity, sacrificed her young life, and they respectively tender to her nearest and dearest their deep and respectful sympathy in their sad bereavement."

The boat containing the bereaved party and the coffin, which had been hermetically sealed up prior to removal, arrived at Heysham at 8 o'clock on Sunday morning, and proceeded (viâ London) direct to Berlin, where the relatives of the family reside.

Respectful thanks are certainly due to the management of the Hippodrome for at once closing the hall for their week-end, and for paying salaries in full to those artists, musicians, and members of the various staffs who so nobly responded to pay tribute on an occasion which was as remarkable for its heartfelt sympathy as for the suddenness which prompted it.

"KINDRED TIES" is the title of a new sketch written by Wilfred H. Benson, to be produced by Miss Freda Sharlotte at the Palace, Hammersmith, W., on July 1. In this production Miss Sharlotte engages with the heavy man in a very strong fight with swords. The scene is laid in the house of a wealthy Corsican countess, and the setting will be of an elaborate nature. Miss Sharlotte has engaged an exceptionally strong company to support her, including Mr. Stanley Grosvenor as the Count, whom she fights and finally kills.

MR. CHARLES CLIFFORD, the favourite harpist and vocalist, is in town looking fit and well. Having returned from a long tour of Scotland, Ireland, and Wales, he is now having a well-deserved rest before starting his next tour, commencing at Plymouth, following on to Bristol, Burnley, Bolton, Preston, Nottingham, and other English towns where he has been delighting the people for so many years past.

THE Dowager Duchess of Saxe Coburg Gotha, Princess Beatrice of Saxe Coburg Gotha, Princess Henry of Battenberg, and Prince Leopold of Battenberg were present at the performance of La Tosca at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, on Wednesday.

SIR WALTER SCOTT AND THE THEATRE.

In Lockhart's "Life of Sir Walter Scott" are included quotations from some of the many letters which Sir Walter wrote to Joanna Baillie. Particularly interested was he in the production of her drama, entitled The Family Legend, at the Edinburgh Theatre, in October, 1809, the play which five and a half years later was staged at Drury Lane.

In one of these letters to Joanna Baillie, who at this time was a resident of Hampstead, appears for the first time the name of a person who soon obtained a large share of Scott's regard and confidence—the comedian, Mr. Daniel Terry. Lockhart gives the following interesting particulars concerning this at one time well known actor:—"He had received a good education, and had been regularly trained as an architect, but abandoned that profession at an early period of life for the stage, and was now beginning to attract attention as a valuable and efficient actor in Henry Siddons's new company at Edinburgh. Already he and the Ballantynes were constant companions, and, through his familiarity with them, Scott had abundant opportunities of appreciating his many excellent and agreeable qalities. He had the manners and feelings of a gentleman. Like John Kemble, he was deeply skilled in the old literature of the drama, and he rivalled Scott's own enthusiasm for the antiquities of vertu. Their epistolary correspondence in after days was frequent, and will supply me with many illustrations of Scott's minor tastes and habits. As their letters lie before me, they appear as if they had all been penned by the same hand. Terry's idolatry of his new friend induced him to imitate his writing so zealously that Scott used to say, if he were called to swear to any document, the utmost he could venture to attest would be that it was either in his own hand or in Terry's. The actor, perhaps unconsciously, mimicked him in other matters with hardly inferior pertinacity. His small, lively features had acquired, before I knew him, a truly ludicrous cast of Scott's graver expression; he had taught his tiny eyebrows the very trick of the poet's meditative frown; and, to crown all, he so habitually affected his tone and accent that, though a native of Bath, a stranger could hardly have doubted he must be a Scotchman. These things afforded Scott and all their mutual acquaintances much diversion; but perhaps no stoic could have helped being secretly gratified by seeing a clever and sensible man convert himself into a living type and symbol of admiration."

Daniel Terry, architect, after five years' experience of office routine, became an actor. However, after playing a few minor parts, he again returned to his original pursuit, which he finally quitted in 1805, and joined the company of Mr. Stephen Kemble, then performing in some of the provincial towns in the North of England. With this company he remained until its dissolution in August, 1806, and gained in it considerable experience as an actor. It was in November, 1809, that he was engaged by Mr. Henry Siddons to lead the business at Edinburgh on the secession of Mr. Meggott. Whilst there he made the acquaintance of Mr. Ballantyne, the well-known publisher, and was by him introduced to Sir Walter Scott, who ever afterwards remained with him on the most friendly footing. In the summer of 1812 he was induced by the offer of an engagement at the Haymarket Theatre to take leave of his friends and the stage at Edinburgh, to court, what is ever the ultimatum of an actor's ambition, the favourable testimony of a London audience. He made his first appearance in London on the boards of the Haymarket on May 20, 1812, in the character of Lord Ogleby in The Clandestine Marriage, and was favourably received. He continued during this and the next season to play in succession a variety of old and new parts, with undiminished success. At the expiration of the second season he joined the Covent Garden company, and he remained at this theatre until some disagreement about remuneration induced him to go over to the rival establishment, then under the management of Elliston. Here he remained until 1825, when, in conjunction with Mr. Yates, he purchased the Adelphi Theatre, and this is one of the occasions alluded to, that Sir Walter proved himself "a friend indeed," becoming, it is said, his security for the payment of Mr. Terry's part of the purchase-money. This speculation was looked upon as a sound one, and the theatre continued to thrive for two seasons under their joint-management. Then unpleasant rumours of pecuniary embarrassments on the part of Mr. Terry (totally unconnected with Mr. Yates or the theatre, and, indeed, incurred previous to their partnership) began to attract so much public attention as to render a dissolution of their partnership necessary. This was accomplished, and Mr. Terry compounded in a handsome dividend with his creditors. After the settlement of his affairs, he was re-engaged at Drury Lane Theatre, and appeared there in the characters of Sir Peter Teazle and Peter Simpson; but his acting showed a considerable falling off, and through ill-health he was compelled to relinquish the engagement, and he died shortly afterwards.

Two letters written in November, 1814, give, says Sir Walter's biographer, "amusing sketches of his buoyant spirits at this period of gigantic exertion, and the first of them, which relates chiefly to Maturin's tragedy of Bertram, shows how he could still contrive to steal time for attention to the affairs of brother authors less energetic than himself."

The letter thus referred to was addressed from Abbotsford to Daniel Terry. Scott writes:—"I have been recommending to John Kemble (I dare say without any chance of success) to peruse a MS. tragedy of Maturin's (author of Montorio); it is one of those things which will either succeed greatly or be damned gloriously, for its merits are marked, deep, and striking, and its faults of a nature obnoxious to ridicule. He had our old friend Satan (none of your sneaking St. John-street devils, but the arch-fiend himself) brought on the stage bodily. I believe I have exorcised the foul fiend—for, though in reading he was a most terrible fellow, I feared for his reception in public. The last act is ill contrived. He divides the whole horrors of the catastrophe (though God wot there are enough of them) into a kind of drippity-droppity of four or five scenes, instead of inundating the audience with them at once in the finale, with a grand gardes l'eau. With all this, which I should say if I had written the thing myself, it is grand and powerful; the language most animated and poetical; and the characters sketched with a masterly enthusiasm."

The tragedy here referred to—Bertram; or, The Castle of St. Aldobrand—was in five acts, and was first performed at Drury Lane Theatre on May 9, 1816, with Kean in the title-part, Pope as St. Aldobrand, and Miss Somerville as Imogine. The play was revived at Sadler's Wells in 1847, with Phelps in the title-part, and again at the Marylebone Theatre in 1853, with Mrs. Wallack as the heroine. The plot is briefly as follows:—Imogine, loving and loved by Bertram, an exile, marries in his absence his enemy St. Aldobrand, in order to save her father from ruin. Bertram, the outcast, is shipwrecked near the castle of the wedded pair, and the old lovers meet. Imogine is unfaithful to her husband, whom Bertram kills, after seducing his wife. Imogine goes mad, and dies, whereupon Bertram commits suicide. The tragedy was also produced in New York in September, 1816, when Mrs. Mary Barnes, an English-born actress who had made her first appearance in America the previous April, was the representative of the unhappy heroine.

GEORGE COLMAN AND DAVID GARRICK.

George Colman was born at Florence in 1732, and was the son of Francis Colman, diplomatist. He was educated at Westminster School and Christ Church Oxford, and became a student at Lincoln's Inn. He was duly called to the bar in 1755; but the stage offered for him far stronger attractions than the law, and his first dramatic piece was produced in 1760. In 1767 he became one of the proprietors of Covent Garden Theatre with which he remained associated (as manager also) till 1774. In 1776 he bought from Foote the "Little Theatre in the Haymarket." Of this he was director until 1789, when he showed symptoms of senile decay, and was succeeded by his son, George Colman, jun. He died at Paddington in 1794.

A series of original letters from David Garrick and others to Colman were published some years ago, and form interesting reading. The first, dated Dec. 17, 1761, is addressed to Colman by Garrick, and was written nine months after the publication of Churchill's Rosciad, and ten months after the first representation of Colman's Jealous Wife. The St. James's Chronicle was chiefly in the hands of Bonnett Thornton, Garrick, and Colman, under whose able guidance it soon became a popular journal Colman now started another literary periodical under the title of the Genius, the main object of which was to give further assistance to the St. James's Chronicle. There appears by the "Garrick Correspondence," to have been much paper warfare between Murphy and the manager of the Drury Lane Theatre about this time; Murphy complaining that he had lost £800 by his pieces, which amount had found its way into Garrick's pocket instead of his own.

Of Murphy Dr. Johnson observed, according to Boswell, "I don't know that Arthur can be classed with the very first dramatic writers, yet at present I doubt much whether we have anything superior to him." Garrick never appeared to have had much love for Murphy, and he vexatiously delayed bringing out the Orphan of China. In fact, at first he refused to accept the play which might have been almost as great an error as his rejection of Home's Douglas. The letter above mentioned is as follows:—

DEAR COLMAN,—I rejoice that you are arrived safe at Bath, but most sincerely wish you as little pleasure there as possible, and you may guess the reason. Fitzherbert being with you will, I fear, most powerfully counteract my wishes; however, I have some small hopes from his not being under the same roof with you.

I have this moment seen our friend Churchill, and told him a fine scheme of Vaughn's, in conjunction with the gang of Pottinger. They are going to publish a set of papers called the Genius, in order to forestall yours and deceive the public. It is a most infamous design; and I desired Churchill would let Thornton know of it, which he will do immediately, and prevent their scoundrelity by some humorous paragraph. If you would have anything done, write directly, and you shall be obeyed most minutely.

I have read your last, and think it a fine plan—a little too hastily finished. There is strength and good sense; but I would have more laugh and pleasantry. Our new tragedy creeps on. We might press it on to six nights with much loss; but I hope that the author will be reasonable and satisfied with what we have already done, without insisting upon our losing more, to force a reputation—this entre nous.

You have heard, I suppose of a Col. Barré, who has taken the lyon by the beard in the Parliament House. P. made no reply to it, and lost his question. The town in general thinks that the Col. was rather too rough. There will be fine work anon! Whitehead's play has been once read, and has a great deal of merit.

Pray let me see you soon with your bundle of excellencies. Mr. Murphy has at last declared off with us, and in a letter to Obrien says that he has been so great a loser by the manager of Drury Lane, that he can never more have any dealings with us. Wish me joy, my dear friend, but keep this to yourself for many weighty reasons.

My love to Fitzherbert, and believe me most affectionately yours,

D. GARRICK.

The second is an extremely amusing letter, dated from Spa, Aug. 13, 1763, and addressed to Wm. Putteney, Earl of Bath, the political antagonist of Sir Robert Walpole. Lord Bath had married the sister of Colman's mother. At his death an annuity of nine hundred guineas devolved on his nephew under the earl's will. In this letter his lordship, referring to the Continental trip, says:—"I am sorry Garrick is going such a journey, and designs to be so long absent from England. I fancy he is driven out of it, more from resentment of the bad usage he met with last winter from a few impertinent coxcombs than from any real jealousie of the restoration of my health and vigour; but I can assure him if my constitution holds out, my love for Mrs. Garrick will be full as strong and violent when she returns from Italy as it is at this present writing."

George Colman, the younger, in a note to his publication of "Post humous Letters, &c.," says, "It is whimsical to observe Lord Bath's acquiescence in his protegé's theatrical connections. All the Earl's admonitions to Coley, not to throw away his money and time in running after plays, but to stick to the law, end in a request to procure his lordship the honour that a portrait of himself might be hung up by Mrs. Garrick." The elder Colman dedicated his play of the Jealous Wife to his patron, in 1761. All this refutes the report that he forfeited Lord Bath's affection by his pursuit of the drama.

The next epistle, dated Turin, Oct. 18th, 1763, is from Garrick to Colman. George Garrick was brother to David, and deputy-manager of Drury Lane Theatre. A part of his duty, says Mr. Peake, was to walk about the stage and quiet the talkers or intruders by his exclamation of "Hush! hush!" His salary was considerable; and some one inquiring why, or for what service, George was paid so large a sum, Charles Bannister replied: "It is hush-money!"

Townley was head master of Merchant Taylor's School, and author of "High Life Below Stairs," &c.; Schomberg, a physician. The doctor was also a writer of farces. Mr. Peake humorously remarks: "His prescriptions were the best of his writings—they would act; not so his farces." The letter was as follows:—

MY DEAR COLMAN,—I wrote last to George, and now for you. We got to this pretty city (for it is no better) last Fryday night, and are obliged, much against our wills, to stay here till next Saturday, for the pearch of our carriage was broke upon the top of Mount Cenis by the carelessness of our Voiturier, who instead of carrying it upon ye back of mules (as he ought) had it dragged up that wonderful mountain by twelve men, and it is a great miracle that it was not dash'd into ten thousand pieces. However, we are all well contented and happy, and are resolved to fret at nothing. Mr. Pitt and all ye English here are most particularly kind to us. This day a gentleman shew'd me two London Chronicles, in which they have abus'd me most clumsily; I read their malignity with as much sang-froid as Plato himself would have done tho' entre nous. I wish they had not mentioned a certain Duke, but he too is above feeling their nonsense. I cannot but take notice that Mr. Straught has twice officiously excus'd himself for the abuse upon me in his paper, has sworn as often that there should be no more of it, and has as often treacherously broke his word; but I am neither amaz'd or uneasy at it, and so you may tell our friend Becket.

We have nothing here in our way but a miserable Bouffi Opera, and ye worst dancing I ever saw. The people in ye pit and boxes talk all ye while as in a coffee house, and ye performers are even with 'em, for they are very little attentive, laugh and talk to one another, pick their noses, and while they are unengag'd in singing, they walk up to ye stage boxes (in which the other actors and dancers sit dress'd in sight of ye audience), turn their backs, join in ye laugh and conversation of their brethren, without ye least decency or regard to ye audience; I never was more astonish'd in my life; their theatres are very elegant, the whole is composed of pit and boxes (five or six rows of 'em), without galleries. Each box is like a little room where they receive visitors, and think and talk of everything but what passes upon ye stage.

I forgot to tell you that we had the finest day imaginable for passing ye terrible Mount Cenis. I was highly entertained indeed, and it is much more inconceivable (I mean the manner of ascending and descending) than it is dangerous or disagreeable I long to hear from you or George. I am sorry that I did not desire a letter to this place, it would have reach'd me by this time, and I shall not be at Florence this fortnight at least, so you must not be surprised that you have not an answer to anything that may be sent there. All letters for ye future must be directed for me to ye Marquis Belloni at Rome, till I send to ye contrary.

The travelling through Savoy and Piedmont to this City is the most romantick and delightfull with regard to the scenery that can be imagined, and the nastiness of ye inns, the peculiarity of nastiness, is likewise as much above conception. I have taken some memorandums of the things, which I have seen with my own eyes, that exceed all belief, and which I shall write down very soon, and send to our friend Townley as a Nosegay for you and Schomberg. Pray make a holyday on purpose, and let it be read in full assembly over a bottle of ye Dr's claret by that aforesaid arch blackguard, the Revd. Mr. James Townley.

My fellow traveller, Mence, is obliged to go oft for Minorca. We shall part in a few days, he to his Regimt, and I for Florence. My wife has been very ill and frighten'd us all, but she is now well and herself again—she desires her love to you and George. Pray remember us to the Huberts, Churchill, Schomberg, Dr. Hay, and Smallbroke, and all whom you know, I would remember if I could. God bless you my dear friend. Ever and most affectionately yours,

D. GARRICK.

NEW ENGLISH AND FOREIGN PLAYS.

In order to assist managers and others in the selection of pieces for production and adaptation, we are publishing from time to time synopses of likely English and Continental plays, so that dramatic speculators may judge for themselves of the suitability of the plots for their purpose. Authors wishing for this publicity should forward synopses to "Playwrights," care of The Era, from whom further particulars can be obtained.

"KING OF THE OPIUM RING."

Melodrama, in Four Acts,
by C. E. Blaney and C. A. Taylor.
(All rights reserved).

This play displays the seamy side of the opium habit, especially of its effect upon "pure whites." Old Ironsides is a rolling-stone who has passed most of his life as a seafarer, and has lost all touch with his two daughters. The only clue to their identity appears to be a locket containing portraits and the existence of the cryptic word "Anatckwa" tatooed upon his arm. George Macey is the Opium King, and a successful though suspected smuggler of the drug. His wife, Bell, and his mistress, Georgetta, are sisters, and Ironside's lost daughters. Macey has illegal transactions in opium traffic with Wah Sing, a very wealthy Chinaman, who is suspected, and closely watched by numerous police and Revenue officials. The Chinaman has a passion for Georgetta, whom he would marry. The latter, before becoming Macey's "Queen of the Opium Ring," was loved by van Stouten, captain of the harbour police, and his devotion to her almost involves him in serious breaches of duty. It will be seen from the foregoing that the chief interests in the play centre round the smugglers' attempts to foil the vigilance of the Revenue and police officials and their endeavours to carry on their traffic in the drug, the discovery and reunion of old Ironsides' daughters, the saving of Georgetta from the wiles and intrigues of both Macey and Wah Sing, and Georgetta's ultimate restoration to the arms of her faithful lover Albert van Stouten. All these are accomplished in the course of the play, an adequate synopsis of which would prove almost as long as the play itself. The play includes scenes in the Bay of San Francisco, and exciting arrests and attempted murders on board Macey's private yacht; an opium den, masked as a Chinese laundry, where the effects of opium are realistically depicted, exciting escapes being made when the "den" is raided by the police. Among the scenes of the piece is the exterior of a club in San Francisco, near which a trap is laid by Wah Sing to abduct Georgetta. The heart of Chinatown, with Joss House and theatre, and a celebration of the Chinese New Year, during which a pyramid of Chinese acrobats, members of a secret guild hostile to that which includes Wah Sing amongst its members, rescue Georgetta from an upper-storey window and convey her to safety on a balcony in a building on the opposite side of the street, is also shown. Another exciting episode takes place in Wah Sing's private house and place of business, where Georgetta is saved from being married to Wah Sing by the timely arrival of her relations and friends, literally at the last moment, and the substitution of a veiled Chinese girl, in Georgetta's place, before the Joss idol

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Twins of Skirlaugh Hall appeals particularly to the student of psychology and the believers in transmigration and reincarnation, but for the ordinary playgoer the subject is too profound. The scene is laid at Skirlaugh Hall in Yorkshire. Lady Anne Redeburne's serving woman is Betty Pyteman, the illegitimate daughter of her ladyship's father. Lady Anne believes that her first husband was murdered by Betty, and at the opening of the play is much perturbed at the thought that she is carrying on clandestinely with her second. In a fit of ungovernable fury Lady Anne stabs Betty, and, with the aid of the old nurse, conceals the body in a secret chamber.

The play is then pushed forward 200 years, to the period 1820, when the twin daughters of Michael Redeburne, a lineal descendant of the family, are budding into womanhood. Letitia is fair and frail looking, the counterpart of her ancestor, Lady Anne; Laura is dark and masterful, with a head of peculiar formation, which is said largely to account for her violent temper. She has a pronounced antipathy towards her sister, which is commented upon by all who come in contact with the family. Mr. Lindley, with an inkling of the old story, the real facts of which he cannot fathom, has a suspicion that psychology is at the bottom of the trouble. Young Harry Lindley has just returned after a long absence, and is in love with the unobtrusive Letitia. During the Christmas festivities the two young lovers hide in the room in which 200 years before the murder took place. The other guests also come into the hitherto never-opened room, where hangs a portrait of Lady Anne and her serving woman, and everybody is struck by the likeness in the picture to the two girls. A few weeks later, on learning that Letitia is in love with Harry, Laura, who is smitten that way herself, breaks into one of her fits of temper, and is thrashing her meek little sister with a hunting-crop, when the father intervenes, and as a result Laura is banished from the house. She is, however, allowed to return home for the wedding, and declaring that her present is upstairs in her box, she invites Letitia to go to her room for it. Shortly afterwards Letitia comes flying downstairs with a cry and a moan, having been struck in the back with a knife, as was poor Betty Pyteman two hundred years before.

Laura, deemed to be mad, is sent away to an asylum. The stab Letitia has received does not prove fatal, and the doctor announces that her injuries will cause her to shake off the haunting memories of the past, so it may be presumed that a happy future is in store for the young couple.

The acting was good all round, and the artists used every endeavour to make the piece go. Mr. Henry Renouf as Michael Redeburne was the real old English gentleman to the life. Miss Eily Malyon, in the rôle of Lady Anne, was capable in the prologue, and showed a distinct contrast as the timid, brooding Letitia in the play itself. Miss Cecil Cromwell invested with strong individuality the dual rôle of Betty and Laura. The ill-balanced mind was effectively indicated, but the part was never for a moment overacted. Miss Eugenie Vernie was good as the old nurse in the prologue, and as Hannah, the wife of Michael Redeburne, in the play. The dull rôle of Mr. Lindley was made the most of by Mr. A. Austin-Leigh, whilst Mr. Eric Maxon infused brightness into the piece as the light-hearted Harry Lindley. Mr. Frank Stone as Dr. Bellomy succeeded in raising laughter, and by adroit acting and a clear delivery of the lines entrusted to her, Miss May Saker gave a fillip to the play. Able support was given by Mr. Wallis Clarke as Ralph, Mr. W. F. Wells as Oliver (the two sons of Redeburne), Mr. Gilbert Clarke as Willie Ackroyd, and Miss Mimi Renouf as Martha and Mr. G. W. Elton as John, the housekeeper and butler respectively.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"LA RIVALE,"

Play, in Four Acts, by MM. Kistemaeckers and Delard, produced at the Comédie-Française on June 13.

Simone de Mortagnes .....Mlle. Pierat
La Baronne de Ligneuil ....Mlle. Mitzy-Dalti
Jane Brizeux .....Mlle. Berthe Cerny
Mme. de Chamblay .....Mme. Robinne
Le Baron de Ligneuil .....M. Louis Delaunay
Un Mouleur .....M. Joliet

Chamblay .....M. Croue
Mortagnes .....M. Siblot
Sormiers .....M. Grandval
André Brizeux .....M. Grand
Pontecroyx .....M. Paul Numa

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, June 20.—MM. Kistemaeckers and Delard—be it said without reproach—have taken a leaf out of M. Gabriele d'Annunzio's book. Those who know his impressive play La Gioconda will remember that he asks, "Is an artist born to make his wife happy or to create masterpieces?" And he shows us Settala, the sculptor, sacrificing his devoted wife Silvia to the beautiful Gioconda, his mistress, who inspires him. The story which the authors of La Rivale unfold is constructed on identical lines. The sculptor, André Brizeux, has been married ten years. Thanks to his wife Jeanne, this Bohemian has been transformed into a man of the world. He is courted, admired; his works fetch fabulous prices, and honours in every shape have been showered on him. But, for an intelligent woman, Jeanne commits a fatal mistake. She receives in her house M. de Mortagnes, a worthless poor relation, and his daughter Simone, a lovely girl. And this happens just at the moment when André imagines that his creative power is on the wane and requires stimulating. De Mortagnes, an old viveur, having squandered his fortune, now trades on his title, and joins the pseudo Baron de Ligneuil in shady undertakings. As to Simone, thanks to André and Jeanne's generosity she wears beautiful toilettes and enjoys herself in that elegant milieu. For all that, she is not happy. All the men make love to her, and the Baron de Ligneuil and an abject creature, Sormiers, even make shameful propositions to her. Pontecroyx, a respecable youth, chief clerk in an insurance company, asks her to become his wife. But Pontecroyx is poor, his salary is not big, and, worse still, Simone has fallen in love with André. She refuses Pontecroyx, and falls in André's arms. It is not long before Jeanne discovers the lovers' secret, and she vainly tries to bring her husband back. Then follows a dramatic scene between the wife and the mistress. "You have no right to take André away!" exclaims Jeanne. "I am his wife, his companion!" But in reply to her passionate appeal, Simone cries, "You may be his wife, but I shall be the mother of his only child!" The outraged wife calls out "Thief, thief!" and shows her rival the door. Several months elapse. The sculptor has gone away with Simone; but, with his thoughts lingering again on the past, he longs to see once more his old studio, and one night Pontecroyx smuggles him into the house. The place looks exactly like it did when he left it, and André feels strangely moved. Moreover, his child is dead, and he feels egoistically drawn towards his wife. Jeanne suddenly enters, and André is struck with her expression of infinite sadness. He feels inspired, and thinks of the great work he can produce. But grief has killed whatever affection Jeanne may have felt for André. She reminds him of the duties he has incurred towards Simone, and says "Go away!" And he goes. The great mistake in the work is that whereas we could realise in a measure the artist's love for La Gioconda, who inspired him, we fail to understand André's passion for Simone. His is a common love adventure, without the excuse we find for D'Annunzio's hero. The work was well acted by Mlle. Berthe Cerny, dignified in the rôle of Jeanne; by Mlle. Piérat, a touching Simone; and by M. Grand, a romantic André. Special praise is also due to M. Delaunay, to whom had been allotted the unsympathetic part of the Baron de Ligneuil.

"L'ENFANT DU TEMPLE,"

Play, in Five Acts and Nine Tableaux, by M. Alban de Polhes, produced at the Ambigu on June 14.

Mme. Léninger .....Mme. Dubuisson
Le Dauphin (petit Léninger) .....Mlle. Flore Mignot
Marie-Antoinette .....Mme. Chapelas
Femme Simon .....Mlle. Noris
Mme. Elisabeth .....Mlle. Suzanne Danjou
Fouché .....M. Etievant
Barras .....M. Grey
Simon .....M. Liezer
Gomin .....M. Leclerc
Brutus .....M. Blanchard

When Louis XVI. and Marie-Antoinette were beheaded, their unfortunate boy was not set free, but remained in the care of Simon, a cobbler, who ill-treated the child. After a short illness the Royal Prince died, and was buried in the cemetery of Sainte Marguerite. Despite the official documents which prove the death and burial of little Louis, there are still many persons who believe he was rescued, and that another child of the same age, and bearing a strong likeness to him, was buried in his place. In fact, we have at the present moment in Paris a gentleman calling himself Jean de Bourbon, who not only is convinced that he is a direct descendant of the escaped prince, but is surrounded by a little court who address him as "Monseigneur," and say Mass for his return to the throne of France. As, however, this Jean de Bourbon is a harmless pretender, does not conspire against the Government, and relies on a miracle to get himself crowned King of France, he and his little court are left in peace. Many dramas have already been written on the supposed thrilling episode of the Prince's escape, and M. Alban de Polhes felt tempted to add one more to the list. In his play he shows us a woman called Léninger, who, having been befriended by Marie-Antoinette, has become devoted to her. Mme. Léninger's little boy resembles the Dauphin, and she sacrifices her child to the Royal cause. Marie-Antoinette has lost her life on the scaffold. Robespierre has likewise been beheaded, and Barras, the new man in power, is at heart a Royalist. With his sanction, and aided by Fouché, the Prince is taken from his prison and replaced by little Léninger. When the latter is dying, his mother, by a strategem, comes to say him a last farewell. On perceiving his mother, the child opens his lips to speak, but Mme. Léninger makes a sign, and, remembering his promise, he remains silent, and dies without divulging the secret. The pathetic story is well told. The audience shed copious tears over the heroic little Léninger, and hooted the wicked Simon. And, as the frequenters of the Ambigu as a rule are not very well up in history, they will take it all for granted and the before-mentioned Prince Jean de Bourbon will have gained a few more adherents. Mlle. Flore Mignot played the double rôle of the real and the false Prince with great feeling and M. Liézer succeeded in making himself look hideous as the scoundrelly Simon.

M. Ruez, the ruler for five years of the Folies-Bergères, Pariasiana and Olympia, has become bankrupt. The establishments over which he ruled will once more return to the Brothers Isola.

DRESSES AT THE PLAY.

A striking show is made by the costumes in A Midnight Wedding at the Lyceum. As Princess Astrea Miss Kerin appears in the Chapel scene in an evening dress of white soft satin, cut square at the corsage and filled in with soft net pailletted with gold. There are puffed under-sleeves of white chiffon, over which fall the shorter pair of white satin. The skirt is turned back to show a panel of tucked chiffon trimmed with a full ruche, and round her hair Miss Kerin twists a long scarf of the same white chiffon.

The second of Miss Kerin's dresses shows the new Shantung silk in a soft delicate shade of brown. It is cut en Princesse, and is trimmed with bands of self-coloured silk relieved by pipings of cream satin. The dainty little bodice is of fine creamy lace, over which are worn kimono straps of brown silk. The hat tones with the dress in colour, and is trimmed with long white feathers and a knot of faded roses tucked in at one side. Miss Kerin's last dress is of pale pastel blue cloth, made Princess fashion. It is worn with a charming lace bodice and a mushroom hat trimmed with a huge black silk bow and a bunch of roses.

Miss Valli Valli wears a dainty dress of white voile cut very short and full, with a tight-fitting black velvet bodice and chemisette of white net. On her head is a smart little cap of white lawn finished with two coquettish rosettes of black ribbon, with long ends falling on the shoulders. As a bride Miss Valli Valli looks very fascinating in a dress of white spotted net, very simply made with two deep tucks that decorate the skirt; and the tiny puffed sleeves give a very smart appearance to the bodice.

Miss Daisy Gwynne dresses Satanella in a handsome gown of blue chiffon trimmed with lace; and with it is worn a sleeveless coatee of black jetted net, cut square at the neck and opening in the front to show the lace and chiffon of the corsage. Over this costume Miss Gwynne throws a long loose cloak of peacock-blue silk, and she has a large hat of white leghorn trimmed with huge ostrich plumes.

American fashion is extensively reflected in Divorcons at the Duke of York's. Miss Grace George, the leading lady, appears in the first act in an exquisite afternoon gown of pale myosotis-blue Oriental satin, made in Empire style. The high Empire waistbelt of swathed satin is worked in a delicate trailing pattern of silver thread, while the bébé bodice of string-coloured net is encrusted round the throat with Brussels lace, trimmed with little flat bows of myosotis-blue satin. The hat consists of a small mushroom in natural-coloured Leghorn, with a large mob-cap crown encircled with a trail of deep La France pink roses and foliage, while the costume is supplemented by a semi-fitting sleeveless coatee of coarse lace, mounted over white silk, the fronts being inlet with motifs of chiné silk in a blurred flower design, little epaulettes of the lace and thick silk cords, finished with heavy tassels, embellishing the whole. Miss George's second costume is an exquisite demi-toilette of fine net the colour of clotted cream, and mounted over white silk. The gown, which is made on Princess lines, is decorated with four long stole panels of deep cream lace extending from the shoulders, a swathed belt of soft satin being slipped underneath, while a heavy embroidery of floss silk, representing a tangle of roses, and reaching from the knee to the hem, likewise enriches the gown. The short epaulette sleeves, as well as the corsage itself, are also thickly embroidered, while her dainty restaurant wrap of transparent rose-coloured chiffon in burnous form, made with stylish "bag" sleeves, is outlined with narrow ruchings of chiffon. The cloak is supplemented with a collar of folded velvet ribbon, edged with a tiny kilted frill of the same, and finished with long velvet streamers and heavy silk tassels, the huge Lamballe hat of pure white crinoline being wreathed with an enormous white ostrich plume, tipped with pink.

Miss Benson's Princess gown is of fine crushed framboise cloth, moulded to the figure, the tablier corsage being finished with wide mitred bands of its own material, heavily embroidered in thick floss silk in a paler shade of framboise. The gathered under-bodice is fashioned of "old ivory" net and Alençon lace, while three superposed flounces of the same dentelle form the elbow sleeves, a large black picture hat and cloth cape completing the toilette. The evening gown worn by Miss Benson in the second act is of petunia-coloured chiffon velvet, cut on Empire lines, the fichu folds of the bodice being caught with two large antique paste buttons in front, while the under-bodice of string-coloured lace is finished with elbow sleeves composed of little superposed frills of the same dentelle.

Miss Ruby Ray has chosen a supple cloth in a delicate shade of champagne, the two-tiered skirt being cut into deep castellations, and fashioned in corselet form, while the short sac coat is decorated with découpé motifs of its own material worked into a tortuous design. A simulated waistcoat of oatmeal linen is worked with eyelet-hole embroidery, and edged with tiny frills of Valenciennes lace, while a black velvet collar makes an agreeable contrast to the delicate tint of the cloth. Her hat is a simple cloche of black chip, with a large black and white bird poised on the crown, the wide, out-stretched wings completely covering the brim.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The concert given by the students of the Royal College on Thursday, June 13, opened with Schubert's (posthumous) "Quartet for Strings, in D minor," which has the "heavenly length" characteristic of Schubert's instrumental works. But if anything could excuse the length of a quartet lasting nearly an hour it is the beautiful "Andante con moto," of which the young performers, Miss Mary Harrison, Miss Marjorie Beer, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Miss Beatrice M. Harrison gave an excellent account. Miss Gwendoline Trevitt sang Handel's "Care selve" (Atalanta) and "Daffodils," by Edward German, Miss Trevitt's fluent delivery of the latter song being much appreciated by the audience. Two of Mr. Frank Bridge's piano solos, "Sea Idyll" and "Capriccio," were skilfully executed by Miss Lucia Simpson. The "Sea Idyll" proved somewhat diffuse and indefinite, but the "Capriccio" was cleverly written, and the audience gave the composer and pianist a most hearty reception. In Liza Lehmann's song, "Ah, moon of my delight," Mr. Frank Webster used his musical and well-trained tenor voice with capital effect; and Miss Florence Taylor sang "The walnut tree" and "Devotion," by Schumann, with much grace and expression. The audience were also greatly pleased with Mr. Felix Norman Salmond's finely-played violoncello solos, "Aria in D" and "Bourrée in C," by Bach. The concert concluded with Beethoven's "Trio for Piano and Strings in D major," op. 70, No. 1, the executants being Miss Ellen Edwards, Miss Lorna Downing, and Mr. F. Gershom Parkington. The accompanist was Miss Alice Cotton

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

A MEETING of the Theatrical Sports Committee was held on Wednesday at The Era office, Mr. C. Aubrey Smith, the Chairman, presiding. Those present were Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, the hon. treasurer; Mr. James Cullen and Mr. William Barbour, St. James's Theatre; Mr. A. Palmer, Comedy Theatre; Mr. P. Sheridan, Crown Theatre; Mr. G. H. Dyball, Opera House; Mr. E. Catlin, Surrey Theatre; Mr. H. Porter, Criterion Theatre; Mr. C. Thorogood, Mr. A. Earnshaw, the Duke of York's Theatre; and W. Johnson, hon. secretary.

THE minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, the hon. treasurer reported on donations to prize fund and prizes presented for competition received since the last meeting. In addition to those already announced in this column, Mr H. Beerbohm Tree has sent £1 1s., and Mr. Dion Boucicault £1 1s., and Mr. Cecil Paget has promised 10s. 6d. The chairman and Mr. H. Porter reported on arrangements made with the London General Omnibus Co. and with Mr. Squires, of the London Road Car Co., to exhibit bills on the side of a number of their 'buses announcing the sports and the theatrical cricket matches.

MR. PEDGRIFT, on behalf of The Era, Ltd., undertook to print a number of posters for the committee. A unanimous vote of thanks was passed to the proprietors of The Era for their kindness.

A NUMBER of entry forms were submitted and passed. The following were selected with the hon. treasurer and secretary to act as the prize selection committee :—Messrs. A. Palmer, of the Comedy Theatre; and Mr. A. Earnshaw, of the Duke of York's Theatre. Mr. W. Barbour made an excellent suggestion, which he desired should be brought to the notice of those interested in the sports and benevolent funds. The committee heartily recommend the suggestion, and would be glad if it was carried into general effect. The proposal was that the company, orchestra, and staff of each theatre should be invited to contribute to provide a championship trophy, cup, or other prize for competition, to be inscribed with the name of the theatre, to be held by the theatre represented by the winner for six or twelve months, as may be approved. Thus the committee have the Haymarket Cup or Shield, the St. James's Cup, His Majesty's Cup, and so on. This would arouse, it is assumed, considerably greater rivalry between the various theatres. The ambition to acquire their rival's trophy and to retain possession of their own "House" Cup, would create a feeling of great benefit to the sports. The committee hope to make an announcement at its next meeting that this suggestion has been adopted. The number of cups or shields is only limited by the number of events not now offering a challenge trophy.

ATTENTION is drawn to the fact that the entries close to-day, but any entry received in time to go to the handicapper and be approved by the committee will be included. The sooner the entries are sent the better, and the more certainty of their being accepted. Tickets are ready for issue, and printed matter of various kinds available. Assistance in any way cordially invited. Next meeting of the committee next Saturday, at 5.30.

A GENERAL meeting of the members of the Carpenters' Branch N.A.T.E. will be held to-morrow, Sunday, at headquarters, Salisbury Hotel, St. Martin's-lane, at 8.30. All members urged to be present. The Award and other important matters will be placed before the meeting.

THE adjourned annual general meeting of the members of the General Staff Branch—London, N.A.T.E., will be held on Sunday, in the St. George's Hall, Westminster Bridge-road, S.E., at 7 o'clock. The agenda is as follows :—

1. Annual Report.
2. Financial Statement and Auditors' Report (already issued).
3. Arbitrator's Award—Music Hall Dispute.
4. Alliance between The Variety Artists' Federation, The Amalgamated Musicians' Union, and our Society.
5. Election of Branch Officers :—President, Vice-President, Treasurer, Secretary, three Trustees, two Auditors, and ten Members to act on the Committee.
6. Election of National (Executive) Committee and General Officers :—President, Vice-President, Treasurer, Secretary, and three Trustees.
7. E.C. recommendation. (1) That the Society be represented at the Annual Trades Union Congress. (2) That the Society be affiliated with the General Federation of Trade Unions. The cost of the same to be paid by all Branches in proportion to their respective membership.

Admission only on production of card of membership for current quarter.

A JOINT meeting of the members of the National Association of Theatrical Employees and the Amalgamated Musicians' Union, and, probably, the members of the Orchestra Association, will be held on Sunday week, in The Horns, Kennington, S.E., to consider the Award and the future actions of those societies in relation to the Award, and to the Variety Artists' Federation. Mr. J. B. Williams, general secretary of the Musicians' Union, Mr. William Johnson, general secretary of the N.A.T.E., will speak. Representatives of labour organisations in the metropolis will be invited. The meeting will be private. Members and ticket holders only admitted. This meeting will be of considerable importance, and while the recent alliance with the V.A.F. is almost certain to be dissolved, there is every prospect of a federation being formed of the London Musicians and Stage Employees.

IT was not expected that the award would satisfy everybody, and, in that respect, it has justified expectations; but, on reflection, the employees will find, whatever its shortcomings, it will give them some advantages, and place them in a position, with the co-operation of the managers, to establish a much better state of things than has formerly existed.

IT must be recognised that no body of workmen have shared in the economic growth of their trade or industry until they have fixed a starting-point. That starting-point is a recognised rate of minimum rate of pay and a maximum normal working day. The award provides these two essential conditions to any future orderly development by the raising of the minimum rate or the reduction of the normal working hours per day.

THE award is, practically, for two-shows-a-night houses, and it gives considerable benefits to the night men and day men employed in the two-shows-a-night houses, to the extent of from 2s. to 7s. 6d. a week, and fewer hours of work for day men, with extra pay for overtime.

THE carpenters (bench hands) are the only section included in the National Alliance who have got in full the recognition of their Union rate. They, of course, represent a body of skilled artisans, and although the number employed in music halls is not great, it has opened the doors of every music hall in the Metropolitan Police area to the Union carpenter, who, formerly, could not accept work where his Union rate of pay was not paid. It may also benefit them if the sketch artists and the scenic artists they employ to make their scenery, observe the terms of the award in this direction.

THE use of the terms "stage-foreman and switchboard electrician," is to be deplored. A manager must, under the Council's regulations, have a competent man in charge of the lighting and its installation. A switchboard attendant is not necessarily an electrician. It would, therefore, be obvious that managers cannot apply the rate of pay fixed for a switchboard attendant to the electrician in charge, and responsible to the management, under the rules of the L.C.C. This point is covered by Regulation No. 54, which has officially been stated to mean

"A properly qualified man means an attendant who would be able to deal with any urgency, repairs, and alterations, such as are required almost daily in theatre installations."

THE use of the term "approximately" with reference to the hours of work per day is most unfortunate, and, in my judgment, without precedent in like circumstances. One might as well say the wages shall be "approximately" so and so, or that the price of admission of the music halls shall be "approximately" so and so. It was most essential that ambiguity in the fixing of the hours and the rates of pay should be avoided.

IT is a pity that some arrangement was not made, or suggested, for the benefit of hall-keepers, baggage-men, and other sections included among those involved in the dispute, and whose claims were referred to arbitration; but, it should be borne in mind that clause 4 of the part dealing with "Future Disputes" affords an opportunity for any section whose claims are not dealt with in the award, to obtain conditions through their representatives by negotiations with the manager.

THE only question that is likely to affect the attitude of the employees towards the award is the question of the reinstatement of the men not covered by the interim award. Their case can still be placed before the arbitrator; but it is more desirable that the question should be settled between the parties, and, from all accounts, the managers of the halls concerned are now considering what can be done.

THE Amalgamated Musicians' Union and National Association of Theatrical Employees are calling a mass meeting for the 30th inst. to discuss their position with regard to the award. The Musicians' Union is not satisfied with Clause 2, which will be thoroughly discussed at the meeting.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, June 20.—There is but little to record of last week's doings, many of our theatres having already closed for the summer holidays—lasting, usually, from six to eight weeks. An event anticipated with interest was the season of Herr Wedekind at the Kleines, which commenced—in the absence of the regular company—last week. Herr Frank Wedekind is a popular writer and dramatist; he excels in the modern style of play—realistic to the verge of repulsion—and he has also written a few pleasant things. With all his talents, however, he is not an actor, and it is a matter of wonderment that his affection for the boards has not died a natural death, so much cold water has been poured upon it by the critics. In his comedy, Der Kammersänger, Herr Wedekind gave the name-part, making of it an utterly unconvincing character. Fräulein Lotte Klein played charmingly as Miss Isabel, and Frau Wedekind (the author's wife) and Herr Licho were good in the remaining rôles. Rabbi Esra, a one-act play, also by Herr Wedekind, made a very poor impression. It is little more than a monologue, and, the author giving the title-rôle in his customary lethargic and indistinct style, the results may be imagined. Der Friede des Hauses, drawn from Maupassant by Herr Ploecket-Eckard, completed the programme. The most enjoyable part of the entertainment was without doubt the acting of Frau Wedekind—a young artist whose talent and charm should make her career an unusually successful one.

THE Royal Opera closes this week with a performance of Gounod's Faust, with Miss Geraldine Farrar in the part of Marguerite. The first important revival after the holidays will be Smetana's Dalibor, in which Fräulein Destinn and Herr Kraus are cast for the principal rôles. There will be new scenery and costumes. The Royal Schauspielhaus—whose holidays begin a little later—produces this evening an adaptation by Theodor Gassmann of Scribe's five-act comedy Les Doigts de Fée, under the title of Feenhaende.

AT the Schiller Theatre O.—formerly known as the Wallner Theatre—the Morwitz season of summer opera has commenced. The management is thoroughly experienced, as the Morwitz Opera is an annual institution during the summer months, and the company is a satisfactory one. Die Hugenotten was chosen for the opening performance on Saturday; Sunday afternoon attracted a large audience to hear Der Freischutz at popular prices, and Martha proved a draw in the evening. The bill for the present week includes Carmen and The Magic Flute.

AT the Komische Oper, the bill alternates between Carmen and Hoffmann's Erzählungen, the latter attracting many of the visitors with whom Berlin is crowded at present. The ever-popular Lustige Wittwe is still running nightly at the Theatre des Westens, with an afternoon performance on Sundays; its success appears permanently established.

A WELL-KNOWN and much-esteemed actor, Herr Wilhelm Ruff, passed away last week at the age of sixty-five, and his place in the company of the Luisen Theatre will not be readily filled. Formerly a member of the Wallner, later on of the Residenz company, Herr Ruff made his mark in every play he acted in; he was as good in tragedy as comedy, and a hard worker up to the time of his death, which was the result of a stroke and quite unexpected.

FRAULEIN IRENE TRIESCH, the famous actress—member of the Lessing company—who is in private life Mrs. Frederic Lamond, is receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

MR. PERCY BOUCHER, who has just severed his connection with the stock and dramatic company at the Royal, Liverpool, where he inaugurated the two-houses-a-night system some years ago, will take a complimentary benefit at Hope Hall, in that city, on Thursday evening next.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, June 17,
the Comedy, by C. H. Hawtrey, entitled
"THE PRIVATE SECRETARY."

It is just over twenty-three years since Mr. Hawtrey's farcical comedy entered upon its long and prosperous career, and, judging by the laughter of the large audience at the King's on Monday evening, there should be many more years of success in store for The Private Secretary. New to London is Mr. Donald Price Evans, who, in the title-part, worthily follows in the footsteps of his predecessors, and gives a presentment that at once "catches on" with the audience. Cattermole is once more in the very experienced hands of Mr. W. Hargreaves, whose characterisation is most popular. Mr. H. Sinclair as Mr. Marsland is quiet and dignified, as befitting a country squire; and Harry Marsland is well played by Mr. James Hussey. Mr. Randolph Reade is a dashing Douglas Cattermole. An exceedingly able and humorous rendering of Sidney Gibson is given by Mr. Vivian Gilbert; and the part of Knox is adequately filled by Mr. John Macready. A delightful Edith Marsland is Miss Dora Gray; and Miss Mary E. Deverell acts charmingly as Eva Webster. Miss Cecily Wade's embodiment of Mrs. Stead is of good service; and Miss Ashford, with her spiritual views, is capitally enacted by Mrs. Alfred Davies. Good for Nothing is also presented during the evening, enabling Miss Dora Gray to successfully extract humour and pathos from the part of Nan.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, June 17, the Children's Pantomime,
"THE FORTE THIEVES."

The management of this comfortable theatre have secured a special and unique attraction this week, namely, the juvenile company from Drury Lane Theatre in the pantomine The Forté Thieves (played piano), with its bright music and tasteful scenery. The play is mounted in capital style and the company, composed of highly accomplished artists, all of whom work with a zeal that is most praiseworthy. Master W. Bishop as Ali Baba gives an admirable impersonation of the woodman, father of Ganem, the hero. The latter part is suitably undertaken by Miss Jessie Evans, who possesses, if not a powerful voice, a well-trained one, and, in addition, is the possessor of considerable powers as a comedienne. Master Teddy Gordon gives a good account of himself as Cassim Baba; and Miss L. Randall, quaintly made up as Cogia, also merits commendation. The bright particular star of the production is Master Jack Frost, the Drury Lane "call-boy," who undertakes the part of Abdalla, and scores a big success. Miss A. McDonald, who is responsible for the rôle of Hassarac, gives a good account of herself; and considerable talent is displayed by Miss Florrie Clarke as Morgiana. She is a vocalist of no mean order, singing with point and style, and her dancing is dainty and graceful. Miss Gertie Britton makes a charming Fairy of the Cave, being ably attended by Fairies L. Clarke, E. Crump, and L. Bew. Masters Middleditch and Burton ably impersonate Percy, the donkey, whose antics considerably amuse the younger members of the audience. Miss Vickie Hogben is an excellent exponent of the terpsichorean art, and is heartily received. One of the notable successes of the evening's entertainment is the singing of "Sambo" by Miss L. Gibbons, assisted by the Misses J. Biggs and M. Spear as coons. The whole concludes with a grand shadow pantomime.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, June 17, the Drama, entitled
"IN THE SHADOW OF NIGHT."

Mr. James Willard and his company are appearing here again this week in Mr. Willard's sensational drama, In the Shadow of Night, which has not been seen at this theatre for a very long time. It is a most exciting drama, and the scene in which the villain secures the hero and heroine and sets fire to the building would surely be difficult to beat for the height of sensational realism; while the final scene of the Thames in which the stage is flooded with water is excellently done. Mr. James Willard himself appears as the villain, Clifford Yorke, and he plays the part in the most finished style, and not without an amount of humour which is rather refreshing in this type of character. Violet Kingston is very charmingly portrayed by Miss Elsie Wallace, who acts in a very sweet manner, while Violet's lover, Gordon Allington, is played in a manly fashion by Mr. Austin Mortimer. Mr. George Harvey gives a good sketch of the old squire, John Allington, while Mr. Harry Emmerson is particularly good as the rugged old farmer, James Woodstock. Mr. M. Arnold is very popular as the gentleman in khaki, Tom Nainby. Miss Mildred Carr makes a capital Molly Woodstock, and keeps everyone in good spirits by her lively acting. Mr. Evison displays his ability as a character actor, first by his clever sketch of an old postman and afterwards he creates endless amusement as the young clergyman, the Rev. Nathaniel Hope. Mr. William Hayward is seen to much advantage as Jake Grudgewell, the man who aids the villain in his various plots and schemes. Mr. Clive Rawlins is good as P.C. Hammond, and Miss Phyllis French is very smart as Bob, the little tramp, who proves such a faithful friend to the hero. No notice would be complete without reference to Gyp—Molly's canine companion, who is such a terrer to Clifford Yorke and his accomplice. The dog certainly seems to enjoy his share in the play and is a great favourite. The play is very well staged, and the many big scenes are put on in the most complete manner. The orchestra, under Mr. G. F. Ford's direction, do splendid work and give much pleasure. Mr. Wilfred Stanford is the acting manager for Mr. Robert Arthur.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, June 17, the Drama,
by Arthur Shirley and George Conquest, entitled
"THE LONDON FIREMAN."

Large audiences have this week been interested in the above exciting story of London life. The piece contains many ingeniously-contrived situations, and the comedy element is well up to the mark. Messrs. Garside and Knowles' company presents the play to the best possible advantage. Mr. J. Forbes Knowles supplies a vigorous embodiment of the hero, Hal Curtis, and Ida Curtis is well enacted by Miss Nellie Shirley. Mr. Fowler Thatcher is capital in the dual rôles of the old reprobate, Bill Stinger, and the young rascal, Nixey Stinger, and to his unforced and infectious humour a great part of the success is due. Miss Nellie Garside is delightfully chic and engaging as the plain-spoken Polly Bramble, and her scenes with Nixey Stinger provoke roars of laughter. Mr. William Burgess is a powerful "Ratty" Curtis, and Mr. Herbert S. Humber an excellent Viscount Fleming. Mr. Frank Hertie plays cleverly in the dual rôles of the kind-hearted Dr. Gerrard and the eccentric German, Professor Curlewach. Mr. Lionel Thompson acts with dignity and naturalness as the blind Abel Fortnum, and Mr. Walter Wilby is good as Joe Blumer. Miss Beatrice Sinclair is powerful and pathetic as the unfortunate Grace Curtis. The other characters are in good hands. The scenery is quite adequate, and the scene of the house on fire at the end of the third act is very realistically rendered.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, June 17,
"THE LITTLE BREAD-WINNER."

A prompt return to the one-house-a-night system has been made here this week, and the above-named drama, played by Mr. J. H. Campbell's company, is drawing excellent houses. Mr. Dunlop Stewart is effective as Lord William Dorrington; Mr. Matthew Boulton as Richard Laurence gives a good interpretation; Mr. Alfred Maurice contributes a particularly good performance as Joseph Prior; and Mr. Norman Hall is excellent as Charles Prior. Mr. Wallace Carey is good as Doctor Chadwick, as also is Mr. Lea Hair as Monty. Miss Emil Leslie wins sympathy as Margaret Daventry; as Bridget O'Flanaghan Miss Jenny Bostock is satisfactory; Kate and Ruth Cherry are well played by Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam and Miss Kitty Melville; Little Emmie Thomas as the Little Breadwinner sings several songs, and dances neatly; and Miss Nellie King (Boby Trott) is a pleasing little actress and vocalist. The play is well mounted. The overture and incidental music are by Mr. Arthur Workman.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, June 17,
"THE BROKEN MELODY."

Mr. Auguste Van Biene and company are appearing at the Coronet this week in the perennial comedy-drama, The Broken Melody, which bids fair to rival Charley's Aunt in its running capacity. The distinguished actor-musician, though suffering somewhat from indisposition on Monday night, made a great hit as Paul Borinski, alias Count Livodia, and both by the vigour, earnestness, and sincerity of his acting and by his delightful 'cello recital in act II. he gained golden opinions. Miss Lena Burnleigh makes a very sweet and sympathetic figure of the wronged child-wife, Mabel, and acts with just the right degree of tragic intensity. Miss Grace Lester glides gracefully through the rather thankless part of the lovelorn Duchesse de Verviers, and even contrives to enlist our sympathy somewhat for this misguided and scheming woman. Miss R. Pulleyne makes a pretty and taking Hon. Mrs. Spinnaker; Mr. Henry Ludlow is imposing as the secret police spy, General Ivanoff; Mr. Edward Van Biene is very good as the faithful old retainer, Dickson; and Miss Margaret Gordon is well in the picture as the inquisitive landlady, Mrs. Dickson. As the insufferable Mortimer, the theatrical agent, Mr. Herbert Colley causes considerable laughter, and very amusing is the scene where Miss Gerrard, a part played by Miss M. Mannering, mistakes him for the maestro. Mr. Dudley Stuart as Beaujour and Mr. Archie Selwyn as Hon. Richard Spinnaker are eminently satisfactory; and Mr. W. Thomason as Dr. Magrath is also good. Mr Gilbert Heron is the business manager, Mr. Archie Selwyn stage manager, and Mr. Percival Goffin musical director for Mr. Van Biene.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, June 17, the Play in Four Acts, by Dion Boucicault, entitled
"THE OCTOROON."

The revival this week of Mr. Dion Boucicault's popular play, The Octoroon, is proving very acceptable to patrons of the Shakespeare Theatre, and at each performance the house has been filled with an enthusiastic audience. The play is staged in a very complete and elaborate manner, and is excellently interpreted by a very good company. Mr. Frank Adair, who gives a capital embodiment of Salem Scudder, meets with much success; Mr. Hugh Mewburn as Jacob McClosky is to be congratulated on a sterling performance; and Mr. Wingold Lawrence as George Peyton submits a manly and earnest portrayal of the character. Mr. George H. Asquin, who is responsible for a clever character study of Pete, an old Negro, also contributes an excellent clog dance. As Wah-notee, an Indian Chief, Mr. George Mitchell is satisfactory, and Mr. Chris Mason makes the most of his opportunities in the rôle of Col. Pointdexter. Mr. Fred Withers as Sunnyside and Mr. C. Cecil as Capt. Ratts also render good support. Miss Louie Adair, in the part of Zoe, the Octoroon, acts with pleasing effect, winning sympathetic applause; Miss Lydia Mannington makes an attractive Dora Sunnyside; Miss Nellie Daly as Mrs. Peyton is effective; and Miss Daisy Maynard is deserving of commendation for her delineation of Paul. A group of coloured artists, specially engaged, introduce plantation songs, dances, &c., which are enthusiastically encored. The play is produced under the direction of Mr. Frank Adair, who is assisted by Mr. Chris Mason as assistant stage-manager. The comfort of the audience is, as usual, well looked after by Mr. E. de Hague Body, the popular acting-manager for Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, June 17, the Drama,
"TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS."

For ten years the famous play, Two Little Vagabonds, has been before the public, but it has not staled at all, and the large audiences which have nightly assembled at Kennington Theatre to witness its production by Hardie and Von Greer's original company this week have followed the development of the story with as much interest as ever. It has been rightly said that this play is one which goes straight to the human heart. It has humour, wit; it abounds in thrilling situations; it is full of wonderful character-drawing, and it is insistent in its appeal to the emotions. The piece is excellently put on, for the company is the strongest that Hardie and Von Greer have on the road, and the staging and accessories leave nothing to be desired. In the title-rôle, Miss Edie Martin (Dick) and Miss Josie Beltram (Wally) each score a triumphant success, acting with a childish charm and pathos which irresistibly appeals to the susceptibilities of the audience. Mr. Douglas Vigors does well in the somewhat difficult part of George Thornton, first the jealous, and subsequently repentant, husband. As the wrongly-accused wife of Thornton, Miss Grace Heywood acts with great dramatic force and intensity. The heroine could not be better presented. Bill Mullins, the Gaffer, is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Lionel Ellis, who is admirably supported by Mr. Frank Gordon as Dido Bunce, Mr. Dick Winglow as the Coughdrop, and Miss Evelyn Shaw as Biddy Mullins. Mr. Ellis and Mr. Shaw are responsible in the main for the lighter side of the play, and they are to be congratulated on the fine show they give. Mr. Sidney Vautier makes a splendid Captain Darville, in love with Barbara, and Mr. Dunstan Haye is well placed as John Scarth—the suspicious husband. In the part of Barbara Scarth, the erring but remorseful woman and eventually happy wife, Miss Rosslyn Vayne finds full scope for her histrionic abilities, and Miss Lena Vernon does all that is required of her as Sister Randall with tactful judgment. Mr. Harry F. Wright gives a careful study of the character of Leeson, the soldier-servant, and Mr. Marston Moor is amusing as the inquisitive landlord of the Chequers Inn. Mr. Hugh Holliman as the Sexton and Mr. Henry Buckland in the character of the Village Constable both cause considerable merriment. The smaller parts of Dr. Lynn (Mr. Thomas Blakeman), the Footman (Mr. W. T. Harris), and the Maidservant (Miss Hilda Leslie) are ably taken.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

This week a series of Shakespearean performances have been given under the direction of Mr. Ian Maclaren. The play on Monday was The Merchant of Venice, in which the part of the Jew was portrayed by Mr. Maclaren with conspicuous ability. He was assisted by a most capable company, Mr. Dagby Vole playing the Duke of Venice, Mr. Frank Royde the Prince of Morocco, Mr. Arthur Fayne Antonio, Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., Bassanio, Mr. Basil Deane Gratiano, Mr. J. V. Bryant Lorenzo, and Miss Glossop-Harris Portia. On Tuesday As You Like It was produced, with Mr. Maclaren as Orlando, and Miss Harris as Rosalind; whilst Mr. Fayne filled the part of Jacques, and Mr. Cellier that of Touchstone. The attraction on Wednesday was Hamlet, when Mr. Maclaren played the title-rôle, Mr. Royde the King, Mr. Cellier Laertes, Mr. Fayne Polonius, and Miss Rosalie Notrelle Ophelia. Twelfth Night was produced on Thursday, Othello on Friday, and Hamlet will be reproduced to-night. The plays were admirably staged.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, June 17, the Drama,
by C. A. Clarke and H. R. Silva, entitled
"HONOUR THY FATHER."

Mr. Morton Powell's company is here this week in the above-named drama. Patrons who enjoy thrilling situations are amply catered for in this production. As Gabriel Garth Mr. Walter M. Cameron provides an interesting and pathetic study, in which he is ably assisted by Miss Kate Newton as Gertrude Garth, his wife. Jack Halyard is played in a dashing manner by Mr. Robert Gilbert, and Mr. Howell Travis acts with much power as the villainous Duncan Bly. Mr. Fred L. Conynghame in the character of Mike Copplestone is a quaint comedian, and keeps the audience in fits of laughter by his off-hand treatment of the villainous Duncan Bly. Miss Mabel Coleman gives a sympathetic rendering of the character of Lilian Garth, and Miss Winnie Donovan is a fascinating Mercy Merry. Miss Ada Salmon as Poppy Corleigh and Mr. W. H. Melrose as Ned Pennycomquick are together responsible for much merriment, and other characters are in safe hands. The drama is well staged, especially the scene in the second act representing Sir Duncan Bly's House Boat on the Thames.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, June 17, the Drama, in Four Acts, Written by Edward Thane, entitled
"THE MOCKERY OF MARRIAGE."

This drama of Mr. Thane is always sure of a hearty welcome in Marylebone, and certainly this week proved no exception to the rule, Mr. Bailey's staunch patrons following the various incidents with breathless interest. As Dick Kenyon Mr. Edward Thane is seen at his best, and he certainly succeeds in stirring the passions of the West Londoners to their uttermost depths. Mr. C. J. Foster deserves every praise for his careful playing of Seth Pearce; Mr. W. E. Griffiths is well placed as Joseph Vernham; Mr. Frank Coston is full of life and go as Toby Wright; and Mr. Charles Lodge-Percy imparts plenty of earnestness into his vigorous portrayal of Jack Stanley. Miss Henrietta Schrier enacts Rosa Vernham with much feeling and tasteful effect; Miss Rose Ellis gets plenty of sympathy as Nelly Kenyon; Miss Grace Emery scores all along the line for her vivacious acting as Mary Ann Barnicoat; whilst Miss Winifred Whyte—at times strongly reminiscent of Miss Olga Audre—puts in plenty of good work as the sorely-tried Alva Kenyon. The piece is mounted and staged in irreproachable style, and the all-round excellence of the company is most noticeable.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, June 17, the Drama,
by Wm. McClellan, entitled
"A WOMAN ADRIFT."

Mr. Samuel James this week presents A Woman Adrift, supported by an excellent company. Mr. Henry Hatchman gives a very fine performance of the dual rôle of Ferdinand Castro and Leo Castro; Mr. David G. Noble is very good indeed as Sir John Ingleby; Mr. George Wallace makes an amusing Jibbs; Mr. Ashton Winslow plays well as Pentecost Mackay; and Mr. George Ashley as Roderick, Mr. Will Skelton as Dennis, Mr. Fred Dalton as Carla, Mr. Norman Brooks as Pedro, and Mr. F. Gare as Andreas all add to the success. Miss Maud Harris plays Rupert Ingleby naturally and pleasingly; Miss Katharine Clarke gives an excellent performance of the part of Cora Leigh; Miss Ella Seton is an attractive Molly; and Miss East Robertson adds to her reputation by her admirable acting of the character of Stella.

"DRINK; OR, SAVED BY A CHILD'S PRAYER."

A Drama, in Four Acts, by Cecil Phillips,
Produced at the Town Hall,
Cley-next-the-Sea, Norfolk, on Friday, June 14.

Hartley Granville ..... MR. DOUGLAS WARE
Joe Morgan ..... MR. BEN CARR
Swizzel ..... MR. CECIL PHILIPPS
Susie ..... MISS EFFIE MASON
Mrs. Morgan ..... MISS ELIZABETH LANG
Mary Morgan ..... MISS EUGENIE VESTRIS
Ida Morgan ..... MISS KATE LANG
Frank Hammond ..... MR. BEN BARNETT
Mrs. Bradley ..... MISS KATE MONTGOMERY
Policeman ..... MR. DAVID COOK

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The above drama bears but little resemblance to the play with a similar title which Mr. Charles Warner has made so popular. The theme deals with the troubles that befall a once-prosperous tradesman, who has yielded to the seductive cup, and his subsequent reformation. The carefully-told story takes place in an English country village. Joe Morgan, the principal business man in the community, is making frequent visits to the Rose and Crown, presided over by Mrs. Bradley. His daughter Ida is sought in marriage by Frank Hammond, whom she loves, but, fearing she has inherited the alcoholic taint, she refuses him. Meanwhile a rascally lawyer, Hartley Granville, discovers that Ida is the legatee under a certain will, and determines to compel her to marry him. Morgan's drink habit eventually results in his ruin, and at length he is ejected from the village inn, the hostess hurling a heavy tankard after him. Morgan's child Mary, to whom he is devotedly attached, arrives at this moment to conduct her father home, and is struck by the missile. The next scene shows the dying bed of little Mary. Joe Morgan kneels at his dying child's side as she recounts a vision she has of her father sober and respected. As the child passes away Joe vows to abstain in future from all intoxicants.

Seven years elapse, and Morgan has kept his promise. We next se him a prosperous business man, with his shop on the site formerly occupied by the Rose and Crown, the landlady of which has become a ruined drunkard herself. In order to raise money to leave the country Hartley Granville forges Joe Morgan's name to a cheque, but the forgery is discovered. Morgan would forgive his enemy, but the police are inexorable, and he is led away to gaol. Frank Hammond, who has now become a barrister, renews his suit to Ida, and this time is accepted.

Mr. Phillips has constructed a clever work, which should be more effective as an object-lesson of the evils of intemperance than many sermons. The dialogue is sensible, and the situations probable; while the element of humour is not lacking. Much fun comes of the vicissitudes of the courtship of Swizzel and Susie, characters charmingly played by Mr. Phillips and Miss Effie Mason. As Joe Morgan Mr. Ben Carr acted with discrimination and intense realism; Mr. Ben Barnett was good as Frank Hammond; Miss Elizabeth Lang and Miss Kate Lang as mother and daughter were quite at home in their parts; a clever child actress in Miss Eugenie Vestris made a veritable hit, her natural acting in the death-scene being well worthy of a child bearing the honoured name of Vestris, to which she claims an ancestral right. The author and all concerned received enthusiastic cheers.

ANOTHER play from the pen of Mr. Richard A. Greene, entitled What Love Can Do, is shortly to be produced by Mr. Fred J. Little, who has acquired the rights for Great Britain and Ireland.

THE Great Eastern Railway Co. has just issued an advertising novelty consisting of small oval cards, illustrating the beauties of the scenery of the Norfolk coast, with some of the most interesting spots in East Anglia, including Cromer, Mundesley-on-Sea, Sheringham, &c.

PASTORAL PLAYS.

Beautiful weather favoured the production, in the grounds of the Royal Botanic Society at Regent's Park, on Monday afternoon, of a couple of pastoral plays by Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson. Among the audience on this brilliant summer afternoon were many well-known actors and actresses, including Sir Charles Wyndham, Miss Mary Moore, Miss Constance Collier, and Mr. Henry Neville. The first piece presented, described by the authoress as "an Arcadian comedy in one act," bore the title of

"CUPID'S THRONE."

SHEPHERDS.

Corin ..... MR. MILTON ROSMER.
Strephon ..... MR. PHILIP DESBOROUGH
Philemon ..... MR. ALEXANDER CASSY

SHEPHERDESSES.

Daphne ..... MISS GERTRUDE HENRIQUES
Chloe ..... MISS MAUDE BUCHANAN
Phœbe ..... MISS VERA HERBERT
Althea ..... MISS MARGARET FARELEIGH
Amaryllis ..... MISS BEATRICE FORBES-ROBERTSON
An Old Man ..... MR. TOM HESLEWOOD
Amélie ..... MISS CORISANDE HAMILTON

One could hardly have wished for more delightful surroundings which were to act as a "scene" for a charming little play than were afforded by the picturesque little grove in which these "shepherds" and "shepherdesses" lived and had their being for the space of nearly an hour. Trees and bushes formed almost a semi-circular stage, and the foliage was dense enough to prevent the curious from seeing beyond or penetrating into the mysteries of the improvised dressing-room. Cupid's Throne tells in verse a pretty story. Corin, a simple Arcadian, loves Amaryllis, but, with feminine fickleness, she turns her affections towards Strephon, who does not really care for her, and only tolerates her until he has secured his beloved Amélie. Corin bewails his fate as he witnesses the happy union of these and other lovers, and Amaryllis laments her faithlessness. But Daphne finds a way to bring them together, and all ends happily. Miss Forbes-Robertson was exquisitely graceful and engaging as Amaryllis, and quite took the fancy of the spectators. Mr. Milton Rosmer submitted a capital study of the sorrowful swain, Corin; and able support was rendered by Mr. Philip Desborough as Strephon, Miss Corisande Hamilton as Amélie, Miss Gertrude Henriques as Daphne, and the other members of the cast.

The second piece was

"THE QUEST OF THE STAR,"
a Romantic Pastoral Play, in One Act.

The Prince ..... MR. LEWIS WILLOUGHBY
Lord Ambrose ..... MR. ALEXANDER CASSY
Pasqual ..... MR. PHILIP DESBOROUGH
Blaise ..... MR. HUBERT CARTER
The Princess Rosabel ..... MISS GERTRUDE HENRIQUES
Croisette ..... MISS MAUDE BUCHANAN
An Old Woman ..... MISS VERA HERBERT
Fair ..... MISS BEATRICE FORBES-ROBERTSON

"A slight clearing in a forest" is the scene in which this love-story is supposed to take place, and the forest was well enough represented by the luxurious trees which formed a pleasant enclosure in which Miss Forbes-Robertson and her party of players gave their performance. An old woman has brought up a girl who, as a baby, she found in the forest. That girl, who is known as Fair, has developed into a fine woman, and is loved by the son of her benefactress. But there is another maid who also loves the sturdy goatherd, and she is Croisette. Fair accidentally drops a necklace containing a diamond star, and this is picked up by Croisette, who refuses to part with it to Blaise, the goatherd, until he has promised to treat her in a friendlier manner. Into the forest fastness rides a prince, who has decided to relinquish the leadership of his subjects and to lead a happy, free, and unfettered life in this picturesque Arcady. The old woman finds him lodging, and he—well, he falls a victim to the sweet enchantments and the innocent simplicity of Fair. The Prince's chancellor comes in search of his royal master, and he is accompanied by the Princess Rosabel. The two nations represented by the Prince and Princess are at war, and it is the desire of the Chancellor to secure peace by the marriage of the reigning heads. Therefore the Prince is told that he must wed the Princess Rosabel. For the sake of his people, and much against his own inclinations, he agrees to do so, and as he is saying "good-bye" to poor Fair the fact that a diamond star was found on the latter when a baby proves her to be the rightful princess, and so all ends well. Miss Forbes-Robertson again delighted everybody with her impersonation of the fresh and dainty young forest maiden. Mr. Hubert Carter was vigorous and hearty as the goatherd; and Mr. Lewis Willoughby acted with convincing earnestness as the Prince. Miss Maude Buchanan gave an entirely pleasing portrayal of the winsome Croisette; Mr. Alexander Cassy maintained the dignity of the Chancellor; Miss Gertrude Henriques as the jealous and scheming Princess Rosabel and Mr. Philip Desborough as her body servant, and Miss Vere Herbert as an old woman all acted in commendable fashion. Miss Forbes-Robertson may be congratulated not only upon the writing of these plays, but also upon their production.

SEÑOR CARLOS SOBRINO'S RECITAL.

On Tuesday afternoon the Spanish pianist, Señor Sobrino, gave his sixth and last recital in the concert-room of the Guildhall School. The programme was interesting and varied, giving examples of no less than nine composers, the first heard being D'Albert's clever Allemande, Gavotte et Musette. Señor Sobrino greatly pleased his large audience by his playing of Raff's La Fileuse and Grieg's Album-leaf, Papillons, and the Norwegian Bridal Procession; being also much applauded in the popular Etude "Si Oiseau j'étais" by Henselt. A brilliant rendering of Sinding's delightful Frühlingsrauschen and the quaint Menuett a l'Antique, by Paderewski, were one of the chief features of the recital, which also included Tschaikowsky's Nocturne, "In the Troika," and MacDowell's remarkable Witches' Danse. Moszkowski was represented by his "En Autumn" and Caprice Espagnol, both beautifully played. At the close of this, his last recital, Señor Sobrino was many time recalled, and very warmly greeted.

"THE DOOR UPON THE LATCH."

Play, in one act, dramatised by F. Kinsey Peile, from "Le Sire de Maletroit," a story by Robert Louis Stevenson, and produced at His Majesty's Theatre, on Friday, June 14.

Alain—Sire de Maletroit ..... MR. LYN HARDING
Denis de Beaulieu ..... MR. BASIL GILL
Dom Franciscus ..... MR. ROBERT H. ATKINS
Florimond de Champdivers ..... MR. LANGHORNE BURTON
Jean ..... MR. CLIVE CURRIE
Marie ..... MISS KATE OSBORNE
Peasant Woman ..... MISS MURIEL ALEXANDER
Blanche de Maletroit ..... MISS CONSTANCE COLLIER

Those were the days of chivalry, as well as of bloodthirsty tyranny, when Alain—Sire de Maletroit, like another Louis XI., sent gallant knights to their death without shriving or without trial for a mere act of folly. Yet he is quite an interesting old gentleman as created by the late Robert Louis Stevenson in his romance, "Le Sire de Maletroit," which Mr. Kinsey Peile has carefully dramatised for His Majesty's Theatre, and thereby added appreciably to the interest of Mr. Tree's programme. The feudal lord guards with a jealous care his niece, Blanche de Maletroit, who has dared, during her devotions at mass, to lift her beautiful eyes to gaze for a moment at a young knight, Florimond de Champdivers, with whom she falls in love. Cupid finds a messenger, and an unsigned letter, dropped by Blanche, falls into the grim old tyrant's hands. Previous to this, however, it is the unhappy fate of Florimond to incur his displeasure, and the young lover is strung up outside the window of the castle on a charge of brawling and drunken violence, proferred against him by the female keeper of a wineshop who was unable to supply his wants. Having thus satisfied the demands of what he terms justice, my lord of Maletroit reads Florimond's unsigned letter, and resolves to follow out its instructions by leaving the door on the latch. Denis de Beaulieu, a young officer, becomes an unwilling intruder. He has to defend himself against the attack of some roystering soldiers, and putting his back up against the yielding door, falls sprawling into the dimly-lit apartment. Here he is discovered by the chuckling old schemer, who, mistaking him for the writer of the incriminating letter, insists that he shall marry Blanche, or meet the fate of the real lover. Denis flatly refuses, though, when he sees her kneeling at the altar, ready dressed for the ceremony, he confesses to an admiration of Blanche's beauty. The crafty old match-maker leaves the young people for a while to themselves. Denis will not make Blanche unhappy by marrying her against her will; but, after she has overcome his scruples by an avowal of love, she indulges in a fit of pique, and refuses to marry him. The noose is put round his neck, and such an argument cannot be resisted. She falls into his arms, removes the rope, and he leads her to the altar.

Mr. Lyn Harding as the Sire de Maletroit gives a character sketch that affords a most interesting example of the actor's versatility. He conveys quite easily the impression of cynical malignancy, heedless cruelty, and craft that possess the old gentleman, and to his cleverness the dramatist owes not a little of the success of his piece, which was received with much applause on the night of our visit. Miss Constance Collier makes a beautiful bride, and gives an air of medieval romance to the rôle of Blanche; and Mr. Basil Gill is robust and virile as the chivalrous Denis de Beaulieu. Mr. Langhorne Burton creates a good impression by his pleading as the unfortunate Florimond. Mr. Robert H. Atkins is an impressive Dom Franciscus; and the minor parts are capably handled by Miss Kate Osborne, Miss Muriel Alexander, and Mr. Clive Currie. Mr. Tree has shown his usual care in the mounting of the piece, the hall of Alain's castle, with its stained glass windows and its torchlights in embrasures, realising exactly a medieval apartment of the fifteenth century.

"THE DUMB-CAKE."

Play in One Act, adapted from Arthur Morrison's "Divers Vanities," by the Author and Richard Pryce, and produced at the Hicks Theatre, on Wednesday, June 19.

Martha Hardy ..... MISS HILDA TREVELYAN
Mrs. Nye ..... MISS MINNIE GRIFFEN
Spotto Bird ..... MR. LOUIS GOODRICH

Cakes and ale have a more pathetic significance than is usual in the new one-act play, The Dumb-Cake, adapted by Arthur Morrison and Richard Pryce from the former's story, "Divers Vanities," and produced on Wednesday at the Hicks Theatre in front of Brewster's Millions. Poor little Martha Hardy, living at No. 5, Webster's Almshouses, in the Borough, where she has been nursing her bed-ridden mother for some years, indulges in day-dreams of a lover—such as she has read of in novelettes. The legend of Allhalloween, explained to her circumstantially and accurately by Mrs. Nye, another inmate of the Almshouses, exercises a spell over her. She follows the old lady's directions implicitly. There is the cake, which has been baked for seven days, and placed under her pillow for seven nights; there the glass of ale, and there the candle. They are all arranged on the table, and the door of the dwelling is to be left wide open on the stroke of twelve for the lover to come in. During her temporary absence to make her invalid mother comfortable for the night, Spotto Bird, a pickpocket well known to the police, is being followed in the neighbourhood, and, hard pressed, the fugitive gladly takes advantage of the open door, which he closes and bolts. Catching sight of the beer, he immediately drinks it; but the cake is too heavy for him to tackle. Poor little Martha on her return gazes at him ecstatically as if he were a knightly lover come to bear her away from her colorless existence. He cannot comprehend her joyful welcome, and can only hazard answers to her wondering questions. She calls him Wilfred, gives him a locket, and extracts from him a promise to call "next Thursday." On his departure Mrs. Nye returns to toll the story of the robbery of an old gentleman's watch, and then Martha comprehends that her future husband is only a dream after all. The acting of Miss Hilda Trevelyan as Martha is worth going a long way to see. The patient, gentle little drudge becomes in her hands an embodiment that is touchingly real; and the small figure departing up the staircase to resume the common round of her grey life is a pathetic sight. Mr. Louis Goodrich is a characteristic moocher; and Miss Minnie Griffen makes a duly garrulous Mrs. Nye.

Brewster's Millions is running to the laughter and applause of enthusiastic and packed houses, who recognise in Mr. Gerald du Maurier an actor who wears with considerable distinction the mantle of Charles Mathews.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The usual Council meeting was held at 10, King-street, Covent Garden, on Tuesday. Mr. Lewis Casson occupied the chair, and also present were—Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Mesdames Georgina Hamilton and Wynne Matthison, and Messrs. Cecil Brooking, C. F. Collings, Edmund Gurney, Roy Horniman, Fredk. Morland, Frank Vernon, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary).

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The chairman read a letter from Mr. Arthur Holmes-Gore in which he tendered his resignation as a member of the Council and committees thereunder. It was agreed the acceptance be deferred until Mr. Lewis Casson had an opportunity of writing him on the subject with a view to his retention of his seat.

Mr. Lewis Casson read a copy of his letter to Mr. A. W. Pinero, and Mr. Pinero's reply to the effect that he preferred that his resignation should stand. It was agreed that Mr. Pinero's resignation be accepted with very great regret.

A member attended before the Council and explained the circumstances under which he claimed damages from a manager for breach of contract. It was agreed that Mr. Mote be asked to inform the gentleman the Association could not take up the matter as he was not a member of the Association at the time the cause of action arose.

A member attended before the Council and gave her views upon the subject of the agency-fee resolution passed at the meeting on the 4th inst. The matter having been discussed at some length, it was decided that the resolution of the 4th inst. be rescinded.

The chairman read the correspondence with regard to a claim under coupon, and it was agreed that the member should see the hon. solicitors and state his claim in order that they may prepare a declaration to be made by him setting out the details and giving the necessary proof of loss, and that he should be requested to attend the next Council meeting at three o'clock.

The question of the circulation of the letter to managers on the subject of accommodation for artists in theatres, and also of the appeal to actors for the proper treatment of dressing-rooms, was under discussion. With respect to the appeal to actors, it had already been decided that the late deputy-chairman should communicate with certain managers so that they might, if they so wished, suggest alterations or additions. After some discussion, it was proposed that the secretary send copies of the appeal to actors to the secretaries of the Theatrical Managers' Association and the Touring Managers' Association, and request them to ask the members of their Associations to suggest any alterations or additions that they wish. As an amendment, it was proposed that, in view of the present financial position of the A.A., the whole question of the distribution of the letter to managers and the appeal to actors be shelved. This amendment was lost, and the original proposition carried.

The secretary reported he had written to Mr. Laurence Irving, as directed, and received a reply that his time was too much taken up to enable him to accept the chairmanship of the Library Committee.

In a letter to the chairman of the Council, Mr. Kenyon Musgrave suggested that, inasmuch as he should be absent for some little time, he should resign. It was agreed that Mr. Musgrave's resignation be not accepted.

A resolution, proposed by Mr. Frederick Morland and seconded by Miss Georgina Hamilton, "That the Council cordially welcomes the society formed by members of the A.A., entitled 'The Play Actors,' and is ready to assist it in any way that is possible, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Council of 'The Play Actors,' was agreed to.

It was proposed by Mr. Fredk. Morland and seconded by Miss Wynne Matthison: "That the Council is of opinion that the enforcement of a minimum wage—though for the present impracticable—is a necessary condition to the well-being of the theatrical profession, and is determined to do all in its power towards the attainment of this object. The Finance and General Purposes Committee are therefore directed to collect any information and statistics which may bear upon the subject, and to report to the Council." The matter having been discussed at considerable length, the resolution was agreed to.

The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received and adopted. The report of the Social Committee was received.

The secretary having reported the receipt of a letter from a lady promising payment of her subscription when she had secured an engagement of some duration, it was agreed that the secretary should write to the lady, pointing out to her the alteration of the rule governing the payment of subscription, and to inform her if her dues were not paid prior to the expiration of seventy days from the 27th of last month her name would be removed from the register, but that she might be reinstated at any time thereafter upon application.

It was resolved that the secretary should write to the secretaries of the committees, drawing their attention to the rules in existence governing the operations of committees.

Constance Clive and Clarissa Selwynne were nominated for election, and five former members were reinstated.

The Suggestion Book was considered and entries made.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday, when there were present—Mr. Lewis Casson (in the chair), Messrs. Fredk. Morland, Frank Vernon, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. Fredk. Morland placed the following recommendations before the committee, and it was agreed that the same be submitted to the Council: "That the Council be advised, in the place of the present bi-monthly and social meetings, to substitute fortnightly meetings of the Actors' Association, to be held every alternate Friday from September to May inclusive. Of these, every fourth meeting shall be a business meeting and the others conducted as are the present social meetings. That the Council appoint the chairman at all the meetings. That the Social Committee arrange for tea to be served before all the meetings, and arrange for lecturers, speakers, &c., at the non-business meetings. That it be open to members to give notice of subjects for discussion at the business meetings. That the Council bring before the business meetings such matters in regard to which it may be desirable to have the opinion of the members. That the secretary or his deputy be present and act as secretary at the business meetings. That all the meetings be open to the Press."

ACTORS' UNION.

LONDON.

MR. FRED BENTLEY presided at Tuesday's meeting of the Actors' Union, in place of Mr. Frank Lacy, who was detained in consequence of a rehearsal. The meeting was held at the Bedford Head Hotel. Among those present were Mr. Ruddle Brown, Mr. Arthur Bawtree, Mr. E. Y. Rae, Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., Mr. H. Nelson, Mr. R. Cowell, Mr. Russell, Mr. Redmond, Mr. Pritchard, Mr. Bonhote Wilson, Mr. F. Prior, Mr. A. Richards, Mr. F. Rolls, Mr. Frank Sutherland, Mr. J. M. Troughton, Mr. Seager, Mr. Wm. Lockhart, Mr. Lanford Reed, Mr. Austin, Mr. H. J. Loveday, jun., Mr. E. Chester, Mr. A. Wainwright, Mr. Roy Barraclough, Mr. J. Carl-Lyle, Mr. J. Braithwaite, Mr. Leonard Marshall, Mr. S. Braithwaite, Mr. G. Goodwin, Mr. L. Stevenson, Mr. C. Dashwood, Mr. Bennett, Mr. E. W. Wolsley, Mr. Alex Alves, Mr. W. F. Clitherow, Mr. Leyton Cancellor, Mr. Simon Ord, Mr. Richd. Elliott, Mr. Jas. Willoughby, Mr. Roy Gordon, Miss Megone, Mrs. Megone, Miss Gurney, Miss Roberts, Miss B. Liston, Miss Harrison, Miss Norton, Miss Upton, Miss Nellie Howitt, Miss Cuthbert, Mr. Cecil Braithwaite, Miss Annie Travers, Miss E. Lumley, Miss Bratley, Miss Harrison, Miss Elsie Carew, Miss Gracey, Miss Kate Randolf, Mr. C. E. Anson, Mr. G. Sydney, Miss M. Armitage, Miss Nellie Burdette, Miss Hilda Dennis, Miss Mapleson, Miss G. Tate, Miss Gladys Ffolliott, Mr. George Trewman, Mr. Digby, Miss Nance Nicholls, Miss Robertson, Miss Mabel Syringa, Miss May Conrade, Mr. and Mrs. O. Marshall, and Miss Lucy Sibley.

The CHAIRMAN opened his address by tendering his thanks to all those who had been kind enough to vote for him as a member of the committee. Speaking on the objects of the meeting, he pointed out that it was of no use a man being a member of the Union unless he could do something for it. Some people had looked upon their joining the Union as a kind of hobby. The Irving-Hicks scheme was started two years ago with the fixed intention of opposing anything in the nature of a trades union. The A.U. was at present a trades union, and intended to remain one.

MISS GLADYS FFOLLIOTT said that some days ago she was talking to a well-known manager, and he told her that he himself would bear not the slightest animosity to the Actors' Union, because he was of opinion that it would be the means of improving matters generally. She desired to urge upon their consideration such important schemes as the death levy and the old age pension fund. She thought that they should get up a performance for the purpose of securing money for the Union.

The CHAIRMAN announced that there would be an important meeting of members on Friday at the Chandos Hall, in Maiden-lane.

MR. ARTHUR BAWTREE again drew attention to the objects of the Union, and impressed upon his hearers the importance of introducing new members. He intimated that it was not the intention of the Union to start a theatrical agency, but that they would help each other to secure engagements.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Certain people are mystified as to the means by which sketch-managers appeared on the committee. Sketch-managers would not be on the committee if members had not voted for them. The mystery is why members voted for them. I am acquainted with several members, and doubtless there are many more, who voted for Messrs. Shine and Paulton, ignorant of the fact that they were sketch-managers, naturally concluding that all candidates offered themselves under Rule 6, which makes managers ineligible for election. It must not be forgotten that Mr. Robson Paige contemplated resigning his position on the council when the inexplicable departures from the original programme were foreshadowed, but he considered he could better serve the ultimate welfare of the Union by remaining. Mr. Gordon Wilson, with delightful ingenuousness, has said, he likes to see ladies in their "own fields," the Orphanage and the Guild. On what ground does he hold that the Union council is not equally "their field"? Is it that of mental deficiency or lack of practical knowledge? Is, say, Miss Gertrude Kingston less capable of adequately voicing and carrying out the members' wishes than some of the present committee? Mr. Paige, together with Mr. Raleigh, recognising the principle involved, has from the first staunchly championed the inclusion of ladies on the committee. We cannot reasonably look for an appreciable increase of membership under existing conditions. Artists listen and read, but they won't join. It is a case of "No, Maria; I will do anything you like in reason, but I will not come home." And this will be the general attitude until the machine, which has run off the lines on which it started, be hoicked back and set going on "strictly democratic lines, by actors for actors."—Yours faithfully,

ALFRED CAPPER'S ENTERTAINMENT.

Mr. Alfred Capper, who is well-known for his thought-reading séances, gave an entertainment on Wednesday evening at the Hampstead Conservatoire. There was a capital audience, who followed with considerable interest the various feats brought under their notice. In his opening remarks Mr. Capper explained that he had no intention of devoting himself entirely to thought-reading, which formed less than a half of the programme. The earlier part of the evening was partly taken up with the tying and untying of knots, and in this direction Mr. Capper gave evidence of talent and skilfulness which somewhat mystified the spectators. For instance, a silk handkerchief was borrowed from a member of the audience, it was knotted strongly in four places, and yet Mr. Capper had only to hold the handkerchief in his hand and ask someone to blow at it, and all the knots were found to be untied. Still more wonderful was his trick with a long piece of braid, tied to the back of a chair, fastened to a ring and a key, the two ends of the tape, passed through the arms of a boy's Eton jacket, and then by a steady movement separated from all the various articles. Coming to Mr. Capper's thought-reading feats, one could not but marvel at the precision and rapidity with which these were performed. Names of persons were written on small cards, which were placed in an envelope, and Mr. Capper, without seeing the writing on the slips, but simply after scrutinising the faces of the writers, revealed the information in each case. He was equally successful at his own speciality of "hide and seek." This proved to be a little more complicated and difficult of accomplishment than the pastime so popular at children's parties. After Mr. Capper had left the room, one of the audience removed a ring from the finger of a lady, touched various objects in three parts of the auditorium, and then hid it. On returning, Mr. Capper took the hand of the person who had secreted the ornament, repeated his movements, and indicated the whereabouts of the ring, doing all this blindfolded. The whole show proved most enjoyable, especially as Mr. Louis de Rougemont assisted in one of the items.

MR. GRAHAM MORRISON.

Mr. Graham Morrison has been engaged by Mr. Seymour Hicks to represent him and manage the répertoire company he is sending out to South America in August next for the South American Syndicate, Baires, Ltd. Mr. Graham Morrison, who, prior to joining the theatrical profession, was an accountant and a well-known society entertainer, is thoroughly acquainted with all branches of the profession, and in addition to business and stage-management, is an accomplished singer, dancer, and sifflеur, and is a most versatile actor, having played character parts, old men, and boys' parts in drama, farce, musical comedy, &c., but his business instincts led him to forsake the stage for the front of the house, and in 1901 he became business-manager for Mr. John Gerant's At Duty's Call. Then followed management of The Runaways and The Naughty Baroness, then The Light That Failed, Monsieur Beaucaire, Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner (two tours), Goody Two Shoes, after which general-management of The Factory Fire (the re-christened Case of Arson, in which the celebrated Dutch actor, Henri de Vries, played), then general-management for Under Which King? and Dr. Wake's Patient, both plays from Adelphi Theatre, then to the Adelphi Theatre to assist in front of the house. Then followed a tour with Mr. Forbes Robertson as Press manager, then a short engagement at Terry's Theatre with Mr. James Welch, followed by general-management for Mr. Cyril Keightley's répertoire company, general-management for Mrs. Michael Gunn's Sinbad the Sailor pantomime company, and, finally, business-manager-in-advance for Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss's Beauty of Bath tour.

Amongst numerous others, Mr. Graham Morrison has held business engagements with the following well-known managers:—Messrs. Charles Frohman, Seymour Hicks, Lewis Waller, Forbes Robertson, James Welch, Wilfred Cotton, Peter Davey, and Otho Stuart.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

Puccini's tragic opera, La Tosca, was given for the first time this season on Thursday night, June 13, a large audience being present. In the part of La Tosca, Mme. Giachetti made her first appearance this season, giving a most dramatic and intense rendering of a character which, however unpleasant, requires masterly treatment, and Mme. Giachetti, in her great scene with Scarpia, by her powerful and realistic acting, made a deep impression on the audience. Some slight changes were an improvement in this scene, Tosca stabbing Scarpia while he is sitting at the table and not as he rises from the writing-desk. Signor Caruso both sang and acted admirably as Cavaradossi; while Signor Scotti as the cruel and callous Scarpia achieved his customary success. The one touch of quaint humour which gives a moment's relief to this gloomy and lurid opera was the capital Sacristan of M. Gilibert. For the rest, M. Galletti played Angelotte and Signor Campanini conducted an excellent performance.

Faust was given on Friday night, June 14, with somewhat moderate results. Mr. Carpi, while using his pleasing tenor voice with good effect in the charming music, gave a slightly tame impersonation of the hero. Mme. Donalda, who looked delightfully youthful in the part of Marguerite, sang the "Jewel song" brilliantly; and M. Journet's fine voice was heard to great advantage in his robust and humorous representation of Mephistopheles. Mr. Crabbe acted the part of Wagner with intelligence; and Mr. Sammarco deserves hearty praise for his fine singing and acting as Valentine. Siebel was undertaken by Miss Zeppilli; and the Nurse by Mme. Paulin. The opera was performed in Italian, Mr. Percy Pitt conducting the orchestra.

Verdi's Rigoletto was performed at Covent Garden on Monday night, and the old opera went well considering there were no great stars in the cast. Mr. Bassi, who in Pagliacci lately created a good impression, further improved his position by, in many respects, an excellent performance of the Duke in Verdi's opera. The fine quality of Mr. Bassi's voice and his graceful and sympathetic acting made the new tenor's appearance in this character a success. Miss Selma Kurz, whose brilliant singing as the page in Ballo in Maschera some season ago may be remembered, impersonated the unhappy Gilda, but beyond some clever singing and well-executed shakes in "Caro Nome" Miss Kurz's Gilda was a cold and, in some respects, an uninteresting performance. Not being in good voice was evidently the chief cause. The principal feature of the performance on Monday was the fine singing and acting of Mr. Sammarco, in his splendid interpretation of the hapless Jester. Mme. de Cisneros sang admirably as Maddalena, while the Contessa was cleverly played by Mme. Severina. M. Gilibert made an excellent Monterone, and Mr. Journet a realistic Sparafucile. Mr. Panizza proved most efficient as conductor, not a little of the success of the performance being due to his untiring efforts.

MR. TREE AND THE VAGABONDS.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree was entertained at luncheon by the New Vagabond Club at the Hotel Cecil on Thursday, in recognition of his long service in connection with the stage. Sir Gilbert Parker, M.P., took the chair, and amongst those present were Mrs. and Miss Tree, Mr. Coulson Kernahan, Mr. C. E. Shaw, M.P., and Mrs. Shaw, and Mr. Bernard Roth, M.P.

SIR GILBERT PARKER, in proposing the health of Mr. Tree, spoke of his great distinction as actor and manager, and said his career was identified with high idealism and magnificent courage in the profession which he had chosen, and in which he had achieved distinguished success.

Mr. BEERBOHM TREE, in responding, said—Ladies and gentlemen, I was almost tempted to address you as brother and sister Vagabonds, but, looking round this room, I can plainly see by your well-bred air, and by the bedizened splendour of your raiment, that most of you are only vagabonds by courtesy—that you are stooping to vagabondage. And it is well that you, the choice spirits of this club, should enjoy a holiday, and, leaving your gentility with your umbrellas in the hall, should once more become your primal selves, and play at being children for the nonce, for all children are vagabonds. During this holiday you will not mind—perhaps you may enjoy—hearing, or even speaking, the truth. And it is appropriate that you should entertain an actor, for the actor's title is rooted deep in time—we were vagabonds before we were artists. The actor is Nature's vagabond. There are several kinds of vagabonds—some are born vagabonds, some achieve vagabondage, and some have vagabondage thrust upon them. I am delighted to find myself in your presence to-day. Yes, as I said, the actor is Nature's vagabond, and he remains a good actor so long as he remains a good vagabond. When once he puts by the many-coloured garb of his imagination, when once he lays aside the magic wand of his soul's independence, he ceases to be a vagabond and becomes only one of the mercenaries in the noble army of utilitarians—he becomes a bondman—he plays the game. Every man pays the penalty of playing the game, for in pursuit of that game he loses the cause. His chief weapon is tact, that most useful and, as I think, that least admirable of all the virtues. Far be it from me to sneer at the tact of a good heart—that is a golden possession; but I mean the utilitarian tact—what I may call Income Tact—the tact which is always compromising with God in order not to offend the devil. To me and to you no land is so dear as that of Vagabondia. It happened to me only this week to find myself there. On Tuesday last I was projected into a strange land—a land of dreams. All the centuries jostled each other in its streets. With a background of ancient buildings stretching back many hundreds of years, its citizens garbed in the costumes of many periods—ancient Britons, nuns, priests, Plantagenets, Yorkists, Tudors, cavaliers, learned doctors, necromancers, peasants, and courtiers—all made their way to a common meeting ground, and there they lived over again the most thrilling episodes. I rubbed my eyes. Someone told me that I was at Oxford, and that these personages were professors, dons, and bishops. It was the Oxford Pageant—a riot of beauty and a feast of colour. Here, forgetting themselves for the time being—(ladies and gentlemen, there is all the difference between forgetting one's self and forgetting one's self)—breaking with old prejudices, giving joy to the multitude, the citizens of Oxford were living again the life of Merrie England. It was an olla podrida of all the classes. The Arts and the Sciences were rioting in vagabondage. Oxford was en fête—Oxford was forgetting itself. There I saw Justice walking arm-in-arm with one of the Seven Deadly Sins, and I thought I detected Death helping Charity to strawberries and cream. Who again shall say that "the dreaming spires of Oxford" look down only on dulness and vain gentility!

As every good woman is at heart a Socialist, so every good artist is at heart a vagabond; and to be one's self is the greatest, the rarest luxury of life. The extraordinary thing about humanity is that men are always trying to be what they are not. There is no more terribly hard-worked profession than that of the social diplomatist. We all know that meeting-place where men and women are hustling, jostling, and perspiring to get into the coveted ring. There is a great want of pride about humanity. Occasionally I hear people speak of their "betters." Since my childhood I have always shuddered at the phrase. Our only betters are ourselves—self-respect is the first duty of every citizen. To be free of soul—to be a vagabond—is better than to be the slave of the social system. Every large-minded man I have ever met has had the element of vagabondage in him. A gentleman is one who does not care whether he is one or not. Of course many people have different ideas on this subject. I think it was Nellie Farren who defined a gentleman as a man who could wear a clean collar without looking conspicuous. It is easier for the poor than the rich to attain to the aristocracy of vagabondage. "Poor and content is rich, and rich enough, but riches fineless is poor as winter."

By the way, the greatest man that ever lived was a vagabond at heart—I mean Shakespeare. How he loved all his vagabonds! The Clown in Twelfth Night—in him we always detect Shakespeare's own wayward mind. Autolycus is another beloved vagabond of Shakespeare. With what serene tolerance he drew that greatest, that fattest of all vagabonds, Falstaff, who had for a companion that Royal vagabond, Prince Hal. And how near a vagabond himself was that friend of vagabonds—I mean Hamlet.

And do we not hear the sigh of the tired vagabond in those words of Shakespeare's sonnet:—

As, to behold desert a beggar born.
And needy nothing trimm'd in jollity,
And purest faith unhappily forsworn,
And gilded honour shamefully misplaced,
And maiden virtue rudely strumpeted,
And right perfection wrongfully disgraced,
And strength by limping sway disabled,
And Art made tongue-tied by authority,
And folly (doctor-like) controlling skill,
And simple truth miscalled simplicity,
And captive good attending captain ill.

To be entertained by a vagabond club must seem to an actor like coming home. And yet there is a distinction. You are the new vagabonds, a mushroom growth in that fair land of Bohemia where Art flowers, whilst we actors are of the old regime. We are of the ancient lineage of crime. Don't be alarmed. Since the beginning of things, Art has always been a crime. In its highest expression it makes men feel, and it makes men think, and these are sins which your well-ordered citizen must always resent. They disturb the settled order of society, and I suppose that is why all of us who, even in the humblest way, claim kinship with Art, have ever been driven to dwell beyond the city walls, as were the Jews in the Middle Ages. From their aloofness the Jews drew their strength. The artist pitches his tent in the desert. He is gipsy born. If he be poor, if the tent be rent and torn, there are rifts in its flapping canvas to yield glimpses of the starlit sky that is the poet's roof, and around his tattered tent in a magic circle dance the fairies—the love-children of the poet's fancy. You by your creation of this race of new vagabonds prove that in every age Art is recruiting its own. I desire most heartily to wish all prosperity to your cause, and I would thank you for myself that in making me your bidden guest to-day you have recognised that more ancient claim to vagabondage which is the actor's birthright. I drink to vagabondage—the only bondage of the free!

"THE SAINT AND THE WOMAN."

A Play, in Four Acts, by Charles March, Produced at the Cambridge Theatre, Spennymoor, on Monday, June 10.

The Vicar of Llandilas .....MR. JOHN BURTON
Ivor Llewellyn .....MR. GEORGE GAISFORD
Evan Llewellyn .....MR. LEONARD BOOKER
Sir John Hardinge .....MR. W. LOCKHART
Richard Grainger .....MR. MONSON THORPE
Principal Hartwell .....MR. HERBERT SALMON
Lady Hardinge .....MISS SYBIL WINTER
Margery .....MISS EMMA VICTOR
Olive Meyrick.....MISS GWENDOLIN HASTINGS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

At the commencement of the story the household of the worthy Vicar of Llandilas consists of the Vicar himself, his two sons, Ivor and Evan, his ward, Olive Meyrick, and his housekeeper, Margery. Evan is of an ambitious turn of mind, and has determined to make a name for himself as a politician; while Ivor, the very antithesis of his brother, is still busy sowing his wild oats. Soon after the opening of the play Ivor, who has been spending the night with a few boon companions, reaches home in an inebriated condition. The Vicar reproaches him for his misdeeds, and implores him to make an effort to reform. At this juncture the postman arrives with a letter from Evan addressed to Olive, in which she is informed of his return as Member of Parliament for the borough of Longdeane. Evan arrives amid great rejoicings, but a little later Ivor overhears a conversation between his brother and Olive, in which she reminds him of a solemn promise he has made to marry her, and on her knees implores him to fulfil his vow, disclosing to him the fact that she is about to become a mother. Evans's worldly advancement, however, presents, in his eyes, an insuperable barrier to his marriage, and he cruelly tells her so, at the same time suggesting that she shall place her betrayal at the door of Ivor, the ne'er-do-well. Ivor interrupts the conversation, and a stormy scene ensues between the brothers, which results in the departure of Ivor and Olive from the Vicarage. Their flight being observed by the Vicar, Evan supplies an explanation which leads his father to believe that Ivor is responsible for his ward's dishonour.

Years pass on, and Evan has become a leading star in the political firmament. He is holding a reception in his mansion at Longdeane, and is the centre of an enthusiastic assembly. At this proud moment Ivor and Olive reappear. The former has been pursued with relentless cruelty by his ambitious brother, and has spent a portion of his time in prison, while the promises made by Evan to look after the welfare of Olive and her child have been ruthlessly broken. Under pain of exposing his brother's perfidy to his guests, Ivor succeeds in compelling Evan to sign an agreement by which he binds himself to look after his son's education and welfare. In the third act Evan, who has become Prime Minister, has had to submit to an ignominious defeat in the Commons brought about mainly by the exertions of a rising young politician, named Richard Grainger, who is none other than the illegitimate offspring of Evan. Ivor has returned from abroad a millionaire, but now goes by the name of Trevor. Evan, suffering severely from the bitterness of defeat, discloses to Richard the shame of his birth, and demands that he shall give up his political career. Evan then takes the revolver which he has brought with him, and, extracting every cartridge save one, places it at Richard's elbow, requesting him to use it as he thinks fit—either by shooting himself or his father. Olive then enters, and, goaded to desperation, seizes the weapon and fires point-blank at Evan, who falls mortally wounded.

The fourth act depicts the jury-room in the Court of Justice, where Olive is being tried for the murder of Evan. Ivor is one of the jury, and he is straining every nerve to induce his colleagues to return a verdict of "Not guilty." In order to achieve his purpose he deliberately tells them that it was he, and not Olive, who committed the deed, and the curtain descends as Olive is being released and Ivor is taking her place in the dock.

Mr. March had got together a company of sound and reliable artists, who gave evidence of very careful and diligent rehearsal. Mr. Leonard Booker displayed admirable capabilities as Evan; whilst Ivor met with successful treatment at the hands of Mr. George Gaisford. Miss Gwendolin Hastings submitted a really attractive impersonation of Olive; and Mr. Monson Thorpe ably portrayed Richard Grainger. Mr. John Burton presented an ideal sketch of the Vicar, and Miss Emma Victor as the kindly housekeeper satisfied all requirements.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

At the students' concert on Wednesday the programme was agreably varied by two organ solos and a concerto for organ and pianoforte. The concert began with Claudius H. Couldery's organ solo, "Overture," played by Mr. C. H. Barker, a promising pupil of Dr. Warwick Jordan. Miss D. Batten sang "Chant Hindou," by Bemberg, with fair success, and the only fault that could be found in Miss Dorothy Hillier's violin solo of Seitz's "Andante and Allegretto from Fourth Concerto" was slightly faulty intonation. Maude V. White's pretty song, "The spring has come" and "I know a lovely garden," by Guy d'Hardelot, were pleasingly sung by Miss Dora Hughes; while Mr. Richard J. C. Chanter played a cleverly-written "Nocturne" and "Aubade" for piano of his own composition. Adams' somewhat commonplace song, "The Maid of Malabar," was well sung by Mr. Sidney J. Aries; and Miss Florence Simpkins 'cello solos, "Barcarolle," by de Munck, and Dunkler's "La Fileuse," were only marred by a certain timidity, being otherwise correct both in tone and execution. In two songs of Walthew, "Fold and Field" and "May Day," Miss Mabel Silvester was much applauded; and a capital organ solo of Dubois's charming "Cantilene Nuptiale in A flat" and "Grand Chœur, in B flat" was given by Mr. Herbert P. Graham. Miss Madge Dixon, a pupil of Miss Kate Rorke's, recited Edgar Allen Poe's poem "The Bells" with considerable dramatic effect, and one of the best vocal items was "Son of Mine" (from William Wallace's "Freebooter Songs"), excellently rendered by Mr. J. F. Lewis. The first performance of Mr F. J. Massey's "Concerto for Organ and Piano (MS.)" proved attractive, although, as in most students' compositions, the want of a definite theme was felt. The work was ably played by Mr. M. Gordon Burgess, F.R.C.O., and the composer, Mr. F. J. Massey, who, at the close was cordially greeted by the audience. Miss Jenny Hyman acted as accompanist.

THE King and Queen, with Princess Victoria and the Prince and Princess of Wales, witnessed the performance of The Merry Widow at Daly's Theatre on the evening of the 14th inst.

MR. LAWRENCE DERRICK has been scoring heavily at Bognor Pier Pavilion this week with his repértoire of baritone solos, musical monologues, &c., being particularly successful in "Devil-may-care," Mr. Bransby Williams's popular number.

THE Dowager Duchess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, Princess Beatrice of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, the Duchess of Argyll, Princess Henry of Battenberg, and Prince Leopold of Battenberg were present at the performance of La Gioconda at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, on Thursday.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM will keep The Liars in the bill at the Criterion until he goes away for his summer holiday, the success of Mr. H. A. Jones's play quite justifying its retention. The production of The Mollusc will accordingly, with the consent of Mr. Hubert Henry Davies, be postponed until September, when Sir Charles and Miss Mary Moore return to the theatre which has witnessed their earlier as well as their later triumphs.

MR. LEWIS WALLER is to be felicitated on attaining to the dignity of a grandfather—manifestly one of the youngest on the stage. The distinction was conferred upon him by his son, Mr. Edmund Waller, to whom a baby boy was born last week. The younger Mr. Waller is but twenty-three years of age, and was married to Miss Ethel Warwick a little over a year ago. He made his West End début at the Lyceum Theatre this year in the part of Dr. Helgar in Her Love Against the World.

MRS. BEERBOHM TREE was the charming hostess at a musical party at her home in Chiswick last week, when some delightful music was discoursed. Miss Viola Tree's fresh young voice gave sweet effect to one or two of Tosti's songs, and Signor Boscoe, a young Italian vocalist, and Mr. Victor Mannel also added to the enjoyment of the evening. Amongst the guests were Lady Bective the Duke of Rutland, Mr. Gerald du Maurier, and Miss Marion Terry. Lady Bective's small party on the 12th inst. was graced by Mr. and Mrs. Tree, Mr. du Maurier, and Miss Marion Terry.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY has been elected Hon. Vice-President to the Ethnological Society, thus filling the vacancy caused by the death of Professor Oscar Wanscher, M.D. Mr. Harvey's revival of The Corsican Brothers at the Adelphi, by the way, attracted quite a number of distinguished visitors, including the Princess Royal and the Duke of Fife, H.R.H. Princess Henry of Battenberg and suite, the Duchess of Rutland and Lady Marjorie Manners, Mr. Paderewski, Mr. Seymour Lucas, R.A., Sir Edward Moss, Mr. J. Comyns Carr, Capt. Robert Marshall, and Mr. A. W. Pinero. The "House Full" boards have been out several times this week. The success of The Corsican Brothers has been so great that Mr. Harvey has decided to take a West End theatre at the end of his autumn tour and put the play on for a run.

"THE ONLY WAY" will on Monday start the fourth and last week of the season at the Adelphi. Mr. Harvey and Miss N. de Silva will be seen in their original parts, and the cast will also include Mr. Charles Cameron as the President, Mr. Charles Glenney as Defarge, Mr. Albert E. Raynor as Marquis de St. Evremonde, Mr. Fred Wright, sen., as Dr. Manette, Mr. Leonard Craske as Charles Darnay, Miss Maud Milton as The Vengeance, and Miss Coleridge as Lucie Manette. It should be noted that on Saturday, June 29, The Only Way registers its thousandth performance. It was as far back as Feb. 16, 1899, at the Lyceum Theatre, that Freeman Wills' version of Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities" started on its career of unalloyed prosperity.

MRS. GEORGE ALEXANDER on Wednesday afternoon presented the prizes to the students of the Academy of Dramatic Art who were successful at the recent public performance at the St. James's Theatre. Mr. H. G. Bentley received the gold medal, given annually by Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, and six copies of the Heinemann edition of Shakespeare were also awarded. A Japanese box was presented by M. Matsui and M. Iohitawa-Sadanji, two gentlemen distinguished in literature and the theatre of Japan, who have for some time been watching the instruction given in the academy, with the result that M. Matsui will inaugurate in his country a school of acting conducted upon the same lines. Mr. Bentley has been professionally engaged by Mr. George Alexander, as has also Miss Beatrice Smith, who won a Shakespeare, and Miss Bessie Boyle and Miss Pauline Straus, two other prize winners, have been retained respectively by Mr. John Hare and Mr. M. V. Leveaux.

THERE were "scenes" at the second presentation of Mr. J. M. Synge's comedy, The Playboy of the Western World, the other evening at the Great Queen-street Theatre. The play was one of a series of dramatic works dealing exclusively with Irish life, and was produced for the first time in London on the previous Monday evening by the Irish National Theatre company, from the Abbey Theatre, Dublin. Miss A. E. F. Horniman, who has given much of her money and personal labour to the cause, and the author had received notice after Monday's performance that if the piece were again put on during the week farmyard and vegetable produce would find its way across the footlights as a slight demonstration of Hibernian indignation. Miss Horniman, however, rather rejoiced at the prospect of a "row," and as rotten eggs had no terrors for the company, no alteration was permitted in the plans, and The Playboy was performed.

SEVERAL times during the presentment of the piece there were loud hisses and "boos," chiefly from the gallery, though one gentleman in evening dress who had a seat in the stalls, rose to his feet and shouted, "It's a libel on Irish womanhood!" There were frequent interruptions after this, vulgar abuse was showered upon Mr. Synge, and there were cries of "Murder the author!" Our representative, who was in the theatre on this occasion, made inquiries of several Irish members of the audience as to what was considered most offensive in the play to the somewhat easily-aroused susceptibilities of the natives of the Emerald Isle, and he was told that the play was not considered representative of Irish life and character, and that the main incident, an Irish girl worshipping at the feet of a ruffian because he had related a stirring story of how he had murdered his father, was distinctly distasteful to the folk of the "distressful counthry." It may be remembered that the same play caused a riot on its production in Dublin.

MISS MARION TERRY, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, and Mrs. Cyril Maude graced the proceedings at Lady Blomfield's party at Claridge's Hotel on Tuesday afternoon. The assembly was intended to mark the "coming out" of Lady Blomfield's daughter.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE will embody the part of John Jasper in the version of Dickens' "Edwin Drood" which he is shortly to present at His Majesty's. Mr. Comyns Carr has invented an ingenious elucidation of the mystery which Dickens left unsolved, and has supplied a dénouement that is original and reasonable. The piece is in four acts and ten tableaux, and the scheme includes pictures of the opium den in the East End, of the old cathedral at Cloisterham, of the crypt at night, of the dinner-party in Jasper's rooms, and of a musical evening at Miss Twinkleton's.

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL, who will undertake a provincial tour next autumn, will produce an English version of Hofmansthal's Electra, which has had a great success in Germany. The adaptation will be done by Mr. Arthur Symons, and the music is to be composed by Mr. Cyril Scott. Hofmansthal is one of Germany's most distinguished post-dramatists, and made his first success with Gestern, a play in blank verse written at the age of sixteen, while he was still at school.

AMONGST the donations already received for the Prize Fund of the Theatrical Sports are the following:—Proprietors Daily Telegraph, £3 3s.; Moss Empires, Ltd., £2 2s.; Mr. W. S. Gilbert, £2 2s.; Mr. Alfred Sutro, £1 1s.; Mr. Frank Curzon, £1 1s.; Messrs. Whitbread and Co., £1 1s.; Miss Genevieve Ward, £1 1s.; Mr. H. Rayne, £1 1s.; Miss Eva Moore, £1 1s.; Miss Kate Compton, £1 1s.; Mr. Martin Harvey, £1 1s.; Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, £1 1s.; Lord George Sanger, £1 1s.; Mr. Dion Boucicault, £1 1s.; Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, £1 1s.; Goswell Printing Press, 10s. 6d.; Mr. Jerrard Grant Allen, 10s. 6d.; Miss Ina Rozant, 2s. 6d. First list of prizes received:—Marble clock, Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter; glass scent bottle, Lady Bancroft; silver egg-cup and spoon, Sir Squire Bancroft; clock, Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander; chair, Messrs. Lazarus and Sons; Mr. Cecil Paget, 10s. 6d.

MR. ACTON BOND and Mrs. Russ Whytal were the Macbeth and Lady Macbeth respectively at Sheffield on Tuesday evening last, when the British Empire Shakespeare Society gave the first dramatic reading that has been held under the auspices of its branch in that centre. The Bishop of Sheffield presided, and was supported by many of the professors of the University, the audience, who numbered at least 1,000, being most enthusiastic.

A PERFORMANCE, on behalf of the League of Mercy, of the musical playlet, by A. S. Scott-Gatty, entitled The Three Bears, was given at the Vaudeville Theatre on Thursday afternoon. The juveniles evidently enjoyed themselves as keenly as did the "children of a larger growth" in the auditorium, and the former had evidently been carefully instructed and rehearsed by their teacher, Mrs. Wordsworth. Especially noticeable was Miss Beryl Hentschel, who gave a really delightful performance as Princess Golden Locks.

THE Waldorf Theatre re-opens on Monday with In the Bishop's Carriage, a dramatisation by Channing Pollock of Miriam Michelson's famous novel. The story hinges on the daring escapade of a female thief, who, after purloining a lady's coat and hat, takes refuge in the carriage of a high dignitary of the Church. The piece is said to be a cross between Raffles and Leah Kleschna, and we cordially wish it all the success which attended the pieces named.

THE secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund has received from Mr. Lewis Waller a further remittance of £6 9s. 3d., collected by means of his autograph.

"MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH," which still pursues a triumphant career at Terry's Theatre, paid a flying visit to Eastbourne on Thursday afternoon, when the Devonshire Park Theatre was packed from floor to ceiling. The piece is shortly to be sent on tour, and its success at Eastbourne augurs well for its prosperity in the provinces.

MISS DOROTHY CACEY, who has achieved a gratifying success on tour with H. V. Esmond's charming play, When We Were Twenty-One, will shortly produce, by arrangement with Mr. Arthur Law, A Country Mouse. Miss Cacey will have the rôle of Lady Sylvia, and Mr. Riddell Robinson will play the part of Archibald Vyse.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN has secured from Mr. Arthur Bourchier the rights of Miss Gladys Unger's play, Mr. Sheridan, which had such a successful run at the Garrick Theatre, and will shortly send it on tour with a powerful company. For his forthcoming pastoral play Mr. Norman has engaged Mr. Lionel Belmore who, it will be remembered, was for many years with Sir Henry Irving, and more recently with Mr. H. B. Irving, in the capacity of stage-manager, &c.

MR. ERNEST R. ABBOTT, who has been running a summer season of four weeks with Mr. Robert Redford, of Cardiff, will on Monday next mark the last week of his present series at the Theatre Royal by the production of a new play, entitled The House of Shame, written by Ada G. Abbott. The keynote of the piece is sounded in the following couplet:—"Alas, that Spring should vanish with the rose, That Youth's sweet scented Manuscript should close."

THE Imperial Theatre will be devoted on Tuesday evening to a performance chiefly by amateurs of Mr. Bernard Shaw's play Candida, given on behalf of the works undertaken by the "Ladies of Charity." The title-rôle will be played by Miss Irene Rooke.

MISS DORA DENCH and Mr. Sidney Dench are meeting with gratifying success in their summer venture at the St. James's Theatre, Manchester, and are entering on their sixth week's stay, "house full" boards having been more than once displayed during the season. Miss Dench will take a complimentary benefit on July 5, and a month later starts an autumn tour with A Prince of Rogues.

"THE PET OF THE EMBASSY" begins its autumn tour at the Grand Theatre, Wolverhampton, on Aug. 5, with Miss Ethel Dunford in the title-rôle, and a full chorus. The tour is under the direction of Mr. C. Hamilton Baines.

WE regret to learn that Mr. Edward Rochelle is lying very ill in a nursing home at 15, Bulstrode-street, Welbeck-square. He would be pleased to see or hear from old friends.

A NEW comedy, in three acts, by J. Storer Clouston, entitled The Pocket Miss Hercules, is to be given at the Royalty on Friday afternoon next, in aid of the Grosvenor Hospital for Women and Children. In the cast will be included Mr. Fred Wright, jun., Mr. H. Athol Forde, Mr. Edward Sass, Mr. H. C. Buckler, Mr. Charles Goodhart, Miss Daisy Atherton, and Miss Esme Hubbard.

MR. ARTHUR COLLINS has just returned from Paris, whither he went to get details for the Grand Prix scene, which is to be a thrilling feature of the autumn drama at Drury Lane, as yet unnamed. Mr. Collins has made an important engagement in that of Mr. Albert Chevalier, who will play a comedy part in Messrs. Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton's drama. The cast will also include Miss Fanny Brough.

IRELAND has lost its oldest actor by the passing of Mr. Milban Denmeade, whose funeral took place at Miltown Cemetery, Belfast, on Sunday. The cortège was a large one, and included several well-known citizens. The Very Rev. Father Conalty, St. Peter's, officiated at the graveside. Telegrams were received by the widow of the deceased from several prominent Belfast gentlemen expressing sympathy, and regretting their inability to attend at the interment. America has also sustained a loss in the death of Mrs. W. G. Jones, its oldest actress, who died in New York last week. She was seventy-nine years old, and at one time was one of the most popular players in the States.

THE Princess's is in a fair way of being placed once again on the active list, the plans having been passed for the transformation of the old-time theatre into a two-tier house, with 5s. stalls and a 1s. pit. It is more than probable that the first production will be a drama by George R. Sims and Arthur Shirley, who collaborated in one of the most successful dramas produced of late years at the Princess's, namely, Two Little Vagabonds.

THE ban under which The Mikado has languished for a period of three months was unconditionally removed on Monday, when the Home Secretary announced, in the House of Commons, that the Lord Chamberlain, having taken the matter into his careful consideration, felt justified in deciding in the circumstances now obtaining to withdraw the prohibition as to the play. Asked whether any compensation would be paid to the companies which had been affected by the prohibition, Mr. Gladstone's reply was in the negative.

THIS is the last week of the season of the American-Indian actress, Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, in her well-known play of Wep-Ton-No-Mah, Miss Mohawk thus celebrating her 2500th performance in Great Britain.

THE season of French plays at the Royalty will begin on Sept. 30 with L'Ami des Femmes, in which M. Le Bargy will reappear in London. On Oct. 23 Mme. Sarah Bernhardt will begin a series of performances, in the course of which she will be seen in a new play. M. Gaston Mayer has also arranged for a winter season at the Royalty, beginning in January, and altogether the forthcoming performances of French plays will extend over a period of eighteen weeks.

IN the Court of Bankruptcy on Tuesday a sitting was held for the public examination of E. S. S. Strong, of Stockwell Green, S.W. It appeared that the debtor had toured with a play of his own production, called Darkest London, and had also catered for and chartered steamboats running between Richmond and Staines. The accounts showed unsecured debts £764, and assets nil. The sitting was adjourned.

THE Music Trades' Association of Great Britain held their twenty-first annual dinner at the Hotel Great Central on Tuesday, under the presidency of Sir Herbert Marshall. Members of the Association sell some 100,000 instruments annually, while reforms in the publication and sale of music have been instituted through the medium of the society. During the evening Sir Frederick Bridge, M.V.O., paid a high tribute to the work done in the cause of charity by the Music Trades' Benevolent Society.

MR. ERNEST CH. GITTINS' Maritana opera company concludes to-day a successful fortnight's engagement at the Empire Theatre, Stockport. Wallace's Maritana was the opera chosen for the first week, and The Bohemian Girl and Il Trovatore were each rendered on three nights of the second.

MR. ARTHUR JEFFERSON, who numbers among his many enterprises the duties of lessee and manager of the Theatre Royal, North Shields, took his benefit on Wednesday, when the house was reopened for the occasion. An attractive and varied bill of fare was put forward, and the event was liberally patronised.

MISS EVELYN ST. MAUR will have a benefit at the Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road, on Monday. Among the artists will be Miss Nellie Clarence, who is organising the entertainment, and will appear in the dramatic sketch, A Daughter of Destruction.

A REMINDER may be given of the benefit matinée for Mr. Sydney Barraclough, which is to take place at the Adelphi on Tuesday. We are asked to say that the prices of the stalls are not a guinea, as has been stated, but just half the amount. The programme will include the Countess of Cromartie's clever little sketch, The Finding of the Sword, with the original cast; and among the artists that will appear are Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. George Grossmith, Miss Winifred Emery, and Miss Lottie Venne in The New Regime.

MESSRS. MURRAY KING AND CLARK are among the first to take advantage of the removal of the embargo on The Mikado, and announce early performances of the famous work at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, which is still doing overwhelming business. For the flying visit of Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch on the 13th inst. every seat had some time beforehand been booked at raised prices, and hundreds were turned away.

THE Melba prize for sopranos at the Royal Academy of Music has been awarded to Clara Smith, a native of Stratford-on-Avon, Natalie A. Campbell being highly commended; and that for contraltos was won by Edith Kirk, a native of Leicester, Dorothy Webb being highly commended. The adjudicators were Mme. Alice Esty, Mme. Clara Butt-Rumford, and R. Kennerley Rumford.

HERR B. PAREEZER will open the King's Lynn Hippodrome and Theatre, of which he has been manager for more than a year, on August Bank Holiday. The theatre enjoys the advantage of holding a licence for both dramatic and variety performances. It may be added that on Wednesday next Herr Pareezer will have his first complimentary benefit, when he will present the farcical comedy, My Friend the Prince.

Two plays by Charles Rann Kennedy were copyrighted at the Bijou Theatre, Bayswater, on Wednesday. The first was a comedy in five acts, entitled The Servant in the House, which is destined for production in New York next season under the management of Mr. Henry Miller, with Mr. Walter Hampden in the leading part. The comedy was succeeded by a tragedy in five acts, entitled The Winter Feast, which, we understand, has been written specially for Miss Wynne Matthison.

MISS NINA BLAKE, the leading actress at the Alhambra Theatre, Belfast, who enjoys the distinction of having in one year represented no less than fifty-two distinct characters, was accorded a complimentary benefit on the 13th inst. The fine drama Her Wedding Day was staged, Miss Adan charming all with her graceful impersonation of Madge Conway. The Silver Tone Quartette and Brull and Hemsley came from the Hippodrome; the Boccacio Minstrel Troupe, engaged at the Empire, made a big hit; and Mr. Dan Thomas and Miss Vera Mayne also appeared. Miss Bel Luscombe, a delightful soprano, made a much-appreciated contribution; and Mr. Tom H. Solly sang several comic songs inimitably. During the evening Miss Adams was the recipient of several substantial gifts, including a life-size portrait of herself, and several handsome bouquets.

MR. WALTER MELVILLE'S The Girl Who Lost Her Character, which was presented in German in Berlin at the Luisen Theater so successfully, made a tremendous success on the night of June 13 at Nuremberg. The play, translated by Siegfr. V. Lutz, will open the season in October at the large Lustspiel Theater in Wien (Vienna), one of the first theatres in Austria.

THE full cast of The Earl of Pawtucket, which will be produced at the Playhouse on Tuesday, will consist of Messrs. Cyril Maude, George Shelton, W. H. Post, A. S. Aspland, George Courteney, Richard Stirling, David Todd, John Harwood, Dore Davidson, D. McCarthy, A. G. Onslow, C. Hampden, and W. Blair, Master Doyle, and Miss Pollie Emery, Miss Elsie Ferguson, and Miss Alexandra Carlisle. The Earl of Pawtucket will be preceded by The Drums of Oude.

MR. W. T. RUSHBURY has just concluded arrangements with Mr. T. Edward Ward to tour Second to None in Scotch fit-ups from Tuesday next.

GOOD houses have been favouring Mr. Stratton Mills's triple bill at the Brixton Theatre this week—The Highwayman, Faithful James, and A Pantomime Rehearsal being ably presented. In the second-named piece Mr. Hill-Mitchelson plays with much spirit as Philip Melville; Mr. Stratton Mills is delightful as the ever-obliging James, the waiter; and other characters are admirably taken by Mr. Frank Harrison, Mr. Arthur Metcalfe, Mr. Cecil Frere, Miss Minnie Blanchard, and Miss Cissie Sephton. A Pantomime Rehearsal is thoroughly played throughout, the laughter of the audience being long and the applause unstinted. Mr. Frank Harrison works untiringly as James Reed, the stage-manager; Mr. Stratton Mills, Mr. Cecil Frere, and Mr. B. W. Metcalfe are excellent as the indifferent actors; whilst as the amateur actresses Miss Eva Aylmer, Miss Minnie Blanchard, Miss Winnie Volt, Miss Cissie Sephton, and Miss Ruby Carter are very dainty, their singing and dancing being excellent.

THE public of Swansea are showing keen appreciation of Mr. Norman MacOwan and his company. Each week brings increasing business, the engagement ranking as one of the best in the history of the house.

THE animated pictures still continue a source of great popularity at the Prince's, Poplar, where this week some very beautiful films are being exhibted, notably "Satan's Son Visits the Earth" and "Great Annual Carnival at Nice." The general-manager, Mr. C. Melville Lurring, well looks after the comfort of his patrons.

THE Royal County Theatre, Bedford, was crowded on Tuesday afternoon with a fashionable audience eager to show their hearty appreciation of the histrionic abilities of Miss Zena Dare, Seymour Hicks, and his company, who appeared in the triple bill—Papa's Wife, You and I, and Scrooge. The two principals were warmly received, and at the close Mr. Hicks received a specially hearty ovation.

MR. LEONARD PAGDEN produces on Monday The Second Mrs. Tanqueray at West Pier, Brighton. The strong cast includes Miss Lucy Wilson, Messrs. J. Ed. Pearce, Jas. Hussey, Gordon Bailey, Wm. Lockhart, Misses Edith Cuthbert, Bartle-Frere, and Muriel Alston.

OWING to the success of the two houses a night system at the Broadway, New Cross, the season is to be extended. The attraction for next week is Mr. Louis Calvert's production of Trilby, in which Mr. Cecil G. Calvert will appear as Svengali.

THAT excellent actress, Miss Kate Bishop, is still delighting audiences at His Majesty's Theatre by her performance of the severely censorious Lady Caroline Pontefract in A Woman of No Importance. By a very regrettable error the address in Miss Bishop's avdertisement last week was given as Poste Restante, New York. It is to be hoped that it will be a very long day ere Miss Kate Bishop decides to leave the "scenes of her former triumphs" to cross the Atlantic.

AT West Hartlepool, on Wednesday, Edward Welsh, Geo. Gillies, and John Hanlon were charged on remand with breaking and entering the Grand Theatre, West Hartlepool, and stealing three pairs of trousers, four pairs of boots, and several other articles, belonging to My Sweetheart company, besides £10 10s. in gold and silver money, the property of Messrs. Granville and Feather, lessees of the theatre. When charged with the offences, Welsh replied, "I got £2 11s. 3d.," Gillies answered, "Yes, I got the same," and Hanlon's utterance was, "I never stole all them clothes." The prisoners were committed to take their trial at the Durham Assizes.

MR. WILFRID COMPTON AND MISS MIRIAM HOLT (Mrs. Compton) are spending a short holiday with their little daughter at Liverpool. Mr. and Mrs. Compton have been engaged by Mr. Arthur Jefferson to play Percy and the bride in his sketch, Home from the Honeymoon.

OWING to contingencies arising out of the termination of Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker's tenancy of the Court, Miss Bateman has been obliged to change the date of her matinée at that theatre from July 1 to July 2. The play to be produced on that occasion, it will be remembered, is Media in Corinth, written for Miss Bateman and played by her in the Lyceum in 1872. The performance is to be given in aid of the Orphanage of the Infant Saviour, Barry-road, S.E.

ALLITERATIVE and awesome is the title chosen by Captain Robert Marshall and Mr. Alfred Sutro for the thrilling melodrama which is to be performed at the theatrical garden party, to be given in the grounds of Chelsea Hospital, in aid of the Actors' Orphanage Fund, on Friday, July 5. It is to be called The Desperado Duke; or, The Culpable Countess, and will be sustained chiefly by Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Edmund Maurice, Mr. Lennox Pawle, Miss Helen Ferrers, Miss Dorothy Minto, and Miss Alexandra Carlisle.

A MATINÉE at the Royalty on Thursday next will introduce to the public a new lady dramatist. The Heart of the Machine, which will be produced on the occasion, is from the pen of Mrs. Antonia William, whose play, although occupying three acts, demands only five characters for its representation. The four important parts will be enacted by Mr. Norman McKinnel, Mrs. Russ Whytal, Mr. Henry Ainley, and Miss Suzanne Sheldon.

MR. LEWIS WALLER will begin his season at the Lyric in December with the successful American play, by Milton Royle, entitled The Squaw Man, which is to be re-named The English Cowboy. During Mr. Waller's autumn tour of Robin Hood Miss Nora Lancaster will play the chief feminine rôle in that drama, Miss Evelyn Millard's engagement expiring with Mr. Waller's present season at the Lyric, which ends on July 13.

MISS DAVIES WEBSTER has arranged for a soirée to be given in the rooms of the Women's Institute, 92, Victoria-street, S.W., on Tuesday, July 2. Miss Webster will represent Jeanne D'Arc in a dramatic study by Augusta Webster; Mr. Herman Vezin will recite, and a feature of the evening will be a new drawing-room sketch by C. A. Dawson Scott, entitled The Holiday Governess. The proceedings will include a collection, which will be devoted to the benefit of Mrs. Harry Grindall, an old actor's widow, who has for some time struggled bravely against adverse circumstances.

AN interesting billiard match took place on Wednesday afternoon at the Nag's Head Hotel, Mansfield, when Mr. Will White, head of The New World company at the Hippodrome this week, played Mr. Victoria Rae, a member of the company, a game of 500 up for a purse of £5, given by Mr. Mark Lorne, the popular acting-manager of the Hippodrome. Mr. Rae, who received 50 start, was passed before he had reached 200, but gamely playing on, managing to keep close up, and the game was called, White, 449; Rae, 450. Mr. White winning eventually by 29 points. After the match both victor and vanquished were entertained to lunch by Mr. Lorne.

MR. CHARLES CONSTANT, the proprietor of the Theatre Royal, Ryde, has just taken over the management of the theatre, and will reopen it with a first-class company on July 1. Really high-class attractions do good business at Ryde.

MISS ITALIA CONTI is arranging a garden fête in aid of the Battersea Crèche for Wednesday next, at Battersea Rise House, Clapham Common. The fête, which is under distinguished patronage, will be opened by the Countess of Kinnoull at three o'clock, and at 3.30 there is to be performed the forest scenes of As You Like It, with Miss Conti as Rosalind and Mr. Hylton Allen as Orlando, supported by Messrs. F. Cremlin, Walter Ringham, Wm. Luff, Ed. Lador, Montague Wigan, and Robert Grey, and Misses Kate Turner, Betty Castle, Evelyn Marthèze, and Claire Greet. There is to be a strawberry tea after the play, at which Miss Pauline Chase, Miss Alexandra Carlisle, and other well-known favourites will assist. A variety concert, organised by Mr. Robert Grey, will be given during tea, and the attractions will include various side-shows, and an exhibition of Highland dancing. The tickets are 2s. 6d. and 1s., but members of the Actors' Association and Actors' Union can obtain them at reduced rates from their secretary before the day of the fête.

MR. HAROLD WANTAGE, who has recently acquired from Mr. Charles Carey the entire rights of the popular musical comedy The Pick of the Bunch, must be highly gratified at the hearty reception accorded the company and play at the hands of Glasgow playgoers last week. The comedy proved exactly to the taste of the King's Theatre patrons, as was conclusively proved by the large and enthusiastic audiences throughout the week. The comedy is being re-written, and a new version will be sent out in the autumn, equipped with elaborate uniforms and remodelled scenery.

YEOMAN service was done in the cause of charity by members of Miss Doris Gilham's company from the Gaiety Theatre, Leith, who contributed largely to the attractions of the annual demonstration and sports in aid of the funds of Leith Hospital, held under the auspices of the town's friendly and trade societies and the Good Templars, on the 10th inst. Mr. Barry Lupino captained an eleven in a comic cricket match, and also headed a football team, both contests causing unbounded amusement, whilst many a diversion was created by the efforts of the Gaiety Ambulance Corps. Miss Gilham, Miss May Lupino, Mr. James Chippendale, and Mr. Barry Lupino also officiated as judges.

MESSRS. GARSIDE AND KNOWLES celebrated the 1,000th performance of Arthur Shirley and George Conquest's play, The London Fireman, at the Crown Theatre, Peckham, this week. On Aug. 3 they produce, on an elaborate scale, their new drama, Her Marriage Vow.

MR. FRED C. SUTCLIFFE, who for many years has held the position of business manager of the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle, is to be made the recipient of a testimonial in recognition of his personal qualities and of his services to the charities of Tyneside. Influential patronage has been secured, the list including the names of the Lord Mayor of Newcastle, Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. Charles Frohman, Mr. John Hare, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. Seymour Hicks, Mr. H. B. Irving, and Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree.

MR. F. R. BENSON, the Master of the Romsey Pageant, is preparing an elaborate spectacle, which will be presented on Tuesday next and two following days. The pageant represents some of the historical events which have taken place in the town since the founding of the Abbey in the year 907, and is divided into ten episodes. The first deals with the founding of Romsey Abbey by Edward the Elder, the second with the murder of Ethelwold, and the third with the destruction of the Abbey by the Danes, the final episode representing King Charles I. on his way through Romsey a prisoner in the hands of the Parliamentarians.

"PROPOSING BY PROXY; OR, THE END OF THE STORY," a one-act comedietta, by A. Helier and H. Montague, was produced at the Pier Pavilion, Clacton-on-Sea, on Monday. Jim Ford, as the story goes, receives a letter from his brother George saying that he is in love with Mabel Hudson, and asking him (Jim) to propose to her for him, as he is too nervous to do so himself. On reading the letter Jim comes to the conclusion that he also is in love with Mabel. George, in the meantime, has told Mabel that Jim wants to see her on important business, and she calls, with the result that Jim eventually secures her for himself. The dialogue is bright and witty. Miss Ethel Mayaffré showed all her accustomed grace and charm as Mabel, and Mr. H. Montague made a good Jim Ford.

THE indictment of the so-called Theatrical Trust was dismissed in New York on Wednesday, the Judge holding that plays are not articles of trade in common use, and that the defendants, therefore, did not restrain trade, as alleged.

THE Crystal Palace was visited by a huge crowd on Saturday afternoon, when the grand festival performance of "Elijah" took place. Foremost among the soloists was Mr. Santley, who received hearty tokens of affectionate regard and admiration, and sang with a vigour and enduring power truly remarkable for a man of his age. The other principals included Mr. Ben Davies, Mme. Ada Crossley, Miss Nicholls, Miss Edith Evans, Miss May Peters, Mr. Gwilym Richards, and Mr. Charles Knowles. The oratorio was directed by Dr. Cowen, Mr. Hedgecock discharged his duties ably at the organ, and the London Symphony Orchestra lent admirable assistance.

MR. ALLAN WILKIE obtained undoubted success last week on his first visit to the Theatre Royal, Bradford, where large and appreciative houses gave this talented actor a cordial reception. On Saturday night Mr. Wilkie closed his week's visit with Hamlet, and in response to demonstrative applause the popular actor thanked the playgoers of Bradford and the Press for the kind encouragement they had given to his colleagues and himself throughout the week.

"THE LOVE OF A LIFE," from the pen of Eugene Gotère, is the title of a new drama to be produced on Monday at the Liverpool Rotunda Theatre by Messrs. John B. Shinton and Alex. Greenwood's company. The play, which is of great heart interest, shows what an important influence can be exercised by a child over the life of a man or woman. A feature of the third act will be the introduction of the trained horse, Rapid.

AT a meeting of the King's Lynn Theatre Co., Ltd., an offer from Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson was considered and accepted. Messrs. Seddon and Robertson will book the theatre in conjunction with Loughborough.

MESSRS. A. J. HARDING and Charles R. Hann are touring in the autumn a social drama in four acts by Frank Dix, entitled Delivered from Evil. A special feature of the first scene of the third act, which represents a hop garden in Kent, is the introduction of a dioramic change from moonlight to sunrise. New scenery is being painted, and an excellent plant of printing by David Allen and Sons, Ltd., together with all effects will be carried.

THE house staff of the Glasgow Coliseum had a very pleasant outing to Strathblane last Sunday. Leaving the theatre in brakes, the company drove through some magnificent scenery till they reached Campsie Glen, where dinner was served in first-class style, after which sports were held. Mr. Harry Burdette presented the prizes.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

A Wet Blue Ribbon.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE'S readiness of resource, says Mrs. George Cran in "Stars of the Stage," was shown on the first night of The Private Secretary. He was just going on the stage as the Rev. Robert Spalding, when he thought a piece of blue ribbon in his buttonhole would have a clerical effect. He asked every one quickly for some, no one had any; his cue was coming, and the idea seemed lost, when Mrs. Tree cut a piece of canvas from the scenery, dipped it in a pot of blue paint the scene-painters had left near at hand, and put it in wet; it became a feature of the part as everyone remembers.

A Falling Petticoat.

MR. TREE tells an amusing story of how one night, during the performance, Mrs. Leigh Murray's petticoat began to come down. Accomplished veteran of the boards as she was, she managed to sidle to the nearest wing and kick it successfully behind the scene. Mr. W. J. Hill, a sound actor of the older school and a man to whose ready wit Mr. Tree always pays tribute, came on, with grave suspicion in his face, and asked the curate if there were "any women about?" The Rev. Robert said: "No!" "Yet," said Mr. Hill, "I thought I saw a petticoat on the stairs."

Mr. Harvey's Voice.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY, says London Opinion, is the fortunate possessor of a remarkably fine voice, and Lord Cadogan went to see The Only Way very many times for the sake of his tribunal speech in the third act. It is related that when Mr. Harvey was playing in After All at the Avenue a woman in the gallery was heard to remark, "The piece ain't no good, but it's worth coming to the theatre to hear that man say his prayers. Ain't he got a voice!"

Miss Terry's Memories.

MISS ELLEN TERRY, pleasantly continuing the "Story of Her Life" in M.A.P., says "My whole life was the theatre, and naturally all my early memories are connected with it. At breakfast father would begin the day's 'coaching.' Often I had to lay down my fork and say my lines. He would conduct these extra rehearsals anywhere—in the street, the 'bus—we were never safe! I remember vividly going into a chemist's shop and being stood upon a stool to say my part to the chemist! Such leisure as I had from my profession was spent in 'minding' the younger children—an occupation in which I delighted. They all had very pretty hair, and I used to wash it and comb it out until it looked as fine and bright as floss silk! It is argued now that stage life is bad for a young child, and children are not allowed by law to go on the stage until they are ten years old—quite a mature age in my young days! I cannot discuss the whole question here, and must content myself with saying that during my three years at the Princess's I was a very strong, happy, and healthy child."

A Bit of "Bluff."

MR. J. F. GRAHAM, of the Prince of Wales' Theatre, Birmingham, tells an anecdote of his early theatrical experience in Australia. While he was engaged in the rehearsal of a play in one of the Melbourne theatres the call-boy stepped up to him on the stage, and handed him a telegram. It really contained no more important matter than a request from a friend who lived up country that he should purchase for him a couple of water-slide cornets. The instruments to this day are foreign to Mr. Graham's knowledge, but he saw in this incident an opportunity of which he was not slow to take advantage. Stepping straight across to the manager, who from the wings had witnessed the delivery of the telegram, Mr. Graham asked, in the earnest tone which every actor can summon at will, if that dignitary could spare him a few moments. "Oh! come and see me after rehearsal," the latter exclaimed in his loftiest manner; but, seeing that the young actor was not to be put off, he added, "Well, what is it?" "I wished to ask you if you could see your way to increasing my salary," Mr. Graham responded with a simulation of indifference he was far from feeling. "Ah! I thought so," replied the manager, pointing to the telegram, which the applicant still held in his hand. "And I suppose if I don't, you will go over the way" (indicating the opposition theatre). "Very well; say another £2." And in his joy at the success of his ruse Mr. Graham forgot all about the water-slide cornets.

"Hush!"

THE plan which was put in practice on the first night of The Corsican Brothers at the Adelphi of excluding late-comers from the auditorium till the end of the first piece is justified by an incident which, says the Daily Mail, took place at the première of The Dumb Cake at the Hicks Theatre on Wednesday. At a thrilling moment of the play, when the house was held by the pathos of the situation and by Miss Trevelyan's exquisite acting, a noisy party of late-comers were allowed to thrust their way into the auditorium. They were met with angry cries of "Hush!" But it was too late. The "atmosphere" was gone, the attention of the audience was diverted, and the first performance of Messrs. Morrison and Pryce's play was seriously affected.

As Bad as Bullfighters?

THE Bishop of Birmingham in his address last week at a meeting of the Actors' Church Union at the Temperance Hall, Birmingham, said there was a present tendency, as there had been in the past, to put the acting profession under a sort of taboo, and to bring about in the minds of those who stand for the Christian Church a kind of idea that the profession should be regarded with some degree of horror as the professional bull-fighters had been dealt with by the Church in Spain. He wanted to obviate if he could that kind of feeling. In Greece, Italy, Spain, Germany, and England, the greatest work of literature was dramatic, written for the stage, acted and seen, and that fact made it quite impossible for the drama to be placed under taboo. They wanted to abolish the prejudice which existed against members of the theatrical profession, and bring them into union with the church. There was no profession in which the members were kinder to each other in times of distress, and no profession where there was so much distress. The life was a hard one, and most uncomfortable for the actors who had to change their lodgings every week and move about. Consequently, he thought they were all under a kind of real obligation, which the union realised, to see that the profession was treated as all other legitimate professions, and brought within the pale of society and the church.

Irving's Elaboration.

MR. BRAM STOKER, in his "Personal Reminiscences of Henry Irving," gives an interesting description of the elaborate mounting of The Corsican Brothers at the Lyceum in 1880. He writes: "The scene of the Masked Ball represented the interior of the Opera House, the scenic auditorium being furthest from the footlights. In fact, it was as though the audience sitting in the Lyceum auditorium saw the scene as though looking in a gigantic mirror placed in the auditorium arch. The scene was in reality a vast one and of great brilliance. The Opera House was draped with crimson silk, the boxes were practicable, and contained a whole audience, all being in perspective. The men and women in the boxes near to the footlights were real; those far back were children dressed like their elders. Promenading and dancing were hundreds of persons in striking costumes. It must be remembered that in those days there were no electric lights, and there were literally thousands of lights in the scene."

Mr. F. C. Burnand's adaptation of Madame Mongodin, by MM. Ernest Blum and Raoul Toché, which was first seen at the Avenue Theatre in the November of 1895, was revived at the Vaudeville on Tuesday, the French piece having been produced at the Gymnase, Paris, in 1890. That the play retains much of the "peculiar" flavour of the original may be gathered from the fact that the plot turns upon the demonstrative virtue of Mrs. Ponderbury, who, on a certain occasion, when a stranger ascended a balcony to her bedroom and tried to take liberties with her, defended herself with a knife, which she has treasured ever since in memory of her firmness. Mrs. Ponderbury keeps her husband very much in submission; and he amuses himself by watching their neighbour, a certain lively music-hall artist, take her bath in the river. This ends in Ponderbury asking her for an assignation at the studio of an artist named Thorp, who is painting Mme. de Mojeski's picture. While she is changing her dress the artist goes out, locking Ponderbury in the studio with the lady. The key is left hanging on a nail in the garden outside; and Ponderbury, attracting the attention of some passers-by, prevails on them to bring it up, and open the door. Unfortunately, two of the obliging strangers are his wife and niece. When they enter, Ponderbury pretends to be attacked by somnambulism, and is with difficulty prevented from walking out of the window. In the last act, an old friend of Ponderbury's turns up after a sea voyage, and tells the story of the assault on Mrs. P., with the difference that he describes the lady as having welcomed instead of rejecting his advances. This revelation brings Mrs. Ponderbury into a state of subjection, and secures Ponderbury's future freedom.

The piece is a little old-fashioned in style; but it is essentially and irresistibly amusing, and its revival has the advantage of showing us Mr. Charles Hawtrey in a character quite in his customary vein. Everyone is aware how delightful Mr. Hawtrey is as one of the subdued, but sly, husbands of farce, and how droll he makes the meekness which is but a cloak for secret impropriety. Mr. Hawtrey as the cowed, but crafty, Ponderbury, acts with all his old demureness and originality; and the laughter he evokes is as free and liberal as of old. Another "feature" of the revival is the appearance of dainty Miss Billie Burke in the character sustained at the Avenue by Miss Lottie Venne. Miss Burke's personality has a peculiar charm; and she has a lightness of touch and an arch animation which are marvellously winning. Miss Burke has undoubted comedy gifts, and her characterisation of Mme. de Mojeski shows keen observation, a rich sense of humour, and a delicate appreciation of the value of detail. She made a decided hit with an "introduced" song by Mr. Fred Montagu, called "Molly Molyneux." Miss Burke rendered it in a chic and vivacious manner, and her fascinating treatment of the ditty will certainly send hundreds to purchase the song, which is published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter. We are sure that the success of Miss Burke in the part must have been a surprise to most of her many admirers, and we prophesy for this young lady a brilliant career. We have not too many comédiennes on our stage, and Miss Burke's accession to the ranks is a thing on which both she and the public may be congratulated. That finished actress, Miss Marie Illington, embodies Mrs. Ponderbury with the effective combination of imposing comeliness and an authoritative manner which has made so many of her impersonations intensely acceptable. Every point is scored, and not an opportunity is lost by Miss Illington, who is in excellent form. Mr. Charles Troode's Mervin Thorp is a smooth and neat embodiment, which answers all requirements, and reflects much credit on the actor; and Mr. Wilfred Draycott's Captain John Rumford could hardly have been improved upon, so replete is it with all the necessary qualities. Mr. Edward Fitzgerald does excellent work as Peter, his depiction of the eccentric butler being very grim and quaint, and his make-up being excellent; and Mr. Ernest Grayham, as the vapid Hyacinth Grayling, gives a very characteristic and clever performance. Mr. Henri Laurent is entirely efficient as Sir Rover Baring; and Mr. L. Williams does good work as Colonel Aversnack, Mr. Percy R. Goodyer contributing a commendable embodiment of Dr. Phelim Orlover. Miss Gwynne Herbert is a most agreeable and intelligent representative of Lady Baring; and Miss Mona Harrison is a charmingly fresh and pretty Ethel Penniston; Miss Mirabel Hillier being satisfactory as Susan. Mrs. Ponderbury's Past is preceded by a duologue in one act, by G. H. Street, played for the first time, and entitled The Anonymous Letter. The "parties" are husband and wife, and the latter has received an anonymous letter informing her that her husband has had frequent meetings with another lady. He tells her that he wrote the letter himself in order to excite her jealousy; but his fib is detected, for it was the wife who penned the epistle to draw him out, and discover how far he had gone in his flirtation. The Anonymous Letter is a bright and pretty trifle. Mr. Wilfred Draycott is remarkably good as the husband, acting with a true sense of comedy; and Miss Dorothy Hammond as the wife combines beauty of person with quiet humour and real ability.

THE problem of beautifying the complexion is one which has confronted the actress of all ages. It has evidently been effectually solved in the new treatment bearing the refreshing name of Aquada, administered by Mrs. Probyn, at her flat at 54, South Molton-street. There is no sort of make-up in the process; it consists simply in drawing out from the pores with a tiny instrument the dirt of years and imparting freshness and purity to the skin. Blackheads are chased from their strongholds and the pores so braced up that they cannot return. Besides the cleansing of the skin Aquada soothes the nerves in a marvellous way, and many a headache has yielded completely under its pleasant influence.

MARTIN HARVEY ON MANAGEMENT.

Mr. Martin Harvey has chosen the "only way" to recuperate the wearied organism in the intervals of weekly play-production in London. He has pitched his tent to the north of Regent's Park, in one of those delightfully old-fashioned houses that remind us that the architects of the last generation builded "better than they knew." There is a spacious stillness about the large garden, with its classic fountain making gentle music, and its vast vinery, the only occupant of which is one massive vine, arching over a veritable little ball-room. And, to escape entirely from even domestic interruptions, Mr. Harvey, at the end of his pleasaunce, has a rustic "temple" with Ionic columns, where he retires to discuss weighty business with his trusty acting-manager, to consider designs for costumes, and to peruse plays.

Fresh from last night's triumphs with The Corsican Brothers, Mr. Harvey is naturally willing to talk of the fine old play, which everyone knows, and of which so little is known.

"My endeavour," says Mr. Harvey, "has been to 'go back to first principles' in our version of the famous play, or, rather, of the less famous novel from which Les Frères Corses was taken. We have tried to get at Dumas' intentions, and go behind the perversions of those who have endeavoured to 'improve' upon the inimitable Alexander. For instance, we have replaced in the second act the very important scene—you must have noticed it last night—between Louis and Martinelli. The fault of the previous versions—of the English one, at any rate—was that the second act chiefly consisted of spectacle.

"If I remember rightly, much of the action took place down in what we may call the 'promenade' of the old Paris Opera House. This always seemed to me curious, as from what one can gather from the literature of the period, there was so much riotous movement and practical joking in that part of the house that it would have been hardly in the arena that the 'young bloods' of the time would have had their arguments or laid their wagers."

"Yes; and so we have chosen for our set one of the corridors, where such easy talk would be more possible. But the most important change that we have made is in going back to Dumas' novel for the character of Emilie de Lesparre, who in the English versions is made an entirely proper person, not at all the sort of creature either to have attracted de Château-Renaud or to have yielded to his fascinations. In Dumas' book—and Dumas was always artistically and entirely right—she is a rather flighty young woman, entrusted to the care of Louis by her husband, an honest sailor, while he is away on a voyage. In the English versions Louis and Emilie never met except in Montjiron's apartments for a moment."

"Then your improvements are chiefly in the direction of strengthening the part of Louis?"

"Exactly. Louis was a mere shadow, and consequently the second act suffered. In the French Emilie had already gone a good way with de Château-Renaud, and came to the Opera House on his promise to return to her certain compromising letters. So that in all my adjustment of the play I have been only trying to get back, as far as possible, to the real author, dear old Dumas."

"The Corsican Brothers is certainly an actor-manager's piece, if there be any truth in the description given of the nature of the actor-manager by certain critics. It is a 'great pull' to be able to enact both heroes in a drama. But you certainly deserved it after your self-sacrifice in Great Possessions."

"Was I so self-sacrificing? The fact is, I was so pleased with the piece when I read it that my personal prominence in it was out of my mind when I determined to do it. I had never seen it acted. It had only one private performance, in Munich. We have had to alter it already in the direction of curtailment. The original would have played four hours. The author sees his way to developing the character of Nathaniel, which is, perhaps, a little too much on one note. But I must tell you that I do not believe in producing plays with an eye alone to pecuniary or, indeed, any form of 'success.' I produce a play because it appeals to me; because, in short, I like it. And I believe," says Mr. Harvey, waxing earnest and enthusiastic, "that, and that only, is the way to be successful. You may not always hit the mark; but the man who pleases himself in his art is, to say the least, as likely to be fortunate in winning the approbation of his public as the man who writes or 'presents' with his eye always on the probable receipts. There is only one way in which we can keep up the interest in the English drama. Let authors write and managers produce, first of all, for their own sakes. The line about the drama's patrons giving the drama's laws has done more harm than the writer could ever have foreseen."

"And you don't think the English drama is 'going down'?"

"Going down? Not a bit of it. It is simply a case of flux and reflux. There are periods when, for some time, no notable plays are produced. Then out come several good things; and matters look up immediately. We must think more of the honour which attaches to doing good work, and less to long 'runs' and bankers' balances. Take all this talk about 'bad business' in the provinces. I have not experienced any, nor, I believe, have any of the first-rate companies sent out by my brother managers. And, I may say, in passing, that I believe the better class of provincial audience is less blasé and more keenly appreciative than those of the metropolis. Life in London is so breathless and so strenuous that people have no time to enjoy art.

Mr. Martin Harvey's revival of The Corsican Brothers takes us back to the time when Fechter first appeared in Les Frères Corses at the Théâtre Historique, Paris, in 1850, and to the "palmy days" of the Princess's, when Charles Kean represented the Brothers dei Franchi there in 1852, the then long run of sixty nights being the result of the experiment. The celebrated revival of the drama at the Lyceum in the September of 1880, with Henry Irving as the Brothers, William Terriss as de Château-Renaud, and Elwood as Montgiron, is still fresh in the memories of playgoers. Dumas' famous story is so old as to be almost new to the present generation, who may be willing to be reminded that the action opens in the island of Corsica, where Fabien dei Franchi is living with his widowed mother. His twin brother, Louis dei Franchi, between whom and Fabien a mysterious electric sympathy exists, is in Paris; and while Fabien is writing a letter, the ghost of Louis appears to him with blood oozing from his breast. As a matter of fact, Louis has been killed in a duel with a certain Château-Renaud, whom he offended by protecting a lady from his advances. Fabien arrives in Paris, manages to meet de Château-Renaud on the same spot on which poor Louis was slain, and puts him to death after a desperate combat.

The story, as all will remember, is embellished with certain "visions," the effect of which greatly depends upon the way in which they are managed. Mr. Harvey has by various means made the appearance of Louis to his brother in Corsica more mysterious and ghostly than usual; and all the details of these ghostly visitations are quite artistically supplied. In place of the elaborate bal masqué which used to occupy so much of the second act, he simply suggests the locale by the entrance of a few masqueraders, one of the corridors of the Opera House, with its fine columns and red-plush seats, being the scene of de Château-Renaud's wager.

Mr. Martin Harvey's Fabien dei Franchi is one of the best things that he has done. Fabien's overpowering apprehension of misfortune, his graceful and aristocratic bearing, and the weird mystery and tender melancholy with which Mr. Harvey managed to imbue his impersonation, made it entirely agreeable and absolutely convincing. His Fabien, in his demeanour to his mother and to his guest, was a very perfect gentleman, and his delivery of the explanation of the family mystery was a delicately artistic piece of inflexion. In the last act his Fabien had all the necessary resolution and stern intensity; and Mr. Harvey took his share of the duel with an energy and keenness which held the house in the breathless silence of suspense. He made the most, too, of the character of Louis, the settled melancholy and confident expectation of death felt by the doomed young man being rendered extremely impressive by Mr. Harvey's poetic and imaginative treatment. As de Château-Renaud, Mr. Vincent Sternroyd gave a keen and polished performance, making him more of a dandy and a lady-killer than is customary, and endowing him with an aristocratic air and a persuasive manner. Mr. Albert E. Raynor supplied a sound and effective interpretation of the rôle of Montgiron; and Mr. George Cooke acted with animation and energy in Martelli's scene with Louis in the second act, Mr. Alfred Mansfield being agreeably easy and urbane as Alfred Meynard. Mr. Fred Wright, sen., whose years sit lightly upon him, was an excellent exponent of Colonna; and Mr. Philip Hewland was capital as Orlando. Miss Coleridge looked extremely attractive as Emilie de Lesparre, and handled her scene with Louis in the Opera corridor with grace, skill, and tact; and that always safe and able actress, Miss Maud Milton, was the acme of amiability and gentle bearing as Madame dei Franchi. The minor parts of Griffo and Maria were well sustained by Mr. Leslie Palmer and Miss Madge Fabian; and the grisettes were depicted with animation and vivacity by Misses Maud Rivers, Bessie Elder, Marjorie Field, and Ethel Patrick. Mr. Charles J. Cameron gave sufficient colour and emphasis to his rôle of Favrolles; and Mr. Paul Barry was sound and satisfactory as Beauchamp. The revival was received with hearty enthusiasm, and at the close of the performance Mr. Harvey, speaking from the snow-covered stage, and humorously contrasting what he called his "chilly surroundings" with the warmth of the reception given to the play, thanked the audience for it on behalf of himself and the company.

The Corsican Brothers was preceded by a piece in two panels, by Rosamund Langbridge, played for the first time, and entitled

"A TRAGEDY OF TRUTH."

Michael Hennessy .....MR. HENRY AINLEY
Mrs. Riordan .....MISS MAUD MILTON
Mary Riordan .....MISS N. DE SILVA

A Tragedy of Truth deals with the old Irish superstition concerning spells. Mary Riordan is the unfortunate owner of red hair. It appears that, amongst the peasantry of the Emerald Isle, this is considered to be "unlucky"; and, consequently, there is little chance of Mary ever getting married. Her mother, who possesses strange powers of witchcraft, puts a spell on young Michael Hennessy, with whom Mary is in love, and makes him "fancy" the young woman. He offers her marriage; and, in the second "panel," Mary is getting ready for her wedding. The girl, however, cannot endure the idea of winning a husband by sorcery, and resolves to tell Michael all before the ceremony takes place. When the young man learns about the spell he shrinks from his bride in horror; and, on her attempting to approach him, stabs her to the heart with a knife taken from the table. This strong little play made a deep impression, greatly on account of the admirable way in which it was acted. Mr. Henry Ainley was tremendously powerful in his depiction of terror and wrath as Michael Hennessy, and looked the imaginative, highly-strung Hibernian to the life. Miss Maud Milton contributed an intense and impressive embodiment of Mrs. Riordan; and Miss N. de Silva—who, it must be owned, looked far too pretty to be neglected by suitors—was a sweetly simple and pathetic exponent of Mary Riordan. Mr. Norman O'Neill's incidental music greatly assisted the effect of the situations; and Mr. G. J. Dodson's interior of a Galway cabin formed an appropriate setting.

Messrs. Henry Smith and Ernest Carpenter have scored another triumphant success at the Lyceum with The Midnight Wedding, which was played for the first time in London at the West London Theatre last February, after a provincial production at the Grand Junction Theatre, Manchester. The Midnight Wedding has all the requisites of success with popular audiences. The hero and the villain are boldly drawn and distinctly defined. The heroine is a beautiful and gracious princess, and the "comic relief"—most necessary in the intervals of the strenuous and sensational action—is broadly and genuinely amusing.

As we have already twice told the story of The Midnight Wedding, we need only now remind our readers that the hero, Paul Valmar, is the son, by a morganatic marriage, of the Crown Prince Leopold of Savonia. Disowned by his father, for political reasons, the youth has entered the ranks of the army, and has worked his way up to the rank of "sword-master" and lieutenant. By his success, he has incurred the jealousy of Captain Rudolph Von Scarsbruck, the detested suitor for the hand of Princess Astrea Von Strelsberg. The Princess's brother, Eugene, who has squandered her fortune, and is in the power of Von Scarsbruck, insults Valmar, and the latter, after a brief combat, leaves him for dead. Flying from military punishment, Valmar seeks refuge in the chapel of the Princess's palace, and she implores him to marry her, to save her from the combined attack of her brother and Von Scarsbruck. The ceremony is performed, and Paul is arrested and imprisoned immediately after, obtaining release by revealing his identity to the Crown Prince. Von Scarsbruck, in order to shame the Princess into marrying him, enters her bedchamber; but Valmar is on his track, and overawes him with a revolver. After various thrilling and exciting incidents Von Scarsbruck is slain by Paul, and there seems no obstacle to the happiness of Valmar and the Princess, especially as there appears to be a possibility of Valmar ultimately inheriting Savonia's crown.

The acting all round is admirably appropriate to the tone and nature of the play. The artists are keenly appreciative of the method demanded by the piece, and throw themselves into their work with an energy and sincerity of purpose which carry the most complete conviction. Mr. Norman Partriege depicts the chivalrous sword-master, Paul Valmar, with all the necessary vigour, grace, and earnestness. The high spirit, the active combativeness, and the sensitive pride of the personage are shown with the most telling effect; and, from first to last, Mr. Partriege wins the heart of his audience by his manly bearing, his deep seriousness, and the electric energy of his expression. Mr. Partriege is excellent in his outbursts of righteous indignation; and in the rôle of the disinherited Prince he had many opportunities for the use of his best powers in this direction. The masterly character of Paul Valmar—whose cunning of fence gives him, certainly, a great advantage over his enemies—is admirably indicated by Mr. Partriege, whose vivid personality and intense and active insistance make him the idol of the Lyceum audience. Great ability is, indeed, demanded by the hero who has to play against such a smart and well-favoured villain as Mr. Eric Mayne's Capt. Rudolph Van Scarsbruck. A great revivalist regretted that "the devil should have all the good times"; and, really, one grudges the Lyceum villains such a handsome representative as Mr. Mayne, who has to do all he knows to make himself properly detestable. Handsome is, however, that handsome does; and, by his strong and vigorous characterisation, Mr. Mayne succeeds, in the end, in rendering the unworthy officer sufficiently hateful. The very way in which he shows his teeth suggests savage aggressiveness; and the thorough blackguardism of the cruel and cynical Captain is as little in doubt as is the complete success of Mr. Mayne's embodiment. There is a sustained animosity about his impersonation which gradually impresses itself on the audience, and helps them to rejoice at his death in the last act. Mr. Ronald Adair as the second, and subordinate scoundrel, suggests with great ability both the want of principle and the weakness of Lieut. Eugene Von Strelsburg, whom he makes not too rascally, but just rascally enough. Mr. Frederick Ross's depiction of the distress of mind of the well-meaning Crown Prince is very natural and sincere, and he has the advantage of looking the character extremely well, embodying it with genuine ease and dignity. Mr. Fred Grove endows Father Gerard with all the necessary clerical unction and amiability; and Miss Valli Valli, in the lightly comic character of Kathie, is both delightfully pretty in appearance and exquisitely arch and dainty in style and manner. Miss Daisy Gwynne is highly dramatic as Rozel, alias Satanella, and her bold bearing and fine figure make her performance of the part very effective and picturesque. Miss Nora Kerin puts a liberal amount of dramatic power into her acting as Princess Astrea Von Strelsburg, her facial expression in some of the more emotional scenes being very impressive, and her delivery of the passionate speeches in which the part abounds having a strength of expression which is worthy of the warmest praise. She wears the uniform of the Red Hussars with confidence, and displays throughout a histrionic ability which deserves, and obtains, the heartiest applause. The three comic soldiers are represented in the most amusing manner. Mr. S. Major Jones is a burly Sergeant Max; Mr. Harry Barford is capital as Corporal Otto; and Mr. Gus Oxley—who has most of the comic "fat"—positively revels in his opportunities for creating fun as Private Bobo. Mr. Wilton James is good as the Sergeant of the Guard; Mr. Edmund Waller does useful and efficient work as Conrad; and Mr. Harold Chapin and Mr. Henry Armstrong are excellent as Troopers Fritz and Ludwig.

The scene at the end of the performance on Saturday, was one of great enthusiasm, bouquets of great size and beauty being handed over the footlights, and an excited demonstration bringing out first the principals, next Mr. Walter Howard, and then Messrs. Smith and Carpenter, the latter of whom, in a few pithy sentences, returned thanks for the reception of the drama, and said that it left no doubt of the success of the experiment of presenting at that historic theatre, first-rate entertainments at prices within the reach of the general public. The speech was received with responsive cheers. We must not forget to praise the admirably complete production of the play by Mr. Carpenter, and Herr Raimund Pechotsch's excellent conducting of the performance, by a really good orchestra, of his cleverly composed incidental music.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT'S EARLY MEMORIES.

In the interesting theatrical reminiscences entitled "Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft on and off the Stage," written by themselves and published a few years ago, Sir Squire Bancroft narrates some "early memories" of the London theatres. He writes: "I had been always stage-struck—my toys were little theatres, in which The Red Rover and The Miller and His Men enjoyed very long runs; while, later on, I would for years read a tragedy in preference to a novel, until I learnt from my mother an adoration for the works of Dickens. All my pocket money was spent at the play, and dramatic books (of which I was a great collector) became my hobby; but the thought of my ever being in truth an actor was looked upon with ridicule.

"During my youth I went greatly to the play, and remember much that I saw. The first glimmer of recollection I retain of amusements is the circus at Astley's, and of pantomimes both there and at the Surrey Theatre. I recall, but only with a child's remembrance, being taken to the Lyceum to see the incomparable Madame Vestris, and living in the fairyland of William Beverley's gorgeous scenery; also to the Strand Theatre (then called Punch's Playhouse) to see that great actor Farren before he left the stage. The play was The Vicar of Wakefield; Mrs. Stirling was Olivia, and Leigh Murray also acted in it. Macready I never saw; but I do not forget as a very small boy reading and devouring, with a longing to be present, the bill of his farewell performance. At the same age I can just remember seeing old Madame Tussaud seated at the inner door of the famous Waxwork Exhibition in Baker-street, and comparing the reality with the effigy. Later—for my mind retains much more—I was often at Sadler's Wells Theatre, and saw many of the Phelps productions, several of them over and over again, and I witnessed most of Charles Kean's splendid revivals at the Princess's. At the Adelphi I saw Benjamin Webster, Leigh Murray, Paul Bedford, Miss Woolgar, and Madame Celeste, but—I can't say how it happened—never Wright.

"My memory grows brighter at thoughts of the Olympic, where I was enthralled by an actor whom I shall never forget—Frederick Robson. I saw him very often, and vividly recall his pathos in The Porter's Knot, the intensity of his avarice as the old miser, Daddy Hardacre, and his wonderful acting in Payable on Demand; to have once seen is never to forget him as the distracted financier, whose fortunes are saved by the news of Waterloo, brought to him by a carrier pigeon, which he ran round the stage embracing and covering with kisses in a way that provoked no smiles, but only loud applause. The power of Robson's acting was as contagious as a fever.

"At the Lyceum I recall Charles Dillon's fine performance in Belphegor. I sat that evening by my mother's side, and in the touching scene between the Mountebank and his son we little thought that the pretty girl who had made us cry by her pathetic acting as the boy Henri, in which she first appeared in London, would be my future wife. At the beginning of the new year I saw her for the second time as 'the little fairy at the bottom of the sea' in Conrad and Medora. Soon after, at this theatre, I also recollect seeing Helen Faucit (Lady Martin) act Lady Macbeth and Pauline in The Lady of Lyons. These were the days when young theatre-goers had little ambition beyond a front seat in the pit: the days when one's toes were trodden on between the acts by horrible women who sold apples, oranges, and ginger-beer; the days when the bill of the play was little better thn a greasy mass of printer's ink on paper nearly two feet long.

"I was present at the Princess's when Charles Kean retired from management. Henry VIII. was played, with Kean as Wolsey and Mrs. Kean as Queen Katharine. The night was indeed one to well remember, as was the vast distinguished audience. Kean delivered a farewell managerial address, one point in which I can recall when he said how he had been blamed for mounting this or that play too sumptuously, while on the other hand he was recently scolded for the rudeness and simplicity of the goblets he had used in Macbeth's Banqueting Hall, adding in his own quaint manner, 'it was the first time he ever heard that Macbeth had an eye to King Duncan's plate.' The night was altogether memorable, and even the afterpiece is worth recording, a farce written by Edmund Yates, called If the Cap Fits, acted by Walter Lacy, Frank Matthews, and Miss Julia Murray (now the wife of the distinguished reciter, Mr. Samuel Brandram), and last, and then least, for she was only a child, Miss Ellen Terry, who appeared as a dapper little tiger. Charles Kean's great services to the stage were publicly acknowledged at a banquet given in St. James's Hall, Mr. Gladstone, then Chancellor of the Exchequer, who was at Eton with Kean, being among the speakers.

"I mention my going at about this time to the Strand Theatre to see the burlesque on The Lady of Lyons, in which Charlotte Saunders and John Clarke were so popular in their personations of the two Napoleons, because there was a little farce called Captain Charlotte played on the same night, in which I saw Marie Wilton for the third time (and never again until we met upon the stage); I have no better remembrance of that performance, I am ashamed to say, than the ungallant one of thinking her the thinnest girl I had ever seen.

"The splendid performance of that fine actor Benjamin Webster in The Dead Heart is vividly imprinted on my mind, as is also the première of The Overland Route, at the Haymarket; this comedy I witnessed several times—how amusing it was, and how well played by Charles Mathews and Buckstone, Compton, and Chippendale, Mrs. Charles Mathews, and Mrs. Wilkins. In the autumn of 1860, on one of the early nights of its brilliant career at the Adelphi, I remember my rapture at The Colleen Bawn; how well I recall the acting of Mr. and Mrs. Dion Boucicault as Myles-na-Coppaleen and Eily, of Miss Woolgar as Anne Chute, and Edmund Falconer as Danny Mann.

"Without dwelling longer on these recollections, I will mention a very important night when I was among those who greeted that most famous of romantic actors, Charles Fechter, when he played Ruy Blas for the first time in English. This was followed soon by a revival of The Corsican Brothers, which I also saw produced. The first and second acts, I recollect, were then transposed, as they had been previously played by Fechter in France; the scenes in Paris, where Louis meets Chateau Renaud and is killed, preceding those at Fabian's home in Corsica, where he sees a vision of his brother's death.

"These two delightful evenings shall close this hurried record; with them those early, never-to-be-forgotten visits to the play—those nights that were the balm for many sad and weary days—came for ever to an end. The charm, the mystery, which had hung for years around the playhouse, and chiefly made my dreams, were soon to be dispelled. 'The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,' were now to be revealed to me in all the barrenness of painted canvas; for, although in a very few days I was again in a theatre, I this time entered it by the stage-door."

THE Barber-Ritchie Trio, a clever troupe of comedy cyclists, will make their reappearance at the Empire next Monday. Mr. Ritchie is well-known as the original "tramp cyclist."

MR. JOHN FULLER, JUN., the young New Zealand manager, is taking a business jaunt through Scotland and Ireland. He returns to London about the middle of July, and then leaves Southampton by the Adriatic for New York on July 31.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE ALHAMBRA.

The possibilities of electricity for producing original stage effects were first tried, we believe, at the Savoy on the production of Iolanthe, when the coiffures of the fairies were decked with the brilliant incandescence of tiny bulbs. The Fairy Electricity has waved her wand, too, in the advance that has been made of late years to greater beauty and truth in stage productions of Shakespeare, and the elfin fancies of A Midsummer Night's Dream are now commonly portrayed in a manner that realises in two senses the witchery of the Bard. Neither has the variety stage been a laggard in the march of progress, and it is now some years since we saw the first electric ballet at the Oxford. Quite a small affair this, and as an "illuminating" spectacle it is entirely eclipsed by the glories of the new divertissement, entitled Electra, produced at the Alhambra on Monday evening. The dances in this have been arranged by the ingenious Signor Alfredo Curti; but what is of more importance is the fact that in the latest novelty presented by Mr. Alfred Moul and Mr. George Scott we are privileged to witness the very latest developments in stage electricity—if we may be allowed to use the phrase—invented and thought out by H. Harndin. A woodland glade—a fit trysting-place for dryads—presents its pretty vista to admiring eyes. It is speedily peopled by the fairies owning the sway of the goddess Electra—represented in dainty fashion by Signorina Morino—who is led on by Cupid. The gossamer-like robes of the dancers become all aglow with light, and their bodices glitter with incandescence. Their firefly head-dresses also assume brilliant hues, and on a darkened picture the pirouetting coryphées look like so many Jack-o'-Lanterns flitting about the stage. A more beautiful effect is obtained when the corsage of each ballerine is suddenly flooded with the scintillating light from a number of tiny bulbs, which have the appearance of a host of sparkling brilliants, which flash and twinkle in bewildering beauty. A dazzling finale is secured by the lowering of a dark curtain spangled with stars, which seem to ascend and descend in a shower. The novelty is one of great beauty and surpassing brilliance, and derives no little of its charm from the music of Mr. George Byng, the Alhambra's chef d'orchestre, who later directs his artistic forces in the lively and beautiful "Light Cavalry" overture by Suppé.

The return of the Zancigs revives recollections of the well-engineered press controversy concerning the doings of this remarkable couple, whose various experiments in telling the dates of coins, the numbers of notes, the names on visiting cards, seem to be as inexplicable as ever, though Mr. Zancig is careful to explain that he is there merely "to interest and mystify." This he succeeds in accomplishing completely, the book-reading feat being especially remarkable.

Returning from a triumphant season at La Scala, Milan, comes Signorina Maria Bordin to take up the title-rôle in the beautiful ballet The Queen of Spades. This brilliant mistress of pirouette and the pas bondissant presents the more scrupulous technique of the Italian school of dancing, which is in the strongest possible contrast to the particular genre adopted by Mlle. Alexia, whose sensational feats borrowed something from the acrobatic art to make them so. Signorina Bordin was most heartily received in her various pas seuls, which were full of freedom and grace.

The Urbanora animated pictures embrace some singularly clear films depicting the jumping competitions at the recent horse show at Olympia, with, incidentally, some excellent portraits of the King and Queen and their Royal guests of Denmark. One shout of laughter greets the adventures of the short-sighted cyclist, and there are also some amusing trick films of conjuring feats.

New-comers to the house include the Yiulians Family, in an astounding exhibition of the Risley business; and the Racoczy Sextet of Hungarian ladies. Carl Lynn is an established favourite with his clever imitations of animals; and the Five Whiteleys are most interesting in their acrobatic pot-pourri.

THE CANTERBURY.

A series of comic surprises is in store for those who witness the new extravaganza, London Suburbia, by Fred Karno and Leonard F. Durell, which is this week added to the famous Karno répertoire. The delights of the outer metropolis are depicted in two scenes, the first representing a row of villas, with housemaids busy on the doorsteps. A literary gentleman in search of a secluded spot is induced to take a front parlour, but no sooner has he started work than the milkman awakes the echoes with his shrill call, the coal-heaver shouts raucously up and down the street, costers cry their wares incessantly, and passers-by execute acrobatic evolutions over the housemaids' pails until the author is compelled to vacate his apartments. He seeks relief on the first floor, and a scene representing the backs of the same houses is shown. Here the disturbance increases, the neighbours carrying on an animated conversation over the walls, and husbands yelling for their wives to get their meals.

Among the drollest incidents of the back-yard pandemonium is that of a young man who brings out a concertina to play to a couple of rabbits which occupy a hutch in the yard. His performance arouses the neighbours, who appear at their various windows, each provided with a musical instrument, and joining in the playing of the "Zuyder Zee." Eventually there is an outbreak of fire, and the occupants of the burning buildings are forced to make their escape by the windows, a very thrilling scene being the result. Laughter was plentiful on Monday night, when the artists worked indefatigably to ensure success, the chief parts being allotted to Messrs. Jimmy Russell, Geo. Craig, John Doyle, Jack Royal, Sid Chaplin, Fred Whittaker, and Mesdames Amy Forrest, Sarah Doyle, Georgina Royal, Maud Montagu, May Purslow, Hazel Hood, Alma May, Rosie Moran, and Ada Whittaker. The mounting was in Mr. Karno's best style, the flames bursting forth from the burning buildings being very realistic.

Mr. Fred Miller's current programme abounds in interesting turns, the advent of Chirgwin being eagerly awaited. The "White-Eyed Kaffir" is as merry as a cricket, and he chirps his various lays with his customary geniality. Audiences are so well acquainted with his répertoire that they are able to make their own selection, and the popular comedian readily answers to the call of the majority. Howard and St. Clair are the cause of much merriment with their Any Coke? sketch, the drollery of the comedian and the vivacity of his fair partner exercising a most agreeable impression. The Two Bostons have the assistance of their sagacious dog, who aids energetically in the comic bull-fight, and the dancing of one of the performers is viewed with admiration. Miss May Belfort invests the refrain "I love you" with charming refinement of voice and style, and also renders a monologue dealing with a tale of Christmas bells impressively. The farcical musical episode Poor Beggar introduces Mr. John Le Hay in an artistic impersonation of a mendicant who has innumerable ailments in turn. As a comedian Mr. Le Hay is irresistible, but the audience is fain to pause in their mirth to give a cheer for the snatches of song by which the well-known musical comedy favourite exercises a robust tenor. Miss Rosie Lloyd delights her admirers with a ballad of the affections, and increases their felicity with her popular "Never introduce your bloke to a lady friend," for which she is repeatedly recalled. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope presents excellent pictures, and the bill has contributors also in the popular Miss Millie Lindon, Sanford and Lyons, Miss Esme Gordon, Allis and Cassati, and Mr. Harry Russon.

THE BEDFORD.

The current bill at this popular and most comfortable hall is quite up to the usual standard of excellence, and the programme contains several very excellent turns. Mr. B. P. Lucas is to be complimented on the programmes he puts forward, and with his able manager, Mr. A. F. Lovesey, to help him, he makes everyone welcome and comfortable. The sketch entitled The Magic Carpet is presented by Mr. John Warren and company. It is a magical play, and contains several very startling illusions, the chief of which is the disappearance of a lady from the stage when a screen is placed in front of her. She stands on a carpet which is only put down a moment before, and therefore seems impossible to have been arranged in any way. Certainly it is a very clever illusion, and was greatly applauded. Previous to the little sketch Mr. Warren gives some very clever sleight-of-hand tricks, which are accompanied by some very amusing patter on his part. Harry and Ada Meymott appear in a diverting little play, entitled Semi-Detached, which tells of the trials of a solicitor who is endeavouring to master the facts of a case while his next-door neighbour wrestles with the piano and sings very much out of tune. Shortly after his client, a very charming lady, appears, and in the end he discovers she is his musical neighbour. However, he finds her so attractive that he proposes and is accepted, and so ends the little trifle. Mr. Harry Meynott is capital as the solicitor, and keeps the house in a roar; while Miss Ada Meymott plays the lady in a very entertaining manner, and they finish off the sketch with a clever medley of popular songs. Altogether it is one of the brightest little things we have seen for some time. Mr. Harry Morgan sings a couple of coon songs in a very finished manner, and adds a short dance which is well executed. McWerne, described as an impressionist, gives some clever impersonations, the cleverest being that of a man who seems to have an endless wardrobe on. His impression of Mr. Arthur Prince, the ventriloquist, is decidedly good. The Sivronis are very entertaining in their vaudeville entertainment, and early in the evening Les Petits Diabolos appear with much success. Curwen and Belle provide a very amusing interlude with their little sketch, The International Club, in which the male partner gives some very smart quick-change work, and appears as a German, Frenchman, Lancashire lad, and Scotsman, and creates roars of laughter in his various disguises. Mr. W. H. Downs appears in The Darkey's Dream, in which he is assisted by his piccaninnies, and he is accorded a very hearty reception. On the evening of our visit an extra turn was provided, but the name of the artist was not given. He sang two descriptive songs in a most finished manner, which showed off his voice splendidly, and the reception he received must have been most gratifying to the artist. Some very interesting and amusing pictures are shown on the Bioscope, which is quite one of the standing features here, and is always greatly appreciated by the patrons. The programme is brought to a conclusion by the military spectacle, For England's Glory, which is of the most stirring description, and is capitally staged. The play is written and produced by W. J. Mackay, who gives a forcible portrayal of Captain Hoffman; while the other characters are capably filled by Messrs. Stuart Lomath, George Edwards, and Miss Ina Alston. The orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. G. R. Hatley, renders the music during the evening, and adds greatly to the enjoyment.

DUCHESS, BALHAM.

The tardy approach of summer is being much appreciated by music-hall managers, the attendances at this cosy hall in particular showing little, if any, signs of falling off. The programme which is being presented this week is exceptionally interesting, and the various items are received with every expression of goodwill. The house is put in an excellent humour early in the evening by Miss Ruby Emmerson, who describes in song "What you must have," and gains great approval. Hayman and Franklin, with their clever cross-talk, are successful in keeping the house in a continuous roar of laughter; they bring their turn to a conclusion with an amusing song, and well earn the applause they receive. A prominent place in the evening's entertainment is taken by Carrie Laurie's Juveniles, who sing and dance in a manner which would do many of their seniors credit. The comedian of the party is very diverting, and a word of praise ought certainly to be given to the little dot in white for her clever singing and dancing.

Miss Lily Lenora, a comedienne with a pleasing voice, sings a number entitled "Under the big umbrella-ella," which is set to pretty music; Miss Lenora brings her turn to a conclusion with some dainty dancing. A very clever and interesting performance is that presented by Lux and his canine assistants; these dogs are almost human in their sagacity, and have been trained to a high pitch of excellence. Carney and Armstrong, a couple of amusing comedians, are doing well with some clever and original work; they have a very effective coon song with a pretty whistling chorus, which is much appreciated. Albert Le Fre is making one of his periodical visits here with his amusing mélange, "That's what you see upon the halls," and is meeting with his usual success; he is a most versatile comedian, and everything he does is accomplished in a thoroughly finished manner.

Herbert Darnley and company are presenting here a skit entitled The Sandow Girl. There are two or three amusing songs in it, that entitled "A bit of resin for the bow" being much relished. Another feature of the sketch is some clever dancing by the Rosaire Troupe, who show themselves no mean exponents of the art of Terpsichore. Kitty Glover and company are giving a comedy sketch, entitled The Pet of the Ballet, with every sign of success. A capital evening's amusement is brought to a conclusion by some very amusing pictures on the Bioscope, which furnishes one of the brightest and most appreciated items of the evening. The films shown this week are "A Blind Man's Dog" and "Billiards Mad," the latter especially being most laughable. The orchestra keep well together in their overture El Capitan, and by their attention to the incidental music contribute in no small measure to the evening's enjoyment. Mr. L. Westcott Hicks, the genial manager, and his assistant, Mr. Arthur F. Vernall, do everything possible for the comfort of their patrons.

EALING HIPPODROME.

The Secretary for War erred greatly when, in his scheme of National Defence, he failed to secure the collaboration of Mr. Will Evans, for to see this popular comedian in his mirth-provoking travesty of the "invasion of 1910," is an object-lesson in military tactics. Laughter accompanies the sketch from the first drawing of the rusty sword to the last shot from the canvas cannon, and the comedian is the object of many recalls. Mr. Leo Tell would be hard to beat in his imitations of many musical instruments. Reproductions of the saxhorn, cornet, and 'cello, the amorous serenades of the midnight "Tom," barking dogs, and neighing horses, all come from the same source, namely, his mouth, and appreciation is showered on the artist from all parts of the house.

Mr. George French presents here his successes, "When I was young a soldier I would be" and "Out of the working-classes," and well sustains his reputation. Miss Ada Martine has a blithe and merry personality that marks her at once as a popular favourite. Her two numbers, "Back to Carolina" and "Sweet English maid" both have a haunting melody that lingers long upon the ear. Associated with a pretty dance Miss Martine's turn is very welcome. Terry and Bentley have some very entertaining cross-talk, the wilful stupidity of the gentleman being well contrasted with the witty repartee of his partner, who, in addition to being a graceful dancer, is a sweet singer, a fact which she proves in her song "I love you, ma cherie."

Mr. Frank Sylvo's manipulation of a number of cigar-boxes is remarkably skilful, while his running accompaniment of jocular comment is particularly funny. Mr. Chas. Whittle, the popular comedian, has two pleasing numbers in "Put me amongst the girls" and "I knew a naughty little boy," which are rendered in finished style. Upon Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope a series of films illustrating "The Indian's Revenge" is presented. Mr. E. W. James has his hands full just at present, two of his chief aids having been transferred to the Duchess at Balham, namely, Mr. L. Westcott Hicks as manager and Mr. Kennedy Russell as musical-director. Both gentlemen were much liked, and their departure is regretted.

THE PARAGON ANNIVERSARY.

The twenty-second anniversary of the re-opening of this palatial house in Mile End was celebrated with a long, strong, and varied entertainment on Friday, June 14, and in celebration of the event the principals of the variety world generously proffered their services, thereby giving the visitors an extra special evening's amusement, which, to judge by the appreciation shown, was thoroughly enjoyed The hall was most tastefully decorated, and the exertions of the popular manager, Mr. Charles Beecham, had much to do with the success. In the lounge many people prominent in the music-hall world assembled; but one well-known form was sadly missed—that of the lamented George Adney Payne, who always took a great interest in the house, which was his first venture in proprietorship.

Mr. H. H. Wells, the new managing-director, in introducing himself to the audience, asked for the continuation of their support, and mentioned that he would do his utmost to provide his patrons with a thoroughly good show week by week. He was in a position to give most of his time to the direction of the theatre and to making any improvement. He proposed altering, at the earliest convenient moment, the seating accommodation of the balcony, with the object of giving the patrons thereof greater comfort.

Amongst the many items of the entertainment Mr. Bert Wickham, the Welsh Hercules, was prominent with feats of strength, including the stopping of the progress of two eight horse-power motor-cars when going at full speed. The Brothers Griffiths, in their wrestling skit, caused roars of laughter; Miss Ghita Corri sang beautifully "Come back to Erin," her rich voice and distinct articulation gaining for her the most enthusiastic applause; and De Vry's statuary act included some cleverly-arranged groups, the one most popular being "Patriotic Allegory." Among the comic singers Mr. Dion Wade rendered in droll style "Wouldn't you be better in a home?" and for an encore gave a wonderful impersonation of Mr. George Robey. Mr. Andie Burne gave his "Broken-down Masher," and finished with a clever dance. Miss Lucy Weston, looking pretty in a tasteful gown, sang delicately her "Guide-Book" song, which refers to a country mother's advice to a daughter who is visiting London. Messrs. Marcel and Boris, extraordinary equilibrists, were seen to advantage in some wonderfully neat and clever business. Baby Baker, a tiny mite, gave a coon song. Miss Annie Purcell introduced a number, "In the valleys of Switzerland," which bids fair to achieve as great a popularity as her "Zuyder Zee." It has a pretty melody, and a simple refrain that is easily caught up.

Mr. John Lawson's sketch, Youth and Folly, which was played instead of The Unwritten Law, to suit the requirements of the L.C.C., deals with a certain rich Jack Graham, who is in love with and loved by a pretty young married lady, the wife of the villain. Their marriage not being legal, the lovers are in a position to marry; and the runaway match is presented by a series of films shown on the Bioscope. In the last scene—a Continental theatre—there is a stage, on which four ladies execute a neat little dance. At one of the tables, seated, is the villain with his friends. The newly-married couple arrive, and in an altercation between the husbands concerning the wife's honour chairs are thrown about, and the first husband is shot dead, thus ending the troubles of Youth and Folly.

Amongst others who appeared were Messrs. Frank Leon, Tom Woottwell, Clito Clifford, Ray and Darwin, Woolmer Young, Conway and Leland, Chirgwin, Kathleen Gray, Amy Cooper, Sandford and Lyons, Baby Mills, the Lavels, Percy Clifton, Lilian Lea, Five Starlights, A. G. Spry, Harry Harris, Miss Di Sylva, Jennie Alexandra, Alexandra Dagmar, Boyd and Gilfain, and Gilbert Girard (in some clever impersonations of animals).

MR. W. B. FAIR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Not for the want of energy nor for lack of activity (although I am fifty-seven, and am one of the few surviving music hall and pantomime artists who were popular thirty-five years ago), I have had one more check at the hands of Dame Fortune. It is only a little over a year ago that I embarked upon a business in which I and my friends had the greatest confidence, and that promised to give me occupation and sufficient earnings to provide me with all I needed until the end of my life.

I have received considerable assistance from my old friends during the time that I was making this commercial effort, and I also threw into it the whole of the small capital I was able to command from family sources.

The speculation to which I refer, and which is described upon enclosed card, unfortunately turned out a complete failure, and I lost my little all. Consequently, I am at the present moment stranded, and have no alternative but to appeal to the good feeling which has always been extended to me by the Press, public, and my brother artists to assist me at a proposed benefit which will take place at an early date at the Town Hall, Holborn. I should be very pleased if you could find room for a few lines in the columns of your valuable paper to ask those artists who would be willing to assist to send in their names to Mr. Alf. Abrahams, 42, Wellington-street, Strand, secretary pro. tem.—Yours faithfully,

W. B. FAIR.

16, Barnsbury Park, N., June 21, 1907.

[Mr. W. B. Fair, the original singer of "Tommy make room for your uncle," was at one time proprietor of the Winchester Music Hall, and was connected with the East London Theatre in 1872, when George Leybourne had it.]

THE Brothers Obo on Friday, the 14th inst., had some fine sport with rod and line in the Severn at Worcester. Jim Obo hooked and landed a fine chub, which turned the scale at 1lb. 8oz., and before the excitement had subsided Ben Obo hooked—and, after about ten minutes' struggle, landed—a splendid bream weighing exactly 5lb. They would like to know if this weigh has been beaten by any of their brother artists. Fred Craig (of Craig, Rose, and Craig), who was fishing with them at the time, did not have the same luck.

THE Belfast gallery boys have a fondness for the best Scotch, and they get it from Frame. After he had given them half a dozen wee Scotch songs at the Alhambra Theatre in Linenopolis last week they asked for more.

Although this bright and amusing musical comedy sketch is not exactly new, it has been so greatly improved in many respects since its first production as to lay claim to something more than passing notice. In setting herself to write a musical comedy the performance of which would not extend beyond the time-limit of the variety theatre stage, Miss Flo Stanley was confronted with a task of no little difficulty; but the young authoress has entirely succeeded. She had a good story to start with in the mutual jealousies of Lord Teasum, the Admiral of the Fleet, and his wife, a lady who apparently would stand no nonsense; and she has wound this into an interesting plot, which partly revolves round the search for a long-lost niece of Lady Teasum's, a "young person" who is entitled to a fabulous fortune. Matters are complicated by a brace of devil-may-care sailors who write bogus letters to the opposing parties, and thereby set them by the ears. Lord and Lady Teasum each engages one of the "salts" to act as a sort of private detective, and try to find out what is politely called "incriminating evidence." After many wild doings on board the Victory matters are satisfactorily cleared up, Lord and Lady Teasum forgive each other, and Polly is acknowledged as the hitherto missing heiress, and all ends merrily. The little play, the plot of which is lucidly set forth, is written in crisp, telling duologue, containing not a few clever lines; the lyrics are graceful, and set to catching music by Mr. H. Petersen.

The company engaged in the interpretation of The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory has been carefully selected, and all work hard to secure success. Mr. Arthur Watson as Jack Marlingspike, on whose shoulders fall the principal duties, is the life and soul of the play, acting with immense humour throughout, singing his share of the music admirably, and dancing with grace and dexterity. Mr. Watson is received as a first favourite the moment he appears, and wins easily at the finish. The chief is capitally supported. Miss Flo Stanley, looking bewitching, plays with neatness and animation, her saucy sprightliness being exactly suited to the rôle of the pretty waitress who turns out to be so "well-connected." Mr. Bob Leardo, looking every inch an admiral in his handsome uniform, plays with spirit, and sings "Jack's the boy for work" with great gusto. Mr. Harry Watson is good as Dick Hatchway; Mr. Joe Burly is excellent as Trotter, a waiter; Messrs. Ted Shepperd, Geo. Bailey, Arthur King, and Tom Murphy efficiently fill up the canvas. Miss Nellie Grant is a very fine Lady Teasum, handsome on the most liberal scale, and speaking with the most refreshing emphasis. The pretty waitresses are represented by Misses Gracie Dudley, Hettie Harrison, Lillie Dudley, Daisy Dudley, Katie Marsh, and Rosie Sprightly. Some pretty dancing is supplied by Lottie Stone's troupe. The piece is splendily staged, the first set representing Portsmouth Harbour with warship in the offing; and the final scene, On Board H.M.S. Victory, being both artistic and realistic. The dresses are handsome and appropriate, and all the appointments thoroughly in keeping.

ONE of the chief events of the season, and one to be looked forward to with much pleasure and interest, is a Grand Fête Garden Party and Carnival, given by the Variety Artists' Federation at the White City, Old Trafford, Manchester, on Thursday next (Federation Day), the proceeds of which are to be divided between the Federation, the Music Hall Home, and the Music Hall Benevolent Fund. The White City has made extensive preparations, and has generously given one-half of the entire receipts to this good cause. All the leading artists in Manchester and those performing within a radius of sixty miles have consented to appear, enabling the committee to present one of the largest and most complete bills possible. Amongst the entertainers are Marie Loftus, the Poluskis, Miss Agnes Molteno, Donaldson Brothers and Ardell, the Voises, and Miss Harriett Vernon, with others too numerous to mention—in all some 300 artists. In the evening will be held a monster masquerade carnival, at which over £50 in prizes will be distributed. A conspicuous feature of this will be the parade, which will be participated in by over 500 persons, accompanied by five different bands.

IN the action, Wade v. Selby, George Robey sought to set aside a promissory note for £650, and the matter was settled by the defendant, a money-lender, agreeing to accept £50 as the balance due to him and the cancellation of the note.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

ALIDA (Regent's Park).—Stormbeaten, the late Robert Buchanan's adaptation of his own powerful novel of "God and the Man," was produced at the Adelphi on March 14, 1883, Mr. Charles Warner played the part of Christian Christiansen. The piece was also played at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile End, with Mr. Edmund Tearle in Mr. Warner's part.

J. BERTRAM (Wimbledon).—An important revival of Wild Oats, the comedy by O'Keefe, was that presented at the Criterion by Sir (then Mr.) Charles Wyndham on May 29, 1886, when he played the part of the generous, careless adventurer Rover. The popular actor just previously had been christened the "electric-light comedian" by no less an authority on acting than the late Mr. Howard Paul.

ERNEST.—Charles Godfrey (Paul Lacey), the actor-vocalist, died on March 28, 1900, at Brierley Hill, Staffordshire, where he is buried. His wife predeceased him.

G B. JONES (Grimsby).—We regret that we cannot supply you with the information; but a letter to the courteous Mr. W. Lestocq (Mr. Charles Frohman's manager), c/o Hicks Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, London, W.C., will enable you to obtain the information you desire.

FABIEN.—It would be impossible to give you here a resumé of the law on this wide subject. We advise you to get Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law," published at this office, price 3s. 6d. It deals thoroughly with the matter.

H. INGHAM.—Miss Kate Bishop was the original Violet Melrose on the production of Our Boys at the Vaudeville by the James and Thorne management on Jan. 25, 1871. She is now playing Lady Pontefract in A Woman of No Importance at His Majesty's. Her daughter, Miss Marie Lohr, who has made a most successful début at the Haymarket in the title-rôle of My Wife, bids fair to follow in her accomplished mother's footsteps.

F. G. BANKS.—The artistic career of Mr. Martin Harvey—who began his experience on the boards with Sir Henry Irving—even if summarised, would be too long for this column. You will find probably all that you require in "The Green Room Book; or, Who's Who on the Stage," published by T. Sealey Clark and Co., Limited, 1, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

LEONARD GATES.—There is an undoubted market for coon songs. It does not matter about them being orchestrated, as new numbers, when submitted to artists, almost invariably have nothing more than a pianoforte score. An advertisement in our columns is most likely to help you. You might also write and send the coon numbers to Mr. G. H. Elliott, the "chocolate-coloured coon," care of "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C., stating that you have the songs, and offering them for his perusal. It would be best to offer only singing rights. If the numbers should be successful, the publishing would follow as a matter of course, and you would share the rights. As to the waltzes, galops, and other compositions, you might write to Francis, Day, and Hunter, music publishers, 142, Charing Cross-road, W.C.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, & DEATHS.

The charge for inserting in "The Era" an announcement of a Birth or Death or an "In Memoriam" notice, not exceeding twenty-four words, is One Shilling and Sixpence, every additional word One Penny.

The charge for a notice of Marriage, not exceeding forty words, is Two Shillings and Sixpence, every additional word One Penny.

As a guarantee of good faith, the name and address of the sender must accompany each notice.

Rest in peace, my dearest.

WOOD.—May 28, of paralysis, Mrs. G. Murray Wood (Miss Virginia Blackwood), actress.

IN MEMORIAM.

FREDERICKS.—In loving memory of Albert Fredericks, of the Stratford Theatres, who departed this life June 26, 1901. R.I.P.

HARRIS.—In dearest remembrance of Augustus Henry Glossop Harris, who passed away at Folkestone, June 22, 1896, age 44.

LAUCK.—In loving memory of my dear husband, Pierre H. Lauck, American gymnast, of St. Louis, Mo., U.S.A., died June 26, 1899. Ever remembered by his devoted wife, ROSE LAUCK.

MR. JOHN WILLS and Miss Bessie Mackenzie, operatic duettists, will make their first appearance in vaudeville on Monday next at the Hippodrome, Huddersfield. Miss Mackenzie will be remembered in connection with the D'Oyly Carte Principal Répertoire Opera Co., in which she played, while under Mrs. Carte's management, nineteen parts, including the prima-donna rôles. Miss Mackenzie also interpreted the rôles of Madamoiselle Herpin and Madame du Terterre in The Little Michus, under Mr. George Dance's management. Mr. John Wills has been for many years with Mrs. Carte, and has appeared with success for Mr. Fred Billington. The business arrangements of the turn are in the hands of Messrs. G. and F. Peel.

MR. WILL LENNOX, who has just produced The Burglar's Extra Turn so successfully, relates an amusing experience which happened to him one night while he was working the West London. In his character of the burglar he naturally donned suitable clothes, and to save changing at the theatre he wore these under a light overcoat. On the occasion in question he went off to visit some friends when he left the theatre. These friends occupied a ground floor flat in a quiet and select district. Lennox duly rang the bell, and knocked at the door, but could get no answer.

NEVER fastening their windows in the daytime, his friends obtained entrance in that way when they had forgotten to take a key, so "the burglar" adopted the same device, and taking off his overcoat began to raise gently one of the windows. Having succeeded so far, he climbed on to the sill, and was about to enter, when he felt himself roughly seized, and a deep voice said, "So, my lad, we've got you at last. Come out of it!" Lennox was horrified to see a burly constable glaring at him, and hastened to offer an explanation, but his attire did not assist matters, and the officer insisted upon taking him to the station. On the road, however, one of the "burglar's" friends happened to come towards them, but it took a long time and a big tip to satisfy the policeman that he had not made an error.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, JUNE 22, 1907.

MR. ASKWITH'S AWARD.

The work done by The Era in placing at the service of the profession the full text of the Arbitrator's Award in the matter of the music-hall managers and the variety profession four days before it appeared in any other paper has met with genuine and general appreciation; and we reprint it this week, with the addition of the very interesting "interim awards" which were given in the spring of this year. Applications for copies of the full text were numerous last week; and congratulations have reached us on all sides, including a most gracious letter from the Arbitrator himself.

We do not propose to deal seriatim with the details of the award. We present our readers with the full text, and they are quite capable of examining it and analysing it for themselves. As they will see by letters which we print on another page, prominent managers like Mr. HENRY TOZER and Mr. OSWALD STOLL have expressed themselves as satisfied with the result; and that the artists' reception should be equally cordial is proved by the dicta of such representative men as Mr. JOE O'GORMAN, Mr. WAL PINK, and Mr. ALBERT VOYCE. Indeed, the Award is full of important concessions to the artists, among which we need only mention the clauses which ordain that any extension, prolongation, or renewal of an engagement will not be subject to the terms and conditions embraced by the original contract, but to the terms and conditions of the Award; that any music-hall which decides to add to the present number of its matinées will be called upon to pay for each and every additional matinée; that the manager must notify each artist as to his or her "times" on or before Friday in the week previous to opening, and no manager may vary those "times" after the said Friday, except by mutual arrangement; that all matinées are to be paid for at the rate of one-seventh in all one-show-a-night houses, and at one-twelfth in all two-shows-a-night houses; that no manager will be allowed to bar an artist after the expiration of an engagement for more than two weeks; and that every artist working at "turn" money, and whose salary for working two halls, concurrently, is less than £40 per week, will not be barred more than one mile in the West End, and not for a longer period than four months. On the very difficult "barring question" it was humanly impossible to find a decision which would not be open to criticism; but we hope that Mr. ASKWITH'S Award on this point will be found, if loyally construed and carried out, practical and workable.

An award in arbitration is not an Act of Parliament, and can never have the force of law. Its power lies entirely in the loyal observance of its clauses by the parties concerned. It must be remembered that this arbitration was not adopted until thousands of pounds had been spent in the attempt to settle matters by actual warfare. The recourse to arbitration was an acknowledgment by both sides that the combat had been carried on long enough, and that some compromise was demanded by both sides as the only solution of the difficulty. It would be easy enough to pick holes in the award, to point out difficulties that may arise and complications that may ensue. But if it is in this spirit that the patient and thoughtful labours of Mr. ASKWITH are to be received; if, now that the bitter feelings which were naturally excited during the recent struggle have subsided, they are to be renewed, we may well ask ourselves "Why was the resort made to arbitration?" No award, however ably and carefully prepared, can possibly satisfy both parties in a dispute. But, by the very fact of resorting to arbitration, the combatants acknowledge that they have failed to settle the points at issue by actual fighting. Either a war must be carried on till, as BISMARCK put it, one of the two combatants is "bled to the white"; or some form of compromise must be adopted. No one will deny that Mr. ASKWITH has done his work thoroughly. He is absolutely disinterested personally in the matter; and he has examined over one hundred witnesses at twenty-three formal sittings. The mere labour of digesting the technical information thus obtained must have been great. It is hardly possible that the Award should not contain points for carping criticism. But we hold those the worst enemies of the variety profession as a whole who, now that there seems to be every prospect of a period at least of peace, stir up the ill-feeling which has happily subsided, and, either indiscreetly or for merely interested motives, endeavour to create dissatisfaction and sow dissension between manager and artist. Let us, at any rate, give the Award a chance. Let us give it a trial before we condemn it. Instead of suggesting difficulties in its working, let us try to facilitate its operation. As we have said, the Award is not law, nor will it be illegal to modify any details of the most useful form of contract which it supplies to managers and artists. The Award is simply a basis of agreement, a fundamental Charter, an attempt to supply a compromise between the lately contending parties in the recent great and costly strike. When the matter was placed in Mr. ASKWITH'S hands, it was with the obvious assumption that his decision would be loyally accepted. That this spirit will prevail with the vast number of members of the profession may be inferred from the tone of the meeting at the Camberwell Empire on Sunday evening, when a vote of thanks to the Arbitrator was passed with acclamation.

"A LITTLE TYRANT."

Sketch, in One Scene, by Lewis Gilbert,
Produced at the Middlesex Music Hall on Monday, June 17.

Lord Hartbourne .....MR. LEWIS GILBERT
Eric .....MISS FLORRIE GREEN
Fairy .....MISS DOLLY SWIFT
Harris .....MR. E. P. DURHAM

A simple story, filled with wholesome sentiment, and not without an element of humour, is furnished in the new sketch, which is delighting the exacting audiences at the Middlesex this week. Little Eric, the adopted son and heir of Lord Hartbourne, exercises a gentle yet firm influence over his indulgent foster-parent, who is ready to grant his every request. Through the drawing-room window the boy hears a little girl singing in the street, and, moved by her indigent appearance, he orders the footman to bring her in and give her food. Lord Hartbourne is indignant at Eric admitting such a disreputable-looking child into his house, but Eric pleads so effectually that his lordship relents. The girl tells a pitiable tale of a mother dying of starvation in a garret, and, casting her eyes on a picture of a young lady which ornaments the mantelshelf, she recognises in it the portrait of her parent. Lord Hartbourne realises that the child is the offspring of his own daughter, whom years before he had turned from his house on account of her marrying beneath her, and determines to restore her to her parental home.

The success which the little play secured was due, in an important measure, to Miss Florrie Green, who acted the part of the boy with delicacy and charm. She quite captivated the hearts of the Middlesex audience, who listened with infinite relish to the speeches rendered with childish sagacity by the lad. Mr. Lewis Gilbert made a stately and dignified Earl, and acted impressively, forming an effective contrast to the boyish impulsiveness of Eric. The dignified footman of Mr. E. P. Durham was also a useful performance. The sketch, which comes at an early period of the evening, was loudly applauded.

SKETCHES AT THE LONDON PAVILION.

"THE PEACEMAKER."

Wife .....MISS MARIAN MATHEY
Maid .....MISS BEATRICE WEBB
Uncle .....MR. ALFRED WELLESLEY
Husband .....MR. W. T. ELLWANGER

A genuine success is being scored at the favourite variety house in Piccadilly-circus by this capitally conceived and amusing sketch, cleverly played by a company, in which the author, Mr. W. T. Ellwanger has a part. Uncles in farces are almost invariably associated with droll situations, often compromising to their dignity, but more often eloquent of their kindliness of heart. Sometimes they play the tyrant, but generally they are burdened with giving advice to all and sundry. The uncle in Mr. Ellwanger's trifle obtains his title by his well-meaning efforts to restore harmony between a husband and wife who have just returned from a motor ride, accompanied by uncle. This praiseworthy old soul, on the departure of the wife, turns up, and taking in the situation, exhorts his nephew (the husband) never to argue with a woman. Man, superior man, only lowers his status when he does so. When the husband has gone to the club our avuncular Solon offers precisely similar counsel to the wife, and between whiles indulges in fits, from which he recovers by the aid of brandy. There is room for doubt on this point, however, as again does his ta'e to the wife concerning his ailment differ from that told to the husband. After a series of droll situations the young couple become reconciled "on their own," and uncle consoles himself with copious doses from the brandy bottle. Mr. Alfred Wellesley, who reminds us occasionally of the late W. J. Hill and Stewart Dawson, presents an entirely clever and consistent study of the uncle, obtaining his effects by quiet and unforced drollery. Mr. W. T. Ellwanger does all that is necessary for the part of the husband; and as the wife Miss Marian Mathey manages to score. Miss Beatrice Webb does useful work as the maid.

A pretty little novelty is that entitled The Maid and the Moon, ingeniously and elaborately mounted by Mr. Frank Glenister, who has done justice in his scenery and effects to a fanciful idea. In a woodland glade sings a maid in the moonlight. The inconstant planet has more fascination for her apparently than for the Veronese maiden Juliet; and when a real face appears the serenader wonders what will happen. By an arrangement that argues considerable ingenuity, the moon glides from the sky-line towards earth, increasing in size as it descends until, on reaching the ground, it becomes a huge luminous orb, from which the boy steps to have a duet with the maid. The boy after warning the maid of the watching propensities of the queen of night, enters his moon again, and it sails upwards, diminishing in size as it goes. The effect is watched with much interest, and is charming. The trifle is prettily played by the Misses Hopkins.

Jack and Evelyn are responsible for much laughter in their comedy act, "Come into the Office"—an amusing gag which invariably quickens mirth. Mr. Jack must, however, be careful about his meat-juice wheezes: they are perfectly proper, of course, but scarcely judicious. Miss José Collins scores a success with her pretty song, "My Tiny Firefly"; Miss Kitty Gordon sings a new butterfly song in a dress of rare beauty; and Malcolm Scott appears with success as "Nell Gwynne," who certainly set the fashion of mothering the aristocracy. Mr. George Mozart's clarionet playing in "The Mudlark Village Band" is the most comical thing we have heard for some time. To the bassoon belongs the traditional honour of being the "comedian" of the orchestra: Mr. Mozart has changed all that; for after hearing him one is disposed to say that the clarionet now takes pride of place as a laughter-maker; but, then, it must be in the hands of a comedian! Miss Mabel Sinclair, the lady ventriloquist, has returned to this house after a most successful tour in America. The experience gained on the other side has been of considerable advantage to this clever girl, whose performance is as skilful in its technique as it is ingenious in its conception. Mr. Albert Whelan, the artistic mimic; Mr. Chris Richards, the eccentric dancer; Mr. T. E. Dunville, with his burlesque policeman song; Mr. Gilbert Girard, animal imitator; the Fitzroys, Miss Alice Lawton, the Harmony Four, Mr. Harry Morgan, and Major Newell are among other attractions.

CHELSEA PALACE.

The high level of excellence always associated with Mr. Gros' cosy hall at Chelsea is well maintained in the current bill, which has been delighting crowded and appreciative audiences. Mr. T. E. Dunville has a large following in the citadel, and his admirers scrutinise each action closely, and hang upon every word. The result is found in roars of laughter, devoted in equal proportion to his song, "That's extra," and to his diverting impersonation of a policeman. Mr. Tom Costello is in the current programme, but on the night of our visit his place was taken by Mr. Lloyd Morgan, a comedian and vocalist with a breezy style. He found immediate favour with his first song, but his popularity was greatly increased by his second effusion, which may be described as "capital," seeing that it dealt with the initial letters of proper nouns. The song takes a topical turn, and in the last verse felicitous reference was made to Mr. Norman Berlin, the manager, to Mr. Angelo Asher and his orchestra, and to all present. It is seldom that a deputy takes such instant possession of the goodwill of an audience as did Mr. Morgan.

Mystification as well as mirth is aroused by Lieut. Albini in his illusion, The Sailor and His Lass, in which a new version of the famous box trick is submitted. An attractive lady is shut up in a chest, which is tightly corded and placed behind a curtain. An equally comely midshipman stands by the side of the box, the curtain is drawn, and in less time than it takes to tell, the middy and the maid are found to have changed places. Lieut. Albini tempers his illusions with many humorous comments, and secures a prominent place in popular regard. Miss Leah Odell exercises a fine voice in her song-scena, "Memories," which introduces selections from famous melodies, "Killarney" and "The dear little Shamrock of Ireland" figuring to advantage in her répertoire. Eccentricities of an excruciating character are supplied by the Pollos, whose tumbling feats include many awkward falls. The animated armchair is also very funny, and their burlesque levitation comes as a genuine surprise to many.

The xylophone is put to admirable use by the Vernon Troupe, who make Suppé's "Light Cavalry" sound particularly inspiriting on their giant instruments. Popular choruses are also given by the quintet, who work energetically and secure enthusiastic plaudits. Old friends are found in Brown and Le Clerq, who enable us to renew acquaintance with the time-worn sketch Black Justice. Little alteration seems to have been made in the comic concoction, yet its effect is as hilarious as ever. Big Ben Brown as the Judge and Little Le Clerq as the Policeman never fail in their efforts to arouse laughter, and the dance indulged in by two fair prisoners to the strains of a barrel-organ proves very exhilarating. Gladys Warren, comedienne and dancer, and Kit Keene, coloured comedian, are well received, and the programme is concluded by the tinted pictures on Jeapes' Animated Graphic, some impressive views being presented. Mr. Edward Swanborough, though much better, has not yet recovered from his long illness, and the management of the hall is undertaken in a thorough way by Mr. J. Norman Berlin, who declares that work is the only thing he's fit for, but proves, nevertheless, an engaging companion.

THE V.A.F. ADJOURNED MEETING.

The adjourned general meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation was resumed on Sunday at the Camberwell Empire. Mr. Joe O'Gorman, who took the chair, contended that the members of the Federation had every reason to be proud of the Award. The learned Arbitrator had a very difficult task, especially when it came to the barring clause, upon which an enormous amount of time was spent, and it had every possible attention. Some proprietors contend that their business is built up on the Barring clause, and if they (the artists) had not got everything they asked for, they had certainly got a great deal more than he ever thought they would get. Mr. O'Gorman announced that they had invited Mr. Doughty, the counsel who had presented their case before the Arbitrator, to come there, and he would only be too pleased to put any clauses of a technical nature plainly before them.

MR. MONTE BAYLY, the new secretary of the Federation, then read the Award. This was very fully discussed, and innumerable questions were asked and answered, Mr. O'Gorman, Mr. Wal Pink, and Mr. Doughty giving every information on technical points, especially those relating to the personnel of troupes, and the option and barring clauses, with the "compound exclusive contract." A unanimous vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Askwith, and a similar honour was reserved for Messrs. Joe O'Gorman, Wal Pink, W. H. Clemart, and Doughty for the defence put up by them on behalf of the artists, all these gentlemen returning thanks.

The meeting then paid attention to the agenda.

MR. CLEMART moved:—"That the Chairman and Vice-Chairman of the V.A.F. be elected annually by the whole of the Committee of the Federation then in the United Kingdom voting by ballot."

This being a correction of the rule in the book, it was proposed by MR. CLEMART, seconded by MR. HAST, that the old rule be rescinded. Carried.

The new rule, seconded by LEO TELL, carried.

Proposed by MR. CLEMART, that "Immediately following the declaration of the poll, the Secretary shall write to every member of the Committee asking for nominations for the above positions."

MR CLEMART: That is when the Committee has been elected the Secretary shall write to each member and ask who he wishes to nominate for the post.

Seconded by JAMES HOWARD. Carried.

Proposed by MR. CLEMART: "That in the event of any member of the Committee being suspended from the Federation for any period whatever, his place on the Committee shall be considered vacant, and shall be filled by the next on the list of defeated candidates."

Seconded by MR. MAYVILLE. Carried.

Proposed by MR. CLEMART: "That all retiring officers and members of the Committee shall be considered renominated for election."

Seconded by HARRY DELAVINE. Carried.

MR. CLEMART, in proposing "That the collection of the death levy in its present form be done away with," said he would move that at a date to be fixed by the Committee the present system be done away with, and that they should have a weekly stamp of 7d.

MR. O'GORMAN quite agreed with Mr. Clemart that it would be better to have a specific sum stated, but personally was against the abolition of the 6d. stamp, because it was most popular. He suggested the continuance of the 6d. stamp, but at the beginning of each of the twelve calendar months they should be liable for a 6d. death levy stamp

MR. SMYTHSON proposed £75 as a fixed sum, and this proposition was carried by 94 to 59.

"THE FISHER-GIRL,"

A Musical Comedy-Drama, written by Mr. Charles Fisher, Lyrics by Mr. Oswald Brand, Music by Mr. W. T. Gliddon, produced at the Paragon on Monday, June 17.

Vanderdecken .....MR. J. M. JONES
Baron von Finklestein ..MR. EDWARD KIPLING
Mynheer Jan Stofel ....MR. JERROLD MANVILLE
Heindrick .....MR. JOHN DONALD
Kasper .....MR. ARTHUR RODNEY
Mme. Jan Stofel .....MISS MAUDE SHELTON
Berta .....MISS MAY GLENN

The scene of this musical comedy-drama is laid in a Dutch village. Vanderdecken, the accursed mariner, known as "The Flying Dutchman," is forced once in seven years to land and perform some good deed. He arrives at the village of Vanderkoopen after a lapse of twenty-one years, expecting to find his wife and daughter alive. The wife died almost immediately after he sailed, and the daughter, Berta, known as "The Fisher-Girl," was adopted by Mynheer Jan Stofel and brought up as his child. Mme. Jan Stofel, an ambitious scheming woman, wants to marry her to a wealthy English Baron, with more money than brains. But she is in love with a sailor, Heindrick. Vanderdecken recognises in "The Fisher-Girl" his long sought for daughter, and joins the lovers' hands. When Heindrick asks Mynheer Jan for his consent to the marriage, he is surprised to learn that Jan is not Berta's father. The sketch concludes with a vision of Captain Vanderdecken, still under his curse to sail on for ever.

Mr. Edward Kipling as Baron Von Finklestein is very amusing, and his song "The bold, bad man" is excellently rendered. Mr. Jerrold Manville and Miss Maude Shelton play well as the Stofels; Miss May Glenn is a delightful representative of Berta, and does all that was necessary with the part, both vocally and dramatically; and Mr. John Donald as Heindrick is excellent. The production is effective; and Miss Beatrice Harold's troupe of lady dancers and a chorus of twenty greatly assist the success. The sketch is prettily mounted and is well received. Mr. Albert Bartlett ably conducts.

"THE UNDERSTUDY."

A New Musical Interlude, produced at the Empire, Camberwell, by Mr. Tom Craven, on Monday, June 17.

The Understudy .....MR. TOM CRAVEN
The Dresser .....MR. WILL HINDSON

In a very pretty scene, representing the principals' dressing-room at the "Buffoonery" Theatre we find Chiks, the dresser, at the telephone receiving a message that the star actor cannot appear owing to the breakdown of his motor-car. His understudy comes in, eager to grasp the chance of his life, but is distracted at not being able to get the part "word perfect"; and to strengthen his memory resorts to whiskey. By the advice of the dresser, he resolves to have a dress rehearsal of the part. The first character delineated is that of a decayed vocal actor, whose attempt to sing about "The things we see on the stage" ends in failure. Chiks encourages the understudy to try the part of the serio; and with a quick change, a serio of the old school, assisted by the resourceful Chiks, burlesques a topical ditty, "Twinkling Stars." This is followed by a burlesque coon song by an American tramp, "No one dares to sing such rot as me." Another telephone message brings the news that the principal has engaged another car, and is on his way to the theatre to take up his part. The understudy is reluctant to give up the "chance of his life," and Chiks has to summon the call-boy to assist him in disrobing the disappointed aspirant to theatrical honours. Mr. Tom Craven as the understudy is to be very warmly commended for his clever quick changes and for his very adroit and amusing embodiment of the trio of characters. He scores a decided success, and is warmly applauded. As Chiks, Mr. Will Hindson has little to do, but does it remarkably well.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring Gardens, under the presidency of Mr. Percy Harris (chairman).

"THE UNWRITTEN LAW."

The theatres and Music Halls Committee reported as follows:—"Our attention having been drawn to a sketch, entitled The Unwritten Law, which was recently produced at certain music halls in London, we called for a report on the subject. The sketch is obviously based on a criminal case tried a short time ago in America, and in our opinion is open to grave objection. We have therefore caused a letter to be sent to the licensees of the various music halls in London, informing them of our opinion of the sketch, and requesting that if they have made any arrangements for its production they will be good enough to countermand such arrangements."

The report was received without discussion.

THE ALHAMBRA.

The Committee, having considered a drawing submitted by Mr. W. M. Brutton, showing a proposal to widen the exit at the foot of the gallery staircase at the Alhambra, recommended that he be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing submitted by him, but that his attention be drawn to the necessity for the works shown on the drawing being carried out in accordance with the provisions of the London Building Act, 1894.

Agreed to.

THE EMPIRE.

The Committee recommended that the application of Mr. H. J. Hitchins for the transfer to himself of the licence for music and dancing for the Empire Theatre of Varieties be granted; that the motion of the transfer be endorsed on the licence, and that the seal of the Council be affixed to such endorsement.

Approved.

DALY'S THEATRE.

The Committee also approved of a drawing submitted by Mr. J. Sinnett, showing the proposed alterations to the resistance chambers at Daly's Theatre, and drawings submitted by Mr. H. Hunt of the switchboard and regulator which it is proposed to fix at the premises, provided that the regulations of the Council are complied with in all matters of detail.

AGRICULTURAL HALL.

The Committee reported that they had considered drawings submitted by Mr. J. Jeffery, showing a proposed alteration to the refreshment bar on the north side of the galleries at the Royal Agricultural Hall; an extension of the minor hall which it is proposed to erect on a site in Swanley-street, and the arrangements in connection with the Palestine Exhibition; and they recommended that Mr. Jeffery be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawings submitted provided that certain stated conditions be complied with.

Agreed to.

EARL'S COURT.

The drawings submitted by Mr. A. O. Collard showing the arrangements in connection with certain side shows in portions of "Elysia" at the Balkan States Exhibition, Earl's Court, the open air stage and seating, &c., were also approved.

THE TERRIERS' OUTING.

The Terriers and their friends, numbering about sixty, had their annual river outing on Sunday last. The party included president Jesse Sparrow, trustee S. N. Salter, solicitor G. P. R. Burgess, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Box, Leonard Wm. Bassett, M. McDowall, Mrs. F. Neiman, Kloof and Ramsey, B. Whiteling, Miss Peggy Fame, Theo. Dunkley, Edwin Brett and Emmeline Orford, J. Elmo, R. Cass, E. Rutland, H. Conlin, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hutt, Mr. and Mrs. H. Jeapes, H. Krott, Miss Ada Blanche, Mr. and Mrs. V. Cowper, Mr. J. A. Ham, Mrs. Harry Lester, Mr. and Mrs. F. Postlethwaite, Mr. and Mrs. H. Gage, J. C. Moore, B. Woodger, Charles Cornish, Mr. Munden, Harry Lester (secretary), &c.

Journeying down from Waterloo by the 9.10 a.m. train the party arrived at Hampton Court at 10. Photographs were taken on board the La Burgoine, and the merry party set sail on their journey to "old Windsor," lunch being served en route. On arrival, sports were held with the following results:—100yds. running handicap (for Terriers only), won by Jack Elmo (prize, a silver tankard, presented by G. P. R. Burgess); second, Harry Conlin (prize, silver cigarette case, presented by Mark Ringham). 30yds. ladies' race, running backwards, won by Mrs. Kloof (prize, an American satchel and purse, presented by S. N. Salter). 50yds. ladies' race, won by Peggy Fame (prize, silver mounted purse, presented by Douglas White). 50yds. needle and cotton race, won by Miss Orford and E. Rutland (prizes, lady's parasol and gentleman's silver-mounted walking-stick, presented by Bob Hutt). 30yds. egg-and-spoon race, won by Mrs. Hutt (prize, silver bracelet, presented by Harry Wright). Half-mile walking race, won by Billy Kloof (prize, carriage clock, presented by Edwin Brett); second, Bob Hutt (prize, pair German hollow ground razors, in oak case, presented by Harry Lester). Hat-trimming competition, won by Ted E. Box (prize, magnificent set of carvers, in case, presented by Jesse Sparrow); second, G. P. R. Burgess (prize, fancy vest, to order, presented by George Nyman).

After about two hours' ashore the return journey was made, tea being served on board. Hampton Court was reached at 8.30, the train departing 9.10, arriving Waterloo at 10, after a most enjoyable day. The musical portion of the programme was due to J. C. Moore, B. Hutt, H. Conlin, T. E. Box, Kloof and Ramsey, Mr. H. Gage, Miss Ada Blanché, Mrs. F. Postlethwaite, and others. The refreshments were well looked after by C. Cornish and B. Woodger, the catering being in the hands of the proprietors of the Dover Castle Hotel. Harry Lester (secretary) was again congratulated on the excellent arrangements made. President Jesse Sparrow presented the prizes to the successful competitors in his usual happy style. Telegrams of good wishes from Hastings came from Jimmy Wood, Tom Branson, and Walter Norman.

THE yarns of Knowles are vastly amusing Palace audiences. A man in Cape Town, who had been entertained by Knowles in London on several occasions, met him in the street, extended a most effusive greeting, and invited him to lunch. "We shall have to go to the club," he said. "I should like to take you home, but the fact is my wife can't stand theatrical people." "That is a pity," replied the actor. "I should like to go to the club, but the fact is my wife can't stand clubs." Another tale refers to an archbishop, who, going out to South Africa, made it a practice to walk the deck constantly. His face would break out into a smile, and then the reverend dignitary would make a bow. After that he stopped, shook his head, and frowned. The passengers, much puzzled by this, asked the captain the meaning of his actions. "Well," said the skipper, "I have come to the conclusion that he is always asking himself to have a drink and constantly refusing it."

MESSRS. ROSEN AND BLISS, the well-known variety agents, have removed to more commodious offices, at 12 and 13, Henrietta-street, Covent Garden, W.C.

MISS VI ADELE, the daughter of Mr. Bob Hutt, has made her first appearance in the provinces, where she has achieved a great success. She will make her début in town shortly.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

We have to thank our friends, our journalistic contemporaries, and our legion of professional readers for their hearty congratulations on the fact that The Era was the first newspaper to print the full text of the Award. By the loyal help of our printers we were able to insert the Award as an inset, and thus place it in the hands of the profession at breakfast-time on Saturday morning.

Miss Marie Lloyd made her first appearance in Paris on Sunday night before a large and enthusiastic audience at the pretty little Marigny Theatre, in the Champs Elysées. The special playbill for the Grand Prix, which marks the last week of the season, included our Marie and La Belle Otero.

The popular little Englishwoman received sixty telegrams from London friends wishing her good luck, and she immediately struck the "entente" chord with the burlesque Spanish señorita, who sings "Tiddley-om-pom." This lively lilt brought down the house. Marie is delighted with Paris and would like to live there; but London need not be alarmed. Her English engagements run right up to the end of 1909, with one tour in America.

Princess Henry of Battenberg and family paid a visit to the London Hippodrome on Wednesday afternoon to witness the performance of the Australian axemen, Jackson and M'Laren. Her Royal Highness, at the close of the performance, expressed great satisfaction at having seen such a novel exhibition.

Mme. Yvette Guilbert will start on July 1 at the Palace Theatre her last engagement at the variety theatres in any part of the world. At the conclusion of her stay at the Shaftesbury-avenue house the famous chanteuse has arranged to tour the United States in the plays in which she recently achieved so great a success in Brussels, and will thenceforth devote herself entirely to the legitimate stage.

At a meeting of the Theatres Committee of the London County Council held to consider the question of living statuary exhibitions at the halls, it was decided to recommend the Council to take no action in the matter. The decision was only arrived at after strenuous opposition from several members of the committee, but the majority in favour of the decision was a large one. There is no doubt that the committee have considered the question very thoroughly. In addition to holding several meetings last week, the members witnessed a private performance of Seldoms' Venus, by the invitation of the management of the London Pavilion.

The directors of the Surrey have decided to set apart Wednesday next for two performances (at 6.30 and 9.15 p.m.) in aid of the funds of certain hospitals and charitable institutions in the neighbourhood. The entire proceeds from admission and the sale of flowers, &c., will be handed over to the charities. The following have kindly given their patronage and support:—The Mayor of Southwark, Lord Llangattock, His Majesty's Paymaster-General, Mr. R. K. Causton, M.P., Mr. A. Wilson, L.C.C., and others.

On behalf of the Executive Committee of the Variety Artists' Federation, Mr. Charles Coborn, representing the sub-committee in charge of the grand concert in the Concert Hall of the Crystal Palace on Thursday next, the 27th instant (Federation Day), desires to thank Mme. Esther Palliser, Miss Evie Greene, Signor Cemikoff, and the many ladies and gentlemen who have so generously promised their kind help on that occasion, and to say that times and particulars will be communicated to them in due course. He further desires to ask for more volunteers, especially for the evening performance, and to say that there is every prospect of a magnificent concert as part of the proceedings of that eventful day.

The musical sketch, by Godfrey Turner and Arthur Wimperis, entitled The Constable and the Pictures, is coming to the Tivoli on Monday. The scene is laid in a picture gallery, and Miss Agnes Fraser, as one of the pictures comes to life, puzzles very generally the up-to-date policeman, Mr. Morand. Mr. W. S. Gilbert propounded a similar idea in his clever little piece, Ages Ago, and elaborated it in the unsuccessful Ruddigore. The score is by Miss Marjorie Slaughter, daughter of Mr. Walter Slaughter.

An application was made before Mr. Justice Bucknill in the Probate and Divorce Division on Monday in reference to the estate of the late Mr. Geo. Adney Payne. Mr. Willis said that the widow of the deceased gentleman, Mrs. Clara Agnes Payne, had entered a caveat against the last will being admitted to probate. Therefore the executors, Mr. Walter Payne and Mr. Walter Gibbons, who were the plaintiffs, asked for the appointment of a receiver, pendente lite, to manage the affairs of the estate. The applicant, Mr. Walter Payne, a son of the deceased and a barrister, was also heir-at-law, and an executor under the last will of May 19, 1904, and an executor under an earlier will of Oct. 13, 1899, therefore he administered the estate whatever the result of the action now pending.

The deceased gentleman was largely interested in music hall, dancing, and liquor licences; he had a flat in Bedford Court-mansions, and a freehold house at Herne Bay, and a number of shares in the Empress Theatre of Varieties Company. All these matters required managing, and with regard to the Empress Company a meeting was to be held on Monday next, and it was necessary for some representative to be there to safeguard the interests held by the deceased, whose estate was worth about £50,000. Mr. Walter Payne was willing to act as administrator without remuneration. Mr. Willock, for the widow, said that his client left the matter entirely in the hands of the Court. His lordship appointed Mr. Walter Payne administrator pendente lite, with the usual security.

The Hippodrome "telepathist," Carlo Grossi, is a Milanese, and he claims to have started on his present career as a result of discovering that he could anticipate mentally the visits of his friends. England seems to have been the last country on his list, for he has appeared in Asia, America, Africa, and Australia, and has investigated murder mysteries in all these continents. His show is not only interesting, but hair-raising in more senses than one. The Dutch skating carnival at the Hippodrome is now fixed for the 24th.

Miss Marie Blythe is making a big success with two new numbers by Alfred Glover, "An old top floor" and "Keepsakes." She opens in London for one month on August Bank Holiday.

The many friends of the popular ventriloquist, Mr. Fred W. Millis, will be glad to learn that he has now recovered sufficiently to return to his home, Wattle Bloom, Teddington, where he will be delighted to see or hear from friends. The tedium of his stay in the Gordon Hospital, where he was so patiently and skilfully nursed back to health, was much relieved by the frequent visits of Little Tich, who, with his usual kindly forethought, drove the convalescent from the Vauxhall Bridge-road to his home at Teddington in his own motor. Mr. Millis was thus spared the inevitable jarring of a journey taken in any ordinary vehicle.

Mr. Walter de Frece, owing to his many connections with theatrical ventures, has resigned his position in the Liverpool Theatre of Varieties, Ltd., which controls the Tivoli, Paddington Palace, and Park Palace in the city on the Mersey. He, however, retains his shares.

The controlling interest in the company which directs the Grand, Nottingham, has been acquired by Moss's Empires, Ltd. It is understood that the house, at least for the present, will continue to be a drama theatre.

Mr. Kay Draco, from the Richmond Theatre, has become manager of the Empire, Coventry, and Mr. Lennox Barry has transferred his services from that house to the Hippodrome in the same town.

Mr. Frank Macnaghten (of the Macnaghten Vaudeville Circuit) has acquired the King's Theatre, Cardiff, on a twenty-one years' lease, with option of purchase, and it will be opened on August Bank Holiday as a music hall. About £4,000 is to be spent on the renovation of the theatre, and Mr. Blandon Blake has made arrangements for a speedy completion of the work, which has been let to local contractors.

Mr. Harry Esden, the late popular manager of the Empire, Newcastle-on-Tyne, who is leaving to take up the position of resident-manager at the New Empire, Sunderland, was presented by a few friends on Saturday afternoon, at the close of the matinée at the former house, with a gold watch. Mr. John Pellow, who was the first manager of the Empire, occupied the chair, and explained the object of the presentation. Mr. Richard Thornton, resident-director, made the presentation, to which Mr. Esden feelingly responded.

With reference to the New Empire, at Sunderland, which would be opened on July 1, he said it would be one of the largest and finest entertainment houses in the kingdom, and he was proud to hold the position of manager of such a magnificent building. He concluded by wishing success to the new manager of the Newcastle Empire, Mr. W. Parham Wells, who, in a few words, reciprocated the wish. Among those present were Messrs. R. Thornton, Sidney Stone, John Pellow, W. Parham Wells, F. Phillips, Geo. Robson, J. Shaw, F. Anderson, John Bell, and others.

The Award has cleared the air, and artists are making up leeway by booking dates far ahead. Miss Vesta Tilley has signed with Moss' Empires for tours up to and including 1911 for all houses where she has been in the habit of appearing in the past.

Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun., son of the lessee of the Lyric Theatre, Liverpool, has been appointed acting-manager in the place of Mr. Coles, who was compelled to resign owing to bad health.

Last Friday night (14th), at the Empire Palace Theatre, South Shields, a complimentary benefit was accorded to Mr. C. P. Loller, the genial musical-director, who, after holding the position for upwards of seven years, is leaving, having been promoted to a similar position at the New Empire Theatre, Sunderland. Mr. Loller, who is an exceptionally fine violinist, contributed a selection of Scotch melodies. Extra turns were given, and the affair was a great success.

A billiard handicap, held at the Belle Vue Hotel, Swansea, by the gentleman artists appearing at the Empire last week resulted in some exciting contests. Mr. Harry Roxbury, of The Prince of Monte Carlo company, proved the victor, and was duly rewarded with first prize, which was presented by the proprietor of the hotel, and took the shape of a silver sovereign-purse. It bore the inscription, "Belle Vue, Swansea, 1907, Harry Roxbury."

At the Palace, Belfast, this week two old friends are in the same programme, both disciples of Valentine Vox, viz., Fred Neiman and Charlie Colby, whose acts are going exceedingly well. Both ventriloquists belong to the same American order—the Elks, and other societies, with one exception, Mr. Colby being a Water Rat and Fred Neiman a Terrier. Neiman's Minstrels complain that Colby's darkie figure has "pinched" some of their burnt cork, so they gave him a black eye.

At the Hippodrome, Eastbourne, on Monday, a handsome hanging-lamp was presented to Mr. Dick Noakes, a much-respected member of the staff, by his colleagues, on the occasion of his marriage. The presentation was made by Mr. Sidney W. Winder (managing-director), who personally endowed the happy pair with a silver teapot.

The business of the Pavilion, Newcastle-on-Tyne, of which the managing-director is Mr. Thomas Barrasford, has steadily improved, and the net profit earned for the twelve months ended May 31 last, after providing for interest on mortgage and on debentures, amounts to £4811. In December last an interim dividend of 2½ per cent. (less income tax) was paid for the half-year ended November 30, 1906; the directors now recommend the payment of a further dividend of 7½ per cent. (less income tax) for the half-year ended May 31, 1907, making 10 per cent. for the year. It seems a fortuitous circumstance for this popular establishment that two of its directors—Mr. Hugh Astley and Mr. Ilfort Ibbetson—are on the board of the London Pavilion.

Mme. Natalia, the celebrated contralto and pianiste, has just concluded at Bexhill a forty-four weeks' continuous tour of England. She has recently been singing McConnell Wood's latest success, "Lead thou me on" to enthusiastic audiences at the Empress, Brixton, and the Palace, Greenwich. She is singing at the Empress, Brixton, anniversary on Friday night, when she will introduce for the first time to the London public "Where roses gleam," by Angelo Mascheroni.

The public examination was concluded in the London Bankruptcy Court on Thursday, the 13th, of S. T. T. James, manager, of Warwick-court, Gray's Inn. Debtor stated that of his unsecured liabilities of £4,878 £2,050 had arisen in connection with an agreement entered into by him on behalf of a company to acquire a lease of the King's Theatre, Cardiff, at a rental of £800 a year; also for the supply of wines, &c., for the same. He had returned the liability as a contingent one. His failure arose from the depreciation of London house property.

The Haverleys, the popular American song illustrators, start again on Sunday on a seventeen weeks' tour of the provinces.

Mr. H. C. Arnold, the lessee of the Lyric Theatre, Liverpool, a popular Mason, was endowed recently with Provincial Grand Lodge honours at a session held at Blackpool.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Queen's College, Belfast, Athletic Field Fête on the 17th, it was resolved that a letter of sympathy be sent to the father of the girl who was killed at the Hippodrome performance on the 14th in aid of the fête, together with the following vote of condolence:—"That the Executive Committee of the Athletic Field Fête convey to Herr Morgenroth and family its deepest sympathy with them in the terrible loss they have sustained in the death of Fräulein Morgenroth during a special matinée at the Royal Hippodrome on behalf of the funds of the fête." It was also agreed that the proceeds of the matinée should be placed at Herr Morgenroth's disposal.

The list of variety artists who are to appear at the Crystal Palace on Thursday next, Federation Day, has become so long that it is impossible to mention all who are going to take part. In the theatre there will be continuous performances during the day and evening, and visitors will have the pleasure of meeting, among a host of other, Marie Lloyd, Little Tich, Alec Hurley, Joe Elvin, Harry Tate, Horace Goldin, Fred Karno and company, Mark Melford and company, Albert Le Fre, the Musical Schafers, Tom Craven, Harry Anderson, Giant Rooster, Johnny Dwyer, Tom Costello, Charles Mildare, Florrie Robins, Jolly Criss Cross, Duncan and Godfrey, Newham and Latimar, Fanny Robins, Florrie Cooper, Nipper Lupino-Lane, the Villions, T. E. Dunville, Dan Crawley, Wal Pink, George Reeves, Carlotta Levey, the Four Geraldos, the Bouncing Dillons, Victoria Monks, Sam Mayo, Hardeen, Charles Coborn, Florence Deighton, Charles Russell, and Alf. Lester.

The following artists will appear in the Concert Hall:—Miss Evie Greene (from Daly's and the Palace Theatres), Mme. Spada, Miss Amy Atkins, Miss Sylvia du Barry, Miss Mabel Mavis, Miss Marguerite Bramberg, the Misses Solari, Mr. Harold Wilde, Mr. Philip Newbury, Mr. Harry Dearth, Mr. Richard Green, Mr. Charles Coborn, Mr. M. Henderson, Mr. Charles Butler, and Mr. John Josey. A capital show will be seen in the centre transept, including Caicedo, the King of the Wire; King Alexander, whizzing the whirl; Les Henris, and the Villions.

The Music Hall Sports, for which there are a vast number of entries, will commence at 11.30. The prizes, valued at £300, will be given by Miss Marie Lloyd. Altogether there will be fifteen hours' continuous amusement, and side-shows will be going all day long inside the Palace.

Mr. George Leyton's stage experiences have been associated with the delineations of heroes of all ages—fighting heroes for choice—and we have seen him both as Henry the Fifth and the Iron Duke. Of late years it has been his self-imposed task on the boards to champion the cause of the veterans of the Crimea and the Indian Mutiny, and in consequence of his whole-hearted exertions many an old warrior has been relieved from practical starvation. He has been presenting his new songscena, entitled Lucknow, at the Hippodrome, where he appears surrounded by fourteen war-worn veterans, all of whom are actual survivors of the Indian Mutiny. The stirring lines of the scena fitly commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the event, and the robust and manly style of Mr. Leyton's rendering win for him the heartiest applause.

Mrs. Bennett and Edward Cranston will sail per Orient steamer Ortona on Friday next to fulfil engagements with Mr. Harry Rickards. A special train leaves St. Pancras at 10.45. A grand complimentary benefit will be given the artists at the Canterbury on Wednesday evening next, when an enormous bill will be presented.

Mr. George Mozart, at the termination of his present successful engagement at the London Pavilion, will tour the South Coast towns, opening at Margate. On his return to the London Pavilion he will produce Chris. Davis's burlesque sporting skit, Won by a Neck, and a new characteristic scena or monologue entitled Umbrellas.

Mr. Herman Finck's "Musical Memories," so well played by his excellent orchestra, have now been performed as a selection at the Palace for the past six months. It is quite possible to have a new series, and names of popular numbers are requested.

Mr. Leo Dryden, who is the sole responsible manager for the Colley-Dryden company, has been playing to record business with the following managers:—Messrs. Milton Bode, J. F. Elliston, Otto C. Culling, Wm. Robinson, H. J. Worswick, Ernest Dottridge, and R. C. Buchanan. Miss Ada Colley, the Australian nightingale, who sings Sir Henry Bishop's "Lo, here the gentle lark" so beautifully, has created a genuine sensation, and the Anglo-Australian amalgamtion is a sure draw.

Mr. Carl Hertz, the popular magician, will sail for South Africa on July 6. On his return to England in October he proposes to produce a remarkable illusion, which is to be known as "The Garden of Eden." It will contain horticultural and ornithological specimens, but whether Eve will be walking among them we know not. The garden will most likely be "an Adamless Eden."

"Loose Tiles" has been chosen as the title of a new sketch, which is to be produced by Mr. H. A. Langlois at the Queen's, Poplar, on Monday. A comedy of this name was produced at the Vaudeville Theatre in the 'eighties.

At the 516th meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, held at the offices on Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Fred Herbert was voted to the chair, and among those present were Messrs. Charles Coborn, Charles Gardner, Fred Harrison, Harry Blake, R. Abel, Jeff Vendome, Harry Wright, Bob Hutt, Bernard Stavordale, George Smythson, Frank Gerald, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The committee decided to insure all the servants of the Association by way of safeguarding it against the Compensation Act.

The eighth anniversary of the opening of the Empress, Brixton, will be celebrated on Friday next, when the entertainment will commence at 7 p.m. Mr. Nelson Francis will present a festival entertainment.

Mr. Alfred Wellesley, who is taking over the English rights of Mr. W. T. Ellwanger's sketch The Peacemaker, has been booked by Mr. Frank Glenister for a further thirty weeks over the next two and a half years. Mr. Wellesley is a great success in the part of the uncle in the above production.

Swan and Vesta arrived in England on June 15 per Orient Royal Mail s.s. Ortona, after ten months' touring through India. Artists before signing contracts for India would do well to consult them, as no one knows the country except those who have been through it.

Miss Lily Tiso is playing a pleasant month's engagement in La Ville Lumière at the Jardin de Paris. She is already re-engaged for next year. The Jardin is one of the few places in Paris without a claque.

An excellent little American episode, entitled A Sister's Honour, was produced at the Empress, Brixton, on Wednesday, and, judging by the applause, it is in for a long run. Mr. N. G. Appleby, in the principal character of the stranger, Jim Radcliffe, was excellent; Miss Gertrude Churchill as Mamie both looked and played the part to perfection; and Mr. A. O'Keen made a manly hero.

Mr. Ernest Lord's Excelsior Opera Singers have been appearing for the first time on the music hall stage this week at the Royal, Oldham. Their success was instantaneous, and at each performance three and four times have they had to appear before the curtain. Owing to their reception Mr. Lord has decided, on terminating his concert tour at the end of September, and adopting the halls proper from Oct. 7. He has placed the sole booking of his Opera Singers in the hands of Mr. Dottridge, who should have no difficulty in securing dates for this delightful act

"The Era" was very fortunate in being the first newspaper able to print in extenso the text of the final Award. On Saturday morning its offices were besieged by artists applying for copies. The Variety Artists' Federation ordered 300, and large numbers were supplied to the Stage Operatives' Society, the Amalgamated Musicians' Union, Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. J. L. Graydon, and others.

All entrants for the Federation Sports at the Crystal Palace, which start at 11.30 sharp on Thursday next, will receive a competitor's ticket by sending a stamped addressed envelope to Albert Le Fre, 28, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

The staff of the London Pavilion had their twentieth annual excursion on Sunday. This time the beautiful up-river reaches of the Thames Valley were chosen for the outing. The company, numbering over one hundred, took special train to Taplow, and joined the steam launch His Majesty at Boulter's Lock. After a most enjoyable trip up the river luncheon was partaken of at the Crown Hotel, Marlow. Hurley was afterwards visited. Mr. Frank Glenister, Mr. W. Cobbett, Mr. A. Bond-Sayers, and Mr. Fredk. L. Rose were present, the first-mentioned presiding at the luncheon and making an effective and appropriate speech. The arrangements of the trip reflect the utmost credit upon the hon. secretary, Mr. Thomas Prior.

Since Herr Henry Erhorn succeeded to the musical-directorship of the London Hippodrome he has made a speciality of operatic selections, which have been greatly appreciated by the audiences. Consequently every week we get a tit-bit from Tannhäuser, The Flying Dutchman, Lohengrin, or equally favourite operas. Incidentally, it may be mentioned that Herr Erhorn is a pupil of Eduard Strauss, and his speciality is waltz music in the style of the great master. Herr Erhorn has been engaged in the Hippodrome orchestra eight years.

Dr. Sandford Arnott, the eminent surgeon, performed most successfully on Sunday a very difficult operation on the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dunning (Dunning and Kahn). Dr. Arnott is in daily attendance, and hopes in a short period to have the little invalid well on the road to health.

Dr. Walford Bodie is playing to record business in the theatres with his own company of Royal Magnets. He commences his Scotch tour in a fortnight. Mrs. Bodie has gone for a short holiday to their beautiful Highland home, the Manor House, Macduff, lately erected by the doctor as his family residence at a cost of over £7000, the architects being Messrs. Marshall, McKenzie and Co., who built the Waldorf, and also the New College, Aberdeen, lately opened by the King. Mrs. Bodie gave a grand dinner to their tenants last week in the large banquetting-hall of the Manor House, when over one hundred sat down to a splendid repast, the doctor's piper playing in the grounds. The tenantry presented Mrs. Bodie with a very valuable cutlery case, containing over ninety pieces, with solid silver mountings and real ivory handles. Both Dr. and Mrs. Bodie are very popular with their tenants. The doctor is now one of the largest property owners in the north.

Mr. Herbert Dickeson's company will appear on Monday at the Metropolitan and Chelsea Palace in a new musical comedy act, entitled A Fair Exchange. The company includes Miss Violet Lytton, Miss Alma Evelyne, Percy Crawford, and Herbert Dickeson.

The Simms opened on Monday night at the Empress, Brixton, and the Granville, Walham Green, and have every reason to be satisfied with their early experience of a London audience. Their services were snapped up next day by Mr. Oswald Stoll. Their success is very gratifying to their pioneer, Will Oliver, who knows a good turn when he sees it.

So phenomenally successful did Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate's petite musical comedy, The Dairymaid, prove on its initial production at the Granville, Walham-green, a couple of weeks ago, as interpreted by dainty Miss Phyllis Yorke and Mr. Albert Weston, that the advance bookings for this successful sketch have been exceedingly heavy during the past few days. The Dairymaid starts on what promises to be a most successful tour of the principal halls at the Empire, Stratford, on Monday next, and is being pioneered by the up-to-date author and composer, aided and abetted by that astute agent, Mr. Jack Lotto.

Miss Haidee Lee and Mr. Wallace Kingston have this week accepted from the pens of Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate a musical comedy in miniature, with a Continental environment. It embraces several particularly fine numbers, and good judges consider the music to be some of the best that has ever emanated from the pen of Mr. Tate. We may expect the production of this important sketch at an early date.

Mr. Wallace Selkirk, whose new naval and military spectacle, Egypt, specially written and composed for him by Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate, has been winning golden opinions at the Empire, Newcastle, during the present week, opens with the same thrilling sketch at the Empire, Leeds, on Monday next.

Miss Clara Alexander, whom Mr. Forbes Robertson engaged for a curtain-raiser during his London season, has been secured by the Empire Theatre, and will open there in her remarkable coon songs and dialect next Monday. No type of American character has been more misrepresented in this country than the coon. Miss Alexander has made a special study of this interesting creature, and presents him in the dialect he speaks and in the plaintive little folk-songs that he sings. Miss Alexander has caught to perfection that strange mixture of drollery and pathos which go to make up the tragi-comic figure of the genuine nigger, and she has been well described as "the Plantation Chevalier."

"My Station of Grace" is continuing its tour with every success. Mr. Alfred M Loader, the author, describes it as a mythical muddle, with most original and amusing situations. It is certain to arrive in London before long. Miss Adèle Levey (late of the Three Sisters Levey) plays the statue with the talent born of experience. Her fine figure is modestly draped—quite a contrast to the living statuary of the period.

Mr. George Leyton, who is rousing the patriotic pulse by his Lucknow scena at the Hippodrome, has received the following letter from Mr. John Harrop, Lord Mayor of Manchester:—"I am informed that on Saturday last Mr. Bentham, on my behalf, received from you £37 16s., proceeds of sale of song, 'Lucknow,' at the Empire Theatre during the past week, and I understand that you have handed over a total amount of £2,275 2s. 2d. to various veterans' funds throughout the United Kingdom. As president of the Manchester Fund, I desire to convey my sincere thanks for the kind help you have rendered, which is highly appreciated by the committee and myself."

The latest quotations of music hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1½; Canterbury, ½; Empire (16s. paid), 1⅛, ditto (10s. paid), 1⅛; London Pavilion Ordinary, 4⅛, ditto pref., 5; London Collseum ½; Metropolitan, ½; Moss' Empire, 4⅞, ditto 5 per cent. Pref., 3⅞; Oxford, 6⅜; Palace, 13s.; Tivoli, 6; Variety Consolidated Theatres, 13s.

The Hippodrome, Hastings, will reopen its doors on Monday, July 8, under entire new management, and the bookings are placed in the sole hand of Mr. Fred Higham, 9, York-road, S.E.

The variety theatre at the Crystal Palace on Thursday next, Federation Day, will be under the control of Newham and Latimar. A very fine programme has been arranged, all the leading stars having kindly consented to appear. There will be four performances. Don't forget Thursday, the 27th!

The Libre Parole states that the police have prohibited the appearance of Prince Robert de Broglie, who was at the London Tivoli during the strike, at Parisian music halls, where he was to have made his début on Monday, fearing disturbances during the performances.

Mr. Ernie Mayne, "Cupid, the Simple One," who is now on a short starring tour, has just been re-booked by Moss, Stoll, Allen, and Thornton till 1913. He will be seen in pantomime this Christmas with Mr. Fred Karno at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow.

An action for an alleged breach of contract was heard on Thursday before Mr. Justice Warrington, when the Richars and Barney Syndicate were the plaintiffs and Mr. Ernest Shand the defendant. The contract contained a "barring clause" which prevented the performer from appearing at any hall within two miles of the Cambridge between the date of the contract and the week of his engagement. Mr. Shand, however, threatened to perform at the Paragon, which was admittedly less than two miles distant, and this action was brought, claiming an injunction to restrain him. The defence was that the clause was unreasonable, but counsel for the syndicate explained that it was necessary, in view of the great competition among the suburban halls. Mr. Rufnus Isaacs, for Mr. Shand, then said that he would not contest the action further, and judgment with costs was entered for the syndicate.

In consequence of the frequency with which Mr. Zancig is unduly detained in one section of the auditorium, rendering it impossible for him to visit other parts of the house, the management of the Alhambra has decided to have a bell rung at intervals, which will be the signal for Mr. Zancig to proceed to some other part of the theatre.

In the case of the London Music Hall v. the Poluskis, which commenced before Mr. Justice Warrington on Thursday, Mr. Eldon Banks said the agreement was dated Dec. 19, 1903, and covered a number of engagements, each lasting for two weeks. The defendants stated that they did not threaten to perform within one and a half miles of the London, as alleged, the Paragon not being, they contended, within one and a half miles of it. The distance, they contended, should be determined by "Phillips's Table of Distances." The question was whether the distance was "by crow or cab." He believed that according to the law one was obliged to measure "by crow." They did not know who Phillips was or where to find him. Mr. Harry Thomas Underwood, a director of the plaintiff company, and Mr. William Henry Burney, managing-director, also stated that he had never heard of the table. Judgment was given for the plaintiffs with costs, similar judgments being also entered for the London Music Hall in similar actions against Miss Jessie Preston and Mr. Benjamin Sylvester, known as Orpheus.

Mr. Oswald Brand writes:—"I shall be glad if you will kindly state that the libretto and lyrics of The Fisher-Girl are absolutely my original invention, based on the old legend, "The Flying Dutchman." The work was so highly criticised at the time of its first production by the entire Press that I feel, in justice to myself, I must claim the sole right of subscribing my name to the creation of the book."

Miss Margaret Ashton, who was present at the Grand Prix on Sunday last, returned from Paris on Monday afternoon, and sailed the following day on the s.s. Irma for a trip through the fjords of Norway. She hopes to get as far as the Lofoden Islands, within the Arctic Cirlcle, and will resume her London engagements in July.

Mr. Fred Karno's latest sketch, The Bailiff, will make its first appearance in London at the Hackney Empire next Monday. The Bailiff, the principal part in which is played by Mr. Fred Kitchen, creates roars of laughter from start to finish, and deals with the blunders of broker's men. Fred Kitchen, with his friend "Meredith," are to be seen at their best, the attempts of the brokers to enter the house being ludicrous in the extreme. Finally they effect an entrance, and, after selling up the home, it is discovered that they have come to the wrong house. As a result the broker's men blame each other, and the curtain descends on them engaged in a deadly fight.

Fred Kitchen comes of an old theatrical family, and was born in the profession. His first appearance on the stage was when, three months old, he appeared with his father in the sketch The Dumb Man of Manchester. By the way, it is Mr. Kitchen's idea to play this piece according to modern ideas. Fred Kitchen's second appearance—at Day's, Birmingham, when he was about eighteen months old—was attended by a curious occurrence. He was standing in the wings dressed in Scotch plaid and kilt, when a well-known lady vocalist seized his hand and pulled him on with her. "The moon sheds its watery eye," she sang, amidst vociferous applause, and at once, by some coincidence, the footlights went out. The reason was never found out, but it was taken as an omen of good luck, and proved so.

Mrs. George Daventry and Mr. Charles Aldred are scoring a success at the Empire, Camberwell, this week, in a cleverly-constructed and intensely dramatic and high-class sketch, Monte Carlo.

Miss Sylvia Cavalho, the distinguished actress, supported by Mr. Clifford Pembroke and a selected company, will produce at the Canterbury, on Monday week, a romantic episode, entitled The Fortunes of War, by C. C. Andrews (the well-known writer and contributor to the Strand Magazine). The Fortunes of War is an episode of the naval war between England and America in 1812. The scene is laid in the interior of a New England homestead, situated on the Connecticut coast. In this episode Miss Cavalho has a powerful part.

Mr. Lewis Gilbert is producing A Little Tyrant this week at the Middlesex. The sketch embodies a pretty story, prettily told, and is right away from the tabloid blood-and-thunder dramas or the ultra-farcical pieces just now so prevalent on the variety stage.

The charming soubrette, Miss Bessie Butt, during her recent pantomime engagement at Birmingham, won the "Owl" cake and also captured the first prize—a diamond ring—in the beauty competition, presented by a local paper.

An act out of the common will be submitted at the Hackney Empire on Monday by Maud Rochez, who will present a variety theatre run entirely by monkeys, and wonderful they are. The orchestra is composed of apes, the scene-shifters and supers are of the same type, and the artists are also quadrumanous. They conjure, juggle, wrestle, motor, dance, steeplechase, play musical instruments, and, in short, their versatility is amazing. Nothing funnier has been seen for a long time.

THE AWARDS

— OF —

MR. GEORGE RANKEN ASKWITH,

THE ARBITRATOR ACCEPTED BY

Managers, Artistes, Stage Employees, and Musicians.

THE AWARDS.

Mr. George Ranken Askwith has very graciously sent a letter of congratulation to The Era on producing the full text of the award so soon after its signature. He has also pointed out the omission of a clause from the copy supplied to us by the Board of Trade. This he has supplied, making the final award as it appears in the current issue of The Era perfectly accurate. As the three interim awards have a connection and bearing on the final award, we print the four awards for the use of manager, artiste, stage hand, and musician. These four awards will be subsequently produced as a handy booklet, and may be had from The Era.

FIRST INTERIM AWARD,

ISSUED FEB. 14, 1907.

CONCERNING MANAGERS AND ARTISTS.

"The managers of music halls in London and the provinces having had certain matters of dispute with artists, musicians, and stage hands in their employment, and all parties having agreed to refer all matters in dispute between them to me, the undersigned, George Ranken Askwith, and having requested the Board of Trade to confirm such reference, and the Board of Trade having formally appointed me, the undersigned, to act as arbitrator, and the parties having requested me to issue immediately an interim award upon certain matters necessary to be determined before the hearing of questions of wages and other matters in dispute, I award and declare that on and after Saturday, the 16th day of February, no artist who is under contract to the above-named managers, or has agreed to abide by the result of this arbitration, shall perform at the Scala Theatre or elsewhere, in violation of any contract, or in furtherance and continuance of the present strike; and that all legal proceedings by any of the managers against any of the artists, or other persons concerned, shall be withdrawn, and that all artists and other persons holding contracts shall be allowed to fulfil their contracts with the managers on and from Monday, the 25th February, upon giving notice of their intention to fulfil their contracts on or before Saturday, the 16th February; and, further, that all pickets, meetings, and issuing of circulars or notices in connection with, or in furtherance of, the existing strike shall forthwith cease.—As witness my hand, this 14th day of February, 1907. (Signed) GEORGE RANKEN ASKWITH."

SECOND INTERIM AWARD,

ISSUED FEB. 21, 1907.

CONCERNING THE MUSICIANS.

"I award and declare that all musicians who, in consequence of the strike, are without employment, may forthwith apply for engagements, and upon such application shall be given the vacancies at present existing in the orchestras (agreed at 20 per cent. of those who are now unemployed), and those vacancies which will arise in the course of the rearrangement now in progress, and to be completed by March 11 (agreed at 30 per cent. to those who are now unemployed). The same engagements shall be either at the same halls where they were previously engaged or at other halls, but at no less rate of pay than the rate which they previously received. To the remainder of the whole body on strike who may not have been able to obtain engagements on or before March 11, either at music halls or elsewhere, preference shall be given at the music halls concerned in respect of vacancies arising before publication of my final award. I concur with the agreement of the parties that for the purpose of absorbing the said musicians quickly and without friction the managers will supply a list of the managers and music halls concerned in the dispute, to whom application can be made, and lists of the places vacant, and the number and character of the instruments required, and that the musicians may themselves choose and select by whom from amongst their number application for such places may be made. Any balance of musicians not absorbed at the end of the proceedings and prior to the publication of an award upon wages and other questions in dispute shall be referred to me for consideration."

THIRD INTERIM AWARD,

ISSUED MARCH 1, 1907.

CONCERNING STAGE HANDS.

"In further arrangement of the music hall dispute, and in addition to awards published by me on Feb. 14 and 21, 1907, I award and declare with regard to the stage hands that I concur in the agreement between the parties not to examine at the present time the question of the justice or injustice of the strike. I award that stage hands who, in consequence of the strike, are without employment, may apply for engagements, and shall be entitled to vacancies now existing or arising (agreed at 50 per cent. of those who are out of employment), such vacancies to be filled up on or before March 11, and those employed to receive payment at such rate as the arbitrator may subsequently decide to be payable to each class as and from March 11, but pending such decision temporarily at the rate paid in the first week of January, 1907. The remaining stage hands shall be given preference for employment in respect of vacancies arising before the publication of my final award. Any balance not absorbed in obtaining work before the end of the proceedings and prior to the publication of an award upon wages and other questions in dispute shall be referred to me for consideration. The stage hands may themselves choose and select by whom application may be made for the aforesaid vacancies."

FINAL AWARD.

Issued June 14, 1907.

CONCERNING MANAGERS, ARTISTES, STAGE-HANDS, AND MUSICIANS.

In consequence of certain disputes between managers of theatres of varieties in London and the provinces and their artistes, musicians, and employees, and following upon a strike of artistes, musicians, and employees it was agreed by the parties to refer all matters in dispute to me, GEORGE RANKEN ASKWITH, and is was agreed, for the purpose of bringing the award under the terms of the Conciliation Act, 1896, to request the Board of Trade to confirm the reference, and such confirmation having been granted, I, the undersigned, have heard the parties and their representatives, and, having received and considered the evidence of more than one hundred witnesses during twenty-three formal sittings and the statements there made and at many conferences, AWARD AND DECLARE, in addition to three interim awards already published, that the following rules, regulations, and rates shall be applicable to theatres of varieties in Great Britain and Ireland:—

ARTISTES.

EXISTING CONTRACTS.

In existing contracts upon request by the managers to make such award and declaration as may be reasonably necessary with respect to clauses generally inserted in existing contracts, I hereby award and declare that:

(a) Where clauses are inserted providing that the management may transfer the engagement at their option to any other theatre or theatres owned or controlled by or associated with the management, then and in such cases the artiste may be transferred during the whole or any part of the engagement (not less than one week) to any other theatre owned or controlled by or associated with the management with the consent of the artiste, such consent not to be unreasonably withheld. If such transfer is made in the provinces reasonable expenses shall be allowed.

(b) Where clauses are inserted providing that the management may, by notice in writing to the artiste to be given at any time before the expiration of the engagement, extend, prolong, or renew the term for a further period, and that in the event of such option being exercised, the same provisions, so far as may be, are to apply to the extended term, and that during such term the artiste shall perform at such theatres and for such periods as the management shall direct, and that, in the event of such option being exercised, the same provisions are to apply, so far as may be, to the renewed engagement, and that during such term the artiste shall perform at such theatres and for such periods as the management shall direct, the following proviso shall be deemed to be annexed, viz., that, in the event of any such notice being given, such extension, prolongation, or renewal shall be subject to the terms of the award if, and so far as the terms of the contract and the award may differ.

(c) Where clauses are inserted providing that the management may at their discretion, or for causes which they in their absolute discretion shall consider adequate, close any of the theatres to which the contract applies during the whole or any portion of the periods of employment, and that no salary shall be payable on any day on which the artiste shall not perform in consequence of such closure, then and in such case no salary shall be paid for days upon which the theatre is closed by reason of national mourning, fire, epidemic, strikes, lock-outs, disputes with employees, or order of the licensing or any local authority. No salary shall be payable for any performance at which an artiste may not appear through illness or his own default, nor for days upon which the theatre is closed by reason of alterations, decorations, or repairs, or any cause which the management may reasonably consider adequate, provided that two months' previous notice has been given to the artiste.

(d) Where clauses are inserted providing that the artiste shall, when so required by the management, appear at all matinées weekly without the payment of any additional remuneration, artistes shall in future only be called upon to perform at such matinées as were the usual weekly practice at the time the contract was made. Any additional matinées shall be paid for at the rate of one-seventh of the salary in one-show-a-night houses and one-twelfth in two-shows-a-night houses.

(e) Where clauses are inserted providing that performances by artistes are to take place at such times as may be notified by the management with the option of varying such times at their discretion, the management in future shall notify the times for appearance to the artiste, and may vary the same at their discretion on or before Friday in the week previous to the performance, but not later, unless the time can be varied without unreasonable interference with times at any other theatre.

(f) Except as hereinbefore mentioned no existing contract shall be deemed to be affected by this award.

ARTISTES.

FUTURE CONTRACTS.

1. I AWARD AND DECLARE that under contracts to be made in the future all matinées are to be paid for at the rate of one-seventh of the weekly salary in one-show-a-night houses and one-twelfth in two-shows-a-night houses for each matinée.

2. I AWARD AND DECLARE that managements shall not be allowed a greater bar either in times and distances than I have allowed in subsequent clauses which specify maximum bars, and nothing therein contained shall prevent artistes and managements from agreeing to relaxation of conditions either in the contract itself or subsequently in writing.

3. I AWARD AND DECLARE that in all future contracts where clauses are inserted dealing with matinées and the transference of artistes, the form and conditions of Clause 2 (matinées) and Clause 4 (transfers) in the form of contract hereinafter set out shall be obligatory, and that the two months' notice required in Clause 10 shall be obligatory, and also that in contracts falling within sub-section (d) of the barring clauses the conditions relating to variation of times as mentioned in Rule 2 shall also be obligatory.

FUTURE CONTRACTS (MODEL).

WHEREAS attention has been called to differences which have arisen or may be likely to arise from the terms and conditions hitherto used in certain contracts and request has been made that a contract for ordinary use by theatres of varieties in London and the Provinces should be drafted in order that uniformity should as far as practicable be obtained, and that difficulties and discrepancies should hereafter be avoided, and that the said contract should form a model for future contracts between managements and artistes, with such proper alterations and additions as may be suitable for particular localities or circumstances, I hereby append the following form of contract drafted with the above purpose and object for the use and guidance of managements and artistes.

FORM OF CONTRACT.

AN AGREEMENT made the day of 190 BETWEEN hereinafter called the Management of the one part and hereinafter called the Artiste of the other part WITNESSETH that the Management hereby engages the Artiste and the Artiste accepts an engagement to appear as (or in his usual entertainment) every evening at the theatres and from the dates for the periods and at the salaries stated in the First Schedule hereto subject to the said theatres being in the occupancy and possession of the Management and upon and subject to the undermentioned conditions.

1. The word "Artiste" shall when more than one is included in the performance include the plural.

2. The Artiste agrees to appear at any Matinée required by the Management and shall be paid at the rate of one-seventh of the weekly salary in one-show-a-night houses and one-twelfth in two-shows-a-night houses for each Matinée.

3. Where this contract relates to a partnership, troupe, or sketch, the Artiste shall at the time when the contract is signed furnish the Management in writing with such names as the Management may require and shall not substitute a performer for a person so named without the written consent of the Management.

4. The Artiste may be transferred during the whole or any part of the engagement (not less than one week) to any other theatre owned or controlled by or associated with the Management, with the consent of the Artiste, such consent not to be unreasonably withheld. If such transfer is made in the Provinces reasonable expenses shall be allowed.

5. Barring Clause.

Upon breach of (any of) the barring clauses the Artiste shall pay to the management as liquidated damages one week's salary for each breach thereof, but nothing in this clause shall affect the right of the Management to apply for an injunction to restrain the Artiste from performing or rehearsing in breach of the said clauses nor the right to determine the contract.

MR. GEORGE RANKEN ASKWITH.

6. The Artiste shall not infringe any copyright, patent, or other proprietary rights of third parties, and in the event of infringement shall be liable for and on demand pay the amount of all damages, penalties, and costs incurred by the Management.

The Artiste shall not give or permit to be given any colourable imitation or version of his performance within the radius or time prescribed by the barring clauses.

7. In case the artiste shall, except through illness certified as hereinafter provided, or accident proved to the satisfaction of the Management, fail to perform at any performance, he shall pay to the Management as, and for liquidated damages, a sum equal to the sum which the Artiste would have received for such performance, in addition to costs and expenses incurred by the Management through the default of the Artiste.

When the management own or control two theatres in any provincial town, the Artiste shall act as deputy in cases of emergency upon request, and be paid at the rate of

8. The Artiste undertakes that his performance shall not be dangerous to the Artistes, Audience, or Stage Employees. If any accident or injury results from the performance of the Artiste, the Artiste shall pay for any loss, damage, or costs incurred by the Management.

9. The Management shall not be liable to the Artiste or to the legal personal representative of the Artiste for any loss, damage, or injury to the Artiste's person or property during, or in connection with, the engagement, unless caused by the negligence of the Management.

10. The Artiste shall not assign, mortgage, or charge his salary, nor permit the same to be taken in execution. No salary shall be paid for days upon which the theatre is closed by reason of national mourning, fire, epidemic, strikes, lockouts, disputes with employees, or order of the licensing or any public authority. No salary shall be payable for any performance at which an Artiste may not appear through illness or his own default, nor provided that two months' previous notice has been given to the Artiste for days upon which the theatre is closed for alterations, decorations, repairs, or any cause which the Management may reasonably consider adequate.

11. The Artiste agrees to observe and carry out conditions and regulations imposed by statute, the London County Council, or other public authority, and to comply with the requirements of any public authority that scenery and properties used by the Artiste shall be non-flammable. All flammable material brought into the theatre by the Artiste may be required to be made non-flammable by him, or at his expense, by the Management.

12. The Artiste declares that at the time of signing this contract he is under no engagement with any other Management that can preclude him from fulfilling the engagements shown herein, and that he has not concealed any change of professional name or description.

13. The Rules and Regulations subjoined shall be read and construed as forming part of this Contract, and the Artiste agrees to abide by all reasonable rules which may from time to time be made by the Management for the good and orderly conduct or special requirements of their theatres, provided that the rules shall have been served on or brought to the notice of the Artiste.

14. Upon the breach by the Artiste of any of the terms and conditions in this contract, or of Rules 1 to 10, the Management, without prejudice to other remedies, and in addition to rights given under the terms and conditions aforesaid, or the rules, may forthwith determine this Contract, and the Artiste shall have no claim upon them for salary (other than a proportion for performances played), expenses, costs, or otherwise.

The same provision shall apply upon breach by any member of a troupe or company if not remedied after complaint by the Management.

15. Any notices under this Contract may be served upon the Artiste by posting the same to his last known address, or to the agent through whom this contract is made, or while performing at any theatre in the manner specified in rule 11.

16. The Management may by notice in writing, to be given before the termination of this engagement, re-engage the artiste once subject to any engagements existing at the date hereof, to appear at any of the theatres herein mentioned for a like period not exceeding weeks, to commence not later than 18 months subsequent to the date of the notice, and the Artiste shall, if so required, perform accordingly upon the same terms as in this Contract.

17. If the Artiste's performance is contrary to law, or is objected to by any licensing or other public authority, this contract may be cancelled by the Management.

If the management be threatened with legal proceedings in respect thereto the contract may be cancelled unless the artiste forthwith provides indemnity to the satisfaction of the management.

18. Matter for billing, programmes, and advertisement, and the words of all songs must be sent to at days before opening.

SCHEDULE.

Week at commencing at the salary of per week.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

1. The Artiste shall attend Rehearsals if required at the places and times notified by the management.

2. The Artiste shall be present in the theatre not less than five minutes before.

The Artiste may be put on ten minutes later than the specified time and if required must do the whole of his performance. The Management may vary the times specified for appearance at their discretion on or before Friday in the week previous to the performance but not later, unless the time can be varied without unreasonable interference with times at any other theatre.

3. In the event of an Artiste being unable to perform through illness, a medical certificate must be sent immediately to the Management at the Theatre setting forth the nature of the illness and that the Artiste is unable to appear. If the Artiste is prevented by illness or from any cause whatever from performing on the first night or for three consecutive nights the engagement may either be determined or be treated as postponed to such date as the Management decide, subject to engagements entered into by the Artiste.

4. The Artiste giving expression to any vulgarity or words having a double meaning or using any objectionable gesture when on the stage shall be liable to instant dismissal, and if dismissed shall forfeit the salary for the current week. Any question under this clause to be decided by the management, whose decision shall be final and binding on the artiste.

5. Any artiste being in the theatre in a state of intoxication may be fined one week's salary or dismissed.

6. Artistes shall not address the audience except in the regular course of the performance nor interfere in any manner with other artistes or employees nor go into the front of the house without permission.

7. Singers shall, if required, sing at least three songs at each performance. The management may prohibit the whole or any part of the performance which they consider unsuitable or displeasing to the audience and in the case of songs may require a copy to be forwarded for approval days before a song is to be sung and no variation will be permitted from words so approved.

The artiste agrees to produce new or revert to any old song, sketch, or business, on the reasonable request of the management, and to provide suitable dresses and properties.

8. Artistes must respond to encores or not as the management shall reasonably direct.

9. No naked lights shall be carried or matches used, nor any lighting apparatus interfered with by the artiste. Artistes shall not bring into the theatre combustible or explosive materials without the written permission of the management.

10. Smoking is strictly prohibited in dressing rooms or anywhere in proximity to the stage.

11. The artiste must furnish the hall-keeper with his address, and while performing at any theatre notice shall be sufficiently served if sent to such address, or if no address is furnished by deposit in the place for deposit of letters at the theatre.

12. The management shall have the sole right to determine the position of the artiste's name, the size and nature of the type, and the description of the turn on bills, programmes and advertisements.

13. No person not employed at the theatre shall go behind the scenes without permission.

ARTISTES.

FUTURE CONTRACTS (BARRING CLAUSES)

WHEREAS it has been customary in contracts for engagement of artistes to insert clauses commonly known as "barring clauses," restricting appearance of artistes within specified areas and for long periods of time before, during, and after engagements, and WHEREAS evidence has been tendered before me upon all points referring to the said clauses, and I have carefully weighed and considered the same and the requirements for the welfare of the industry as a whole and its just and proper conduct and deem it expedient that maximum restrictions should be declared, I AWARD the following in respect of future contracts:—

(a) The barring of theatres of varieties for a period after the termination of any engagement, except for not more than two weeks after the termination of an engagement in provincial towns, is abolished.

(b) In contracts made by a management for the performance of an artiste, either with or without an option to renew, at a West End theatre of varieties, i.e., a theatre situated within a radius of one mile from Charing Cross on the northern bank of the Thames, to the entire exclusion of any other theatre of varieties, the terms and conditions, including extension and re-engagement, shall be such as may be agreed between the parties.

If a management shall contract with an artiste for an engagement of at least fourteen weeks during any period of twelve months, and a salary of at least £40 per week, the artiste consenting to perform concurrently at two theatres either (1) both, now open, in the West End, or (2) at one theatre within and one outside the West End, both now open, such contract may include conditions that the artiste can be barred from performing at other theatres not making exclusive contracts and situated within a radius of four miles from Charing Cross and (or) within a radius of two miles from the outside theatre specified in the contract, for a period of nine months prior to the performance of the artiste, and from performing at theatres giving exclusive contracts and situated within the said radius of four miles and (or) within a radius of two miles from the outside theatre specified in the contract for a period of eight months prior to the performance.

(c) In contracts made by a management for the performance of an artiste, either with or without an option to renew, at a theatre outside the West End but within the Metropolitan Police District to the entire exclusion of any other theatre of varieties, the terms and conditions shall be such as may be agreed between the parties, except that no artiste shall be barred prior to appearance beyond a radius of two miles nor within such radius for a longer period than fifteen months.

(d) In all other contracts made by a management for the performance of an artiste within the Metropolitan Police district the terms and conditions shall be such as may be agreed between the parties, except that as to contracts made for performance at theatres of varieties situated within the West End no artiste shall be barred prior to appearance (a) beyond a radius of one mile nor (b) within such radius for a longer period than four months, and as to contracts made for performance at theatres of varieties situated outside the West End but within the Metropolitan Police district no artiste shall be barred prior to appearance (a) beyond a radius of two miles nor (b) within such radius for a longer period than eight months.

(e) In contracts made by a management for the performance of an artiste in the provinces, i.e., outside the Metropolitan Police district, the terms and conditions shall be such as may be agreed between the parties, provided that no artiste shall be barred from performing prior to appearance (a) beyond a radius of ten miles nor (b) within such radius for a longer period than fifteen months, except that no town shall be barred which has a population of more than 70,000 inhabitants (according to the A.B.C. Railway Guide) and is situated beyond a radius of six miles.

(f) In the contracts mentioned in the above subsections, excepting sub-section (d), if the period between the date of the contract and the performance exceeds the period of bar the management may insert a provision in the said contract requiring the artiste during such period of excess before accepting an engagement at another theatre within the barred area to offer his services to the management on the terms mentioned in the said contract, and thereupon the management shall accept such offer in writing and specify the theatre for the performance within a week, or be deemed to have refused the same.

(g) Artiste includes troupe, company, partnership, or other combination of two or more performers, and the word theatre, when used in relation to barring clauses, shall be deemed to include theatres, theatres of varieties, music-halls, clubs, concerts, or other places of entertainment.

ARTISTES.

FUTURE DISPUTES.

In the event of any dispute arising hereafter no strike or stoppage of work shall take place, and if any change be desired in the rules and conditions hereinbefore declared six calendar months' notice in writing must be given either by managements or artistes, such notice to expire on 30th June in any year (except that neither side shall give such notice prior to 1st January, 1912), and shall state clearly the nature of such alteration and the reasons therefor and the theatres affected thereby. The party receiving the notice shall have the right of replying to it within two calendar months either by giving counter-notice or otherwise, and within one calendar month of the said counter-notice on or before 31st March two managers and two artistes shall meet together and endeavour to come to an unanimous understanding before 30th June, failing which both parties shall refer the question to arbitration. A party upon receiving notice as hereinbefore specified may within seven days demand that a like notice shall be served on any other managements whom he shall deem to be affected, and upon such demand notice shall be served forthwith upon such other managements and shall be deemed to have been served on the 1st January.

In the event of no understanding being arrived at between the parties affected, the question, in accordance with agreement now come to, shall be referred for final determination to me, or, failing me, to another agreed arbitrator, or, failing agreement, to an arbitrator appointed by the Board of Trade. Upon such reference each party shall as a condition precedent to arbitration deposit the sum of £20 with the arbitrator, who may out of such sum award costs to either party. The decision of the arbitrator shall be final and binding on the parties.

MUSICIANS.

Provinces.—A local dispute at Leicester having been decided by me in the course of the proceedings, I award and declare that no dispute exists at the present time in the provinces requiring my adjudication.

London.—Minimum wage. I award and declare that in existing theatres of varieties where the average wages of the musicians, exclusive of the conductor, in the first full week of January, 1907, amounted to less than thirty shillings per week per musician, exclusive of matinees, there shall henceforth be paid at such theatres a minimum wage of thirty shillings per week to all musicians, except drummers; drummers, twenty-eight shillings.

In all other theatres and in new theatres commencing during the continuance of this award the minimum wage to be paid to all musicians, except drummers, per week for evening work shall be thirty-two shillings; drummers, thirty shillings.

Matinées.—Matinées in all theatres of varieties in London shall be paid for at a rate of not less than five shillings in one-show-a-night houses per matinée, and three shillings in two-shows-a-night houses per matinée.

Ordinary rehearsals are included in the salary paid, as formerly. Special rehearsals are to be paid for extra at sums to be agreed between the management and musicians.

I make no order with regard to deputies or with regard to any other claims on behalf of musicians.

EMPLOYEES.

1. Provinces.

No proposals for alteration or change on behalf of the Employees (stage hands, etc.) in provincial theatres of varieties was brought before me, and I award and declare that no dispute exists at the present time in the provinces requiring my adjudication.

2. London. Minimum rate of pay. Daymen.

Assistants employed during the day in addition to evening work in the stage, including fly, properties, etc., assistant electricians, lime-light or gas men, to be paid a minimum of 27s. 6d. per week, exclusive of overtime.

HOURS.

The normal working hours to be approximately between 10.30 o'clock a.m. and 3.30 o'clock p.m., allowing one hour for meals, in the daytime on ordinary days, and from 10.30 o'clock a.m. to the conclusion of the performance allowing one hour for meals on matinée days—Saturdays to be approximately between 10.30 a.m. to 1.30 p.m. in the event of no matinée; and in the evening from the time necessary for commencing the performance to the clearing of the stage at its conclusion not later than midnight.

OVERTIME.

All work done after twelve (midnight) to 7 a.m., or on Sundays, Good Fridays, or Christmas Days, to be paid for at the rate of elevenpence per hour.

Nightmen.—Including all those engaged for stage work during a performance.

DUTIES.

To be the setting and striking of the scenery the operation of lights used and the general stage work during the performance, and the clearing of the stage after the last item on the programme not later than midnight.

MINIMUM RATE OF PAY.

In one-show-a-night houses 2s. per performance and 2s. for each matinée of the present average duration.

A special performance exceeding the usual duration of a matinée or evening performance to be paid extra.

In two-shows-a-night houses, 2s. 3d. per night, and 1s. 6d. for each matinée of the present average duration.

REHEARSALS.

Nightmen for rehearsals between 7 a.m. and 12 p.m., 7d. per hour, with a minimum of 1s. 9d., and for rehearsals after 12 p.m. (midnight), on Sundays, Good Fridays, or Christmas Days, 11d. per hour.

All men employed for rehearsals to be paid from the time of the call, if on duty.

CARPENTERS.

Bench hands. The rate of pay to be 10½d. per hour, or the London rate.

Carpenters to work 8½ hours before charging overtime.

OVERTIME. On week days from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m., time and a half; from 8 o'clock p.m. to 7 o'clock a.m. next morning, double time. After 1 o'clock Saturdays and on Christmas Day, Good Friday and Sundays double time to be paid.

Two hours grinding money to be allowed on finish of a job after working 48 hours. Carpenters to give two hours' notice on leaving after working 48 hours.

OTHER DEPARTMENTS OR EMPLOYEES.

Minimum wages for stage managers (stage foremen), 36s. per week.

Minimum wages for electricians (switchboard attendants) 30s. per week.

HOURS The same as for daymen.

OVERTIME. All work done after twelve (midnight) to 7 a.m. or on Sunday, Good Friday, or Christmas Day to be paid for at the rate of 1s. and 11d. per hour respectively.

NOTE. The variety in the extent of electrical knowledge and skill in dealing with electrical appliances required for different theatres of varieties is so large that no dividing line between electricians (qualified switchboard attendants) and electricians paid under the title of chief electricians or master electricians can be fixed for the purpose of gradation of minimum wage, and in my opinion no minimum wage for such chief or master electricians is required, and I make no order in regard to them.

I also make no order with regard to extra or odd men employed for baggage work, brass cleaning, or other jobs in and about theatres of varieties or with respect to any other claims on behalf of employees.

MUSICIANS AND EMPLOYEES (FUTURE DISPUTES).

I AWARD AND DECLARE—

1. In the event of any question arising as to whether the award is being observed or not, it has been agreed that such question shall be referred to me, or, failing me, to another arbitrator to be appointed by the Board of Trade, for decision and upon any decision that the award has not been observed, and neglect to comply with the order thereupon made, the persons aggrieved shall have liberty of action to take such course as they shall deem fit, or as the arbitrator shall direct.

2. Any proposal for the alteration of any of the rules, regulations, and rates fixed after this enquiry, and specified in this award, shall be subject to not less than three months' notice, to expire on March 31st or September 30th in any year, stating the alterations proposed and the grounds therefor, and such proposal, if made in 1908, shall state the changed circumstances which would justify such reopening, and it has been agreed shall be examined and stated by me to be satisfactory, before such reopening is allowed. Upon notice being given under this clause, the procedure laid down in the following clause shall be followed.

3. For the adjustment of all future disputes, and to avoid stoppage of work, any difference arising between managements and their musicians or employees shall be first considered by the parties concerned and (or) their authorised representatives, and in the event of no agreement within a period of three months shall be referred to three persons, two to be appointed by the parties and one by the General Federation of Trade Unions, and if such persons shall not be able to meet, or do not agree upon a decision within one month, it has been agreed that such difference shall be referred to me, or, failing me, to another arbitrator to be appointed by the Board of Trade, whose decision shall be final and binding.

4. Upon any difference being referred to me or to another arbitrator as aforesaid, it has been agreed that both parties shall, as a precedent to arbitration, deposit the sum of £20 each with the arbitrator who may out of such sum award costs to either party.

This award shall come into operation one month from the date hereof.

AND I FURTHER AWARD AND DECLARE that with regard to the whole of this award any questions upon the construction or interpretation shall be referred to me for decision.

AS WITNESS MY HAND this fourteenth day of June, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Seven.

"THE CAFE CONCERT."

A Sketch, in Two Scenes, by Charles Parsons and Will Ashworth, produced at the Empress Theatre, Brixton, on Monday, June 17.

Excuse for the introduction of many lively if rather disconnected, incidents is given in this musical sketch by the adventures of a certain detective named Gas, who, with the aid of various disguises, eventually arrests a bookmaker who is in the act of taking the odds in a certain shady café, where a variety concert is in progress. There are great possibilities in the sketch, but it wants revising and working up. Mr. Mike Johnson as the Detective has most of the work to do, and gives a very excellent rendering of his part. Mr. Will Ashworth as Solly Lewis, a racing tipster, does his work very well; Mr. James Mannon as the landlord supplies what is required; and Mr. Will H. Keith as Boon is responsible for many laughs. Messrs. Charles and William Penn as the two Government clerks are efficient; and the café singer, Claire Constance, is brightly represented by Miss Dolly Glenville. The Sisters Myra do some good dancing. An excellent chorus is ably led by Miss Louise Bernard and Miss Ethel Avis. The music by Mr. C. Blakeslet Yearsley is tuneful, and the sketch is produced under the personal supervision of Mr. Charles Parsons.

DR. WALFORD BODIE IN DONCASTER.

A WONDERFUL PHYSICIAN.
DONCASTER PARALYTICS RESTORED TO VIGOUR.

The famous Dr. Walford Bodie, the electrical hypnotist, who achieves what can only be described as marvels in the direction of the cure of paralysis by his amazing electrical process, is amongst us, and Doncastrians ought to crowd to the Grand Theatre nightly in order to witness his mystifying demonstrations of that power which so very few know much about, and perhaps none fully understand. The name of Dr. Bodie is familiar to all who take an intelligent interest in public events. We have heard much that is good and wonderful of him; and we have known his name to be roughly handled by calumniators, mostly of the medical profession, who, equipped on sterotyped lines in medical science at the colleges, have looked sceptically upon the undoubtedly beneficial results of his skilful electric treatment of cases that have baffled their most eminent exponents of orthodox methods. Very many local cases have passed through Dr. Bodie's hands during his stay in Doncaster, and to-morrow (Saturday) night, subjects of paralysis who have been unable to use the affected limbs for years, some from birth, and have been treated by the Doctor's marvellous process of "bloodless surgery," will appear on the theatre stage before the public, and, on the Doctor's guarantee, are expected to use the erstwhile diseased limbs with comparative, if not absolute, freedom. Dr. Bodie, having no wish to interfere with the good work that doctors are trying to accomplish, does not take any case unless it has been discharged and declared incurable. He has, he says, been charged with using violence upon his patients in order to accomplish his cures, and of causing hæmorrhagic disorder and fracture. This Dr. Bodie most emphatically denies. He contends that no medical man can conscientiously say that the knife is the proper treatment for paralysis, and incidentally he offers to give £500 to the Doncaster Royal Infirmary if it can be shown that he uses undue violence and causes hæmorrhage and fracture. We may pause to remark that so far from his operations causing pain, the patients appear rather to enjoy them. Dr. Bodie does not claim to do anything mystical, because he can easily explain all from a scientific standpoint. The subject of electricity has simply not been studied sufficiently to bring it under the power of man as Dr. Bodie uses it, and so he is in the position of speaking and demonstrating to the lay mind when before the public—professional or otherwise. He charges his body with a tremendous degree of electrical power and effects his work upon human ailment by transmitting the power, according to the character of the disease and temperament of the patient. He guarantees permanent cure if his instructions are carried out, and declares that 60 or 70 per cent. of his patients are permanently cured. Among his many subjects this week is a little girl, whose home is in Milner's Yard, and who is said to have been paralysed since her birth. After treatment the child walked upon the stage, and although not having wholly restored the use to her limbs, Dr. Bodie undertook that this should be accomplished by the end of his visit. Another case is that of William Ward, ten years old, of Bentley-road, paralysed all his life in both feet, able to walk only by the aid of another person, discharged incurable from Leeds infirmary. Dr. Bodie's process appears to be barbarous, for he takes the limb in both hands and apparently smashes it across his knee. The patient in this and other cases, however, showed no signs of pain, except perhaps for a slight twitching of the face. He then proceeds to pass electricity from his body into the diseased limb. After treatment this child, Ward, who had been carried on to the stage, was able to stand alone; by the aid of the doctor he leapt from the chair, and he walked uprightly and unaided from the stage amid the plaudits of the audience. A third case is that of Herbert Gillvray, nine years of age, of Wood-street, Doncaster, paralysed in one foot, discharged incurable from the Doncaster and Leeds Infirmaries. Similar treatment found him not only able to walk, but to run. Dr. Bodie claims to have brought happiness to hundreds of homes, and judging by the demonstrations at the Grand Theatre this week, there is no reason for disputing his claim.—Vide Doncaster Gazette, June 7, 1907.

MR. WALFORD BODIE, M.D.

FRED. NEIMAN AND CHARLIE COLBY
AT PALACE, BELFAST.

Frederick Neiman scored a decided success with his animated ventriloquial minstrels, introducing a life-like impersonation of the ever-famous W. J. Ashcroft as "The Solid Man." Colby and May were as good as ever in the ventriloquist and the dancing doll, and Tommy wears the same air of wicked cleverness as of old, and convulses the audience with his pointed repartee.—Northern Whig, June 18, 1907.

MR. LEONARD ROBSON'S miniature farcical comedy, The Girl from Biarritz, has proved one of the most successful items on Mr. Jesse Sparrow's programme at Camberwell this week. It is well played by Miss Eileen Concannon, Mr. Wilson Blake, and Mr. Leonard Robson.

MISS JANET ALEXANDER, a talented young artist, who is fast climbing to the top, is creating a big sensation this week at Mr. R. A. P. Williams' Dundee Gaiety. Her répertoire is a most extensive one, her articulation perfect, while her delightful fairy-like dancing, added to a charming stage presence, combines to make her turn artistic and enjoyable.

WE regret to hear that Miss Bella Bashall is very ill, and is lying in the French Hospital, 172, Shaftesbury-avenue, W.C.

OPINIONS ON THE AWARD.

Mr. Henry Tozer.

The Award is the preservation of the Unities. In it are repeated the deductions and definitions made by managers at the meetings of the Conciliation Board, thereby removing any excess of power they apparently possessed under their contracts with artists. Reasonable bars have been enacted for the future, and wise precautions have been taken that artists and managers shall faithfully and equitably fulfil their respective obligations.

The provisions of the Award, which ensure its being observed and remaining undisturbed for some time to come, are admirable, and all employees are safeguarded thereby from heedless agitators, while the important music-hall industry will be preserved from unconstitutional disturbance. It appears to me that the Arbitrator's model contract will undoubtedly be accepted by managers and artists generally, and all our contracts for the future will be bound by the Award. In a case like this there must be anomalies, and it is impossible to provide for every contingency that may arise. But the spirit of fairness we have hitherto felt and shown will guide us in dealing with individual cases which the Award does not provide for.

Mr. Oswald Stoll.

On the one hand, the artists have not obtained anything like the demands put forward in "The Charter of the National Alliance."

On the other hand, the main body of managers have not now all that they had before. Some conditions are relaxed, others are tightened, and some that were hazy are clarified.

The necessity of certain barring clauses to the existence of variety business as a reasonably safe deposit of capital and a reputable calling has been securely established, as I have all along contended it was bound to be.

The Arbitrator appears to have kept two points in view in arriving at his conclusions:—

(1) The need of crystallising conditions essential to the security of the industry as a whole; and

(2) The desire to satisfy everybody.

Personally, I am glad that he was strong enough to keep the first point first. His patience has been remarkable.

I think that the vindication of the barring principle shows that the artist had not one real grievance against the interests I represent, and that the reason why they would not strike against us even after my refusal to sign the "Charter" is thus made quite clear.

The V.A.F.

Mr. Monte Bayly, general secretary of the Variety Artists' Federation, writes to state that the artists are on the whole satisfied with the Award of the Arbitrator on the recent dispute, and that three or four hundred of them, at a meeting at the Empire, Camberwell, passed a vote of thanks to Mr. Askwith. The barring clause, he adds, is more stringent and complicated than was hoped for, but now some finality is attached to barring, and the principle that some restriction must be placed upon it is established.

"THE ERA" AND THE AWARD.

THE Referee has kindly remarked that The Era deserves great credit for having, at very short notice, issued on Saturday last a verbatim copy of the Award as a special supplement. All concerned, or in any way interested, in the late strike will find The Era Award supplement handy to keep in the house or hall, as the case may be.

THE Encore, in speaking of Mr. Askwith's award, says: "The award, the long-awaited award, is at length out, and we must congratulate our contemporary, The Era, on the enterprise which enabled it to print the full text as an inset and get it through by Saturday morning, a task the difficulties of which only those behind the scenes of a printer's can appreciate."

HORACE WHEATLEY.

AT THE THEATRE ROYAL, EDINBURGH.

Amid the rush for up-to-dateness, it is with pleasure that one sees Mr. Horace Wheatley. In striking contrast to Miss Florence Yaymen's amusing skit on coon singing and dancing is this happy Irishman's impersonation of one of the "good ould sort." He has a way of his own in his patter and songs, all reminiscent of the "little isle," and his neat and seemingly effortless step-dancing is characteristic of a class of humorist that is unfortunately almost unknown now.—Evening Dispatch.

AT THE PAVILION, NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

The name of Horace Wheatley has been a household word in the music-hall world for many a year. "The Genial Irishman" is full of resource yet . . . . few stories, told with his old humour, and, in response to a warm encore, Mr. Wheatley sang a ditty of "The Hearty Veteran," which went as well as anything."—Daily Journal, Dec. 18, 1906.

Horace Wheatley, the genial and versatile Irishman, with his touches of pathos and comedy, and the lightness of his dancing, was a tremendous favourite.—Northern Gossip.

AT THE PALACE, GLASGOW.

That genial old Irish comedian, Horace Wheatley, is the attraction at the Palace this week. Horace, although getting very far on in years, demonstrated last night that he is still capable of singing tunefully his little Irish songs. But it is his dancing which fascinates, and after a round of the present-day new-fangled noisy American dances, it is delightful to watch Horace Wheatley's grace of movement and execution. Without a doubt Horace Wheatley is still on the top rung in regard to this branch of the music-hall trade.—Glasgow News, May 21.

AT THE PALACE, LEEDS.

There is no lack of goodly entertainment at the Palace this week. Horace Wheatley, with his Irish songs and clever step-dancing, is a host in himself, and bound to find favour with the patrons of the Holbeck house.—Leeds Mercury, May 28.

AT THE TIVOLI THEATRE, DUBLIN.

Long before the doors opened at the Tivoli last night a big crowd had asembled in order to make sure of admission to see Horace Wheatley, who is probably the most popular comedian at present on the boards. On taking the stage he was greeted with loud applause, but after he had told numerous funny stories, sung several songs, and given a dance, all in his own inimitable style, he was vociferously encored, and had to give an impromptu dance before the curtains before he was allowed to retire.—Dublin Evening Mail, June 11.

THAT popular chorus vocalist, Miss Dora Lyric, is this week topping the bill at Barnard's Palace, Chatham, where she is delighting her audiences and drawing packed houses.

MR. RYDER SLONE will shortly produce an amusing character study, entitled The Night Watchman; or, This is My Silver Wedding. It is a fine example of the work always expected from and supplied by C. W. Murphy.

MR. DONAL MACDOUGALL, a Scotch comedian who is proud of his clan, is scoring a gratifying success with his "tartanic" humour at Edinburgh toon, d'ye ken, where he is modest enough to bottom the bill at the Alhambra.

(For other Variety Notices see pages 16 and 19.)

MISS GIPSY WOOLF.

Miss Gipsy Woolf, the talented music-hall artist, who has just returned to England after a twelve months' Continental engagement, seems to have had some very enjoyable experiences during her travels. Among the towns she visited were Paris, Amsterdam, Cologne, Berlin, Hamburg, Bremen, Leipsic, Hanover, Dresden, Nuremberg, Copenhagen, Christiania, Frankfort, and Brussels.

"I have had a most delightful tour," remarked Miss Woolf to us the other day. "Everything appeared to be in my favour. For instance, while I was at Hamburg, where I appeared at the Hansa Theatre, what is known as the Domzeit was in progress. The whole town was en fête, and every theatre in the world was represented either by agents or managers. Everybody of theatrical repute was there, and it was the last occasion on which I saw the late Mr. George Adney Payne. The managers and others were all supposed to meet at the various cafés to talk about business, but it generally meant having a jolly good time. A huge fair was held in the centre of the town, and the different entertainers vied with one another in providing attractions.

"Theatrical life in Germany is very different from what it is in this country. Attached to many of the theatres are restaurants, where the artists can have their meals pleasantly in each other's company. Then the theatres in Germany are incomparably more beautiful than those in Britain, speaking both from the point of view of architecture and interior appointments. The work for the artists is much easier, too. There is no such thing as two shows a night; but, on the other hand, we have to engage in Sunday work, and take part in two performances on that day.

MISS GIPSY WOOLF.

"I thought Nuremberg such a quaint old city. I stayed there a month, and saw all there was to be seen, including the famous clock and the Eisenjungfrau, the terrible instrument of torture used for political prisoners. In Norway we had a lovely time. During our stay in Christiania we used to trudge to the top of the hills and indulge in the wildest feats of tobogganing. They have such a charming custom there at Christmas time. Two or three days before Christmas, and when everything was wreathed in snow, I noticed that from all the windows—even of the poorest houses—big bunches of corn were hanging, and from the trees in the gardens of the big houses corn was also hanging. This was done so as to give the birds a happy Christmas, and I can assure you that if you had seen the empty stalks a few days after Christmas, you would have realised how highly the feathered trible appreciated the festive banquet provided for them. In Amsterdam, where I appeared at the Circus Carre, I was much struck by the variety and picturesqueness of the costumes."

While on the Continent Miss Woolf presented her scena, entitled Fun in a Cornfield, in which she was assisted by the six young ladies forming her troupe. The act consisted mainly of singing and dancing, and Miss Woolf introduced for the first time to Continental audiences the popular song "The Zuyder Zee." Owing to the success she attained by this engagement she has had numerous offers to go back to various countries, and in September she commences another tour, which is to last a few months, during which she will visit several of the towns already named.

Miss Woolf—who, by the way, is a daughter of Mr. Jack Woolf, the general-manager of the Queen's, Poplar, and the proprietor of Wonderland—will be touring the provinces for the next few weeks, will shortly produce a new scena, entitled The Mermaid at Margate, the words being by Mr. Ballard Macdonald and the music by Mr. Donovan Meher. New and elaborate scenery has been painted for this production, and some dresses have been designed and made by Miss Lily Woolf, of 108, Charing Cross-road, W.C. Miss Gipsy Woolf will take the part of the mermaid, and will be supported by her troupe of eight girls. After returning from the Continent, Miss Woolf goes on the Stoll tour, probably appearing in London for pantomime.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

Far and away the best feature of the excellent programme provided by Mr. Arthur J. Barclay this week for the delectation of his patrons is the production of the now popular musical-comedy sketch, The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, as performed by Mr. Arthur Watson, Miss Flo Stanley, and their talented troupe. This breezy little play is noticed in another column. Among the variety company are Selby and Myers, who sing "He and I" and patter effectively; the Musical Schafers perform prodigies of harmony on all sorts of weird instruments, and are loudly applauded; Mr. Charles Bignell sings in his well-known rollicking style "I'm the happiest man alive" and "Only twenty-one." A pretty and talented young lady called La Danseuse appears in a speciality entitled Noel; or, A Child's Christmas Dream, in the course of which she delights the audience with some capital dancing, including a sailor's hornpipe, a Highland fling, and a sand dance. La Danseuse is warmly received. One of the biggest successes of the week is achieved by the Bouncing Dillons. The gentleman works wonders on the springs, and the lady is no less successful as a graceful acrobat; but the fun waxes fast and furious when a number of lads appear to take part in a "bouncing" competition. The grotesque doings of these youngsters send the audience into screams of laughter. Prizes are to be given on Friday night. Mr. George Newburn's reproduction of the manner of various favourites is decidedly clever, those of Harry Lauder and Geo. Lashwood being the best. A serious sketch, written by G. W. Appleton, entitled The Unbidden Guest, is well played by Miss Alice Yorke, Mr. H. Brandon, and Mr. Vernon Sansbury. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope has the usual good show of films.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

TO-DAY (Saturday) there will be sounds of revelry by daylight at Wendover, Bucks, the occasion being the annual outing of the combined staffs of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, and the scene that famous hostelry the Red Lion Hotel. Both the Charing Cross-road and the Denmark-street branches will be entirely closed, and rumour hints darkly at a certain decoration to be worn by members of the large party, who will be accommodated with special saloons on the 10.5 a.m. from Marylebone (Great Central). Mr. David and Mr. Fred Day will be among the guests.

MUCH of the interest of that successful revival at the Vaudeville of Mrs. Ponderbury's Past centres round an episode concerning a song, and Miss Billie Burke's arch rendering of the said number, which is by Edward Montagu, has caused it to be largely inquired for already. It is entitled "Molly Molyneux," and is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

AT no period of a strikingly successful career has Mr. Tom Costello been better fitted with well-contrasted songs than he is just now, and the two new numbers introduced to London by him on Monday at the Chelsea Palace are excellent vehicles for showing off his well-known versatility. The verdict of the great provincial cities on his chorus song, "For auld lang syne; or, my home is far away," was fully endorsed by town audiences, and Messrs. Leigh and Pether may be congratulated on having added yet another to the lengthening list of popular favourites written by them in conjunction. His first number, "The ten bob rise," was entirely new, and likewise scored an emphatic and unmistakable hit, and the song, in which the henpecked, trembling "house-worm" relates with fearful joy how he gets his "old pal Joe" to spend his "half-sovereign rise" for him each Saturday, so that his virago of a wife shall not have it, is enriched by "business" invented by the comedian, and the item goes with a scream from beginning to end of four long verses. It is by Edgar Bateman, with music by Bennett Scott, and is published by Messrs. Francis and Day, as is also Mr. Costello's "For auld lang syne."

To Messrs. Francis and Day's "Sixpenny Pops" series has now been added Nos. 377 and 378, namely, "Soon I'm leaving Dublin town" and "I'm a little bit deaf to-day," Edgar Curtis's popular humorous song.

MR. GEORGE LEYTON is to be congratulated on the sterling hit he has made with Messrs. Harrington and Tate's thrilling song-scena, Lucknow, at the London Hippodrome. The popular actor-vocalist considers this production the best thing he has yet essayed during his artistic career. Messrs. Harrington and Tate have been singularly successful in "fitting" Mr. George Leyton, as his other two big successes, "Nelson's Name" and "The Wreck of the Birkenhead," are both from the same prolific pens.

MR. GEORGE LASHWOOD, who has been the chief attraction at the Stratford Empire, produced a night or two since a new chorus song entitled "In the Twi-Twi-Twilight." Seldom has a number been launched with such evident and instantaneous signs of success. Everybody was humming the catchy refrain, and by the time the second verse was reached the chorus was taken up and sung by the audience in every part of the house. Mr. Lashwood is very emphatic in stating that it is the biggest chorus he has struck since "Riding on Top of the Car." "In the Twilight" is by Mr. Charles Wilmott and Mr. Herman E. Darewski. Messrs. Francis and Day are the publishers.

DENHAM HARRISON, the well-known composer and musical director, has been engaged by Mr. F. R. Benson to conduct and superintend the musical arrangements in connection with the big pageant to be given at Romsey on the 25th, 26th, and 27th inst., to celebrate the one thousandth anniversary of the founding of the Abbey by King Edward the Elder in the year 907.

THE performing rights of a new song, entitled "Sweet flowers of Spain," have been acquired by Miss Sylvia du Barry, who will feature it in town at the end of the month. It is by T. M. Down and Ernée Woodville, and the combination of brilliant bolero for the verse and a dreamy refrain will make the morceau much sought after when published.

FELIX MCGLENNON is again to the fore, and has this week placed with the Star Music Co. a charming Irish ballad with the pretty title "Blackbird." Artists who remember the hundreds of successes Mr. McGlennon has written will be glad to find his hand has lost none of its former cunning in the composition of attractive lines, and his natural gift of melody has enabled him to compose one of the prettiest of tunes, the lilt of which is quite irresistible.

DURING the past week the Star Music Co. have had quite a rush for copies of Percy Edgar and Kenneth Lyle's dashing light comedy song, "You can't do without a girl." This desirable state of affairs is undoubtedly due to the enormous success made with this number by George Leyton. Pierrots note!

THE many artists who have requested permission to sing Castling and Murphy's dainty Welsh love song, "On the Isle of Anglesey," will be glad to know the Star Music Co. are now giving a limited number of permits for this big winner.

MR. HARRY CADLE has written the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. a most eulogistic letter, concerning the success of his clever youngsters engaged in Casey's Court, in their rendering of Mr. J. F. Lambe's popular song, "Queen of Old Samara." Even in far-away Dunoon, on the banks of the Clyde, pierrots are winning enthusiastic plaudits with this charming number, which certainly bids fair to become the biggest of the present season's song successes.

NIPPER LUPINO LANE is one of the latest artists to exploit the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s popular songs. He will specially "feature" Messrs. Mellor, Lawrance and Gifford's Dutch song, "I'm going back to the Fatherland," at the Palace Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, on Monday next, and later in the week purposes producing "Georgie from Georgia," by Pelham and Rule. Needless to state, both of these well-known numbers are included in the enterprising Berners-street firm's "Sixpenny Successes" series.

MR. CHARLES WHITTLE has secured from Charles Ridgewell, the author and composer, of "I'm Billy Muggins," a comic song entitled "I'm-Dunn—Mister Dunn," in which the singer will again portray a cautious tyke who is not such a fool as he looks.

MR. F. V. ST. CLAIR, before leaving town, disposed of no less than eleven songs to the publishers. His "Flying Machine" song, which has a haunting melody, is already sold for Birmingham, Glasgow, Newcastle, Manchester, and Edinburgh pantomime. Messrs. Price and Reynolds are publishing several of his latest numbers.

"GIVE ME THE SHIPS" is a new naval song sung by A. R. Moyle, the descriptive baritone vocalist. It is written and composed by Mr. F. V. St. Clair, and has a fine breezy melody.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

Fairs Ahead.

THE fairs ahead for next week are Bromsgrove, on the Midland; Cambridge, on the Great Eastern, Great Northern, London and North-Western, and Midland; Farnham, on the London and South-Western; St. Just (Cornwall), on the Great Western; Willersey, on the Great Western; Bridgwater, on the Great Western; Newcastle-on-Tyne, on the North-Eastern and North British; Halifax, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire and Great Northern Joint; Yeovil, on the Great Western and South-Western; Andover, on the London and South-Western; Bolton-by-Bolland, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire; Folkestone, on the South-Eastern; Saltash, on the Great Western; Belper, on the Midland; Brampton, New (Derby), on the Midland; Duckmanton, on the Midland; Eckington, on the Midland; Edensor, on the Midland; Elmton, on the Midland; Winster, on the Midland; Farcham, on the London and South-Western; Reedham, on the Great Eastern; Fraserburgh, N.B., on the Great North of Scotland; Renfrew, on the Glasgow and South-Western; Lydney, on the Great Western and Midland; Ton-y-Pandy, on the Taff Vale Railways.

News from the West.

MESSRS. ANDERTON AND ROWLAND'S company, comprising inter alia the Sisters Anderson, vocalists and danseuses; Chas. Bruno, comedian; Fox, ventriloquist; and Miss E. May, dancer and song illustrator, in their grand theatre of varieties, have been playing to bumper houses in Newquay during most of this week. This show was visited by the Lord Mayor of London when at Helston, when the Lord Mayor congratulated Captain Rowland on the excellence of his show, and wished him every success. Particular mention must be made of Miss E. May, whose charming singing has evoked enormous applause throughout the western counties. This talented little lady should have a strong future ahead of her.

Astwood Bank.

AT Astwood Bank we have Herberts' roundabouts, park swings, shooting-saloons, bottle battery, cokernut sheets, &c.

A GRAND fête and sports will be held at Astwood Bank on Saturday, July 13.

Feckenham.

FECKENHAM WAKES will be held on Monday, July 1, not July 8, as falsely circulated. Feckenham is about nine miles from Bromsgrove.

Brierley Hill Fair.

THE venue of the fair was Locks-lane, and the ground was well arranged, and all the show novelties well displayed. The shows were Manders' star menagerie, and Sagar's palace of delight. The machines were P. Collins' racing cockerels and wheeley-whirley; Mrs. Hayes' yachts; Beach and Scarfe's overboats; throwing games, stalls, &c., by Messrs. Humphries, Whyall, Wagstaff, Stokes, Cooper, and others.

Aylesbury June Fair.

AT this fair Messrs. H. Thurston and Sons' new mountain motor-cars proved the chief attraction. Messrs. Biddall Brothers also visited the town with their two bioscope exhibitions. The smaller element was supplied by the usual local caterers, Messrs. C. Saunders, H. Brett, H. Smith, &c. Considering the unsettled weather business was very brisk.

Redditch.

REDDITCH SUMMER FAIR was held on the recreation ground, and was maintained by P. Collins's Wonderland (a magnificent show); also Wall's midget exhibition; Collins's three machines—the helter-skelter, lighthouse, the motor-cars, and the steam-yachts; midget horses by Wright and Cordwell; shooting-saloons, bottle batteries, stalls, strikers, and other novelties by Messrs. Wright, Cordwell, Powell, Parkins, Harris, and others. This is the first helter-skelter that has visited this town, and the large show and organ of Collins's has been the talk of Redditch and district.

The Guild Chaplain on Tour.

TO-MORROW (Sunday) the Organising Chaplain of the Showmen's Guild will address meetings of showpeople, both in the afternoon and evening. The gatherings will take place in Messrs. Tuby and Sons' Coliseum and Theatre of Varieties on the fairground. The evening meeting will take the form of the Guild Service, and Mr. Horne will be assisted by the Vicar of Mexboro' and the parish church choir.

Mitcham Fair, 1907.

WE draw our readers' attention to the special article on this subject in another portion of this page. Mr. Horne, the organising chaplain, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, of The Era, and Mr. Alf. Ball have been in conference this week with regard to the latest developments of this question, and it will be seen that important action is to be taken immediately. On Wednesday last Messrs. Horne and Ball spent many hours in Mitcham making necessary forward arrangements for a big public demonstration on the fairgreen next Thursday. As they passed through the village, eager men and women came rushing out from shop and cottage doorways to ask the important question, "Will there be a fair?" To all and sundry Mr. Ball, whose very presence is a guarantee of good faith, strength, and stability, gave the eminently satisfactory answer: "Yes; there will be a fair." But neither Mr. Horne nor Mr. Ball would be drawn any further than making that general statement.

Richmond (Yorks) Fair.

THE shows and machines at this fair included Murphy's cinematograph theatre, and the riding-machines and swings of Messrs. Crow, Shipley, Cowie, and Buck, the shooting concerns, throwing games, and varieties of Messrs. Harker, Cowie, Crow, Buck, and sundry local caterers.

Rawtenstall Fair.

THE Lancashire showmen have taken advantage of the security of their position at Rawtenstall by attending this fair in remarkable strength as regards the high-class quality of the concerns and the number of their exhibits. The cinematograph shows were those of Colonel Clark and James Norman, and with them were associated Bailey's circus; La Neve and Norah Sullivan, in feats of strength, and their charming bevy of lady wrestlers; Senator Leo's platonic phantasy; E. Ball's midget exhibition; Charles Relph's novelties and Mrs. Birch's aquatics. The machine list included the local caterers, and Mrs. Susan Holden and Tom Holden's ostrich-farm set and twin steam yachts. The other big machines were W. Mitchell, jun.'s, motor cars, Geoghegan's steam roundabouts, and R. H. Williams's tunnel railway. The swings were provided by Messrs. Slater and Shuttleworth; the bazaars by Messrs. Jameson and Bunhalls; varieties, throwing games, and shooting galleries by Messrs. Williams, Sharpe, Royle, Horton, Butterworth, T. Slater, Gallagar, Shorrocks, the Lorenzo Family, and the Jennings Family.

Mr. Alf. Ball's New Show.

THE metropolitan district will soon be distinguished by another entirely up-to-date cinematograph show front. Made to the special order and under the expert advice and supervision of the proprietor this wonderful example of high art on the fairground is the latest production of Messrs. Gabioli et Cie., of Paris. Mr. Ball is now concluding an eminently successful season at Tilbury Docks, and he expects the arrival of his new show next week. He will stay ten days or a fortnight longer at Tilbury Dock, erecting and practically testing the capabilities of his new venture before taking it out on the road. We heartily join in the congratulations of Mr. Ball's many friends upon this step forward and upward in his profession.

White City, Old Trafford.

NOTWITHSTANDING the tardiness of summer, thousands of well-pleased patrons have visited the White City, Old Trafford, Manchester, where mirth and merriment have reigned supreme since the gates were thrown open to the public some five weeks ago. The principal features of the City of Pleasure, as it has been aptly termed, are now in good running order, and new attractions are being added from time to time. It is without doubt the most extraordinary as well as the most beautiful place of its kind anywhere. One can now fully appreciate the work done by managing director J. Calvin Brown, who sustains the reputation made by him as a veritable "wizard."

MR. HENRY DRAKE'S Zingari Pierrots give acceptable performances. Simbri, the Oriental illusionist and magician, is here this week, mystifying good houses. Milton's Marionettes are also a good attraction. The Black Dyke Band conductors, Mr. John Gladney and Mr. Harry Bower, provide an excellent programme in the grounds, and the White City orchestra, conductor, Herr Leon Weltman, also perform in the ballroom. Another addition which is popular is P. Collins's razzle-dazzle. A grand fancy dress carnival was announced for to-night (19th inst.).

Scene in a Menagerie.

THE menagerie of Herr Hagenback at Hamburg has been the theatre of a tragic incident. One of the attendants discovered that a tiger was ill. He informed the manager, and led him to the tiger's cage. As soon as he opened the door, however, the attendant slipped and fell on the floor. In a moment the tiger was upon him and seized one of his arms. Herr Hagenbeck, in his efforts to force the tiger off the attendant, was bitten on the face. Finally other employés of the menagerie arrived and rescued the two men. The manager is not seriously injured, but the attendant's arm is almost entirely clawed off.

ANSWERS TO SHOWMEN.

H. SPENCER WILLIAMS (Wrexham).—The compilation of the list of fairs involves a great deal of trouble and time. We never begin this exacting work for the ensuing year until September or October, the current one, and the list is never published for the New Year until the middle of January. We quite recognise your difficulty, but we cannot help you beyond suggesting that it might serve your purpose to write to the Market Inspectors of the towns you wish to take in your tour for 1908.

MR. ARSCOTT (Toronto, Canada).—Many thanks for your paper. We have heard nothing of any value to you this side. Wish you every success in your present work.

WALTER WILMOT.—The Guild Chaplain regrets that absence on tour in Wales prevented him receiving your letter before Wednesday morning. We trust that you got the copy of "The Era," but if it did not reach you send your address for this week-end to the Publisher, "The Era," and a copy of this week's paper will be forwarded.

JAMES LEO.—Many, many thanks. We rejoice that you are resuming your good work of correspondence.

DEATH OF A FAMOUS DWARF.

The people at the fair at Sparkhill, Birmingham, and indeed the wider circle of the showman world, were deeply saddened by the news of the death of Mrs. Sophia Morris, professionally known as Mme. Small, the lady midget. The deceased lady toured the county for many years with her husband, professionally known as General Small. The General died two years ago, and for some time past Mrs. Morris has been in poor health. The funeral, which attracted a large concourse of people, took place at the Yardley Cemetery, at Birmingham. The coffin was of polished English oak, with brass fittings, and bore the inscription: "Sophia Morris. Died June 7, 1907. Aged 34 years." The tiny coffin (a child's size, the little lady only being 3ft. 4in. in height) was drawn to the cemetery in a four-horse hearse, and was covered with many floral tributes of esteem and respect from her wide circle of friends and acquaintances. The principal mourner was the midget daughter of the deceased, known as "Pansy," and in the mourning coaches (five in number) were—Mr. John Hastings and his son, Mr. Goddard (brother of the deceased), Mr. Chamberlain (Leicester), Mr. Shaw (Brighouse), Mr. Haydn, Mr. and Mrs. Mercer (Salford), Mr. and Mrs. Deekes, Mr. and Mrs. Proctor and daughter (of circus fame), Mr. and Mrs. Lee, Mr. Leonard Harris, Mrs. Horton, Mrs. Jones, the wife of Tich of Collins's Fair (who was unable to be present owing to an engagement), Mrs. Wall (of show fame), Mrs. Humphries, and Mrs. Andrews (of the Wellington Inn, Small Heath). The bearers were employees of Mr. John Hastings and fellow-workers of the deceased. Floral tributes were received from deceased's brother, Mr. Goddard, of Bradford; Mr. and Mrs. P. Collins (Walsall), Mr. and Mrs. John Collins (World's Fair, Liverpool), a pretty little wreath from her daughter Pansy, a cushion in flowers with the words "Rest in the Lord," from her employer, Mr. Hastings, a harp of lilies from Mr. and Mrs. Mercer (Salford), Mr. and Mrs. Humphries (Great Bridge) (wreath), fellow employees (wreath), anchor from the employees of John Collins, Golden Hillock road, wreath from Tich and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Horton (wreath), Mr. and Mrs. Deekes (anchor), and also from Mr. and Mrs. Haydn, Mr. and Mrs. Dobson, Mr. Herbert Lewis (Manchester), Mr. and Mrs. Wall, Mr. and Mrs. Vallus, the employees of Mr. Mercer, the employees of Mr. Collins (Fun Fair, Leamington), Mr. and Mrs. Lee, and Mr. and Mrs. Andrews (Small Heath).

The funeral arrangements were conducted by Mr. H. Humphries, of Great Bridge, the carriages being supplied by Messrs. Ambler Bros., Longmore-street.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The concise descriptions that we give below are specially contributed by Messrs. Howard and Co., patent agents, 57 and 58, Chancery Lane, London, W.C., who will assist our readers in all matters appertaining to inventions:—

2,851.—Seats. J. Taylor, Clifton-drive, Ansdell, Lytham, Lancs. A seat for theatres and other purposes of the type in which a waterproof or like cover is secured over the seat and released and drawn back by a weight, spring, or the like when the occupant rises; is provided with a rocking front which disengages the cover when the occupant sits down. The cover is secured to a hook or fastener under the rocking front, so that when a person sits down the lower part of the front pushes the cover off, and enables it to be drawn back automatically by a roller weight when the occupant rises. Two covers are preferably employed for each seat. Instead of each end of each cover being secured inside the seat and separate weights employed, the two covers may be in one piece, one end arranged to pull out in one direction and the other in the opposite direction, and one weight may be employed to draw both ends inwards. The covers also may be arranged in the back of the seat, or both in the back and underneath the seat.

THE FIGHT FOR MITCHAM FAIR.

There is little honour in being a prophet after the event, but it is universally conceded that when a prophet prophesies in advance of the event, and is thereby in due time justified, there is considerable reward and occasion for satisfaction. When the whole of the London Press announced last year the abolition of Mitcham Fair, we not only contradicted this very definite statement, but we ventured to prophesy that the fair would take place as usual. The fair did take place, and a demonstration of Mitcham people and their friends in defence of their fair rights also took place on the Fair Sunday. The Conservators and a number of gentlemen who claimed to be the owners of the fair franchise issued a proclamation stating that "No ground would be let on the ancient Fair-green to showmen or other traders." The old tenants, showmen, and others did, however, draw up on the Green, and did hold the fair, despite the unknown terrors of the joint proclamation of the Mitcham Conservators and owners of the franchise.

What Happened to the Showmen.

Because the Home Secretary did not issue an order stopping the fair the County Police refused to take action, and simply stood by as spectators of the struggle between the daring showmen and the autocratic Conservators. An action for trespass was entered in the High Court against three of the daring show tenants—Messrs. Ball, Wilson, and Hill. This injunction would have been contested but for the unfortunate complication of the legal issues involved in the "belated" discovery of extraordinary (so-called) powers possessed by the Conservators under an Act of Parliament obtained by them sixteen years ago. These powers gave them no right to abolish of their own free will the old Charter fair, but it did contain provisions for compensating the Lord of the Manor (or his assigns) for any money loss that might ensue under a scheme of so-called improvement of the common lands carried out by the Conservators. In their "Statement of Claim" the Conservators stated that when they issued their order forbidding shows to draw on to the Fair-green, and thus practically stopping the fair for 1906, they were acting under the provisions of this private Act of theirs, and in furtherance of a (hypothetical) improvement scheme for the common lands. This "new issue" entirely changed the face of affairs as it was then disclosed to the showmen. The defendants, Messrs. Ball, Wilson, and Hill, took counsel's opinion upon the new situation. The Honourable Ewen Charteris, the eminent Parliamentary barrister, who for many years past has specialised in the niceties of the law as touching showmen's business, gave it as his opinion that this private Act of Parliament might be held to give the Conservators powers to absorb by compulsion (and necessary compensation) the existing fair franchise as regards the collection of rents and tolls.

The Conservators Could Not Abolish the Fair.

This could only be done under the provisions of the Abolition of Fairs Act, with the consent of the Home Secretary. The significance of this element in the matter will be seen when it is remembered that the Home Secretary refused to abolish the fair in 1906. Had it not been for the discovery of their new claim to proceed under a private Act of Parliament the Conservators would undoubtedly have found themselves in the position of having grossly exceeded their authority in forbidding showmen and traders to carry on a fair which had not been constitutionally abolished. Had there been the straight issue only between the showmen and the Conservators of the abolition of the fair, and the claim to override the decision of the Home Secretary, there would have been no doubt as to the ultimate victory of the showmen and fair-ground traders. The "new issue" raised the possibility of a long and expensive suit in the High Court, and the friends of the defendant showmen did not advise them to accept the financial responsibility which such a suit would have involved. The consequence was that they accepted the injunction which bound them not to trespass again upon the Fair-green. And once more there came the chorus of the daily Press, "Mitcham Fair verily and indeed abolished."

The Real Points at Issue.

The first and the most important point is that up to the present moment Mitcham Charter Fair is not abolished. It is true that three showmen are under a ban of the High Court, and that these men, until the point is finally settled as to the assumed powers of the Conservators, dare not draw up on the Fair-green. The second point is that the Conservators are so uncertain as to their powers (under which they have already penalised Messrs. Ball, Hill, and Wilson) that they are again asking the Home Secretary to abolish the fair. It is an interesting comment on the present state of affairs at Mitcham that the friends of the autocratic Conservators on the Parish Council have persuaded that body to join them in their crusade against the continuance of the fair.

Divided Counsels.

From what we have been able to learn, there appear to be three parties (divided on this question of the fair) on the Mitcham Parish Council. The first party is pledged to abolition at any cost and at all risks. The second party, and probably the largest group, is pledged to the removal of the fair to a more convenient site; and the third party are definitely opposed in the interests of the people to the abolition of the fair. The misfortune up to the present moment has been that for all practical purposes, and certainly upon all the issues raised up to the present, parties number one and two have acted together, leaving the defenders of the fair in a decided minority. We are confident that the moment has arrived for endeavouring to bring about a better understanding between the party whose only object is to remove the fair to a better site and the sturdy champions of the fair who constitute the third group. A union thus effected between those who would improve the fair and those who insist on maintaining it would leave the abolitionists in a hopeless minority.

The Appeal to the People.

The Showmen's Guild, fully realising the position of affairs at Mitcham, has determined to take immediate action to arouse and to lead public opinion, and we confidently anticipate that when Mitcham has asserted itself in defence of its ancient fair, and given a proper lead and mandate to its enlightened representatives on the Parish Council, the small clique that stands for the spoliation of the people's ancient Fair rights and franchises will meet with the ignominy and the defeat that they so justly deserve. To illustrate the machinations of this narrow clique who stand pledged to the abolition of the fair at all costs, we reproduce from the local Press the extraordinary arguments of the friends of the Conservators, who moved the Parish Council to support the Conservators in yet another application for the abolition of the fair.

Mr. Aldwinckle moved:—"That the Conservators of Mitcham Common be urged to follow up the proceedings which they have already taken with the view of abolishing the annual fair by making another application to the Home Secretary for an order closing the fair for ever." Mr. Aldwinckle said he hoped the Council would be unanimous. The Council by grant and public subscription had acquired the right of the fair from the owner, Mrs. Bailey, with a view of getting it abolished. These rights could not be abolished except by an order signed by the Home Secretary. He thought they were nearly all agreed in England that the present Home Secretary was by no means a strong man, a man not likely to do anything of that kind on his own initiative unless he was forced to or backed up by public opinion. He therefore asked for the unanimous support of the Council in order that the Conservators could again approach the Home Secretary, who, he believed, had again this year refused to issue an order for the abolition of the fair. Last year he refused to issue the order because the notice was too short. The situation was also this, that the Conservators had obtained an injunction against the showmen, or a number of the showmen, but there was nothing to prevent them holding the fair, such as the selling of merchant goods, fried fish, or for having cheap Jacks there, unless they got this order. Their position was an intolerable one, because they had the Fair-green a desert waste. If they had this order they could make it a recreation ground or a beautiful garden, and Upper Mitcham would then become like Lower Mitcham—that part of it at any rate—a rural spot marred only by a little hideous modern architecture.

Mr. A. Mizen thought that if the Council made direct application to the Home Secretary it would strengthen the application of the Conservators, who did not directly represent the parish, only four being Mitcham members. He seconded the resolution. The fair rights belonged to the parish, and they were anxious that they should belong to the parish. At present they were held by private individuals who were holding them for safety until such time as the Home Secretary issued the order.

Mr. Baker: Do I understand that if this motion is carried and the Home Secretary accedes to your wishes the rights of the people, so far as the fair is concerned, will be done away with?

The Chairman: On the Fair-green.

Mr. Baker: They won't prevent us holding a fair.

The Chairman: They cannot hold it on the Fair-green.

Mr. Baker: We could hold it somewhere else.

Mr. E. Mizen: Who will?

Mr. A. Mizen: They are opening one at Merton.

Mr. E. Mizen said the Conservators had received many applications with reference to the holding of the fair. So far as the Conservators were concerned they were quite welcome to hold it in any public-house yard or anywhere else so long as it was not on the Common. As a matter of fact, a fair was often held at Gorringe Park at different times of the year.

Mr. Baker said that was on private ground. He took it that the Council desired that nothing should happen that would in any way interfere with the rights of the people. As one of those returned at the last election to safeguard, as far as possible, the ancient rights of the people, he was not anxious that the fair should be held on the Fair-green, but he believed that it should be held year after year.

The motion was carried, eleven voting for it and four against. With regard to this move on the part of the "friends of the Conservators," we have only to remark that we hear (apparently for the first time) that the Home Secretary has already refused to issue an order abolishing the fair this present year of grace. "Last year," said Mr. Aldwinckle, "the Home Secretary refused because the notice was too short," and their position was evidently a worse one this year, for he has again refused, and given no reason. Another curious piece of information is, that there is a doubt as to the ownership of the rights purchased from Mrs. Bailey. Mr. Aldwinckle said that the Council had acquired by grant and public subscription the rights of the fair from the late owner, Mrs. Bailey, but Mr. A. Mizen (who ought to know) said that at the present the fair rights were held for safety (for whom and for what?) by private individuals who were holding them (evidently afraid of the Council) in their own hands until such time as the Home Secretary falls into line (persuaded by the pushful Mr. Aldwinckle) to "toe the line," and to issue the necessary order to legalise (or regularise) the autocratic action of the all-powerful Conservators.

The Guild Executive and the Fight for Mitcham.

In consideration of the important fact that there are vital principles at stake, touching the life and liberty of every showman in this question (complicated as it is) of the defence of Mitcham Fair, the Showmen's Guild has determined to definitely enter the arena and to help the people of Mitcham to maintain their old-time pleasure fair. Showmen throughout the country will see that it is of the most vital importance to them that any public body arrogating to itself the right to override the Statute law of the land and to abolish (whether by a subterfuge or a perversion of the law) an existing fair should be fought with all the power possessed by the organised showmen of the Empire. We have always recognised that "The Abolition of Fairs Act" does provide proper machinery for the abolition of fairs that no longer serve any useful purpose, but we do not recognise the right of either corporations or individuals to abolish a fair without an appeal to the traders and the people concerned as provided by the Statute. Last year the Showmen's Guild, as in duty bound, petitioned against the proposed abolition of Mitcham Fair. The Guild petition was supported by petitions from individual traders in Mitcham itself, and the result of the agitation was—the refusal of the Home Office to grant abolition. In the Guild petition the showmen recognised that the justice of the matter would be met by removing the fair to a more commodious and less dangerous site. The Home Secretary, in his reply to the various petitioners, approved of this suggested removal of site. In repeated interviews and official communications between the Guild Executive and the Mitcham Conservators, the showmen have frequently urged the removal of the fair to the Three Kings portion of Mitcham Common. To all these suggestions and pourparlers, the Conservators (with all politeness) turned a deaf ear. The Showmen's Guild has failed to move "the powers that be," and they now appeal from "the would-be masters" to the real masters of the situation—the sovereign people. If the people, properly appealed to, decide that they do not want the fair, then will the showmen take their goods and their talents to other markets.

Proposed Meetings and Petitions.

On Thursday next, June 27, the Guild will hold a public demonstration in favour of the fair at seven o'clock in the evening on Mitcham Fair-green. The chair will be taken by Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, of The Era, and one of the honorary treasurers of the Guild; and amongst the speakers will be the Rev. T. Horne, Mr. T. Watson Wright, and a number of local gentlemen, members of the Parish Council and others interested in preserving the fair for the people of Mitcham. A resolution asking the Parish Council to reconsider the claim of the people to their old Charter Fair, and further requesting them to oppose the abolition petition which is now being promoted with a view to influence the Home Secretary against the fair will be proposed. A resolution will also be proposed asking them to accede to the wish of the people and to remove the fair from the Fair-green to the more suitable site on the Three Kings Common. A monster petition will be opened for the people of Mitcham to sign against the proposed abolition, but at the same time expressing willingness to accept removal to a better fairground.

What Must London Showmen Do?

Here is a big struggle for the retention of a fair that is not dying out, but (given more room to expand) would develop into the finest pleasure fair within the Metropolitan district. The vast residential area, "London over the Surrey border," is growing by leaps and bounds, and to preserve a fair in the midst of its teeming multitudes is of the utmost importance to the business prosperity of the show industry. We therefore appeal to every London showman who can possibly get away from his concern, or who is at the present time within easy access of Mitcham, to rally round the executive officers of the Guild.

EDUCATION FADDISTS ON THE WARPATH.

At the recent annual meeting of the County Councils Association, under the presidency of Lord BELPER, held at the Guildhall, Westminster, a discussion took place on a proposal to promote a Bill in Parliament to secure the registration of van and tent dwellers.

Sir WILLIAM VINCENT, in opening the discussion, dealt with the legislation required for dealing with the nomad classes. He said they had received expressions of opinion from thirty-seven County Council Committees in England and Wales, and of these, thirteen favoured legislation, in addition to several others who had signified their assent in 1898. London qualified its opinion. On the previous Sunday he had a census taken in Surrey, and found there were 1,518 inhabitants of vans and tents, of whom 340 were of school age. Only forty-four of these children were attending school in the county or receiving any education. Registration seemed of the very first importance, and it was suggested that all temporary dwelling should be licensed by the County Councils and registered as belonging to a certain district. The Act should contain clauses dealing with the education of the children. He moved that the matter be referred to the Executive Council.

Mr. J. W. WILLIS BUND (Worcestershire) seconded, and this was carried.

Following upon this discussion, Mr. WHITEHEAD, M.P., put the following question in the House of Commons:—"To ask the Secretary to the Treasury whether vans used as dwellings are subject to any duty corresponding to Inhabited House Duty or the licence duty on carriages; or, like motor-cars, are required to be registered and to bear a reference number; and if not whether His Majesty's Government, with a view to more effective control over dwellers in vans by the sanitary, police, and education authorities, will introduce legislation to provide for such registration, bearing of a reference number, and payment of a licence duty."

Mr. RUNCIMAN, Under-Secretary of State to the Treasury, made the following reply:—"I am informed that vans used as dwellings by the gipsy class are not chargeable with licence duty. They are trade carts, and hawkers' licences are taken. Caravans used as dwellings for pleasure, or other than trade purposes, are carriages within the meaning of the Act, and chargeable with licence duty."

The Danger to Showmen Van-Dwellers.

We recognise fully that the main purpose of these educational faddists is to capture for the education machine the child of the gipsy and the travelling hawker; but our complaint is, and we must never tire of reiterating it, that until our County Councillors and Members of Parliament recognise that in all proposals of this drastic nature that showmen and fairground traders using vans must be exempt, we shall be obliged to oppose all such wide-embracing and misleading proposals. In the Moveable Dwellings Bill introduced in the year 1892 there were proposals of a like character to those mentioned above. Clause I. provided that no moveable dwelling should be used as a place of abode until it had been registered, and stated serious penalties for the neglect of registration. Clause II. provided that the Local Government Board should have powers to make, revoke, and vary regulations respecting the registration of moveable dwellings and the granting of certificates of registration, and providing for the labelling of such dwellings, and embodied serious penalties for non-compliance with the Act. And Clause III. provided that every county authority should carry the Act out and appoint officers for the purpose.

The object of these proposed regulations was to bring (according to the promoters of the Bill) van-dwellers under the ordinary sanitary and educational laws of the land.

The Men Who Never Learn.

The present group of education faddists in the House of Commons and their fellow-workers on our public bodies are evidently inspired by the same narrow, fanatical bitterness of spirit that moved George Smith and his fellow-workers twenty years ago. These men never learn; they have allowed themselves to become sterotyped, and no matter how the world may move along progressive lines and become more tolerant of the difficulties and complexities of human life, these educational "Chadbands" go about endeavouring to make everything come within the measurement of their "two-foot rule—exact compliance with an iron-shod law." Men and women and dear children must be broken 'neath this iron heel of their tyrannical creation; family life, and all that is meant by love of home—father, mother, child—all these must be destroyed that the fads and fancies of these men may prevail.

What the Showman Has Done.

He has proved again and again before Committees of the House of Commons, and he has expounded and defended from a thousand platforms, the indisputable truth that the educational machinery of the State and the multiplicity of private schools (open to the showman's child as to other citizens' children) amply provides for the education of the children of the fairground. For over twenty years the Board of Education has been increasing the educational facilities, and keeping, in both town and country, an open door for the showman's child. The truth of the position to-day is, that no further legislation is required, and that every advantage is taken by showpeople of the ample facilities provided by State education and by the private and secondary schools. We are in a position to demonstrate this.

Misleading Statistics.

Sir William Vincent, in the discussion reported above, states that on a certain Sunday he had a census taken in the county of Surrey, and found that there were 1,518 inhabitants of vans and tents, and of these 340 were children of school age, and that the census afforded the startling fact that only forty-four of these children were attending school in the county or receiving any education. These remarkable figures were discussed by the executive of the Showmen's Guild, and it was resolved that a searching analysis of the numbers should be taken, and it should be seen how far these figures applied to the children of travelling showpeople, the probability being that the census related entirely to certain large settlements of gipsies in the county of Surrey. The executive of the Showmen's Guild again protest against the misleading assumption that "gipsy" and "showman" are synonymous terms. They are compelled to maintain an expensive Parliamentary Scrutiny and Defence Agency in order to make this protest upon every occasion when, whether in Parliament or out of it, the words "van-dweller" and "tent-dweller" are used in such a vague and misleading manner as to imply that they cover all persons who use tents and vans for the purposes of their avocation in life.

The Need for Continued Defence Work.

We warn our showmen readers that the enemy at their gate is still active, still persistent, and that their object is to stigmatise and label the travelling showman as a fit subject for special and coercive legislation. We ask showmen to notice that the County Councils have formed an association—that they are combined for the purpose of obtaining special legislation to increase their powers. In order to combat this immediate danger it is necessary for every showman and fair-ground trader to join forces by becoming members of the Showmen's Guild. Without a strong combination to fight against these opposing forces both in the country and in Parliament the showman's business will become so hampered and ultimately so injured that it will cease to afford, as it does at the present time, an acceptable, honest, and industrious means of livelihood.

FILM GOSSIP.

Charles Urban Trading Co.

"A BAFFLED BURGLAR" is one of the new picture subjects of this company, for which a great demand may be anticipated, if excellent staging, clever acting, and diverting situations count for success. A burglar, at "work" in a suburban residence, discovered by the lady of the house, is soundly trounced and cowed. Until her husband arrives she makes her unwilling guest nurse and feed her baby; but while he is thus engaged a pair of mice, caught in a cage, alarm the mother, who seizes the child and mounts the table. The burglar liberates the mice, and, under cover of the confusion, makes his escape from the house, only to fall—literally—into the jaws of a little watch dog, who hangs on to his catch to the end of the picture. Many laughable incidents occur in subsequent scenes. The burglar clings to the chassis of a motor, which is followed by another car containing the irate lady and her family. An exciting pursuit, in which burglar and dog are dragged through a stream and bumped along suburban roads, is ended by the arrest of the burglar, while the tenacious dog worries his mouthful of reward.

"HANKY PANKY CARDS" is made up of a series of dainty, clever, and beautiful illusions. A magic pack mysteriously appears, the cards rise one by one from the case, fall to the ground, from whence, in defiance of all natural laws, they rise unaided and re-enter the case. The King and Queen of Hearts leave their cards, gracefully pirouette, embrace, and again resume card form. The Knave materialises, and deals his own suit, and an Ace divides and sub-divides into four aces, the centre of each being filled with an animated face, which indulges in grimaces of a most humorous character. The cards of the whole pack are finally seen to arrange themselves upon the screen, with a smiling, animated "Joker" in the centre.

BOXING CONTEST.—The final boxing contest of the season at the National Sporting Club for £650, and the 8st 10lb. Championship of England between Driscoll and Bowker, is a thrilling reproduction. As the contest lasted for seventeen rounds, it is obvious that a complete picture would be costly, but the Charles Urban Trading Co. has prepared a series in which only the principal features are introduced. These exciting episodes are arranged in their exact sequence, and the stage of the match may easily be seen from the card hanging in front of the Press box. The lighting arrangements for securing these "interior" pictures are so successful that every corner of the N.S.C., and every face in the field of the camera, are reproduced sharply and with complete absence of shadow.

"THE SHORT-SIGHTED CYCLIST" of the same company is still going strong at the Alhambra. Though this exciting and humorous picture has enjoyed a seven weeks' run its popularity is as great as it was on the first night.

Pathé Frères.

THIS company, as usual, are not behindhand in the matter of attractive and original subjects. One of these, bearing the title, "Harlequin's Story," and measuring 1352ft., has some exceedingly novel "effects." Two figures, made up to represent Harlequin and Columbine, have been standing on pedestals for a long time, enjoying in silence each other's company. But Columbine is taken away, and Harlequin goes forth in pursuit. In this eminently chivalrous enterprise he is assisted by pigmies, who build bridges for him, and in other ways render service to him. They set on fire the house whither the pretty doll-maiden has been taken, and Harlequin, searching among the débris, discovers the separate limbs of his beloved, reverently places them in a bag, and subsequently, and, unlike Humpty Dumpty, puts them all together again.

MOTORISTS will find exceeding interest in the new Biograph pictures of the Weybridge motor track now being shown at the Empire. The series reveals the entire course from end to end, and the last film presents us with the big crowd of cars which were seen at the recent private view.

"RED SPECTRE." — Another very attractive film by the same firm is that called "Red Spectre." The Spectre is most assiduous in his attentions to the members of the fair sex. He is gallant enough to give them special consideration. We see two beautiful women standing patiently in the background of the picture while he prepares their destruction. His modus operandi is exceedingly simple, but, at the same time, exceedingly effective. He tenderly lifts each victim, lays them on a small table, wraps them in a black shroud, and then, in a mysterious way, they are seen to rise in the air until, having reached a certain point, where it is to be presumed that the atmosphere is of an ultra-tropical nature, they are cremated, and we see the shroud falling away from the bodies in picces. The different scenes and the illusions are most cleverly arranged, and the film, which is 626ft. long, should be in great request.

"THE WOOD-CHOPPER'S DAUGHTER."—Here Messrs. Pathé treat us to a little tragedy. A young fellow, while out shooting in a forest, is wounded and receives first aid at the hands of a wood-chopper and his daughter. He is carried home on a stretcher, but before he leaves the forest it is clear that he has fallen in love with the wood-chopper's pretty daughter. While the young fellow is in a state of convalescence the girl brings flowers and places them outside his window. On one occasion she is picking flowers when she is shot by a gamekeeper. She is conveyed to the house of her lover, and expires in his presence, her death having been brought about in an act of devotion to him. The scenes in this series are beautifully depicted. Another film, "Quick, I'm on Fire!" is of the humorous variety.

Walturdaw Specialities.

SHOULD there ever be a dearth of music hall artists, or even of actors and actresses, it will be possible to find admirable substitutes for them by ingeniously-arranged combinations of the cinematograph and gramophone. We have had already evidence of the success of these artificial entertainers, which enable one to witness scenes from plays and to hear the language of the players and the music of the orchestra. The Walturdaw Company, Ltd., have just brought out the latest contrivance of this character, and they have given it the name of

The Cinematophone.

THIS "singing picture machine," as the patent is described, can be fitted instantly to any existing animated picture machine, and singing and talking pictures can be presented with unerring fidelity and absolute synchronism. The Walturdaw Company have issued their initial series of films and records, which deal with the subject of the recently much-debated opera The Mikado. The play was performed for the purpose of the Cinematophone by a company containing many old Savoyards, including the original Koko, Mr. George Thorne. There are some ten scenes, and the songs, duets, and choruses are perfectly audible and understandable, and are in perfect time with the movements of the artists.

IN connection with the Cinematophone the Walturdaw Company have also arranged representations of the violin, xylophone, ocarina, and other musical instruments, as well as whistling. Of course, the invention opens out numberless possibilities, which need not be detailed, and which occur to one's mind at once.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Kind expressions from Authors and Managers.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT.

"I congratulate you on your 'Fifty Years of the Drama': the list must prove both interesting and useful to lovers of and workers for the stage."

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES.

"I think the new feature of The Era is most interesting and useful. A list of plays produced from 1850 to 1900 will certainly be of great service to a very large number of your readers."

MR. EDWARD TERRY.

"An admirable idea, and will prove a most valuable record."

MR. FRANK CURZON.

"Your list, I think, will be most useful for reference."

MRS. W. K. CLIFFORD.

"I think the list will be immensely useful."

MR. SYDNEY GRUNDY.

"Your list will be exceedingly useful. But, of course, there is no reason why old titles should LOT be used again. Indeed, some day we shall have to go back to them. Some of our modern titles, when they are not mere proper names with an adjective attached, display the desperation of the dramatist in too ludicrous a light. Such a title as 'The Importance of Being Earnest' amounts to a misdemeanour."

MR. ARTHUR W. PINERO.

"The list of plays produced during the last half-century is a most valuable record. The thanks of those interested in the theatre are due to The Era for this and many other enterprises."

MR. ALFRED SUTRO.

"The list you are compiling will be of very great benefit, and I am looking forward to the time when it shall be complete, and obtainable in pamphlet form."

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER.

"Mr. Arthur Bourchier thinks the list very useful indeed."

MR. JUSTIN HUNTLY McCARTHY.

"I have watched with the greatest interest the progress of your alphabetical list of the plays published during the last half of the nineteenth century. It is a most useful undertaking, and when it appears in volume form it must prove of great value to all who are concerned with the drama."

MR. ISRAEL ZANGWILL.

"The list of plays will be very interesting and useful when published in complete form. The etiquette of the profession apparently still allows of novelists' titles being used by playwrights. Thus, The Master, which will appear in your list as a play by somebody else, is the name of a book of mine; while the new play, Noah's Ark, has the same title as a shorter story of mine."

MR. ARTHUR LAW.

"The publication in The Era of a list of plays produced during the fifty years, 1850-1900, is an excellent idea, and will be most useful to authors who may be in doubt as to their right to a certain title. When it is issued in book form I shall be very glad to possess a copy."

MR. TOM GALLON.

"Your idea seems to me to be a most excellent one. Quite apart from the fact that there is always a difficulty in knowing what titles have been used, there very often arises the question of when and where a play was actually produced—a question difficult to be answered. Actors and authors should alike be grateful to The Era."

MR. HAROLD MONTAGUE.

"I think the idea of printing a list of plays produced during the last fifty years an excellent one. It should be of great value to authors."

MR. ARTHUR SHIRLEY.

"The list of produced plays was not merely a happy thought, for the same idea has probably occurred to many, though until The Era carried it out no one took the pains to collect and publish such a truly valuable record.

"Managers, dramatists, as well as would-be authors, will henceforward have a long list of titles to refer to, and there will be neither reason nor excuse for encroaching on pre-existing copyright in play titles. What a lot of trouble it should save us all!"

MR. WALTER MELVILLE.

"I think it shows great enterprise on the part of your journal, and likely to prove most useful and at the same time interesting to the general profession."

MR. ARTHUR MORRISON.

"The list you are publishing will be a most valuable work of reference to everybody taking an interest in the stage, and I have no doubt that when it is published as a book you will find its success warrant you in issuing fresh editions from time to time, with the information brought to date in each case."

MR. J. J. DILLEY.

"The idea is an excellent one, and there can be no question at all of the usefulness of such a summary."

MR. COSMO HAMILTON.

"I think that your new feature is an excellent and most useful one. A list of plays produced during fifty years is interesting not only to the playgoer, but essentially so to the manager and the playwright. They will only have to consult it to be sure that a title has not been used before."

MR. CHARLES H. E. BROOKFIELD.

"My attention has been called to your list of plays produced between 1850-1900. I have no doubt it will prove interesting and useful to many."

MR. F. FRANKFORT MOORE.

"The list of plays produced during the past fifty years, now appearing in The Era, will, I am certain, prove, when completed, extremely valuable to everyone associated with the drama in England. I am convinced—and I have had a considerable amount of experience in this direction—that it will be especially valued by all writers upon stage matters. The advantage of being able to refer at a moment's notice to the criticisms upon the production of various plays in various newspapers must be apparent to everyone. If such a list had been in existence some years ago I would have been saved a vast amount of worry and vexation of spirit. The Era has once again proved itself appreciative of the conditions under which the best interests of the drama in England are maintained."

MR. LOUIS N. PARKER.

"I think your list of plays, produced between 1850 and 1900, will, like the other contents of your paper, be invaluable."

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER,
The Empire, Liverpool.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

THE RED SPECTRE. Code Word, CAROUBIER.

A Spectre, clad in a long waving mantle, is engaged in all kinds of weird things. He has a charmed Vase, which enables him to do whatever he wishes. A woman comes and succeeds, after many interesting scenes, to get this from him, which causes him to disappear entirely. The originality and perfectly new method of producing these pictures make this film a most exceptional and charming subject. The colouring is simply exquisite.

626ft. The Subject, £10 8s. 8d. Colouring, £7 12s.

THE WOODCUTTER'S DAUGHTER. Code Word, CODIVILLE.

A hunting accident. The injured young man is brought to the woodcutter's cottage, is nursed by the daughter, and ends by falling in love with her. The father of the young man discovers this, and has his son instantly removed. The poor girl is shot by the gamekeeper while picking flowers for her lover. Very pathetic story.

577ft. The Subject, £9 12s. 4d.

A HARLEQUIN'S STORY. Code Word, CLOWN.

This is a ripping fairy story. There is a splendid Toy shop—lovely dolls of all kinds. A dear old harlequin in love with a doll, who causes all the trouble. There are gnomes and imps, a good fairy, and noise and smoke, as in all well-regulated stories. The doll is taken away to a magnificent old castle, but is found again by the harlequin. The castle is burnt down, the wicked people are killed, as is only right and proper. The harlequin and the doll come together again, and there is much rejoicing. Simply perfect in every way.

1352ft. The Subject, £22 10s. 8d. Colouring £3 2s. 6d.

QUICK, I'M ON FIRE. Code Word, GRYSALIDE.

A poor tramp sitting by the wayside. Two small boys put a lighted firework into his pocket. Smoke and flames spring up. Great fright of tramp, who runs full pelt along the road, followed by a large crowd. Exciting chase. Finally they come to the river; in jumps the tramp, crowd, and so forth. Huge is the surprise when the tramp comes out of the water still burning as fiercely as ever.

412ft. The Subject, £6 17s. 4d.

THE MAGIC DRAWING ROOM. Code Word, CLAVICULE.

Buy this film, and see what two large dress baskets and a couple of lackeys can do in an empty drawing room. Your money will be well spent and you will be well entertained.

297ft. The Subject, £4 19s.

VITAGRAPH FILMS.

FOUR PENCE per foot nett.

A Sensational and Dramatic Western Picture entitled—

A SQUARE DEAL;

or, THE END OF THE "BAD MAN."

COPYRIGHT 1907 BY THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA.

A sequel to our recent success "The Bad Man of the West." It is a "Western Classic," dealing with the love of fair play and honour that prevails in the hearts of the rough Western miners and cowboys.

Length 425 feet. Price £7 1s. 8d.

New Comedy of the Right Sort.

FORTY WINKS; or, A STRENUOUS DREAM.

Copyright 1907 by The Vitagraph Co. of America.

Blinks is awakened by the alarm clock. Lies down again for "just forty winks more." Jumps up and into his clothes at lightning speed. Rushes downstairs knocking over a chambermaid. Tucks table cloth into his neck in mistake for napkin. Devours his breakfast in four gulps. Dashes madly away carrying everything on table with him. Collides with baker, butcher, nursemaid and bicyclist in his mad rush for the train. Jumps into wagon, it starts, and wheel comes off. Engages auto. It tears along at frightful speed, then suddenly explodes and Blinks awakes again and finds it just Five Minutes since the alarm went off. Length 270 feet, and all good. Price £4 10s.

A New and Original Comedy Film!

A HORSE OF ANOTHER COLOUR.

Copyright 1907 by The Vitagraph Co. of America.

Two confidence men steal a farmer's white horse, take it behind a convenient haystack, paint it black, put on a false tail and sell it to the farmer again. When he washes his "beautiful new black beauty" the paint comes off and—well, just see what the farmer does. It's one big laugh all the way through. Length 425 feet. Price £7 1s. 8d.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY.—MAY 21.—Olivia, from Sir Henry Irving's manuscript, promised Mr. Herbert Flemming's admirers a rare treat, and the pretty Palace Theatre was packed to enjoy it. Mr. Harry Whaite's exquisitely-painted scenes were most affectionately welcomed, and the artist thrice summoned to receive loud acclaim. The Vicar of Wakefield found an apt portrayal in Mr. Herbert Flemming's impersonation; it was perfect. As for Miss Beatrice Day, nothing comes amiss to her, and Olivia lived again on the stage at the Palace; and Mr. H. W. Varna directed the performance, and the general grouping did him infinite credit. Miss Bessie Major was an ideal Mrs. Primrose; and Mr. Carter Pickford gave an earnest interpretation of the scoundrel Thornhill. A charmingly acted rôle was the Burchell of Mr. Winter Hall, who sang "Begone, dull care"; and Miss Madeline Meredith was Sophia. Mr. Edgar Payne Farmer Flamborough, Mr. John F. Forde Leigh, and Mr. Gregan McMahon Moses. Miss Beatrice Day had many beautiful floral tributes.

"THE SQUATTER'S DAUGHTER" is a new melodrama dealing exclusively with Australian life in the days of Ben Hall, the bushranger. It is written by Messrs. Edmund Duggan and Bert Bailey. The story is an interesting one, the situations deftly managed, and the characters strongly drawn. Miss Eugenie Duggan is the heroine, Violet Enderby, who passes victoriously thorugh all the vicissitudes of a dramatic heroine with her usual aplomb. The return of Mr. George Cuss after his recent illness was heartily greeted, and he fairly rollicked as Tom Bathurst in checkmating the traditional villain, Dudley Harrington, played, of course, by Mr. Laurence Dunbar. Mr. Harry Douglass came back after years of absence, and made Old Nick Harvey, an ex-convict, of great value. Mr. J. H. Nunn, who also stage-managed, was the old squatter, James Harrington, a part carefully acted. Miss Ada Guildford played the handsome victim of Dudley, Sarah Lynch, with pronounced power; and Miss Georgie Leighford, Mr. Temple Harrison, Mr. Edwin Campbell, Miss Maud Cosham, and Mr. J. McDonald were a quintette of capitally-portrayed aboriginals. It would interest the English public to see an Australian black-fellow properly acted. It is usual to make him an American negro. The authors, Mr. Edmund Duggan and Mr. Bert Bailey, were Ben Hall, the bushranger, and Archie McPherson, a Scotch "new chum," or "tenderfoot." Miss Lillie Bryer made a charming Governess; and Miss Lena Langridge was Jenny Thornton, the heroine's maid. Champion wood-choppers and shearing experts were engaged by Mr. William Anderson to give verisimilitude to the scene and events, and Mr. George Sutch composed and directed specially appropriate music.

"THE SILVER KING" was revived by Mr. J. C. Williamson at the Theatre Royal on the 18th inst., with Mr. Julius Knight as Wilfred Denver. Following a long procession of capable actors in this rôle Mr. Knight had a serious handicap, but he delighted a packed house. Three scenes were omitted—the Lane scene, the Office scene (made so strong by Wilson Barrett), and the arrest of Henry Corkett—nobody knows why, but it was done. The best acted part was Daniel Jaikes, by Mr. Hubert Willis. It ranks with Phil Day and H. H. Vincent's, a vastly fine performance. Mr. Harry Plimmer makes Captain Skinner ("the Spider") just the callous scoundrel fresh from the author's pen and brain; and Mr. Reginald Rede played Elijah Coombes on the traditional lines; whilst Mr. Leslie Victor's Henry Corkett would be hard to beat. The quartette of burglars was well completed by the Cripps of Mr. Rupert Julian. A handsome and earnest Olive Skinner was Miss Katnarine Elbert-Orton, and Miss Marion Grey was cast for Nellie Denver. This is the last week of the season, as on the 25th the series of German opera will commence here.

"MOTHER GOOSE" keeps on laying golden eggs for Mr. J. C. Williamson and his partners at His Majesty's, the booking precluding the existence of a vacant seat. The end of the run is not yet fixed, but it must come soon, as several of the principals are wanted for the new Blue Moon company, now being formed. Miss Celia Ghiloni and Miss Florence Young are amongst these.

MR. HARRY RICKARDS, who leaves on the 25th for England in the Mongolia, signalised his coming departure by introducing perhaps the greatest "turn" he has ever given at the Tivoli—Techow's performing cats. The house was literally packed an hour before starting time, and hundreds were unable to get into the theatre. The feline performers kept the folks laughing and clapping all through their show, and the advance booking is enormous.

WEST'S PICTURES and the Brescians at the Lyceum, the Picturesque Company at the Oxford, vaudeville at the National Amphitheatre, the Edison Picture Palace, the Haymarket Hippodrome ("Silvershot"), the All-Star Variety Company, and Clay's Vaudevillians are all doing financially well.

MR. J. C. WILLIAMSON leaves for England by the Mongolia on the 25th on a prolonged tour in search of rest and talent. A well-attended meeting of prominents at the Hotel Australia decided on a send-off banquet, but the busy manager courteously declined.

THE booking for the Wagner Opera Season began at Nicholson and Co.'s Music Warehouse yesterday, and the prospects are all in favour of a big season for Mr. Musgrove's latest venture.

THE CANONBURY CLUB.

The members of the Canonbury Constitutional Club held a farewell dinner at their headquarters, Canonbury Tower, on Saturday evening, under the presidency of Councillor E. W. Davis. The historic building, after undergoing extensive renovations and improvements, will be reopened about six months hence as a non-political social club, in accordance with a scheme promoted by Lord Northampton, of whose estate the Tower forms a part. Amongst those present were Mr. Weedon Grossmith, an old member and staunch supporter of the club, and Mr. Tom Heslewood, actor and artist. Mr. Grossmith, whose name was associated with one of the toasts, in response expressed his regret that it was the farewell convivial gathering of the dear old club where he had spent so many delightful hours, and had always met the best of friends. Mr. Grossmith mentioned the fact that he had resided in a house adjacent to the Tower for ten years, and greatly amused the company by relating some of his experiences as a Canonbury householder. Amongst those he used to meet at the club were the late Mr. Herbert Campbell and Mr. Geoffrey Thorn, the author of many pantomimes at the Grand and other theatres.

The excellent entertainment which followed the dinner was contributed to by Mr. R. G. Knowles, who came from the Palace Theatre; Mr. Richard Walthew, who gave two pianoforte solos; Mr. Roland Bagnall, whose humorous songs were much appreciated; Mr. MacKelvin, a clever Scotch comedian; Mr. J. B. Fox, bass vocalist; Mr. T. H. Dey, Mme. Maud Perry, and the Misses Longhurst and Elmes. Mr. Lovett King acted as accompanist, and also sang a couple of comic songs; while Mr. Will Clinch rendered valuable service as stage-manager.

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. Address, the PUBLISHER, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

THE "outings" of the stage staff have already commenced. These are functions which even the most unsatisfactory conditions of the weather cannot prevent, as with good cheer and a good "share-out" the stageman does not much mind other circumstances prevailing on the day.

NEXT Sunday the Crown Theatre staff go to "Devil's Dyke," leaving London Bridge at 8.30 a.m., in special reserved carriages. They arrive at Brighton at 10.20, and will dine, at one sharp, in the Dyke Hotel, Mr. Cecil Paget, the popular manager, being chairman. The hon. secretary of the outing is Mr. Philip Sheridan, the electrician, who is to be congratulated on the get-up of the programme, which contains a short history of the Crown outings since 1899.

THE Theatrical Sports Committee meet on Saturday, at 5.30 p.m., in The Era offices, when the entries for the sports will close and be examined for acceptance. Miss Ada Reeve, having presented a silver bag-purse, containing £1, for competition in a ladies' race, the committee propose to add such an event to the programme. Wardrobe, programme, and dressers are invited to enter. The nature of the race is yet to be decided, but it may be an egg-and-spoon race, 50 yards. All entries for any events received before five o'clock to-day (Saturday) will be in time for the consideration of the committee.

SINCE the last meeting of the committee a number of donations and several prizes have been received, and a full list has been issued to all representatives of the committee.

THE teams entered to date for the tug-of-war competition are as follows:—Covent Garden Theatre, Lyceum, Duke of York's, Empire, Leicester Square, Ealing Hippodrome, Woolwich Hippodrome, East Ham Palace, and Crown Theatre, and it is expected there will be teams from the Oxford and the Gaiety.

THE teams entered for the Relay Race are as follows:—St. James's, Alhambra, Lyceum, Duchess, Balham, Duke of York's, Daly's, London Pavilion, Grand, and Empire, Croydon; total, nine. So far there is a large entry. Mr. Robert Watson will be the referee, Mr. Ed. J. Bostock the handicapper, and Mr. F. W. Parker the hon. timekeeper. Pictures of the events will be taken by the Charles Urban Trading Co.

AT the adjourned annual general meeting of the No. 1 General Staff Branch, held on Sunday last in the St. George Hall, S.E., the secretary, Mr. William Johnson, reported on the Award, and the matter was discussed at length. The committee and officers were elected for the ensuing year, and also candidates for the National Committee. It was decided to endorse the recommendation of the Executive Committee that the Society be represented at the annual Trade Union Congress and affiliated with the General Federation of Trade Unions. The proceedings lasted until a late hour.

A MEETING of the members of the London branches of the National Association of Theatrical Employees and the Musicians' Union will be held to-morrow (Sunday) evening in the large hall at The Horns, Kennington, to consider the Award and other matters connected with the National Alliance. Mr. C. Jesson, L.C.C., will preside. Among the speakers will be representatives of labour organisations, Mr. J. B. Williams (general secretary Musicians' Union), Mr. William Johnson (secretary, stage employees), and Mr. Harry Mountford (late chairman of the Alliance). Non-members connected with the profession may attend if a ticket is obtained from either the N.A.T.E. or the Musicians' Union officials.

A MEETING of the committee of the Bioscope Operators was held on Tuesday, and several applications for membership were granted. Members on tour are asked to keep the secretary informed of their address, as several communications have been returned by the Post Office.

AT a meeting of the Carpenters' Branch of the N.A.T.E., held last Sunday evening in the Salisbury Hotel, the proposal that the society be represented at the annual Trade Union Congress and affiliated with the General Federation of Trade Unions was endorsed, and a grant of £40 was voted to the London branches whose members were involved in the late dispute.

THE staff of the Colosseum Theatre, Oldham, to the number of twenty, including Mr. Chas. Myers, the popular stage-manager, held their second picnic on Sunday last. Lincoln was chosen for this year's outing, and an early start was made, the party arriving about 8.30 a.m. After breakfast a drive of twenty miles was taken, and various places of interest were visited. The party started after dinner for home, which was reached shortly before nine o'clock.

THE staff of the Eastbourne Hippodrome took their annual outing on Sunday last, when the interesting town of Arundel was visited. An early start was made by train, and at eleven o'clock the town was reached. After an excellent dinner Mr. Ash proposed the health of the managing-director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter. Miss Showler very gracefully seconded, the toast was drunk with enthusiasm, and Mr. Winter suitably responded. The managing-director generously provided char-à-bancs, and a delightful drive of ten miles pleasantly passed away the afternoon. The evening was filled in according to the fancy of each individual, and the party returned home soon after eleven at night, after a most enjoyable outing.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The concise descriptions that we give below of recent applications for patents are specially contributed by Messrs. Howard and Co., patent agents, 57 and 58, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will assist readers in all patent matters:—

APPLICATIONS.

14,422.—Arnold Thackhall-Browett, of Hertford-street, Coventry. Improvements in or relating to kinematographs and the like.

14,056.—Alfred Wrench, of Gray's Inn-road, London. Improvements in kinematographs.

14,058.—Ernest Francis Moy and Percy Henry Bastie, of Greenland-place, Camden Town, London. Improvements in cinematograph projectors, cameras, and the like.

COMPLETE SPECIFICATION.

5346.—Theatrical scenery. L. J. Carter, of Sedgwick-street, Chicago, Illinois, U.S.A. Scenery is suspended by rollers running in an endless slotted tubular track, or by wheels running on a rail, and is moved by spindles carrying toothed wheels gearing with perforations in metal sheets fixed to the back of the scenery at the upper edge. The toothed wheels are kept in engagement with the metal sheets by a guide-block or rollers. One sheet of scenery may be suspended within another to enable actors or objects to occupy the space between, and the different sheets may be driven at different speeds.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The dramatic fare here served for the current week is provided by Messrs. E. A'Dell and Chabot's company, in His Sister's Honour. Mr. Ed. E. Louis enacts the character of the Civil Serviceman, Frank Stanley, with great skill; the part of the villain is ably portrayed by Mr. Lincoln Calthorpe, and effective interpretation is given of the sister of Stanley, Dora, by Miss Kathryne Eckart. Good impersonations of varied characters are also given by Messrs. Gilson Brooke, Harry Ugar, a capital comedian, and Miss Janet Lawton as a pert servant maid, Miss Ethel Ashleigh as a crippled girl, and Miss Winnie Kennedy as a Dutch dancing girl.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—Miss Harriet Vernon is the "star" in an admirable list of artists. The Sisters Currie and Wallie Scott give a fine display of song and dance; Ethel Fooney and partner give a good sketch under the title Escaped; Gravetta and Parr present a varied entertainment of ventriloquism and clay modelling; Doyle and Gibson are good in song and patter; Leslie Race, swell comedian, gives a couple of songs; a series of amusing pictures is provided, and a pleasing and novel turn is that of "The Netherlands" in their song-scena, Dutch Pastimes. Lionel Vaughan's Comedy Company wind up the programme with a sketch entitled In Trouble. Large audiences are the rule.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chris A. Wordsworth.—Crowded houses are still being attracted here by the picture entertainments, and illustrated songs are ably rendered by Miss Nellie Burke.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. E. Owen.—The enterprise of the management of this popular house in providing first-class fare is being rewarded by large audiences nightly. Mr. Ted Saunders cleverly impersonates a number of star artists; a good reception is given to Miss Violet Ashcroft, vocal comedienne, who renders her songs in excellent taste; Marlow is a clever juggler; a pleasing item is furnished by Mora and Flora in a quick-change vocal scena, entitled Rich and Poor; and Mr. Clayton's pictures this week include "A Crime on the Mountains." A popular turn is that of Mephisto, society contortionist; Mr. Charlie Deane, comedian, soon makes himself a favourite with his chorus songs; and Mr. Ted Karno and his comedians present a hilarious absurdity, entitled The Dinner Hour.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Stone.—Mr. Valentine Beadon's company is here in The Best Must Win. Paul Dumaresq is capitally taken by Mr. Sidney C. Cranston; Mr. Graham Woods, a capable Gaston, is ably seconded by Mr. Dobson Clyde as Juan Minos, a humorous presentment; Miss Dorothy Laine is a convincing Marquise de Marcel; Miss Marie Robson, both as Therese Dumaresq and Lucille la Ffanch, is extremely effective; Mr. A. Hall Menzies makes a picturesque Jacques; and Miss Marie Menzies a dramatic and engaging Denise Dumaresq.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—Binns and Binns do an amusing musical act; Ada Twibell vocalises sweetly; Arthur Croxon proves a capital mimetic comedian; Woodhouse and Wells are acceptable patter comedians; Fioretti and Elly give a quite artistic novelty; and Alcide Capitaine has a perfect gymnastic display.

BATH.—PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The picture entertainment is being continued, and Raymond's Animated Picture Co. appears to have an endless stock of films of the best subjects to unfold. Illustrated songs are also agreeable items.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—There was a good "house" and a good company at the above place of amusement on Monday night. Kennedy's Komiks occupied the boards, and kept the audience in roars of laughter during the evening. The Great Little Hatch proved to be four feet of extraordinary comicality; the Sisters Deare displayed ability as instrumentalists, and their duets were well sung; Dan Noble, a quaint and refined comedian, was encored time after time. His song, "The sale's now on," caught on wonderfully. Marie Yorke, an attractive soubrette, sang one or two catchy songs, James Burt, a refined interlocutor, was responsible for much hilarity; and Florrie Wentworth and Keane Harker sang duets in a pleasing manner.

BELFAST.—PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—John Lawson and company top the bill, and on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday produced with undoubted success The King's Minister, in which Mr. Lawson impersonates the title-rôle with much skill. Other rôles were satisfactorily sustained. Mr. Fred Cary, a big favourite here, creates much merriment; and a hit has been made by Les Sousloffs, whirlwind dancers; Trobel and Ruge, aerial comedians, in their act, Fun on a Pole, succeed admirably; and a hit has been made by Hurmann, the smart juggler; the Sisters Melba, vocal duettists; Vincent, acrobatic table expert; the Melroses, comedy artists; Miss Rose Harvey, comedienne; and the Palace Pictures complete.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Mirthful Mystifiers head the bill with their comedy, Three of a Kind. Mr. J. W. Rowley, an old favourite here, has been accorded a great reception; and the acme of training is exhibited by Frederica's wonderful terriers; the vocalism of the Lombardo Duo has won unbounded applause; and Jim and Jenny Lee appear in a smart wire walking performance; the Three Orros, in their performance on silver chains, are certainly clever; and the Custances appear to advantage in their act, A Game for Two. Also here are Miss Ella Dean, contralto; Mr. Harry Taft, comedian; the Three Rubies, in their original speciality; Mr. J. H. Carney, mimic, and the Hipposcope, with new pictures.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Bob Hutt and company top the bill and produce with much success their funny production, Welcome Home, in which Mr. Hutt is inimitable. The Northern Troupe of International dancers have been enthusiastically received; and Carter Livesey and Lilian Roseberry evoke loud laughter with The Would-be Actors; Mr. Harry Bedford is a droll comedian with good songs; and a capital comedy act is provided by Howard and Collinson; the Twin Brothers Dean, whistlers and dancers; Billie Burford, comedienne; the Empire Bioscope; and the Eight Emerald Gems, in character songs and dances, have been warmly welcomed.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Sinclair Neill.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company, under the personal direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, produce here this week the sterling drama Brave Hearts. Miss Nina Blake-Adams plays the rôle of Kate Edwards in a charming manner; Mr. Horace Denton acquits himself with much distinction as Guy Barrington; Miss Kathleen Magee must be accorded the highest commendation for her impersonation of Clara Vivian; and Mr. Cyril Grier is a satisfactory Isaac Moser; Mr. Edward M. Heanley's acting as Ralph Craddock is all that can possibly be desired; and Mr. Elmore Frith is, as usual, excellent in the dual rôle of Edward Grantham and Jacques; the humour of the piece is in the safe hands of Mr. Tom H. Solly and Miss Mattie Crawford. The Alhambra Bioscope exhibits a fine series of pictures.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mr. Charles Draycott's company opened on Monday to a crowded house in The Stolen Birthright. Mr. Draycott gives a powerful and highly effective rendering of Count Marco Taddeo, the evil genius of the piece; Prince Andrea Celsi is well impersonated by Mr. A. C. Holmes; Mr. T. Scratchard is most efficient as Stefano; and Mr. Harry Harrop as Pedro and Miss E. Vinroy as Nita admirably depict the lighter passages of the play. Miss Muriel Thompson as the Princess Miranda acquits herself with much ability, playing the leading rôle with care and discrimination; and the remaining characters are in thoroughly competent hands. On Friday East Lynne was produced, with Miss Thompson as Lady Isabel. The productions have been very creditably staged.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Billy Howard and Kathryn Harris in their act, The Adventures of a Happy Tramp, are deservedly a leading turn; Miss Marie Kendall, the popular comedienne, is also a welcome return visit; and Mr. Dan Thomas and Miss Daisy Yates are also great favourites in their amusing burlesque, Widow Twankey's Laundry. A capital company also includes Miss Emma Don and her black and white comedy team; Mr. Phil Bransby, coster comedian; Miss Dolly Denton, comedienne; Mr. Steve McCarthy comedian; Mr. Lawrence Barclay, comedian; and Brown's Royal Bioscope. Mr. Ernest Denney is musical director.

BIRMINGHAM.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo.—A Marriage of Vengeance was attended by a full house on Monday, when it was presented by Mr. Stanley Carlton's company. Chief among the female rôles shines Miss Rubie Maude as Stella, an adventuress, with womanly charm and power; Mr. Marshall Meade is thorough and effective as Rheinhardt; Mr. Edward Beverley acts with considerable force and dignity as Glynne Earnscliffe; Mr. Arthur Stanley is successful as the son, Paul; Mr. Stanley Carlton does well as Geoffrey Vannock; Miss Lucie Bevan presents a buxom and vivacious picture of the serving maid, Amelia; and Mr. Chas. Wilson keeps the house well amused with his droll songs and sayings as Bob Shorner. A Life's Story has been played since Thursday.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander. — Kennedy's Komiks continue their successful reign here. Miss Marie Liston, "the popular principal boy," receives great applause for her comic and sentimental lays; Melvin and Max shine as American ragtime comedians and dancers; Miss Daisy Oliver wins much favour as a ballad vocalist; Ellis and Liston do well with an all too short but clever comedy sketch; Miss Florence Edgar is successful as a burlesque vocalist; Miss Marie Riviere is applauded as "the Queen of Song"; David Purnell, interlocutor, is an outstanding feature of the programme; Professor and Mme. Sardou participate in several smart illusions; and the electric animated pictures are another source of delight and satisfaction.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—An Unwedded Wife is the attraction here, presented by Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitby and company. Miss Van Praagh appears as the unwedded wife, Marion, displaying great emotional power; Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes receives excellent tokens of success as the villain, Philip Blakstone; Mr. Valentine Henry is cheered for his well-studied and manly acting as Frank Armstrong; Mr. Logan Darra acts with powerful effect as John Hawthorne; Miss Elsie Walton is graceful and clever as Elsie Langham; and Mr. J. A. Grove is successful as David Drummond. The humorous rôles are exceedingly well rendered by Mr. Will Casey as Napoleon B. Boomer, Mr. J. E. Whitby as P.-C. O'Runyin, and Miss Jessie Gillette as Caraway Crumpet; while Mr. Wilton Bedford shines as Christopher Lennox. The boy, Reggie, is pleasingly portrayed by Little Miss Doris.

EMPIRE PALACE. — Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—The chief item of the entertainment here is a musical mélange entitled The Prince of Monte Carlo, in which Mr. Harry Roxbury takes the part of a representative of Scotland Yard, and creates great laughter. Nellie Wallace the eccentric burlesque artist, pays a welcome return visit, and introduces several new songs; Frame, the well-known Scottish comedian, is repeatedly recalled; the Miles Stavordale Quintette of instrumentalists give an entertainment of great merit; and the Trapnell Family of acrobats also do well; Dan Leno, jun., makes his first appearance here; Mr. and Mrs. H. Finden, Edwin Barwick, and Fatmah Diard complete an excellent programme.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Annie Purcell, the dainty comedienne, is attracting large audiences here this week. Next in favour is the Beau Ideal Troupe of juveniles, in their refined and amusing acts of mimicry, dancing, and singing; the De Breans, described as the world's premier sciographists, are applauded for a mystifying performance; Barny Vox is as good as ever; Ethel Dunford, vocalist; Vosper, mimic and necromancer; Laletos, equilibrists; Austin and Cowan, scena vocalists; and Sam Morrison, a soprano street singer, contribute to a well-balanced programme.

HIPPODROME.—Managing Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—High Jinks; or, Fun on the Sands is the attraction at this house. The company is one of Mr. John Tiller's, and includes some excellent artists, chief of whom is Mr. Bob Selvidge in the leading rôle. The Columbia Trio gives a really clever performance; Roxborough and Wright, comedians, appear in an absurdity called Cockie; and Bliss and Bliss cause fun; Gladys Wittan, juvenile cantralto, bids fair to become famous; Chas. Faning, comedian; Will Walton, Joe Chevers, and the ever popular pictures complete a good all-round entertainment.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Orderd to the Front tops the bill here this week. As Captain Montrevor Mr. Frank Petley is extremely good, while Miss Teresa Osborne's conception of the part of his wife is admirable. Lonnen Meadows, and company present an exact antithesis of the previous sketch in Kiss Your Father, which provokes roars of laughter. Tom E. Finglass is a capital coon artist; Martin Henderson, the blind pianist and concertina soloist, is very good; while the Tossing Austins create much merriment; Grace Merton, the original street singer, and J. B. Preston, Scotch comedian, also merit their share of applause.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The Shulamite is being played by a company under the direction of Mr. H. Theodore. Mr. Algernon J. Hicks very effectively embodies the rôle of Simeon Krillett, and Mr. George Rammell does every justice to the part of Robert Waring; Mr. Alfred Hilliard's Jan Vanderburg is also a painstaking performance; in the difficult part of Deborah Krillett Miss Ella Thornton is seen at her best, and meets with a most cordial reception; Miss Emily Levettez and Tante Vanderberg and Miss Chrissie Bickerstaff as Memke give every satisfaction.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Messrs. Ralland and Sergenson's répertoire company are devoting the fifth week of their season to Jim the Penman. Mr. Charles Boult gives a good account of James Ralston; Miss Kitty Cavendish carefully plays Mrs. Ralston; and Miss Chrissie Ralland creates a good impression as Agnes Ralston; Mr. F. Pennington-Gush, gives a satisfactory rendering of Louis Percival, and Mr. Arthur Gibbons contributes a meritorious study of Baron Hartfeld.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Frank and Jen Latona contribute a turn of music and comedy; Agnes Molteno presents a cleverly conceived song scena; Lily Burnand is a popular burlesque artist; Little Cliffe sings and dances well; Johnson and Wells find favour as transformation vocalists and dancers; Wilson Hallett brings down the house with his child-mimicry; Martine and Son are tuneful American song illustrators; the Sisters Lunelle are graceful dancers; and the Vetter Brothers create hilarity in the speciality act entitled The Page's Recreation.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—E. R. Dainez' Circus fills the chief position on the bill, and the animals' performance reflects great credit on their trainer; the Carina Sisters submit an artistic musical mélange, which is well appreciated; Raie Walters, as "The Fisher Girl," is pleasing; an interesting turn is given by Boden and Bell, described as the smallest entertainers in the world; Fortune and Le Pomme cause much laughter with their knockabout turn; the Sisters Charnley are a clever pair of duettists and dancers; Lozelle again shows his cleverness as a gymnast; and the Hippo pictures are instructive and entertaining.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Closed for the summer vacation.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Messrs. F. L. Connyhame and C. A. Clarke's stirring and well-constructed drama, The Prodigal Parson, is being staged for the first time here by a capable company, under the direction of Messrs. Alfred Northway and W. V. Garrod. Mr. Garrod himself undertakes the exacting part of the much-wronged Rev. Tom Godley, in which he is distinctly effective; as Enoch Jaggins, Mr. Paul Beckett does excellent work; Mr. W. Hayward, as Ben, fills all requirements, and he has in Mr. W. Vincent a capable confederate, viz., Ned Kettlepin; Phil Drive is humorously played by Mr. Owen Remonde. Miss Sybil Hammersley brightly fills the part of his sweetheart, Gretchen; Miss Bertha Kingston commands sympathy as Fern; and as Myrtle, Miss Violet Jeffries acts with intelligence.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' EMPIRES, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Admirably supported by Miss Lilian Holmes as Gretchen, and a capable company, Mr. Fred Storey is this week presenting his clever and beautifully-staged compressed version of Rip Van Winkle, with very great success. In a poetic phantasy, viz., The Sea Nymph, Peggie Lennie and Walter Hast combine grace with humour. Charles Norton's mimicry is distinctly novel and clever; Amy Russell, soprano, sings with power; a delightful musical protean mélange, In Her Boudoir, is presented with marked success, and amidst roars of laughter, by Edward Lauri and a clever company, which includes May Beatty, a charming actress and vocalist. Miss Gertrude Bradshaw, an accomplished vocalist, is an excellent deputy for Alexandra Edwin, contralto. Fred and Panley present a novel and clever turn as acrobats and gymnasts on the rings; the American Comedy Four blend humour and good vocalism with effect; and L. W. Harris submits an acceptable comedy turn.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Nacnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—A very clever and exceedingly witty performance by Jay W. Winton forms a prominent feature of the fine programme here. There is some excellent vocalism in the smart drawing-room entertainments submitted by Blanche and Powell. Master Charlie Carr is a capital dancer and juvenile comedian of promise; Captain Devereux's troupe of performing dogs are a wonderful example of animal training; some clever feats are accomplished with ease by Augustin and Hartley, barrel jumpers. There is some excellent Irish comedy and smart boxing in Billy Ross and Co.'s sketch, The Hot Member; the juggling by Les Sados is cleverly accomplished; Melia and Mozarabar submit a fine equilibristic performance; and there are some capital pictures shown by Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

BRIGHTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—The Colleen Bawn occupies the boards here this week, and attracts crowded audiences. Miss Lucy Murray submits a charming enactment of the title-rôle; Mr. Charles Preece gives an admirable portrayal of Miles-na-Coppaleen; Mr. H. C. Lanceley's Father Tom is a capital character study; Miss Daisy Scudamore achieves great success as Anne Chute; Mr. Roy Redgrave is highly effective as Hardress Cregan; Mr. Ellis J. Preston skilfully sustains the part of Danny Mann; and Mr. Villiers Stanley's Kyrle Daly and Mr. Charles A. Russell's McCorrigan are well played. The drama is finely staged.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—There is an excellent company here this week. Herbert Clifton, "the marvellous-voiced mimic," gains very hearty applause for his admirably rendered songs; Harry Olaff, assisted by Miss Dolly Maguire, submits his new satire, The Demon and the Fairy, with success; Alexandre and Hughes are clever musical comedians; the funny episode, My Uncle, presented by the Brady and Johnson combination, proves very enjoyable; Les Rallis are entertaining in The Artist and His Monkey; the Victorian Duettists are accomplished vocalists; the Almas, speciality artists, give a good turn; Maud Ford is a dainty comedienne and sand dancer; Emmie Harlow, speciality artist, is well received; and the Alhambrascope furnishes an excellent series of pictures.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A capital programme is sustained here this week. Miss Amy Augarde and company achieve distinct success in a Spanish episode, La Carmencita; George Gilbey, comedian, is a great favourite; Rastus and Banks, American coloured entertainers, are well received in The Major and the Maid; Conway and Garland give an amusing sketch, Left in Charge; the Nirdas are clever acrobats and balancers; Stacey and Williams are good cross-talk artists and dancers; the Schiavonis Troupe provide a capital display of comic tumbling; the Three Sisters Silcott are pleasing vocalists and dancers; and the Barrascope pictures are amusing.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Leonard Pagden's company opened here on Monday with The Second Mrs. Tanqueray. Mr. Leonard Pagden gave a masterly impersonation of Aubrey Tanqueray; Miss Lucy Wilson displayed marked ability as Paula; Miss Edith Cuthbert was graceful as Ellean; Mr. J. Edward Pearce was well suited as Cayley Drummle; Mr. Gordon Bailey's Captain Hugh Ardale was admirably enacted; Miss Gladys Bartle-Frere's Mrs. Cortelyon and Miss Muriel Aston's Lady Orreyed were ably played; and other parts were satisfactorily sustained by Mr. Harold Orme, Mr. William Lockhart, and Mr. Jas. P. E. Hussey.

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Mr. Gerard Grant Allen's company is here this week with The New Boy. Mr. Leon M. Lion is highly amusing in the title-rôle; Miss Katherine Harrington acts brightly as Mrs. Rennick; Mr. Harry Ashford acquits himself admirably as Dr. Candy; Mr. George De Lara makes a capital Felix Roach; and Miss Nellie Redwood is a winsome Nancy Roach. The farce is preceded by Meg, the Mobswoman, in which Miss Katherine Harrington is especially effective.

BRISTOL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross's company is here with The Manxman, the play being well staged. Mr. Cross presents a convincing exposition of Pete, and Miss Minnie Watersford makes an excellent study of Kate Creegan. Mr. Sidney C. Kearns is effective as Philip Christian; Mr. Frank Etheridge depicts Cæsar Creegan with considerable ability; Mr. Rayson-Cousens makes the most of Ross Christian; and the remaining parts are all carefully played.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Mrs. John Lawson's sketch company is here with The Devil's Sunday, Mrs. Lawson giving a fine and convincing exposition of Fay Faber; the other parts are all cleverly taken, and the sketch is staged in an admirable manner. Sid Cotterell and company amuse with the comedy sketch The Substitute; Attilla Brothers score with a "strong show"; Henri Bekker, assisted by Mdlle. Maie, is highly successful in card manipulation and conjuring tricks; Gertrude Moore pleases with her novel singing and dancing act; Joe Mack, eccentric comedian and expert dancer, obtains considerable applause; and Jock Walker, Scotch comedian, is appreciated. The performance concludes with "The Blind Beggar and His Dog," depicted by Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Horace Mills and W. H. Rawlins are here on a return visit with their amusing sketch, Mashing the Missus. The Dandies are refined vocal entertainers; Lily Eyton is a pleasing vocalist; Mdlle. Rose is a clever conjurer; Fred Saunders, comedian, is appreciated; Roy Beavis does some good conjuring, etc.; Esta Stella scores with her military songs; Lyster and Cook do a good musical turn; and the performance concludes with a new series of animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. John F. Preston and his company continue to do well with their two pieces each night, and on Monday evening the dramas, The Hand of Justice and The Factory Girl met with much approval from a full house. Mr. John F. Preston appeared as Count Vladimir in The Hand of Justice, and Na Jerka was well played by Miss Mabelle F. Barlow; Mr. Robert Faulkner made an excellent Philip Montgomery; Mr. Arthur Lenville and Miss Laura Wright, as George Simkins and Jennie Jones, provided the comedy business; Mr. Horace Custins, Miss Ethel Rainforth, and Miss Gertie Wasley also had suitable parts. In The Factory Girl Mr. John F. Preston was the hero, Stephen Plum, and the heroine, Martha Gibbs, was ably presented by Miss Mabelle Barlow; Mr. Horace Custins was very amusing as Toby Twinkle; Mr. Robert Faulkner played Sir Arthur Lascelles excellently; Jasper Plum and Frederick Plum were well sustained by Mr. Arthur Lenville and Mr. Walter Brodie; Miss Laura Wright caused much laughter with her Lady Leatherbridge; and Lady Valerie was cleverly sustained by Miss Ethel Rainforth. Each piece was well staged.

BURNLEY.—EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Miss Dinah Morris, along with Mr. Sam Morris, produce a well-staged scena, entitled The Village in Dahomey, which is full of tuneful singing and clever dancing. The Lombars exhibit strength in a hand balancing act, and Terry and Bentley create roars of laughter with their funny patter. Mlle. Margutte, a smart contortionist, is loudly applauded, and A. E. Clifford is an excellent singer. Little Ada Parker gives a good coon song and dance, and humorous pictures are provided by the Empire Theatroscope.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — OPERA HOUSE (NEW HIPPODROME).—Proprietor, Mr. H. D. Bennett. Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Waller.—The unusual sight of highly trained cats going through clever gymnastic performances is presented by Harriston; Eddie Stidder and Gwennie Dunbar are accorded rounds of applause for their comic music business; some marvellous juggling tricks are shown by Mozetto; the Three Consol Girls are responsible for some graceful dances; Ivy Gallard and E. W. Selman give humorous songs in good style; and the entertainment concludes with Harry Raley and the Operascope.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. W. Lea; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—Harry Tate, on Monday night, was accorded a hearty reception by the huge audiences, and in his side-splitting sketch entitled Fishing created a fine impression. Mr. E. Whittle, American ventriloquist, who proved a splendid deputy in the absence of Mr. Mark Sheridan; another interesting turn was that of De Gracia's elephants, their athletic feats being most amusing; Ella Shields rendered her coon songs in a particularly pleasing manner; while the Mezzettis, in a comedy act on the triple bar, were both marvellous and amusing; Spry and Austin, the popular vaudeville artists, proved very entertaining; Francis, the cannon ball king, assisted by Alfred, gave an admirable act; Fielding and Hull, in vocal medleys, and a film on the Bioscope completed the performance.

CARLISLE. — THE PALACE. — Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Troba, juggler, is giving a very finished performance here; Barnard's Mannikins in The Coons' Revelry, are much appreciated; the Kirbys are very amusing; George Prince is a funny comedian; the Ramlos submit a capital triple bar act; the Olmars are clever acrobats; and the Sisters Brooke are smart vocalists and dancers. The Pepiscope completes the entertainment.

CASTLEFORD.—QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson. Countess Romanow heads the bill and gives a series of poses entitled "Iris." She is creating much interest, and is warmly applauded. Pictures showing an episode in the life of the Countess, are also given between the poses; Mr. T. W. Rawson and company are also here with a farcical absurdity, Innocent Jimmy. This entertaining item is nicely staged, and is excellently acted by a well-balanced company. An up-to-date show of animated pictures by the Loyal Dominion Company is again presented with unfailing success.

CHESTER.—ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—The Three Merrills, who head the bill here, submit a clever cycling act; Vernon's Bioscope is featuring new Pathé and Vitagraph films; Phern and Phern, in a novel musical act, are well received; the Calcotts, in "Rags and Tatters," show their complete mastery over the banjo; Alpho, a smart ventriloquist, has some funny patter; Nina Gordon's impersonations at the piano meet with an enthusiastic reception; Eva Chadwick, comedienne, is an acceptable vocalist; and the Sisters Varley, vocalists and dancers, also appear.

CLACTON-ON-SEA.—PALACE, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. P. W. Willard.—Farley, Renny, and Farley in Fun at a Railway Station, top the bill and give an amusing show; Cumminger and Colonna give a smart turn. The programme also includes Chas. Coverdale, talker, mimic, and singer; Harry and May Kent, in a musical comedy absurdity, The Grass Widower; Tom Collins, comedian, a big favourite; Durdan and Iris, novelty dancers; Walter Balfour, a fine baritone; Edgar Berte, entertainer; and Beattie Benson, a clever young dancer. On Wednesday afternoon a special matinée was given, when Mr. Harry Fragson appeared, and gave selections from his répertoire.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. Harold Montague; —Messrs. E. J. Barrett and H. Montague's "Vagabonds" are still very popular here. The troupe is made up of Mesdames Olive Spark, Leslie Lulu, and Marie Longmore, Messrs. Leslie Burgess, Claude Russell, and H. Montague. The show is always bright and pleasant, and each evening little sketches are given in which Miss Ethel Mayaffré appears.

WESTCLIFF GARDENS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Graham, Russell, and Bentley.—Good business is the order of the day here. In addition to the three proprietors the programme is made up of Miss Amy Snow Page, a sweet singer; Mr. Harry Barrett, a fine bass; and Mr. Kit Keen, coloured comedian. Mr. Bert Graham has lately gone in for living marionettes, which go remarkably well.

COLCHESTER.—HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Frederick Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben. de Frece.—John Lawson's sketch, Sally in our Alley, is much appreciated. Tom Grave's cycle act on the revolving wheel appeals strongly to those fond of daring and sensationalism; Beatrice Willey, a very refined vocalist, is afforded an ovation for her pretty floral song-scena; Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor provide a very amusing entertainment, into which considerable originality is introduced; whilst Pinto, in his peppermint-rock tights, is extremely quaint, and goes particularly well; Abbey Keith is an attractive comedienne; the pictures are above the average, and the orchestral music reflects the utmost credit on the conductor, Mr Amos Parker.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Uncle Tom's Cabin is being played here. Uncle Tom is capitally impersonated by Mr. J. Carr, and Miss May Turner makes a charming Little Eva; Miss Holly Haslewood is responsible for some good acting as Mrs. St. Clair; Mr. Albert G. Wray performs creditably as Mr. St. Clair; as the slave dealer Mr. J. Henry Rogers is seen to advantage; Miss Sylvia Stella as Topsy provides plenty of amusement; and Mr. Leslie Beaufort is responsible for the part of George Harris.

THE HIPPODROME THEATRE.—A programme of great variety is put before the patrons this week. A fine turn is given by the ten San-Tan Girls, whose dancing and singing arouse great applause; an exciting dramatic episode entitled A Woman's Revenge is given by the London Sketch Company; and an amusing comedy sketch, entitled My Wife's Husband is supplied by Mr. C. M. Daly and company; Park's Eton Boys, the gold medal vocalists, submit an admirable turn; Miss Lillian is a daring trick rider; and other contributors to the bill are the Sisters Love, good duettists; Esme Gordon, comedienne; and Bicknell, a clever clay modeller.

THE EMPIRE. — Proprietor, Mr. George Dance; Resident-Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—The Tom Davis Trio give a sensational exhibition of motor cycling on a track which is raised and lowered while the cyclists are at full speed. The Marvellous Houses appear as telepathists or thought-readers, and the quickness with which the answers are given is marvellous; Matthews, Cowper, and company give a charming comedy sketch, When the Clock Went Wrong; the Delomes as phantom clog dancers are deservedly encored; Ethel Ra-Leslie gives a couple of charming songs; and other contributions are given by Will Johnson, comedian; Kroney Brothers, the Lazy Coalmen; Daisy Martell, comedienne and dancer; and the Bioscope.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wallace Davidson.—The Scottish Animated Picture Company are appearing this week with success. Some of the latest pictures are included in the programme, one of the best being Pathé's "Red Spectre." Amongst the variety artists is a droll and clever Scotch comedian, Mr. J. C. Lawrence.

CROYDON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is presenting The Sin of Her Childhood twice nightly here, and the drama is capitally mounted. Miss Dorothy proves herself an accomplished little actress in the dual rôles of Eric Dugdale and little Mary; Miss Lissa Young acts and sings cleverly in the part of Hannah Spry; Miss Katie Lever makes a vivacious Eliza Muggins; Miss Clara Santley shows histrionic ability as Maria Haysel; and Miss Effie Bartlett brings expression to bear upon the rôle of Mary Haysel. Mr. Arthur Trail acts carefully as Thomas Haysel; Mr. Wilson Summers gives a graphic rendering of Stephen Haysel; Mr. James Duncan submits a sound performance as the Rev. Alan Grey; Mr. Frank Liston renders sterling service as Captain John Thornton; and Mr. Hugh Brady is a droll Barney O'Reilly.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Will Evans heads the bill here this week and causes much laughter with The Invasion of 1910. The Brothers Redmond are invigorating acrobatic comedians; Charles Ulrick, the barrel king, wins unstinted applause; Kioto is a marvellous Japanese juggler; Mooney and Holbein are entertaining vaudeville artists; Carney and Armstrong, in their comedy turn, make a big hit; Billy M'Clain, supported by Mme. Cordelia and the Dixie Warblers, are great in The Hottest Coon from Dixie; and other items are Carlotta Levey, vocalist; Jennie Reeve, comedienne; and the Imperial Bioscope.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—The fourth week of the stock season opened on Monday with Jane Shore. Miss programme here this week is the Chronomegaphone, giving a true representation of Harry Lauder in several songs. The excellent singing and graceful dances of the New York Nippers evoke hearty applause; Miss Nellie Martell, with her engaging personality, is popular; the sketch entitled My Landlord, presented by Fred Lawrence and Co., is funny; and J. W. Rickaby upholds his reputation as a comedian; Will English, in coon songs and dances, is nightly recalled; the New Macs remain over from last week; and the Sisters Dorrell, vocalists and dancers, also score successfully. The Empire pictures conclude a well-varied entertainment.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Joe O'Gorman, who heads the bill here, has created quite a furore; the Waldrons in a laughable comedy act, The Silly Burglar, prove diverting; Jennie Hartley, comedienne and dancer, obtains considerable appreciation; Chanti is a protean artist of undoubted ability; and Fred Neiman gives an exceedingly smart ventriloquial act. The Brothers O'Gorman, comedians and dancers, are well received; Madge Allen is a pleasing vocalist and dancer; Ted Curtis and piccaninnies score quite a success; as does also Arthur J. Hill in his lilliputian act. The Bioscope is particularly interesting.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The programme submitted here this week includes: Fred Walton's living marionettes; Emilie Stephenson, ballad vocalist; Witty Will Pearce, humorist and mimic; Ada Lytton, international dancer; and the Cinematograph.

PAVILION, KINGSTOWN.—Manager, Mr. Fred R. Heley.—The So and So's company commenced a week's engagement here on Monday, and were warmly welcomed by a well-filled house. Mr. Harold Johnson, in humorous songs and patter, was very entertaining; Miss Minnie Gordon, in song and dance, was deservedly applauded; Mr. Stuart Alexander and Miss Maude Davis rendered several duets in a capital manner; Miss Gwynneth Power's recitations were appreciated, as were the humorous turns of Messrs. Harold Johnson and Ernest Thiel. Miss Hilda Poel contributed vocal numbers successfully.

DUNDEE.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—A capital representation of The Fatal Hour is being given here. Mr. Douglas Hutchens is an admirable Squire Henderson; Mr. Anthony Gordon is quite at home in the part of Richard Blair; Mr. Charles Kean is a most impressive villain; Mr. Herbert Cecil an amusing Bertie; Mr. Leslie Vyner a good Maurice Isaacs; and Mr. Johnny McElroy, as Walter Wallop, was responsible for good comedy acting. Miss Julie Cathcart made a charming squire's daughter; Miss Dora Hammersley an effective Olga; and Miss Madge Trundle, as Marie St. John, left nothing to be desired. The Four Berlin Belles dance well.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Mr. A. W. B. Kingston's company again occupies the boards here this week. On Monday East Lynne was staged. Miss Madge F. Young as Lady Isobel portrayed the character excellently; Miss Emily Peal as Cornelia Carlyle and Miss Glory Glaurence as Barbara Hare were also successful. A clever rendering of the part of Willie Carlyle was given by Miss Ivy Locke; Mr. A. W. B. Kingston made a gentlemanly Carlyle; as Richard Hare Mr. J. T. Dale sang several songs in a pleasing manner; and Mr. Harry Egan was amusing in the comedy part of Peter Wopps.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE—Proprietors, the Devonshire Park and Baths Co.; Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clarke.—Mr. Arthur A. Horner's company is appearing here in Walker, London. Mr. Edward A. Coventry gets many laughs as Jasper Phipps; Mr. W. Rene Hammersmith is an excellent Renard Von Burg; Mr. Walter Pemberton an animated Kit Upjohn; Mr. Forrester Harvey a very appropriate W. G.; and Mr. Arthur Flinders a satisfactory Ben. Miss Mary Pemberton and Miss R. Catton are pleasing exponents of the parts of Bell Golightly and Nanny; Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite does able comedy work as Mrs. Rigg; Miss Ruby Wyndham is efficient as Mrs. Golightly; and Miss Ethel Stanley gives good help as Penny. Hester's Mystery is the front piece.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Under the management of Mr. Herbert Greville, a company is appearing here in Sweet and Twenty. Miss Hilda Vaughan as Joan is a distinct success, her work being sympathetic and graceful; Miss Violet Greville makes a voluble Mrs. Trevelyan, and Miss Agnes Geoghagen an excellent Ellen. Miss Olga Hope is a pleasingly natural Chris; Mr. Drelincourt Odlum a picturesque and dignified Rev. James Floyd; Mr. Stephen Wentworth a clever and restrained Eustace; Mr. Gordon McLeod, as Douglas, handles a difficult part with considerable success; Mr. Joseph Rowland makes much fun out of the rôle of Prynne, and Mr. Arthur Melton is a satisfactory Treherne.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day.—A capital bill is offered to patrons here, and a worthy head-line is the pretty, clever, and original turn of the Eight Stella Girls; Curwen and Bell are an able couple, with a smart quick-change act; Mr. H. Scott Leslie is a character-actor of ability; Mr. Carl Howard a really funny conjurer; Stevens and Kennior are successful comedians and dancers; Mr. Milnes Verren returns to again delight with his singing; and Miss May Nero as a comedienne completes the programme.

FLORAL HALL.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. E. F. Brown.—On Monday afternoon the inaugural concert of the Duke of Devonshire's Private (Eastbourne) Orchestra was given here. Very keen interest has been shown in the formation of this band, and a large audience assembled to hear the first concert. There are forty-six performers, under the direction of Herr Tas, and the orchestra promises to be an exceptionally fine one. The programme included a Beethoven overture and symphony, Weber's "Invitation à la Valse," Sir E. Elgar's "Cockaigne," and prelude to Meistersinger. The renderings were warmly applauded by an appreciative audience.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—Miss Violet Osmund's company has brought along The New Barmaid. As the two military characters, Captain Lovebury and Colonel Claymore, Mr. James Hawkes and Mr. Frank Collins make good use of their opportunities; and in the humorous rôles of Bertie and William White, Messrs. Alexander Loftus and James Grant are responsible for much hard work and plenty of fun. Monsieur Bonson is capitally impersonated by Mr. Charles Adeson, whose smart step-dancing is a feature in the entertainment; and smaller male parts are well filled. Among the ladies, Miss Clara Beck is a winsome Ethel Joy; Miss Marian Vyner, as Dora Heather, shows herself an adept in graceful dancing; and Miss Mabel Harrison and Miss Grafton play nicely as Lady Moulton and Brenda Louth. The singing is very good, and there is an excellent chorus.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—A capital programme here this week introduces, amongst many other clever turns, Mlle. Alexia, a wonderfully agile and graceful dancer. She is ably assisted by M. Orfes, and the dashing performances of the two artists evoke enthusiastic applause. Mr. Alfred Lester, a quaint comedian, gets with quiet humour in a sketch, entitled A Restaurant Episode, in which he is admirably supported by Miss Florence Wakeman as a French actress. Colly and May give a ventriloquial and musical act with many novel features; and Cedar and Elgar arouse the hearty laughter of the audience by their fresh and amusing patter in a sketch, In Dayes of Olde. Miss Lena Wylie displays a sympathetic and cultivated voice in the rendering of several ballads; Mr. Sam Elton is neat, skilful, and droll in his plate juggling and acrobatic sketch; Thornbury paints extremely well in chalks, and shows ability as a ventriloquist; Mr. Harry Champion finds favour with his humorous patter songs; while Miss Leah Arden, a bright comedienne, and fresh pictures shown by the Bioscope complete an excellent bill.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—This has been quite a comedy week at the Moss-Stoll variety house. Mr. Ernest Shand, in a triple turn, patters and sings most amusingly in his own peculiar and effective style. Mr. Fred Poplar compels laughter by his "drunk" ditty and business; while Mr. Harry Freeman is a comic of the fast and furious sort; Collins and Rice put in some lively work as duologue comedians; and the McConnell Trio of vocalists contribute a happy vaudeville sketch. Smart comediennes and dancers are found in Miss Kitty Wager, the Twin Andersons, and Miss Elly Adair; the ventriloquial entertainment of Mr. Tom Edwards is among the best of its kind, keeping the audience in great humour; and Lockhart's elephants, under the direction of Captain Taylor, score heavily in their clever and diverting performance.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—At Duty's Call is being played by Mr. John Gerant's company. Mr. John Gerant gives an able portrayal of Harold Allison; Mr. Henry Watson acquits himself with credit as Captain George Allison; General Gordon is ably interpreted by Mr. Thomas E. Barry. Mr. Frank Caffrey acts with unfailing humour as Terry O'Hallaron; Mr. Frederick Sandy is excellent as Jack Spencer; Mr. Louis Scott is an effective Hassan; Mr. Ivan Mavis deserves a word of praise as Joey Trot; Miss Lily Crammonde is charming and graceful as the heroine, Dora Drummond; Miss Beatrice Western is splendid as Salema; Miss Doris Lorraine distinguishes herself as Mary; and Miss Nina Vere makes a capital Merrud.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager and Musical-Director, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton.—"The Willow Pattern Serenaders," Mr. Arthur Chenery's costume concert party, commenced a week's engagement here on Monday. Miss Amy Brook renders some catchy songs; Miss Mildred Parr is a chic comedienne; Miss Zoe Styles gives some first-rate musical items; Mr. Coran Smart as Ko-Ko merits applause; and Mr. Arthur Chenery as Chin-Chin is a comedian of special ability.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—"Starring" here this week we have Miss Ella, with her troupe of well-tamed forest-bred lions; Otto and Olga, comedy instrumentalists and vocalists, make a pronounced "hit"; a success is also scored by Claire Greta, who dances with rare grace; Harry Nelson, a local comedian, finds appreciation; Harry Barclay, an excellent comedian, wins well-merited approval; and the Sisters Bartholomew, Patta Bella, comedienne, and pictures, depicted by Vernon's Bioscope, complete an excellent race holiday programme.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company, in Dan the Rake, has attracted large holiday audiences to this house. Mr. Cassidy, in the title-rôle, shows all his old cleverness; Mr. Jerold E. Reed makes an excellent Colonel Flamer; Mr. Frank Copeland carries himself well as Lieut. Kavanagh; Mr. Arthur Stratton makes the most of the part of Tom Cooper; Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy acts with rare vivacity as Madge; Helen Flamer is capitally portrayed by Miss Florence Creagh; and Miss Alice Marsden fills the part of Mrs. Donnelly with distinction.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—The New York Picture Company continues to show here. Jack Sheppard, jail breaker and handcuff expert, is also in this week's programme.

GLASGOW.—KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Mr. Monckton Hoffe's company is here this week in The Importance of Being Earnest. The part of John Worthing, J.P., is taken by Mr. C. J. Nicholson, who gives a convincing portrayal; Mr. Monckton Hoffe is admirably suited as Algernon Moncrieff; the Rev. Canon Chasuble is played with excellent taste by Mr. Ralph Hutton; Merriman and Lane are well represented by Messrs. Arthur Forbes Watts and A. W. Barker; the Lady Bracknell of Miss Phyllis Manners is highly amusing; and as Gwendoline Fairfax Miss Hestor Newton bears herself gracefully; Miss Nona Hope acts with spirit as Cicely Cardew; and the Miss Prism of Miss Amy Lloyd-Desmond is a particularly good study. The comedy is preceded by A Queen's Messenger.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Natanson and their Hebrew company are here. The plays presented have included The Wise Man, The Savages, The Broken Hearts, The Jewish Zaza, King Lear, Hamlet, all in Yiddish. The powerfully dramatic acting of Mr. and Mrs. Natanson has evoked admiration.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Manners.—Bransby Williams's portrayal of Dickens's characters has again been loudly applauded here; Hetty King sings in characteristic style; John L. Shine and company in An Actor's Art are successful; and the Brothers St. Clair are amusing in their comedy cycle act. Victor Travers and Frank Couch do well; Nell Emerald, comedienne; Dora Martini, gymnast; and May Walsh, comedienne contribute to a capital programme.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—May Mars is making a success here; Little Maudie Francis's pretty songs and neat dancing are admired; Launceton Elliott displays marvellous strength; R. H. Douglass, in a monologue, The Private Detective, assumes several smart disguises; Little Tichbourne is an agile long boot dancer; Ernest Tilbury's illustrated songs are very successful; Lieut. Travis takes well in his ventriloquial turn; and Leonie Dixon is a smart soubrette. The programme concludes with a musical comedy sketch, The Garden of Glitter, by Jack Mackenzie and company.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Miss Connie Ediss has introduced with success several of her comedy songs; the Brennans' dances are smart, and the Brothers Harrison are clever comedians; George Cairncross, in dramatic impersonations, makes a success; the singing of W. G. Webber, basso, is a treat; Bonsanquet is a violinist of rare skill; Gillin is a popular ventriloquial artist; Hayman and Franklin, Hebrew impersonators, have a royal reception; Fun in a Café serves to show the Seven Wulfrunas at their best.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Lew Lake and company, in My Pal Jerry, are here. The principal characters are capably filled by Bob Morris and Lew Lake. The Millman Trio of tight wire artists evoke appreciation; Signor and Mme. Borelli's songs are capitally rendered; other interesting turns are those of the Sisters Gasch, clever acrobats; Madge May, comedienne; Marie Santoi, in the vocal novelty, "A Japanese Tea Garden"; Bert Woodward, trick cyclist; and Little Ganty, comedian. The Bioscope has an interesting set of pictures.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldron; General Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—John E. Coyle has an enthusiastic welcome here; a neat and graceful cycling turn is contributed by the Five Sisters Warwick; Peter Bermingham is a strong favourite, and his quaint witticisms are richly enjoyed; Clive and Clark do a very good song and dance turn; and the Royal Korries supply an enjoyable performance; Bert Danson, a smart patter comedian; Russell Carr, a clever ventriloquist; Queenie May, juvenile comedienne; and the latest Pathé films on the Bioscope complete a first-rate bill.

GAIETY, LTD.—General Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Mayme Cannon's rendering of several popular coon songs takes immensely here. Capitally received are the McKinnon Family, instrumentalists and dancers; Arthur Woodville gets well merited recognition for his dancing; Minnie Wren and Norah Bremner alike do well; and the songs of Percy Curry and Dick Graham are appreciated. The Gaiety Bioscope concludes the programme.

BRITANNIA.—Sole Proprietor and Director, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Flint and Lovett, comedians and dancers, are the principal attractions here. Cee Bee, instrumentalist and vocalist, makes many friends; other artists engaged are Osmond, expert balancer; Nettie Hawthorn, comedienne; and Tessie Vandean, burlesque actress and dancer. The Bioscope has an interesting set of pictures.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Mr. James Willard and Co., in the sketch The Little Wonder, appear with success. Mr. Ernie Myers as a patterist is excellent, and Messrs. Pearce and Ward, burlesque boxers, etc., present a smart act. Kato's Komical Kidgets are an entertaining living marionette performance. The Marvellous Avolos, comedy acrobats on the perpendicular poles, are capital, and an artistic humorous turn is provided by Mr. Tom E. Hughes. Miss Lily Lonsdale is rewarded with applause for her tasteful vocalism, and Welda and Wynne, comedy jugglers, dancers, etc., are quite to the liking of the audience. The Four Oldham Mill Lads sing and dance cleverly and the same applies to the Three Tivoli Girls. The Bioscope concludes a good programme.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Julian Graham's company is here this week with the merry musical play, Juno. Miss Kate Graham Beck, the American soubrette, is charming as Juno, and is well supported by Mr. Harry Walsh as Timothy Twinkle; Mr. Fred Carrington as Samuel Strong, Mr. Richard Teasdale as John Murphy, Mr. Geo. Walker as Anthony Somers, Miss Edith Barnes as Mrs. Marie Strong, Miss Florence Wood as Priscilla Strong, and Miss Gertrude Lawson as Lottie Stimson.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—This favourite place of amusement opened for the summer season on Monday, and a capital programme is provided for the week. The most applauded artists are the Banzai Troupe of Japanese, who give a fine acrobatic performance; Les Montaldos, equilibrists on the slack wire, who introduce highly-trained parrots and cockatoos into their act; and Miss Chloe Convere, in a graceful equestrian performance; plenty of laughter is evoked by Rabbit and the Brothers Webb, especially in the farcical Spanish bull fight. Other artists appearing are Tony and Novel, Russian equilibrists, Almero, the man monkey, Mr. Geo. Gilbert, with "Spot Beauty," and Addison's Troupe of performing fox terriers. Interesting pictures, including the Derby, 1907, are shown by the Bioscope.

BRITANNIA PIER PAVILION. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—The San Francisco Minstrels are giving a most enjoyable entertainment. Specially fun-provoking is the Great Little Thomas, and specialities by G. Rickins, the Musical Harpers, the Chandos, and Messrs. Gallimore and Steene are much appreciated.

GREENOCK.—EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—Lambeth and Robertson provide the star attraction with their sketch, Scots' Folks Wooing. J. H. Harris, comedian, scores nightly with his well-rendered songs; Luie O. Wright, comedienne and dancer, wins cordial applause; and others who do well are Bella Almore, comedienne and dancer; Wilton and Ford, comedians and patterers; and Little Venus, character-vocalist and dancer. The Bioscope pictures are up to date.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—Victor Newman heads the bill here this week, his impersonations of past and present actors being capital; Mlle. Rosini's exhibition of trained dogs is of exceptional merit; the Two Cliffs distinguish themselves as clever acrobats; Lilly Black, comedienne, is a charming vocalist; and other contributors are Jack Easy, comedian; Gipsy Ann, with her fortune-telling dog; Amy Bathurst, comedienne; and the Pavilion Bioscope.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—After a long absence Haddon Chambers's The Idler is being presented by a company under the direction of Mrs. T. Greenwood-Croft. Mr. Philip Cuningham wins favour for his acting as Mark Cross; Mr. Stephen T. Ewart is equally prominent as Sir John Harding; and Mr. William Attfield as Simeon Strong contributes in a large measure to the success. Mrs. Greenwood-Croft proves herself an accomplished actress as Lady Harding; and as Kate Merryweather Miss Zoe Davis is well received.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes.—Alexandra Dagmar is highly pleasing the audiences with her diverting stories and generally entertaining business. A dramatic episode, Blackmail, in which a sensational water scene is introduced, is presented by Harry Herne and Ida Millias' company. The Four Rosaries are clever bar performers; the Sisters Grosvenor are a trio of charming vocalists; Walter Wade displays versatility as a comedian; Charles Lestree is a smart juggler; and the Sivanes, in a comedy act, and Dolly Denver, dancer, also contribute.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris.—This week the boards are occupied by a vaudeville company, organised by Mr. Stanley Hope, in aid of local charity. A clever little sketch, Her Ladyship and the Newsvendor, is most excellently interpreted by Miss Nellie Thearle and Mr. Stanley Hope. Miss Harriett Fawn charms her audience by her expressive singing and sprightly dancing; the one-act play, Drifted Apart, from the pen of Sir Charles Young, Bart., was also presented, Mr. Hope appearing as Sir Geoffrey and Miss Thearle as Lady Gwendoline.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—A Woman of the People, admirably enacted by the Northern Theatres Stock Company, is attracting capital houses. The devil-may-care Renny had an artistic interpreter in Mr. Bernard Mervyn; Mr. Cyril Austin Lee gave an interesting study of Bertrand; while the shadiness of the piece was thoroughly looked after by Mr. J. Cook Hinton. Clever Miss Winnie Tempest created a deep impression in the title-rôle; and Miss Ruby Loncraine was no less successful as Sophie. The setting of this important work reflects great credit upon the producer, Mr. Ernest Plumpton.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Ed. Harrison.—Haley's Juveniles provide a picturesque carnival scena; screamingly funny is the sketch Ferdie's Ma-in-Law, delightfully put on by Mr. Flockton Foster's company, including Mr. Arnold Richardson; neat is the business contributed by Webb and Branston, opera singers; and Gladys Huxley makes many friends. Oakdene causes great fun in a ventriloquial act; and Maidie Scott, who styles herself just a comedienne, is always welcome. Queenie Essex, another comedienne, is also well received.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sam Winks.—The Colley-Dryden Company are doing big business here this week. Ada Colley, the "Australian Nightingale," has been in excellent voice, and fairly entranced her innumerable admirers with her superb renderings of popular ballads. A welcome appearance is made by Leo Dryden, whose character simulations of favourite actors were loudly applauded; Martin Conway is cordially received on his return visit; a troupe of skilful equilibrists are the Los Rupertos; and Mollie Nolan soon wins favour with her singing and dainty foot work. The would-be acrobats, by Comical Walker, and a farce, entitled Charlie's Indian, introduced by Leo Dryden's Comedy Co., earn well-merited approbation; Globella, in an up-to-date globe-walking experiment, works hard.

HANLEY. — GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynes.—Mlle. De Dio heads the bill, in her beautiful new dances; Radford and Valentine's juggling is particularly fine; Bob Hamilton is decidedly successful in his Scotch songs, his concertina-playing also is quite a feature; Dolly and Elsie are a smart pair of juvenile vocalists and dancers; Horace White has a novel ventriloquial entertainment, which is much appreciated; Cullen and Carthy and Little Cluley patter and dance cleverly; Marie Tempest is a smart comedienne, with a nice style; Herbert La Martine is a truly wonderful dancer; and the Pictures are capital.

HARTLEPOOL. — EMPRESS. — Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—On Monday both houses were packed in every available part. Screams of laughter predominated whilst J. Gar Kiddie and his company were performing their absurdity, The House of Tinn. Fanny and Harry Dent, old favourites here, had a hearty welcome in their comedy sketch, Mary and the Squire; the Wartenburg Bros. are the smartest double-foot experts ever seen in the 'Pools; the Wakeman Quartette of vocalists, including Miss Nancy Bruce (soloist), provide a pleasing turn. Much amusement is created by Helm and Cozens in a comedy act. The Doctor and the Patient; Henriquette Maude, "the 'London Daily Mirror's' Little New Zealand Girl," gives an interesting account, illustrated, of how she worked her way round the world; J. C. Scatter, with song, dance, and patter, takes well; and excellent pictures of Japanese scenery conclude.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—On Monday Mr. C. E. Scutt had a complimentary benefit performance, and was gratified by a crowded house. The lengthy programme opened by an excellent performance of Box and Cox, Mr. C. Esdale appearing as Box, Mr. C. E. Scutt as Cox, and Miss Frances Davie as Mrs. Bouncer. Miss Dorothy Payn and Mr. Lawrence Hanray gave their entertainment of humorous duets, recitations, and a well-executed clog dance; Mr. Bert Forss cleverly impersonated Dickens's characters, and was warmly applauded; Mr. Charles E. Scutt delivered a most interesting description of New Zealand, aided by views very well shown by Mr. H. W. Rowland. The orchestra, augmented and directed by Mr. Thos. Hilton, was greatly appreciated. Miss Winifred Dixon, a soprano of excellent voice, sang a ballad; Mr. Thos. Hilton submitted two well-played violin solos; the one-act matrimonial scene, He, She, and It, played by Mr. C. E. Scutt and Miss Jessica Thorne, followed by the clever comedian, Mr. J. D. Hunter, in his humorous songs and character sketches, concluded the performance. The theatre will be closed for a fortnight for renovations.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. W. Hunter.—Mr. Sydney Spencer's No. 1 company, in My Sweetheart, provides a pleasant entertainment. Tina, as taken by Miss Lizzie Hall, is conspicuous for its winsomeness and charm; Mr. Edward Rawlinson puts plenty of healthy vigour into his embodiment of Tony; as Joe Shotwell Mr. Sydney Spencer gives a sturdy and convincing rendering; a good impersonation comes from Miss Violet Etherington; Miss Mary Drummond submits a capital sketch of the farmer's wife; an effective portrait of Mrs. Fleeter is submitted by Miss Ada Champion; and Mr. Wilson Coleman's Harold Bartlett and Mr. Frank Wilson's Dudley Harcourt are telling impersonations. Oliver and Farmer Hatzell are well represented by Mr. John Traynor and Mr. James Porter respectively.

ST. LEONARDS PAVILION THEATRE.—Pier-Master and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—The principal artist in a good programme here is the American songstress, Miss Yvonne Lamor, who interprets her songs with decided charm, both as regards voice and style. Miss Julia Willis has a pleasing way of singing; Miss Muriel Harding as a vocalist earns a cordial welcome, and she is associated with Mr. Sidney Hamilton in an interesting sketch, A Newspaper Episode. Mr. Scrope-Quentin also sings.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—A novel programme is provided for this the last week of the season. The first item is a tuneful operatic drama, entitled The Gamester, in which some good singing is heard from Miss Lili Sharpe, Mr. Furness Williams, and Mr. Arthur Cartwright. This is followed by a high-class pianoforte and violin recital by Herr Aiulf Hjorvard at the piano, and M. Rafalewski solo violin. The concluding piece is a lyric comedy, entitled The K.C.—a bright musical playlet acceptably presented.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—A fine bill includes the Piccolinos, a pair of accomplished, versatile midgets; the Boston Twins, comedians; Miss Ghita Corri, whose fine singing is highly appreciated; the Meymotts, a smart pair, in their diverting sketch, Semi-Detached; Jack Lane, a good comedian, whose stories in the vernacular create roars of laughter; Verno and Voyce, in their entertaining burlesque, Jack Sheppard; Walls and Mackenzie, whose tuneful ballad singing is well received; the Stein Eretto troupe of acrobats, in some wonderful feats of hand-jumping; and a good film on the Bioscope.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Local Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Her One Great Sin, which is presented by Miss Lydia Donovan's company, is possessed of powers of attraction which fill the theatre. As the wronged husband, Mr. G. Edward Hall finds ample scope to shine; while as his antithesis, Mr. Cecil Newton plays the heavy part with much success. As the foil to the various schemes of the villain, Miss Phyllis Damian carries the sympathy of the house with her; and as an emotional actress Miss Lydia Donovan shines considerably.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Morley.—The melodrama The Hour of Her Triumph appeals with much success to the patrons of this popular playhouse. Mr. Leslie Hawkins gives a conscientious rendering of the father's rôle; in the part of the consistent schemer, Eugene Harbury, Mr. Fred J. Webb attains a fair place; as the wronged girl, Nellie Clavering, Miss M Danvers-Smith plays sympathetically; Miss Lalla Price proves her versatility in a double rôle; the Rose Denton of Miss Barbara Gott is a very creditable piece of work; Mr. Newton gives a good account of himself in the comedy rôle.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Yeaham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—The La Faille troupe top the bill in a smart equilibristic act; the Three Prestons are responsible for roars of laughter in their sketch, The Liftman's Rise; Jack Pleasants is a big favourite; Vardon, a rising ventriloquist, Annie Lang, a serio and dancer, Elton and Elma, in a funny knockabout act, and Jack Crawley completing a capital company.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—On Monday Mr. Emerson commenced his 116th consecutive night with animated pictures.

THE EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Hector and Sultan and the Sauteron Wonders are the principal turns here.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr. Ellerslie Pyne and company, in The Sleigh Bells. Mr. Pyne himself takes the rôle of Mathias, his excellent performance meeting with loud and prolonged applause. Miss Grace Jones makes the most of Annette, and Mr. Norman H. Tracey gives a good study of Christian. Miss Renie Douglas is a successful exponent of Catherine; Father Walter and Hans are suitably represented by Messrs. William Garrett and Bernard H. Webb. Each evening the play is followed by Poor Joe, the title-rôle being taken by Miss Grace Jones.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Jim Morley.—Chant and Chant, in songs, dances, &c., Bert Coote, comedian, Alice Campbell, comedienne, Jack Taylor, vocal comedian, and Alice Temple, song and dance artist, are appearing here with success.

IPSWICH. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The chief item of this week's programme is that of the famous Elliot-Savonas combination, whose clever instrumental act is presented under the title of "The Palace of Orpheus," with wonderful electric appliances. Other turns include Richard Taylor, a clever ventriloquist and sifleur; the Raynor Trio of equilibrists; O'Malley and Brown, in a laughable knockabout sketch called You're Still a Friend of Mine; Dan Palmer, comedian; Ivy Adelaide, a pleasing singer, who well rendered a dainty song, "The Lady of the Lake"; and Yavelle Brothers, a pair of knockabout comedians.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Rex Sugden.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Hartwell J. Kirby's company, in Man's Enemy. The part of Harry Stanton is done full justice to by Mr. Norman A. Overton, and Mr. T. A. Ellis gives a powerful portrayal of that of Tom Drake; Mr. Fred Owen causes much amusement as Isaac Barnett; Mr. T. G. Vane is well placed as Fred Lisle; Count Lanski is carefully handled by Mr. Hartwell J. Kirby; and Mr. Charles E. Johnson makes an ideal Bill Saunders. Miss Maud Buchanan is all that can be desired as Sarah Drake, and Miss Maudie Grayson as Grace Lisle and Miss May Grayce as Polly Harris are well placed.

JERSEY.—THE HORSE-SHOE QUARRY.—The Pierrots and Veroniques are still very popular. This week the entertainment is exceptionally good; Mr. James Salter has joined the troupe, and Mr. Tom Payne is greatly en évidence.

ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—The National Animated Pictures Company are drawing crowded houses, many local pictures being shown.

THE TRIANGLE PARK.—The second week of the Dagonets' visit opened last Monday. The programme is a good one, and the new-comer, Mr. Guy Williams, was enthusiastically encored for his songs.

LANCASTER.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—The bill is headed this week by Sid Doody and Edie Wright in a comedy act, which is well received; Hall and Earle are remarkably clever eccentrics; Jas. Stewart, the Tramp at the Piano, has a flattering reception; and the Silver Tone Quartette sing and dance nicely; Mlle. Ameda, equilibrist; Mlle. La Tostia, with the mandoline; Miss Luna Lisle, comedienne; and the Hippograph, with new pictures, complete a first-rate programme.

LEEDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—A thrilling drama, The Woman Who Gambles, is at the Royal this week, an effective presentation being given by Mr. Morton Powell's company. The central figure of Countess Nattalie is an effective personation of much ability by Miss Lillian Herries. Mr. George Steele wins favour with a resolute personation of Count Steinbach; Mr. Percy Ballard displays ability as Baron Cratzlaw; and Mr. Edwin Owen is well fitted in the part of the Hon. Bertie Bray. Miss Dora Thrale and Miss Brenda May each distinguish themselves in leading feminine rôles, and the cast throughout is efficient.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Ltd; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—The musical contributions of the Black Hussars are decidedly effective; Ray Wallace, the clever mimic, is again a leading line, and her performance continues very popular; as also do the comedy characters cleverly portrayed by Nellie Coleman. Some expert acrobatic dancing by the Carlyles is much enjoyed. Dome, the clay manipulator, contributes his usual interesting turn; a bright musical sketch by Clarence Corri and company arouses great enthusiasm; and the juvenile musical spectacle, Egypt, presented by local boys, is an effective turn. Kitty Marion proves a pleasing and popular comedienne, and an interesting Bioscope display completes the bill.

PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece.—The Palace bill is headed this week by Percival, in a clever performance at the piano; the Three Zaracs win favour in a smart and humorous triple-bar act; the Zampas, duettists and dancers, score with a dashing interlude; and the Ladderites are doing their specialty with success; T. C. Callaghan and Charles Gardner are popular comedians; Jimmy James finds ready acceptance with his banjo selections; and Marie Leonard sings in attractive style.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler. — Another recruit from musical comedy, Frank Danby, makes a very popular top-of-the-bill turn here, his rollicking humour finding an effective vehicle in a farcical sketch, The Chauffeur. A romantic sketch serves for the exploitation of Jan Rudenyi's musical abilities and his selections on the violin are listened to with rapt attention; Stewart and Morgan win approval with their fine vocal abilities; acrobatics by that clever pair, Tate and Tate, are an interesting feature; Clown Barker is once again very successful with his circus presentation; and those fine musicians, Barton and Franklin, are also having a good week. Maud Esmond is a favourite comedienne; a remarkable dancing spectacle is provided by Mlle. Lumière; and a clever comedy duo, Martinette and Wallace, complete the bill in popular style.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones

finds its opportunities in the part of Gordon Isaacs; and Mr. Barry Lupino's Tommy Sprouts is a very diverting person; while Mr. John Darlison and Mr. Percival Dye contribute careful studies of character as Sir Sydney Barraclough and Godfrey Dane; and Mr. Roy Craig shows much promise in his impersonation of Bertie Burlington. Miss Doris Gilham plays with great spirit in the congenial rôle of Aminta J. Beane, Miss Etta Imeson is quite charming as Sylvia, and Miss Paulina Gear acts with artistic feeling the more emotional part of Margaret Dane. A one-act version of Robert Macaire is excellently interpreted by Messrs. Clavering Craig and Lupino as the immortal thieves, Mr. Chippendale and Mr. Somerville as the sergeant and the landlord, and Miss Gilham as Marie.

LIVERPOOL. — ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery. For notice of a new production here see another column.

LYRIC.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—The ever-popular Round the Clock heads the bill here this week, Charles Majilton and his company proving as funny as ever; a screamingly ridiculous scena, P.C. Pudden on Duty in the Limelight, is given by Harry Pleon, Celia Kent, and party; Ernie Mayne's parodies on popular songs are very laughable; some smart songs come from Venie Belfrey; Kartelie performs cleverly on the slack wire; Lilian Victoria, a talented young male impersonator, who is earning golden opinions, has a cordial reception; and the Bioscope shows the latest pictures.

STAR THEATRE. Proprietor, and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Mr. Robert Perris's company, under the direction of Mr. Karl H. Edwards, pay a welcome return visit here, with A Fight for Millions, which is worthily presented. Mr. William Macready holds the rôle of Tom Manly with distinction; Mr. Kendrew Milson acts well as Hudson Rivers; Mr. Richard A. Greene proves effective in the character of Richard Dudley; a well-drawn tramp, Willie Never work, is submitted by Mr. Karl H. Edwards; Mr. Harold Turner causes a deal of laughter with his Solomon Moses; Mr. Tom Jones makes a funny Clara Ap Morgan; Miss Elma C. Turner gives a sympathetic rendering of Helen Dudley; and strong support comes from Miss Winifred Symons (Pearl Rivers), Miss May Crosse (Mrs. Rivers), and Miss Rosie Kearns (Betty and Mag Brady).

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan. —Top of the programme here this week is Jock Whiteford, a particularly funny Scotch comedian; the acrobatic work of the Lumars is watched with interest; Osborn and Brookes are a pair of accomplished musical comedians; some smart songs are rendered by Gertie Gitana; the Ringling Trio of American eccentrics prove an amusing turn; a merry time is provided by the comedians, Tennyson and Wallis; a charming trifle of humour and song, entitled The Little Colonel, is submitted by Ernest Montefiore and company; the Henres are expert juvenile club throwers; and others in the list are Smith and Johnson, society coloured duo; the Macdonald Trio, with their musical garden; and Edie Gray and "the boys" in harmony.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. —The "Royal" stock company here are this week giving The Ring that Binds. Mr. Harry Tresham plays well as Gerald Hazleton; Mr. Sydney Grant makes an efficient Mortimer Despard; the double rôle of Colonel Beverley and David Rogers is held by Mr. Cecil Ravenswood; Mr. Robert Wilton is a funny Belshazzar Pitt; and other excellently given parts are Surana (Miss Beryl Ravenswood), and Mona Beverley (Miss Nellie Bonser).

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Edwards. — Walter Howard's Man and Wife is the play given here this week by the "Royal" stock company. Included among the principal artists are Messrs. Wallace Campbell (Paul Revere), Frank Strickland (Captain D'Esparre), H. Hesslegrave (Sergeant Jacques), H. G. Brandon (Bimbo), Francis E. Wybert (Bambo), Misses Florence Barnes (Jean), Lina Nazeby (Ruth Revere), and Gladys H. Walton (Marcelle).

PARK PALACE.—Proprietors, The Lancashire Vaudeville Syndicate, Ltd.—The able stock company here, under the direction of Mr. Albert Sember, are doing good business. This week they are giving The Law and the Man. Mr. Sember acts with power as Will Waring; Mr. Walter Foster holds the part of Seth J. Hoskins with credit; Mr. Archie Helsby affords satisfaction as Robert Galloway; the Silas Wragley of Mr. Hugh Carmichael deserves praise; Mr. Will Percy does credit to Tom Dabney; and other parts are efficiently submitted by Miss Lizzie Chambers (Bess Dabney), Miss Nelson-Ramsey (Cicely Waring), and Miss Lillian Burns (Nellie Laverock).

HAYMARKET.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Harry Calden and company are this week presenting The Shadow of Guilt, or the Avenging Hand; Edward Ind, a popular character vocalist, pays a return visit; George Reynolds shows ability as a comedian and dancer; and Ivy May has some taking songs, and dances neatly. The Bioscope shows a large number of up-to-date pictures.

WESTMINSTER. — Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The beautifully illustrated songs by the Lynchs are highly appreciated here; Earle and Melville keep their audience in a merry humour; the Danas are a smart vocal comedy duo; and the rest of the programme is occupied by Le Warren, singing ventriloquist, and the excellent Bioscope.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Jackson and McLaren, with their tree-felling exhibition, make their first appearance in Liverpool; Master Edward Garratt, of The Little Stranger fame, gives a delightful trifle, The Baby Burglar; Percy Honri has a budget of funny things; a fine exhibition of juggling comes from Rapoli; Boyd and Gilfain provide a pleasing musical turn; the Celtic Comedy Trio are humorous vocalists; Powell's Marionettes are cleverly manipulated; and the programme also contains the names of Herbert Rule, eccentric comedian, and La Danseuse, an accomplished juvenile artist, with her dancing scena, Santa Claus.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Harry Lauder is drawing big houses here; the Lukushimas, including Otra San, a most expert troupe of Japanese entertainers, delight everybody; Tom Moore has some excellent and funny songs; a remarkable exhibition of strength is given by the Four Regals; Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire singing mill girl, is received with cordiality; Frank R. Bertram and company present a capital comedy sketch, The Chaperon; some remarkable jumping is shown by the Hartleys; Ryan and Hall have a funny show as acrobats and wrestlers; and the Boccaccio Minstrels, including Signor Francia, give a most pleasing entertainment.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Liverpool Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. James Marks.—A very attractive bill here this week is headed by the smart sketch, A Trip to Coontown, which has pleased immensely; the Esquimaux Troupe have a novelty acrobatic scena, The Land of the Midnight Sun; Geoffreys and Benson are a lively and merry couple; the wonderful and swiftly-executed oil-paintings by Vandinoff are much admired; a pleasing musical performance is provided by the able instrumentalists, Franchini, Ollam, and Page; Ingram and Irving are a smart pair of comedians; Alsa Douglas sings sweetly; and W. B. Raby, comedian, also appears.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—The Bioscope occupies a large share of the bill here. Some able juggling is gone through by Monty Santos; Jock McKay, the new Scotch comedian and piper, is loudly applauded; and Eileen and Mayne are a couple of smart musical, dancing, and singing juveniles.

LLANDUDNO.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. A. E. Vaughan; Manager, Mr. J. Ritson.—The Parisian Animated Picture Company are again occupying the boards this week with a new set of pictures each evening.

PIER HEAD PAVILION.—Messrs. Adeler and Sutton's Pierrots; Local Manager, Mr. Arthur Sutcliffe.—The Gay River is presented by the Pierrots to enthusiastic audiences. Mr. Frank Dunlop makes a decided hit; Miss Mildred Bryan's voice is much admired; Mr. W. H. Powell excels both in song and dance; Mr. Harrison Latimer is also in excellent voice; Miss Winifred Norman's dancing is all that can be desired; and Misses Casa and Elinor Crawford both do well.

PIER PAVILION, LTD.—Secretary, Mr. Sam Hughes. —The orchestra under Mr. A. W. Payne, A.R.A.M., plays to crowded audiences nightly. The vocalists on Saturday were Mme. Edna Thornton and Miss Lenora Russell, who were both in excellent voice.

LOWESTOFT. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—The series of animated pictures include two thrilling scenes, "The Trail of Blood" and "The Highway Robbery." The Brothers Bright top the bill and prove very entertaining in their gymnastic display; J. H. Kavanagh is most amusing as a comedian; and Miss Mabel Bright is a warm favourite as a comedienne and dancer.

MARINA.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—The London Comedy Company are here with A Fool's Paradise. Miss Laura Hansen is seen to advantage as Beatrice Selwyn; Mr. Cecil Wynne affords a capital study as Sir Peter Lund; and Mr. Arthur Claremont is equally successful as Lord Normantower; Mr. Wylie Thompson is admirably cast as the Hon. Tom Veringer; and Miss Margery Chard performs creditably in the rôle of Kate Derwent.

SPARROW'S NEST PARK.—The Lowestoft Corporation concerts started for the season on Monday. The company includes "The Gaieties," Beatrice Jeffreys, Lois Barker (accompanist), Ruby Wilson, and Messrs. Percy Watson, Chas. Conyers, and Wilson James. On the opening day the audience were entertained to afternoon tea by the Mayor and Mayoress, Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Bradbeer.

OLYMPIAN GARDENS.—Mr. Paul Mill, a well-known local entertainer, commenced his season at this popular resort on Monday, when Mr. F. R. Duberley's company presented a musical entertainment, The March Hares. The artists include Messrs. Davy, Burnaby, Edmund Hallick, Crampton Bryant, and Misses Kathleen Severn, Maud Jay, and Doris Lind. Mr. Philip Braham proves an admirable accompanist.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, E. Graham Falcon; Manager Louis J. Beard.—Vaudeville entertainments are being given at this theatre during the summer months, and are much appreciated by the townspeople. This week, amongst others, The Weimers, in their graceful, comical, and refined entertainment on the elevated wire, are accorded a hearty welcome, as also is the actor-vocalist, Mr. Fred Villars. Miss Dora Doone is a clever vocalist and dancer, and Miss Kate Avey is quite a favourite, her dancing being above the average. Messrs. Chas. Appo, in a pedestal act, and Wal. Robins, the black and white artist, are also good.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The bill here is headed by the famous Kellinos, acrobats. The Brothers Hayes, cross-talk comedians and dancers; the Polio Trio of cyclophone experts; the Five Casino Girls, instrumentalists; Bella Williams, comedienne; and the Biograph are among the other attractions.

CORN EXCHANGE. — The pictures of the Excello Chronophone and Bioscope Company are well up to date, and include the Derby and a great variety of subjects. Their vaudeville entertainment and musical selections are excellent.

MANCHESTER.—ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son: Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Mrs. Fred J. Kirke's musical comedy company in the romantic musical drama, In Old Madrid, form the attraction here this week, and the piece is very well received. Mr. Leslie Austen works hard and successfully as Frank Wyndhurst and the Italian Count; as Fernando Cassilus, Mr. C. H. Matthews shows marked ability; and Mr. W. E. Chewd is capital as Mendoza Stittigano, the toreador; Madoline Ellesmere is charmingly played by Miss Edith Claris; a clever interpretation of Martha Montmorency, the danseuse, is given by Miss Lily Seymour; Miss Francesca Strickland as Violet, Lyndhurst's wife, plays with great sympathy and effect; and Miss Louie Fountaine is very successful as Lola, the Spanish girl. The piece is not lacking in humour, which is amply exploited by Mr. Walter H. Hibbert as the valet and Mr. Charles Burns as Violet's uncle. Some good singing and pleasing dances enliven the action. The programme is varied by a change on Thursday to The Naval Detective, for the remainder of the week.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn.—The Kurios, in a comical concoction of art and mystery, are the top attraction here this week, and worthily justify their prominence. Capital business of a sensational kind is added by J. Koffer-Reynolds and company, in a "wreckage" scena, entitled Conscience. Florence Smithers and company are seen in Hard Lines, an excellent comedy sketch; the Juanitos Troupe of Spanish acrobats also do wonderfully well; and other good turns are to the credit of Harwood's Juveniles, in a novelty scena, the Betsons, clever comedy cyclists, Marquis and Mignonette, in a smart comedy act, Little Willie, the Moules, light entertainers, and Harry Bentley, eccentric comedian. The pictures are very good.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Manager, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—The fifth week of Mr. Sidney Dench's company at this theatre is marked by a very satisfactory production of Conn, the Shaughraun. Mr. Sidney Dench plays Conn and Miss Dora Dench is seen as Claire Ffolliott, both playing with marked success, while the company supporting them is all that could be desired, and the staging is adequately sensational.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Miss Winifred Chalmers and company are here this week in a clever and well-played version of Oliver Twist, dramatised by Messrs. Henry L. Osmond and Ernest Noble, who appear in the respective rôles of Bill Sikes and Monks, and contribute much to the success of the play; Miss Winifred Chalmers plays Nancy in splendid style; and Mr. John C. Carlyle adds a fine dramatic impersonation of Fagin; while as Oliver Miss Lizzie Powers is natural and pleasing. Among others who submit clever character studies, Mr. Harry Cook as the Dodger, Mr. H. Gower May as Bumble, and Mr. H. Somerville as Mr. Grimwig, are well worthy of special praise.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The big turns here this week are provided by the Donaldson Bros. and Ardel, in their Zoological comedy-pantomime, and the Seven Perezoffs, in a comic juggling act, An Evening in a Parisian Café. Violet Ray, instrumentalist and singer, is well received; Arthur Gill, the yokel of many voices, is possessed of a wonderful gift; Will Bishop and company present My Gollywog, with capital effect; Marzella's Birds are marvellously trained; Ross and Grayson, the quaint couple, in a musical comedy mélange, are very funny and undoubtedly one of the best turns in the programme; Frank Lynne, comedian, is entertaining; and Arthur Lester sings well to illustrations. The Bioscope completes with a diverting series.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—A "big" attraction here this week is the Tyrolean giantess, Mariedl. Excellent are Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco, in their unique entertainment, a combination of cleverness; Mabel Bardine and company are highly successful in a dramatic playlet by Marion Russell, entitled Nell of the Halls; and Fred Hastings, comedian, makes a decided hit; Madge Grey is a clever mimic and bright comedienne, and is deservedly well received; Gintaro is exceptionally smart as a Japanese juggler and top spinner; and capital turns are also furnished by Ruby Dahl and her life-size mannikins; and Alix Lukos, character vocalist. Madge Robertson, of the choir, scores a success with an illustrated song, "Needles and pins," and other enjoyable items are "The fisher boy," by the choir, and "The Magical Press," on the Bioscope.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. B. Taylor.—An interesting sensational melodrama, entitled The Passion of Redemption, is presented here this week by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company, with great success. The piece is well mounted, and the company strong throughout, including Messrs. H. Arnold Allen, Andrew Money, Ernest Frere, Harry Lyndon, Michael Madden, Edward Bikker, F. Newburn, and Misses Violet Langley (Redempta), Iza Lyndon (excellent as Jack), Mabel Scudamore, Lilian Radburn, Dorothy Love, Edie Machin, and Effie Mackintosh.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr Tealor Wade.—The Poluski Brothers top the bill here this week, and create, as usual, much laughter with their capital business; Messrs. Pringle and Piddock present, in fine style, a romantic operatic episode, entitled The Romany King, the singing and scenery being excellent; the Geni Family are exceedingly good risley acrobats; and smart dancers are the Eight Lancashire Lads, who meet with a warm reception; Dandy George and "Rosie," a wonderfully well-trained dog, go through their usual neat performance; Haydee's Marionettes are manipulated in a life-like manner; good dancing is done by Rosie Reval, comedienne, and by Forrest and King; and Cole and Herbert are eccentric jugglers. Interesting pictures complete.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes. — The Six Idols, vocalists and dancers, make their first appearance in Manchester here this week, and give a brisk and pleasing turn; Prince Kuroki, the Japanese magician, is very smart and successful in a series of illusions; the Edgertons present a gymnastic act with sensational effects; Charles McNaughton and May Garstang, assisted by Percy Carr, are very good in their burglar sketch, Bill; and Daisy Wright and Crazy Elton, in Mirthisms, are distinctly clever and entertaining. Other good turns are given by the Sisters Allen, duettists and dancers, T. W. Royal, champion clog dancer, Mlle. Sam Florrale, French chanteuse, Ruby Bijou, a very graceful bare-foot dancer, and Pearl Linda Daie, comedienne. F. V. St. Clair, who should also have appeared, was prevented by illness.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Mick.—The Wedburns, in an enjoyable act, entitled The Duke and the Jester, are to the front here this week, and meet with a good reception, their patter causing roars of laughter—an excellent turn. Louis Hardt, the Boy Samson, poses a la Sandow, and performs some marvellous feats of strength; the Deer Family are excellent singers and dancers, and their tableaux, Indians of the Past, are very well done; Correze and Keith, in a juggling and cannon ball act, are good; Hyde and Cody, eccentrics, amuse the audience with clever tumbling; the Sisters Belmont sing and dance nicely; Burton and Trent provide an enjoyable musical and dancing turn; and May De Rowse sings in a pleasing manner. The pictures are amusing.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Kay. —A highly sensational and smart gymnastic turn is given here this week by the Brothers O'Brian, in their wonderful triple bar act. One, Billy Farrell, is as interesting as ever; and the Napoli Sextette, including Mr. John Lloyd, the famous tenor, are exceedingly good in a pleasing vocal scene, entitled An Evening at Home. Georgina Leonard, burlesque artist, makes a hit, being recalled; the Three Parzones are clever and amusing; and well received items are those of Harris and Worth, comedians, and W. G. Wesley, a singer of quaint songs. Osborne and Bert did not appear on the occasion of our visit. The pictures are good.

RUSHOLME PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles North; Secretary, Mr. Geo. Phillips.—Harry Leslie's well-known Comedy Cadets are the attraction here this week, and each turn is excellent.

GRAND.—Jasper Redfern's pictures remain a staple part of the programme here, which is made up of lively vaudeville turns, and is attracting good houses nightly.

THE WHITE CITY (OLD TRAFFORD).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. C. Brown.—This resort of pleasure-seekers is becoming more and more popular, and among its attractions this week are the Indian mysteries of Jean Seul, and the expert business of Captain Kettle Mersano, king of cards and coins. A grand carnival and fancy dress parade, in which 200 variety artists will take part, is to be held, with the charitable object of increasing the funds of the Federation Music Hall Home and the Music Hall Benevolent Fund. This event of Thursday must be noted as the greatest show ever organised for the objects in question, and half the entire gate receipts—arranged to be given by the White City management—will doubtless amount to a very substantial sum.

MANSFIELD.—HIPPODROME.—Managing Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident Director, Mr. Tom Jennings; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne. Mr. F. Wybert Clive's company are here this week. The first three nights were occupied by the presentation of The Branded Woman. Miss Lilian Ross showed great ability in the rôle of Genevieve Laroche; as the Countess Daphne Miss Alice Campbell was very well placed; Mr. James Stillwell gave a powerful rendering of the rôle of Philip Maurice; and Mr. W. Cowell Clarke was at home in the rôle of Zarka; as Paul Fleuret Mr. Wybert Clive gave a fine interpretation; Mr. Walter Steele as Prince Haubert and Mr. Edward Lowrie as Louis Daroc proved capable actors; Mr. Harry Liddle was amusing as Dick Brown, as also was Miss Isabel Hunt as Jacqueline. For Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings The Conscript was announced.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Exclusive Manager, Mr. E. Michael.—Once again the costume play, The Duchess of Marlborough, has been presented here, and it is a very creditable production. Mrs. Culling is seen to distinct advantage as Sarah Duchess of Marlborough, and finely portrays the remarkable woman who is swayed between loyalty to her Queen and love for her husband. Mr. Henry Renouf plays the rugged soldier, John Churchill, Duke of Marlborough, with complete success. Mr. A. Austin Leigh is in his element as Robert Harley, and Miss Cecil Cromwell does admirable work as Mrs. Masham, the Queen's favourite. Miss Eugenie Vernie plays capitally as Queen Anne; Mr. Ernest Cossart as Col. Jack, and Mr. G. W. Elton, as Dr. Swift, are each well placed; and ample support is given by Miss May Saker, as Lady Susan Villiers; Mr. H. G. Mason, as Lord Villiers; Miss Mabel Archdall, as Lady Wood; Mr. Wallis Clark, as Capt. Richard Steele; and the remaining members of the company. The play has been produced under the stage management of Mr. A. Austin-Leigh.

THE HIPPODROME.—Joint Managers, Messrs. F. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Tina Clementa's sporting act heads the bill this week, and a clever entertainment it is—horse and dogs showing a remarkable perfection in training. Martin and Ridgway, the Australian lunatics, are amusing, and Cribb and Cribb, the idle fellows, evoke great laughter. William Cromwell, comedian, sings a good song. Mme. Thelma and Harry Groves, in the comedy act, The Lady Sculptor, create laughter; Violet Carlyle, in her song scena, "My Mountain Maid," again scores well; Edith Finck, comedienne, sings delightfully; and the Bioscope pictures are attractive.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Under the Russian Flag, presented by Mr. Jack Haddon and company, is the attraction here. Mr. George Cecil Murray gives a fine portrayal of General Komanoff; Michael and Ivan are capitally represented by Mr. Sydney Arnold and Mr. Charles Stafford; an excellent delineation of Captain Demetrius is given by Mr. Haddon; Mr. Templer Ellis is a humorous Alex Skopelopki; Mr. W. Wilson a dignified Colonel Souveroff; and Mr. Hal Forde an amusing Peter Poluski; and Miss Marie Rayner plays with power as Luka Marisebla; Miss Violet Lytton is a delightful Vera Vascloff; and Miss Molly Hackett a vivacious Ogarita.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price. — Animated pictures continue to attract large audiences. Variety turns are this week provided by Tom Alvanbee, who meets with a cordial reception; the Schalbers, in an original comdy act, give a good turn; the Florodora Sketch Company are good; Pueblo and Cropp are amusing as the Swell and La Belle; Katie Blanche is a pleasing comedienne; and some new pictures are seen on the Biograph.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Defending His Honour occupies the boards here this week, and in the hands of Mr. Fred Granville's company is spiritedly interpreted. Mr. John Davison figures with great effect in the rôle of Douglas Bryce, and Miss F. Melrose-Millet acts with distinction as Ethel Bryce; the part of Stephen Graid is in the capable hands of Mr. George Arthur, and Mrs. Edmund Lyons is charming in the rôle of Miss Verison. The comedy portion, in the hands of Jack Damish (Mr. Evan Roland) is exceptionally well performed, and Mr. Fred L. Arthur's personation of Richard Verison is good; Miss Sybil Houghton is pleasing as Miss Lucien, and Mr. Houghton Macaulay does full justice to the part of Dick Verison; George Duncan (Mr. J. D. Geddes), David Pedlar (Mr. Clifton Earle), Captain Hampton (Mr. G. F. Roberts) are also well portrayed. The piece is admirably staged.

OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, The Middlesbrough Grand Opera House Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—The Superior Miss Pellender is presented here this week by Mr. Wm. Fraser-Brunner and a capable company. Miss Queenie Fraser-Brunner is charming in the title-rôle; Mr. Wm. Fraser-Brunner does exceedingly well in the rôle of Mr. Tister; Mr. Ellis D. Carlyle as Noel causes immense amusement; the part of Mrs. Pellender is admirably played by Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh, and Miss Marie Ault as Edith and Miss May Staples as Nancy contribute in no small measure to the success of the piece. The play is preceded by a dramatic episode of the French Revolution entitled The Man of Vengeance.

EMPIRE PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles Rembges.—The famous protean actor, R. A. Roberts, is scoring heavily here this week with Dick Turpin; the Three Sisters Jonghmans are a great success in their vocal selections; J. A. Wilson and his dog are exceedingly good in a military caricature, and Walker and Luke, comedians, cause much laughter; Massona is a clever juggler, and the Two Palmers, comedy artists, and Edie Anderson, comedienne and dancer, also add to the attractiveness of the programme.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Alf. Graham; Manager, Mr. R. L. Griffiths.—The Tennessee Guards provide the star turn here this week in a series of intricate military manœuvres; the Tally-Ho Trio submit some excellent singing, and Zeta Grey and company cause much merriment in a sketch entitled The Lancashire Lass; Godfrey completely mystifies the audience with his clever palming and illusions; and Will Haines sings some catchy songs. Other turns are provided by Harley and Harden, comedians, and Violet Mack, comedienne.

MORECAMBE.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. C. M. Julian.—Fred Karno's comedians are a sterling attraction here, and their pantomimical burlesques, Mumming Birds and Early Birds cause endless amusement. Good variety turns are contributed by Evie Temple, comedienne; Ariel and Astarte, in a capital gymnastic act; Flo Penley and Geo. English, in two smart duologues, Fine Mackerel and Coming from Kildare; Dan Hendy, eccentric acrobat; Frank Zara, American patterer; Sisters Brenton, expert dancers, especially with the ropes; and Arthur Stanley, smart banjoist.

WINTER GARDENS.—Manager, Mr. Tom Atkinson. —The Lizette Troupe of lady acrobats hold the premier position here, and the Sisters Lytton prove very popular duettists. Gus Merriman is very funny with his trick musical act, and Florrie Connoly has some pretty illustrated songs. Molly Augarde is very successful in her several items.

ALHAMBRA PALACE.—Manager, Alderman John Gardner.—Onda Brothers' combination of artists prove a genuine draw here.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Somebody's Sweetheart is here, played by Mr. Edward Marris' company. Miss Elfie Vincent does all that falls to her lot most acceptably; Mr. Cecil W. Parke is a success as Stanton Ashleigh; and Mr. Walter Nugent is good in the rôle of Stephen Leverton; Miss May Norris adds effectively to the entertainment as Freddie Ashleigh; and Mr. George Brentwood is excellent as Martin Blabbs.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Thomas W. Rowe. —Secrets is here, played by an excellent company, including Messrs. John E. Tomlinson, Reggie Brown, Welton Richards, Victor T. Raymond, Will Bird, Lal Abdul Coltman, Miss Lizzie Palmer, Miss Nellie Navarro, and Miss Cissie Harcourt. A clever dancing speciality is introduced by the Vernon Troupe.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—A Woman Worth Winning is presented here by a company under the direction of Mr. Percy Norman, the leading characters being assumed by Messrs. Percy Norman, Sidney Barton, A. B. MacKay, E. Hall Eldon, Miss Cissie Pauloff, Miss Trixie Leighton, and Miss Ida MacKay.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton.—Ever popular in Newcastle is Wilkie Bard, and his abundance of quaint humour and happy songs gain him a cordial reception; Matthew Brodie and his company, including Miss Dorothea Vivian give an historical sketch, A Drummer of the 76th, an episode in the life of Napoleon, and a charming production which is well played; a capital musical performance is given by the Norman and Leonard Trio; and Olive and Owen, create great amusement in a comedy singing act; while the Narrow Bros., comedy cyclists, provide a capital turn. The programme also includes Elsie Claire, a ballad vocalist, whose efforts were very pleasing; Ruth Lytton, a Scotch comedienne with a taking style; Cisse Curlette, a capital mimetic vocalist; and Maud Mortimer, a vocal comedienne of acknowledged ability.

PAVILION THEATRE.—The Barrasford Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—George Robey, with "Laugh," and "Why are you looking at me," succeeds in delighting crowded houses here; Miss May Edouin in a laughing song scores heavily; and Mr. Fred Edwards and company contribute a very amusing sketch, entitled Kleptomaniacs; a musical act by the El Tampico Trio goes well; and Larola is as skilful as he is droll; Regan and Ryan cause hearty merriment in their "rag-time millionaire" turn. Others in the programme are Mr. Fred Curran, Mr. Walter Emerson, Mr. Nat Watkins, Miss Rose Cabani, and Mr. Arthur Goodman.

NEWPORT.—EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Major Gallagher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Page.—The famous Craggs, in a delightfully funny sketch, Billy, the Steward of the Channel Queen, top the bill here, keeping the house in roars from start to finish. David Poole is a clever ventriloquist; the Sisters Sprightly give a good musical item in Dutch character; and the Moulier Sisters present an attractive performance on the bars; Ella Retford is accorded a flattering reception; Les Frasettis delight the house with a clever musical turn; Geo. Ridgnell is warmly recognised in two solos given with excellent effect; and Will Musgrave, comedian, makes a favourable impression. The Bioscope shows several interesting pictures.

NORTHAMPTON.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—In addition to the Bioscope Pictures we have a return visit from the Haverleys, American song illustrators; Celia Claire and company, in a comedy complication entitled The Woman Who ——; and Chris Van Bern, a witty and versatile comedian.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. William A. Armour's company is presenting The Best of Her Sex. As Philip Farringdon Mr. William A. Armour acts with considerable power; Mr. A. Polson-Turner gives a smart interpretation of Leslie Verney; and Mr. John Cecil successfully sustains the rôle of the Rev. Stephen Maxwell; Mr. Horace Buckley is good as Holy Joe; and Mr. Fred Rignold makes quite a hit as P.-C. Peter Jorkins. Miss Dora Price capably acquits herself as Vera Delorme; Miss Alice Defoe is much appreciated as Ruth Raeburn; Miss Nell Ingram is capital as Polly Perkins; and Miss Lillian Rose is very pleasing as Little Phil.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Miss Ada Fawn, the well-known serio, holds the premier position here, and her songs are well rendered; the Musical Palmers, in Officers at Play are cordially greeted; Miss Jenny and Mr. Will Fordyce, the neat and nimble pair, are very smart; the Ravens, comedy athletes, are entertaining; Miss Daisy Palmer, comedienne and dancer, makes a hit; Yettmah, Japanese magician, is well received, and the Bio-Photoscope concludes.

NORTHWICH.—PIERROT PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Glanmore Jones; Manager, Mr. Lyndon Wyatt.—The Æolian Opera Singers are delighting large audiences; Mr. Chas. E. Browne, a refined humorist and skilled instrumentalist, works untiringly, and his efforts are much appreciated; Miss Rose Alderman possesses a pleasing soprano voice, which is listened to with rapt attention; in addition to officiating at the piano, Miss Lilian Payne sings in capital style a couple of songs; Miss Doris Langdon, a charming soubrette, sings and dances in a very dainty manner; Mr. Robert Leach uses his voice to advantage; while Mr. Hubert Connorton, a light comedian, gives a refined performance. The principal picture on the Bioscope is the Derby of 1907.

NORWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—The Arthur Saxon trio, who make a return visit, exhibit immense weight-lifting capacities, and are much appreciated; the Five Vernons give a pleasing xylophone entertainment; the Four Hearnes are very good in their eccentric acrobatic display; Hyram Travers is an amusing comedian; Barrington, with his freak performance at the piano, is successful; Charles Windermere and Clara Manifield are genuinely funny in their sketch, Lunch for Two; and Fay and Foy delight with their boxing proclivities; T. I. MacMillan is a genuine Scotch comedian; and the Hippo. Bio. displays some amusing pictures.

AGRICULTURAL HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The Royal Canadian animated pictures are still here, and continue attractive.

NOTTINGHAM. — GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—Messrs. Fred Acton and H. C. Nash's company is here with Edward Lampard's successful drama, Between the Lights. Mr. Bertram H. Ross acts with earnestness and power as Captain Robert Hinton, and is ably seconded in his efforts by Miss Eileen Bamford, whose winning manner and sympathetic assumption of Violet Warren deserves every compliment. The necessary villainy is perpetrated by Stanley Crofton, and in this part Mr. Wm. R. Winning is exceptionally capable; Mr. Frederick Garrett succeeds as Gerald Warren; and in the dual rôles of Oswald Warren and Ben Armley Mr. Frank Orchard is seen to advantage; Miss Fannie Williams as Madge and Misses Millie Doris and Winifred Acton as Kitty and Ellen fill their parts well, and as Jimmy Tickle Mr. Fred Acton causes much amusement.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—One more George Gray and company present the successful sketch, Parson Gray, V.C.; Queenie Leighton, in her delightful scena, On and Off the Stage, sings in dainty style "Is London like it used to be?" The special cleverness of two of the Jackley Trio is almost eclipsed by the droll antics of the third, whose whistling is remarkably sweet; Mark Merry's lugubrious appearance adds to his popularity; and another quaint comedian is seen in Larry Lewis; the pictorial ballad loses none of its effectiveness by the singing of Miss Gracie Moore; Ross and Lewis present droll step-dancing; and a smart pair of dancers and banjoists is also found in the Two Dixons. Humorous pictures on the Bioscope complete an excellent programme.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Kennedy's Komiks (who had such a successful run here last summer) opened on Monday for four weeks, with a good programme, including Mlle. Lucretia, Mr. Dan Ajar (quaint burlesque actor), Will Sandes, and May Vincent, the Sisters Dudley, who give popular ballads; Mr. T. W. Lenner, entertainer, who gives some pleasing turns .Miss Florrie Wright,

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—John Marx, in his feats of strength, is the principal turn. Tom Leamore, comedian, is also a strong attraction; Violet Gilson, assisted by four white coons, furnishes a tasteful number; Linton is a daring slack wire performer; Sinclair and Parr interpolate amusing patter with their Irish songs; and Jimmy Shields is a comic one-legged dancer. Other contributors to an interesting bill are Rose Elliott, the Kimberley Boys, and Vernon's Pictures.

PORTH.—THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting and Stage Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—Topping an exceedingly good bill here this week are the Okitos, in a new Chinese act of sensational splendour; Oliver Conroy, comedian, is a big favourite; Addie Dorina scores well in her quick-change sketch; Madge Daly wins all hearts with her favourite songs; Marie Weston proves herself a good speciality dancer; Kavados is seen to advantage as a juggler and cannon ball performer; Beirose and De Velin score an unbounded success in their singing; Percy Maye presents a capital female impersonation; Johnny Worman is responsible for genuine amusement; and the Palace Electric Bioscope depicts with the utmost clearness the latest and best films.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. Ian Maclaren and company are here for the week, giving a round of Shakespearean and Old English comedy. David Garrick was selected for the opening performance, Mr. Maclaren sustaining the title-part in an earnest and convincing manner that won much appreciation. The Alderman Bruckson of Mr. Arthur Fane was a capital study; Mr. Frank Fayne was eminently successful as Hon. Bob Fairley; and Messrs. Basil Dean, J. V. Bryant, and Huston McLarry in their respective parts of Messrs. Peters, Murmurs, and Johnson, of the City, all did good work. Miss Edith Coleman portrayed the stage-struck Mabel Bruckson admirably; Miss Gertrude Littlewood and Miss Rosalie Notrelle as Mrs. Peters and Arabella Johnson were excellent. The comedy was preceded by the clever trifle, Delicate Ground, in which Mr. and Mrs. Maclaren appeared. Twelfth Night, The Rivals, Hamlet, and As You Like It were also in the bill.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—A Beautiful Fiend is being played here this week by Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company to excellent audiences. Mr. Herbert Skardon, in the character of Ivan Paulovitch, bears himself in manly fashion; the brutal Count Fedor Karateff is well depicted by Mr. H. C. Robinson; Mr. Matt Russell makes the best of his part of Sergius Strogoff; Mr. Pat Quin does capital work as Malachi; and Mr. Dick Seddon as Christopher Crackles, ably assisted by Miss Marie Fontaine as Patty Woodlands, creates much amusement. Miss Violet Ingram plays Nadine Karateff sympathetically; and Miss Sydney Crowe in the powerful rôle of Wanda Lubinoff, the name-part, is most realistic.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The Ten Loonies, with their ludicrous musical production, Dotty, are screamingly funny; Sisters Valli are a breezy pair of musicians and dancers; Pat Carey, popular as ever, sings and dances well; Bert Morland, versatile comedian, does well in his several numbers; Teresa da Silva is a capital contralto, with good chorus songs; Harry Rogerson, the tired comedian, is an artist of much versatility; the Lannons, champion high pedestal dancers, are very smart; Del and Hal, in the skit, The Doctor's Deputy, cause laughter; Arabella Allen, the Dickens' girl, submits a performance of great merit; Conn and Conrad Company, in new sensational act, 20th Century Burglars, give a humorous turn, winding up with a balloon ascent; and Payne's excellent pictures conclude an agreeable programme.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. de Frece; General-Director, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Miss Pollo Gerome, the charming lady gymnast, gives a daring and graceful performance, which is received with hearty plaudits; Resuas Trio, comedy wire equilibrists, are clever, and create roars of laughter; Kisbey, "the Call Boy," is highly diverting; Albert and Edmunds, with farcical absurdity, The First Mrs. Banbury, score well; Miss Adey Spencer, "the Girl from the Hat Shop," gives a pleasing turn, and dances well; Leonie Clarke, with his domestic animal performance of casts, rats, mice, &c., is much liked; Henriette de Terris's living pictures, tableaux vivants, and statuary are distinctly good; Miss Nellie Dunbar is a taking comedienne and dancer; Hano and Lux, with much amusing cross-talk, and the Hippo. pictures conclude a capital entertainment.

RAMSGATE.—AMPHITHEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Bowman.—The Leopolds have long been favourites with Ramsgate audiences, and their visit this week has been an extremely popular one. New Frivolity has been brought thoroughly up to date, but those responsible have been careful not to eleminate any of the old attractive features of this lively show, but have added to the points of interest it contained. Mr. John Leopold produces the farcical musical absurdity, and the Bros. Leo form an amusing quartette of students and waiters. The knockabout business is smartly sustained. Mr. Watson Hume is decidedly good as Oliver Buckwheat; and the same remark applies to Mr. J. Leopold, jun., as Daniel Teething. Mr. A. Mordaunt as Jules Vermiglio, Mr. Willie Leopold as the irrepressible Sammy, and Mr. Tom Leopold as Professor Fumble. Miss Cathleen Cavanagh fulfils the character of Madame Cobweb excellently; and Miss Amy Hall is in good form as Lucy Buckwheat. The other ladies' parts are successfully impersonated by Miss Gertie Winter (Vinnie Moore), Miss Gladys Somers (Maud), Miss Queenie Bronte (Nanette), and Miss Violet Keand (Nita Gordon). The tumbling, statuary, and musical turns are much appreciated.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Ramsgate Corporation; Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Richeux; Secretary, Mr. G. Tyler; Musical Director, Mr. Michael Connelly.—Mr. Richeux is maintaining his record for providing high-class plays at the Royal Victoria Theatre. This week the boards have been occupied by the clever company toured by Mr. Lionel Glenister and Mr. Wood-Ingram's company, Lionel Glenister and Mr. Wood-Ingram, in Ernest Denny's three-act comedy, All-of-a-Sudden Peggy. Miss Decima Moore makes a brilliant appearance as Peggy O'Mara, her impersonation being nightly applauded vociferously by the big audiences which have assembled during the week. Mr. L. Glenister acts finely as Jimmy Keppel and Mr. A. S. Barber is capital as the entomologist brother, Lord Anthony Crackenthorpe. Mr. Henderson Bland fills the rôle of the dudish Major Archie Phipps, in admirable fashion; and the other male parts are in capable hands. Miss Kate Wingfield makes an effective Lady Crackenthorpe; Miss Eva Lonsdale a charming Millicent Keppel; Miss Naomi Neilson gives a talented display of acting as the Irish widow, Mrs. O'Mara; and Miss Estelle Despa sustains the part of the Hon. Mrs. Colquhoun in a manner that calls only for praise. Each performance is preceded by a clever little curtain-raiser, A Dramatic Episode.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode.—The variety season is now under Mr. Bode's personal supervision. The programme for the week includes the Pichel troupe, who give a daring and graceful acrobatic performance; May Lillian Levey (comedienne; Ted Waite, the rising comic, and J. P. Carrol, the soldier tambourinist, give excellent turns; Ellis Barrieton, "the man with the wonderful voice," attracts great attention; and Miss Zona Joy presents a capital vaudeville sketch, in which leading characters are sustained by Mr. Harry Edlin and Miss Maisie Merry.

RHYL.—QUEEN'S PALACE.—The Five Abadaroffs, in their comedy act, Prehistoric Peeps; Constance Bellamy, vocalist; Albert German, Nina Leslie, Arthur Sedgeley, and the Drolls and Demures supply an attractive programme here this week.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. Jack Macdermott.—Tom Stuart, character-actor, is on a welcome return visit, and displays elocutionary ability in several impersonations; Fred Barnes scores successfully in a series of coon songs and dances; a clever item is furnished by Sydney Bach, who performs astonishing feats at the piano; Jack Macdermott, comedian, has to respond to repeated encores nightly. The other members of the company are Jack Hughes (basso), Lydia Bland (soprano), Percy James (baritone), Percy Galino (musical comedian), and Forshaw Kershaw (solo pianist and accompanist).

WORLD'S FAIR.—This popular place of amusement is visited by large crowds daily, the greatest attraction being the Dahomey village, with real natives, introduced by their manager, Mr. Chas. Bailey. Their entertainment consists of war dances, a clever fire-eater, and sword exercises. Numerous side shows include Colonel Joe Shelley, Mexican scout; George M. Schilling, the man who is walking round the world; and Castania, the human ostrich and fire-eater.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hogue.—Dare-devil Dorothy is the attraction here this week. It is a musical farce and provides ample scope for singing, dancing, and humour. The title-rôle is ably filled by Miss Dorothy Desmonde. Mr. Walter Ashley, as Captain George, both acts and sings with success; Mr. H. C. Ward cleverly portrays the villainies of Captain Dudley; and Mr. Bert Edwards, as the principal comedian, keeps the audience roaring with laughter. Miss Nellie Harcourt, as Judith, acts well and dances with artistic taste.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Co.—Pringle's North American Animated Picture company continues with success here. "The Life of Christ," with organ and choir effects, is presented at the first house each evening. The second house includes some capital pictures, and a laughable turn by Spry and Monti, comedy duo.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Pathé Frères' New Passion Play by the Bioscope is presented here with selections of appropriate music by choristers. Carlos Menard submits a turn as a trick violinist, and Rosa Neilon introduces various national dances.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Golden.—The World's Great Snare is a thrilling story of American-Indian life, which draws well here; Royal Keene is cleverly sustained by Mr. L. Williams; and Mr. A. F. Bassett is an excellent villain as Lascelles La Mort. Miss Lily Forsyth is a charming Wild Rose; Star Eye is well played by Miss Fay Garnet-Vayne; Louise Granville is efficiently presented by Miss Lilith Gabriel; Mr. G. Scully as Hans von Vinck and Mr. Hyland O'Shea as Patrick Maloney are the principal fun-makers.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Parodies on the piano by Bert Shepard are much enjoyed; Perrette and Mona, in their comedy quick-change trio, "Teasing the General," are well received; the juggling and slack-wire act by Mlle. Ada Galley is very clever. Other good turns include the Three Seabornes, equilibrists and acrobats; Charlie Dillon, eccentric comedian; Daisy Reed, comedienne and dancer; Nellie Moore, a clever young character impersonator; the Sisters Darnton, pleasing duettists; the Swift Trio, comedy trick-cyclists; and Fred Hallam, comedian.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—Maurin's Fountains, with kaleidoscopic and beautiful prismatic effects, form an exceedingly pretty spectacle; the Romsakoff troupe of eight girls in a military musical act meet with warm approval; the Brontes, in "Stoney-Broke," are comical. The other artists include Pete and Minnie Lee, in their song-scena, "The Scotchman's Visit to London"; May Newall, with charming songs; Coon and Davies, patter comedians; Maxford and O'Neill, with very amusing sayings; the Three Rio Tintos, in "African Gambols," presented by E. Jerome Langford; and Mi Narom, comedienne.

SALISBURY.—COUNTY HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Whitehead; Business-Manager, Mr. T. Brinsmead.—A large and appreciative audience assembled on Tuesday last, when Mr. Donald Arthur presented Miss Phyllis Dare and concert party. Miss Dare had a cordial reception and gave a sweet rendering of "Hello! Little stranger," and "Shy Anne," encores being given in each case. Miss Belle Green's imitations of children fairly brought down the "house"; Miss Hilda Barnes contributed in graceful style several violin solos; Mr. A. Peterkin, who possesses a fine voice, received encores for his well-chosen songs; Mr. Edward Brightwell acted as accompanist, and his pianoforte solos were well executed.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Dr. Walford Bodie and his Royal Magnets are on a return visit here this week, and the announcement of their re-appearance was sufficient to secure a packed house on Monday. In the welcome accorded to Dr. Bodie, there was evidence that his fame as an entertainer increases with each visit. Once more he filled the audience with amazement at his marvellous electrical demonstrations. His abilities as a mesmerist were also utilised in a way that entirely convulsed the house. Dr. Bodie is assisted by a capable company of variety artists, prominent in the number being Mr. Tom N. Mills, who is seen to great advantage in the scena, The Real John Bull. The Musical Acmes are clever in a musical entertainment; Belford and Mars as duettists and patterers are much appreciated; Bella, Skene, and Helen Henri are pleasing vocalists; Little Dolly Robson gained hearty applause by her singing and dancing; T. Duriah is a successful comedian.

SHEERNESS.—THE PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond.—Another capital company here this week includes Bill Mullins, who is very funny; the Queen of Costers is an excellent turn. Mr. Phil Reymond is rewarded with rounds of applause, and the same may be said of Miss Topsy Levane, the popular burlesque actress and dancer. The Crown Sketch Co. conclude with the comedy sketch, The New Owner.

THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Leighton.—Harry Wenburn had a hearty welcome here on Monday. Another popular favourite, Miss Dora Lyric, gives general satisfaction with her pleasing ditties; the Three Danbrooks, in a musical mélange, are capitally received; Kenneth and Kane, comedians and dancers, also meet with favour. Amongst others who successfully contribute are Miss Flo Banks, comedienne; Miss Edna Cragge, character vocalist; and Miss Kate Perries, comedienne.

SHEFFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Woman from Scotland Yard was played for the first time in Sheffield on Monday to a good audience, with Miss Chrisie Dunbar in the title-part.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—A Woman's Past, a drama of strong domestic and emotional interest, is being performed to crowded houses this week by a talented company, headed by Messrs. Hamilton Warden and Chas. V. Standford.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan P. Dunbar.—The spacious Empire was packed on Monday, when Mr. Neil Kenyon, the funny patter comedian, met with an enthusiastic reception. Other clever performers who were cordially applauded were Mendel, the blind pianist; Mr. Frank Seeley, comic vocalist; Mr. Arthur Aldridge, vocalist; Miss Jennie Johns, serio-comedienne; Miss Fanny Eris, burlesque actress; the Musical Jees, in a musical pantomime act; Hill and Whittaker, talented Transatlantic banjoists, vocalists, and humoristic artists; C. Randoliph King, quick-change artist; Eric, conjurer; and the American Bioscope, with local films.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Vaudeville Syndicate; Manager, Mr. David Warwick.—Engaged at this popular resort this week are Miss Mollie Seymour, Bert and Dora, Dolly, Agnes, and Maude, Fred Southern's company, in a clever sketch, and Pallister's Bioscope with up-to-date pictures.

CENTRAL HALL.—Proprietors, The Jasper Redfern Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Fred W. Holmes.—In addition to the animated photos of local, topical, and humorous interest, the following are engaged: Thora, ballad vocalist; Mr. H. Magnus, comedian; and the Four Watsons, in a refined musical entertainment.

FITZALAN HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Edward Ranier.—The stock company is appearing in Siberia to good houses.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Mr. Weedon Grossmith is gaining capital support this week for his highly successful presentation of the farcical comedy entitled The Night of the Party. Mr. Sebastian Smith gains chief honours for his impersonation of Mr. Crosbie; Mr. Frank H. Denton is popular as Mr. Frank Frayne; Mr. Ernest Rivarz plays Alderman Hargen humorously; Mr. Eric Forth gives prominence to the rôle of Sir Charles Hampshire; Miss Beatrice Mervin is eminently suited as Lady Hampshire; and Mrs. Young is well taken by Miss Marion Lewis. Miss Florence French is a striking Gipsy Vandelier; and Miss Lillian Williams presents a clever characterisation of Paulina.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—The management deserve hearty congratulations on the delightful entertainments they provide week by week, and the programme as submitted on Monday by the Sabots adds considerably to many notable successes. Miss C. Stroud Wilson, with a capital selection of songs, has become a favourite; Miss Gwenllian Lewis contributes both songs and dances of considerable merit; Mr. Sydney Warwick is heard to advantage in his renderings; Mr. Walter Walters is mirth-provoking; and the musical sketches by Mr. Archie Naish are good.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. Seymour Hicks and company appeared on Monday and Tuesday in a triple bill, comprising Scrooge, Papa's Wife, and You and I. Miss Zena Dare took part in the two latter playlets, and depicted the rôles of Kate Weatherby and Miss Middleton with piquant abandon and natural charm; as Gerald Singleton in the second-named play, Mr. Seymour Hicks presented a well-conceived impersonation, and in the part of Ebenezer Scrooge he portrayed the characteristics of the grasping old man with realistic effect; the ghost of Jacob Marley was very efficiently impersonated by Mr. William Lugg; and Bob Cratchit was well played by Mr. J. C. Buckstone. For the last four nights of the week Messrs. Foster and Napier's company in The King of Thieves is billed.

ALBERT HALL, WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—Entertaining performances are given by Cliff Rylands, the quaint comedian; Katie Butler, character comedian; Tamamoto, sensational perpendicular rope performer; Walter Curtis, the merriment merchant; Wilfred Heath, operatic baritone vocalist; Lilian Brothers, society acrobats; Nelson Hardy, mimic and impersonator; Fentoni, speciality entertainer; the Parkerscope with the latest films, and a noved ventriloquial comedy, entitled £1000; or, the Missing Word.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—The Octoroon is being played to excellent houses by Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company. Mr. Hugh Montgomery is very effective as Salem Scudder; the Jacob McClosky of Mr. I. O. Stewart is a powerful performance; Minnie, the quadroon, is well portrayed by Miss Ethel Brunn; and Zoe, the Octoroon, is ably sustained by Miss Leslie Warner. The other parts are all in good hands, and the piece is effectively staged.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Peggy Pryde, in songs old and new, has an enthusiastic reception; George Formby is very funny; the Musical Johnstons, expert zylophone players, contribute good numbers; and Vasey and Reed are seen to advantage in a clever dancing creation, "Jerks, the Butler." The remaining turns are Mueller and Coyne, in a good comedy act; Guy Ryder, a sweet sifflеur and mimic; Lena Verdi, mimic and comedienne; and the Bioscope.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—The New World is being presented by Mr. Will White's company. Miss Cissie Clarke, a sprightly soubrette, supports the rôle of Jenny Williams with refreshing piquancy; the part of Jack Hawley gives Mr. Victor Rae ample scope to exhibit his talents as an actor, and he makes the most of his opportunities; as Joe Williams Mr. Albert H. Clarke presents an excellent character sketch; and Miss Evelyn Robson fills the part of May Walton with success; Mr. W. S. Stevenson depicts the villainous Jim Rawlings in lurid colours; as the Greaser, Mr. Albert Carlton deserves much credit for his fine performance; Messrs. Fred Guinness and Will Bass as Sam Smart and Brutus Brown prove themselves to be a pair of droll patter and knockabout comedians; as the negro, Pete, Mr. Charlie Clarke gives a good account of himself, as does also Mr. Frank Hartie as Col. Clayton.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun.—£1000 Reward is capitally presented here this week by Messrs. Frank J. Pitt and Charles Halling's company, Mr. Fred Wilberforce acts admirably as the villain, Gilbert Lisle; and Mr. J. Newton Curling makes an agreeable Fred Ingleford; as Fred Ingleford, jun. Mr. Frank J. Pitt fills the part effectively; Mr. Chas. Halling is distinctly capable as Vincent Rainsworth; Mr. Frank Dallas as Inspector Gilbert is very amusing; Mr. Joe English is pleasing as Dick Springthorpe; Miss Daisy Halling is an acceptable Madame Sanson; Miss Lynn Darlington acts and sings well as Meg; Miss Rose Conroy charmingly portrays the character of Kitty Springthorpe; and Mrs. Sidney Halling is excellent as Mrs. McCarthy.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Black.—The Creo Brothers, comedy acrobats, are a great success here this week; H. O. Wills, comedian, causes plenty of laughter; the Alberto Troupe of equilibrists are remarkably clever; Effie White in kaleidoscopic dances is pleasing; the Three Sisters Tree in Hunting are a most entertaining trio; Hary Drew's vocalism is much appreciated; Carl Rosine proves himself an able magician; and the Steinway Quartette in "Songs of the sea" are successful.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—HIPPODROME THEATRE.—General-Manager, Robt. A. Nicholson; Assistant Manager, Geo. Stainton.—Mr. Hoggen Armadale and company are here this week in The Bells. Ena Compton is a dainty comedienne; and Joe Cookson is a very clever ventriloquist; the Three Moxons are a troupe of excellent acrobats; Johnson and De Vere present a delightful cycling act, which is well received; the Nettas in their vocal scena "Home Again" display good vocal talent; while Wild, Willie, and West cause roars of laughter as the Bounding Navvies; a very humorous sketch, Charley's Uncle, is greatly appreciated; the Pictoscope displays interesting films.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Councillor J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—Horace Jones, the Welsh comedian, causes great amusement as a "football spectator"; Beatty and Blanch are a very talented pair of duettists and dancers; Little Bobbie, "the gallery boy," is very amusing in his impersonations of great artists; Mount and Corelli are greatly appreciated in their musical act, The Master and the Maid; Alfred Graham's Premier Juveniles display great musical ability in national songs and dances; Raglus, an eccentric juggler, is very entertaining; and Tom and Marie Motramo cause roars of laughter in their sketch, Do You Reverse? The pictures complete a capital programme.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—Hackenschmidt, the champion wrestler, heads the bill this week, and his exhibition is excellent; Galette's monkey comedians are a clever and interesting turn; Joe Conway is a pleasing comedian; the Elgars, vocal entertainers, provide a clever turn; Smarte Bros. are acrobats extraordinary; the Tokio troupe are clever equilibrists, &c.; Mignonette Kokin, as a comedienne, is good; the Sisters Hyatia, duettists, are well received, and the pictures are interesting.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry L. Carlo.—Harold Wantage's company in The Pick of the Bunch, drew a crowded house here on Monday. Mr. Algernon W. Lee gives a capital rendition of Halliwell Menit, and Mr. Percy Baverstock scores as Colonel Joseph Menit; Martin finds an apt exponent in Mr. Harold Wantage; whilst Mr. Norman Bowyer makes the most of his opportunities as Dick Seymour; Miss M. Sadie is a charming Nancy; and Miss Mabette May a bright and winsome Wilhelmeina. The Lottie Stone Troupe of dancers contribute some excellent speciality dances.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Theatre Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Hemingway.—Charles March is paying a welcome return visit at this theatre, and The Gamester of Metz was staged on Monday night. Mr. Marsh continues to fill the rôle of Paul Baldot in his customary style; Captain Badaine is in the able hands of George Baisford, who does it ample justice; as Lieut. Heroe, Mr. F. Thorpe-Tracey could not well be improved upon; and Mr. John Burton is a pleasing General de Montpurasse; Miss Gwendoline Hastings gives a refined and pathetic rendering of the Countess Baldot; and Miss Una Lane as Lucia is commendable.

PALACE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Alfred Browne and Syd B. Stringer.—Freddie French and company top the bill here, and score a success in their sketch, entitled The Suffragettes; Will Vay's Juveniles also please in their scena, Life in the Slums; Les Zelvas, acrobatic equilibrists, Lily Stewart, comedienne and dancer, W. E. Hilton, Scotch ventriloquist, Ouida Macdermott, character vocalist, Brull and Hemsley, in a quaint musical comedy act, Chas. Banks, comedian, and the Palace pictures complete the programme.

SWANSEA.—THE GRAND.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Brooks and Woodbridge; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Dean.—Captain Swift is presented by Mr. Norman MacOwan's company here this week. Mr. MacOwan invests the title-rôle with manliness and dignity; as Mrs. Seabrook, Miss Violet Sterne's acting reaches a high degree of excellence; Miss Mary Masters as Stella Darbisher, the heiress, is exceptionally good; Miss Isabel Hawthorn plays nicely the part of Mabel Seabrook; a real success is scored by Mr. Arthur Somers as Gardiner; as the feeble old Mr. Seabrook, Mr. Murray Hawthorn is life-like; Mr. Sydney R. Palfrey as the impulsive youth, Harry Seabrook, is praiseworthy; and Lady Staunton has a good impersonator in Miss Lester Stephens; in the rôle of Marshall, Mr. Robert Entwhistle is decidedly effective; as are also Messrs. Erik Rorke and Arthur Linay as Bates and Ryan respectively.

STAR THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—At the World's Mercy is successfully staged here this week, by Mr. Carr Loates and company. In the dual rôles of Skittle and Kitty, the music hall star, Miss Cissie Milford's delineations are all that could be desired; as Capt. Manly Mr. Carr Loates is seen to great advantage; and Miss Madge Devereaux is also excellent; as the villains of the play, Messrs. J. B. Murray, W. H. Irving, and G. D. Knight are in great form. A special word is due to Tiny Carry Johnson, who, as Dot, takes immediately with the house. Miss Minnie Dalton as Mrs. Rourke shows great ability; as do also Miss A. Hunter as Rosie; Mr. Jess Boxer as Charlie Smart, and Mr. W. Leonard as Dan are very good.

EMPIRES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. Mitchell; Assistant-Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe.—Eugene Stratton is filling the Empire this week, being welcomed as heartily as ever. In her impersonations of well-known artists Little Agnes Tina is really clever; David Canty's water grotto is a thing of beauty, Mlle. De Silva giving an artistic display in the midst of the cascades; Seely and West will be long remembered here for their capital performance; Gus Garrick exploits different types of comedians very successfully; Flo. Esdaile, in her selections from the classics, meets with unstinted approval; Josh Dixon is as quaint as ever; and the Three Cape Girls excel as comediennes and long-boot dancers. The Bioscope contributes excellent films.

TON-Y-PANDY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth.—Mr. George Henry's company this week presents The Sledge Hammer. Mr. D. Hamilton, as Matthew Derrick, is well suited; as Everard Derrick, Mr. Alfred Burrows is a great success; John Merlo is safely entrusted to Mr. Richard Cass; and Mr. Fred Best makes himself a prime favourite as Tom Walker. Rose Maywell is charmingly depicted by Miss Renie Douglas; and Miss Eileen Davenport is well placed as Maria Derrick.

TORQUAY.—PRINCESS PIER CONCERT HALL.—Proprietors, the Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. A. T. Tremlett.—Miss Seymour James' comedy company, the Queeries, who were so popular here last season, are here this week, and on Monday evening a crowded audience greeted their reappearance. Miss Seymour James is very dainty and pleasing in her rendering of some attractive songs, and Miss Madeline Rossiter also does very well, her clog dancing being much appreciated, whilst her duets with Mr. G. W. Desmond are frequently encored. Mr. Victor Wallace has a rich baritone voice, whilst Mr. Sydney James left nothing to be desired, his humorous selections and whistling solos drawing forth continued applause; Miss Clarice May is an efficient accompanist, and the concerted items are decidedly attractive.

TYNEMOUTH.—PALACE-BY-THE-SEA.—Proprietor, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.—A capital programme is provided here this week, the chief feature being the appearance of Harry Brown, coon comedian. Owing to his success, Wilfred Bernand, mimic, has been retained another week; the Two St. Johns, musicians and dancers, contribute an excellent turn; Sidney Dolf scores in his entertainment, Versatility; Sidney Jarvis, Canadian baritone, and Helen Martin, ballad vocalist, contribute acceptable turns; and the evening's entertainment winds up with an admirable show of animated pictures.

WAKEFIELD.—HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sidney Tolfree.—Les Grandes Diamond Statues prove a great attraction in their living statuary poses; Mr. Harry Cooke, comedian, provides a good turn; Duncan and Brasque, in a playlet entitled The Society Butterfly, win appreciation; Copeland and Son are capital clog dancers; Arthur Elvy, sporting vocalist, merits favour; Miss Bertha Helmore is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; and Mr. C. Wordley Hulse and company appear in a stirring sketch, The Fight in the Forge.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—The Gothams prove exceedingly funny; the Leonards, in their comedy act, Point Duty, are well received; the Martelloni Family are graceful lady acrobats; and a capital turn is given by the Brothers Horne in The Biter Bit. Other items include Hinton and Wooton in a football match on cycles; Harry Conlin, comedian; the Sisters Pine, comedy girls, in "Maggie's Day Out"; and the American Bioscope.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. Fred Willmot.—One of the most acceptable turns seen here for some time is that provided by the Cattaneo Acrobats, whose grotesque work is responsible for convulsive laughter; the Bioscope pictures showing the police dogs at work are also an attractive item; Lillie Soutter is a charming comedienne; Gladys and Amber are clever tumblers; and King Roy is a coloured vocalist with a good voice; Cim Maree is a remarkable contortionist; George Young is a talented blind musician; and Gladys Williams scores with good songs.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Kemer.—Kennedy's Komiks and Variety Co. are here again this week, and continue to draw packed houses nightly. Mr. Nat Abatt, entertainer, proves highly interesting, and the performance of Miss Doris Merdale, ballad singer, evokes warm applause; the two Sisters Verne, duettists and dancers, give an artistic entertainment; and Miss Ella Francis, soubrette, is well worthy of mention. The Brothers King and King, comedians, create roars of merriment. The smart quartette by the Four Godfreys is all that could be desired.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Blanche and Diacoff present their wonderful bicycle riding in the teacup track to large audiences, and gain great applause; a smart turn is submitted by Wallace Whitney, who causes great amusement; the Jollions are well received; clever songs are given by Beattie Foster, who well deserves the encores accorded her; an interesting sketch, entitled An Evil World, by Mr. J. Wright Aitken and company creates excitement; the Barnsley Collier and his child in their clever second sight show prove very popular; and the Chronoscope shows some excellent pictures. Cycle competitions for amateurs on the teacup track take place each night, and cause roars of laughter.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The Cumberland Troupe of cyclists are cheered to the echo for their smart act; the instrumentalism of the Three Transfields is a pretty and clever turn; the Ju-Jitsu exhibition by Frank Long, Miss Omoyo San, and company is watched with the keenest interest; the entertainment by the Vyponds is as novel as it is enjoyable; H. D. Charnock's legerdemain is mystifying; Mac and Hill, comedians; and Tony Iveson, The Ragman at the Piano, please immensely. Dainty Ethel Yorke is a charming comedienne, and new and interesting pictures on Raymond's Bio-tableaux conclude a strong programme.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Messrs. Chas. Whitlock and H. S. Rutter's company in The Sporting King is here. Mr. Chas. Whitlock gives a fine impersonation of Joe Brave, the champion prize fighter, and Mr. Harry Richardson makes a bluff Squire Stamford; Mr. Arthur Chisholm portrays the part of David in fine style, and Mr. Leonard Yorke is good as Renard, and is ably seconded by Mr. E. Lovell as Stephen Basilk; Mr Alfred Terriss and Miss Eva Reed work splendidly as Jack Sharp and Jessie Lane; and Miss Baby Blythe is a capital little Squire; while Miss G. V. France is responsible for some impressive emotional acting; Miss Lilla Wilde ably handles the heavy rôle; and Mr. F. Biron is in the right place as Bill Bruiser; Mr. Tom Lancaster is seen to advantage as Tom Tyne.

WHITBY.—SPA THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Payne Seddon.—Madame Stockham's company of lady harpists and entertainers have occupied this theatre during the week, giving performances twice daily to good audiences. This company includes Madame Stockham, Miss Gladys Stockham, and Miss Della Stockham, harpists; Mr. Ernest Wale, violin; Mr. Stockham, baritone; Mr. A. Albert, lady impersonator; Mr. Bert Errol, humorist; and Mr. Frank Crawford.

WATERLOO THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Julian Bambridge.—Capital houses have been experienced at this theatre, the historical drama, Mary Queen of Scots, being staged during the first part of the week.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—A Little Vagrant, a drama brimful of human interest, has been presented this week by Mr. Harry Roxbury's talented company. Miss Vashti Wynne gives a very fine representation of the part of Poll, a daughter of sorrow; and the humorous situations created by Slideaway Bates and Hannah Smithers are cleverly presented by Mr. J. W. Gallagher and Miss Bella Moody, respectively. Mr. Cecil A. Collins as Jim Harris, and Mr. Stanley Radcliffe as Eric Arden, very effectively portray the villainy of the piece.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Miss Ann

ACTORS' UNION.

GENERAL MEETING.

A general meeting of the members of the above Union was held in the Chandos Hall, Maiden-lane, London, W.C., on Friday, June 21, 1907, for the purpose of considering the rules. Mr. Charles Allan occupied the chair. Amongst those present were Misses Agnes Paulton, Cecile E. Anson, Marian Bird, Grace Lester, Isa Patterson, May Conrade, May Bessle, Agnes Thomas, Doris Regan, Lucy Sibley, Doris Digby, Gert Tate, Maud E. Stoner, Audrey Canning, Nellie Howitt, Elsie Carew, Helen Vicary, Adelaide Gracey, Mrs. Horace Booth, Mrs. Sugden, Miss Emily Patterson, Miss Marie E. Robertson, Miss Gert Harrison, Mrs. O. Marshall, Misses Lily Crammonde, Beatrice Western, Ethel Russell, Margaret Damer, Josephine Ellis, Georgie Trueman, Nellie Burdette, Gladys Ffolliott, Stanley Burt, Constance Groves, Mary Brougham, Lydia Bush, Winifred Hart-Dyke, Violet Chamier, Clara Russell, and Messrs. Harry Paulton, sen., Robson Paige, Orlando Barnett, E. W. Wolsley, Alf. Bennett, Gordon Wilson, Fred Bentley, Arthur Bawtree, Chas. Medwin, Richard Cowell, Percy Braithwaite, H. Trent Adams, Frederic Jacques, Jack Collison, Edward Chester, Ruddle Brown, Dare Austin, H. Bonhote Wilson, Lionel Scott, Chas. Sugden, E. O'Neil, Chas. Allan, Harry Paulton, jun., O. Marshall, Stanley Roberts, Fred Dent, Robert Whyte, jun., Tom J. Taylor, Harry J. Loveday, jun., Bruce Lindley, Leonard Russell, Howard Cochran, Richard Elliott, H. Carlyle Pritchard, Wm. Lockhart, Roy Barraclough, Leonard Marshall, Roy Sydney, J. W. Braithwaite, Robin Shields, E. Y. Rae, Alfred Richards, Langford Reed, Henry Nelson, Carl Lyle, Howard Tripp Edgar, Albert Wainwright, Mark Lester, George Goodwin, Fred Jas. Clive, J. C. Taylor, Edwin J. Collins, William Dunlop, Cecil G. Calvert, George Rollit, Simon Ord, T. W. Ryder, Christmas Grose, J. A. Seager, Edwin Balmer, and W. F. Clitheroe.

Mr. Cecil Raleigh, in the course of a long speech, said: Your committee, I am sure, felt themselves face to face with a great deal of difficulty in framing rules which would provide for everything you have in view. They have therefore very wisely taken, roughly, the rules of a very successful institution—the V.A.F.—and made a few slight alterations in those rules, adopting them as far as possible to the things you desire. However, man is but mortal, and there are one or two things in these rules that require, I think, revision. I am not going to lay any stress upon them, but there is one rule which says we may affiliate with other unions. Now you know the V.A.F. itself has cut that rule out, acting upon experience; they found the rule undesirable. I think it would be well if we cut it out too. I think what is good enough for the V.A.F. is good enough for us. There is another rule—a very small one, but it has a very large effect. This is a rule with regard to the general secretary. As yet you have not a general secretary, but it is perfectly obvious that when you have money enough you must pay some gentleman, and pay him well, to do the work that will fall upon his shoulders. You will find you have a rule which says that the general secretary is elected by the Executive Committee. Now, of course, the committee is the most proper body to choose its own secretary. They choose the man and give him their instructions; but if he choose to snap his fingers at them and do a lot of things on his own you would think that the executive would be the proper people to get someone else. Your rule says the dismissal of the general secretary shall be by the votes of the members only. That is to say, he can defy his committee, and he can go to the members at large and have a general meeting before they can get rid of him. I suppose you all know that the rule was deleted by the V.A.F., and as the result of that deletion the secretary was dismissed and another elected by the Executive Committee, and he went into office a few days ago. Invite everyone to send up suggestions, and in about a month or five weeks' time bring forward a thoroughly revised and consistent set of rules which will govern the Union for the future.

I am not at one with you over the alteration which alludes to sketches at all. It is not because I have any invidious disregard to sketches; I am a writer myself, and make money out of them, so they are excellent things; but what I do think is that when I look at the history of trade unionism in this county, a thing of which I know something, I find that trade unions, as a rule, confine themselves entirely to the work of the particular trade and the things that occur in that trade. If a man at the same time has two trades he has to join two trade unions for protection in whatever he is doing one way or the other. It seems to me that music hall work and everything in the music hall is so excellently protected by the V.A.F. that it would be a great pity to trench upon what they do. I am a strong believer in the minimum wage, and I do not believe in hiding it under a bushel. I believe in fighting for it, and in saying that we are going to fight for it. The day may come when the executive will say: "We are going to shut every provincial theatre on the same evening"; and you will have to have the pluck to do it, and say: "We will strike for what we want." And you will get it. I find in our original circular the objects of the Union are:

1. To establish and maintain an honest living minimum salary.
2. To abolish the unfair competition of unpaid, or premium-paid, amateurs on the professional stage.

Those were our first two objects. Where are they in your rules? They are there, but they are hidden; and as an honest man I say they should not be hidden. I say, if you mean to have a minimum wage you should stick to it. What is your excuse for cutting it out? I say you are a pack of cowards to take it out. I have done with the Actors' Union for ever if that rule does not come back as the first object of our existence. With regard to sketch managers, I would rather have you stick to your £2 minimum. I would rather see you confine yourselves to the theatre; the sketch question would then disappear. Outside the actual theatre it would not concern you; it does not matter. But still, if you want to go into it, I think it is very easily settleable. A sketch manager is, of course, an employer of labour; but we know that is rather a technicality. I think it would be better for the sketch managers to act tactfully and say they will not sit with the committee because they are employers of labour. If they won't let a stage-manager sit upon the committee, a sketch-manager ought not to either. Women do business on committee work a great deal better than men. I assure you, from the work I have seen done, you would get a large amount of assistance from ladies. You would be well advised to say there shall be no distinction, and I strongly advise you to go back to the original circular, and say you know no difference between the two. Personally, I am strongly in favour of drawing a definite line, and saying that our work as a union shall be confined to theatres. In the Actors' Association, firstly they got as far as getting rid of the employers of labour, and then they insisted upon a £2 minimum. Last week their Council passed a resolution approving a minimum, and appointed a Committee to try and discover what that minimum should be. Are you going to lack the courage to do the same?

A vote of thanks to Mr. Raleigh for his address was carried with acclamation.

The Chairman asked the Secretary, Mr. Oswald Marshall, kindly to read the balance-sheet.

The Secretary read the balance-sheet, which was then formally adopted.

The Chairman then asked three gentlemen to act as tellers, and the following volunteers were accepted by the members:—Messrs. Roy Sydney, Leonard Russell, and Gordon Wilson.

The Chairman: We must now come to the plot of our meeting, and that is to discuss the rules. I think we had better take Rule 4, Clause I., Qualification for Membership:—

> Every actor or actress playing in dramatic or musical plays or sketches, who is not a manager, acting-manager, proprietor of a theatre, agent or agent's clerk, is eligible for membership, but no actor who has had less than five years' experience on the stage at the time of his joining the Union, shall be eligible for election on the Executive Committee, or for any other office until he has completed such five years' experience.
> An actor or actress running and playing in his or her own sketch is eligible for election, but if an actor or actress runs more than one sketch he or she is ineligible.

Mr. Harry Paulton, sen., proposed as an amendment the omission of the last paragraph of Clause I., and said he thought it might seem somewhat eccentric that he should appear in the position of proposing the removal of these words, because he was practically the author of them. He believed, in the first instance, that he was proposing them in the interests of the Union, and he still thought so; but he found that the feeling of the members was very strongly against the paragraph, and also that it was confused and mixed up with the first and more important part of the Rule, and as several amendments had been sent in he thought it would simplify matters to wipe it out entirely. But he would ask them to believe that he proposed the paragraph entirely, as he believed, in the interests of the Union and without any selfish motives, and that he was thoroughly disinterested in every way. He thought anybody who knew anything about him knew that he was not a sketch manager, and he did not know that he was ever likely to be. Of course, they never knew what they might come to! He wished to add this, that it had been the desire of the Committee that they were not to be continually airing their views and grievances in the public Press. That wish had been honestly respected by nearly the whole of the Committee, and although he had been attacked on the subject of being a sketch manager by people who got cheap advertisements by continually writing letters to the Press, the desire of the Committee would account for the accusations going unheeded. But he felt sure he could leave himself and his justification in their hands without fear of the result.

Mr. Fred Bentley seconded the amendment.

Miss Lucy Sibley proposed as an amendment that the rule, instead of reading: "Every actor or actress playing in dramatic or musical plays or sketches," &c., should read: "Every actor or actress whose principal means of earning a living is by acting or singing in musical or dramatic plays in licensed theatres," &c., and said her reason for bringing forward the amendment was that she thought they were not there for the purpose of running the Union on Trade Union lines; but the moment a man was an employer of labour, although he was not employing actors or actresses in a theatre, yet, looked at from the economic side of the question, their interests were not identical. That was the point the Union wanted to fight. It was not because they did not want managers there; but, as actors and actresses, they did not believe, when it came to fighting, that the managers would fight in their interests. They would be very great philanthropists if they did. They wished to keep the Union absolutely pure. They did not want people playing in sketches alone to be a qualification for membership. Their qualification ought to be that they were legitimate actors and actresses. She thought it would be better to leave the question of sketches out.

Mr. Robson Paige seconded the amendment.

Mr. Calvert moved as an amendment on Miss Sibley's amendment that the words "in licensed theatres" be deleted, and said he did not know whether they were aware of the fact that many of the largest music halls of England had dramatic licences, and the proprietors were trying to get more. Was the object of inserting the words "licensed theatres" intended to say that if a member of the Union who had supported it for a length of time, and whose ideas were the same as the rest of them, that if he accepted an engagement in a sketch at a music hall where he had to act he was to lose all the benefits of the Union? (Cries of "No.") He maintained that an actor was an actor wherever he was acting for his living, and ought to derive all the benefits the Union could afford him.

Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., seconded.

Mr. H. Paulton, sen., said it seemed to him an outrageous thing to propose that if an actor or an actress belonging to the Union went and performed at a music hall they were to be cast off. The very principle of the thing was an outrage, and it would be little less than betrayal for the committee to suggest it, and he thought anybody advocating such a suggestion was a traitor to the cause.

Mr. Chamier said it seemed to him that the persons who were speaking about Trade Unionism were absolutely and totally ignorant of the very first principles of Trade Unionism. Mr. Raleigh had said he did not wish Trade Unions to overlap, but they were bound to overlap, and you could not prevent it. Suppose he, as an actor, was engaged in a sketch, he would be still paying his sixpence a week to the Union, and if a strike took place among the music hall artists engineered by the V.A.F., he was a Trade Unionist, and if they went out he would have to go out too or else be a blackleg.

Mr. J. C. Taylor moved as a further amendment that the words "actor or actress" be altered to "all persons earning their livelihood by acting, singing, dancing, or pantomime," and the alteration of the words "five years' experience" into "five years' salaried engagement."

Miss Gladys Ffolliott seconded.

Mr. Lockhart said there had been a great deal of talk about licensed theatres and people leaving them to play in music halls, but he wished to support Mr. Calvert's amendment of deleting the words "licensed theatres." There were fit-up artists. Were they to turn their backs on them? If the words "licensed theatres" were not omitted that would immediately slam the door in the face of all such.

Miss Marion Bird proposed:—

> That a member be protected during temporary engagement on the halls not exceeding six months, the six months to be counted as consecutive work on the halls unbroken by other work in theatres.

In putting the proposition Miss Bird said that after a period of six months on the music-hall stage people could join the V.A.F., and that would protect them and at the same time would prevent overlapping.

Miss Ffolliott thought if an actor or actress was forced into the halls, and they were not well enough off to refuse, it was all the more necessary that they should be protected because they were doing their best to earn a living, and their 6d. was the same colour whether they took it from Walter Gibbons or from Sir Charles Wyndham. She thought it would be a foolish thing to send people away to join the V.A.F. They were only a young institution, and they ought not to turn anybody away. A person was an actor whether he acted in a theatre or a music hall.

There being no seconder, Miss Bird's amendment was lost.

The Chairman then put Mr. Taylor's amendment to the meeting, and declared it lost.

The Chairman next put Mr. Calvert's amendment to Miss Sibley's amendment that the words "in licensed theatres" be omitted, and it was carried by a large majority, 69 voting in favour and 2 against.

The Chairman was then about to put Miss Sibley's amendment as altered, when Miss Sibley withdrew it.

The Chairman then put Mr. Paulton's amendment, and declared it carried.

Clause I. was then adopted without the last paragraph.

The Chairman: Now let us proceed to Clause II.:—

> Any member becoming a manager, or acting-manager, proprietor of a theatre or company, or sketches, excepting as embodied in Clause I., business manager, agent, or agent's clerk, shall, during such period forfeit all right to attend any meeting of the Union or to vote at any election, and if a member of the executive committee shall ipso facto vacate such office and be suspended from all privileges of membership during such period, saving benefit of the death levy.

Miss Sibley moved as an amendment that instead of reading:—

> Any member becoming a manager or acting-manager, proprietor of a theatre or company, or sketches, excepting as embodied in Clause I., &c.,

Clause II. should read as follows:—

> Any member becoming a manager or acting-manager, proprietor of a theatre or company, or touring company, or sketch company, &c.

Mr. Robson Paige seconded the amendment.

Mr. Lockhart said he thought Miss Sibley was quite right. He quite agreed that an actor was an actor wherever he might play, and he also thought a manager was a manager wherever he was. A sketch manager was just as much a manager as Mr. Beerbohm Tree was an actor-manager.

The Chairman: We have settled that point. If a member of the Union has the misfortune to become a sketch manager he forfeits his rights of being one of the executive. If a sketch manager desires to belong to the Union he cannot do so until he ceases to have the slur upon him of being a manager. I think that meets the question. But, Miss Sibley, I don't quite understand your amendment.

Miss Sibley: My amendment is that the words "touring company or sketch company" should be inserted.

The Chairman: The rule already says "Proprietor of a theatre, or company, or sketches."

Miss Sibley: Yes; it is the same thing. Then I will withdraw my amendment.

Mr. Taylor: I don't think we should deprive sketch managers of any privileges in the way of insurance. If he has been a member prior to being a sketch manager, I don't think he should be disqualified from benefits. I move that we alter the wording so that the last two lines read "be suspended from all privileges of active membership saving all insurance benefits."

Mr. Roy Sidney seconded the amendment.

Mr. Paulton, jun., suggested the omission of all words after "vacate such office."

Mr. Taylor seconded.

Mr. Tripp Edgar thought they ought to be careful what they were doing, because that would include managers in any protection that they might have when they became sufficiently strong.

Mr. Calvert pointed out that all legal protection was vested in the committee.

The Chairman then put Mr. Paulton's amendment to the meeting, and declared it carried unanimously. Clause II. as amended was then unanimously adopted.

The Chairman: Now Clause III.:—

> Any member taking up any of the above-mentioned positions must give notice to the executive committee of the Union, and, failing to do so within a reasonable time, the executive committee shall have power to call on such member to resign, and in the event of his or her refusing to do so, the executive committee shall have power to expel him or her from the Union.

The Secretary: Mr. Momber has proposed by letter that the words "within reasonable time" be struck out and the words "within six calendar months" be substituted.

Miss Sibley: Then he could attend our meetings without giving notice. I shall move that it be done within twenty-eight days.

Miss Ffolliott: Supposing they are abroad? I say leave it as it is.

Mr. Paulton, jun.: I move that the rule stand as it is.

Miss Ffolliott: I second that.

The Chairman then put Clause III. to the meeting, and it was unanimously adopted.

The Chairman: Now No. IV.:—

> All members having had the before-mentioned five years' experience on the stage shall be termed Fellows, and all members until they have completed such five years' experience shall be termed Associates.

Miss Sibley moved as an amendment the insertion of the words "in licensed theatres" after the words "five years' experience on the stage."

Mr. Robson Paige seconded the amendment.

Mr. Paulton, jun., moved that the rule should stand as printed.

Mr. E. Y. Rae seconded.

Mr. Bentley moved the addition of the words "and that no one be admitted as an Associate unless they have already served twelve months."

The Secretary said that Mr. Momber had proposed the addition of the words "candidates for election to state length of time they have been in the profession."

Mr. Bentley seconded the amendment, and on being put to the meeting it was carried with one dissentient.

Mr. Paulton, jun., then withdrew his amendment, and Clause IV. was then unanimously adopted with Mr. Momber's addition.

The Chairman: Now Clause V.:—

> A member retiring from the profession through age or any other cause, having been a member of the Union for three years, and still continuing to pay up his subscriptions and levies, shall be entitled to death levy.

The Secretary said Mr. Momber had suggested the addition of the words "and shall be eligible to serve on the committee." (Cries of "No.")

Mr. Taylor suggested the alteration of the words "the death levy" to "old age pensions."

Mr. Tripp Edgar moved as an amendment the omission of the words "for three years."

Mr. Paulton, jun., moved that the last line, "shall be entitled to the death levy," should be altered to "shall be entitled to all benefits."

Mr. Bentley seconded the amendment.

Mr. Tripp Edgar said he could not accept that. "All benefits" would mean legal protection and medical advice. He thought when a member retired from the Union, generally speaking, he would be in some other business by which he was accruing money, and he thought they would find they had quite enough to do with their money to protect those who were in the Union.

Mr. Calvert said they were quite safe on that point, because legal protection would not be given to anybody without the consent of the committee.

Mr. Lockhart said they were not going to protect anybody in legal matters except where acting was concerned. If a man was too old to work and could not act any more, they were not going to give him any legal protection for any other cause. And therefore it seemed to him that it was superfluous. Suppose a man arrived at the age of ninety and could not act any more, so long as he paid up his subscription he (the speaker) did not see that he retired from the Union at all. He was unable to act in just the same way that he would be unable to act if he broke his leg.

Mr. Tripp Edgar said omitting the words "three years" answered Mr. Lockhart's question, but he was entirely in favour of those people having the benefit of the death levy. He was merely thinking of medical attendance. Many a young actor and actress between the age of twenty and thirty retired from the profession and went into some other business. Suppose he retired and went into the grocery business, to which he was probably more suited, should he be entitled to legal or medical advice?

The Chairman then put Mr. Paulton's amendment to the meeting and declared it carried. Neither of the other amendments were seconded.

The Chairman: We now come to "Qualification for office":—

> A candidate for any office in this Union must be a bond-fide Fellow in full benefit at the date of his proposal and election, and have been a member for the preceding six months. With the exception of the first ballot.

Mr. Ruddle Brown proposed that the Secretary should send a circular letter to each member asking the following question:—

> Are you in favour of ladies serving on the executive committee, or should they have a sub-committee of their own?

Miss Ffolliott seconded the proposition.

Mr. Paulton, jun., said that everybody had made up their minds on the subject, and he thought, with a view to saving expense, they ought to vote on the question at once.

Mr. Chamier said he was absolutely opposed to having ladies on the committee.

Miss Sibley seconded Mr. Paulton's proposition that the vote be taken at once.

Mr. G. Gordon Wilson spoke in favour of ladies having a sub-committee of their own, and, after some further discussion, the Chairman put Mr. Brown's resolution to the meeting and it was carried unanimously.

Miss Sibley proposed the following resolution:—

> That the rules as considered and passed to-day be submitted to all members of the Union, within seven days of this date; and that another general meeting be called within twenty-one days from this date, at which meeting amendments may be moved, before the rules be confirmed and made binding on all members.

Mr. Robson Paige seconded the resolution.

The Chairman reminded Miss Sibley that Mr. Cecil Raleigh recommended that when they had decided the questions of principle, a sub-committee should be appointed to deal with the rules, and that they should then be referred to a general meeting.

Miss Sibley said if a sub-committee were appointed to consider the rules she would withdraw her resolution.

The Chairman then proposed that a select committee be appointed to consider the rules with the exception of qualification for membership and office with a view to condensing them, and then submit them to the executive committee.

Mr. Paulton, jun., said he would like to propose that that sub-committee should submit the rules to the executive committee, and that those rules, if approved by the executive, should be adopted as the rules of the Union.

Mr. Chamier seconded the proposition.

Mr. G. Wilson supported it, and on being put to the meeting it was unanimously adopted, and the following ladies and gentlemen were appointed as a select committee: Miss Gladys Ffolliott, Miss Nellie Howitt, Miss Lucy Sibley, Miss Georgie Trewman, Mr. Edwin Palmer, Mr. Gordon Wilson, Mr. Richd. Cowell, Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson, Mr. Howard Cochran, Mr. Wm. Dunlop, and Mr. Roy Sydney.

Mr. Fred Bentley then proposed that the following paragraph be added to Rule 23:—

> If any member be satisfactorily proved to have done, said, or expressed in writing or caused to have been done, said, or expressed in writing anything calculated to bring discredit upon the Union, the said member shall, for the first such offence, be fined the amount of a fresh entrance fee, and for a second such offence be asked to resign, and shall be expelled in the event of his refusing to do so.

Mr. Chamier seconded the resolution.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman terminated the proceedings.

Mr. H. Tripp Edgar, in the absence of Mr. Francis Chamier, took the chair at Tuesday's meeting of the Actors' Union. Among others present were: Mr. Leonard Russell, Mr. E. H. Templeton, Mr. Edward Morgan, Mr. Jack Collinson, Mr. Edmund Beresford, Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., Mr. Bawtree, Mr. Edward Mervyn, Mr. E. T. Rae, Mr. Tripp Edgar, Mr. James Bryan, Mr. Trent Adams, Mr. A. E. Johnstone, Mr. Fred Bentley, Mr. Alfred Bennett, Mr. E. Wolseley, Mr. W. Allison, Mr. R. H. Stephenson, Mr. J. W. Braithwaite, Mr. W. Brougham, Mr. Edmond Valentine, Mr. Robin Shields, Mr. Roy Gordon, Mr. T. J.Taylor, Mr. Lawrence Stephenson, Miss Constance Groves, Miss Mary Brougham, Mrs. Oswald Marshall, Mrs. Horace Booth, Miss Marie E. The Chairman said that he was pleased to tell them that the Union now stood on a firm financial basis. Their expenses at present were well under half their takings, and that fact augured well for their future. The spirit of co-operation was abroad, and there was every indication that the Union would be welcomed by managers, as the latter would realise that the Union would spell progress and improvement. They might be well advised to work on the broad lines of trade unionism. A trade union had a hold upon every one of its members, and would do everything in its power to prevent bad practices among its members. Thus managers would come to look upon the Actors' Union as a highly reputable body, which would, by securing the highest interests of the profession and of the acting art, enable the manager who paid good salaries to make a profit for himself, and would make an end of many of the existing abuses. It was a fallacy to imagine there could be no union in the theatrical profession. They would prove that there could be. Dealing with the subject of the admission of ladies to the council and executive committee, he (the chairman) declared himself, in a humorous fashion, to be against such admission, and it was quite apparent that the ladies themselves were opposed to members of their own sex acting on the committee.

The Chairman, in reply to a question, said that a small honorarium was now being paid to Mr. Marshall for his services as secretary, and that the committee were about to appoint a permanent paid secretary who would have no connection whatever with the profession.

Mr. Butler remarked that he had found in his travels that young actors and actresses objected to joining the Union because they imagined that their doing so meant entering into conflict with the managers. That was not the case. They did not want to fight their employer, but to ask from him a fair bargain.

Mr. Fred Bentley remarked that one of their objects was to secure a minimum salary, but there was no intention to demand that at once. Then the question of joint salaries would have to be considered. There should be no reduction of salaries in the case of a husband and wife who appeared in one company.

Mr. Wilson complained of the "portable" manager who came into a town a couple of days before a bona fide company commenced a week's engagement, and performed their play in the backyard of a public-house.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, June 19.—When winter "lingers in the lap of spring," as it did this year, there is a lot of grumbling; but the old adage about the "ill wind" suggests itself when one considers the managers of the half a dozen theatres that, contrary to all precedent, have kept their doors open till Midsummer, making this one of the longest seasons in New York's theatrical history. To the latter the unseasonable weather has proved a godsend. Passing the Hudson Theatre lately, where Brewster's Millions has pursued its prosperous career for more months than one can remember, I was astonished to see a crowd of people literally "pouring in"—such a crowd, in fact, as one might expect to see in January. Then there was The Chorus Lady, which was swung by the tide of popular favour from one theatre to another, finally finding a firm anchorage at Hackett's Theatre. At a time when New Yorkers are usually surfeited with theatre-going I found the house packed from floor to ceiling.

Mr. E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe are fulfilling a farewell engagement of two weeks at the Academy of Music, during which Romeo and Juliet, Hamlet, and Twelfth Night are to be presented. Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe seem to be highly elated over their reception in London, the fact that they suffered some pecuniary loss through their expedition to the world's metropolis causing them no concern whatsoever. Shakespeare in midsummer under ordinary conditions would certainly be played to empty benches, but in this instance the Academy of Music is none too large to accommodate all those who wish to attend these farewell performances.

The reign of the roof gardens has begun. At the Jardin de Paris, which is the new name given to the roof garden of the New York Theatre, Fred Karno's troupe have scored a distinct hit in A Night in an English Music Hall, this ludicrous but clever offering provoking roars of laughter.

Mlle. Dazie, no longer "the girl with the red domino," dances gracefully and is heartily applauded. Jewell's Mannikins, a marionette show that for ingenuity and novelty far surpasses anything of the kind the writer has ever seen, keeps the audience keenly interested, and earns the appreciation it deserves. Daisy James sings "Melinda" and several other numbers, which are received with warm approval. Celia Galley's French songs please the people in front, and the London Empire Models, who pose in imitation of famous pictures and statuary, are an interesting and popular feature.

Miss Camille D'Arville, whose reappearance on the stage in The Belle of London Town after a long absence was recently recorded, is delighting the devotees of vaudeville at the Keith and Proctor houses by her rendering of Julian Edwards's "Drinking Song," from the above-named opera, and two new numbers, one being entitled "Sweet Miss Mary" and the other a negro ditty, "I'll be dar."

George M. Cohan in The Honeymooners, a new version of the musical comedy, Running for Office, is the summer offering at the Aerial Garden on the roof of the New Amsterdam Theatre. Mr. Cohan, who writes songs and musical comedies before breakfast, is idolised by youthful Americans who love plenty of noise and action. In fact, one of the songs in the piece is called "Make a lot of noise," and the commandment is faithfully followed by the entire company. Miss Gertrude Hoffman's imitations of Anna Held, Eddie Foy, and other footlight favourites are most diverting.

"His Honour the Mayor," a musical play by Alfred E. Aarons, which had a long run at the New York Theatre last year, has been revived as the summer attraction at Wallack's Theatre. The company includes Mabel Hollins, Janet Priest, Harry Kelly, and Fletcher Norton. The "Dancing Dolls" (once the Pony Ballet) and a roller skating ballet are popular features.

DRESSES AT THE PLAY.

Charming Paquin gowns are worn by Miss Alexandra Carlisle in the new comedy, The Earl of Pawtucket, produced at the Playhouse on Tuesday. One is of dainty white mousseline de soie effectively trimmed with insertions of Cluny lace. The lace forms a transparent yoke on the bodice, and appears on the skirt in downward bands alternately with narrow white satin ribbons. The waist-belt is of white Oriental satin. The fashionable tussore is the basis of another pretty creation in mauve and white stripes. The bodice is in kimono effect, and has an empiecement of Molines and filet lace. On both bodice and skirt are bias strappings of the striped silk, and there is a folded belt of violet Oriental satin. A modified Empire gown of buttercup mousseline de soie is trimmed on skirt and bodice with tassels and fancy braids in silk of the same shade of yellow. The short, full sleeves are of white mousseline de soie incrusted with Cluny lace, and the transparent yoke is of the same lace. With this dress is worn a becoming hat of buttercup Leghorn straw, with a cluster of large pink roses and green foliage.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Monday last. Mr. Lewis Casson occupied the chair, and he was supported by Messrs. Cecil Brooking, H. Athol Forde, Fredk. Morland, Frank Vernon, and Chas. Cruikshanks, secretary. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The question as to sub-letting the premises was considered, and after a lengthy discussion it was agreed that the secretary should write to various house and estate agents re the letting or disposal of the old premises and the obtaining of new. It was also agreed that the future meetings of this Committee be held on Thursdays at 4 p.m.

A proposition "That this Committee recommend to the Council that a Minimum Wage Committee be formed consisting of the members of the Finance and General Purposes Committee and three others" was agreed to.

A further meeting of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was held the following day, when Mr. Fredk. Morland occupied the chair, supported by Messrs. Lewis Casson, H. Athol Forde, Frank Vernon, and Chas. Cruikshanks, secretary. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Messrs. Fewlass, Llewellyn, and Roy Horniman were elected members of the committee.

Mr. Lewis Casson tendered his resignation as a member of this committee, as he would be on tour during July and August, and his resignation was accepted with regret.

The Social Committee held a meeting on Monday, when there were present Mr. Clive Currie (in the chair), Mesdames Georgina Hamilton, Rose Mathews, Mr. A. E. Drinkwater, Mr. Arthur Morris, and Miss Lucy Sibley (hon. sec.). The hon. secretary reported that she had had an interview with Mr. William Poel, who had chosen July 19 for his reading. She reported his suggestions, and it was agreed that Mr. Poel's kind offer be accepted, subject to the Council's consent; the hon. secretary was instructed to place the suggestions before the Council. It was decided that, subject to the consent of the Council, the "Social" of July 5 be abandoned, as it clashed with the date of the Theatrical Garden Party.

Miss Georgina Hamilton handed in a cheque for £1 5s. 10d., 14s. 6d. guarantee fund and 11s. 4d. profit on a tea. The hon. secretary reported a profit of 2s. 8½d. on tea at the last "Social."

Mr. Fredk. Morland attended the meeting, his proposition was discussed, and the hon. secretary was instructed to report to the Council that the committee approved, subject to a slight amendment proposed by Miss Sibley.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council was held on Tuesday, when there were present:—Mr. H. Athol Forde (in the chair), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Mesdames Clare Greet and Georgina Hamilton, Messrs. Lewis Casson, Roy Horniman, Fredk. Morland, Frank Vernon, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The hon. solicitors reported that they had written to a member in accordance with the Council's instructions, and had interviewed and advised another member.

A member who claimed £3 15s. for loss of property on tour attended before the Council. The claim was investigated, and it was decided that the claim was a good one. The secretary was directed to notify the insurance company, and ask for payment. The hon. solicitors were requested to give their opinion with regard to sub-letting the premises. The secretary read the form of a letter which he proposed should be sent round to different estate agents, and he was instructed to ask for a profit rental or a premium for the lease.

The hon. solicitors gave it as their opinion that, owing to the covenant contained in the lease, it would not be possible to let rooms for rehearsals to strangers.

In answer to a letter from a late member asking that her foreign letters might be retained at the A.A. until called for, the secretary was instructed to inform her that such foreign letters would be retained for two months, but that the Association disclaimed all responsibility.

The chairman read a letter from a late member in which he complained of his letters being returned to the D.L.O., and the secretary was directed to send him a copy of the notification which went out to all the members with the report and accounts for the year 1906, and inform him that his name was removed from the register of members on April 2, 1907.

The secretary asked for instructions in two cases where the rooms and notepaper were being used by persons who were no longer members of the Association, and it was decided to write to these late members and ask for an explanation.

Upon the proposition of Mr. Lewis Casson, seconded by Mr. Roy Horniman, Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn was elected to fill a vacancy on the Council.

It was agreed that the resolution "That it be a bye-law of Council proceedings that no communications concerning any proceedings of the Council shall be made to the Press except by the secretary or by direct instruction of the Council," passed on May 7, 1907, be rescinded.

The chairman read a letter from a member on the subject of the condition of the provinces, and the secretary was directed to reply that the whole question was being considered by the Finance and General Purposes Committee.

A member asked that her resignation might be accepted, notwithstanding the fact that her subscription for the current year had not been paid as she had paid her subscription last year though abroad the whole time. She intended to reside abroad in future. Her request was agreed to.

The secretary reported that a member who had returned from abroad and had not paid his subscription was in the habit of using the rooms, and added that he was preparing a circular letter to be addressed to such members.

The reports of the Finance and General Purposes Committee of their meetings of the 18th and 24th inst. were submitted, and the suggestion as to the formation of a Minimum Wage Committee having been discussed, the recommendation of the committee was accepted and adopted.

The meeting of the 18th sent up a recommendation in connection with the bi-monthly and social meetings. It was suggested that the names of both these meetings be altered, and that in future they should be known as the "Fortnightly Meetings of the Actors' Association"—every fourth meeting being for business purposes only. After discussion it was agreed that the further consideration of the whole question should be adjourned until next week.

The report of the "Social" Committee was given, and the suggestion as to Mr. Poel having rehearsals, &c., was agreed to. The secretary was instructed to inform the Social Committee that the writing-room would, if necessary, be placed at the disposal of Mr. Poel daily from 5 to 7 from July 8 up to July 19, when the reading would take place.

The report of the "Commissioners'" Committee was given, and a discussion arose as to the duties of commissioners and the work done by them. Ultimately it was agreed that the further consideration of the subject be deferred until the second week in September.

COUNCIL MEETINGS.

It was decided that during the months of July and August, in the event of there not being a quorum of five at the meeting of the Council at 2.45 on any Tuesday, the Finance and General Purposes Committee may proceed with and dispose of the business on the agenda.

Mr. Fredk. Morland asked when it was usual to go to press with the "Year Book," and being informed as to the date, proceeded to suggest several improvements in the issue. It was agreed that the matter might stand over until some future date.

The election of Clarissa Selwynne and Constance Clive as from July 1 was confirmed, and three members were reinstated. Mr. Charles Bruce was nominated for election.

A.A. SOCIAL.

MR. FREDK. MORLAND was the chairman at the social gathering of the Actors' Association on the 22nd inst. The debate on "The Slavish Imitation of London Actors by Touring Companies" was opened by Miss LUCY SIBLEY, who said that the evil did exist, but was not universal. It was more prevalent in the case of amateurs, who might be said simply to mimic the original. Such slavish imitation meant death to art; in fact, the actors became mere puppets. Of course, no real artist would imitate—real art implied originality.

MR. POOLE KIRKWOOD took it for granted that many companies were imitations of London originals, but he questioned whether provincial companies could do better than copy good London originals. The author's views ought to be taken into consideration, and he might be assumed to have imparted these to the London company.

MISS TWEED objected to the suggestion that provincial companies were mere slavish imitations of London originals.

MR. CECIL RALEIGH also referred to the fact that the author's view ought to be consulted. An original production took a long time to organise. In the case of dead authors, of course, there were no means of ascertaining their views, but living authors took an active part in the rehearsals. The author was the real creative artist, just as the painter or the novelist. He could regard the play as a whole. But the author also deserved assistance from the actor in developing the character. If the author's ideas were not to prevail, chaos would result.

A cordial vote of thanks to Mr. Morland for presiding concluded the meeting.

NEW ENGLISH AND FOREIGN PLAYS.

In order to assist managers and others in the selection of pieces for production and adaptation, we are publishing from time to time synopses of likely English and Continental plays, so that dramatic speculators may judge for themselves of the suitability of the plots for their purpose. Authors wishing for this publicity should forward synopses to "Playwrights," care of The Era, from whom further particulars can be obtained.

"THE WOOING OF MRS. VAN COTT."

Notes and Synopsis.
Farcical Comedy in Three Acts, by John Ernest McCann.
(All rights reserved).

A typical American boarding-house farce. The proprietress of the house is Mrs. Bird, whose daughter, Cora Nora Dora van Cott, has been recently left a widow. The principal boarders, all impecunious and expecting a favourable turn in the tide of their private affairs, are Major Allcuff, proud of his pedigree, and an Irish baronet, Sir Shannon McThunder. There is a well-to-do young journalist, also a boarder, named Archie Cummings. Molly Bawn is the Irish servant, and "Condensed Milk" the negro man-of-all-work. Mrs. van Cott receives the attentions of all the boarders, as the will is about to be read, and van Cott is expected to "cut up" well. The attorney-at-law, Joseph H. Artichoke, arrives, and reads the will. The two servants get small legacies; Mrs. Bird is left the second-best bed; charities connected with the welfare of cats and dogs and the prevention of animal suffering are benefited largely; and the widow inherits much property and a sum of money well over a million dollars, but subject to the condition that she marries either a Chinaman or an Afro-American within a year of her husband's demise. The will is dated April 31, 1899. Tired of her admirers' attentions, the widow, with her mother and the two servants, seeks seclusion at Professor Jag's sanatorium; but the suitors soon reappear on various pretexts. The Irishman and the Major draw cards to decide who shall retire from the field; the latter loses, but returns soon with a trumped-up story that one of his ancestors had a liaison with a fair octoroon; therefore he has negro blood in his veins, and is thus to be regarded as an eligible second husband under the terms of van Cott's will. The Irishman bribes Professor Jag to transfuse about a quart of negro blood, obtained from "Condensed Milk's" body, into his veins, to qualify him as a candidate for the widow's hand. Later, the will is pronounced invalid, as it is dated April 31, and Mrs. van Cott marries Archie Cummings, the journalist; Mrs. Bird accepts the Major's proposal, and the impecunious Irishman pairs off with the Irish maid, Molly Bawn.

ALTERATIONS AT DALY'S.

In the King's Bench Division on Wednesday, before Mr. Justice Kekewich, on the adjourned summons—Edwardes v. Daly—the Court had to determine whether under a lease dated Dec. 12, 1901, between the plaintiff and the Hon. B. E. E. Barrington (the English administrator of the late Mr. Augustin Daly), and an agreement dated June 16, 1903, the plaintiff or the defendants were liable for certain alterations in the electric lighting at Daly's Theatre. The lease is now vested in the defendants, as executors of the late Mr. Daly. Mr. Jessel, K.C., for the plaintiff, said there was a covenant in the lease by which the lessee undertook, during the said term, to comply with all lawful requirements of the London County Council with regard to the structure of the theatre, provided, nevertheless, that any structural alterations or works of that nature, which might be so required, should be done by, or at the expense of, the lessor. That was only with regard to the structure. The alterations in question involved no structural alterations. The County Council had for some time been urging upon the parties the desirability of making the alterations, but they could not quite agree as to who should pay for them. They arranged, however, that the alterations should be made. Mr. Edwardes did them, and, by an arrangement between the parties, without prejudice to the questions in dispute, it was settled that a summons should be taken out. By the agreement it was stipulated that for five years, from Aug. 1, 1903, the plaintiff should have the sole use, management, and control of the theatre for the purposes, and subject to the stipulations, therein mentioned, the profits being shared between the parties.

His Lordship's view was that the parties must have been taken to have intended that Mr. Edwardes should do whatever was necessary to keep the theatre open and make it profitable, exercising his own choice as to complying with any requirements made on him. His Lordship directed that plaintiff must bear the cost of the alterations.

THE King and Queen, accompanied by the Grand Duke and Duchess of Hesse, Prince and Princess Andrew of Greece and suite, were present on Wednesday evening at the Adelphi Theatre and witnessed the performance of The Corsican Brothers. The same evening saw the King of Siam at Daly's Theatre, where The Merry Widow exercises her fascinations.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, June 27.—This is an old friend in a new dress, so new, indeed, that—in addition to the fact that the piece has not been given here for twenty years—it may be looked upon in the light of a novelty. As the plot is undoubtedly familiar to your readers, a detailed account will be unnecessary. The play is a hymn of praise to work—honest hard work—and Scribe took a bold step when he made his characters—members of an ancient noble family—not ashamed of labour. The young Duchess Helene has earned her living as a dressmaker, helping thereby other members of her family, and is wedded by Count Tristan, who is also an avowed disciple of honest work. The first act is tedious, but in the second and following acts there is plenty of fun, and the greatest pains having been expended on the cast, the piece was very cordially received. Frau Willig was delightful in the part of Helen, and Herr Boettcher gave an excellent account of the rôle of Kerbriand, the amiable, good-hearted man, who, being afflicted with stammering, determines to enter the diplomatic service. Other characters were capitally sustained by Fräulein von Mayburg, Frau Butze, and Herr Stalgemann.

AT the Schiller N. an ancient burlesque has been revived with satisfactory results, Kyritz-Pyritz, by MM. Wilken and Justinus, authors who have long been dead. The humour is very broad, at times verging on horseplay, but the cast interpreted it with a good deal of discretion, and some of the scenes are genuinely funny. It is filling the bill nightly.

"STAATSANWALT ALEXANDER," the four-act drama by Carl Schüler—already detailed in your columns—has removed from the Berliner to the Thalia Theatre, where it is being given every night until the holidays. A change has been made in the cast, Herr Adolf Klein taking the title-rôle. Herr Klein is one of the best character actors we have, and for many years was one of the most prominent members of the Royal Schauspielhaus company. His interpretation of the powerful rôle is admirable, and he is supported in a thoroughly satisfactory manner.

AT the Lustpielhaus the merry Viennese farce, Die Welt Ohne Maenner, is still filling the bill nightly, and celebrates its twenty-fifth consecutive performance this evening. Fräulein Pepi Glockner is, as has already been stated, the principal attraction.

HERR BOGUMIL ZEPLER has just completed another operetta, which was produced with eminent success on Thursday at the New Operetta Theatre, Hamburg, by the company from the Berlin Apollo. Bogumil Zepler, it may be remembered, is the composer of the clever parody, Salome, recently mentioned in your columns.

A NEW farce by the well-known collaborators, Dr. Oscar Blumenthal and Herr Gustav Kalenburg, is just finished, and will be produced at the Royal Schauspielhaus early in October. The title is Der letzte Funke (the last spark), and the piece contains three acts. Herr Kadelburg, by the way, has just had the Knight's Cross of the Friedrich Order of the 1st Class conferred upon him by the King of Würtemberg.

"TRISTRAM AND ISEULT."

Mr. Comyns Carr rarely wrote anything finer than some of the scenes in his poetical drama, Tristram and Iseult, which was presented by Mr Otho Stuart at the Adelphi. The following extract is especially worthy of preservation. Tristram is bringing Iseult back to Cornwall to be the bride of King Mark; Iseult is eager to avenge the death of her brother Morraunt, who was slain by Tristram:—

Iseult. So then thou hast forgot that Morraunt died.
Tristram. I would I could forget.
Iseult. Thou can'st not! No,
Nor we who are his kin, and saw him die!
Think then it was forgotten in that hour,
When 'neath thy stronger arm, Sir Palamide
Fell stricken to the earth?
Tristram. I think not so!
Iseult. Nay, but King Gormon's oath still left thee free,
Who else had paid death's forfeit! Aye, 'twas so!
And then, when fearing naught, thy lips dared ask,
What he might not refuse—think you that Time
Had laid to sleep the bitter memory
Of Morraunt's death?
Tristram. Indeed, I think not so.
For well I know that bitter memory
Still lives to-day, and shall outlast all time.
Iseult. And, yet for all, thou still would'st serve thy King?
Tristram. As needs I must! 'Tis all that's left to me.
Iseult. Then, of thy love for him that is so great,
Go put the helm about and flee the land!
Tristram. I cannot!
Iseult. Cannot? Hearken then to me:
That oath of vengeance sworn so long ago,
Were I not all too weak, had long ago
Been satisfied. Thy valour saved thee then!
Thy valour and King Gormon's plighted word.
Yet know, though thou art free, that oath endures,
And the sword's point that found the servant armed
May haply strike his master.
Tristram. What means this?
Iseult. Dost see that cup? It is my mother's gift
To Mark the King. And that sweet wine it holds
My Lord and I shall drink in joyous pledge
Of our betrothal.
Tristram. Nay, I know it well.
Iseult. Yet know'st not all. Read what is writ thereon!
Tristram. [Holding the cup in his hand.] "Those twain who drink of this sweet wine shall dream
An endless dream that knows no waking here."
Iseult. Can'st thou not guess that dream? I'll tell thee then;
'Tis death!
Tristram. What sayest thou, Death?
Iseult. Aye, in that wine
Lies life's one secret none can ever know
Till Death unbars the door, and Death waits there!
'Tis naught to me, for life is naught to me!
And haply naught to thee whose life is safe!
Yet thou dost love thy King.
Tristram. And dost thou think
That I would shield myself and slay my Lord?
Iseult. Then put the helm about and flee the land.
Tristram. There is a better way.
Iseult. What way?
Tristram. Ah, why
When I lay stricken on the verge of death,
Why did'st thou heal that wound which but for thee
Had wrought thy vengeance then?
Iseult I know not!
Tristram. Why,
Why did'st thou stay thy mother's vengeful hand,
More merciful than thine, that would have slain me?
Iseult. I know not! Nay, I know not!
Tristram. Then I'll tell thee.
Thy deeper love for Moraunt, who had died,
Dreamed of a deeper shame for him whose sword
Had struck him down. Yea, well thou know'st 'tis so!
Set in thy heart there dwelt this fiercer hate;
"'Tis not enough that this poor knight should die!
Nay, he shall live, and bear upon his brow
The brand of coward, traitor, and what else
Shall link his name with endless infamy!"
So had'st thou dreamed; but so it shall not be!
For here I bare my breast and take that blow
Was meant for him I serve! Strike hard and deep!
Thou hast no pity left—those healing hands
Should own their sterner office.
Iseult. Nay, I cannot!
Tristram. Doth hate so move thee still? Why, see you then
I am no traitor! This shall make amends.
For here in full atonement for what's gone
I drink that poisoned cup was meant for him,
My Lord.
[He goes up stage and seizes one of the goblets. She makes a movement to stop him, but as she does so he drains it down.]
Iseult. Ah, no!
Tristram. 'Tis done! Iseult, farewell!
[He comes down stage with eyes gazing outward as one waiting the call of Death. As he stands there she moves softly up stage, and drains the other cup.]
Iseult. "Whom thou hast healed, him shalt thou wound again."
So this then is the end! Tristram, farewell!
Tristram. What hast thou done?
Iseult. As thou hast! Fare thee well.
[They stand apart and in silence as the voices of the SAILORS are heard at the back softly singing. During the chorus the faces of TRISTRAM and ISEULT reveal the soft beginning of the mystic spell that is working within them, and as they stand, their faces gradually transfigured, the light increases till the scene is flooded with a golden dawn.]

SAILORS' chorus.

New breezes spring
Across the foam,
The Swallow's wing
Is spread for home!
Day shines afar
And night is past
The harbour bar
Is won at last!

Tristram. They sing of day.
Iseult. Yet 'tis the night that comes!
Tristram. Yea, truly, so it is. Then hasten, night,
Unbar this golden prison men call day!
Iseult. Nay, look again, it hath the grace of dawn;
The stars are flushed with crimson, and the sky
Holds some new light I know not.
Tristram. Through the dusk,
The way shines clearly that shall lead us on.
And who are they that wander hand in hand
Within that shadowy wood? They come in troops,
With cheeks still wet with weeping! Who are they?
Iseult. I see them not! Thou hast gone on before
Where I must follow thee. Ah, now I see!
They also trod the way that waits for us!
Wilt thou too take this hand? All's over now,
It cannot harm thee more!
[She holds out her hand, he takes it in his.
Tristram. It healed me once!
Iseult. And wounded thee again! Aye, past all cure!
Tristram. The cure is here at last. Look where the sea
Breaks into flower and all the whitened foam
Is strewn with blossom! Spring is here again!
Iseult. Can this be Death's rough road?
Tristram. An' if it be,
Then Death and Life are one, and Death and Love!
For, look you, Love stands there; with rose-crowned brows,
He passes 'midst those shadowy forms, whose eyes
Are lifted up to greet him as he goes!
Iseult. Oh, Death, come quickly; end what needs must end!
Tristram. "Those twain who drink of this sweet wine shall dream—"
Iseult. "An endless dream that knows no waking here."
[She leans towards him, her head sinking on his breast as the chorus is repeated softly.

Day shines afar
The night is past,
The harbour bar
Is won at last.

Tristram. Aye, won at last!
Iseult. At last! It was no dream!
Tristram. Iseult, I love thee!
Iseult. As I love thee too,
And shall for ever love thee!
Tristram From this hour
We twain shall cleave together heart to heart.
Iseult. Aye, soul to soul, till Death indeed shall come
And sweetly end us both!

MANAGER AND EDITOR.

Mr. T. Edgar Pemberton, in his "life" of Charles Wyndham, gives an amusing account of the celebrated actor's visit to Chicago in 1871. The only place he could get into was Crosby's Opera House, a very magnificent building, almost as big as Drury Lane, but not the very best area for light comedy. As the audience was significantly small for the advent of the stranger, the size of that audience and the size of the house were out of all decent proportion. When Tuesday arrived the Press were most unanimous in their praises of both himself and his company.

Delighted, and even surprised at this, he concluded at once that with such a unanimous chorus of praise they were bound to have even that great house full that night, but unfortunately there was no improvement in the number of spectators. The actor-manager regarded the matter philosophically, but was much distressed next morning on taking up the papers to see in all of them the expression of surprise and regret on the part of the Press at the poverty of the attendance. He would rather have "kept that quiet," so that Tuesday morning's wonderful notices should have had time to percolate through the artistic centres of Chicago, whereas the publication of the news that the house was bad would certainly prejudice the attendance on the Wednesday night. He was quite right. Wednesday showed no improvement on Tuesday, and he was annoyed beyond measure on taking up the papers on Thursday to find a repetition of their surprise and regret still more forcibly emphasised to the Chicago public, and still unpleasantly more to himself. Thursday night's attendance was just the same, and Friday morning's Press even more than the same, for now they began to blame the public for neglecting the attraction there was in the town. This unusual step, however, had no influence on Friday night's house. The Chicago public were not to be moved; but Charles Wyndham had this solatium in his bitter disappointment and heavy pecuniary loss, that the manager tried to persuade him on the Friday morning to stay another week, as he was sure that this repeated attack on the public by the Press would have its effect. Alas! he was due at St. Louis the following Monday; but a few hours after the manager had spoken to him a strange coincidence occurred. He received a telegram from the manager at St. Louis telling him that Mrs. Oates, a lady star in America at that time, had lost one of her weeks in St. Louis through the floods and consequent breakdown of her train, and he very much wished her to have her second week, and if he would forego the next week he would give him the following two in their place. As the week in question was Holy Week, and the weeks following Easter and its successor, in a Roman Catholic city, he was only too glad to accept the change, and notified his Chicago manager to that effect. He quaked with fear when not even a Saturday performance resulted in anything like a remunerative house. But a strange thing happened on the Sunday morning. In the previous year the intrepid Miss Lydia Thompson had publicly thrashed the proprietor of the Chicago Times, and inasmuch as the manager of the Crosby Opera House had sided with Miss Thompson, the Chicago Times had, since that date, during the whole twelve months refrained from even mentioning the theatre or anybody connected with it. It was a matter of great public talk during the whole of that year, and the surprise of the Chicago public when, on the Sunday morning, they found in the Chicago Times a couple of columns of high praise equal to that of the other papers on the Wyndham Company's performances, can be realised. It was due to this: the manager happened to meet the editor of the paper quite accidentally on the Saturday, and under such psychological conditions that they quietly made up their differences, with the result that the editor had come on the Saturday night and gone into line with all the rest of the Press. This had a most wonderful effect for Charles Wyndham. From Monday onwards the houses were very fine, till towards the end of the week that vast theatre was crammed to its utmost capacity, and on Saturday evening he had every manager in Chicago waiting behind the scenes for him begging him to come back in May. The Crosby Opera House in the hot month of May was out of the question to his mind, and to the surprise of everybody he selected the very smallest theatre in Chicago. A friend pointed to the enormous house of that Saturday evening, and said, "This is what you could get, and yet you take the very smallest." His forecast was right, however. He opened in May at the Deerborn Street Theatre, and turned money away for three months. Then he arranged to return to his allegiance to the Crosby Opera House for the autumn.

The owner was going to decorate it in the most sumptuous manner possible. As a matter of fact, the decorations cost £16,000. Charles Wyndham was to open the theatre for a three months' season. Chicago never saw that beautiful opera house. The night before it was to be opened was the night of the Chicago fire, and this magnificent structure crumbled and melted away in nine minutes, not leaving a single brick or column standing on the ground. The proprietor stood in front watching this terrible destruction, and at the end of the nine minutes simply turned round to one of his friends and ejaculated: "I would not have minded the loss of the building if Chicago had only seen it once!"

PASTORAL PLAY AT BATTERSEA.

The beautiful old-world gardens of Battersea Rise House were on Wednesday the scene of a delightful representation of the Forest Scenes from As You Like It, by a company under the direction of Miss Italia Conti. The pipers of the Strathnaver Fairy Circle greeted the Countess of Kinnoull at the entrance to the gardens with the "Kinnoull March" on the bagpipes, and presented her with a bouquet tied with the Hay tartan ribbon, and she then declared the fête open.

Mr. A. Hylton Allen looked an ideal forest lover, and played Orlando with great poetical feeling and with a bright sense of comedy. Mr. Cremlin's sound experience was of great value as the Duke; Mr. Walter Ringham made Jaques interesting and picturesque; Mr. Landor was a good Touchstone; Mr. William Luff was a handsome and dignified Oliver; Mr. Montague Wigan as Adam, Mr. Oxlee as Corin, and Mr. Brookfield as Jaques de Bois lent valuable assistance; and Mr. James Gelderd was convincingly love-lorn as Silvius. A special word of praise must be given to the very funny William of Mr. Robert Grey. As Rosalind Miss Italia Conti looked delightfully boyish, and played with great charm and sincerity. It is to be hoped she may one day have an opportunity of showing her powers in Shakespearean comedy on a more ambitious stage. She was well supported by Miss Betty Castle, who was a most attractive Celia, and by Miss Evelyn Marthèze, who played Phebe with originality and winsomeness that was very enjoyable. Miss Claire Greet's Audrey was as excellent as that lady's work always is, and her scenes went with a ripples of laughter from the moment she appeared. Miss Kate Turner, Miss Pourtales, Miss Hamber, and Mr. Currey completed a most excellent cast.

The play was very well stage-managed and arranged for its charming surroundings, and gave great pleasure to a large audience. Afterwards the whole company were photographed in their dresses, a final snapshot being taken of Miss Italia Conti in her boy's dress handing Lady Kinnoull a cup of tea.

There was a very good variety concert during tea arranged by Mr. Robert Grey, and the scenes from As You Like It were repeated in the evening.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, June 24, the Pantomime, entitled
"THE FORTE THIEVES."

Although the programme gives a fictitious name as the author, it is an admitted fact that Mr. Bruce Smith, the well-known scene-painter, is responsible for the literary and scenic portion of the entertainment. The children from Drury Lane Theatre play their parts cleverly. The call-boy, Master Jack Frost, is a thorough little comedian, and works very hard as Abdalla for the success of the production. Master W. Bishop is another smart juvenile, who will be heard of again. His singing and dancing as Ali Baba are energetic. Miss Jessie Evans as Ganem shows much spirit; and Miss L. Randall as Cogia Baba met with success. Cassim Baba has a diverting representative in Master Teddy Gordon. Miss A. MacDonald is a handsome Hassarac; and Miss Gertie Britton is a sprightly Fairy of the Cave. A pretty and engaging Morgiana is Miss Florrie Clarke. As the donkey, Master Middleditch and Master Burton raise many laughs. A graceful principal dancer is Miss Vickie Hogden.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, June 24, the Drama, entitled
"JEANIE DEANS."

Jeanie Deans, adapted from Sir Walter Scott's celebrated novel, "The Heart of Midlothian," is providing a distinct contrast to last week's programme. The romantic atmosphere of the story supplies excellent opportunities to artists and stage-management alike, while the very pretty and artistic costumes give life and colour to the scene. The members of the company, with Miss Kate Clinton as the "bright particular star," are one and all highly efficient, and it would be hard to say whether their individual merits or their well-drilled co-operation deserve the greater praise. Mr. Montague Lane supplies a portrayal of Geordie Robertson, which is marked by self-possession and dramatic power of no mean order; and Mr. Alfred D. Adams makes a great hit in his delineation of the unsuccessful wooer, the Laird of Dumbiedykes, a happy creation of the author, which in Mr. Adams's hands vastly entertained the audience. Mr. Joseph A. Keogh as David Deans plays forcibly and well, and Mr. Edward Grogan supplies a capital presentment of John, Duke of Argyle. Rueben Butler is portrayed with sound judgment and ability by Mr. Clifford Marle, and Mr. R. H. Lace makes the most of his opportunities as Mr. Sharpitlaw. Mr. Samuel Seldit presents an effective study of the Lord Justiciary, and Mr. Andrew Weir as counsel for the Crown is satisfactory. Mr. Neal Fitzwilliam as the counsel for the defence plays with unfailing care and intensity. Mr. George T. Greig does well in the part of Ratcliffe, and the same may be said of Messrs. Richard Melton and Alfred Talboys as Black Frank and Tyburn Tom. Miss Mary Campbell presents a telling picture of the long-suffering Effie Deans, and Miss Armor effectively portrays Margery Murdockson. Miss Wanda Beresford is successful as Queen Caroline and Miss Janet Bride is good as Mrs Balchristie. Miss Esther Tearle lends invaluable help as the half-witted Madge Wildfire, some of her scenes being very fine. Miss Kate Clinton in her impersonation of Jeanie Deans rivets the attention of her audience throughout the play, and a genuine outburst of hearty applause is accorded this clever actress at the final fall of the curtain.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, June 24, the Comedy, entitled
"THE INCUBUS."

A bold experiment was made by Mr. Laurence Irving at the Coronet on Monday, when the adaptation of Brieux's Les Hannetons, produced by the Stage Society on March 25, received its first public presentment under the title of The Incubus. The piece is more decidedly Parisian in flavour than many others which have been presented to English audiences, and though the unsavoury nature of the theme obtrudes itself at every turn, it is stuffed so full of satire and humour that laughter was frequent, and on Monday gave way at each curtain to warm cheers. The plot was fully detailed in our notice of the original production, and many of the artists who then appeared are included in the present cast. The impression created by Miss Mabel Hackney in her rendering of Charlotte, the workgirl who for five years has lived under the "protection" of a teacher of natural history, with whom she leads a life of constant wrangling and reconciliation, was repeated on Monday. Miss Hackney's spirits in the part never languish, and her clever performance again received the assured stamp of success. Mr. C. V. France delighted once again with his artistic rendering of Pierre, the botanist devoted to the care of his specimens and harassed beyond endurance by his irrepressible "comrade." Mr. France makes his points without any apparent exertion, his admirably-modulated voice giving apt expression to every word. The Gentleman of Mr. Nigel Playfair was another repetition of a former success, his impersonation of the dignified and dapper personage being very droll. A new-comer to the cast is Mr. Charles Garry, who presented a clever study of the veterinary surgeon Brochot, improving the effect of the part by many comedy touches, while the display of feeling in the last act was naturally done. Mr. William Farren, jun., gave character to the concierge, his make-up being very artistic; and Mr. Leonard Calvert supplied a neat sketch of a waterman. Miss Olive Terry impersonated Isabelle, Charlotte's bosom friend, admirably; Miss Florence Adale was again a vivacious maid-servant; and Miss Violet Chamier as the Lady from Below and Miss Beatrice Lett as Mme. Langlois adequately completed the cast.

More than usual importance was given to the curtain-raiser from the fact that it is from the pen of Mr. Laurence Irving, who had the assistance in its interpretation of no less a public favourite than Miss Winifred Emery. The piece, which on Monday received its first representation, is in one act, and is entitled

"THE PHŒNIX."

Herbert Medway, J.P. .....MR. NIGEL PLAYFAIR
Captain Ferris .....MR. LAURENCE IRVING
Maid .....MISS FLORENCE ADALE
Beatrice .....MISS WINIFRED EMERY

A duologue of a refreshing character sparkling with witty dialogue and possessing a wealth of sentiment makes the new playlet very welcome. The rôle which is graced by Miss Emery is that of a young widow who has many admirers. Her uncle presses the suit of a certain member of Parliament, but Beatrice has tender memories of a former lover who has seen service abroad. When Captain Ferris returns he learns from the uncle that Beatrice is on the point of marrying again. Beatrice requests the return of several letters which she had written him, and Ferris promises to destroy them on condition that he is allowed to read them first aloud. The perusal of the missives reveals the fact that before her marriage Beatrice was in love with Ferris, but had to wed in order to gain a competence for her sick mother. The letters are duly burned, but when it transpires that Beatrice has ever since cherished Ferris's letters, it is apparent that the old love endures, and will "rise like a Phœnix out of the ashes of the past." The reading of the letters supplied an exquisite comedy scene, the honours of which were shared equally by Miss Emery and Mr. Irving. Miss Emery invested her rendering of Beatrice with all the charm which has so endeared her to the public. Her assumption of artless innocence during the reading of the epistles was captivating, and every movement was instinct with grace, every word clear and distinct. Mr. Irving's easy and unobtrusive style in the part of Captain Ferris made all the more effective the neatly-pointed lines which he has to deliver, and his conception of the character supplied added evidence of the dramatic ability of which he has lately given such distinct proof. The subordinate part of the uncle, Herbert Medway, was capably sustained by Mr. Nigel Playfair. The little piece was enthusiastically cheered, the curtain having to be raised repeatedly at the end.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, June 24, the Drama, entitled
"EAST LYNNE."

Auguste Van Biene was to have appeared this week in The Broken Melody; but, owing to unforeseen circumstances, the famous actor-musician was unable to fulfil the engagement, although we hope to be able to welcome him here at an early date. In his absence there is being presented that ever-popular play East Lynne. Mr. James Willard has got a very capable company together, and he is lucky in being able to secure that fine actress Miss Lilian Dundas, who again plays the part of the unhappy Isabel. Miss Dundas acts with great force, and her acting of the more emotional scenes is most praiseworthy. Mr. James Willard appears as Captain Levison, and he presents a capital portrayal of the character. Archibald Carlyle is carefully played by Mr. Laurence Leyton, who is seen to advantage in the part. Miss Esther Carthew gives an amusing impersonation of Miss Cornelia Carlyle, and raises many laughs by her excellent picture of this kind-hearted old lady; while Lawyer Dill is likewise humorously depicted by Mr. Joe Bracewell. Mr. Arthur Mansfield does well as Richard Hare; while Mr. Frank Sutherland is good as the peppery old Mr. Justice Hare. Willie Carlyle is charmingly played by little Miss Mabel Jameson, who acts in a very natural manner; Suzanne, the French maid, is neatly presented by Miss Kitty Parsons; while the faithful Joyce is quite safe in the hands of Miss Helena Rigby. Miss Grace Carew makes a most delightful Barbara Hare, and plays the part with great tact; Mr. Charles Spencer is successful as Lord Mountsevern; and other characters are suitably portrayed. The opening of the new Tube Railway this week should add materially to the prosperity of this handsome and comfortable theatre, which is now brought quite close and handy to residents all over North London, for the Mornington-crescent Station is directly opposite the theatre.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, June 25, the Drama, entitled
"IN THE SHADOW OF NIGHT."

There has been quite a run of melodrama at Kennington Theatre lately, and one of the best specimens has been provided in Mr. James Willard's play, In the Shadow of Night, which he is himself producing. The drama is of an exciting and highly sensational character, and appeals to the sympathies of all. There is ample opportunity for effects, and full advantage is taken of these, the closing scene of the Thames when the stage is flooded with water being quite a triumph. The theme of the play is of absorbing interest, and its development is followed with the keenest attention. Mr. James Willard has chosen for himself the difficult and thankless rôle of Clifford Yorke, the villain, but he gives a fine portrayal of it, and introduces a lively humour which serves as a bright relief to the heavier work of the part. Miss Elsie Wallace is a charming and lovable Violet Kingston, the heroine, and her sweetheart, Gordon Allington, is well played by Mr. Austin Mortimer, who looks every inch the hero whom he impersonates. Mr. George Harvey is an ideal country squire as John Allington; and a careful study of the blunt, outspoken old farmer, James Woodstock, is given by Mr. Harry Emmerson. Tom Nainby is finely taken by Mr. Arnold, who is a great favourite with the audience; Miss Mildred Carr as Molly Woodstock gives a bright interpretation of the part; in the dual rôles of the old postman and the young clergyman Mr. Evison shows conspicuous ability; while Mr. William Hayward deserves mention for the thoroughgoing fashion in which he plays Jake Grudgewell, the villain's right-hand man. Miss Phyllis French makes a good deal out of the character of Bob, the young tramp, who is the hero's staunch friend; and Mr. Clive Rawlins deserves mention as the constable. Quite a feature of the drama is the appearance of Gyp, the dog who comes to the aid of Molly and worries the villains.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, June 24, the Drama, entitled
"AN ABANDONED WOMAN."

A stirring play and a strong company are together delighting large audiences here this week, and Mr. Harry Foxwell's combination are to be congratulated on their effective representation of Miles Wallerton and Francis Gilbert's drama. Mr. Walli Spinner is earnest and impressive throughout as Captain Herbert Seaton; and Miss May Richardson as Eleanor, his wife, plays in sympathetic style. Phillipe Malvoisin, chief of a gang of French thieves, finds an able exponent in Mr. Richard Ferris, and much assistance is given him by Miss Edith Blande, whose portrayal of the somewhat distasteful character of Ninon Malvoisin is to be commended. Mr. P. Morton Wright submits some fine acting as Robert Saunders; and Mr. Charles Grant is seen to advantage in the rather small but important character of Sir Marmaduke Seaton. The character of Sammy Sharp, the resourceful waif, who is instrumental in running the villain to earth, is smartly played by Mr. Will Glaze; and Mr. Jim K. Woods as Paddy Boyle is responsible for some genuine humour. Miss Elsie Dean gives a bright reading of Sally Sloper; and Mr. Charles Hunt as Sergeant Stubbles is droll. Other minor characters are well played, and the drama is adequately staged.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

The drama, in Five Acts, by Tom Taylor, entitled
"THE TICKET-OF-LEAVE MAN."

The Ticket-of-Leave Man is being presented here by Mr. David James. Mr. Lewis Willoughby as Bob Brierly is thoroughly successful. Mr. Fred Maye as James Dalton, is thoroughly appreciated; Melter Moss is excellently impersonated by Mr. Norman Clarke. Mr. W. J. Robertson fully realises the character of Hawkshaw; Mr. Gerald James is effective as Mr. Gibson, and also ably sustains the parts of Maltby and Brunton. As Sam Willoughby, Miss May Anderson is amusing. Mrs. Willoughby is cleverly depicted by Miss Pollie Marshall; Miss Ida Phillips plays May Edwards with womanly gentleness and tenderness. An Artist's Dilemma precedes the piece of the evening. In this Mr. Grooves Watson gives a capital representation of Ebenezer Biggs; Mr. Alfred Maye is a very vivacious artist; Mr. Lewis Willoughby is a dashing young husband; and Miss Ida Phillips a charming young wife. Both pieces are effectively staged. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. George Carter, ably supplys the incidental music. The general-manager, Mr. R. W. Allum, is ever on the alert to study the comforts of his audience.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, June 24,
the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled
"MAN TO MAN."

Lovers of sensational drama may well be recommended to pay a visit to the Shakespeare Theatre this week, where the excellent company under the direction of Mr. Frank Adair is presenting Man to Man. Full advantage is taken of the thrilling episodes, that depicting a railway collision being a veritable triumph of stagecraft. The acting all round is of the highest order, and the interpretation of the piece so successful that the audience is roused to the greatest enthusiasm, prolonged applause awaiting the fall of the curtain. Miss Louie Adair is seen to advantage in the rôle of Ethel Maythorne, quickly gaining the sympathy of the audience and acquitting herself with success. Miss Nellie Daly is admirably placed as Miss Dove, a middle-aged spinster, and plays her part with humoous effect; as Gipsy Madge Miss Lydia Mannington contributes an excellent performance; and Miss Daisy Maynard is eminently satisfactory in the rôle of Ned Doyle. Mr. Frank Adair gives an admirable impersonation of the character of Richard Ellerton; baseness and effrontery are indicated in every speech and gesture. As George Gordon Mr. Wingold Lawrence looks well and acts with manly emphasis that is invested with just the right tone of sincerity. Mr. Chris Mason as Samuel Plumtree is bubbling over with humour; and Mr. George Mitchell assumes with success the rôle of the Rev. Philip Ormond, a prison chaplain, acting with energy and making every point in the dialogue tell. Mr. George Asquin scores a hit in the part of Bill Burkley, a convict, and his quaint mannerisms keep the house in roars of laughter. Minor parts are adequately sustained by Messrs. H. Holland, Charles Russell, and Fred Withers, and Miss Lilian Russell.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, June 24, the Play, by S. Buchanan Rodgerson, entitled
"WHEN IT WAS DARK."

Mrs. Morton Powell's company is here this week in When It Was Dark, giving a very able rendering of Mr. S. Buchanan Rodgerson's adaptation of Mr. Guy Thorn's famous theological novel. The play is ably written, and the author has judiciously introduced some appropriate comic relief. Good houses have been the rule during the week. Mr. W. J. Butler gives a powerful study of fiendish malignity as Constantine Schuabe, and his impressive performance is of the greatest value; Mr. Edwin Valentine is an excellent Sir Robert Llewellyn; Mr. E. Stanton Sharp displays capital elocutionary ability as the heroic young curate, Basil Gortre; that experienced actress, Miss Hilda Beverley, gives a powerful and sympathetic reading of the character of the demi-mondaine, Gertrude Hunt; Mrs. Morton Powell gains the sympathy of the audience by her engaging rendering of the rôle of Helena Byars, the vicar's daughter; the frivolous Grace Goldeye is ably enacted by Miss Dorothy Hildebrande; Mr. Ernest St. John is a dignified Rev. Mr. Byars; Mr. Harold B. Lewis plays well as the journalist, Harold Spence; and Mr. Millar Wilson as the Hon. Charles Gayfly and Mr. W. Drysdale as Nunc Wallace contribute able character sketches. The scenery is very effective, and the burning of the church in the third act is admirably managed.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, June 24, was presented the Play, entitled
"TRILBY."

Mr. Louis Calvert's production of this celebrated play is entirely successful, and has met with the appreciation of the patrons of this favourite theatre. Mr. C. C. Calvert presents a cleverly-conceived and artistically-executed portrait of Svengali; Miss Edyth Goodall is a delightful Trilby O'Ferrall, pleasing greatly by her natural and charming assumption; Mr. J. W Riley is excellent as Talbot Wynne (Taffy); Mr. Howard Templeton is a capital representative of Alexander McAlister (Sandy); and the Little Billee of Mr. Oswald Marshall leaves nothing to be desired. Mr. Sydney N. Hallows plays effectively as Gecko; Mr. H. Gray Dolby is very good indeed as the Rev. Mr. Bagot; and Mr. Stanley Roberts (Zou-Zou), Mr. W. Kingsford Pearce (Dodor), Mr. J. Collison (Manager Kaw), and Mr. J. W. Chapman (attendant) are all excellent. Miss Linda Riley is a characteristic Mme. Vinard; Miss Nell Gillmore is very good indeed as Mrs. Bagot; and Miss Sealby (Susette), Miss Norman (Marianne), Miss Lightfoot (Jeanne), Miss Walker (Marie), and Miss Brooke (Angele) all add to the success.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, June 24, the Drama, by Geo. R. Sims and Arthur Shirley, entitled
"TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS."

The continued popularity of this old favourite amongst playgoers was again evidenced on Monday night, when it was presented to a crowded house at the Royal County Theatre by Hardie and Von Leer's company, and the story of the two little waifs was followed with as keen an interest as if it were being presented for the first time. The vagabonds were admirably impersonated by Miss Edie Martin (Dick) and Miss Jessie Beltram (Wally). A creditable rendering of the part of Marion Thornton was given by Miss Grace Heywood; whilst Miss Rosalind Vayne acquitted herself well as Barbara Scarth. Mr. Lionel Ellis as the Gaffer, Miss Evelyn Shaw as Biddy Mullins, Mr. Frank Gordon as Dido Bunce, and Mr. Dick Winslow as the Coughdrop each contributed substantially to the humorous element in the play; whilst good work was also rendered by Mr. Arthur E. Melbourne as George Thornton and Mr. Sydney Vautier as Capt. Darville. The mounting of the drama was all that could be desired.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, June 24, Mr. Fred Jarman's company, in the Drama,
"UNDER THE CZAR."

This well-known drama is doing excellent business on its return visit to the Lyric, where it is being presented by a most satisfactory company. Mr. Wilson Howard as Nicholas Yerostaff, the hero, plays with vigour, and gains much applause, the scene in which he is hanged being very effective. Mr. Gerald Smythe is good as Captain Johnson, the English officer; an excellent study of Zakha Kovesky is given by Mr. William Matthews; Mr. R. Merring as Michael Granoviski is quite satisfactory; the part of Egor Gregorovitch, a Nihilist, is in the safe hands of Mr. J. Leicester; Mr. George H. Doyle acts well as the Governor-General of Moscow; Mr. Carl Vallender as Alexis Petroff gives an excellent character portrayal, investing the part with all the necessary humour; and Mr. Cecil Morand makes more fun as Paul Ignat. Miss Violet Vivienne also adds to the mirth in her part as Siomka; Miss Carlotta Anson plays winsomely as Sonia Gregorovitch; Miss Madge Clare is a dainty gipsy girl, Zara Bhura; and the remaining characters are well played, Mr. Victor Gordon distinguishing himself as Victor Kleff, the doctor. The scenery is very good, and the uniforms are most effective.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, June 24, the Drama,
"THE ENGLISH ROSE."

The introduction of a short season of dramatic revivals under the direction of Mr. Beresford Whitcomb, with two such established favourites as Mr. Ashley Page and Miss Marion Denvil in leading rôles, has throughout met with the hearty support of local playgoers; and this is well merited, for a high standard has been maintained in the mounting of the various pieces, and great care has been bestowed upon their interpretation. For the fifth week of the series The English Rose is in the bill, and on the opening night of the week the piece had a cordial reception. Mr. Ashley Page enlists the sympathies of the audience throughout as the persecuted Harry O'Mailly, playing the part with considerable power and virility. Miss Marion Denvil is always sympathetic and charming as Ethel Kingston, and is a firm favourite. Mr. Weldon Atherstone contributes a strikingly impressive and convincing portraiture of Father Michael; and Mr. Tom Taylor is a bluff and breezy Knight of Ballyveeney. Mr. Walter Thornton depicts with considerable skill the villainous Captain Macdonald; and Mr. Raymond Wood provides an intense and graphic portraiture of Randal O'Mara. As a typical Irish police-sergeant Mr. Willie Reid has plenty of scope, and he is of incalculable value to the lighter side of the drama; Mr. A. Gambier Melford plays with grim humour as the car-driver, Nicholas Dickinson; and Mr. Harry Bristowe portrays Sir Philip Kingston very appropriately. Miss Laura Leycester is highly successful as Bridget O'Mara; and Miss Mabel Lowe is a duly pert and sprightly Louisa Ferguson. The minor parts are all played with intelligence and care.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Wednesday, June 26, Shakespeare's Comedy,
"AS YOU LIKE IT."

Although the unfavourable weather precluded the possibility of this play being given in the open, as was originally intended, we doubt if the company has often played to a fuller house or to a more appreciative audience. Mr. Herbert Bunston's rendering of the exiled Duke was finished and effective, and Mr. P. Wilson, as Amiens, and Mr. Frank Cochrane, as the First Lord, could both sing well and act. The Jacques of Mr. F. Lumsden Hare was a sound performance. Mr. Herbert Plinge, as Charles the wrestler, was a sturdy figure, and in the wrestling scene gave great reality to the struggle. The Orlando of Mr. E. Harcourt Williams received a full share of encouragement, and the applause it evoked was well deserved. Mr. Arthur Curtis, as Adam, was good and earnest; and Mr. Charles Bibby made an excellent Touchstone, full of quaint humour. The Corin of Mr. Stockall Ward needs a special word of commendation; and Mr. Frank Randell was a duly pathetic and simple Silvius, and successfully doubled the part with that of the usurping Duke. Miss Madge McIntosh, as Rosalind, enlisted the sympathies of all, and her acting was a consistent success from start to finish. She was well aided by Miss Jean Stirling Mackinlay, as Celia. Miss Cissie Saumarez sang tunefully in the first act, and enacted Audrey with much drollery and character. The many glees during the action of the play were sung under her direction. Miss May Holland, as Phœbe, gave due emphasis to her lines. The play was prettily mounted.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, June 24, the Drama
"WHEN A MAN HATES."

Mr. W. Graham Arthurs' company provides the current week's attraction at the Stratford Theatre Royal. Mr. W. Graham Arthurs in the part of Pietro Donelli is very thorough and hardworking; and Mr. Arthur Jarvis has made a careful study of the part of the youthful curate, Lawrence Hastings. Mr. Herbert M. King submits a grimly-drawn sketch of the half-witted Paul; Mr. Fred A. Lewis is an alert representative of Detective Smart; Mr. F. A. Lester is convincing as Sir Rupert Treharne; Mr. Ernest Turner is a very amusing Peter Pimple; Mr. Sam Edwards is well placed as Jim Rogers; Mr. Fred Rosson as the Corwen village policeman with an American accent does very well; Miss Mamie Stuart plays with excellent Judgment as Olga Gwynne; Letty is daintily impersonated by Miss Mabel Liston; and Miss Jennie Hallworth is a very bright and pleasing Dolly Dimple.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

On Thursday evening, June 20, a dramatic performance of Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream was given by the pupils of Mr. Cairns James, who may be warmly congratulated on the entire success of a somewhat daring experiment, for surely never before has Shakespeare's romantic play been performed only by young ladies; and the strangest feature was that the male parts were the strongest portion of the cast. The performance was given in the theatre of the institution before a very large audience, and the two scenes of Athens and a wood near it, painted by Mr. W. Hemsley, answered admirably. Miss M. Robinson made a dignified Theseus, Duke of Athens, and his betrothed, Hippolyta, was ably undertaken by Miss M. Cotter; while Miss S. Jay and Miss M. A. Banks in the parts of Lysander and Demetrius gave a most dashing and gallant rendering of the two lovers. Miss Winifred Hatton acted sympathetically the character of Helena, Miss C. Barcham was an equally successful Hermia, and Miss A. Upton acted well as the ancient Egeus. Bottom, the weaver, was played with no small amount of humour by Miss G. Moore, who may also be praised for his excellent management of the ass's head and her clear enunciation under somewhat trying circumstances; and Miss L. S. Crunden may be most warmly commended for her excellent performance of Quince, the carpenter, and fussy stage-manager, prompter, and scenic artist, of the little play the rest of the motley group are getting up. Snout, Flute, Starveling, and Snug, played by Miss S. Newton, Miss M. Weeks, Miss E. Alderton, and Miss E. Robertson, also greatly amused the audience by their comic business. Among the Immortals Miss V. Coomes made quite a manly Oberon, and Miss J. A. Stirling a dainty and charming Titania; the capital Puck of little Miss Ivy Popham also deserves special mention. The little parts of Peaseblossom, Cobweb, Moth, and Mustard-seed were neatly acted and the lines clearly spoken by Misses Beryl Cramer, Dolly Mills, Annie Gregory, and P. Finch. The first and second Singing Fairies, Miss Enid Cummings and Miss M. Anderson (pupils of Mme. Henson), were much applauded in the duet "I know a bank"; and the first Speaking Fairy was cleverly impersonated by Miss M. E. Farnell. Mendelssohn's incidental music was admirably played on the pianoforte by Miss Jessie Attwell and Mr. Mischa Levin; while the Misses Stella Cobb, E. Coppin, E. Levey, E. Cummings, V. Somerville, D. Dix, M. Hemsley, E. Leslie, and I. Hart did credit to their professors in the pretty dances composed and arranged by Mr. B. Soutten. The charming and handsome costumes were admirably carried out by Mr. W. Clarkson, and at the close of the performance all the artists were received with enthusiasm, and the appearance of Mr. Cairns James on the stage greeted with loud and long-continued applause.

In the great hall of the City of London School on Wednesday evening the students of the Guildhall School gave an orchestral concert, which attracted a large audience. The orchestra, which was conducted by Dr. Cummings, was first heard in an excellent performance of Schumann's "Julius Cæsar" Overture, a somewhat unattractive work of the great master. The principal novelty of the concert on Wednesday was a Pianoforte Concerto (MS.) in C Minor, composed and played by Miss Ethel Scarborough. The new work consisted of an Allegro, Lento, and a spirited Allegro Vivace. Miss Scarborough in her clever concerto does not lack ideas, as the last movement alone contains such abundant material that, with judicious treatment, it might serve for a completo concerto. It was evident, however, that the young lady has great ability in writing for the orchestra, which plays the most important part in the new work. Miss Scarborough, who played the solo instrument with marked ability, being ably supported by the orchestra, was at the close most heartily applauded and twice recalled to the platform. In the vocal portion of the programme, Miss Amy Julie Bean was fairly successful in recit. "I thank thy zeal, good friend," and air, "Slow, sail slow, thou tiny boat," from Clay's Lalla Rookh; and Signor Mario Vail gave a fervent and dramatic rendering of "Si puo? Signore!" Leoncavallo's Prologue to Pagliacci. The singer, who received abundant applause, must, however, guard against a tendency to force the voice. The concert concluded with an effective performance by the orchestra of the Allegro in Raff's Symphony No. 5 in E Major, Op. 177.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Had Mr. George R. Sims made a journey to the Theatre Royal, Hull, and witnessed the initial performance of his comedy he must have felt somewhat disappointed with his work. It is not his best, and although Mr. Clarence C. Corri has introduced much sprightly music, it does not cover the shortcomings of the book.

Relying upon jealousy and intrigue for his plot, Mr. Sims chooses for his chief character an Irishman, whom he makes the victim of unheard of matrimonial difficulties. His wife leaves him on the wedding day, and after he has been led to believe she is dead, he marries an actress, with the same result, his second wife leaving him on the wedding day. He follows her to Spain, and, having traced her to Seville, he accepts a post of hall-porter in the hotel she patronises. Naturally Mr. Sims makes the most of the humour created, and the situation at times is excrutiatingly funny. The runaway actress, however, does not carry with her the honour of being the heroine, for Miss Chiquita Joyce is made the central figure of a nice little love affair, which parental interference prevents having a happy culmination until a few seconds before the final curtain is rung down.

By giving the piece a Spanish setting Mr. Sims has introduced much brightness by the colour of the costumes, and he has given Mr. Corri an opportunity, of which he takes advantage, to enliven the scene with sparkling music, to which the dancing girls respond with charming grace of manner. The cast is a strong one throughout, and may be relied upon to bring the best out of the work. It may be that they will develop it into a more highly-diverting performance than that witnessed on Monday evening. Miss Dolly Varden is a native of Hull, and had a most cordial reception. She played the part of the heroine with gaiety and considerable success, and looked chic when disguised as a midshipman. Mr. W. H. Austin was cast as the lover, Don Julian Alvarez, and proved himself to be possessed of a finely-trained voice. Messrs. George Danvers, George Delaforce, Edgar Dereve, and others were responsible for the humour; and Mr. Jack Crichton was the gay young curate. The Three Magnets displayed great agility in their dancing, and Miss Gertrude Fawcett was a delightful Marie Montresser.

MISS KATE RORKE'S PUPILS.

Gratifying results were obtained at the matinée given by Miss Kate Rorke, at the Great Queen Street Theatre, on Tuesday, in order to present to the public several young actresses who have studied under her direction. Great expectations were raised by the announcement of a performance of the pupils of an actress who has done such good work on the London stage, and the hopes of the audience that filled the theatre on Tuesday were not in vain.

The presentation piece was Mr. W. S. Gilbert's mythological comedy, Pygmalion and Galatea, to which full justice was done. No evidence was supplied as to how many among the young ladies who appeared owed their attainments in the dramatic art to Miss Rorke, but considerable promise was in many cases revealed. The all-important rôle of Galatea was undertaken with delicacy and judgment by Miss Ethel McDowell. Her natural dramatic talent and vocal powers have been skilfully cultivated, and the sweetness and simplicity of her impersonation was preserved throughout. Another meritorious rendering was the Cynisca of Miss A. Walden, who imported real feeling into her assumption, and spoke with well-varied phrasing, her invocation to the goddess being very impressive. Pygmalion had a artistic exponent in Mr. George Cook, who appeared by permission of Mr. Martin Harvey, and acted in finished style. Mr. G. M. Napper would have been a more soldierly Leucippe had he borne himself with greater confidence, but unreserved praise can be given to Mr. Charles Rock, who presented a remarkably droll study of Chrysos, the art patron—funny in make-up, gesture, and delivery. Miss A. Castiglione was suitably imperious and malevolent as Chrysos' wife, and a pretty performance of Myrine was given by Miss Dorothy Giles. Mimos and Agesimos, slaves respectively of Pygmalion and Chrysos, were invested with masculine fierceness by Miss Irene Grahame and Miss Maud Amoury. Following Mr. Gilbert's comedy was a new play in one act by Mrs. George Cran, entitled

"THE SHELL OF A MAN."

Ruth ..... MISS ENID ROSE
Dora ..... MISS BETTY HARDRESS
Guy Willoughby ..... MR. LAWSON BUTT

The power of the Press is here shown in an extraordinary way. Guy Willoughby, a famous actor, is in love with a lady journalist named Ruth, who, however, rejects his suit on the ground that his profession makes him insincere and she objects to allying herself with the "shell of a man." The actor accordingly decides to give up his profession, and gets so far as to telephone to the theatre instructions to put on his understudy. Arrangements are being made for the departure of the pair for Paris to be married on the morrow when the lady's sister calls the actor's attention to a eulogistic notice in a newspaper in which Guy is alluded to as the hope of the contemporary stage. Guy gazes in rapture at the article—all thought of his betrothal being apparently banished—and Ruth reminding him that he will be late for the theatre, he says he is afraid he will, and takes a hurried departure. The little piece received the benefit of excellent interpretation. Miss Enid Rose, who gained such well-deserved encomiums for her recital of the stage directions at the recent Stage Society matinée at the Lyric, acted the part of Ruth with refinement and skill. Her articulation is well-nigh perfect, and the musical tones of her voice lent additional impressiveness to her lines. Miss Betty Hardress in the part of the Sister Dora was vivacious enough, but did not err on the side of distinctness. Mr. Lawson Butt presented the actor in realistic style, and delivered his lines in a way that made one wish they had been better worth the utterance. The piece, indeed, has few smart sayings, though it must be said the theme has a tinge of originality. The authoress was warmly applauded at the close, when Miss Rorke was also called and presented with a bouquet.

"THE HEART OF THE MACHINE."

Play, in Three Acts, by Antonia R. Williams, produced at the Royalty Theatre on Thursday afternoon, June 27.

Beatrice Sherringham .....MRS. RUSS WHYTAL
Jim Estcourt .....MR. HENRY AINLEY
Ricardo Sherringham ..MR. NORMAN MCKINNEL
Eve Bastable .....MISS SUZANNE SHELDON
Prior .....MR. KEANE

The chief fault of The Heart of the Machine is lack of lucidity. The authoress is too mysterious; she keeps the audience too much in the dark; and it is only when nearing the end of the second act that she allows us to divine the drift of her story. Then she is responsible for a fairly strong situation; and the audience becomes interested. This interest, however, fades away in the third act, in which there is no situation whatever, and the only feeling engendered on Thursday afternoon by the feeble ending was one of perplexity.

Beatrice Sherringham and her brother, Jim Estcourt, are united by a strong affection. There is the bond of sympathy arising from similar tastes, for both are musical; and Jim is a dilettante, who writes opera. Beatrice's husband, Ricardo Sherringham, a doctor of science, is devoted to the improvement of the telephone, and is on the verge of a great discovery. His complete absorption in study and experiment has led to his neglect of Beatrice, who speaks in ecstatic fashion of the happiness of the first few weeks of their married life. Among Beatrice's acquaintances is a Mrs. Eve Bastable, the widow of an officer in the Guards. She comes to make a confession that it is owing to her want of caution that Beatrice's eight-year-old son lost his life. The mother readily forgives, and the widow is invited to stay. She has been six weeks in the house at the opening of the second act, and is assisting the scientific Ricardo in his experiments. Jim Estcourt, who is her companion, declares his love for her, and the cold, calculating inventor becomes inspired with the tender passion in her presence. Years ago, when a girl, she had been his assistant, and she had learnt to love him, and he got rid of her in order to marry Beatrice. She passionately upbraids him for his callous heartlessness, and smashes the machine. Part of the conversation is overheard by Beatrice, to whom Mrs. Bastable explains the situation, declaring that not only does she not love her husband, but that her heart is given to another. That other is Jim, who confesses to his beloved sister that somebody is even dearer to him than she. There is a rather perfunctory reconciliation between husband and wife, and at the final curtain-fall the former is examining the damaged instrument that it has taken him so many years to perfect, while Beatrice toys with a bowl of roses.

Miss Suzanne Sheldon as Mrs. Bastable roused the languid interest of the audience in the second act by her powerful outburst—the one genuine dramatic moment of the play. Mrs. Russ Whytal played with charm, gentleness, pathos, and admirable discretion as Beatrice; Mr. Henry Ainley put some fire and enthusiasm into his lines; and Mr. Norman McKinnel, who produced the play, was a cold and reserved inventor. Several prominent members of the profession were among the audience, and Sir Charles Wyndham occupied a stall.

"THE LOVE OF A LIFE."

A Drama, in four acts, by Eugene Gotere, produced, for the first time on any stage, at the Rotunda Theatre, Liverpool, on Monday, June 24.

Colonel Edgeworth .....MR. J. W. EVELYN
Captain Ravenscroft ..MR. ARTHUR E. PRINGLE
Lieut. Alverley.....MR. LOUIS NORMAN
Sub-Lieut. Gormanston
MR. GEO. MARRIOTT, JUN.
Private Sam Fluster .....MR. WILLIE SCOTT
Private Steer.....MR. ERNEST REGENT
Smervin ..... MR. ARCHIE GEAR
Mrs. Alverley .....MISS GRACE GARSIDE
Margaret Edgeworth
MISS N. EVELYN-WATERWORTH
Rosine .....MISS NELLIE JACKSON
Lady Vere Martinique.....MISS KATE WALFRED
Merna.....MISS ADA M. RYDER

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The scene opens in the rooms of Lieut. Alverley, at Gibraltar, where we learn that, through his extravagant wife, his funds are at low-water mark. In addition she has, for the purpose of meeting her gambling debts, forged on a promissory note the name of her husband's honoured superior officer, Colonel Edgeworth. When the regiment is ordered to the front, the scoundrelly Captain Ravenscroft, by means of false statements and offers of money, induces his comrade's wife to abandon her home. Repentance and the discovery of the plotting against her happiness drives the wretched woman to become a nurse during the campaign, so as to be beside her husband and child. The march of events show both how grossly they were deceived, and, in the end, through the kindly offices of Colonel Edgeworth, Lieut. Alverley, who has won distinction, rejoins his now devoted and reformed wife. The telling of the story certainly needs a deal of condensation and revision, especially in the first act, where one has to exhibit much patience for an indication of the author's intentions. There is introduced a deal of good comedy which comes as a relief from the lengthy stretches of dialogue.

Miss Ada M. Ryder, who bore a heavy and trying part, is to be congratulated upon the admirable manner in which she expressed the varying moods of the beguiled wife, Merna. There were periods in the play when Miss Ryder's powers as an actress were severely tested, and with every satisfaction. The rascally conspirator, Ravenscroft, was as well presented by Mr. Arthur E. Pringle as could be desired; his persuasive style lent distinction to the character, added to which was a good delivery and appearance. One of the best figures in the combination was that of Colonel Edgeworth, played with every discretion by that experienced actor, Mr. J. W. Evelyn; and a military fop was humorously submitted by Mr. George Marriott, Jun. The heroic and much sinned against Alverley found an excellent exponent in Mr. Louis Norman, who, however, would improve his work by a little more restraint in both actions and speech; Mr. Willie Scott and Mr. Ernest Regent, as the officers' servants, caused continuous laughter whenever they appeared. The recital of their love affairs and the reading of amorous missives were particularly funny items. Miss Nellie Jackson, as the object of their attentions, proved a vivacious French maid; Miss Grace Garside afforded satisfaction in the small part of Mrs. Alverley; Miss N. Evelyn-Waterworth was successful as the Colonel's daughter; and Miss Kate Walfred did the most with the evil-minded Lady Martinique. Messrs. John B. Shinton and Alexander Greenwood's company presented the play, which was appropriately mounted.

A THEATRE is shortly to be erected in Vienna bearing the name of Johann Strauss. A nephew of the author of the "Blue Danube" waltz, who bears the same Christian name and is a son of Eduard Strauss, is carrying on the traditions of the family and has lately been conducting concerts with great success in Munich. The original Johann Strauss, surnamed "the father of the waltz," was born in 1804 and died in 1849.

"THE HOUSE OF SHAME."

A Drama, in Four Acts, by Ada G. Abott, Produced at the Theatre Royal, Cardiff, on Monday, June 24.

Everard Hilderson ..... MR. JOHN LESTER
Berkeley Hilderson .....MR. ERNEST R. ABBOTT
Kingsley Hilderson ..... MR. W. H. GARBOIS
Barry Hilderson ..... MR. FRANK STEPHENS
Morris ..... MR. EDWIN KEENE
Miss Penelope Hilderson..MISS LOUISE GILMORE
Mrs. Manx ..... MISS MARJORIE TENNANT
Eliza .....MISS MARY DOUGLAS
Barbara Linley ..... MISS ADA ABBOTT

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Ernest R. Abbott opened the closing week of his very successful summer season at the Theatre Royal, Cardiff, by producing a new drama, entitled The House of Shame, by Miss Ada Abbott, the talented actress. In this play Miss Abbott tells the story of an innocent girl who, by her purity and love, leads a drunkard to higher things, and turns a house of shame into a house of honour. At the head of the house of shame is Squire Everard Hilderson, owner of the mortgaged-up-to-the-hilt Thorpe Royal. He is a widower with three sons—Berkeley the eldest, a drunkard; Kingsley, a polished scamp; and Barry, a schoolboy. Barbara Linley, an orphan and the Squire's ward, is an innocent girl of sixteen. She, Napoleon, her dog, and Barry are chums. She has a fortune of £80,000. The Squire has brought her to Thorpe Royal to marry Kingsley, so that the £2,000 a year she is entitled to on her marriage will pay the interest on the overdue mortgage. Berkeley, however, insists on Barbara making her choice between Kingsley and himself, and to the surprise and annoyance of all she chooses Berkeley. He makes it patent that she will be his wife in name only until she is grown up, and the first act ends with the girl's innocent joy at being married, she having no idea of the meaning of the ceremony, and Berkeley staggering off to bed half drunk. In the second act they have been married a few weeks, and the Squire and Kingsley are trying to get Barbara's signature to the deed entitling her to her marriage portion. Berkeley refuses to allow her to do this, and in his absence they flog Barry to make Barbara sign, but she holds out, and Berkeley's timely return prevents any more brutality. The act closes with a charming scene between the drunkard and his child-wife. Her kiss rouses his better nature, and awakens the first chord of love for her in his heart. Act III. finds Kingsley making desperate love to Barbara to induce her to sign the deed. Barry, dressing up in one of her frocks and his aunt's wig, is mistaken by Kingsley for Barbara. Barry is horrified to learn of his brother's villainy and tells Berkeley, who, finding Barbara and Kingsley together, feigns drunkenness (he has given up the drink, through his growing love for his wife) and hears Kingsley making a final effort to ruin Barbara. At the close of a scene Berkeley tells her she is not his wife; he has only pretended to marry her to save her from Kingsley. Kingsley in a fit of fury says that Barbara will be known as Berkeley's mistress, and in the struggle that ensues slips, strikes his head, and dies suddenly. The Squire denounces Berkeley as his murderer, and says that Barbara's evidence will not be taken, as she is his wife. She ends the act by saying she is not his wife. Act IV. finds the Squire and his sister leaving Thorpe Royal for ever. Berkeley has really married Barbara to save her good name, but, never dreaming she cares for him, is departing to go out of her life. Barry persuades Berkeley to see Barbara to say good-bye, and she tells him she has found her woman's heart and loves him; and the piece ends with the re-union of Berkeley and his little wife.

Miss Ada Abbott as Barbara Linley submits an impersonation that could certainly not be improved upon. Her portrayal of the merry sixteen-year-old girl is a perfect piece of acting. The childish pranks of the "tom-boy" are as cleverly portrayed as are the more serious parts of the last two acts. Mr. Ernest R. Abbott as Berkeley Hilderson fills the character with credit, and brings out every point with a care denoting exceptional histrionic gifts. Mr. Frank Stephens as Barry has a difficult part to portray, but makes a success of it. Mr. W. H. Garbois is at once at home in the distasteful part of Kingsley, and received on Monday the compliment from the gallery of vigorous execration. Mr. John Lester does well as the Squire and is most dramatic in his final scene. Miss Marjorie Tenant as Mrs. Manx and Mr. Edwin Keene as Morris work extremely well together, and deserve much congratulation. Miss Mary Douglas as Eliza was another very amusing artist, her character acting being excruciatingly laughable. Miss Louise Gilmore appears as Miss Penelope. Miss Ada Abbott has added another triumph to her reputation of an accomplished actress and gifted authoress, and deserves the enthusiastic welcome that was accorded her drama on Monday night.

THE CHILDREN'S ADVOCATE.

Under the presidency of Viscount Portman, Mr. Arthur Bourchier delivered a delightful speech, characterised by humour and pathos, at the annual meeting of the Children's Happy Evenings Association, held on Thursday afternoon at the town address of the Marquis of Zetland :

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I suppose it may be taken for granted that we, who come together in the name of children and for the sake of children, acknowledge that we have an interest in them. If we have children of our own we are ready to tell a hundred stories of their cleverness, their quaint sayings, their pretty little ways. It is likely that we are not without our experience now and then of spoilt children. I do not mean of our own spoilt children, because nobody's own children ever were spoilt, but I mean the disagreeable children of our particular friends, who tell us unpleasant truths about our personal appearance, who decline to go to bed at a reasonable hour, and who are at last, to our great relief, carried off, protesting loudly. These are the spoilt children of our friends; but, ladies and gentlemen, there is a very different, a far more numerous, and a far more serious class of spoilt children—the spoilt children of the poor in this great City. The two grim nurses, Poverty and Sickness, who bring these children before us, preside over their births, rock their wretched cradles, and, alas! but too often nail down their little coffins and pile up the earth above their graves. I shall not ask you, on behalf of these children, to observe how good they are, how pretty they are, how promising they are—I shall only ask you to observe how weak they are, and to turn your thoughts to these spoilt children in the sacred names of pity and compassion.

[Photo by Sarony.

The Children's Happy Evenings Association, of which H.R.H. the Princess of Wales is president, acts as fairy godmother to thousands of poor children in London, and, like a good fairy, it has also extended its beneficent operations among the children of other cities. The objects of the Association, which are well known, cannot be too warmly commended. I quote a few lines from the last report :—"To brighten the early years of children whose parents, owing to stress of work, can provide them with little beyond the bare necessaries of life, to teach them to play and amuse themselves in a healthy and orderly manner, and to offer in the clean, well-lighted schoolrooms, furnished with simple toys and directed by kind and sympathising helpers, a counter-attraction to the streets and courts which are too often the only playground of the poor."

What infinite pathos there is in that last sentence for those of us who look back with delight upon the happy evenings of our childhood in old-world gardens, and upon the never-to-be-forgotten hours in the spacious playing-fields of our old school!

While acting in Glasgow last autumn I came across a group of boys playing football in the district known as the Cowcaddens, a spot whose name suggests green meadows, but whose nature is closely allied with flinty cobble-stones. Their ball—save the mark!—was an empty sardine-tin, and they were barefooted, as seems to be the custom of the children of that hardy race; but they were kicking it backwards and forwards with a skill and vigour which Lord Kinnaird himself would have envied. My own toes ached as I watched them, and I could not but contrast their playground with the one in which I learned "to chase the flying ball."

If, in this crowded London of ours, we cannot give to every child an open space to play in, we can at least endeavour to give him or her healthy, rational amusement in comfortable warm rooms in the long winter months, and the Children's Happy Evenings Association provides not only the rooms and the amusements, but also a small band of cheerful helpers, who give personal service to the good cause.

There are a great many reasons why personal service should be given to this good cause, and why personal service should be valued more highly than money—not that the treasurer will look askance at cheques! The way to keep young is to be with the young, to laugh with them, to share their joys, and to understand their little griefs with a sympathetic heart. A father or elder brother will acknowledge that, however tired and jaded he may be after his long day's work, a couple of hours with the young folk at home puts new life into him and makes him forget the cares of this toilsome workaday world. And most mothers will tell you that the happiest hours of their day are spent with their children.

There are a hundred ways in which "grown-ups" can give personal help to this Association. Go to any of the centres and they will show you how to begin.

You can take a part in their games—blind man's buff is a pleasant change from bridge on a winter's evening—or you can tell them stories, or you can get up charades, or you can teach the boys the noble art of self-defence; or—and here I appeal to the gentler sex—you can initiate the girls into the mysteries of a doll's wardrobe: of these, I, a mere male, am not competent to say anything beyond stating the fact that when my own little girl gets a doll she always asks, "Does it undress?" And I notice how neatly she folds its clothes, and wish that I were as careful of my own!

Again, our own children should be encouraged to take a practical interest in their poorer brethren, not only by sending toys to the Association, but, better still, by going to some of the happy evenings

There is no use our shutting our eyes to the fact that we live in a democratic age, and, if it be true that the child is the father of the man, it may be equally true that the child of to-day is the law-maker of to-morrow, and that law-maker will have the same recollection of his childhood—happy or the reverse—be he Old Etonian or product of our national schools. I believe that much may be done to smooth away the little asperities, shall I say? between class and class by encouraging the children of the classes to mix more freely with the children of the masses. In the country the children of the gentry frequently go to Sunday school with the children of the tenantry, and when the son of the house comes home for his holidays it is the son of the gamekeeper, or, perhaps, of the poacher, who shows him where birds' eggs are to be found, and the son of the house reciprocates by teaching him to play with a straight bat. I am sure that nothing but good can come of this association of the children of one class with the children of another. In the Army and Navy we know that men will do practically anything for the officer who has played games with them, and I believe that, if the children of the poor see with their own eyes that the children of the rich are interested in them, and wish to make their lot a little happier, a little less uncomfortable, much bitterness will be avoided in the years to come, and the word "toff," as a term of contempt, will become obsolete. After all, the accident of birth is but an accident. "There, but for the grace of God, go I, John Smith," said the Quaker, as he saw the cart bearing the criminals to Tyburn.

Take your children, then, to one of these happy evenings, and you will be doing the good cause a greater service than you can with mere monetary help. Perhaps this first glimpse of children less fortunate than themselves, children who don't go to parties, and whose theatre is the sordid drama of back courts varied by an occasional Punch and Judy show, will strengthen that latent sympathy for suffering humanity which all children, rich and poor, most certainly possess, and the child who plays with his poor neighbour now will be an energetic worker for the Association a few years hence.

In Robert Louis Stevenson's book, "A Child's Garden of Verse"—a book full of beautiful thoughts—which every lover of children should know by heart, his childish sympathy with suffering is most tenderly expressed :—

"Every night my prayer I say,
And get my dinner every day;
And every day that I've been good
I get an orange after food.

The child that is not clean and neat,
With lots of toys and things to eat,
He is a naughty child, I'm sure—
Or else his dear papa is poor."

The gracious lady who is the president of the Association has shown her practical interest in its work by visiting the children at their games, and her children send frequent contributions of toys. I believe that some youngsters are happy in the possession of a cuirass, sent by Prince Edward. They are more fortunate than a child I know of who was playing at soldiers and wished to represent a Lifeguardsman in all the glory of a shining helmet. Seizing a saucepan, he jammed it on his head so firmly that it would not come off—and his father's dinner was inside it!

The most delightful paper, the most charming essay which the tender imagination of Charles Lamb conceived, represents him as sitting by his fireside on a winter night, telling stories to his own dear children, and delighting in their society, until he suddenly comes to his old, solitary, bachelor self, and finds that they were but dream-children, who might have been but never were. "We are nothing," they say to him, "less than nothing, and dreams. We are only what might have been, and we must wait upon the tedious shore of Lethe, millions of ages, before we have existence and a name." "And immediately awaking," he says, "I found myself in my armchair."

The dream-children whom I would now raise, if I could, before every one of you, should be the dear child you love, the dearer child you may have lost, the child you certainly have been. Each of these dream-children should plead for his poor brothers and sisters—"O help them in my name, O help them for my sake!" and immediately awaking you should find yourselves in this beautiful room, happily arrived at the end of a rather long speech, and thoroughly resolved that the Children's Happy Evenings Association shall flourish.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

Ponchielli's opera, La Gioconda, was revived at Covent Garden on Thursday, June 20. At Milan, in 1876, the opera, when first produced, made a favourable impression, but it was not heard in London until 1883, when it was performed at Covent Garden. The author of the libretto is Boïto, and the dramatic story is to a certain extent founded on Victor Hugo's "Angelo." The action of the opera occurs during the seventeenth century, at Venice. A street singer, La Gioconda, who is the sole support of her blind mother, falls in love with Enzo Grimaldo, a nobleman, whom she thinks to be only an officer in the merchant service. Unfortunately this gentleman loves a certain Laura, once betrothed to him, Laura, however, has been compelled to marry the Chief of the Council of Ten, named Alvise. To further complicate matters, Gioconda is beloved by one Barnaba, principal spy of the Council of Ten, who, being unsuccessful in his suit, informs Alvise that his wife intends eloping with Enzo. This also coming to the ears of Gioconda, she, of course, determines to kill her rival in Enzo's love. Relenting, however, she gives Laura a narcotic instead of the poison intended by Alvise. After this she tells Barnaba that if he only liberates Enzo she will be his. The lovers escape in a boat in the last act, and when Barnaba comes for his reward Gioconda stabs herself, saying, "Take me, I am thine."

The opera is in four acts, and the first contains perhaps the finest music—a beautiful prelude, some lively choruses, and a fine trio; while Barnaba has a most striking soliloquy. In the second act the principal features are the tenor romance, "Cielo e mar," and the duet between Laura and Enzo. The third act, besides being the most dramatic, contains the famous "Dance of the Hours," a charming ballet, with the lovely dresses of the dancers in pink, yellow, blue, and black, representing dawn, daylight, evening, and night, blending most harmoniously with the delightful music. The finale of this act is intensely dramatic both in music and situations. In the last act there is some clever concerted music, a serenade of gondoliers, and a beautiful rosary theme. The plot of the opera clearly shows that a dramatic soprano is imperative, and Mlle. Destinn admirably sustained the character of Gioconda; while Mme. Kirkby Lunn's Laura was finely sung and acted. Mme. Edna Thornton also greatly advanced her position by her clever rendering of the blind mother's part. As Enzo Signor Bassi sang well, but was to a certain extent overweighted by the demands of the part, although he was most cordially received by the audience. That fine artist Signor Sammarco impersonated Barnaba with marked success; and M. Journet may be warmly praised for his performance of Alvise. The opera was gorgeously mounted with most brilliant scenic effects painted by Mr. Harry Brooke; while the chorus singing was excellent, and the orchestra, under the skilful conductorship of Signor Campanini, all that could be desired.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, June 27.—The hot weather is supposed to have set in; our theatrical managers are packing their trunks and starting for seaside or country; and the members of the theatrical world, now that the playhouses are nearly all closed, centring their attentions on the Conservatoire competitions, which have just begun. As usual, there is much rivalry among the professors, but the one who is keenest to see her pupils arrive first at the winning post, or, at all events, "placed," is Mme. Sarah Bernhardt. The great actress—be it said in her honour—takes her duties quite seriously. Every Tuesday and Thursday morning, at exactly five minutes to ten, the heavy doors of the building in the Faubourg Poissonière are thrown open to allow Mme. Bernhardt's carriage to enter. She is punctual to the minute. Her arrival generally creates a little sensation in the neighbourhood, for the smart Cook's guide has made it one of the sights of the capital; and his flock, Baedeker in hand, look with awe on the famous artist whom they have never had a chance of seeing or hearing. Those hailing from your side of the water admire in silence. The Americans are less tactful. They cheer the fair occupant of the carriage, and from what I witnessed there one morning, the lady rather seemed to enjoy the homage. Nobody can deny that Mme. Bernhardt has shown herself an excellent and painstaking professor. If she finds that the tuition in the class is not sufficient to some of the pupils, she orders them to come to her house, and gives them extra lessons. Her favourite pupil at the present moment, and whom she reckons will carry off a prize, is M. Leroy, a talented young gentleman on the eve of marrying a student in M. Berr's class.

WHEN Mlle. Delna married, her husband's relatives insisted on her promising to turn her back for ever on the stage. The great prima donna did not care to make such a promise, but the said relatives were inexorable, and in order to avoid unpleasantness the lady accepted the condition. Unforeseen circumstances, however, have arisen, and we will once more have the pleasure of applauding that splendid singer in La Vivandière, at the Gaîté, in October next. MM. Isola have engaged Mme. Delna for three months, at a salary of £6000. The figure is high, but as she will have to appear every night (Sundays as well) MM. Isola have not made such a bad bargain. It will be remembered that Mme. Delna made a sensational début in Les Troyens some fifteen years ago, and her retirement from the operatic stage was a great loss to the music-loving public.

MM. GUICHES AND GHEUSI have read their play, Chacun sa vie, to the artists of the Comédie-Française, who will interpret it. The rehearsals have begun, and the work will probably be produced in the beginning of September next. In the same month the Comédie-Française will bring out a new comedy by MM. de Flers and de Caillavet. As to M. Alfred Capus' play, it will see the footlights on November 23. No date has yet been fixed for the new works by M. Henri Lavedan and Octave Mirbeau.

THE Théâtre des Arts promises us for the coming week the première of L'Amour aux Castagnettes, an operette by MM. Moncousin and Rabbe, for which M. Marius Lambert has written the music.

MM. HERTZ AND COQUELIN intended to keep the Porte-Saint-Martin open during the month of July, but as the house has undergone some repairs they will close their doors on July 1. It is probable that they will reopen with Les Deux Gosses, which continues to draw well.

MLLE. BERANGERE, a clever young actress who made her début at the Grand-Guignol and the Théâtre Molière, has been engaged at the Ambigu. M. Grisier has given her one of the leading rôles in the new piece to be produced there.

M. ALBERT CARRE has also made several important engagements. One is that of Mme. Boyer de Lafory, whose beautiful voice we heard at the Colonne concerts. The other is Mlle. Nicia, whom we have had occasion to mention already in these columns.

AT the end of the year M. Pedro Gailhard ceases to be manager of the Opéra, and his place will be taken by MM. Messager and Broussan. But he has to repair the damage done to the building during his tenure of office, and these repairs are estimated at about £3000. It is possible that the house will be closed for a week or a fortnight for the convenience of the workmen, but our Fine Arts Minister has already issued an ukase that in that case the employees and artists will not suffer any loss of salary.

As was reported in all the papers M. Lépine, the Police Prefect, forbade the Prince de Broglie to appear in public at the Nouveau-Cirque, where he wanted to direct a concert. M. Lépine was compelled to prohibit the performance inasmuch as the friends of the de Broglie family had threatened to make a violent demonstration. I had a short chat with the Prince, and for the benefit of the readers of The Era, asked him to give me his views on this prohibition. What the Prince said was to the point. He knows England, and drew a parallel between the younger sons of the British aristocracy and their colleagues in France. "Many of the former," he said, "either join a profession or embark in business, an example followed even by many titled ladies. Healthy in body and in mind, work appeals to them, and in their entourage they are respected for earning their livelihood. With the narrow-minded, narrow-chested French younger sons, things are altogether different. Work not only frightens them, but they consider it degrading. They will borrow money from their friends; they will gamble and owe what they lose; they will sponge on their relatives; and even accept financial help from their mistresses! All this is not considered dishonourable. A nobleman is allowed to resort to these tricks. But woe to him if he works! He at once becomes a criminal who should be prevented from earning a living. And that is how, by threatening to create a disturbance in the hall, they induced that good Police Prefect to stop the performance. And who are these members of my family who took it upon themselves to interfere? The Prince here volunteered some statements and gave a few details, which, being unprintable, cannot be produced.

M. ANTOINE and M. Jusseaume, the well-known scene-painter, have had a conference with M. Pierre Loti to arrange for the scenery of Ramuntcho, the new work by M. Loti to be produced at the Odéon in the course of next season.

THE Théâtre Antique de la Nature announces for Sunday the première of Les Hommes de Proie, a play by M. Charles Méré, the scene of which is laid in the Sahara. The strong cast comprises MM. Albert Darmont, Henry Krauss, Jean Hervé, Mlle. Christiane Mancini, &c.

THE open-air theatres are proving a success. At Aulnay-sous-Bois, a delightfully-situated little spot near Paris, the Théâtre-aux-Champ has just been brilliantly inaugurated. M. Jules Renard's Bucoliques and Jules Princet's Messidor were produced, and, despite the uncertain weather, the place was full to overflowing.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—In your notice this week of In the Shadow of Night company at the Camden the part of Violet Kingston was credited to Miss Elsie Wallace. That lady was billed for the rôle, but it was played by yours faithfully, PHYLLIS BRENT, Kennington Theatre, S.E., June 23.

A NEW comedy-opera in three acts, entitled The Blossom of Brittany, by Sutton Vane, with music by Edward Jones, was produced for copyright purposes at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, on Tuesday.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. W. S. GILBERT, who is a participant in the Birthday Honours, was born in London in the November of 1836, and studied at Ealing and London University. He was called to the Bar in 1864, and subsequently held a captain's commission in the Aberdeenshire Highlanders (Militia). His literary career began with contributions to Fun, in which his popular "Bab Ballads" and his comic cantata, Trial by Jury, first appeared. Among the earliest of his numerous plays was Pygmalion and Galatea, written in 1871, while The Fairy's Dilemma, was produced by Mr. Arthur Bourchier at the Garrick as lately as 1904. It is, of course, on his association with the late Sir Arthur Sullivan in the Savoy operas that the fame of the new knight chiefly rests, and it is from the lovers of those renowned works that the bulk of congratulations will come. Mr. Gilbert is a Justice of the Peace for Middlesex, and resides at Grimsdyke, Harrow Weald. All must agree that the honour is thoroughly deserved.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE will terminate his season at His Majesty's Theatre on Friday next, when a lavish programme will be presented. The second act of Colonel Newcombe, The Vandyck, with Mr. Tree and Mr. Weedon Grossmith in their original parts, the third act of A Woman of No Importance, Act 2 of Antony and Cleopatra, and the second act of The Winter's Tale, in which the principal parts will be sustained by Miss Viola Tree, Mr. Basil Gill, and Mr. Lyn Harding, comprise an evening's entertainment that reflects the characteristic liberality of Mr. Tree.

THE stage was worthily represented at the King's Garden Party at Windsor Castle on Saturday, Sir Charles Wyndham and Sir Squire Bancroft stood for the knighthood of the theatre, and the brilliant gathering also included Lady Bancroft, Sir Francis and Lady Burnand, Mr. and Mrs. Beerbohm Tree and Miss Viola Tree, Miss Ellen Terry and her husband (Mr. James Carew), Miss Mary Moore, Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Maude, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Gilbert, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. and Mrs. Dion Boucicault, Mr. Lewis Waller, and Mr. George Grossmith. Music was represented by Sir Alexander Mackenzie, Mme. Melba, Mr. Charles Santley, Mr. Kennerley Rumford and Mme. Clara Butt, Signor and Mme. Tosti, Mlle. Janotha, Chevalier and Mrs. Ganz, M. Johannes Wolff, and Mr. Percy Pitt; while Mr. Neil Forsyth, with whom was Mrs. Neil Forsyth, was a deputy from the Royal Opera House.

THE invitations to their Majesties' Garden Party included the names of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kendal. Mrs. Kendal travelled from Filey, where she is at present staying, in order to attend the Royal function.

MR. A. W. PINERO has just returned to London from Wiesbaden. The health of the famous dramatist gave great anxiety in the spring, but he is now happily in his usual strength and spirits. He is engaged on a new drama for Mr. George Alexander, which is destined for production at the St. James's at the beginning of the New Year.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER will terminate his present season of John Glayde's Honour at the St. James's Theatre on Friday evening, July 12. On Sept. 9 Mr. Alexander and his company will begin a six weeks' tour of the provinces with His House in Order, visiting Blackpool, Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, Edinburgh, and Glasgow. When he reappears at the St. James's early in November Mr. Alexander will produce an adaptation by Cosmo Gordon Lennox from M. Henri Bernstein's successful work Le Voleur, the English title of which will be The Thief. During Mr. Alexander's absence the St. James's Theatre will be occupied by Mr. Edward Compton, whose season will begin on July 29 and terminate on Nov. 2.

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL recited at a café chantant given in aid of the Eye Hospital in Dr. Bland-Sutton's beautiful Persian Court, 47, Brook-street, W., on Tuesday afternoon. Another attractive feature of the entertainment was the performance by Miss May Palfrey (Mrs. Weedon Grossmith) and Mr. Frederick Kerr of Mr. Lawrence B. Eastwood's one-act play, Are You There? recently produced at the Duke of Westminster's, in the presence of the Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll.

A NUMBER of fine players figure in the list appended, from which the teams for the London v. Provincial Actors cricket match at Kennington Oval on Tuesday will be selected:—London: H. H. Ainley, C. Childerstone, G. M. Maurier, B. Egerton, R. Evett, V. O'Connor, H. E. Pearce, R. Selby, C. Aubrey Smith, Hope Stamper, A. Whitby, and H. Wilde. Provinces: Guy Benson, G. H. Clarke, Leslie Holland, Talbot Homewood, Percival Knight, P. F. Knox, Sam Livesey, A. W. Metcalfe, Horace Mills, H. Morgan, J. Rathbone, and J. P. Wilson. The game will begin at 11 o'clock, and the proceeds will be devoted to the Actors' Benevolent Fund and the Actors' Orphanage Fund.

ACTORS will also wield the willow in a philanthropic cause the following week, namely, Thursday, July 11, when the stage will again be opposed to the turf in a cricket match at Lord's, in aid of the theatrical charities. The teams will be twelve a side, the jockeys consisting of M. Cannon D. Maher, G. McCall, W. Griggs, K. Cannon, G. Williamson, W. Matthews, P. Chaloner, J. Woodman, E. Hunt, M. I'Anson, and G. Lyall. The actors' side will be captained by Mr. George Edwardes, and the rest of the team will be picked from among Messrs. J. A. E. Malone, George Graves, Robert Nainby, Oscar Asche, Blackman, V. O'Connor, Pearce, Kenney, Fred Kaye, Joe Coyne, W. H. Dawes, Robert Evett, Louis Bradfield, and Robert Hale.

A SMALL collection of silver belonging to Mr. E. S. Willard, who is giving up his residence at Banstead and coming to London to lead, as he says, "the simple life," was sold at Christie's recently. Four plain octagonal trencher saltcellars, made by Edward Woods in 1727, brought £38, or 78s. an ounce; a William III. porringer, 130s. an ounce; and a Charles II. porringer, 175s. an ounce; while a small shallow bowl, made in the same reign, embossed with foliage and a Tudor rose, dated 1665 and weighing about two ounces, realised £35. Mr. Willard's collection of etchings, which comprise many Rembrandts, Whistlers, and Camerons, will also be sold at Christie's during this month.

MR. FORBES-ROBERTSON has been for too long a period absent from the West-end, and the announcement that Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker have engaged the popular actor and his wife to appear at the Savoy in the autumn is accordingly very welcome. The play in which Mr. Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott are to make their appearance is Mr. Bernard Shaw's much-discussed Cæsar and Cleopatra, which was originally produced in America, and will be staged at the Savoy during the latter half of November. The opening performances of the new management at the Savoy Theatre will be given on Monday evening, Sept. 16, with a revival of You Never Can Tell, while the Vedrenne-Barker matinées will be as hitherto on Tuesday and Friday afternoons, commencing on Sept. 24.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD is considerably reducing his responsibilities this autumn, as he has, we understand, taken on another large business other than theatrical. He will practically be confining himself to musical companies, and is only running popular successes, viz.: The Belle of New York, Florodora, The Earl and the Girl, and The Belle of Mayfair. The rights, together with the scenery, properties, and fine plant of printing for the well-known drama, The Four Just Men, are available, and a rare chance for some enterprising manager thus presents itself.

PAGEANTRY in the provinces is keeping Willie Clarkson very busy. He supplied the Oxford production with 2000 costumes and wigs, the Bury pageant kept him well occupied, and when La Milo rides through Coventry à la Lady Godiva her flowing tresses will be supplied by Willie Clarkson.

PRINCESS HENRY OF BATTENBERG has signified her intention of being present at the theatrical garden party in aid of the Actors' Orphanage Fund, to be held in the grounds of the Royal Chelsea Hospital on Friday next. Numerous well-known actors will take part in the hat-trimming competition, which is under the direction of Miss Phyllis Broughton, and of which Mrs. George Alexander will be judge. A specially designed tent for chocolate bonbons will be presided over by the Misses Zena and Phyllis Dare, and at the strawberry and cream tent Mrs. Edward Compton and Miss Lilian Braithwaite will be assisted by many celebrated actresses. Mr. Fred Wright, jun., and Miss Connie Ediss will appear as Mr. and Mrs. Jarley in a representation of "Jarley's Living Waxworks"; but among the innumerable attractions perhaps the most impressive will be the production by Mr. Cyril Maude, at the "Theatre Royal," in the grounds, of the new and original play, specially written for performance on this occasion only, by Captain Robert Marshall and Mr. Alfred Sutro, entitled The Desperado Duke; or, the Culpable Countess.

MR. TREE has scarcely settled upon the production of Mr. Comyns Carr's version of Dickens' Mystery of Edwin Drood than he casts about for another important undertaking. His latest choice has fallen upon a dramatisation by Mr. William Locke of his own fascinating novel "The Beloved Vagabond." The love story of Paragot and Joanna furnishes the dramatic element of the piece in an effective prologue, but the play will have a different termination to that of the novel. Mr. Locke has done his work well, and the character of that genial and contented student and philosopher, Berzelius Nibbidard Paragot should provide Mr. Tree with a part in which his versatile talents will have full scope.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY, who is an old boy of King's College School, had a pretty compliment paid him on Tuesday night, when no less than 120 pupils booked seats to see The Only Way at the Adelphi. At the end of the performance a beautiful laurel wreath was handed across the footlights, and in reply to an enthusiastic ovation Mr. Harvey made a short speech of thanks, recounting by the way an amusing incident of his school days at the College. The business done by Mr. Harvey at the Adelphi this season has been phenomenal, and although he could have extended his lease with Mr. Stuart, the need for a holiday is manifest. On Sunday Mr. Harvey has to fulfil a promise made some time ago to assist at the Leeds National Lifeboat Fund, and will travel to the Yorkshire town early on Sunday morning, make his appeal on behalf of the Fund, and return to London the same evening.

MR. OSCAR ASCHE and Miss Lily Brayton will open their season at His Majesty's on Sept. 4 with Attila the Hun, a four-act tragedy in blank verse by Laurence Binyon, an Oxford man, whose poetic effusions have won great admiration. The action of the piece takes place in a Burgundian village, about the middle of the fifth century, and deals primarily with the intrigue between Attila, "the scourge of God," and Ildico, the woman for whom he breaks his marriage vows. The characters named are to be played respectively by Mr. Asche and Miss Brayton, while Miss Mary Rorke is to assume that of Attila's wife. The music is an important feature of the production, and will be composed by Sir Charles Villiers Stanford. As You Like It will be revived later in the season, with Miss Lily Brayton as Rosalind, and matinées of Othello and The Taming of the Shrew also figure in Mr. Asche's managerial scheme.

THE Jubilee Masters' Lodge of Freemasons, which is this year being presided over by Mr. Henry Neville, entertained a large number of ladies and other friends at the Hotel Cecil on the 21st inst. Mr. James Fernandez was among the company.

MR. J. C. WILLIAMSON, the veteran entrepreneur of Australia, arrives in London on Monday. His representative here is Mr. J. A. E. Malone, of Daly's Theatre, to whom all communications intended for Mr. Williamson should be addressed.

MR. CECIL A. COLLINS, who recently made a great success as Bill Sikes with Mr. Beerbohm Tree's company of Oliver Twist, has been engaged by Mr. Wentworth Croke to play Jason in his forthcoming tour of The Bondman.

MR. SIDNEY RENNEF will produce, at the Star Theatre, Liverpool, on Monday, a new domestic drama by T. G. Bailey, entitled Love Rules the World. Special attention has been paid to the staging, the whole of the scenery having been built for Mr. Rennef. After the production at Liverpool, Love Rules the World will be played for a week at the Victoria Theatre, Broughton, Manchester, and Mr. Rennef intends touring his new drama in the spring and autumn of 1908.

PLANS for the reconstruction of the Star Theatre, Swansea, the building of which is estimated to cost £15,000, were passed by the Works Committee on Tuesday. The plans, which have been prepared by Mr. A. Parry Fielder, provide for a theatre that is up to date in every way, and lighted throughout by electricity. The auditorium will be reconstructed on modern lines, and will be designed to accommodate 1706 persons.

A MATINÉE of Dr. Wake's Patient was given by the Twelfth Night players at the Marlborough Theatre on Tuesday, in aid of the carnival fund of the Great Northern Hospital, when the large audience included the Mayor of Islington. A fine portrayal of Dr. Forrester Wake was given by Mr. E. V. Young, who appeared by special permission of Mr. George Alexander. The other members of the company all merit praise for their interpretations of their respective rôles. During the intervals Miss Kate Rooney sang "Through love to light" and "My own land"; Señor José Gomez's two violin selections gave great delight. By a regrettable mishap the notice of the postponement of the Carnival from July to September was posted over the wrong bills, with the result that many people had the impression that it was the matinée that was postponed.

MR. ARTHUR LAW RAYNOR has been specially engaged by Mr. C. W. Somerset for his old part of Crafton Lyle for a short suburban tour of The Sorrows of Satan.

AT the Savoy Hotel, on Thursday afternoon, Miss Decima Moore, Mr. Frank Haskoll, and Miss Sybil Arundale gave a "matinée musicale." Miss Ruth Vincent charmed everyone, and her exquisite rendering of Edward German's waltz from Tom Jones and "Comin' through the Rye" was warmly applauded. Miss Sybil Arundale sang delightfully; and Miss Decima Moore rendered two songs very sweetly. Miss May Leslie Stuart contributed two items from Tom Jones with skill and taste; and Miss Decima Moore and Mr. Lionel Glenister appeared in a duologue by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Miss Kitty Cheatham's recitations created amusement, and Miss Billie Burke, Mr. Arthur Playfair, Mr. Arthur Bleackley, Mr. Frank Haskoll, Mr. Hayden Coffin, Mr. Gordon Cleather, and Mr. Maurice Farkoa all contributed to the entertainment acceptably.

MESSRS. LIONEL GLENISTER AND WOOD-INGRAM have been fortunate in securing Miss Kate Cutler to play the name-part in All-of-a-Sudden Peggy for their autumn tour. The fame enjoyed by Miss Cutler in London will speed her popularity in the provinces, throughout which the clever piece which now claims her services has already received the undoubted stamp of success.

A PAINFUL case came before the Lambeth Coroner's Court on Saturday, when an inquiry was made into the death of James William Chenery, aged twenty-eight, an actor. On the previous Wednesday a policeman found Chenery dead on the Albert Embankment outside St. Thomas's Hospital. In his pocket was a large bottle labelled "Poison," a blue paper packet labelled "Oxalic acid," and a letter addressed "To the Coroner." In the letter occurred the phrases: "I am very sorry to bring this trouble to anybody; there is no way out of a miserable existence but this. This is no place for a homeless, penniless, and hungry man. I cannot walk about any longer at night." Alice Emery Chenery, the widow, said her husband finished an engagement with Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton a fortnight ago, and since then had done nothing. He was given to drink. Samuel Philip Cooper, an actor, living in Camberwell New-road, said he and Chenery were on tour for about fifteen weeks with Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton. The tour finished on Wednesday, June 7. Chenery had given up drink, and was a teetotaler. The jury returned a verdict of felo-de-se.

AT Bow-street Police Court on Monday Anthony Walters, of Brixton, was charged on remand before Mr. Fenwick with theft. The prisoner was employed at the Opera House, Covent Garden, and was recently stopped by a detective as he was carrying away a quantity of canvas that had been stolen. Counsel said the Royal Opera Syndicate did not wish to press the charge. They would be very glad if the magistrate would deal with the case under the first Offenders Act, as the prisoner was a good workman, and had hitherto borne an excellent character. The prisoner was accordingly bound over to come up for judgment if called upon.

"A STREET SCENE FROM STEPNEY," will be enacted on Tuesday and Wednesday next, at the Cadogan Rooms, Basil-street, Sloane-street, with the object of providing funds to build a clubhouse and restaurant in the parish of Holy Trinity, Stepney. Assistance in the novel scheme is to be lent by many aristocratic ladies, and the entertainment will be contributed to by Miss Marion Terry, Miss Viola Tree, and Miss Nina Sevening. Old folk games, handed down from the sixteenth century, will also be danced and sung by children from Stepney.

THE Tonic Sol-fa Association celebrates to-day at the Crystal Palace the jubilee of children's concerts. In 1857 it was considered an act of great daring to conduct a juvenile choir of several thousand voices through an unaccompanied selection, but the Tonic Sol-fa system made this experiment highly successful. Besides the children's concert, which is to be conducted by Mr. Filmer Rook, there will be an adult concert, with orchestral accompaniment, conducted by Mr. L. C. Venables, and during the proceedings Miss A. M. Wakefield will present a challenge shield and silver cups, which will be competed for by some of the choirs. In the evening Mr. Curwen will give a lantern lecture on "The Story of Tonic Sol-fa," and there will be tests in reading music at sight.

MR. ROBERT ARTHUR'S stock company, including Mr. Rutland Barrington, Mr. Whitworth Mitton, Miss Madge Temple, Miss Blanche Fenton, and Mr. Richard Green, opens at the Kennington Theatre for one week on Monday in a triple bill, comprising The King's Hat, Faithful James, and La Mascotte. Mr. Marshall Moore is the producer.

MR. R. W. ALLUM has engaged a strong bill for the Brixton Theatre next week, during which Mr. Walter Maclean and company are paying, by special desire, a return visit in David Garrick. A new comedietta, entitled A Brace of Humbugs, written by John Cutler, K.C., will precede. The plot is a modernised version of an episode in one of the well-known stories in "Arabian Nights' Entertainments." Mr. Maclean has again secured the services of Mr. T. W. Ford for the Alderman in his production of David Garrick. Mr. Ford will be remembered as the Alderman with the late E. H. Sothern.

AN application was made on the 21st inst. to Mr. Justice Warrington by Mr. Arthur Houston, instructed by Mr. H. Percy Becher on behalf of Messrs. Courtneidge, Limited, for an injunction restraining Mr. F. R. Duberley from performing or permitting to be sung certain songs or musical compositions the performing rights of which are vested in Courtneidge, Limited. Mr. A. F. C. Luxmoore, on behalf of the defendant, consented to a perpetual injunction with costs against his client.

MISS ITALIA CONTI was the charming Rosalind of a pastoral production of As You Like It, which formed the chief attraction of a garden fête given at Battersea-rise House, Clapham Common, on Wednesday, in order to raise funds to help the day nurseries for the children of working mothers opened in Battersea by Sir Walter Vaughan Morgan. Shakespeare's comedy had an appropriate setting amid the sylvan surroundings of the extensive grounds, and the piece was admirably stage-managed by Mr. Montague Wigan, who played Adam. Other parts were taken by Messrs. Cremlin, Walter Kingham, William Luff, A. H. Allen, Edward Landor, Oxlee, James Gelderd, E. Brookfield, Currey, Robert Grey, and Misses Kate Turner, Betty Castle, E. Martheze, C. Greet, E. Pourtales, and Hamber.

WE learn with regret of an accident to Mrs. Michael Gunn, the popular manageress of the Gaiety, Dublin, who fell down some stairs at the theatre in the early part of this week and strained the tendons of her shoulder. It is feared she will be confined to her room for some time.

A NEW National Opera House for Flemish opera is to be opened at Antwerp in October, and at Rotterdam a German opera is shortly to be started, influential amateurs in that city having launched the scheme with a capital, it is said, of £100,000.

"THE SCARLET PIMPERNEL" reached its 600th performance on Wednesday, when the New Theatre was densely crowded. Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry were both received with a veritable storm of applause. Miss Neilson's performance as the beautiful Lady Blakeney was as charming and sympathetic as ever, while Mr. Fred Terry as the gay and debonair yet remarkably clever Sir Percy Blakeney, acted with his customary brilliancy. A scene of enthusiasm was witnessed at the close of a memorable evening, when the curtain had to be raised again and again.

ON the 26th inst., Herr B. Pareezer, the new lessee of the New Royal Theatre, King's Lynn, had the pleasure of welcoming an overflowing house at his first "benefit." The Mayor of the Borough and a number of county families were among the company. It speaks well for the popularity of Herr Pareezer that the house was crowded and enthusiastic. That excellent play, My Friend the Prince, was given under the able direction of Mr. Paul McAlister.

MISS BATEMAN has decided to substitute Mr. Kinsey Peile's comedietta The Stratagem for Evening Dress at her matinée at the Court on Tuesday. Though played with a good deal of success in the provinces, Mr. Peile's little piece has not yet been tried in London, and it will form a fitting contrast to the tragic poetry of Wills's Medea in Corinth, which is to form the staple fare of the matinée.

DURING the summer recess the directors of the Theatre Royal, Bath, have decided to restore the front portion of the building of the old house. The restoration is to be carried out upon the original design, so as to be kept in harmony with the rest of the building.

WE regret to record the death of Alderman Mitchell, the chairman of the Theatre Royal Co., Ltd., Bath, who passed away on Wednesday at the advanced age of eighty-five.

M. PADEREWSKI was the guest of the Royal Academy of Music on Thursday, when the famous pianist treated the students to a short but greatly-appreciated recital. The young people of Tenterden-street assembled in full force, and when the master appeared on the platform he received an ovation that must have been decidedly gratifying. Commencing with his "Variations in E flat minor," M. Paderewski followed with his latest composition, the new Sonata, which was played with his usual brilliancy. Returning to the platform, he played with exquisite feeling Chopin's "Nocturne in F sharp" and the "Study in F minor." The programme concluded with a fine performance of Liszt's "Rhapsody No. 13."

SIR ALEXANDER MACKENZIE, in a few graceful sentences, tendered M. Paderewski the grateful thanks of the governing bodies and of the students for his amiable and generous action in coming to the Academy freely to give them these splendid examples of his art, both as an executant and a creative master. Sir Alexander predicted that the event would long survive in the memory of those who had the good fortune to be present.

THE new musical comedy, Such a Nice Girl, by Frank Stanmore, will be produced on Monday at the Theatre Royal, Worthing, and will visit the County Theatre, Kingston, July 8. Amongst the principals will be found Miss Nell Richardson, Miss Maude Percival, Miss Nellie Clarence, and Messrs. Arthur Poole, Douglas Payne, Fred Penley, Frank Tennant, and Frank Stanmore.

MR. LYN HARDING has now been selected for the leading part in the autumn drama at Drury Lane. Mr. Harding has a character which should suit him admirably, and the engagement is sure to prove a popular one.

A BODY of enthusiasts in Leeds has formed an association, to be known as the Leeds Playgoers' Society, with the object of "endeavouring to ascertain the wants of playgoers and operagoers and of being the means of expressing their wants in a more convincing manner than is afforded by a few isolated letters in the newspapers." The aims of the society are to guarantee support to impresarios in the production of novelties.

THE Shakespeare Reading Society gave two pastoral performances in the gardens of Lowther Lodge, South Kensington, on Saturday, in aid of the League of Mercy, which were under the immediate patronage of Princess Louise Augusta of Schleswig-Holstein. The programme comprised a succession of episodes from Shakespeare's plays. The opening episode was "Queen Katherine's Appeal to King Henry VIII."; followed by the "Watch" scenes from Much Ado About Nothing. Then came a pageant representing the coronation procession of Anne Bullen, prefaced by the scene between Wolsey and Cromwell. Next in due order came a pavane and a Morris dance, a scene from Henry VI., in which, in the Temple Gardens, York and Lancaster come by their distinctive roses; the meeting of Edward V. and the Duke of Gloucester in Richard III.; and the presentation of Shakespeare to Queen Elizabeth and her Court.

WE deeply regret to record the death of Mr. Joseph Knight, the well-known dramatic critic, who passed away on Sunday evening at his residence in Camden-square, in his seventy-eighth year. Mr. Knight, who was born at Leeds, was educated at a private school in Yorkshire, and in 1860 came to London and entered at Lincoln's Inn, keeping terms with Sir F. C. Burnand and the late Mr. Montagu Williams. He contributed to innumerable periodicals, and in 1863 succeeded the late Mr. Clement Scott as dramatic critic of the Sunday Times. Mr. Knight's theatrical essays included, "A History of the Stage during the Victorian Era," a "Life of David Garrick" (1894), and the bulk of the biographies of actors contained in the "Dictionary of National Biography." His services to the stage were commemorated by the dinner given in his honour at the Hotel Cecil in 1905, when the chair was taken by the late Sir Henry Irving. The deceased writer, who was very greatly esteemed, leaves a widow and two daughters, one of whom is Mrs. Ian Robertson.

OUR advertisement columns contain an apology to Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, the Rev. Frank Heath, and Samuel French, Ltd., offered by Mr. F. H. Taylor, who admits that, under the title of The Gold King, he wrongfully performed their copyright play, The Silver King, or some substantial portion thereof. Mr. Taylor undertakes for the future not to perform, or cause to be performed, the said play or any portion thereof without proper consent, and not to use in connection with any plays announced or represented any title in such a way as to be calculated to deceive persons into the belief that the play so announced or represented is The Silver King.

MR. JERRARD GRANT ALLEN will produce at Ramsgate next week a one-act piece, entitled England: a Play Without a Plot, by Mr. Norman Roe; and will also present at the King's Theatre, Glasgow, on July 24 a new three-act comedy, by Mr. W. Strange Hall, called The Stormy Petrel. In this Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw takes the principal part.

FIRST-CLASS importance is attached to the matinée in aid of the funds of the Foreign Press Association in London, to be given at His Majesty's on Tuesday next. Mr. Beerbohm Tree, who is kindly lending the theatre, will make a contribution to the entertainment, and Miss Viola Tree will sing. Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh will appear in a duologue, as will also Mr. James Welch and Miss Audrey Ford, and the programme will also include Miss Constance Collier and Mr. Basil Gill in the Orchard scene from Julius Cæsar, Mrs. Langtry, Miss Billie Burke, Miss Marie Dainton, Miss Rosina Filippi, Mlle. Adeline Genée, Miss Kitty Gordon, Mme. Yvette Guilbert, Mr. Charles Hawtrey, Miss Annie Hughes, Mr. A. E. Matthews, Mlle. Jane May, Miss Olga Nethersole, Miss Marion Terry, Mr. Maurice Farkoa, and Mr. George Graves.

MR. M. RUSSELL ROSSE will, on Monday next, commence his third dramatic season at the Pavilion, Kingstown, when an extensive repertory will be given, including Mr. J. H. Darnley's Facing the Music. The cast will comprise Messrs. J. Edward Fraser, George Mudie, jun., Norman Clark, and David James; Mesdames Cissie Sephton, Edith Hesketh, L. Kingston, R. De Travis, and E. Nolan O'Connor.

MR. E. D. ELDRIDGE, who has been the Messrs. Shubert's chief representative in London for some time, departed for America yesterday morning, leaving Waterloo Station for Southampton by the 10 a.m. train. It is Mr. Eldridge's intention, we understand, to remain in America. A large number of theatrical and other notabilities assembled on the platform, and many little tokens of goodwill were seen to be given to Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge. Amongst those in the crowd were Mr. Marks, Mr. Oscar Hammerstein, Mr. Richard Warner, Mr. Frank Felton, and Mr. Maundy-Gregory, who remains at the Waldorf Theatre as manager and representative for the Messrs. Shubert.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD asks us to notify all managers intending to visit the Theatre Royal, Ryde, and the New Royal Theatre, King's Lynn, that in future all communications should be addressed to Mr. Charles Constant at Ryde, and Mr. Barnet Pareezer at King's Lynn, as he has disposed of his interests to these gentlemen.

THE Haymarket Theatre was generously lent on Thursday afternoon by Mr. Frederick Harrison, for a reception in aid of the Samaritan Free Hospital for Women. The "hostesses" were Miss Marie Tempest, Miss Mary Moore, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Mrs. Carr Cook, Miss Eva Moore, Miss Grace Lane, and Miss Marion Terry. Mr. Hayden Coffin sang "The Village Blacksmith" admirably; Mr. Lewis Waller gave a poem with deep expression; Mr. Fred Upton told some of his droll stories; and Mlle. Adeline Genée made an agreeable contribution to the performance. Mrs. George Alexander, Miss Maxine Elliott, and Miss Constance Collier were amongst those present.

IN the dress worn by Miss Elsie Ferguson in The Earl of Pawtucket at the Playhouse, the skirt is of myosotis-blue ninon de soie, with a bodice of the same, supplemented with a pinafore front and deep arm bands of velvet to match, piped with pavane silk. The pinafore is scooped out at the neck to give full importance to the new chemisier jabot of mousseline edged with lace, while the dainty elbow-sleeves of white mousseline de soie are sewn with perpendicular bouillonnées of lace edging. Two attractive little finishing touches are afforded by a smart butterfly bow of brown taffetas at the neck, and a deep curved waistbelt of the same tied in a bow behind, while the skirt is completed at the back with a flat double box-pleat. A charming hat accompanies this costume. It is of natural-coloured straw, trimmed on either side with immense chestnut-brown wings, which are spread out over the brim, a broad folded band of bright emerald-green velvet encircling the crown, and tied in a flat bow over the hair behind.

MISS ALEXANDRA CARLISLE makes her appearance in Act I. in the lovely gown in which she delights her audience in the second act. Mousseline de soie in a lovely shade of golden king-cup forms the basis, a perfect note of harmony being represented by the exact match afforded by the fine fancy silk braid with which both skirt and bodice are strapped. Each line of braid is finished with a braid motif and tassel to match, whilst the draped bodice is supplemented with short full sleeves of white mousseline de soie, thickly encrusted with applications of Cluny lace, the same forming a transparent yoke. A dyed Leghorn hat of the fashionable extravagant dimensions contributes to the general effect, this being trimmed with masses of huge pink roses and dark green foliage.

MISS ELSIE FERGUSON'S gown in Act II. is of filet adorned with immense chrysanthemums in coarse crochet, which are brought up the skirt from the hem in graceful lines, the kimono corsage being outlined with the same decoration and supplemented with an under-bodice of tucked chiffon, while the toilet is completed by a soft pink satin sash with long ends. Her cloche hat with high crown boasts a border of black straw, and is almost covered with masses of pure white Parma violets, one of the new skeleton black ostrich plumes with white spine rising from the forest of violets on one side.

MISS CARLISLE'S final appearance is made in a cloak of cream-coloured alpaca, which is cut in an essentially modern adaptation of the dolman style at the back, deep "surplice" sleeves springing almost from the centre seam, while in the front the "skirt" of the wrap is gathered fully into a band at the waist. Her gown of white mousseline de soie is trimmed with wide insertions of pure white Cluny lace and straight bands of narrow white satin ribbon, which are introduced in perpendicular lines from the shoulders to the hem, the same lace being responsible for the vest, while the kimono sleeves are finished with white silk tassels and rosettes, and her hat of fine peacock-green straw is adorned with a huge marabout feather.

MISS ELSIE FERGUSON, in the last act, wears a large black hat, trimmed across the front with a single black plume, and a semi-Empire gown of rose-pink ninon de soie. The short-waisted bodice is drawn over a full corselet skirt, and finished with a corded heading, whilst the somewhat elaborate sleeves of white mousseline de soie are laced together with rose-pink cord, and the deep-crossed collar, composed of wide bands of white lace hemmed with ninon, which adorns the corsage, is finished in front with a bunch of cord, with white pendant fuchsia tassels. Miss Alexandra Carlisle's dresses have been made by Paquin (Limited).

MESSRS. J. E. VEDRENNE AND GRANVILLE BARKER are to be entertained at a complimentary dinner at the Criterion Restaurant on July 7, in recognition of their three years' successful work at the Court Theatre. Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. J. M. Barrie, Mr. Alfred Sutro, and Mr. Bernard Shaw are members of the committee who have in hand the arrangements for the dinner, over which the Earl of Lytton will preside.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Mr. Gilbert and the Brigands.

MR. W. S. GILBERT'S knighthood makes a few anecdotes about the great Savoyard apropos. His earliest recollections, says Miss Edith A. Browne in "Stars of the Stage," date back to the time when he was two years old. "Bab," who was making the Grand Tour with his parents, and was then in Naples, had been sent out for a walk with his nurse. Presently she was accosted by two men who said that the English gentleman had sent them for the baby. In simple faith she handed her little charge over to them, and they went their way—Gilbert had been stolen by brigands! A small detachment of carabinieri, armed with £25, was quickly despatched to the mountains, and the little hero of this adventure was safely restored to his parents. Gilbert distinctly remembers riding in front of a man on an animal through what seemed to be a cutting with steep banks on either side; in later days, when he was again in Naples, he recognised in the Via Posilippo the scene which had impressed itself on his infant memory.

Interviewing Charles Kean.

AT the age of fifteen Mr. Gilbert's theatrical bias led him into a more ambitious venture. Enraptured with a performance of The Corsican Brothers at the Princess's Theatre, then under the management of Charles Kean, he packed up a few clothes in a handbag, and actually succeeded in interviewing Kean with a view to going on the stage. It was a very elated stripling who received the message that Kean would see him in his room, but once face to face with the great actor, all the boy's courage forsook him. "So you would like to go on the stage?" said Kean. "Yes," murmured Master Gilbert, trembling in every limb. "What's your name?" The boy's imagination failed him at a critical moment in his life. "Gilbert," he replied, seeking refuge in the truth. "Gilbert—Gilbert," reiterated Kean, "are you the son of my old friend William Gilbert?" "Y—yes," stammered the boy, and he was promptly sent home to his father.

Gilbert and the Frenchman.

IN 1864, at the age of twenty-eight, he was called to the Bar. This "call" was, practically speaking, the only return the profession ever made for £400 which he had carefully planned out—£100 for the privilege of being a student at the Inner Temple, £100 to enable him to be a pupil in the chambers of the late Judge Watkin Wilkins, who was then a barrister, the third £100 to pay his fee of admission to the Bar, and the remaining £100 to set himself up in chambers in Clement's Inn. For four years he practised; the number of his briefs averaged five per annum, the number of his fees was considerably under that average, and this in spite of the fact that the first opportunity of calling a judge "Your wushup" was afforded him by a Frenchman who manifested his warm appreciation of his young counsel's oratorical powers by throwing his arms round Gilbert's neck and kissing him in open court. But even this warm-hearted Frenchman forgot to pay the barrister his fee.

Keeping Out Late-Comers.

"IT is very difficult to know what to say," said Mr. Tree, in answer to an inquiry from the Daily Mail as to the policy of keeping late-comers till the next entr'acte after their arrival. "You cannot dictate conditions, and you cannot follow the system in force on some parts of the Continent of closing the doors while the curtain is up." "The fashion of arriving late at the theatre," said Mr. George Alexander, "keeps leading actors from appearing in one-act plays. Even on first nights, when the tension on the stage is very great, people stroll in when the curtain is up. They anger the pit, and cause inconvenience all round. To a new author trying to get a hearing with a one-act play, this disregard of him and others is unfair." "You cannot," said Mr. John Hare, "get a London audience seated in time for any play, however serious. It is owing to that fact that managers begin at the late hour that now obtains." "It is very much to be regretted," said Mr. Frederick Harrison, "that audiences are not punctual. The stalls are never filled until nine o'clock; and the one-act play which is found interesting by those who arrive early is often spoiled by people taking their seats during its performance. It discourages the actors, in addition to annoying people who have come in before the curtain was raised." "It is a pity, of course, that audiences will be late," says Mr. Cyril Maude, "but as they are coming to an entertainment we cannot very well dictate to them. With a one-act piece, such as The Drums of Oude, performed in a dark auditorium, the difficulties are very great and sometimes amusing for those who try to find their way to their seats."

More Opinions.

MR. J. E. VEDRENNE, joint manager with Mr. Granville Barker of the Court Theatre, said that the exclusion of playgoers who arrived late until the fall of the curtain was "altogether too arbitrary. I know," he said, "many actors and actresses who have been simply heart-broken by the noisy interruptions of late-comers, and many a first act has been spoiled by their thoughtlessness; but as regards the Court Theatre, I have nothing of which to complain. When I gave a series of concerts at the Queen's Hall, I tried the experiment of excluding late-comers until the end of the first movement, and found it very successful. But a concert is different from a play, and I should not care to apply the experiment to a theatre." Mr. Arthur Bourchier has never found the necessity for such drastic action. "When silence is necessary during the first act," he said, "I have always found that a simple request was sufficient to prevent any late arrivals entering until a more opportune moment." "With a play of serious interest," said Mr. Lewis Waller, "every interruption is bad; bad for the audience that wants to follow the piece right through, and bad for the players. If the play is a brisk, breezy, or light affair, it is not so hurtful. When a one-act play of serious interest is staged it would not be unfair, perhaps, to ask late-comers to wait until it ended."

Overworked Actors.

AT the American stock-company theatre, says Mr. William Archer in an article in the Tribune, the company is so small that most of its members are engaged in every play that is presented; they have to act, not four or five times, but twelve times in the week; and while they are acting every afternoon and evening, they have to be rehearsing every morning the next week's production. It seems almost incredible that flesh and blood can stand such an appalling strain. On going through the play-bills of 1901-1902, I find that the leading man of that season played, in thirty-five weeks, no fewer than twenty-eight heavy parts; while the leading lady in the same space of time went one better, and played twenty-nine parts. And all these parts, observe, had to be studied and rehearsed while the actor and actresses were giving two performances a day! One wonders that the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals does not interfere. At any rate, no artistic results of any value are to be expected from such merciless slave-driving; and as a matter of fact I cannot learn that the stock-company theatres have proved good nurseries of recruiting-grounds for the stage at large.

"THE EARL OF PAWTUCKET."

A Comedy, in Three Acts, by Augustus Thomas, Played for the First Time in London at the Playhouse, on Tuesday, June 25.

Earl of Cardington	MR. CYRIL MAUDE
Silas Hooper	MR. GEORGE SHELTON
Senator Barker	MR. W. H. POST
Judge Fordyce	MR. A. S. ASPLAND
Henry Seaford	MR. GEORGE COURTENEY
Arthur Weatherbee	MR. RICHARD STERLING
Duffield	MR. DAVID TODD
Wilkins	MR. JOHN HARWOOD
Crennan	MR. DORE DAVIDSON
Maître d'Hotel	MR. DANIEL MCCARTHY
Waiters	MR. A. G. ONSLOW, MR. CHARLES HAMPDEN
Omnibus	MR. W. BLAIR
Page Boy	MASTER DOYLE
Aunt Jane	MISS POLLIE EMERY
Ella Seaford	MISS ELSIE FERGUSON
Harriet Fordyce	MISS ALEXANDRA CARLISLE

Mr. Augustus Thomas's comedy has been a great success in the United States, where the high-toned Britisher was played by Mr. Laurence D'Orsay; but as the fun of the piece to American audiences must have lain in what they must have regarded as the absurdities in diction and behaviour of an English aristocrat of the "haw-haw" type, it was doubtful if the piece would appeal to Londoners with the same strength. Any misgivings on that score, however, were immediately dispelled by the enthusiastic reception given to The Earl of Pawtucket at the Playhouse on Tuesday evening. The hero is a certain Lord Cardington, who, in order to avoid being called as a witness in an unsavoury law case, goes to America and takes the name of a friend, Montgomery Putnam. He has, on various occasions, assisted, and has fallen deeply in love with, a young lady named Harriet Fordyce, the daughter of an American judge, and she reciprocates his feeling. Harriet has just been divorced from a worthless husband bearing the same name as that assumed by the Earl. This is the situation when the play begins, and the fun arises out of the complications which are created by the false identity assumed by the Earl, who pretends to hail from Pawtucket, and "crams" American slang from notes in his pocket-book. Harriet soon discovers that Cardington is using a false name, and is greatly amused by his endeavours to cope with the embarrassments in which his assumption of another's identity places him. Not only is the Earl called upon to pay a sum as alimony which is due from the real Montgomery Putnam; the latter's family appeal to the supposed "head" of it to give his consent to certain projected marriages. In spite of many plausible answers, evasions, and excuses, Cardington's imposture is exposed by Putnam's sister, Aunt Jane, who sends for a policeman to arrest the pretender. In the end the Earl is obliged to save himself from the suspicion of being his own murderer by confessing everything, and showing, in proof, a letter he has received from the real Montgomery. This clears up everything, and, it is hardly necessary to add, makes the marriage of Cardington and Harriet secure.

The representation of the Earl of Cardington by Mr. Cyril Maude was an exquisite example of delicate humour and refined comedy. From Mr. Maude's first entry it was evident that he had won the friendship of the audience completely. His make-up — middle-aged, with a sandy wig and greyish moustache—was most artistic; and the Earl of Cardington's manner—half shy, half audacious, with the easy assurance of the aristocratic always underlying the natural diffidence of the man—was a marvel of accurate study and close observation. Mr. Maude at certain points in the play introduced a peculiar laugh, full of subdued enjoyment and irresistibly ludicrous. Lord Cardington's courtship of Harriet Fordyce was full of tact and chivalry; and his amusing embarrassment in the false position in which he had placed himself, his droll doubtfulness as to what would be the best thing to say in the circumstances, and his coolness amidst the difficulties which surround him, made Mr. Maude's Earl of Cardington a piece of acting which was quite up to the high standard of his reputation. There are few actors on the London boards who could have combined so cleverly the polish and repose of the gentleman with the art and craft of the consummate comedian. It is a performance that every admirer of unforced, natural comedy acting should see and appreciate. While intensely amusing it was never exaggerated or overdone, and supplied convincing proof that Mr. Maude's talent is as fresh and vivid as ever. A more charming Harriet Fordyce than Miss Alexandra Carlisle could neither be imagined or desired. Delightfully pretty, and clad in the "cunningest" of costumes, Miss Carlisle added to her personal advantages a crisp, melodious enunciation which was a pleasure to listen to; and her bright and winning style, her delivery of her dialogue—full of animation and yet well restrained by gentle good-breeding—made up a very large sum of satisfaction. Miss Carlisle's acting in the courtship scenes was daintily discreet and charmingly smooth and subtle; and her performance altogether was a most agreeable and acceptable one. Mr. George Shelton's appearance as Silas Hooper—rotund of figure and slightly rubicund—was a capital bit of make-up, and his depiction of the blunt indignation of the puzzled brewer was very funny indeed. Mr. Shelton's well-known qualities of quaintness and drollery were valuably employed in this excellent impersonation. Another ripe and well-trained artist, Miss Pollie Emery, showed the advantage of expert thoroughness and wide experience in her capital comedy acting as Aunt Jane. Bold, free, and briskly emphasised, Miss Emery's depiction of the kindly, resolute, and "original" old maid was as natural and true as it was diverting and effective. Mr. W. H. Post quite came up to expectations of what an American senator should be; and even those unfamiliar with the type were able to recognise in Mr. Post's Senator Barker the characteristics of the accepted type. Mr. George Courteney gave a curiously individual interpretation of Henry Seaford; and Mr. Richard Sterling's Arthur Weatherbee had all the necessary youth and good nature, and was a very intelligent assumption. Mr. David Todd was highly commendable as Duffield; and the little sketch of the valet, Wilkins, given by Mr. John Harwood, was extremely neat and telling. Mr. Dore Davidson's Crennan possessed many merits; Mr. Daniel McCarthy's maître d'hotel had all the necessary suavity and grace; Mr. A. G. Onslow and Mr. Charles Hampden were excellent in every way as the two waiters; and Mr. W. Blair did useful work as Omnibus. Miss Elsie Ferguson as Ella Seaford was just the sweet, unsophisticated young maiden required, and played with a simple freedom which was worthy of warm praise. The comedy was preceded by that stirring episode in one act, The Drums of Oude, capitally played by a competent cast. Mr. Kenneth Douglas showed real power as Captain Hector McGregor; Mr. A. G. Onslow was manly and military as Lieut. Alan Hartley; and Mr. Daniel McCarthy gave a characteristic representation of Sergeant McDougal. Mr. Charles Hampden played Stewart with care and discrimination; and Mr. John Harwood and Mr. W. Blair were picturesque representatives of the two mysterious natives. As Mrs. Jack Clayton Miss Madge Titheradge proved her possession of emotional ability, and acted with plenty of passionate expression. The Earl of Pawtucket had a very favourable reception from a fashionable audience.

"IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE."

Play, in Three Acts, Dramatised by Channing Pollock from the Novel by Miriam Michelson, played, for the first time in London, at the Waldorf Theatre, on Monday, June 24.

Latimer	MR. FRANK COOPER
Tom Dorgan	MR. CHARLES CARTWRIGHT
Obermuller	MR. HENRY VIBART
Edward Ramsay	MR. CHARLES COLLETTE
The Bishop	MR. ARNOLD LUCY
Burnett	MR. HUMPHREY WARDEN
Forbes	MR. HARRY REYNOLDS
Detective	MR. HENRY WEMYS
Reggie Inglis	MR. FREDERICK TRENT
Policeman	MR. E. J. CARLEN
Mrs. Ramsay	MISS AGNES HEWITT
Nellie	MISS EDITH CARTWRIGHT
Mrs. Latimer	MISS ELSPETH DUDGEON
Mrs. Wallace	MISS JOAN DERRY
Miss Inglis	MISS VIOLET COOPER
Mag Monahan	MISS MARGARET FULLER
Nance	MISS FANNIE WARD

Mr. Channing Pollock deserves credit for his dramatisation of Miriam Michelson's novel, "In the Bishop's Carriage," which was first published in the American magazine called "Ainslie's," and was given to English readers by Messrs. Archibald Constable and Co. The story was a realistic autobiography of a New York thief, an exposition of her inmost feelings, told in terms of graphic vulgarity. In the end she marries the manager of a vaudeville theatre, a quite commonplace and unromantic personage. Mr. Pollock has replaced him by a sentimental and interesting barrister, and has constructed a play with sufficient melodramatic situation to sustain the story on the stage. As in the book, Nance, a clever young female thief, after stealing the watch of a bibulous gentleman named Ramsay, purloins a lady's coat and hat from a railway station waiting-room, and bolts into the carriage of an amiable bishop. She pretends to be insane, and her attractiveness and the pathos of her position win the prelate, who takes her to a garden party given by Mrs. Ramsay. There Latimer, a barrister whose hobby is reforming young criminals, meets her, recognises her as a former client, and forces her to give up the articles she has stolen, finally sending her off in a motor-car to repent. In the second act Nance calls at Latimer's chambers, ostensibly to help him in his scheme of getting her on the stage, but really to plan with Tom Dorgan, a ruffian under whose influence she is, a robbery of the premises. Dorgan conceals himself in a side room, and vows to "do for" Latimer if he should offer any resistance; but at the last moment Nance's affection for Latimer triumphs, and she touches a burglar-alarm which warns the barrister, who confronts Dorgan with a revolver, and gives him in charge, again sparing Nance. As is evident to every experienced playgoer, a union between Latimer and Nance is inevitable, and it is duly effected in the last act, in which we find Nance, now a successful actress, in a luxurious boudoir. She will not marry Latimer, as she is distressed on account of the fate of Tom, who escapes from durance vile, and tries to bully Nance into further alliance with him. She pleads for release, and implores him not to destroy her only chance of escape from a career of crime. The burglar, touched by her entreaties, relents; and Latimer completes the softening of the criminal's heart by shaking hands with him, Tom weeping, and going back to gaol repentant. The dialogue is so cleverly written that the incidents appear in the acting more probable than they may seem in cold print.

The piece had the advantage of a cleverly-selected cast, including some experienced and popular actors and actresses whom it was a pleasure to see again on the boards. Miss Fannie Ward as Nance astonished her best friends by the clever way in which she sustained the character. The reckless rowdyism of the girl thief's natural manner was assumed with remarkable skill; and, apart from this, the complex nature of the curious creature, her varying impulses, the real goodness which lies at the bottom of her character, her audacity, and her gift of imitation, were all admirably indicated by Miss Ward, who must be warmly congratulated on her improvement and her success. Her appearance and figure were very happily suited to the rôle, and her expression of pathos was genuine and natural. Added to this, there was a fascination about Miss Ward's Nance, an agreeable individuality, and a personal attractiveness which quite accounted for the barrister falling in love with her. Miss Ward has scored a marked triumph by her impersonation, which reveals in her the possession of remarkable talent. That fine actor Mr. Frank Cooper had an easy task, after previous achievements, in that of impersonating Latimer; but his embodiment was all the more effective from the facility with which he assumed the character. As the philanthropic barrister he was the acme of calm superiority, and his mellifluous diction, his unaffected dignity, his gentle repose, and the strength and firmness which were indicated as underlying his manners, made Mr. Cooper's impersonation in every way satisfying and convincing. After all that he has done, it is not necessary to state that the work entrusted to him in In the Bishop's Carriage does not demand the fullest exercise of his powers; but there is something very agreeable in the eased power which results from this condition of things. Mr. Charles Cartwright was in a similar condition as regards Tom Dorgan. A mere sketch was endowed with colour and reality by Mr. Cartwright's well-known incisiveness and reserved force. The deep and sullen malignity of the burglar, his savage love, and his vindictive brutality were suggested by the actor with the skill which comes of practice and the confidence which is the result of experience. Mr. Henry Vibart gave a pleasant, flowery freedom to his performance of the part of Obermuller; and Mr. Charles Collette as Edward Ramsay presented an imitation of slight intoxication which was kept just within the bounds of caricature. His exit in the second act was a marvel of neatness, humour, and finish, and showed how much may be made out of slight materials by an artist with Mr. Collette's mastery of detail and gift of quaint, original comedy. Mr. Arnold Lucy made the Bishop just the refined and well-bred ecclesiastic required, his appearance being excellent and his style unimpeachably correct. Miss Agnes Hewitt looked very handsome as the brisk and fashionable Mrs. Ramsay; and Miss Edith Cartwright, as the young lady who is doomed to be "cut out" by the pretty criminal, very cleverly managed to make Nellie Ramsay sufficiently unsympathetic without ceasing to be gentle and ladylike. Miss Elspeth Dudgeon's Mrs. Latimer was the essence of slightly querulous amiability; and Miss Joan Derry made a useful contribution to the cast as Mrs. Wallace. Miss Violet Cooper did good work as Miss Inglis, Miss Margaret Fuller was seen to advantage as Mag Monahan, and Mr. Humphrey Warden deserves praise for his performance of the part of Burnett. Mr. Harry Reynolds played Forbes creditably; and Mr. Henry Wemys was commendable as the detective, Mr. Frederick Trent being excellent as Reggie Inglis, and Mr. E. J. Carlen being suitably cast as the Policeman. Mr. Raphael supplied two artistic sets, Mrs. Ramsay's Garden being particularly pretty; and Mr. Harker's library interior was a sound bit of painting and arrangement. In the Bishop's Carriage had a cordial reception, and has many of the requisites for popularity and success.

The play is preceded by a musical mélange given by The Quips, a party of entertainers, who cause much amusement by their dancing, song-singing, and merry and diverting comic business.

THE BARRACLOUGH MATINEE.

The serious illness of Mr. Sydney Barraclough, the popular singer and hero of musical comedy, has unfortunately left him in a state of need, and to re-establish his health it is absolutely necessary that he should take a further rest. In order to provide him with funds and to assist him in "getting back," a matinée was given at the Adelphi Theatre (by the kind permission of Mr. Martin Harvey) on Tuesday. The business-management was in the hands of Mr. Frank B. O'Neill, and Mr. Thomas Harold Ferrar exerted himself to good purpose as the acting-manager and treasurer. The miscellaneous programme included several one-act pieces. The first of these was entitled The Idol and the Husband, an unimportant trifle, by Mrs. Albert S. Bradshaw. There is a compromising letter found which causes estrangement, and a peacemaker arranges a final reconciliation. Mr. Charles Angelo and the authoress distinguished themselves. At the close of a long afternoon was given a second representation of the Countess of Cromartie's play, in one act, with the original cast, entitled

"THE FINDING OF THE SWORD."

Osra Innis	MR. MATHESON LANG
Lord Colmore	MR. PLOWDEN
Professor Kéravel	CAPTAIN BLUNT
James Barrington	MR. MOORE BRABAZON
Muriel	MISS EDITH OLIVE

The mysticism and gloom of this uncanny piece puzzle rather than impress. We need not, however, discuss it further, as we noticed it at length on its production a few weeks since at the Playhouse. Miss Edith Olive again forcibly presented Muriel, whose soul is so mysteriously drawn to the reincarnated Irish chieftain, Osra Innis, effectively handled by Mr. Matheson Lang. Mr. Plowden, Captain Blunt, and Mr. Moore Brabazon did all that was necessary with the other characters. A pleasanter theme for the audience was found in the one-act comedy by E. M. Bryant, entitled The Peacemaker, originally produced in front of The Stronger Sex at the Apollo. In this Mr. Otto Stuart made one of his rare appearances as an actor as the genial Doctor Burton, a part that suited him to perfection. Miss Lilian Braithwaite was graciousness itself as Elizabeth Lavender; and Miss Ina Pelly and Mr. Athol Stewart did very well indeed as Mrs. and Mr. Harford, Parsons being amusingly delineated by Miss Ella Tarrant. The audience spent a delightful half-hour with Miss Lottie Venne and Mr. Wilfred Draycott, in Mr. Charles H. E. Brookfield's dialogue, in one-act, The New Régime.

To the miscellaneous items both variety and theatrical celebrities contributed. Miss Ruth Davenport recalled remembrances of her triumphs at the Alhambra when she sang a ballad; Mr. Fred Farren and Miss Elise Clerc triumphed in a pas de deux from Sir Roger de Coverley, the new ballet at the Empire, and incidentally Mr. Farren went in for topsy-turvydom in a dance that might be called a variant of the American jig. Both artists were greeted with enthusiasm, and Mr. Cuthbert Clark specially came along to conduct. The inimitable Cinquevalli met with an ovation in his human billiard-table tricks; and Little Tich was in great form with his "Park-keeper" song. Mr. Arthur Royd sang "Because" with much fervour; Miss Ethel Hirschbein's well-trained contralto voice was heard to advantage in Liddle's "Abide with me"; Miss Mabel Love recited cleverly an up-to-date and rather cynical little piece; and Miss Alice Liebmann (accompanied by Miss Bertha Liebmann) played very brilliantly Sarasate's "Zigeunerweisen." Just previously Mr. Lewis Waller had recited "The Ballad of the Clamphердown," and being insistently encored, started to give the famous speech from Henry V.: "Once more unto the breach, my friends." For once the popular actor-manager was afflicted with a lapse of memory, and after an endeavour at recollection, with his face hidden in his hands he walked off. On his return he started with his usual power and confidence, but on reaching the line "Your fathers, like——" he again came to a halt. "I'm very sorry," he said. There were general attempts at prompting, but at length a lady in the dress circle—probably an actress—gave the cue—"like so many Alexanders," and the rest was easy. Miss Billie Burke also suffered from a lapse of memory in her song. There was promise of much fun in the interesting announcement that Mr. Fred Wright would propose to Miss Kitty Gordon—the sort of thing he used to do as the detective in Nelly Neil; but the appointment was not kept; and Miss Gordon made up for the breach of agreement by singing her charming "Butterfly" song. Mr. Maurice Farkoa, recently returned from America, chose "Little hands," "Philosophy," and "I love you in velvet" as his contributions, which gave much pleasure; and he found a wonderful imitator in Miss Vera Le Fleming, the child wonder, who sang the last-mentioned number and danced very prettily. There was a good deal of force in Miss Alice Pierce's impressions of Miss Lena Ashwell and Mrs. Leslie Carter, and Miss Zélia de Lussan sang with exceptional freshness and vigour "The spring has come," by Maud Valerie White. The following ladies sold programmes:—Misses Phyllis Broughton, Olive Palmer, Elizabeth Wieland, Sybil Arundale, Jane May, Annie Esmond, Mabel Robbins, Cora Williams, Pauline Chase, Dorothy Craske, Millie Legarde, Ethel Hirschbien, Vera Trevelyan, Doreen O'Connor, Bertha Liebmann, Alice Liebmann, Rosamond Thompson, May Saker, Eva Kelly, Dorothy Scott, Gabrielle Wodnil, Isabel Hirschbien, Hylda Denison, Dorethea Mapleson, and Ruth Davenport. The volunteer musical-directors were Messrs. Edward Jones, George B. Byng, and Cuthbert Clarke; the hon. stage-managers, Messrs. Charles Wilson and Alfred Rivers; the assistant stage-manager, Mr. Robert M. Taylor; and the musical-director, Mr. Clemens Franckenstein.

THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—You would be conferring a favour on touring managers if you told us through your columns exactly how we stand in regard to this new liability Act, which comes into force July 1.

1st. Is the touring manager liable for any accident that may happen to a member of his or her company?

2nd. Is he liable for an accident that might happen to the carters who carts his scenery and baggage?

3rd. Is he liable for the stage men when getting his stuff out Saturday night (they are paid by the touring management)?

4th. Could the porter claim damages for any accidental injury received whilst loading or unloading the stuff at the station, working under the travelling management's, carpenter's, or baggage man's order?—Yours faithfully,

STUART CLEVELAND.

A Clever Impostor Co., June 26, 1907.

[The small booklet published at The Era office to-day, price sixpence, gives the Workmen's Compensation Act itself, with a commentary by Mr. Albert A. Strong, solicitor, the writer of the well-known work, "Dramatic and Musical Law." This little brochure tells how the Act affects theatres and Music Halls. It should be in the hands of every member of the profession.]

Mr. Martin Harvey has been appearing at the Adelphi Theatre this week in Mr. Freeman Wills's dramatisation of A Tale of Two Cities, which was produced at the Lyceum Theatre in the February of 1899, with Mr. Harvey as Sydney Carton, Miss de Silva as Mimi, Mr. Fred Everill as Doctor Manette, Mr. Holbrook Blinn as the two Defarges, Mr. J. G. Taylor as Mr. Lorry, and Mr. Ben Webster as the Comte de Fauchet. Dickens's novel had previously been adapted by Tom Taylor, in whose version Madame Celeste doubled the parts of Colette Dubois and Madame Defarge. Mr. Wills did not make the mistake committed by Tom Taylor of confining the action to one city. There is a prologue, in which, as in the book, Jean Defarge is mortally wounded by the libertine St. Evremonde, and Dr. Manette is sent to the Bastille to secure his silence. The mere hint given by Dickens's introduction of the "little sempstress" in the tumbril was taken advantage of by Mr. Wills, who elaborated from it the character of the hopelessly affectionate Mimi.

The cast at the Adelphi is an excellent one. Mr. Harvey's embodiment of Sydney Carton is so famously successful that we need only say that it has lost none of the qualities which have made it so, and that Mr. Harvey as the dissipated "ne'er-do-well" is as fascinating, as pathetic, and as expressive as ever. Mr. Leonard Craske gives a very able rendering of the rôle of Charles Darnay, his delivery of the defence in the tribunal scene being most effective. That versatile veteran, Mr. Fred Wright, sen., portrays Dr. Manette in a manner that shows the advantages of ripe experience. Mr. Paul Barry does good work as the Public Prosecutor, and is ably seconded by Mr. Charles Cameron as the President. Mr. Vincent Sternroyd's Comte de Fauchet is full of cleverness, polish, and refinement, and Mr. H. Lingley is sufficiently gruff and surly as Barsad. Miss N. de Silva's touching pathos as Mimi is once more appreciated and applauded, and the Lucie Manette of Miss Coleridge is an earnest and agreeable impersonation which does her great credit. Mr. A. E. Raynor and Mr. Leslie Palmer as the two St. Evremondes are excellent, the aristocratic tone in both cases being admirably given; and Mr. Albert Mansfield's Jean Defarge is full of passionate energy. Mr. Charles Glenney depicts with his usual ability the vindictive nature of Ernest Defarge, being especially emphatic in the tribunal scene, and Mr. P. Alexander is quaintly and dryly humorous as Mr. Lorry. Mr. Philip Hewland is appropriately bluff and bumptious as Mr. Stryver; and Miss Maud Milton contributes a very fine impersonation of the Vengeance, Mr. Denholm Muir and Mr. J. E. Fraser doing well as M. de Maury and the Marquis de Boulainvilliers. The scenery for the play is effective and elaborate; and everything has been done to make the revival entirely successful, the result being an enthusiastically favourable reception.

IT is a pity, writes a correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette, to note with what diffidence the man in the street and the man in the train essay mentioning Troilus and Cressida. When they do, they generally make a dissyllable of the gallant young Trojan prince's name. But, as Horace and Virgil show us, it should be treated as a word of three syllables:—

"Parte aliâ fugiens amissis Troilus armis."

Moreover, there is not the excuse here for the popular error that there is for the false quantity usually made by the many when they speak of Titus Andronicus or Posthumus in Cymbelline, that Shakespeare set them the example; for, although in the play Troilus may generally be scanned as if of two syllables only, on two occasions it is treated as if of three (if the first instance is to be treated as Alexandrine):—

"If ever she leave Troilus, time, force and death," cries the false Cressida; while later Ulysses says:—

"May worthy Troilus be half attached
With that which here his passion doth express?"

Clearly, therefore, it is as a trisyllable that Shakespeare would have the name pronounced.

"THE INEBRIATED CANINE," a one-act comedy-drama enacted by a company of trained dogs and monkeys, is one of the best things in the bill at Hammerstein's Paradise Roof Garden, New York. The curtain rises, showing a diminutive street scene. Dogs and monkeys are walking the pavement, driving carts and carriages, cleaning front steps, and depicting every phase of city life. Anon there staggers on to the stage a dog, apparently intoxicated, reeling and stumbling. He reaches the door of his house, the wife in the play appears at the window, sees her husband's condition, and refuses him admission. Deprived of shelter, the "drunk" sits upon the steps, where he is discovered by a passing policeman, played by a monkey, and is taken into custody. A "patrol waggon," drawn by two dogs and driven by a monkey, is summoned, and as the victim is being driven away through the crowd of animals gathered at the disturbance, the "wife," attracted to the window, sees what has happened, and rushes downstairs and attempts to rescue the inebriated canine. The act is performed entirely by American dogs and naturalised monkeys.

THE Prince and Princess of Wales were present at the performance of Clancarty at the Lyric on Monday, and on the same evening Prince and Princess Andrew of Greece witnessed The Girls of Gottenberg at the Gaiety Theatre.

THE Princess Royal and the Duke of Fife, accompanied by the Prince and Princess Andrew of Greece, were present at the performance of John Glayde's Honour at the St. James's Theatre on Tuesday evening.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring Gardens, under the presidency of Mr. Percy Harris (Chairman).

LIVING STATUARY.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee presented the following report :—

The question of the exhibitions of living statuary in music halls has engaged our earnest attention, a widely representative deputation having attended before us on June 5, 1907, and urged that the Council should put a stop to these exhibitions. The deputation consisted of the Lord Bishop of London, representing the Church of England; the Right Rev. Bishop Johnson, representing the Archbishop of Westminster; the Rabbi Morris Joseph, representing the Chief Rabbi; the Rev. C. Silvester Horne, representing the Free Church Council of London; and representatives of the National Vigilance Association, the London Council for the Promotion of Public Morality, and thirty-two other societies.

The Bishop of London, Bishop Johnson, Rabbi Morris Joseph, and the Rev. C. Silvester Horne expressed the views of the deputation. Briefly stated, these views were :—

(1) That the exhibitions of living statuary are exhibitions of apparently nude men and women, and that such exhibitions as a form of entertainment to a mixed audience are demoralising, both to the spectators and to the performers.

(2) That the efforts being made to raise a spirit of purity and self-control among the boys and girls belonging to the denominations represented by the deputation are seriously impeded by these exhibitions.

(3) That the effect of the photographs of the exhibitions is bad, and the exhibitions lead directly to the sale of the photographs.

(4) That the assertion that these exhibitions promote a knowledge of art is refuted by eminent sculptors, and that the proper places to study sculpture are the museums and art galleries.

(5) That it is the duty of the inhabitants of London to set an example, as what is allowed in London will be introduced elsewhere.

(6) That the deputation is convinced that the exhibitions have done harm and will do harm, and that it is their duty to get them stopped.

(7) That the exhibitions offend against the standard of public morality and against the general conscience.

(8) That the people who go to music halls ought to be protected against anything which may exert a depraving or corrupting influence.

(9) That the Council must interfere now or it will have no logical ground for interference, however much the tendency to have nude exhibitions may grow.

The speakers also stated that the deputation was not animated by any spirit of hostility to music halls, which they recognised supplied a legitimate want.

Mr. Adolf Seldom and Miss Olga Seldom, two of the artists appearing at the London Pavilion, and Mr. Astley, chairman of the London Pavilion, Limited, also appeared before us on June 5, 1907. Mr. Astley stated that the exhibition at the London Pavilion had been seen by a great number of people who had found no fault with it, and that pains had been taken to guard against anything to which objection could be taken. Mr. Seldom stated that all the pieces represented at the London Pavilion had, with one or two exceptions, been given in Berlin, and that he had autograph letters from some of the most eminent sculptors in Germany praising his work.

It may be well to state shortly the action that has been taken by the Committee with regard to exhibitions of living statuary in London. In May, 1906, a complaint was made to the Council with regard to the exhibitions given by La Milo at the London Pavilion and by Mlle. Lorraine at the Holborn Empire, and we sent inspectors, who attended as ordinary members of the public, to witness the performances and to report to us thereon. After considering the reports, we decided that the cases did not call for any action on our part. Further complaints with regard to La Milo's performances were received in June and July, 1906, and we again considered the matter and adhered to the decision previously arrived at.

In November, 1906, we considered a letter from the London Council for the Promotion of Public Morality, enclosing a newspaper cutting with reference to exhibitions of living statuary on the music-hall stage, and stating that it was desired to bring to the notice of the Council the very indecent pictures which were to be seen outside music halls, where the human form was displayed apparently in a state of nudity In reply, we stated that the living statuary exhibitions had been and still were the subject of careful consideration by the Council, but that so far it had not been necessary to take any action in the matter, and that, with reference to the remarks respecting the exhibition of indecent pictures outside music halls, the Council was not aware that any pictures were exhibited which could be so described; but that, if particulars were submitted of any pictures to which objection was taken, the matter would be carefully inquired into. No reply was received to our letter. In January, 1907, one of the Education sub-committees forwarded for our consideration a letter from the headmaster of one of the non-provided schools in Soho complaining of the harmful effect on the minds of the school children of the photographs exhibited outside music halls in connection with living statuary exhibitions. We caused a reply to be sent to the Education sub-committee in similar terms to that sent to the London Council for the Promotion of Public Morality.

In December, 1906, and January, 1907, we had before us several complaints with regard to the exhibition given by the Seldoms at the London Pavilion Music Hall and the pictures exhibited outside the hall, and, after considering a report on the subject, we caused the complainants to be informed that, after very careful consideration, we had decided not to take any action in the matter, but that we recognised that exhibitions of this character might easily become objectionable, and that it would, therefore, be necessary to keep them under observation.

In March, 1907, we received a complaint with regard to the performance of the "Three Golden Graces" at the Tivoli Music Hall, and, after considering a report on the subject, decided that it did not call for any action on our part.

The deputation which attended before us on June 5, 1907, while asking that exhibitions of living statuary should be stopped altogether, addressed their remarks particularly to the performance of the Seldoms at the London Pavilion, and to the pictures exhibited outside the hall. Some of the pictures in question to which the most serious objection was taken are not photographs of the actual representations given at the London Pavilion, but of well-known pieces of sculpture. Objection was also taken to the pictorial postcards sold in connection with the exhibitions.

Although we had on several occasions before the attendance of the deputation decided that it was not necessary or desirable to take any action with regard to exhibitions of living statuary in places of public entertainment, we have, in view of the important and widely representative character of the deputation, again given the matter the most careful consideration, with the result that we have caused the deputation to be informed that we do not see our way to condemn all exhibitions of living statuary, but that we shall continue to keep them under strict observation, and deal with each production upon its merits, and, if necessary, make representations to the managers of music halls with a view of removing or preventing any features to which objection might reasonably be taken. In this connection we think that the pictures exhibited outside the music halls should be limited to photographs of the representations actually given in the halls, and we have requested the management of the London Pavilion music hall to see that this is the case in future.

We recommend—

That the action of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee with regard to the exhibitions of living statuary in places of public entertainment be approved.

Amongst the members was distributed copies of a letter dated June 25, from the National Vigilance Association, addressed to the Chairman, stating that as the report of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee to be presented that day was, they understood, unfavourable to their application, they appealed to the Council for a further consideration of the matter. They submitted their protest in writing, as they thought it would be more convenient to the Council than to receive another deputation. The letter continued :—

"We are anxious to assure the Council that we are not opposed to music halls as such. They obviously supply a need in the life of the citizens of London, and, given a clean and healthy entertainment, might become one of the uplifting social forces. We would respectfully point out to the Council that the agitation against living statuary has not been 'got up' by any society, but is the outcome of a natural feeling of disgust roused in the minds of individual citizens. The agitation thus commenced has been carried on by the National Vigilance Association, the London Council for the Promotion of Public Morality, and other societies, and we must add that credit is also due to the Press for having called public attention in the interests of the healthy citizen life of the metropolis to this objectionable form of entertainment."

The Association submitted several points to the Council in support of their contention, appealing for "the exhibition to be prohibited as being inimical to the best interests of the community at large."

The Rev. J. Scott-Lidgett : I have on the agenda a notice of amendment to refer the report back for consideration, but I understand that Captain Swinton, on behalf of the General Purposes Committee, intends to move an amendment, and with the permission of the Council I will give way to him.

Captain Swinton then moved the following amendment in place of the Theatres Committee's recommendation : "That the proprietors of London music halls and other places of public entertainment be informed that in the opinion of the Council the continuance of exhibitions of living statuary is undesirable." He explained that this was a resolution which the General Purposes Committee had carried by a majority of 16 to 4; but as the chairman of that committee had declined to move it as an amendment he had decided to do so in his individual capacity. They had the whole of the religious bodies as represented by leaders of the Church of England, of Nonconformity, and of the Hebrew Church opposed to the continuance of these exhibitions, and he thought that the position held by these gentlemen was unassailable. However, members of the Council whose opinions he respected went to witness these exhibitions and saw no harm in them, and he was rather inclined to weaken on the matter. He could not but think, however, that the report of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee was not so strong as it might be, and he regretted that Mr. Greenwood, the chairman, had not seen his way to adopt a suggestion from the General Purposes Committee to take it back for further consideration. They all knew how difficult was the work of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee in dealing with what was complained of as being indecent, and how successful they had been in the past; they also knew how anxious the chairman and all the members were to guard against indecency in London entertainments. In the present instance, however, Mr. Greenwood simply said that his committee had made up their minds, and there was no good in taking the report back, but that the question should be fought out in the Council chamber. There was the fact that the leaders of the various churches had come forward to assert that these exhibitions were undesirable. This was the point they had to consider that afternoon, and they must make up their minds one way or the other. He wished to join issue with those who said these exhibitions were artistic. From the point of view of art he had perhaps more reason to speak authoritatively than any other member of the Council, because for three years he had drawn and painted from the nude, and he would be the last to decry any form of real art. But he could not admit that these performances were in any way artistic from the point of view of people who studied real art. In studying from the nude people studied from the ideal point of view, but who was going to be elevated by these exhibitions? The performers could not be, nor could the spectators, feel that they had witnessed anything that was really elevating. Then, too, how narrow was the margin of safety. Let them fancy what it meant if it got lower down the slope step by step. That was what they had to fear in the future. Was it worth the candle? He did not think that the people of London would lose one jot or one tittle if these exhibitions were done away with.

Sir John McDougall seconded the amendment. He said that some weeks ago he was asked by at least a dozen newspapers to express his views on the question before the Council, but he declined to do so because he had not seen any of the performances. But he was present when the deputation attended, and, following that deputation, they had before them the woman who took part in the exhibition, and also the chairman of the Pavilion company. They were told that it was useless asking the young person any questions because she did not know English, but the chairman of the Pavilion company described the performance, and that alone was sufficient to convince him that the exhibition was undesirable. It was explained that the woman was practically nude, except for a strip of cloth round her loins which was fastened on by a piece of gold-beater skin. The whole of her body was coated with a mixture of oxide of zinc and glycerine, which took an hour to put on and an hour to get off. The mere fact that one poor woman had to undergo such conditions sometimes twice during an evening and to appear before an audience under such conditions was enough to show how undesirable the whole thing was. The difficulty in the matter was if the recommendation of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee was carried it would be proclaimed throughout the land that the London County Council had approved the performances. He was aware that it was a very difficult thing to interfere with the amusements of the people; but the Council stood, in relation to the music halls, as the Lord Chamberlain did to the theatres, and he doubted if any theatrical manager in London would tolerate such a performance as this. The Council had therefore to stand between the people and their amusements, and some action was necessary to prevent such exhibitions going down and down and getting lower and lower. They had been told that the exhibition itself was not so bad as the photographs of it outside the Pavilion, which showed the means adopted to attract people. If the music-hall proprietors really desired to encourage a taste for art, let them get the Government to lend them the real statues and put them on the platform, and then see to what extent the young people of London would rush to the halls to look at them. The music-hall proprietors would, he was sure, smile at such a suggestion, for they knew that the real attraction was the nudity of the perfomance. He did not wish to say one word against the Theatres Committee, who had considered the question with great care. It was a matter of difference of opinion, but he hoped that the Council would adopt the amendment which he had the pleasure of seconding.

The Hon. H. Lygon said that some remarkable arguments had been used both by the mover and seconder of the amendment. Captain Swinton's main argument appeared to be that things would go from bad to worse, and that by adopting the recommendation of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee the Council would be establishing an evil precedent. He, however, thought that if Captain Swinton had done the committee the bare justice of reading their report he would never have brought forward such an argument, for they plainly stated "that we shall continue to keep them under strict observation and deal with each production on its merits, and, if necessary, make representations to the managers of music halls with a view of removing or preventing any features to which objection might reasonably be taken." The remedy was therefore in the Committee's own hands. Captain Swinton had also asked in all seriousness whether this performance was elevating. That was hardly a relevant question, because a music hall was not primarily for elevation, but for amusement; but it did not necessarily follow that because of that the performances were undesirable. He failed to see why the Council should interfere with one particular branch of performance on the ground that it did not elevate. He had the greatest respect for the leaders of religious thought, but what struck him in connection with the deputation was the fact that a prelate of the Church of England should have attacked a performance which he had flatly refused to witness. He thought it would have been more courteous to the Council and more like fair-play if the Bishop of London had taken the opportunity of seeing the performance before he condemned it. Sir John McDougall had quoted what he understood the chairman of the London Pavilion company to say when he was before the Committee as to the clothing worn by the representative of Venus, and Sir John's memory on that point did not agree with his own. His recollection was that the chairman of the Pavilion company said that Venus wore a pair of bathing drawers and over that some drapery, which certainly put a very different complexion on Venus. As to the suggestion that real marble statues should be placed on the stage, he might just as well suggest that Sir John McDougall should make his speches into a gramophone and thus address his remarks to the Council. If they were going to take exception to these performances he held that they should be consistent, and object to every ballet produced on the London stage, including, of course, the Royal Opera ballets. He was of opinion that in some of the music halls there were scenes presented that were infinitely worse than living statuary, and he contended that every performance should be treated strictly on its merits.

The Rev. J. Scott-Lidgett said it was not his desire to suggest that the objects and intentions of those who produced these exhibitions were in any way intentionally indecent, but they must bear in mind the real effect of these things on the minds of young people of both sexes at a most impressionable stage of their lives. He did submit, however, that the photographs, copies of which he held in his hand, were bordering on indecency, and apparently the music-hall proprietor admitted he would not show on his stage the subjects as depicted in the photographs. Young men coming to London for a holiday should not, by such exhibitions, be induced to yield to temptations of a grosser kind, and the standard as to the purity of the amusements of the people should be carefully maintained.

Mr. Reynolds said that in the place of making a long speech, as he had intended, he would content himself with asking a question. It was, if the Council decided to pronounce an opinion that these living statuary exhibitions were undesirable, would they not also condemn as being equally undesirable swimming matches in which ladies took part, mixed bathing, and gymnastic displays by ladies and gentlemen, as well as the wearing of V-shaped bodices by ladies at the operas and balls, and also such characters as Puck and other fairy-like creations in Shakespeare?

Sir Melvill Beachcroft described the report of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee as being of a whitey-brown colour, to repeat a phrase used by Mr. Labouchere on a certain occasion. He feared that the Council was not always consistent in its views on these matters. At the previous meeting they strained at the gnat of such an innocent book as "Mary Barton," but now they were asked to swallow the camel of living statuary. There was, he thought, a great deal in what Captain Swinton had said. If the promoters of these exhibitions were not prevented they might go the whole hog, and he hoped that the amendment would be adopted.

Mr. Hayes Fisher said he was prepared to support the Council's action in maintaining a high standard in public amusements, and there was no one more determined in that direction than the Chairman of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee. When he was shown the photographs to which attention had been made, he said at once "You ought to take prompt action." He had, however, since been to see the actual exhibition, and must admit that it had a very different effect upon him from what the photographs had. Indeed, he was of opinion that there was nothing in the exhibition itself to justify the Committee in taking exception to it as being below the standard which they could tolerate. In his opinion, there was nothing in the exhibition to feed vicious appetites, but there were many things at the music halls more demoralising than these shows, which were skilfully and artistically put on the stage. The Committee were prepared to watch most carefully any attempt to lower the tone of this class of entertainment.

Mr. Montgomery said that he had occupied a seat in different parts of the London Pavilion, and he had not heard a single ribald remark from any member of the audience while the exhibition was on. He believed that the show would have come to an end months ago but for the agitation got up by the very people who desired to stop such exhibitions.

Mr. Greenwood, the Chairman of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, then replied on the debate. He pointed out that the question had been an extremely difficult one to deal with, and the Council seemed to have lost sight of the fact that the consideration of the matter had been before the Committee for a long time. Not a moment was lost whenever any complaint was brought to their notice, and every single case was carefully dealt with on its merits. It had been suggested that the situation was changed when the deputation came before them; but he could not admit that, for the real fact was there were not half as many of these performances in London now as there were in the early part of the year, and had it not been for the publicity given by the deputation he believed that the whole thing would have passed away by this time. It was true the deputation was a representative one, but he had been struck by the fact that out of the sixty or seventy people composing it, all but either seven or nine admitted that they had never seen the performance which they condemned. And yet they were asked that the views of the deputation should be adopted in front of those of the Committee who had given months of attention to the subject. His own view was that there was nothing harmful in these exhibitions as long as they were kept entirely to classical subjects or the representation of well-known works of art, that those taking part should not move, and that the artists should be draped when they came before the curtain at the end of the performance. In every case these conditions had been observed. He considered that the living statuary was free from the many objections which might have been raised to the living pictures which were in vogue at the halls eight or ten years ago, when the subjects selected were frequently secular, and seldom classical. He might say he had seen almost every exhibition of this living statuary, and during his visits, which were not restricted to the better parts of the houses, he had never heard a single ribald suggestion. He had received dozens of letters, many of them from working men and women, who denied that they looked upon the exhibitions from the sensual standpoint, but from the artistically elevating point of view. In conclusion, he appealed to the Council to regard the subject on broad lines, and to take a broad view of the whole facts of the case.

The closure to the debate having been applied, the amendment was declared on a show of hands to be carried by 60 votes to 43.

A division was then taken with the following result : For the amendment, 66; against, 45; majority for, 21. Amongst those who voted against the ammendment were Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Jocelyn Brandon, and the Rev. Stewart Headlam.

BALHAM EMPIRE.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had considered a drawing submitted by the British Cinema Company, Limited, showing the proposed seating in the area at the Balham Empire, Balham High-road, and recommended that the company be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing submitted by them provided the under-mentioned conditions be complied with : That gangways 3ft. 6in. wide be made between the seating and the boxes on the prompt and o.p. sides; that the bentwood chairs for the pit seating be spaced at a minimum width of 18in., and that the rows of chairs be securely fixed to the floor near the exits; and that the regulations of the Council with regard to seating be complied with. Approved.

THE EMPIRE.

The Committee had considered a drawing submited by Mr. F. T. Verity, showing the proposed rearrangement of the stalls seating and exits at the Empire, Leicester-square. They recommended that Mr. Verity be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing submitted by him provided the under-mentioned conditions be complied with : That the exit on the o.p. side of the pit be rendered available and be clearly indicated; that the going of the steps on the pass stairs on the o.p. side of the stalls be improved as much as possible; that, if it is intended to remove the door at the head of the pass stairs, a self-closing gate to close with the stream of traffic be provided in its stead.

Agreed to.

PRINCESS'S THEATRE.

The Committee had considered drawings submitted by Mr. W. G. R. Sprague, showing how it is proposed to comply with the suggestions made by the Council for the structural improvement of the Princess's Theatre, Oxford-street. They recommended that Mr. Sprague be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the seven drawings submitted by him provided that certain stated conditions be complied with, and that the regulations of the Council with regard to heating, lighting, small fire appliances, &c., be complied with.

ROYAL ALBERT.

Many and varied are the attractions Mr. Arthur G. H. Hunt presents on his programme for the week, and the result is a foregone conclusion—i.e., unstinted pleasure all round. To begin at the end, as it were, the turn which is numbered "2" but is played last, deserves first notice. This is a "dramatic episode," entitled Vengeance, played by the Deane-Jennings Company, and very well played too. The short play—for it is neither more nor less—is made up of an interesting, if somewhat complicated, story, told in three scenes and written with considerable point. The plot revolves around the efforts of one Captain Barry Gridge to win the affections of Millicent Melthorpe, but as the Captain soon turns out to be a villain of the deepest dye, as most stage captains are, and is opposed by the fine brave Lieut. Roy McAllister, it needs no ghost to come from the grave to tell the most inexperienced playgoer that his villainy finally catches himself in his own toils, and that the fate he had destined for the good people is meted out to him, who is hoist with his own petard—with a vengeance. Admirably staged and well played, the little piece goes "with a bang"—literally a bang, as it winds up with a realistic explosion. Mr. F. S. Jennings simply revels in the wickedness of Captain Barry Gridge, playing very powerfully throughout; Mr. R. Courtney looks handsome and acts with great effect as the good young man who does not die; Mr. J. May is exceptionally excellent as comic deus ex machind, Sub-Lieut. Andy Twiddle, and his capital disguise as a female is most effective. Miss Cora Deane is pretty, pathetic, and withal powerful as the greatly tried Millicent; while Miss Beatrice May plays with great aplomb as the reckless sorceress, Leonora Acoli. The mechanical effects are worked by Mr. H. Frank T. Holland, and will be better after one or two further rehearsals.

Miss Evie Hamilton sings "That's what the daisy said" very prettily, and dances with much grace. Allsopp and Beckwith are very amusing in their scena with the catch-phrase "I'm coming upstairs." Lack and Ford are comely acrobats with a large store both of comicality and acrobatism; a most amusing comedienne is Miss Kitty Kirwan, who, capitally made-up as an elderly Irishwoman, sings and patters to the great amusement of the audience; Prof. B. Jackson is an amusing and original ventriloquist, who makes his puppets, a coster boy and a little Highlander, speak in the most mirth-provoking manner. The Sisters Florence are perfectly charming as international dancers and sing acceptably.

The second sketch of the programme is the amusing piece The Wrong Letter, in which that old and favoured friend of the variety public, Mr. Brien McCullough, repeats, as Lieut. Nelson Togo Greene, an impersonation that he has made his very own, and in which he has abundant opportunities for a drily humorous style. Mr. McCullough is well supported by Mr. Fred Moyes and Miss Nellie Neilson. Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope show some excellent pictures. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. J. Stark, discourses sweet music, and the stage-management is capably performed by Mr. A. G. Everitt. Mr. Alfred Levy is all things to all men—and ladies—as Mr. Hunt's assistant-manager and secretary.

Mr. R. G. Knowles has this week accepted from the joint pens of Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate a new and most novel song, which may tentatively be entitled, "The three D's." He has also commissioned the same gentleman to supply him with several other strong comedy numbers, and, needless to say, these indefatigable writers are now busily engaged on these commissions for the famous American raconteur and singer.

"LOOSE TILES"

Sketch, produced on Monday, June 24, at the Queen's, Poplar.

Marcus Pendleton .....Mr. Tom J. Taylor
Ivy .....Miss Tina Langlois
Mary ..... Miss W. Hilda
Miss Twitters..... Miss Cecily Kayne
Little John ..... Mr. H. A. Langlois

"Loose Tiles," as produced by Mr. H. A. Langlois on Monday night, proved to be a merry little trifle, and was received with every sign of success. Owing to impecunious circumstances, Dr. Marcus Pendleton, with a view to increase his income, has decided to look after lunatic patients, and is at that moment expecting an arrival. Unfortunately for the doctor's arrangements, his opposite neighbour is a theatrical manager bearing the same name as himself, from which coincidence many awkward mistakes are made. During the temporary absence of the doctor, Little John, who is about twelve feet in height, comes upon the scene, mistaking the house for that of the other Pendleton, and is exceedingly angry that he has not been fetched from the station in a pantechnicon. Ivy and Mary, alarmed at his size, endeavour in every way to humour him, imagining that he is the expected patient, and many amusing complications ensue, the matter being finally cleared up by the explanation given to the doctor and his household that Little John had been engaged to perform in a forthcoming play by the theatrical Pendleton. All the members of the company work with great spirit, and the sketch had evidently been well rehearsed. Mr. H. A. Langlois is seen to great advantage as the giant Little Johnnie, while the nervous Dr. Pendleton is portrayed with vigour by Mr. Tom J. Taylor, and Miss Tina Langlois is graceful as Ivy. Miss W. Hilda is well to the front as the housemaid Mary, and Miss Cecily Kayne enacts the elderly Miss Twitters with ease and finish. Among the many good turns provided here this week, special mention must be made of Mr. Sam Mayo, who provokes great mirth by his songs, "The policeman" and "The old tin can." Miss Daisy Mayer faultlessly renders "The story of an unlucky coon," and the Gilbert Trio are pleasing in "Passing by," while the excerpts from the works of Charles Dickens by Miss Eva Hope and Mr. Jack Wayho are particularly artistic. The popular general-manager, Mr. Jack Woolf, superintends with commendable vigilance, and the assistant acting-manager, Mr. Morris Abrahams, is ever watchful for the comfort of the patrons.

CONCERT AT CAMBERWELL.

A deserving cause was pleaded at the South London Institute of Music, Camberwell New-road, on Thursday evening, when a benefit concert was given to Miss Evelyn St. Maur, a well-known instrumentalist, who is suffering from a heart affection, and has been advised by four doctors to relinquish her profession. The entertainment on Thursday was designed to raise funds for the purpose of sending the lady away for a six months' rest, but the hall was by no means crowded. The small audience, however, was enthusiastic, and thoroughly enjoyed the various items of the entertainment, which was under the management of Mr. R. H. Patterson Wilson.

The concert was organised by Miss Nellie Clarence, who herself appeared in both comedy and dramatic sketches. The former consisted of the duologue Married and Settled, in the course of which Miss Clarence, who represented a nagging wife, was called upon to embody a gentleman in evening dress with comical effect, the tribulations of a tailor being humorously borne by Mr. Percy Thomas, who acted as stage-manager. Miss Clarence also sustained a trying part in a melodramatic episode entitled A Daughter of Destruction, and created a profound impression in the appeal of a mother to a Russian general to spare the life of her son. Excellent service was done by the popular comedian Mr. George Thorne, who was encored in an original rendering of "Tit-willow" from the lately banned Mikado, and gave in reply a droll account of a "nightmare," afterwards provoking great merriment in "The susceptible Chancellor," from Iolanthe, Mr. Thorne also figured on the programme as an author, an up-to-date skit called The Suffragettes being vivaciously rendered by Miss Ada Francis.

Pupils of Mme. Helen Townshend, who was one of the directors of the concert, did their teacher infinite credit. Great promise was given by Mr Lennox Coombe, who displayed a cultivated baritone in the ballad "Love, could I only tell thee." Miss Elsie Molloy showed no little comedy skill in the "Hullo, little stranger" song from The Beauty of Bath; and Miss Pat Bevan gave a refined and tasteful rendering of "All on a summer day." Among the numerous items of a diversified programme was a monologue entitled The Eleventh Hour, successfully delivered by Mr. Aleck Foster.

Tom Leo, on Monday at the Euston, was discovered singing his latest song in a bath on the stage! This new chorus number is by Maurice Scott, who wrote his "Too lazy to live," and is entitled "I mean to stop in the bath for years."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

(We do not answer questions by post.)

JOHN D'ARCY.—Write the manager of the Pioneers' Society, Mr. Herbert Swears, 1, Trafalgar-buildings, Northumberland-avenue, W.C. A newer society for the introduction to the public of original plays from the pens of unknown English authors is the Play-Actors. The hon. sec. is Miss Rose Matthews, whose address is 9, Trafalgar Studios, Manresa-road, Chelsea. You might also try the Incorporated Stage Society, secretary, A. E. Drinkwater, 9, Arundel-street, Strand, W.C.

LEONARD GATES.—Before sending your sacred song to a lady singer popular with the public, would it not be possible to induce a good vocalist to introduce it to a local audience? Established singers are generally well supplied with "royalty" songs by writers of reputation with the publishers, and do not care to risk singing a number from an unknown composer. The experiment may be worth trying nevertheless.

LYDIA (DENMARK HILL).—The Grip of Iron was adapted from Adolphe Belot's story, "Les Etrangleurs," by Arthur Shirley, and first saw the footlights at the Surrey Theatre on Oct. 17, 1887. Mr. George Conquest, sen., was then the Jagon, alias Simonnet, Mr. T. F. Nye the Lorenz de Ribas, Mr. Charles Cruikshanks, the popular secretary of the Actors' Association, the Dodot, Mr. George Conquest, jun., the Alphonse de Coucou, Mr. Clarence Hague the Paul Blanchard, Mr. E. Vincent the Loustalot, Mrs. Bennett the Sophie Blanchard, Miss Le Warren the Cora Simonnet, and Miss Cissy Farrell the Marie Guerin.

D. R. WILLIAMS.—The popular little lady was born February 12, 1870, and made her first appearance on the stage at the age of fifteen. Twelve married; one daughter, also married.

G. ASSER (Hastings).—Mr. Dan Leno (George Galvin) died, at the age of 43, on October 31, 1904.

IN MEMORIAM.

COOPER.—In loving memory of my dear husband, John Cooper, Garrison Field, Sunderland, died June 29, 1906.
Not dead, but gone before.

FLETCHER.—In loving memory of our dear mother and father, Lizzie and Edward Fletcher, late lessee and manager of the T. R., Cardiff, who passed away June 20, 1899, June 26, 1896.

LILO.—In loving memory of Toby Lilo, who passed away June 28, 1902. Never forgotten by his father, brothers, and sisters. R.I.P.

MISS MAISIE MERRY has been winning golden opinions, to say nothing of encores and bouquets, for her fresh and dainty impersonation of Collin in Zona Joy's production of School at the County Theatre, Bedford.

IF laughter, applause, and encores are any criterion of success, Miss Zona Joy must be more than pleased with the reception accorded to her musical sketch, School, both at Chester and Reading. It is rare, indeed, even in Music Halls to get five encores in fifteen minutes, but such was the case, and still they wanted more.

THE following sums, amounting to 16s., sent to the Harry Grell Fund, have been collected by Les Zelovas:—Les Zelovas, 1s.; Charlie Craston, 1s.; Mena Brae, 2s. 6d.; W. Downs, 2s. 6d.; A Friend, 2s. 6d.; Queenie Essex, 2s. 6d.; Maidie Scott, 1s.; Mr. and Mrs. Oakdene, 2s.; and Ethel Branston, 1s.—16s.

AT the Royal Theatre of Varieties, Oldham, on Monday next a fantastic farce, entitled Who's Afraid of Ghosts? written by C. H. Longden, will be played by a first-class company of artists under the direction of Messrs. Longden and Ernest Dottridge.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

MR. WILLIAM MORGAN, the manager of the Scarborough Aquarium, who died a month or two since, left estate valued at £29,854 gross and £19,978 net.

FRED KARNO'S new production, The Bailiff, is at the Hackney Empire this week. In it Mr. Fred Kitchen and Mr. Albert Bruno, both of Moses and Son fame, are appearing together.

OWING to the pronounced success made by Miss Kitty Gordon on Monday last at the Paragon, she was immediately secured to open at the Canterbury next Monday through Pacey's Agency.

X. BAZIN'S DEPILATORY POWDER is the result of much study of the cause and problem of destroying these growths without injury to the skin, or leaving a scar or the slightest disfigurement.

There is no necessity for any woman whose refinement and good breeding have made her sensitive about these unfortunate marks to be subjected to the pain of electrical treatment and the consequent eruptions.

X. Bazin's Depilatory Powder is absolutely safe, and destroys the hair without pain—a simple dainty way of effecting a cure.

The great skill and science employed in the compounding of

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

EXCLUDING THE UNPUNCTUAL.

Mr. MARTIN HARVEY has set an excellent example in insisting on the audience being in their seats at the raising of the curtain on A Tragedy of Truth at the Adelphi Theatre on Monday. The fact that conscience makes us all, if not cowardly, certainly mild and reasonable, was proved by the entire absence of resentment in those ladies and gentlemen who were excluded, and who waited patiently in the corridors while the new first piece was being performed. Unpunctuality in theatre-going has become of recent years a thorough nuisance, both to artists and audiences; and, as usual, the innocent have had to suffer for the guilty. Managers have realised the difficulty, and have done all in their power to overcome it. One method is by advertising the commencement of the performance slightly earlier than it really occurs, and making the overture occupy a considerable time. But the result often is that the lazy playgoer, relying on the "ten minutes' grace" which the orchestral selection provides, goes to a theatre where the curtain rises at the time stated in the advertisements and finds himself belated. To be too early at a theatre is almost as bad as being too late if the early-comer occupy a side or end seat. At each fresh arrival of fellow-playgoers to his row he has to rise and allow them to pass him; so that by the time the curtain rises he is somewhat disturbed and irritated. It is a question if the unpunctual playgoers themselves feel any discomfort or remorse for their fault. It is easily excused, we are sorry to say, in the stalls and dress-circle, where everyone feels that he or she may err in the same way to-morrow, and be equally in need of forgiveness. It must be admitted that, in a great many cases, the unpunctuality is the result of misfortune, not of wilful neglect. A button flying off at the last moment, an alteration in the time of a train, a detention in the prolonged "block," may cause arrival to be five or ten minutes after the rise of the curtain. When we consider what long distances many of the patrons of the stalls and dress-circle have to travel before reaching the theatrical centres, it is not surprising that some of them should be late at the theatre.

A great deal of this unpunctuality has, however, no such excuse. It is simply selfish carelessness, created by indifference to the feelings of others and an absolute disrespect for art. The result is that when a manager puts on a play the interest of which, as the programmes sometimes state, begins with the elevation of the curtain, he endeavours to shift the interruptions on to an unfortunate lever de rideau. The expression "playing the people in," which used to be applied to acting in first pieces, shows what their chief function was supposed to be. The discredit into which the lever de rideau feel is, no doubt, greatly due to the fact that it was regarded as a sacrifice to the disturbances caused by late-comers; and so, by a process of action and reaction, the "curtain-raiser" gradually descended to such a depth of inanity that it was, for a time, abandoned.

There are now, however, seven theatres in London which are presenting first pieces, in some of which the interest is tense, the sentiment delicate, and the artists engaged are of high artistic rank. When the lever de rideau consisted of a "screaming" farce, interruptions did not so much matter; the entertainment was proof against them. But in some of our modern first pieces the thread of feeling is so fine as to be easily broken. The illusion by which the audience is attached to the play is quickly removed and never restored. The finer the texture of the work the less it will bear being injured by disturbance; and it is a poor recompense to managers who are really trying to give the early-comers a charming prelude to the piece of the evening when their good intentions are spoilt by the sins of the unpunctual.

The pittites are great sufferers from this abuse; but most to be pitied of all are the unfortunate artists. When we remember how nervous an actor must be, how sensitive to the least impression, and how subject to discouragement and depression, one realises what annoyance and offence must be caused by the noise and bustle created by the advent of late-comers, especially to the stalls. There is a positive insult to the entertainment in the free-and-easy way in which some of these behave, in the manner in which they emphasise their impertinence. The artists cannot help feeling this acutely; and none of them can be expected to do his best while suffering from the vexation and irritation caused by impudent disregard of his feelings.

On the whole, we think the manners of London audiences have improved in the last few years. There is less talking in the course of a performance, and more respect for the management and the entertainment on the stage. What offence remains is chiefly caused by thoughtlessness. It is not brought home to people that they are doing an ill-bred and unkind thing in spoiling the work of those who are striving to amuse and interest them, and in interfering with the enjoyment of their fellows. An action like Mr. HARVEY's gives them "bold advertisement" of their error, and increases their respect for an art which will not endure to suffer from their carelessness and caprice. The matter, however, is beset with difficulty; and we can quite understand any reluctance a manager may feel to making an ordinance which might offend more of his patrons than would be pleased by its execution. The great obstacle is the indifference of the British public to artistic considerations; and these experiments can only be tried by entrepreneurs confident in their strength. The gratitude, however, of the whole profession, and of the cultured minority of playgoers, is deserved by these bold reformers.

CHARITY AT THE SURREY.

On Wednesday evening, by the courtesy of Mr. Frank Macnaghten and the directors of the Surrey, the whole of the proceeds of both houses, without any deductions, were devoted to the funds of Guys, Evelina, and the Ophthalmic Hospitals, and the St. Patrick Church of England Home for Working Lads. Charming ladies sold elegant programmes, smart buttonholes, chocolates, &c., and thus helped to augment the substantial sum that will accrue to the above charities. In addition to those in the regular bill, extra turns were given by Keith and Merson in their hunting absurdity, "The Meet," the Sivronis, Vickey Delmar, Edie Endon, Chris Richards, Walker and May, Florrie Forde, Harry Bancroft, Harry Weldon, Datas, Ernest Rees, Hillman and Russell, Cliff Ryland, Morny Cash, Gilbert Girard, Barney Armstrong, and Sammy Shields. Among the striking attractions of the current bill is Mr. George Sheldon's musical comedy, A King for a Day, admirably presented by Messrs. Sydney Dooley and Charles Seymour's company. The scene represnts the Kursaal Gardens, Badenbad. Here we find Signor Carrara, a famous sculptor, whose statue of "Psyche" is to be unveiled by H.H. the Prince of Polignac. At the last moment, however, the Prince wires that he is unable to fulfil his promise. In his dilemma the sculptor persuades Septimus Tupper, a Londoner on his holidays, to assume the rôle of the king. Tupper agrees if Carrara will aid him in his suit for the hand of Elsie, the niece of Eliza Remnant, whose determination to marry Tupper herself causes that worthy man much perturbation. His Highness the Prince arrives incog., and seeing Tupper being honoured by the townspeople, hides behind the statue. When Tupper unveils it all concerned are thrown into consternation by the Prince's sudden appearance, but His Highness forgives them all for their subterfuge, and promises to give the charming Elsie away at Tupper's wedding. As Septimus Tupper Mr. Sydney Dooley makes an amusing tripper; the Signor Carrara of Mr. Will Letters is excellent; as the Prince Mr. Fred Brampton gives a clever character study; Mr. Robert Barbour as the waiter is quaint; Miss Edith Barwell is languishing as the amorous Eliza Remnant; and Miss Molly Woolstenhulme as Elsie is heard to great advantage in her song "Rat-tat-tat." The chorus showed much ability both in singing and dancing. A King for a Day deserves to be seen by many audiences.

Charles Raymond's living study in sculpture is artistically represented by Clito, who in ever-varying colours presents living prototypes of works of art, such as "Salambo," "Truth," "Nymph at the Fountain," &c. Mack Olive, a gifted sifflеur, appears in the brilliantly-lighted candy-store scene from The Belle of New York. His best efforts are "Killarney" and "The soldiers of the Queen," with a drum accompaniment by his fair partner. Campkin, the tramp cyclist, gives a novel performance and an exciting finish in his race with the Whitworth Cycling Girls; Sable Fern has two good songs in "Read between the lines" and "The echo of an old, old tale," to which she gives point and expression; Tod Lowan, comedian, keeps his audience roaring with laughter; Lottie D'Abbey, in her representation of the late Mme. Olgar, singing "The song that reached my heart," fairly brings down the house; Les Louberts, in their acrobatic comedy scena, Uninvited, give an astonishing series of somersaults and flip-flaps; Tatten Hall, in his songs "Tired" and "Hang the eye-glass," wins favour; T. W. Barrett is as quaint as ever in his comical ditty, "I'll never go there again"; Queenie Dell raises a furore of applause for her sand and buck dances; George Bendon sings with much gusto coon songs, and Raymond's pictures of "In the Days of their Youth" are full of fun and variety.

MR. HERBERT GODFREY'S benefit at the Crystal Palace on Wednesday will be contributed to by a large number of well-known artists. Up to the present the performers include Miss Kitty Cheatham, Mr. Charles Coborn, Mr. Charles Copland, Miss Lucy France, Mr. Barclay Gammon, Mr. A. H. Gee, Miss Margaret Godfrey, Miss Kitty Gordon, Miss Eva Hart, Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock, Mr. Arthur Helmore, Mr. Fred Holloway, Mr. Nelson Jackson, Mr. Frank Lawton, Leipold, Mr. and Mrs. Noakes, Mr. Philip Simmons, Mr. G. H. Sr.azelle, Mr. Alexander Tucker, Miss Gladys Wright, and Miss Maria Yellard; while the Crystal Palace Military Band and the Boys' Band of the Lambeth Schools will also assist.

ONE of the greatest successes ever known in America has been achieved by Miss Alice Lloyd with John P. Harrington and the late George le Brunn's coster song, "Never introduce your bloke to your lady friend" (Miss Rosie Lloyd's popular song), which is said to have broken all song-selling records in America. Mr. Harrington is to be congratulated on this "winner," coming as it does immediately on top of Miss Vesta Victoria's sterling success, "I've told his missis all about him," from the same pen, with characteristic music by Mr. Jas. W. Tate.

MR. GEORGE EDNEY, V.A.F. (No. 3352), is lying in Edinburgh Infirmary, Ward No. 28, suffering from rheumatic fever, and is in want of assistance. The general secretary of the Federation will receive and acknowledge urgently needed donations.

THE SUNDERLAND EMPIRE.

Mr. Richard Thornton's new Empire, Sunderland, which will be opened on Monday, is the thirty-ninth house booked in conjunction with the great Moss, Stoll, Thornton, and Allen combine. Miss Vesta Tilley and a strong company have been engaged for the first performances. The massive proportions of the new building at once strike the eye. At the corner of Garden-place, on the old Bishopwearmouth Rectory site, a huge circular tower, embellished with stone cornices, balustrading, and stone lunettes, rises to the height of some eighty feet. The tower is surmounted by a well-proportioned copper dome, above it being a cupola with Corinthian columns and cornices, the whole being crowned by a large ball of copper emblazoned with the word "Empire."

The entrance doors and porches are of mahogany, and lead directly into the circular tower, which is lined with marble, and thence to the grand staircase, which is constructed of terrazzo, with wrought iron balustrading.

The staircase leads to a spacious circle saloon and circle waiting hall, all decorated in fibrous plaster, and with barrel-vaulted fibrous plaster ceilings with moulded ribs, supported by pilasters with mounded caps and bases. A special staircase is arranged for the circle and stalls, so that people waiting in the hall for the second house will not clash with those coming from the first house.

The pit is approached from Garden-place and has a large and spacious waiting hall, with sitting accommodation. The pit is well elevated and has a good view of the stage. The second tier of the house is the balcony, which has spacious entrances and exits, the entrances being approached through waiting-halls. The gallery also has large and safe entrances and exits, and, of course, forms the third tier of the house.

Great care has been taken to make the shape of the circle and balconies on the most modern lines, a great point being made of the width of the theatre, and every seat is arranged looking directly on to the centre of the stage. The private boxes are placed behind the circle. There are no stage boxes, the space being devoted to special dress-circle seats. Every seat in the building, with the exception of the gallery, is upholstered, the stalls and circle having tip-up seats and the pit and the balcony having a separate seat with fixed arms for each person, so as to avoid crushing. The total actual seating accommodation on this arrangement is 2,700.

The whole of the theatre is fireproof, the staircases being constructed of concrete and the tier floors all being constructed in iron on the canter-lever principle, with expanded metal and cement floors. The auditorium roof also is of concrete and iron construction, the centre portion being raised so as to form a handsome dome. The interior of the auditorium is decorated in fibrous plaster ornament to box fronts and balcony fronts; the walls are panelled in various designs and the panels fitted with red silk. The proscenium opening is of special width, and the front is decorated in fibrous plaster columns, pilasters, carved caps, entablature figure subjects with alabaster linings, columns, and central overhead feature. Above the proscenium arch is a series of figure-panels in paintings. The prevailing tints are cream and gold. The auditorium is separated from the stage by a fireproof screen.

The electric lighting system is of the most modern type, the whole of the stage equipment being carried out with electric lamps, arc lamps, and limelights. There is a biograph box at the back of the circle from which the biograph and limelights will be worked. Electric lights will be constantly burning over all exit doors with the word "Exit" in large black letters.

The auditorium is heated by hot water, and will be ventilated by fresh-air inlets and by a central exhaust sunlight ventilator of special construction. Gas has been introduced into the house as an auxiliary and for the heating of the dressing-rooms.

The dressing-room block is placed at the back of the stage, entirely shut off by a massive wall, and communicating only by fireproof doors. This block is also fireproof, with roomy staircase.

With such a renowned artist as Miss Vesta Tilley to top the bill, Miss Lilian Lea to bottom it, and a splendid all-round company in addition, the latest venture of the ever-growing Moss and Stoll enterprises will be assured of a magnificent send-off. Miss Lea has gained an enviable position on the now famous tour as a result of the many charming scenas she has presented from time to time, and is already a highly popular Sunderland favourite by reason of the brilliant successes she has made in the town as Principal Boy in pantomime. She will open the proceedings by singing the National Anthem, a ceremony Miss Lea has performed several times for this celebrated firm at different places, and her rich and powerful voice should thrill the vast audience which will assuredly fill the huge building.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

MISS BERTHA DUCKETT, the well-known and popular dancer, has forwarded us the sum of 9s. for The Era Shilling Fund for the Music-hall Home:—Bertha Duckett, 2s.; F. Duckett, 1s.; T. H. BENEFIT AT THE CANTERBURY.

The call upon the supporters of Mrs. Bennett and Mr. Edwin Cranston was heartily responded to at the Canterbury on Wednesday evening, when the two popular artists named had a farewell benefit prior to their departure for Australia. Mrs. Bennett is held in particular favour by south-side audiences, who well remember her excellent work at the Surrey Theatre, subsequent to which she was engaged for important parts at His Majesty's. Mrs. Bennett has also travelled extensively with music hall sketches, appearing frequently with Mr. Cranston, a long-popular sketch artist, who is most favourably known for his work in the playlet, Terry; or, True to His Trust.

Mrs. Bennett received an ovation on Wednesday, when she appeared to give a recitation in eulogy of "British Pluck," and later in the evening joined Mr. Cranston in a comedy duologue, entitled A Model Wife. In answer to the applause, Mr. Cranston came forward and said: "Ladies and Gentlemen,—It is etiquette, I know, to allow ladies to have preference, but Mrs. Bennett will pardon me if I come first, as ladies have a liking for the last word. I thank you very much for your generous support. We leave on Friday to fulfill an engagement with Mr. Harry Rickards in Australia, where we hope to be successful and to find audiences as kind and good as you are here. I believe we are the first dramatic sketch artists to go out there, and hope we shall do credit to the Mother Country. Words fail me to express my gratitude to Mr. Wells and the directors who gave me the benefit; to Mr. Fred Miller, to Mr. Cowis, to the conductor of the band, to all the staff, and to Mr. Tom Pacey, who was kind enough to get us our engagement. I hope when we return to find you all here and in good health."

Mrs. Bennett, who was also called upon for a speech, said:—"It is generally the women who do the talking, but on this occasion it is the man. I endorse all Mr. Cranston, my manager, has said, and heartily thank Mr. Miller, Mr. Cowis, the artists, band, and everyone. This is the first benefit I have ever had, and I like it so much that I wish I could have one every day. If I only have as good friends in Australia as you have been to us here I shall consider myself very fortunate. Good-bye, dear old friends, good-bye." Before the applause had subsided, "He's a jolly good fellow" was started by Miss Kate Carney in the stalls, and taken up by the house enthusiastically.

Functions such as these at the Canterbury are never without their specially arranged episodes, and on this occasion a diversion was created by Mr. Jack Wayho, who came on the stage to declare that there was a disagreement between Mr. Jack Collinson and himself as to their place on the programme. Mr. Collinson, decorated with a "thick ear," immediately followed, and the dispute waxed furious until, despite Mr. Fred Miller's interference, a fight with the "raw 'uns" took place. Mr. Wayho was in his best bully of the Fighting Parson form, and got in some realistic hits, but Mr. Collinson had not practised in The Club Raid for nothing, and succeeded in flooring his opponent with an upper-cut, after which the combatants cordially shook hands.

The special programme numbered some of the foremost artists. Mr. Arthur Roberts and company secured constant laughter in the sketch, The Woman Who Was; Chirgwin gained his usual demonstrations of goodwill; and Miss Millie Lindon fascinated all with a couple of tuneful songs. The Martialo Trio did wonders in the conjuring line; Dion Wade imitated George Robey to perfection; Walter Purvis and Co. appeared in a coster sketch; and contributions were made by Mr. Harry Anderson, Miss Lily Esplin, Miss Josey Hammersley, Miss Ruby Helder, Mr. Harry Russon, Mr. Walter Tilbury, Miss Louise Zetland, Miss Lily Arthur, Ian Colquhoun, Mr. Godfrey James, J. P. Ling, Babs Lloyd, Mr. Harry Luck, Miss May Marton, the Pasquali Brothers, Ruffell's Pictures, Herbert Shelley, and Mr. Joseph Simons. Mr. Fred Miller was presented by the beneficiares with a handsome cigar case, Mr. David Cowie with a case of pipes, and Mr. Tom Pacey was the recipient of a cigar-holder from Mr. Cranston.

"THE GIRL AND THE TOUGH,"

The Girl ..... MISS PEARLA GARDINER
The Tough ..... MR. JOHN G. BRANDON
The Detective ..... MR. H. AGAR LYONS

Well-merited success attended the production here on Monday evening of a strong dramatic sketch, which graphically tells a pathetic story set in one scene representing the flat roof of a house in the Bowery quarter of New York. Sweet Norah Dalton, a helpless paralytic, reclining in her chair, looking wistfully at the lights of the great city which she has never seen, is startled by the sound of fire-arms and a man's wild dash on to the roof. Thinking it is some of the neighbours playing "hide and seek," she invites the trespasser to hide by the side of her chair, and when her brother, Dan Hartigan, a detective, appears in pursuit and inquires if anyone is in hiding, she replies in the negative. When he has gone the intruder rises and questions the girl, who tells him that she is helpless, and that all she sees of the world is from the roof, where she sits alone for hours while her brother is away hunting the "Toughs" of New York. She asks the man if he knows what the Toughs are, and says her brother told her the story of a youth named Ted Delaney who had committed a serious crime, and had been sentenced to five years' penal servitude, leaving to bear his shame a young and pretty wife, who never recovered from the shock, but pined away and died when her baby was born. The Tough realises that he is listening to his own life story, and is stricken with remorse. The detective returns, and thinking the refugee is about to injure his sister, fires at him, and the Tough falls mortally wounded. With his last breath the wounded man thanks the detective for his kindness to his wife, and asks the girl to pray for him, so that if there is any room in Heaven for a Tough they may meet again.

The Girl and the Tough has strong human interest, and holds the audience enthralled. Miss Pearla Gardiner as the Girl is bewitchingly simple and effective; Mr. John G. Brandon gives a powerful portrayal of the notorious young criminal, and his forcible denunciation of the authorities who make a Tough once a criminal always a criminal was very convincing. As the detective Mr. H. Agar Lyons gives a finished performance. The piece is adequately staged.

MR. REGINALD LEYLAND'S (late of His Majesty's Chapel Royal), whose London Vaudeville Concert Party were so successful on the Claremont Pier, Lowestoft during the Whitsun holidays, are delighting good audiences in the Pier Pavilion, Walton-on-Naze. They beat all records for any previous time of the year at Lowestoft, and are doing the same at Walton, notwithstanding the bad weather. The party consists of Miss Clarisse Heney, Master Reginald Leyland, Mr. Reginald Leyland, and Mr. James Bayne.

MISS CLAIRE ROMAINE, who goes to America shortly, has just placed a practically unlimited commission with Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. Tate for new character songs specially designed for America, while Miss Hetty King, who goes to the States in September, has done ditto. Verily, the successes Messrs. Harrington and Tate have been responsible for in the land of Uncle Sam recently have tended to make things pretty considerably in the region of Berners-street.

HOLLAND AT THE HIPPODROME.

Just now there is a distinct feeling for everything that is Dutch, and both the musical-comedy and the music-hall stages are literally as well as figuratively "clogged" with Dutch business. Many years since we had plays of serious interest with Hans and Katti as the comic protagonists, and one remembers the delightful Alice Atherton and the quaint Ada Alexandra in their sketches of female character from the land of the tulip. But the prevailing craze for Dutch pictures and for a mise-en-scène that realises life on the Zuyder Zee is something exceptional, and it could scarcely be ignored by such an up-to-date management as that at the Hippodrome. It has, therefore, given the cue to Mr. Frank Parker to prepare another production—his fortieth, which filled the arena and the stage for the first time on Monday. It is from the pen of Mr. W. H. Risqué, the music having been composed and selected by Mr. Carl Kiefert and is entitled

"THE ZUYDER ZEE."

Van Schunk ..... MR. TOM SHALE
Lazy Hans ..... MR. BERT GILBERT
Simon ..... MR. J. H. MILBURN
Peterkin ..... NIPPER LUPINO LANE
Greta ..... MISS MAY MOORE DUPREZ
Mina ..... MISS MAUDE TERRY
Katrina ..... MISS BETTY GREEN

In the village that is peopled by Mr. Risqué's characters life passes pleasantly enough amid the tulips, and the panorama of canals, red-tile farmsteads, and windmills is realised very prettily and naturally by Mr. Bruce Smith, whose brush and ingenuity have supplied skilfully a scene capable of a wonderful mechanical change, which is the clou of the production. We are not greatly concerned with the plot. The village flirt, or, rather, one of them, Greta, the proprietress of a cigar and sweet stall, has won the devotion, such as it is, of Lazy Hans, the slouching and somnolent employee of Mynheer Van Schunk, a dealer in cheese and delicatessen. Greta, we learn, is an heiress in a small way, being entitled to the sum of 500 guilders, and her good fortune becomes known to her friend Mina, a flower girl, and Mina's sweetheart Simon. The two plot to alter the figures, and by adding a nought multiply Greta's dowry ten times. Her wealth excites the cupidity of Van Schunk, who immediately proposes, and is accepted on the condition that he keeps Hans in his employ. But Greta's riches render this proceeding unnecessary, and she jilts the sausage merchant for the ne'er-do-well. At an ice carnival in honour of her marriage with Hans, Van Schunk takes his revenge by opening the canal sluice and deluging the happy village; but this mean revenge has no effect on the fortunes of hero and heroine, and it supplies a series of laughable incidents in the way of water pantomime that adds much to the joy of an excellent summer attraction. But we anticipate. Previous to the flooding of the arena we have a meteorological change in the quickest time on record. The landscape smiling under a summer sun, with a wealth of flowers, becomes in a few seconds a wintry waste, and skaters give a capital exhibition of the sport of the Hollanders on their native canals.

The heroine of the production is Miss May Moore Duprez, who has earned the title of the "merry Dutch girl" on the boards of the halls. She romps in light-hearted fashion as Greta, and sings and dances with a gaiety and abandon that do a great deal for the success achieved. Mr. Bert Gilbert, an old favourite at the Hippodrome, has no great opportunities as Hans, but his "tired" song and his original dance in which he lies down and taps his feet in rhythmical step on an upturned table. Mr. J. H. Milburn and Mr. Tom Shale also do the best possible with small opportunities. Nipper Lupino Lane has an incidental song and dance that bring down the house; and Little Betty Green also wins the hearts of the audience by her dancing and singing. The Four Figaros, Hess and Lisbon, the Ashley Team, the Snow Family, and Tiller's Eight Snowdrops add to the importance and vim of the spectacle, and we must not omit to mention the goose, a preternaturally wise bird, which must be able to trace its descent back to the historic birds of the Capitol.

DEATH OF CHARLES TAYLOR.

Death has robbed the musical comedy stage of one of its most graceful lyrical writers, and our readers will be grieved to hear that Mr. Charles H. Taylor succumbed on Thursday to an attack of pneumonia, at his residence, 37, Ridgmount-gardens, after a brief illness. A native of Manchester, the deceased gentleman started life in his father's business, in the silk trade; but some ten years since he met Mr. Robert Courtneidge, the well-known manager and producer, for whom he wrote the lyrics of a pantomime, which was produced at the Prince's Theatre. This connection was the foundation of a friendship that was only severed by the untimely death of the young writer; and it was owing to Mr. Courtneidge that Mr. Taylor came to London, where he became connected with a firm of publishers, and wrote songs. One of them, called "The Commissionaire," published by Feldman and Co., was sung at the halls with great success during the Transvaal war by Mr. Albert Christian. One of the verses ran:—

You're spick and span, a fighting man,
You've been and done your share,
And something left to spare.
Shake hands, Commissionaire.
From duty's path you never swerve,
You've shown us you have pluck and nerve.
Long may we keep you—in reserve, Commissionaire.

Pride of race and patriotism may be traced in every line of the verses. His muse was employed for the musical comedy stage when he wrote some of the lyrics for the Silver Slipper, produced June 1, 1901, at the Lyric Theatre, sharing the honours with Mr. W. H. Risqué.

He was one of the trio of writers responsible for the songs of The Medal and the Maid, produced at the Lyric on April 25, 1903, his coadjutors being George Rollit and Paul Rubens. In the same year he once more became associated with Leslie Stuart, in The School Girl, produced at the Prince of Wales's on May 9. He was chosen by Mr. Seymour Hicks to write the lyrics for The Catch of the Season (Vaudeville, Sept. 9, 1904), and My Darling at the Hicks' Theatre. His latest and his most successful work is to be found in Tom Jones, the successful comic opera now running with such success at the Apollo; and at the time of his death he was engaged on the libretto of a new opera, which he fondly regarded as the best of his efforts. His kindly and amiable disposition had endeared him to a large circle of friends, and he will be much missed in Bohemian circles. He is to be buried to-day in the Roman Catholic portion of the St. Pancras Cemetery (Finchley); but prior to the interment a service will be held at St. Patrick's Church, Soho, at 12 o'clock.

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. Address, the PUBLISHER, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

In consequence of the London County Council's resolution in regard to living statuary passed on Tuesday at their meeting, Mr. Frank Glenister has had, very regretfully, to give the Seldoms a month's notice to terminate their engagement at the London Pavilion.

Miss Marie Lloyd departs for America in September, and this week Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate have been particularly busy equipping her with four new characteristic ditties, specially designed for American consumption, and respectively entitled "That's tellings," "Why Sue sighed," "Cause and Effect," and "Don't grumble at woman." This versatile author and composer are now considering a very tempting American offer they have received, and may take a trip to the other side in the same boat on which our representative "diva" sails.

Mrs. Dan Leno was married to Mr. Charles Francis Best, a comedian, on Wednesday. The ceremony took place at the registry office in Brixton-road, in the presence of a number of leading music-hall artists. The honeymoon will be spent in Belgium. It was at Manchester in 1883, after a three years' engagement, that the late Dan Leno married Miss Lydia Reynolds, then a popular ballad singer, and the two appeared together at the Surrey Theatre in pantomime. Mrs. Dan Leno, with increasing family cares, shortly afterwards retired from the stage, but her eldest daughter, Georgina (now a widow) followed in her mother's footsteps when she supported her father in the musical farce, Mr. Wix of Wickham. Mr. Dan Leno, jun., also has hereditary talent.

The bridegroom, Mr. Charles F. Best, is known to fame as "Mr. Bunker, the Mountebank," in a very droll act that is very popular at the halls. Originally he was known as Sarina, and for years did an excellent turn as a cyclist with Mme. Lalo, his first wife, who died on June 16, 1905.

Mme. Yvette Guilbert will make her début as a comedienne at the Théâtre des Variétés in Paris next autumn. Mr. Alfred Butt, however, has persuaded the gifted artist to make what may appropriately be termed a farewell appearance on the variety stage at the Palace Theatre, where she will commence an engagement for two special weeks on Monday, and will sing her original creations in English and French. Mme. Yvette Guilbert has the distinction of having been paid the highest salary of any artist on the variety stage. In addition to Mme. Guilbert, Mlle. de Dio will come with her wonderful transformations and dancing, to which, of course, must be added some extraordinary new lighting effects.

Miss Alice Lloyd and the McNaughtons will make their first appearance in London after their most successful tour in the United States at the Hackney Empire. The inimitable pair are well known to patrons of the Hackney Empire, and are old and valued friends of the pleasure-seeking public, and two of Mr. Stoll's oldest servants in length of service. They commenced with the famous manager at the Liverpool Parthenon "in the early days."

A comic of the earlier days is Mr. J. W. Rowley. To write a life-story of "Jack Rowley" would be to set out in detail the history of the music-hall since the days when the "free-and-easy" was the only place where the latest comic and "motto" songs were to be heard by those who favoured them. Rowley is, indeed, one of the "old brigade," and one, too, who has stood the test of change and time as few other variety artists have succeeded in doing.

Arrangements have been made by Mr. George Scott to entertain at the Alhambra 250 non-commissioned officers of the two Services, specially selected from the various depôts for the opening ceremony on Monday of the Union Jack Club. This splendid contingent of the country's defenders, after being entertained at the Union Jack Club, will be conveyed by motors to the Alhambra.

Mr. George Robey's two hundred per cent. bargain with a moneylender has been reduced by order of the judge to one bearing interest at merely twenty-five per cent., his Lordship stating that the comedian's position was perfectly well known, and that there was nothing to justify such exorbitant interest. Costs were also given to the comedian.

Mr. Charles Parker, son of Mr. Frank Parker, the popular producer at the London Hippodrome, came of age on Monday. Mr. Parker, jun., like his father before him, has been started on the lowest rung of the ladder, and is now assistant in the box office of the Haymarket Theatre. He bids fair to "follow in father's footsteps," as he has already shown an abnormal capacity for work, and therefore should have a brilliant future.

Mr. Herbert Shelley is by way of producing a new song, and will appear in the character of Charles I. at the Granville on Monday. The music is specially composed by Stephen R. Philpot. We don't remember to have seen any impersonators of the "Martyr King" on the variety boards, descriptive singers and actor-vocalists preferring, as a rule, his more frivolous son, "the Merry Monarch."

Mr. Herman Finck's new edition of "Musical Memories" will contain the waltz from The Merry Widow and the famous Barcarolle from The Tales of Hoffmann, and the young chef d'orchestre of the Palace Theatre invites the public to suggest the melodies which they would like also to be included.

The Oxford announces a novelty for Monday next, July 1, when Bert Wickham, the Herculean Cymro and world's champion all-round athlete, will give an exhibition of his physical strength, including his remarkable tests of motor v. man. Wickham maintains that he can, by sheer strength alone, and free from any mechanical aid, resist the force of a 16 to 22 h.p. motor-car, or two 8 h.p. cars.

Miss Gladys Archbutt (by Mr. Charles Frohman's kind permission) is singing the number which Mr. Joseph Coyne made so pleasantly familiar to the playgoing public in Nelly Neil, entitled "Popular Songs."

Mr. W. F. Frame finishes the Stoll tour this evening, and will rest for a little on the banks of the bonnie Clyde. He will again start his vaudeville tour at Saltcoats July 29 for a run of twelve weeks.

Mr. Tom Pacey was, on Wednesday evening, the pleased recipient of a much-cherished cigar-holder, from Mr. Edward Cranston, at the Cranston-Bennett farewell benefit at the Canterbury.

The profession are taking very kindly to motors. Cruickshank, with his magnificent 15/20 Humber, Mr. Tom Pacey and his useful 9/18 Clement, and Mr. Gus Elen, the possessor of a magnificent car, are frequent visitors to The Era offices.

Mr. Harry Rickards arrives in London in July to book artists until 1910. The Era Office is his headquarters for correspondence. His friends in London will be pleased to hear that he is much better in health, and that business at all his theatres is good.

Mr. Frank Allen has been elected a director of the Nottingham Grand Theatre. If the house, therefore, goes over to variety it will be run in connection with Moss' Empires.

We regret to announce that Mr. Alfred Farrell, who for many years worked in conjunction with Mr. Fred Willmot (Farrell and Willmot, comedians) died suddenly on Monday evening at Liverpool. Some six weeks ago the deceased commenced a partnership with Mr. David Miller, of that City.

The fame of the deceased gentleman and his partner was antecedent to the cross-talkers favourably known to the present generation; and in the eighties Farrell and Willmot and Tennyson and O'Gorman were turns to conjure with. Mr. Farrell not so long since appeared with his partner at the London Pavilion, where they were offered an engagement by Mr. Frank Glenister, and were thus able to renew memories of their former triumphs at the famous house in Piccadilly-circus.

Mr. Fred Willmot will in future have the bookings connected with the Liverpool Theatre of Varieties, Ltd., in place of Mr. Walter De Frece, who has resigned.

Mr. Walter Mould, late assistant to Mr. Culling, the manager of the Bury Theatre and Circus of Varieties, has been appointed manager of the Hippodrome, Accrington.

At Morecambe the V.A.F. Day was observed on Thursday afternoon at the Alhambra Palace, when, by permission of Alderman Gardner, a first-class show was given by many of the variety artists in the town.

Mr. Will Dalton, of Manchester, the energetic provincial agent, is pulling round from a severe illness which has necessitated an operation, successfully performed on June 1 by the eminent Manchester surgeon Mr. Smith. It will be several weeks before Mr. Dalton can attend to his business, which, in his absence, is in the capable hands of his manager.

This week's programme at the Tivoli, Manchester, is preceded by an original fantasia on "The Death of Nelson," by Mr. Frank J. Smith, the musical director at this popular house. A number of well-known airs relative to the theme are employed, and the combinations and transitions are handled with considerable skill and effect, the whole producing quite a dramatic and suggestive picture.

Mr. Richard Thornton's new Empire, Sunderland, which will be opened on Monday, is the thirty-ninth house booked in conjunction with the great Moss, Stoll, Thornton, and Allen combine. Miss Vesta Tilley and a strong company have been engaged for the first performances. The massive proportions of the new building at once strike the eye. At the corner of Garden-place, on the old Bishopwearmouth Rectory site, a huge circular tower, embellished with stone cornices, balustrading, and stone lunettes, rises to the height of some eighty feet. The tower is surmounted by a well-proportioned copper dome, above it being a cupola with Corinthian columns and cornices, the whole being crowned by a large ball of copper emblazoned with the word "Empire."

One of the best productions which has ever graced the boards of the Tower Theatre, New Brighton, was presented to a crowded audience on Saturday evening, when Mr. John Tiller put before the public Her Birthday, a piece of a most attractive character. It is a pretty scene, depicting the manners and life in France under Louis XV. The handsome costumes are worn by the charming ladies of the ballet with that courtliness necessary to effectively display them; and the stately dances, pretty songs, and artistic grouping are excellent in every way.

Mr. Hugh Wigglesworth, the erstwhile popular pier manager at Blackpool and Morecambe, and now the well-known variety artists' agent, is at present recuperating at the Brighton of the North, after being laid up for two months in London. He is advised by his medical attendant, however, to betake himself to Harrogate next week, so any of his old friends can communicate with him at the Kursaal there.

Mr. Ben de Frece, the popular and enterprising manager of the Hippodrome, Colchester, was on Saturday night last the recipient of a handsome silver salver from the male staff, and a very prettily-shaped silver teapot from the female staff, the occasion being his birthday. Numerous expressions of goodwill from friends both within and without the profession also found their way to him by letter and telegram.

The many friends of Mr. Harold Arnold, manager of the King's, Gateshead, and late manager of the Lyceum, London, will be pleased to learn that his wife gave birth to a daughter on Saturday last. The mother and child are both doing well.

The Blackpool Hippodrome reopens its doors on Monday next, when Mr. T. P. Duignan, the very popular general-manager, will submit a programme that is calculated to bring into requisition the "house full" notice board.

Blackpool's famous Tower Circus opened its doors for the season on Monday, when the genial George Harrop, alias the generous "General," submitted a very fine programme, and big business is the result. The artists engaged are Caban, with his famous Continental circus; Warsaw Brothers, Australia's musical comedians; the Three Bounding Patersons, gymnasts; Claude Ohmy, the daring bareback rider; the Sisters Macarte, tight wire walkers; Les Marsumas, comedians on wheels; Fitzgerald and his club-juggling girls; the Sisters Dering, acrobatic equestriennes; August and September, the popular clowns; and the Four Rios, gymnasts.

Miss Esta Stella has not yet settled for pantomime in Glasgow or elsewhere.

The third annual meeting of the shareholders of the Pavilion, Newcastle, was held on Tuesday at the theatre, Mr. Hugh Astley, chairman, presiding. The net profit earned for the twelve months ended on May 31, 1907, after providing for interest on mortgage and on debentures, amounts to £4,811 6s. In December last an interim dividend of 2½ per cent. (less income tax) was paid for the half-year ending Nov. 30, 1906; the directors recommended the payment of a further dividend of 7½ per cent. (less income tax) for the half-year ended May 31, 1907, making 10 per cent. for the year. After payment of this dividend there remains, with the balance brought forward from last year's accounts, the sum of £1,966 12s., which they propose to deal with by writing off £758 6s. 8d. from the premises account, £437 2s. 10d. off the preliminary expenses, and carrying forward the sum of £771 2s. 6d. to the current year's accounts. £1,000 of the debenture issue has been redeemed.

Miss Georgina Leonard is meeting with success everywhere in the provinces with her two big numbers "Marry me now" and "After the victory." Her business is still in the hands of that astute agent Tom Shaw.

Manson and West appeared at the Royal, Oldham, last week, in a farcical interlude, Telling the Tale, with great success, and Mr. Dottridge at once secured them to play the Dusky Princess and the Captain in Dottridge and Langden's production of Robinson Crusoe.

Mr. Frank Macnaghten's ever-widening circuit now embraces some twenty houses, and he has found it absolutely necessary to establish a London centre. Henceforward all communications in regard to the professional and publicity departments of the Macnaghten Tour must be addressed to the London offices, Oakley House, Bloomsbury-street, W.C., where all billing matter (accompanied by samples of pictorial printing) and notification of appearance must be sent.

Miss May Moore Duprez, "the jolly Dutch girl," celebrated her twenty-first birthday on Wednesday, and in honour of the event gave a party to which the principals in the latest Hippodrome spectacle, Zuyder Zee, and some well-known professionals, were invited. Quite "the hit of the evening" was made by Mr. Malcolm Scott, when he assisted Miss Duprez to cut a huge birthday cake, which was surmounted by a doll dressed to represent Miss Duprez in the Dutch costume she wears in the Hippodrome spectacle.

Miss Octavia Noel, who has so lately achieved success while starring as "An Abandoned Woman," has rejoined Mrs. John Lawson, to play Lady Seaton, in her sketch, The Devil's Sunday. Owing to that lady's regrettable illness Miss Noël played her part of Fay Faber at a few minutes notice on Saturday last at Middlesbrough and received the kind congratulations of the manager. She has been playing it at the Palace, Bristol, this week.

The appearance of Miss Agnes Fraser at the Tivoli has increased very appreciably the interest of the excellent programme that Mr. Joseph Wilson is giving at that house to crowded audiences. The Savoy diva is associated with the success of The Constable and the Pictures, a sketch suggested possibly by Mr. W. S. Gilbert's Ages Ago, or the unsuccessful Ruddigore. It is by Godfrey Turner and Arthur Wimperis, the latter gentleman being the writer of the lyrics for The Dairymaids, produced last year at the Apollo. The subject is treated with sufficient drollery, and the comic situations should secure for it a great success.

Mr. M. R. Morand, as well as Miss Fraser, makes his West-end variety début in this new and original sketch, and thus renews a pleasant artistic comradeship commenced at the Savoy and continued at the theatre over the way—the Adelphi—in The Earl and the Girl. Miss Agnes Fraser is the wife of Mr. Walter Passmore, and has been favourably known to London playgoers ever since she appeared at the Savoy, first as the understudy of Miss Isabel Jay and later as that lady's successor. Recently Miss Fraser made one of the big personal successes of The Dairymaids at the Lyric.

The music of the sketch has been written by Miss Marjorie Slaughter, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. Walter Slaughter, the composer of Marjorie and Lady Tatters, and a most popular musical-director. The plot is slight enough, and concerns the entry of a muddle-headed constable into the library and picture gallery of a house that is thought to be a den of coiners. Two of the portraits emerge from their frames at the witching hour, and the modern Dogberry's suspicions are confirmed by the artless prattle of the lady portrait, with whom he minuets.

He is regarded, however, as a malapert knave by the gentleman portrait, who insists on a duel with a pair of flint pistols; but his uniform is saved by the return of both of the family ancestors to their positions on the wall of the apartment at the hour of one o'clock. Miss Agnes Fraser is both winsome and dignified as my lady; and Mr. Fraser makes a handsome representative of a gentleman of the Elizabethan period. Mr. M. R. Morand is intensely droll as the constable, and the sketch is a real and well-deserved success.

Though he had most likely heard of the alchemists, it is certain that Robert Herrick knew little or nothing of the wonders of chemistry when he wrote—

Some asked me where the rubies grew,
And nothing I did say;
But with my finger pointed to
The lips of Julia.

We shall be looking to Miss Alice Morton to produce rubies this afternoon at a private representation of her manufacture of gems at the London Hippodrome, at 12 o'clock.

Owing to the remarkable and still-growing success of The Collar Stud, Muir and Bartlett, who are continually receiving applications for the American rights, are themselves sending out a company to the States early in August. The company will play the full répertoire of Muir and Bartlett's sketches, including the Old English cameo, The Lady of the Roses (by arrangement with Mrs. Hugh de Beere).

Miss Lois du Cane, the clever leading actress, and her excellent company have proved an immense draw at the Pavilion, Leicester, this week. Judas, by Mr. Fred Maxwell, is playing to crowded houses. Next week Miss du Cane will produce The Octoroon. This will be the fourth week of this favourite artist's most successful engagement at this house.

The 517th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held at the offices of the Association on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Fred Herbert occupied the chair. Other members present were Messrs. Charles Coborn, Fred Harrison, Douglas White, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). Various applications from members for refunds were fully considered, and the Secretary instructed in the matters. The weekly financial statement, showing forty new members and a cash total of £37 10s., was passed, as was also the Hon. Treasurer's monthly statement.

The music of the Bandurrias, who play so artistically on mandolines and guitars, is admirably suited for garden parties, at homes, and other functions, and it is pleasant to hear that the combination is very busy fulfilling season engagements at the country houses of the leaders of society.

Les Fleury Duo will come to the Palace Theatre on Monday. This is the first appearance in England of these artists, who present a burlesque revue embodying twenty characters in eighteen minutes. This number should be a distinct novelty, as the act comprises songs, dances, comedy acrobatics, and transformation.

Mr. Horace Wheatley intends, at a very early date, to produce in the halls Muldoon's Picnic, which had such a long and successful run under his management a few years ago. It will be played by a full company of known artists.

Mr. Pete Murray, the acting manager at Sadler's Wells Theatre, is to take a benefit at that house on Friday evening, July 12. Mr. Erle T. Walkden, the able assistant-manager, is organising the two performances for the night in question, and is acting as the secretary for the benefit.

Mr. Charles Shank, of the Bros. Shank, acrobats, and Miss Florence Dale are to be married at St. Mary's Church, Kennington Park-road, at one o'clock to-morrow. The wedding breakfast will be given at Frascati's at 6 p.m.

Mr. Edward Kipling, late principal comedian in Sergeant Brue, The Geisha, The Shop Girl, The Greek Slave, &c., is returning to the halls, and opens at Collins's on Monday with a "petticoat" patter turn, written for him by Chas. D. Hickman, and entitled "The pally girl."

All employers of labour in the amusement world who wish to be on the safe side will do well to get a copy of the little booklet published at this office, price sixpence. It is entitled "The Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, and its effect on Theatres and Music-halls." The writer is Mr. Albert A. Strong, LL.B. Lond., solicitor. A copy of the much discussed Act is printed in the work.

A goodly number of friends and well-wishers will assemble at Euston on Tuesday morning next, the 2nd prox., to bid farewell to Mr. Fred Day (of Messrs. Francis and Day), who is returning on that date to New York per Cunard s.s. Carmania.

Mr. Milton Bode is the latest convert to Music Hall management. On Monday last he took over the entire direction of his own theatre at Reading, with the result that he has completely broken his own records.

Mr. Frank Macnaghten and his co-directors are to be congratulated on the wonderfully successful result of their charity entertainment, given on Wednesday evening last at the Surrey Vaudeville Theatre, which now very popular establishment is, under their regime, enjoying an unparalleled run of prosperity.

His Worship the Mayor of Southwark and many distinguished guests were present, the night's proceeds resulting in something like £225 being distributed amongst the following well-known and deserving institutions:—Guy's Hospital, Evelina Hospital for Children, Royal Eye Hospital, and St. Patrick's Protestant Home for Working Lads.

The name of Harmston has long been celebrated in the annals of the arena, and Harmston's Grand Circus, which is travelling India, China, and the Malay Straits under the direction of Mme. Harmston-Love, gave a grand gala night at Bombay in February last before Lord Lamington, the Ameer of Afghanistan, and a large party from Government House. The management is wanting knockabout comedians, clowns with novelties, triple-bar performers, lady trick cyclists, and others. Those desiring engagements can apply, with terms, lithos, and photos., to Mme. Harmston-Love, Harmston's Circus, c/o Abram's Horse Repository, Singapore, Straits Settlements. Cable address: "Harmston's, Singapore."

At the complimentary benefit to Mr. Arthur Jefferson at the Metropole, Glasgow, yesterday (Friday) evening the beneficiaire was announced to make his first appearance on the Metropole stage as Sammy Plum in a screaming absurdity from his own pen entitled The Girl is Mine, Ha! Ha!. The artists appearing included several under engagement to Moss' Empires and Mr. E. H. Bostock.

Miss Clara Alexander, who came to the Empire Theatre, on Monday, made an immediate success, and is already a popular contributor to Mr. Hitchens's programme. There was no mistaking the genuine outburst of enthusiasm which greeted her negro racing yarn. "She's collared 'em," said one fervent stallite, and the laconic remark voiced the feeling of all present.

It should, however, be clearly understood that Miss Alexander is not a coon impersonator, or a mere elocutionist. She comes to us straight from her plantation home in Alameda, tingling to her finger tips with all the humour and pathos of the nigger. Appearing in a simple white dress, in a moment she becomes the genuine exponent of the coon as he lives his uneventful life in the Southern States.

The Musical Howards are giving their refreshing music and comedy act at the London Pavilion, where they have been secured for a series of engagements by Mr. Frank Glenister. Their act, good as it was when we last saw it, has been vastly improved, and the quaint business and patter of Mr. Howard cause the heartiest laughter. The lady looks very smart and dapper in her petticoated uniform, and plays with excellent effect Mr. J. Airlie Dix's fine melody, "The Trumpeter."

Mr. Harry S. Hart, one of our youngest agents, informs us that Miss Evie Greene has been booked through his agency for a Northern hall at a salary of £350 per week. Miss Greene will commence her tour in August next. Mr. Hart has at times negotiated business for Miss Phyllis Dare, Mr. Hayden Coffin, and Mr. Fred Wright, jun.

A note for interdict has been presented in the Bill Chamber of the Scottish Court of Session on behalf of Robert Allan P. Williams, lessee and manager of the New Gaiety Theatre, Victoria-road, Dundee, against Frank Percival, lessee and manager of the Empire Theatre, Rosebank-street, Dundee.

Complainer says that during his occupation of the New Gaiety since March, 1905, it has been continuously open to the public, and he has no intention of closing it, and never made any arrangement from which such an inference could be made. His licence entitles him to perform stage plays, and he regularly produces them, but in a theatrical newspaper the respondent, under the classification "Wanted Companies," had inserted an advertisement stating that the Empire is open all the year, and from Monday, June 17, the Empire would be the only drama house open in Dundee.

Mr. Williams says that this was intended to represent, and did represent, that the Empire Theatre was open all the year round, and that after June 17 it would be the only drama house open in Dundee, and that this was false. He says that he has suffered, and is still suffering, great hurt and prejudice owing to this. On June 14 complainer's agents called upon the respondent to publish a retraction of the statements complained of, but he had failed to do so. Lord Guthrie ordered intimation, and allowed six days for answers, and meantime granted interim interdict.

The Imperial Ladies' Quartet and Concert Party will be one of the attractions of the great garden fête in aid of the Lord Mayor's Cripples' Fund, to be given on Thursday next at Bute House, Brook Green, Hammersmith. Madame Remosany Reitz, who has trained these ladies, was for years a principal singer in first-class theatres in Berlin, Hamburg, Munich, and a successful concert singer. She now occupies a recognised position in London as a teacher of voice production and stage deportment.

Mr. Edward Cranston and Mrs. Bennett sailed yesterday on the Ortona to fulfil an engagement with Mr. Harry Rickards, made by Mr. Tom Pacey, who, during their absence, will negotiate contracts on their behalf.

As mentioned in our variety notices, Mr. George Lashwood is scoring a great success at the Shepherd's Bush Empire this week in a new song-scena, entitled Oh, for a Night in the West. The "West" referred to is the West End of London. Mr. Lashwood has a special and very picturesque setting representing a lonely home amidst wheatfields in one of the colonies, and the "idea" of the song is a young and irresponsible young man sent abroad by an angry father and longing to be back home again in London. The song, the dialogue, and the business suit Mr. Lashwood admirably, and the whole item is most excellent entertainment. What may be termed "a happy ending" is provided by the young fellow's receipt of a letter from his father giving him permission to return home again after what has been an absence of two or three years.

Sir F. Channing, in the House of Commons, on Monday, asked the Home Secretary whether he had obtained or proposed to obtain from the Metropolitan Police authorities, or from any other sources, reports as to the character of the living statuary performances now being carried out in the Metropolis; whether any such reports or inquiries showed that those performances were such as to bring them within the existing law; and what steps he would take, either by prosecution or by strengthening the law, to prevent or restrict such performances where found to be objectionable.

Mr. Gladstone said the performances referred to did not appear to him to justify interference by the police under the existing law. The London County Council exercised control as to the licensing authority of the houses where the performances took place. He understood that the question had been under consideration by a committee of that body, who are keeping these exhibitions under strict observation.

In the raging waters of the Hippodrome on Monday two little piggies got out of their element and became immersed by unwittingly following the ducks into the flood. A young girl tried to rescue one, but it was too heavy, and for a moment its life hung in the balance; then a man came forward boldly and took the struggling little beast into his arms, and the other one managed to clamber back to the stage.

The continued success of the Native Choir from Jamaica is very gratifying to Sir Alfred Jones, who brought over the coloured ladies and gentlemen from the West Indies, they having all escaped from the terrible earthquake which occurred at Kingston on January last. The tour of the Jamaicans has been extremely successful from every point of view. At many places they have done record business and their re-engagements are very numerous. They have now decided to stay in England during the winter, and their business is in the hands of Messrs. H. E. Jones and A. Douglass, who represent Sir Alfred Jones in Liverpool.

The second annual meeting of the New Gaiety Theatre Co., Dundee, Ltd., was held in the registered office, Bank Buildings, King-stret, Dundee, on the 21st. Mr. P. A. Scott, Chairman of the Directors, congratulated the shareholders on the favourable position of the Company, and declared a five per cent. dividend. Mr. Scott expressed his belief that in the course of another year the Directors would be able to declare a higher dividend. Mr. Scott's motion was unanimously adopted.

Miss Marie Loftus, Poluski Bros., Miss Agnes Molteno, Donaldson Bros. and Ardel, the Voises, and Miss Harriet Vernon were among the members of the Variety Artists' Federation who appeared at the Fête and Garden Party held on Thursday at the White City, Old Trafford. The proceeds of half the gate money will be kindly set aside by the management to be divided between the Federation, the Music Hall Home, and the Music Hall Benevolent Fund. The Lord Mayor of Manchester gave his patronage.

Miss Hanid Alexander, the clever pupil of Miss Helen Townshend, is engaged by Mr. Frank Glenister, for the London Pavilion, and will open there on Monday next.

Mr. F. Orcherton writes:—"At a full Council meeting of the Orchestral Association, at which Mr. Askwith's award was discussed, it was decided that, as the Arbitrator's award recently issued in respect to the music hall dispute would appear to fix 30s. (and, under certain circumstances, 32s.) as the minimum salary to be recognised for London musicians in the class of engagements under review, this Association desires it to be known that, as they have not been associated with the parties consenting to refer the questions at issue to arbitration, they cannot recognise the award as creating a standard They feel that the views held by this Association with reference to a 36s. minimum are thoroughly endorsed by the profession generally, and they are urging all their members to assist in every way possible to maintain that minimum."

The artists engaged during the week at the Crystal Palace Café Chantant by Mr. Bannister Howard include Mr. Frank Lawton, of The Belle of New York fame; Miss Beattie Bloom, a singer of sensible songs; Wisper, the comic juggler; Rosie Stevens, dancer; Harry Maynard, vocal comedian; and Maisie Ehinger, comedienne, who has been playing Mrs. Madison Crocker in The Prince of Pilsen.

Mark Adams, late of the Morton Comedy Trio, is about to produce a novel song-scena. It will be seen first in the provinces, and very shortly in London.

Miss Georgette Thierry and Mr. Bernard Liell produced at the Royal Theatre of Varieties, Oldham, on Monday, The Fat Knight of Windsor, from The Merry Wives of Windsor. The part of the amorous knight, Sir John Falstaff, was played excellently by Mr. A. Hornby Warburton, late of the Queen's Theatre, Manchester; Miss Thierry and Miss Ethel Maguire were capital as the mischievous wives, Mistress Ford and Mistress Page; and Miss Florrie Sorsby made a dainty Robin, the page. Mr. Liell and Mr. Henry Deane were excellent as Master Ford and Master Page, and the production was a great success.

The Snow Family, expert and grotesque skaters, have been specially engaged by Mr. Stoll for the new production, Zuyder Zee, at the London Hippodrome, where they have scored a great success.

The two Neilsons should have opened at the Empire, Rochdale, on Monday, but on arriving at rehearsal found that owing to the bioscope picture, "Life of Christ," being shown, the clergy of the town had protested against their screaming duologue and dancing speciality, Silly Billy, as being incongruous. They got over the difficulty, however, by Miss Rosa Neilson giving an exhibition of national dances, and were re-engaged for their duologue to open Monday next.

Miss Margaret Ashton has this week been staying at the Grand Hotel, Molde, one of the most charmingly situated towns in Norway, which, though it lies 3 deg. north of St. Petersburg, is styled "The City of Roses," from the luxuriance of its flowers. The view from the hotel, which is built on the edge of the fjord, is considered one of the finest in Europe, commanding as it does a superb panoramic view of vast stretches of fjord, studded with innumerable islets, with the magnificent background—twenty miles away—of the lofty range of Romsdal Alps, whose towering peaks reach over 6000 feet. The German Emperor, the King of Siam, and His Majesty the King will be among the distinguished visitors to Molde in July.

"Jack," from the pen of Mr. Brien McCullough, has been going very strong at the Palace, Bow, this week. Miss Dolly Elsworthy, in the title-rôle, has quite surpassed herself.

The latest quotations for music-hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 30s.; Canterbury, ½; Empire (15s. paid), 1½; ditto (10s. paid), 1½; London Pavilion Ordinary, 4½; ditto Preference, 5; London Coliseum, ½; Metropolitan, ½; Moss' Empires, 4¾; ditto Five per Cent. Preference, 3¾; Oxford, 6¾; Palace, 13s.; Tivoli, 6½; and Variety Consolidated Theatres, 13s.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MR. R. G. KNOWLES' newest purchases in the song line have been acquired for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day. They are by George Arthurs and C. W. Murphy, and are entitled "Costumes, gowns, and frocks," and "Get it over!"

MISS VESTA TILLEY'S latest song—a messenger boy number—is entitled "I know my business," and is from the pens of the writers who supplied the gifted lady with the dashing "Jolly good luck to the girl who loves the soldiers"—Fred W. Leigh and Kenneth Lyle. Messrs. Francis and Day will issue it immediately. It is within the bounds of possibility that Mr. Lyle will be commissioned to set to music two striking songs, written specially for Miss Tilley, entitled respectively "The medical student" and "Following a fellah with a face like me."

THE song, "All alone in Old Cologne," with which little Miss Betty Green is capturing all hearts at the London Hippodrome in Zuyder Zee, is being enquired for everywhere, and Messrs. Francis and Day, its publishers, have just issued it as a "Sixpenny Pop." Messrs. Fred Murray, Harry Leighton, and C. Hilbury are the writers.

MR. GEORGE LASHWOOD, whose new song, "In the twi-twi-light," by Charles Wilmott and Herman E. Darewski, jun., is one of the biggest hits of the current year, has just disposed of to Messrs. Francis and Day, who are issuing the number just mentioned, a ditty entitled "When you have lots of feathers," by E. W. Rogers.

MISS FLORRIE GALLIMORE has just accepted a striking song, entitled "I've got three letters of the Alphabet—£ s. d.," which embodies a striking story with a singularly taking refrain, the work of Henry E. Pether.

THE various printing firms who feed the miles of shelving of Messrs. Francis and Day's two London establishments are busy just now with the following items, the latest acquisitions of the great house:—"It happened so," written and composed by Miss Mabel Goyder; "I felt a little awkward" (sung by Will Bentley), by Fred Frampton; "Coal" (Miss Amber Austa), by Percy Edgar and W. E. Haines; "You don't want me" (Miss Kate Carney), by Chas. Collins; "Take your greedy eyes off my little girl" and "Come to Buff-Buff-Buffalo" (Miss Daisy Dormer), by Fred Godfrey and Harry Castling; "I ain't a-goin' to work for you no more" (Miss Victoria Monks), by G. A. Stevens; "Mary and the butcher" (Sid Bandon), by Tod Lowen, E. W. Selman, and R. Gorman; "A millionaire" (Sid Bandon), by Alf Ellerton; "Your mother was all to me," by Fred Barnes and Chas. Collins; "It's all clobber that 'e thinks about" (Alec Hurley), by Fred Murray; and "March, march, march; or, You're proud to be a soldier" (George Lashwood), by Ralph Nairn and E. C. Matthews.

THE increasing popularity of the two new songs by Mellor, Laurance, and Gifford, entitled "You shall live in a châlet" and "Soon I'm leaving Dublin Town," and respectively published by Messrs. Feldman and Co. and Francis, Day, and Hunter, in their "Sixpenny Editions," is very gratifying, no less than twenty-five Pierrot proprietors having included them in their programmes.

MISS LIL HAWTHORNE is happy in the possession of a new song, entitled "Bye-bye, my sailor boy, Jack Tar," with which she has been pleasing her many admirers. Miss Hawthorne has always been identified with the better class of chorus song, and her new number is the equal, if not the superior, of any song she has yet produced.

THE singer of novelty songs, Miss Rachel Lowe, who has not been seen in the London halls for some little time, has just concluded a provincial tour, where she has been winning the encomiums of both Press and public. Her reception in Newcastle last week proved that her great success in pantomime at the Tyne Theatre a few years ago had not been forgotten, and the Pavilion was crowded throughout the week to welcome Newcastle's favourite "principal boy."

THE American song wave takes but little time to cross the Atlantic, and we are therefore not surprised that the latest ballad hit in the States, "Love me and the world is mine," has already caught on in England. It is being sung in several halls in London, and the répertoire of no Pierrot troupe is complete without it.

SONGS come and go, but old favourites are always welcome. R. G. Knowles has proven this with his familiar song, "The girl, the woman, and the widow." It has all the freshness of a new song as sung in Mr. Knowles's inimitable manner. It is the success at the Palace.

MR. GEORGE LASHWOOD produced a new song, entitled "In the twi-twi-twilight," last Monday at Shepherd's Bush Empire, where he is the chief attraction. The new number, with its ear-haunting refrain, immediately caught the ear of the audience, and by the time the second refrain was reached everyone in the hall was singing the song. Mr. Lashwood is most emphatic that this is the greatest chorus song he has had since "Riding on top of the car."

THE wife of Mr. Gilbert Wells, of "Varmer Giles" fame, has given birth to a son. Both mother and future young song-writer are doing well.

MR. DAN CRAWLEY has been—at the Tivoli notably—causing roars of laughter with "They can't diddle me!" and "Father keeps on doing it." Both are by that sterling writer, T .W. Connor, and Messrs. Francis and Day report steady sales of both numbers. A list of Mr. Connor's continuous successes for many years would include the titles of hundreds of the songs of Harry Randall and the late Herbert Campbell, and George Beauchamp.

MR. GEO. RIPON has sold the sole singing rights of the song "When you take a wife, &c.," written by the late James Curran, to J. W. Rowley. Managers and performers please note.

MR. HERBERT SHELLEY'S song, "Don't forget, Mignonette," which has been sung this week with such tremendous success by the composer, Mr. Fred Elton, at the Metropolitan, has been secured for publication by Messrs. Shapiro and Co.

PARTICULARLY successful have the members of Mr. John Tiller's company been in Blackpool with no less than four of the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s songs, viz., "Queen of Old Samara," by J. F. Lambe; "I'm going back to the Fatherland" and "Don't go back to Carolina," both by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford; and "She didn't come from Borneo," by Pelham and Rule.

MISS FLORRIE GALLIMORE, for whom Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate have just written a special new comedy number, entitled "I never tell tales out of school," is about to feature three new numbers published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co., entitled "I'm going to try my luck in London," by Pelham and Rule, "Don't start to worry if the sun don't shine," by Harry Marlow, and a charming new Swiss song, "Dear little Tyrolese," by Harrington and Tate.

FEDERATION DAY.

The Crystal Palace was en fête on Thursday for the first annual celebration of the Variety Artists' Federation, that body, under the secretaryship of Mr. Monte Bayly and the general-managership of Mr. Frank Gerald, having arranged a host of attractions furnished by a veritable galaxy of stars of the music hall firmament. And, incidentally, it may be here mentioned that Federation Day was celebrated not merely in London but in several of the big towns and cities in the provinces. The condition of things in the Palace early in the afternoon was, it must be admitted, rather dull, as, for one thing, the weather did not seem to have made up its mind, and rain fell at intervals during the day; and, secondly, the crowd—in the sense of the number of visitors—did not make itself apparent until later on in the day, when everybody and everything brightened up considerably, many persons being attracted to Norwood by the usual Thursday evening fireworks. In this connection, it may be said that Messrs. Brock made a special display, their magnum opus being a magnificent pyrotechnic representation of the British flags, with portraits of Mr. Chamberlain and the Prime Minister; while a smaller design bore the happy expression, "Success to the Federation," a sentiment which was cheered by a number of artists and their friends, although it must be admitted that a great number of the later arrivals did not appear to understand what was meant by the "Federation."

The programme—it would be better to say the series of programmes—of entertainments was bewildering in its variety and quantity. To begin with, there were some half dozen bands. Mr. Angelo Asher's "Cadogan" Orchestra played at each of the performances in the Theatre of Varieties and elsewhere; Mr. Herbert Godfrey's Crystal Palace Military Band was heard to advantage in the centre transept; the Ladies' Orchestra played in pleasing style in the South Nave, where there was dancing; the Upper Norwood Temperance Prize Band, under the conductorship of Mr. Grant, did good work in the Sports Ground during the afternoon; Mr. Godfrey's Boys' Band and the Crystal Palace Military Band were also in evidence. Four performances were given in the theatre, under the direction of Messrs. Newham, Latimer, William Bint, Fred Mulney, and C. C. Bartram, the artists being selected from the following:—Fred Karno and Co., Marie Lloyd, Horace Goldin, Alec Hurley, Mark Melford and Co., Florrie Cooper, Leslie Bros., Albert Le Fre, the Musical Schafers, Tom Craven, Harry Anderson, Winnie Derson, Brothers Ethallen, Charles Whittle, Sanford and Lyons, Frances Drew, Master Artie Wheeler, Fyne and Hurley, Johnny Dwyer, George Antill, Charles Russell, Florrie Robini, Charles Mildare, Little Tich, Tom Costello, J. Alexandre and Co., Barney Armstrong, Jolly Criss Cross, Jock Campbell, Arthur Rigby, Duncan and Godfrey, Walter King, Bros. Durant, Charles Bignall, Dolly Golden, Newham and Latimer, the Herald Quartette, Arthur Elvy, Fannie Robini, Florrie Cooper, Drew and Alders, Nipper Lupino, Letta and Minnie, Joe Elvin, T. E. Dunville, Dan Crawley, Wal Pink, George Reeves, Carlotta Levey, the Four Burnells, Dan Rolands, Alexandre and Hughes, Charles Pastor, Mlle. Sylvester and Rumbo Austin, the Two Bees, Horace Oade, Queenie Morris, Harry Phillips, Howard Bros., Will Driscoll, Fred Lincoln, Edgar Budden, Musical Silvo, Kloof and Ramsay, Bros. Brooks, the Californian Girls, the Sisters Richmond, Dunning and Thaw, Victoria Monks, Willie Denham, Margaret Ashton, Russell Wallett, Sam Mayo, Charles Coborn, Ryder Slone, Mabel Sinclair, Boy Glenn, Florence Deighton, Fred Harrison, Diana Hope and Co., Ruby and Laws, Rose Bancroft, Billie Barlow, Hymack, Tom Dunmore, Alf Chester, Atroy, Fred Marlow, George Brooks, Lizzie Daniels, Mme. Natalia, Florence Worth, Tennie and Laune, Lil Hawthorne, Tom Fancourt and Jennie Rubie, Abel and Welsh, Joe Archer, Little Dot Moss, Athos and Collins, John Callen, Eddie Comet, Karno's comedians, Robb Gilmore, Johnson and Bert, Bella and Bijou, J. W. Hall, Whit Cunliffe, Malcolm Scott, Tom H. Davis, the Troupe La Faille, Anthony, the Bouncing Dillons, Carl Lynn.

In the concert hall the artists were:—Mme. Esther Palliser, Miss Evie Greene, Miss Mabel Mavis, Mme. Spada, Miss Marguerite Bramberg, the Misses Solari, Mr. George Mozart, Mme. Amy Atkins, Miss Nora Long, Signor Cornikoff, Mr. Robert Ganthony, Mr. Harold White, Mr. Philip Newbury, Mr. Richard Green, Mr. Harry Dearth, Mr. Charles Coborn, Mr. Dudley Causton, Mr. Chas. Butler, Mr. John Jooey, Mr. Cecil Marlier, Mr. Denis Byndon Ayres, the San Carlo Trio, Miss Lilian Bramberg, Mr. Harold Wilde, Miss Sylvia Du Barry, Miss Mabel Kaye, Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock, Mr. Asher, and Miss Margaret Godfrey acting as accompanists, Mr. Charles Coborn and Mr. King Alexander directing the operations. On the football ground Mr. Joe Elvin's production of 'Appy 'Ampstead, with swings, donkeys, ponies, jockeys, clowns, &c., flourished exceedingly. Apollo permitted himself to be run over by a motor-car, "a death-defying act," as it was called, and Malcolm Scott and Whit Cunliffe presided over what they called a portable electric patent, a "Kopper-Katcher," which seemed a comparatively easy way of bringing the grist to the mill. "All the fun of the fair," too, included Whimsical Walker, Rumbo Austin, Cruikshank, and "all the great clowns"; Wayho and Collinson's boxing saloon, "Selina Seaforth's challenge to the world," and the Irishmen's tent. The last-named was a most exclusive institution, and bore the legend, "Nothing but Irish here," turns being provided by Messrs. Horace Wheatley, Pat Carey, Tom Costello, Pat Doherty, Shaun Glenville, Walter Munroe, T. C. Callaghan, Tom Carney, Pat Rafferty, W. J. Ashcroft, Alf Leonard, Williams and Warden, and Frank Leon. This fair, which furnished a great deal of merriment, was under the direction of Messrs. Jeff Vendome, Sid Bandon, and H. E. High.

Suit of Clothes, Mr. George Nyman.
Gold Medals, Mr. Michael Nolan.
Gold Medals, by Miss Agnes Hazel.
Gold Medals, Mr. Chas. Mildare.
Opera Glasses, Mr. George Brooks.

The hat-trimming competition, open only to male members of the music-hall profession, evoked roars of laughter. This took place in the Egyptian Court, and was arranged by Miss de Grey, Miss Lil Hawthorne being the judge. The first prize was awarded to Mr. Malcolm Scott, whose nimble fingers exercised on a red and brown confection once more proved that he is a "woman who knows," a claim to which honourable title he has now fully justified. Mr. Roza got the second prize, and Mr. Seth Egbert the third. Nothing could have been more ludicrous than the sight of Mr. Arthur Roberts, who afterwards sold the hats by auction, marching round and round at the head of his little band of 'prentices to the hat trade, each of whom, with great pride and an air of superiority exhibited his workmanship in the chapeau line on his own head. Mr. Wal Pink was the acting-manager here. A café chantant, directed by Mr. Frank Aylmer, prospered in the North Tower Gardens, Mr. Fred Harrison rendering good service as acting-manager. In the centre transept performances were given by Caicedo, King Alexander, Les Henris, the Villons, Thos. D. Genaro, Theol Trio, Robb Gilmore, Walter Stanton, Bros. Egbert, Troupe Lafraille, Bros. Ashley, the Four Juggling Geraldos, the Bouncing Dillons, and Hardeen, the show being managed by Messrs. Chas. Russell, Albert Schaffer, H. Maynard, and Mr. Arnold Bell. It was here, too, that "Dare-devil Cormack" performed his feat of diving from a height of one hundred feet into a tank. Other attractions were centred round a balloon ascent, Maxim's flying machines, the ostrich farm, topsy-turvy railway, the water-chute, Mr. Ernest E. Noakes' drawing-room entertainments, and dancing on the lawn to the accompaniment of the Crystal Palace Quadrille Band, and in the South Nave to the music excellently played by the Ladies' Orchestra, under the able conductorship of Miss Gascoyne Old.

THE MUSIC HALL ATHLETIC SPORTS.

These sports, which have hitherto been held at Stamford Bridge Grounds and elsewhere, under other auspices than the Variety Artists' Federation, were this year taken charge of by that body, and the receipts, after paying certain expenses, will help to augment the funds of the various music-hall charities. Some of the events on Thursday afternoon demonstrated the physical fitness and athletic qualities of many members of the variety profession, while other items in the programme gave evidence of the contestants' ability to cause merriment.

Perhaps the most comical was the half-mile animal bicycle race. The costume prize in this was won by Messrs. Ardine Maxley and Sidney Pete, who combined in the make-up as a giraffe, but whose pedalling efforts, naturally enough, were not very brisk. The actual winners of the race, from the cycling point of view, were Mr. Ted Cowan, dressed up as a monkey, who was awarded the first prize, and Mr. Edgar Budden(a bear), the second. The V.A.F. Challenge Cup for the one-mile running championship was secured for the first time by Mr. George Clarke, jun., and if he be lucky enough to win it on two further occasions it will become his absolute property. A particularly interesting event was the five-miles invitation auto-cycle race, the first prize in which was taken by Mr. H. A. Collier, a 100 miles record holder. Mr. Harry Tate, who was marked down as a competitor, described himself as the ninety miles in fifteen minutes champion, and after such a record as that it is a wonder that any other motorist should have had the temerity to contest the race with him. The challenge cup presented by Messrs. James Buchanan and Co. for the one-mile bicycle race goes this year to Mr. Gent Lotto, the previous holder, Mr. Ted Cowan, being a close second. The Frank Allen challenge cup for the one-mile walking handicap, was won by Mr. Thomas McGowan (eighty yards start), last year's winner, Mr. Harold H. Jeapes, giving twenty yards, and making a splendid show for his third prize. Mr. F. Fox, on a "Rex" 2¾ h.p. machine, came in first in the somewhat exciting five-miles motor cycle handicap; and in the 120 yards running handicap Mr. Fred Lorenzo, who had ten-and-a-half yards start, took the first prize. The three trophies for the 440 yards "Press" handicap were won by members of the staff of The Performer, namely, Messrs. E. Burnaby, Joseph Harris, and Edward Barry. Mr. George Clarke, jun., secured the cup presented by the directors of the Empire Theatre, Johannesburg (per Mr. Sydney M. Hyman), for the 440 yards scratch race, which is open to members of the V.A.F. only. Mr. Clarke, by the way, distinguished himself in other events, and was awarded the massive silver cup given by Mr. Harry Lauder for the best all-round athlete. At the conclusion of the sports Miss Marie Lloyd, attired in a beautiful mauve costume, very charmingly and gracefully presented the prizes to the several winners, and was accorded a hearty vote of thanks.

PARIS VARIETY GOSSIP.

GREAT excitement has been caused in Paris variety circles by the case of the Isola Frères and Paul Ruez, which has just come through the Law Courts.

IN 1903 the Isolas let their three halls—the Folies-Bergère, Olympia, and Parisiana—to M. Paul Ruez, on what we might call in English the hire system. That is to say, M. Ruez was to pay so much per night until he had paid the total price for the two halls, which would then become his property. In the contract, however, was a clause stating that in the event of the daily payment becoming three days in arrears they (the Isolas) could expel M. Ruez and take possession of the houses.

FOR the last year or so business has been far from satisfactory, and as the necessary money was not forthcoming, steps were taken to expel M. Ruez. He, however, brought the matter into Court, which decided that since he had paid so much, he, and not the Isolas, was proprietor of the three halls. But before this M. Ruez had declared himself bankrupt, and so at the present moment the houses are in the hands of the liquidator. Messrs. Isola have appealed, and some interesting revelations are expected.

THE new Révue at La Cigale by M. P. L. Flers has met with a great success, and is down for a long run.

LA BELLE OTERO'S engagement at the Marigny was only for one night, but she will no doubt be seen there in September for a long engagement.

MANY French stars go over to London and make a success, why shouldn't a London star come over to Paris and do likewise? Anyhow, that is what Miss Marie Lloyd thought, and so combining business with pleasure, she arrived here on the 16th for an eight days' stay at the Marigny Theatre. On her opening night she was, as may well be imagined, a wee bit nervous; but the thunderous applause which greeted her and the sight of so many English faces in front, soon put her at her ease, and as she sang many of us closed our eyes and tried to imagine we were back again in the Oxford or Tivoli.

ON Monday Miss Edna Aug opened at the Marigny in a specially-written number. Miss Aug, it will be remembered, made quite a success in the last révue at the Folies-Bergère.

ON Saturday night a gala fancy dress ball was given at the Alcazar d'Eté in honour of the American Colony.

THE New Apollo is now closed for the summer season. It will be re-opened in August with a fine show.

THE grand concert which the Prince and Princess de Broglie had arranged to give at the Nouveau Cirque on Monday was at the last moment, prohibited by the Prefect of Police, who was under the impression that the event would be taken advantage of by the young Prince's family to create a public demonstration. The young couple were not disheartened, however, and have arranged to give a private concert in the near future, to which they intend to invite the representatives of all the papers in Paris.

MM. BORNEY AND DUPREZ, of the Marigny Theatre, have taken over the Nouveau Cirque, which will be renovated and re-opened next season.

FOLLOWING the idea of the Palace and Alhambra, the Jardin de Paris is now showing nightly to its patrons the Biograph, or, as it is here named, the Cinema-Eclipse, with the actual happenings of the day.

THE Variétés is presenting a complete play, L'Enfant Prodigue, by means of the Cinematograph.

AMONGST the coming engagements at the Marigny may be mentioned Saharet, the dancer, and Horace Goldin. La Belle Otero will also be seen there in a gipsy scena from the pen of M. Borney, one of the Marigny directors.

A NEW révue will shortly be seen at the Moulin Rouge, in which we are to see Lucy Jonsset, Morton, and Pogoud.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

An interesting item on the programme at this popular house for the current week is Mr. Fred Karno's latest creation, The Bailiff, for which Fred Karno, Fred Kitchen, and L. Durrell are responsible, and which is making its initial bid for popularity in the metropolis. It proves to be a very diverting production, having as the skeleton of a plot the attempts of a bailiff and his assistant to get into a house in which a distraint is to be made, only to make the discovery, when they are successful, that they have got into the wrong house. When we mention that Mr. Kitchen portrays the "man in possession," it will be obvious that every ounce of humour is extracted from the rôle. Mr. Kitchen proved himself a comedian of great ability, and practically the whole brunt of the show falls on his shoulders, but his reception was sufficient to indicate the great hit he had made. He is capitally supported by Albert Bruno, Herbeck Landeck, Harry Cappo, and T. Ellis Buxton, and the Misses Jessie Crammonde and Aggie Morris, &c. The mounting is on a very lavish scale, and the whole production should have as prosperous a career as Mr. Karno's other enterprises. For the remainder of the programme some very entertaining turns have been secured. Miss Elsie Robey, in a musical comedy act, The Slavey's At Home, proves very amusing at the piano, and concludes her turn with a smart sand dance. Miss Anna Hope, who was until recently, if we mistake not, one of the principals with the Carl Rosa Opera Company, proves herself to be the possessor of a magnificent contralto voice. For her first song, "Kathleen Mavourneen," this artist receives a tremendous reception, while for the second, "Won't you come over to my house?" an equally flattering expression of the audience's appreciation was forthcoming. The effect of both songs was greatly enhanced by beautiful illustrations. Rich and Rich, in their well-known patter and dances, amused the house, their concluding song, "Master and Man," finding much favour. Bessie Butt, a very vivacious lady, speedily made herself a warm favourite, her dancing being very good. Lowell and Lowell, grotesque acrobats, presented a particularly clever act. The perfect ease with which some of their tricks were accomplished tended to make one forget how difficult they were, but applause of a very hearty nature greeted them at the close. Russell Wallet, "the lady in black," presents a diverting turn; his make-up is quite wonderful, and his whole business—songs, piano-playing, and patter—very smart. A special word is due to him for his depiction of a serenader with a cold in the head; it was most amusing, and excellently done. Needless to say, loud and prolonged applause was his reward at the end. Harry Rochez's ponies and dogs is an animal act of great merit, the training of the performers being perfect; very frequent applause was accorded its progress, the finale of the act being very good. A very exciting and lengthy film, "The Struggle for Life," is the attraction on the American Bioscope this week, and it succeeds in arousing the keenest interest amongst the audience. Mr. Walter Johnson's orchestra still remains a feature of the evening.

SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE.

George Lashwood heads the bill at this deservedly popular hall this week. Mr. Lashwood contributes three items—"Twilight," "Girls all love a soldier bold," and a special scena entitled "Oh, for a night in the West." In the military item Mr. Lashwood is assisted by the Eight Empire Girls, dressed as nursemaids; in the last item he enacts the part of a devil-may-care young fellow sent out to one of the colonies by an irate father. Mr. Lashwood, who has a special setting for this item, shows great cleverness in the way he handles the dialogue and the song, and this is certainly one of the most attractive and pleasing turns he has ever given us. The Eight Empire Girls also appear as a distinct turn and contribute a very entertaining singing and dancing act. Rosie Archer provides a very pleasing few minutes as a mimic at the piano, and Johnny Walker is very popular with a song entitled "I've just come back for my umbrella."

Amy Anderson and company appear very successfully in a coster scena entitled "The Banana Queen." The performance of Miss Anderson as the coster is extremely clever, and it is quite safe to say that until the close of the sketch no one ever thinks for a moment that the part is being played by a lady. Baker and Baife play operatic selections on Xylophones in a remarkably expert manner, and Mr. Baker, for an encore, adds a clever eccentric step dance, with Xylophone accompaniment. A most attractive item is that of La Berat, as the mystic fire maiden. The performance consists of skirt waving rather than dancing, but the attraction lies in the wonderful effects that are obtained by the aid of coloured lights playing on La Berat, on, of course, a dark stage. The performance is certainly extremely beautiful. Austin Rudd, as usual, is very popular. He has a couple of excellent songs, one entitled "I don't want to be a policeman any more," and a clever parody on "The Zuyder Zee." Sylvesta is an unusually good magician, who performs his many tricks, assisted by Miss Vera de Courtenay, in an excellent and amusing style. The well-known turn, Jordan and Harvey, Hebrew comedians, causes as much laughter as ever, and is genuinely amusing. The American Bioscope this week illustrates a Boar Hunt, a series of pictures which are exceedingly interesting. The excellent orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Harry W. May, contributes "Ronde des Bebes." A word of compliment must be passed to Mr. B. G. Maclachlan for his never-failing kindness in front.

SADLER'S WELLS.

Miss Carlotta de Yonsen and company are interesting crowded audiences at Sadler's Wells with their now well-known detective drama, Sexton Blake, written by Mr. C. Douglas Carlile. The story, which is so attractively presented by Miss de Yonsen and her little band of players, is of an absorbingly sensational kind. One might say that while Sherlock Holmes is the detective of the theatre, Sexton Blake occupies a similar position in regard to the music hall. In the presentment of the latter piece Mr. C. Douglas Carlile shows considerable versatility as an actor, and quite takes the fancy of the audience as an ideal "human sleuthhound." The part of the Master Criminal is in the capable hands of Mr. Chas. A. Carlile; while from Miss Carlotta de Yonsen we get a delightfully sympathetic and engaging characterisation of the heroine. Misses Lee Gilbert, W. Louper, Philip Astere, and M. Langdale render assistance in other rôles, and the playlet is extremely well staged. Coming to the individual turns, Mr. Sammy Shields, Scottish comedian, proves intensely entertaining with his description of the attitudes, the speech, and the general excited behaviour of the average spectator of a football match. He has, too, made a hit with the song "I'm looking for Gretchen," and altogether his style of humour has caught on at Sadler's Wells. Miss Edie Endon delights the house with her sweet singing and smart dancing; and the Two Jays make an agreeable diversion as "kwarrelsome komedians," as they describe their vocation. Mr. Will Harmony causes intense merriment with his comicalities; and some talented and most acceptable burlesque artists are found in the Sivronis. Mr. Chas. Austin cuts a most ridiculous figure as a woman who has much that is laughable to say concerning her husband, one "Perkins, who is fond of gherkins." He is extremely funny in another song on the subject of girls between the ages of seventeen and twenty-two. Macintosh and Royal are vocalists and comedians of great merit; Miss Rose Cass is a pleasing character vocalist; and Harry Simms maintains his excellent reputation as a popular light comedian. Mr. Leonard Mortimer's Dramatic Vaudeville Company are appearing in the sensational sketch, The House of Evil, written by Mr. Mortimer. Capital portrayals are given by Mr. Herbert Pearson as the hero, Miss Helena Walbran as the heroine, Mr. Murray Yorke as a smuggler, Mr. Albert Guyon, Miss Guinevere Shelton, and Mr. Charles E. Ludlow.

WOOLWICH HIPPODROME.

Full houses are the order of the evening, and should the depression now prevailing in the borough gain access to the hall it is soon dispelled by its enemies—music, wit, and humour. For the current week the management have provided a highly diversified programme, the various items of which win the loudly-expressed approbation of the audience. Foremost on the bill appears Mr. Joe Elvin and company, in Trespassers Beware. The sketch is brimful of amusing situations, of which Mr. Elvin as the unfortunate boating man who has "lost his rudder," takes full advantage of, and the playlet is accompanied throughout by much laughter.

The immobile comedian, Sam Mayo, hits the mark with two clever songs, which he sings in a droll manner, the audience being loth to part with him at the finish. Florence is a young lady of ability, and at once gains popular favour by her imitations and her singing and dancing. The Westwoods are extremely clever trick cyclists, their difficult feats being greatly appreciated.

In an amusing duologue Blake and Granby keep the house in roars of laughter, a man "in possession," mistaken for an eccentric American millionaire, providing a mirth-provoking situation, which is made the most of. Musical Silvo gains distinction for his playing on various weird-looking instruments, but most applause is lavished on his rendering of cleverly-executed solos on glasses. Herbert Darnley's Dots are well received, their dancing especially gaining well-merited applause; Pete and Juno, coloured comedians, are expert sand dancers, and obtain a due amount of praise; in his tuneful song "I'm lonesome" Mark Leslie scores favourably; Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, depicting "The Seaman's Widow"—a realistic film—brings the entertainment to a close.

THE CROUCH END HIPPODROME.

The sound policy of Mr. H. de Groot is making things "hum" in earnest at this popular house, which is receiving the constant support of variety lovers in the neighbourhood. He is to be congratulated on this week's programme, which contains some thirteen high-class turns. Chief position in honour must, of course, be accorded to the queen of comediennes, Miss Marie Lloyd, fresh from her triumphs in Paris, who was warmly welcomed. Her three songs comprised "Customs of the country," followed by "Pom tiddley om pom," and lastly the old favourite "The coster's wedding." At the conclusion of Miss Lloyd's last song the following turn was delayed a few minutes on account of the prolonged applause accorded her.

Miss Ella Lorraine, Scotch vocalist, has a fine contralto voice, and sings with good expression "The bonnie banks of Loch Lomond" and "For all eternity." Ella Lane, comedienne, sings "Not so much of it" and a "Medley," both of which suit her style, and are much appreciated. Charles Denton, an excellent comedian, contributes "I've been looking for work" and a parody on "The old apple tree," and one of the leading items of interest this week is the comedy sketch Coming Home, in which Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard provoke hearty laughter. Mr. William Gourley, an actor-comedian, finds considerable favour, and the turn of the Musical Dandy, Johnny Johnstone, with jokes, songs, selections on 'cello and one-stringed fiddle, and dance, furnishes a very enjoyable item, and is enthusiastically received.

A rollicking piece of fun is contributed by Clark and Haydon in their musical duologue, By Appointment, which is very highly relished by the audience, the performers meeting with well-won commendation. A laughable sketch is enacted by Drew Macintosh and Co., entitled Chalk and Cheese, in which Miss Nancy Harding is highly amusing as Perkins, the maid. The programme concludes with bioscopic pictures, some very interesting views being shown and loudly applauded. The orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. H. J. Hutchinson, acquits itself ably in the accompaniments, and the opening selection is also finely rendered.

THE FORESTERS'.

Furnished by the management with an exceptionally attractive programme, this cosy hall is doing excellent business this week, every seat being invariably occupied. Much merriment is caused by a clever combination of youthful comedians in the skit Casey's Circus, the special panoramic scenery being extremely funny. The Got-em quartet of singers is especially good, the blending of the voices being perfect. Mr. Will Murray, who appears as Mrs. Casey, is to be congratulated on having such a smart set of lads, who take full advantage of the many humorous situations. Mr. Chris Richards is a good eccentric comedian and a clever dancer, his legmania business being particularly interesting. Mr. Richards also does some skilful hat manipulation.

Messrs. Bernard and Weston are two capital patter comedians, who provide many good laughs in their interesting chatter, and also execute a neat dance. Whimsical Walker, assisted by the clever child actress Miss Molly Moore, provides a most interesting sketch in Captain Hamilton, V.C. The story is that of a youngster who is left to take care of his mother while his father, a soldier, is away at the front. A burglar (well played by Mr. Walker) obtains admission and carefully collects the father's cups, prizes, &c., for removal; but on making his exit is discovered by the boy. In a well-played scene the child informs the ruffian that the father has been shot, and they are now penniless, with the result that the interloper not only replaces all the stolen articles, but leaves behind all the money—a few coppers—he has in his possession.

A thoroughly interesting turn is supported by Mr. Harry Hilliar, who proves an instrumentalist of no little merit. In addition to playing a violin solo he renders delightfully that charming ballad "Daddy" on the phono fiddle. He also possesses a sweet tenor voice, which he uses to advantage in "I'm wearing my heart away." Miss Bessie Willow sings "I wonder if the girl I'm thinking of is thinking of me" in taking style; and Mr. D. W. Watson gives a couple of solos on the cornet and post-horn.

Foy Brothers and company, in their comedy act Pat in China, are entertaining. The brothers indulge in some clever tumbling, and provide plenty of amusement. The Sisters Rayman are two bright duettists and dancers, their song, "Hannah, won't you open that door?" being catchy. They conclude with a neat step dance. Fun in a Pawnshop is an absurdity played by Raleigh Abrahams and company, in which some clever boxing is witnessed between Mr. Frank Exall (as the college boy) and Bill Bashem, the bully. The characters of Nathan Upthespoutski (the Irish pawnbroker) and Emile Kickard (the Frenchman) are well played by Messrs. Harry Hiscott and Alec Hassell. A capital evening's amusement is concluded by some very interesting pictures on the Bioscope, the film representing "Perseverance Rewarded" being excellent. Mr. Cochrane is to be complimented on the admirable order that prevails throughout the evening.

(For other Variety Notices see pages 16 and 19.)

THE HOUSE OF WITMARK.

M. Witmark and Sons, the celebrated music publishers, have had many experiences, many successes, many failures, many reverses, and many triumphs. They have seen small houses grow and some large firms "close in." They have gloried in the development of the humble performer to the full fledged star, and have grieved over the end of the once famous favourite. The era has has marked the passing of renowned old playhouse and the Aladdin-like appearance of many new temples of amusement.

Their staff of writers is extensive. The list includes the following names well known in the States:—Victor Herbert, Gustav Luders, Walter H. Lewis, Chauncey Olcott, Harry B. Smith, Frank Pixley, Henry Blossom, Edgar Smith, Arthur J. Lamb, Maurice Levi, John W. Bratton, Ernest R. Ball, Lyn Udall, Herbert Spencer, Paul West, Julian Edwards, Alfred G. Robyn, Richard Carle, Wallace Irwin, Stanislaus Stange, George Ade, Edward Paulton, Addison Burkhardt, Wm. Loraine, Geo. L. Spaulding, Ethelwyn Arnold, Dave Reed, Jun.; Clifton Crawford, John B. Gardner and Caro Roma.

The initial days of this now famous firm bring recollections of the one little room on the top floor of a rickety building that is no more, all the stock in one rack, with a dust-proof shawl curtain on it; one "tinpanny" square piano, a few chairs of varied styles, and a desk, the envy of the antiquarian.

No professional copies then. No printed orchestrations, no slides, and no staff of demonstrators.

MR. JULIUS P. WITMARK.

Just one pianist, one manager, one bookkeeper, one office boy, and one mail clerk—all the lot the same one.

The growth from the acorn proves that the efforts have been recognised and encouraged. Their erection of the first building with eight stories devoted to a popular music business is famous. They have over a dozen pianos, with Rycroft, Lesure, Ball, Krouse, Kendall, Spencer, Sutton, Weston; a most gentlemanly and loyal staff; the most efficient of demonstrators handling car loads of professional copies a year, and tons of printed and manuscript orchestrations and slides. Their Chicago house, under Nat D. Mann, is a huge success, and the London house, the only popular American firm located here in their own building, under the management of Charles Warren, is the Mecca of American show folk abroad.

The many friends of Julius P. Witmark, a member of the firm of M. Witmark and Sons, have been delighted to welcome him back to his desk in the Witmark building, New York. During his days as the "boy balladist" with Thatcher, Primrose and West's minstrels, Russell's City Directory and Hoyt's Trip to Chinatown companies, Mr. Witmark not only helped to popularise the first publications of the "House of Witmark"—some of them being his own compositions—but he made a large number of personal friends in the profession. When he left the stage and took personal charge of the firm's professional department, he not only retained the allegiance of all his old "comrades in music," but gained countless more friends by his uniform courtesy and excellent musical judgment. Hundreds of vaudeville vocalists relied absolutely upon Julius Witmark, not only for the selection but also for the "reading" of their songs; and there was widespread anxiety outside his immediate family and friends when, owing to a street car accident, it became necessary to amputate the entire limb to save his life. Now that he is back in harness again and getting about as nimble as ever with the aid of crutches, there is a tendency to sympathise with him, which is the one thing he does not care for. His pet reply to tearful friends is a paraphrase of old minstrel Billy Rice's joke: "I'd rather have people say of me 'there he goes' (even on crutches) than 'here he lies.'"

Furthermore, Julius is the proud father of the youngest member of the "House of Witmark," and he maintains that the baby had as much to do with his quick recovery as skilful surgery.

MASONS AT WORK.

Chelsea Lodge, 3098, held its regular meeting on Friday last, at the Town Hall, Chelsea. The officers present were Brothers Serpentello, W.M.; Albert Le Fre, I.P.M.; H. Busoni, S.W.; W. Hitch, S.W.; Wolfe S. Lyon, treasurer; Chas. J. Doughty, secretary; H. Heriot Hill, chaplain; H. Bawn, S.D.; W. Walton, J.D.; Angelo Asher, organist. Past Masters were represented by Brother J. W. Mathews, the first Master, and J. H. MacNaughton was Tyler. The full programme of work on the agenda was ably carried out by the W.M., who initiated C. H. Barton in a very impressive manner, and advanced Brothers Wilding, Dan Lipton, and T. H. Parker, and further advanced Brothers Leo Tell and Fred Keeton. The members present were Brothers Eric Farr, B. J. Whitely, Douglas White, H. R. Mayville, J. B. Helm, W. Permane, Frank Hardie, W. Scott Adaker, Herbert Austin, and G. H. Hill. Brothers T. W. Rimble, J. W. Hopekirk, H. Pursingey, and H. Chenery were the visitors. As we go to press Sir Edward Letchworth, assisted by Brothers Henry Neville, Harry Nicholls, and other grand officers, are consecrating the Chapter in connection with the Lodge.

The installation meeting of the Earl's Court Chapter, 2765, was held on Saturday evening, at the Criterion Restaurant, Piccadilly, W., when Brother Wolfe S. Lyon was installed as M.E.Z., and invested Brothers C. Hutt, H.; H. Kinch, J.; Surgeon-Major Coffin, S.E.; T. Meek, S.N.; T. Leete, treasurer; H. Hookins, P.S.; and C. Cleeve, P.Z. The companions subsequently dined together, and a very enjoyable entertainment was provided by Mesdames Julia Leslie, Adele de Freece, Messrs. Harry Sims, Gilbert Girard, and the Harmony Four.

FILM GOSSIP.

Charles Urban Trading Co.

The Victoria Falls.—Congratulations are certain to be showered upon Mr. Charles Urban when, on Monday at the Alhambra, the public will have an opportunity of witnessing a really wonderful series of animated scenes depicting the great Victoria Falls on the Zambesi River, of which we were given a private view yesterday. Comprehensive scenes are presented of the mile-wide Zambesi above the Falls, and the charm and fascination of the river are apparent as canoeing parties from the Victoria Hotel are seen negotiating its channels and embowered inlets. But charm and fascination give place to wondering amazement as the rapids are pictured, with waters rushing on their rock-strewn course to the brink.

To describe the Falls themselves—their magnitude, depth, the thousand cascades in the two-miles-wide cataract, the gorge, umbrageous and boulder-strewn, the clouds of mist, the swirling, foaming rapids below, where the waters of the great river are compressed into a narrow channel of thirty yards wide, the whirlpool, the sublime pictures of the Falls at warm sunset, at gorgeous tropic dawn, and by silvery moonlight—to describe all these the pen of a William Black is necessary. We have no doubt that many other managers will follow the example of Mr. George Scott, of the Alhambra, in securing this magnificent film.

De Beers Diamond Mine.—This is a comprehensive and perfectly photographed series of these celebrated mines, illustrating the methods employed on the surface, on the stages or galleries, and at the bottom of the workings. Panoramic views of the tremendous pit, drilling and blasting in full operation, when hundreds of tons of blue clay and rock are displaced by a single charge of explosives, handling and hauling the clay, dumping, crushing, &c., are shown.

"A Stag Hunt in France" is a new subject of fascinating interest, which illustrates, in beautiful detail, the French methods employed in this popular sport. Sublime pictures of lake scenery (tinted) showing the stag browsing—alarmed—in flight—swimming—throwing hounds off scent—discovered—pursued—hard pressed—overtaken—shot. A perfectly-trained pack of hounds are engaged, and their sagacity, discipline, and beauty are marvellous to witness.

Full of interest and excitement, too, are the Urban pictures of the motor-race for the Kaiser's Cup. This series affords splendid close portraits of the German Emperor and Empress and their suite, and impressive scenes in the forest as His Majesty and suite arrive, mounted.

Pathé Frères.

As usual, this firm have a good "show" in their latest novelties. "Chasing a Motorist" is a distinctly amusing film, and satirises the fear and dislike with which, not so very long ago, motor-cars and their drivers were regarded by the peasantry, particularly in France. A motorist, wearing a fur coat of Brobdingnagian proportions, is busily engaged attending to some temporary trouble with his car when he is seen by a village labourer. The latter, regarding him as some strange kind of animal, and his machine as a thing of terror, rushes away and raises an alarm among the villagers. The result is extremely amusing. Gendarmes come along, and they are supported by several soldiers, aided by the populace armed with various instruments. The motorist gets away after leaving his huge coat upon the ground.

"A Victim of Science" tells a little tragedy. A scientist, while engaged in an experiment, loses his sight, and the parents of his sweetheart refuse to permit their daughter to marry him, even although they have plighted their troth. Eventually the blind man commits suicide, after having been led to the brink of a quarry, where he and his loved-one had so often wandered in the past. The scenes in this are beautifully clear, and the film is one which should find a ready sale.

"Sammy as Footman" is full of comical incidents, and shows how a negro behaves on being received into his first employment as a footman. Other Pathé films of equal interest are "The Seaman's Widow" (a pathetic subject), "Drunkard in Spite of All" (a humorous film), and "The Diabolo." We have not the slightest doubt that all of these will prove popular.

Walturdaw Co.

The Walturdaw Company is going strong with the Cinematophone, the singing pictures which were fully described in this column last week. Their latest subjects include the "Four Jolly Sailormen," from the opera The Princess of Kensington, with some of the original cast, and the church parade scene from The Catch of the Season. We understand that the demand for these specialities has been remarkably large, and is on the increase.

Ruffells' have a fine picture in colours, called "The Red Sceptre," which will be produced at the Alhambra, Brighton, on Monday. It shows a number of weird and fanciful scenes. Ruffells' are also opening on Monday at the Palace, Brighton, for a couple of weeks, doing two shows a night of the cinematograph character.

Vitagraph.

"The Bunco Steerers" is a capital film, which is being published by the Vitagraph. The story it tells is this. Two "Bunco" men are seen waiting for their legitimate prey, a "rube" from the country, who soon arrives on the scene. One of the "side partners" endeavours to give the farmer the "glad hand," but Reuben is suspicious. The second "Bunco" man tackles him with better luck, and they go off arm in arm to a hotel, where the first man quickly puts on a waiter's apron and coat in an adjoining room and "serves the drinks" when his accomplice orders them. In this way they are enabled to drug the whiskey which the old farmer is plied with, and he is soon unconscious. The chief conspirator goes through his pockets, and then a quarrel arises over the division of the spoils. The "waiter" stabs his pal and leaves him for dead. At the police station the farmer is accused of murder and cannot prove his innocence. Suddenly, however, an ambulance surgeon enters, and then a stretcher is brought in bearing the wounded "Bunco" man, who in a dramatic manner accuses his false partner in crime and fastens the guilt upon him.

"THE FISHER GIRL."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Re Mr. Oswald Brand's letter in your to-day's issue. This gentleman is perfectly correct in stating that he is the author of an opera entitled The Fisher Girl, but in the sketch bearing that title, produced by me at the Paragon Music Hall, on June 17, not a line from the original book is used. Every word of it was written by me, and even if it were not so the opera is my sole and exclusive property, therefore, I have the right to deal with it as I like, and have given him credit where credit is due—the lyrics.—Faithfully yours,

A MUSICAL STAFF EN FETE.

The banner of the "Sixpenny Pops." was borne proudly into the picturesque little town of Wendover, in Bucks, on Saturday, when the staff of Messrs. Francis and Day, the world-famous music publishers, for the sixth time paid a tribute of respect and affection to the heads of the firm by arranging an annual outing in their honour. Each member of the party wore a neat badge consisting of a pretty ribbon surmounted by a couple of axes, and bearing in gilt letters the words "6d. Pops," from which depended a silver sixpence. The firm was represented by Mr. David Day and by his son, Mr. Fred Day, who for the past three years has been strengthening in a phenomenal degree the interests of the house in America. Mr. William Francis had not sufficiently recovered from his late severe illness to be present, but he was represented by his two sons, Arthur and William, the latter of whom has been upholding with Mr. Fred Day the honours of the house in America. Mr. C. J. Smith was again the chairman of the party, and Mr. W. Eyke the vice, and well-known makers of melody present included Mr. Edgar Bateman, Messrs. Leigh and Pether, Mr. Charles Wilmott, and Mr. Hermann Darewski, jun.; while old and respected members of the firm were found in Mr. "Bob" Burridge and Mr. "Charlie" Rooker, the latter of whom can claim that his years of service, coupled with those of Mr. Smith, aggregate half a century.

An edge was given to the appetite shortly after arrival by a cricket match between teams captained respectively by Mr. Fred Day and Mr. Wm. Francis, jun., in which the former was victorious. Others took advantage of the beautiful walks in the vicinity, and Mr. Eyke went with his rod to the adjoining canal, but fished in vain. Dinner was served at the Red Lion Hotel, kept by Mr. J. S. Holland, which has the distinction of being referred to by Stevenson in his "Essays of Travel." After an excellent repast, served in admirable style, the chairman rose to give "The Health of the Firm." It was a very great pleasure to him to propose the toast, which had fallen to him for some years past. This time he had the added joy of coupling with it the name of Mr. Fred Day, whom he had the greatest pleasure in welcoming back. They had been very sorry to part with him, and they would be delighted to listen to a few of his eloquent remarks. Mr. Smith read the following telegram from Mr. Wm. Francis: "Heartiest good wishes for jolly day. Sorry not able to be with you. Good luck to all." He proposed that a wire should be sent to Mr. Francis expressing their pleasure at receiving his telegram, and regret at his absence. A telegram was also dispatched to Mr. Charles Day in the following terms: "Regret illness. Sympathy and best wishes from staff," and a cable to Mr. John Abbott, "Playtime, New York," which read "Fraternal greetings from all."

The toast was received with musical honours, and Mr. Fred Day, who was enthusiastically cheered, said he had been instructed to be brief, but would not need a code to bring his remarks down to the required number of words. He was delighted to be back in the country which to him was very near akin to Paradise. He thought he should find it necessary to make the trip very often, and would like to bring his American staff, a great number of whom volunteered to come, but as ladies were not invited he had to go without. He was very glad to see all looking so well. Hard work evidently agreed with them. He only wished he could find as good and enthusiastic business men on the other side as we have here.

Mr. David Day, who was very warmly received, said he would like to take a drink with the chairman for the purpose of proposing the health of the staff and the visitors. He and his son were indeed glad to be their guests that day, and were enjoying themselves thoroughly. He regretted that Mr. William Francis was not well enough to be with them, but both Mr. Francis and himself wished to thank them one and all for their good services and for their contribution to the continued success of the firm. For the past twelve months really good and steady progress had been made, owing principally to their support. He did not regret the absence of Mr. Abbott, because he was doing real good work as set for him by Mr. Fred on the other side. At the same time, the news by the last mail from America called for their sympathy, as it told them that Mr. Abbott was suffering from a touch of malaria. Since the letter arrived, however, he had received a cablegram message showing that he was hard at business. Mr. Charlie Day, although making satisfactory progress, was not well enough to be present, but he was with them in spirit, and had obtained a "6d. Pop" badge in order that he might wear it in honour of the occasion.

The toast was acknowledged by the vice-chairman, who said it was a pleasure to all to work for the firm. He thanked them also for so generously giving them the day in order that they might enjoy such a nice day in the country. Mr. Eyke ended by proposing the health of the committee and the visitors.

Mr. H. Harris responded on behalf of the committee, mentioning, amid applause, that they had to thank the firm for assisting the staff with a cheque towards the expenses of the day, by which they were enabled to enjoy a very good day in the country at a nominal price.

Mr. L. E. Bellamy and Mr. Fred Leigh also replied for the committee, and Mr. E. White and Mr. George Scott answered for the visitors.

A delightful drive was afterwards enjoyed, the party being taken by way of Aston Clinton, through Halton Woods, and by Alfred Rothschild's lordly domain, with the Chiltern Hills rising almost perpendicularly at the side. Five o'clock found the party, with spirits undamped by the rain, back at the hotel, where tea was followed by an impromptu concert, which Mr. David Day, by special request, led off with "Dear old pals." Mr. Fred Day gave in good style his own clever composition of "Tooralray"; and Mr. Fred Leigh, the writer of "Om-tiddley-om-pom," and Mr. Charles Wilmott, the author of "Twilight," each gave the song with which their pens are associated.

A little interlude was introduced when Mr. Fred Day suggested that Mr. "Bob" Burridge should speak on behalf of the "6d. Pops." Mr. Burridge is a little hard of hearing, and did not quite catch the remark; but no sooner did he learn that a speech was required of him than he was on his feet, and delivered a fluent oration which began with Mr. David Day and ended with the King. The speaker paid a tribute to the energy and perseverance which had made the name of Francis and Day famous in the remotest parts of the globe, and declared that as floral wreaths were conferred upon political and social leaders, so there ought to be laurels for the clever business man. He referred in appreciative terms to Mr. Fred Day, who, he said, had had plenty of thorns when he severed family ties and went to hoist the standard of the firm in America, and now should have all the roses that could be gathered. Cosy card parties were made up in the saloon carriage on the homeward journey, and another memorable outing come to an end in a chorus of delight.

Kidderminster Fair.

THIS old-time Worcestershire town is possessed of one of the largest fairgrounds in the Midland Counties. This lends itself admirably to the display of the largest and the best concerns on this round. The premier show was Sagar's palace of delight and coliseum of varieties. The next in order was Mander's star menagerie, followed by Professor Hayden and Madame Clytie in second sight marvels; Hasting's tow ground booths, the midget marvels, and the fat lady; H. Wall's dwarf show. The machine sets were those of Mr. P. Collins, and included motor-cars, ostriches, steam yachts, and helter-skelter. The juvenile roundabouts and gem sets were by S. Dobson and J. Wright. There were innumerable stalls, the principal caterers of which were Hall Bros., Fipps, Birch, Beach, Wyatt, and Wright. The shooting concerns were provided by Messrs. Wright, Wyatt, and Jennings. The fair was an excellent one, everyone doing record business.

Selkirk Fair.

AT this Scotch fixture were the well-known concerns of J. Biddall, G. A. Biddall, S. Biddall, Styles and Co., Wilmots' motor-cars, W. and D. Murphy's motor-cars, Cross's steam horses and swings, Broughton's swings, Winchester ranges and bottle batteries by Hughes, Slater, Day, Sherran, Broughton, Mitchell, Black, and S. Biddall. The throwing games in excellent order of display were provided by Messrs. Blakeley, Millar, Black, Matchett, Shields, Slater, Russell, Broughton, Sherran, and Alfred Millar.

Maidstone Fair.

THE fairground novelties, including switchback, galloping horses, novelty booth, swings, shooting concerns, throwing games, &c., were provided by the well-known London caterer of amusements the Pettigrove Family.

Padiham Fair.

WE are in receipt of an official communication from the Padiham Urban District Council informing us that the Padiham Fair will be held this year from July 27 to August 3, and not the second Thursday in August, as in previous years. Showmen taking this round had better make a note of this official alteration.

Abingdon Fair.

THE June fair at the old town of Abingdon was but poorly attended by fairground traders. The only concerns on the ground were swings, by Clark and Spurritt; bottle smasher, by W. Spurritt; throwing games, by Messrs. J. Roberts and Buckland Bros.

Enrolment of Guild Members.

IN order that members may be enrolled in parts of the country where there is no committeeman enrolling members, the following gentlemen are being supplied with material and authorised to enroll members:—Mr. G. W. A. Norton, on the western round; Messrs. John Gage, manager for Mr. John Stud, on the Welsh round; G. Bailey, manager for riding machine for Mr. P. Collins; and C. Shaw, with Messrs. Tuby and Son. It is proposed to add other names to this list in order that greater facilities may be given to showmen and fairground traders to join the Guild.

The White City, Old Trafford.

THE many devices for interesting and amusing the large numbers of visitors to this lovely amusement park are continually being added to. Mr. Leoni Clarke is doing good business with his wonderful cats, birds, rats, mice, &c. In addition to the Maxim's airship, there is now Collins's great airship, which finds much favour. The great water chute, the figure eight gravitation ride, the dragon slide, Hale's tours of the world, the mystic rivers and artist's dream are also among the many attractions which are exceedingly popular. Though the weather has been very changeable and against open-air entertainments, there are ample sheltered amusements, and the excellent refreshment catering adds to the growing popularity of the resort, which is brilliantly illuminated at night.

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD AT MEXBORO' FEAST.

The claim of the show industry to be modern and thoroughly up to date is strikingly illustrated in the growth and success of Mexboro' Feast. Fifty years ago it was just a small village fair, and meant tolerably good business for one or two fairground concerns. To-day it is one of the best fixtures for show business in the Barnsley district. The growth of the coal trade and the opening out of iron and steel works in its immediate vicinity has turned a small and sleepy Yorkshire village into the throbbing and pulsing heart of a great industrial district. The village feast, as is usually the case, originated with the observance of the Church Festival, the Parish and Mother church being dedicated to, and under the patronage of, St. John the Baptist. The fair itself is governed by the nearest Sunday to the Church Feast, and generally lasts from the Friday before St. John the Baptist Day till the middle of the following week, and within the octave of the Patron Saint.

The Organising Chaplain's Sunday Work.

Preached at St. Paul's Church, Mexboro', at 10.30, and afterwards assisted at the Festival Celebration of the Holy Communion. Addressed a gathering of united adult Bible classes at the parish church on the work of the Showmen's Guild at 2.30. Was principal speaker at the meeting for showpeople only on the Fairground at 3.30; assisted at the Festival Evensong at the parish church, St. John the Baptist, at 6.30. Preached at the showmen's service in Tuby's Coliseum on the Fairground at 8.15.

Guild Meeting.

Councillor G. T. Tuby, in whose magnificent pavilion the gathering was held, was unanimously voted to the chair, and supporting him were:—The Rev. T. Horne and Messrs. T. Tuby, jun., A. Fisher, W. Brandon, W. Doubtfire, J. Watson, C. Shaw, M. Tuby, T. Hall, J. G. Shaw, and other showmen and fairground traders. Mr. Tuby, in his opening remarks, said that the need for a trade protection society was obvious to all those who earned their living on the fairground. He did not propose to occupy their time by any lengthy speech, or to stand between that meeting and the hearing of what Mr. Horne had come to Mexboro' to tell them. This one thing, however, he must say, it was evident from the report, copies of which had been placed in their hands as the meeting was gathering, that Parliamentary defence work and some of the other branches of their Society's enterprise involved the expenditure of large sums of money. It was necessary, therefore, that all fairground traders should join together to find the ways and means to support that necessary work. He therefore commended most earnestly the Society to their appreciation and support, and now most gladly asked their organising chaplain to deliver his address.

The Work and Aims of the Showmen's Guild.

As in previous addresses fully reported in these columns, Mr. Horne dealt with the rise and progress of the Trade Defence Movement amongst showpeople. He demonstrated the importance of that work as their bulwark of defence, against the undue interference with their rights and liberties as an industrial class in the community attempted by individuals and corporations. He showed how the domestic peace and inviolability of their homes on wheels had been secured to them, how that their character as supplying a public need as craftsmen and traders with a noble lineage had been defended from the unjust attacks of ignorant fanatics and narrow-minded faddists.

He dwelt upon the freedom of their trade, as illustrated in the securities obtained by costly Parliamentary work against the encroaching powers of great corporations. They had secured and still maintained free trade in fairs, and freedom from the imposition of unjust and penalising restrictions sought by various public bodies who wished to be able to say to the showman—you shall open your show at such an hour and close your show at such an hour as we shall be pleased to dictate. Showmen claimed, he argued, to open their places of trade and business during the same hours as other legitimate traders. They did not claim special privilege above other citizens, but they did claim, and were prepared to strenuously maintain that their business was entitled to the same protection and the same liberty of growth and freedom as the trade and business of any other class in the community.

Why He Was on Tour.

It had been felt for many years past that it was only lack of knowledge on the part of the great mass of fairground traders that had prevented the Society receiving that support its work eminently demanded. This had been so borne in upon his mind that he had determined this year to surrender his fixed parish work, and to make his parish wherever showmen could be found. He was confident that the time had come in the growth of the great show industry to warrant his making this venture of faith, and he had no hesitation in saying that so far as he had already gone in organising and speaking at meetings and services of the Guild at such fairs as Manchester (Queen's-road), Wrexham, Knutsford (May Festival), Birmingham, Penzance, and Porth Fairs, that the results had more than exceeded his expectations. He was very anxious not only to include the great fairs in the country, but to get upon the rounds like this one in Yorkshire, where a particular group of showpeople kept well within its own district. Their chairman, Mr. Tuby, had been for years past a supporter of the Guild and a subscriber to its funds. He had the pleasure of enrolling Mr. Tuby, and receiving his annual subscription at Lynn Mart, and he sincerely trusted that the showpeople who mainly followed their chairman's round of fairs would come forward at that meeting and join the Society. He could not too strongly press upon them the great value and importance of increasing the members' roll. In fact, he was convinced that large numbers of members were of greater value to them in dealing with public bodies and with Parliament than big subscriptions from the big capitalists in their business. They needed both, but it was especially his mission in going from fair to fair to rally the rank and file, to swell both their numbers and to increase their funds. Let them not hesitate, but join the Society; he would rather have their names and the minimum subscription that day than wait for a later period in the year with the hope and expectation that better business would enable them to give a bigger subscription. Besides, he added, it is always open to a member to give a second and succeeding subscription when the sun of prosperity shone more fully upon them.

New Members at Mexboro'.

Mr. Tuby, in exhorting the showpeople present to join the Society, asked them to notice how he had been fully justified in abstaining from making a long speech at the opening of their proceedings. After what they heard, and also from what they were constantly reading of Mr. Horne's work, no one could doubt for a single moment that it was their duty and their privilege to rally to the support of the Society doing such magnificent work. Here was an organisation that united them. They might have their inside troubles and difficulties, but here was a Society which stood to protect them from all outside troubles, and he for one was heartily in sympathy with its work. He joined with Mr. Horne in urging upon them to become members.

The following members were enrolled:—T. Tuby, jun., 5s.; A. Fisher, jun., 5s.; W. Brandon, 5s.; J. Watson, 5s.; J. G. Shaw, 5s.; T. Hall, 5s; W. Doubtfire, 5s.

The Guild Service.

The Vicar of Mexboro', the Rev. W H. F. Bateman, has for many years past taken a deep and pastoral interest in his showmen parishioners at the time of the Feast. Whilst the exigencies of his parish work (he and his two colleagues in the minstry having three churches to serve) made it impossible to conduct services on the fairground, he had never omitted the diligent visiting of the caravans, friendly intercourse with the showpeople, the baptising of the children and ministering to the sick when necessary. In reply to the organising chaplain's request that services be permitted in his parish on the Feast Sunday, the vicar sent a most kindly-worded letter of appreciation, hearty desire to co-operate in the work and open hospitality, bidding the showmen's parson to make the Vicarage his home during his stay at Mexboro'. This is as it should be. Mr. Horne, as the diary of his day's work given above indicates, became one of the parish clergy for that day. At the Guild service, begun immediately after the conclusion of the services of the churches in the town, the vicar both conducted the service and read the appointed Lesson. The organising chaplain preached a sermon, with a special reference to the needs of showpeople, and an apposite reference to the keeping of their Parish Patronal Feast. He dwelt upon the historical fact that not only the show business had its rootage, if not its immediate beginning, in the old Church Festivals now called Fairs, but that the drama and the variety stage could be traced back to the old morality plays and Church Festival Pageants that originated at the great Festivals of the Church. He drew a moral from the stern Baptist power in dealing with crowds of people to the responsibility that rests upon every man, be he preacher, poet, artist, actor, or showman who has the gift of drawing a crowd. Woe betide that man, he said, who misuses the great gifts of drawing a crowd.

Tuby's show was admirably adapted for the purpose of the showmen chapel on the fairground, and the showman, his wife and family, highly appreciated the privilege of common prayer and worship with the Christian men and women of Mexboro'. The show was crowded to its utmost capacity by a devout and attentive congregation.

We are glad to announce that the Vicar of Mexboro' has consented to become honorary local chaplain to the Guild, and to know that he already acts in that capacity for the Actors' Union.

The Late Madame Small.

The above is a picture of Madame Small, whose demise and funeral we chronicled last week.

Mexborough Feast.

On No. 1 Ground, lessee, Mr. Tuby, the following concerns, machines, and novelties were on exhibition:—Tuby's coliseum, gondolas, motors, galloping horses, swings, and shooters; Davies' Circus; Westray and White's freak shows and novelty booths; Farrer and Ling's fine arts; Prof. Watson's boxing booth; T. Wortley's colliery model show and novelty booth; gem roundabouts and highflers by Fisher, Pullen, Welsh, Bentley, Woods, and Chambers; steam swings by Amos; Winchester ranges and rifle saloons by Fisher, Shaw, Bentley, and Pullen; Emma sheets, cokers, and throwing games by Waddington, Smith, Doubtfire, and Warren; novelty stalls and varieties by Lazarus, Webb, Monte, and others. Record business was done.

On No. 2 Ground, under the banner of Harniess and Son, were the concerns of Procter, Crighton, and Farrer, cinematograph theatres; Gal Hague's boxers; Goldthorpe Marshall's motors; Harniess' racing cockerels and galloping horse sets; J. Collins' yachts and helter-skelter; Corrigan's steam swings; Thomas' manual swings and gem swings and horses by Brookes and Hutchinson; Mrs. Burton's shooting gallery; football games by Gallagher and Vanner; throwing games and variety stalls by Walker, Townsend, Corrigan, Brookes, Houldsworth, Vanner, and Wright; refreshment boths by Hutchinson and Nolan; and varieties by Gallagher, Paget, and Brookes.

Showman's Locomotive.

"RULE of the road" summons at Newport.—Edward Danter, the well-known travelling showman, was summoned at Newport, Mon., on Saturday for failing to instantly stop his road locomotive on June 12, when Mr. Lewis Lewis, a Machen farmer, who was driving a horse and trap, put up his hand as a signal for him to stop. Mr. Newton Wade appeared for the prosecution; Mr. F. H. Dauncey was for the defence. There was a considerable conflict as to the details. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were driving towards Newport, when the defendant's locomotive and two vans came along towards them. Mr. Lewis said he drew to the side of the road and put up his hand for the defendant (who was on the engine) to stop. He did not stop, and when the engine was within about a dozen yards of the trap the mare reared, turned round, and upset the trap, throwing both the occupants out. Mrs. Lewis had an ankle sprained and a foot injured. Complainant jumped up and seized the mare's head. By that time the defendant and his men had got to their assistance, and helped to put the trap upright again. Two days later complainant saw Danter at Mountain Ash, and told him of what had happened. Danter said, "You must have upset the trap yourself, then. You are no man; you kept me there on the road for more than half an hour." Defendant's version was that as soon as Mr. Lewis held up his hand he (defendant) shut off steam and stopped the engine, but complainant, having drawn to the side of the road, beckoned him to come on slowly, and he went on. The mare backed one of the wheels against the hedge, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis jumped out. The Bench said there was not sufficient evidence to convict. The case was, therefore, dismissed.

Newport Pagnell.

THE fair here was well kept by both people and funmakers. The shows and concerns were Barker's electric coliseum, Harvey's boxing saloon, and a freak show. Messrs. Billing and Shepherd provided the principal machine novelties and ranges of swings. The other novelties were of the usual character.

THE FIGHT FOR MITCHAM.

In accordance with the plan of campaign outlined in our columns last week, a vigorous defence of the fair propaganda has been carried out by the executive of the Showmen's Guild and their many friends and helpers at Mitcham. The principal things done were—extensive advertising in the local Press, covering the walls and hoardings of Mitcham with large posters setting forth the case for the showmen and the not less important case for the preservation of the ancient fair rights and franchises of the people of Mitcham. In addition to the posters, five thousand handbills, containing the showmen's manifesto, were distributed. We give the text of this manifesto, and also the text of the remarkably able and eminently characteristic manifesto by Lord George Sanger, the venerated president of the Showmen's Guild. Of this latter three thousand were circulated:—

MITCHAM FAIR.

AN APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE.

Why should you surrender your ancient Fair Rights at the bidding of an interested clique who do not enjoy the open-air amusements which the Fair brings to your doors every year? The Fair is the poor man's opportunity for wholesome amusement and recreation. The Fair is also your legal security for the continuance of your old-time holidays.

The Showmen's Guild of Great Britain will give to the people of Mitcham an opportunity of recording their vote for or against the continuance of the old Charter Fair. The showmen recognise that to remove the Fair from its present congested and dangerous site in the centre of the town would be an advantage. They have offered the Conservators, and have also suggested to the Home Secretary, the removal of the Fair to the Three Kings Common. The Showmen's Guild desire an expression of opinion of the people of Mitcham on these questions:—

The continuance of the Fair, and its removal to a more suitable site on the People's Common.

A MEETING

Will be held on Thursday next, June 27, at 7 o'clock, On the Fair Green, Mitcham.

The Rev. T. Horne (Chaplain to the Showmen's Guild), Mr. F. H. Pedgrift (London Treasurer to the Showmen's Guild), and Mr. T. Watson-Wright (Solicitor to the Showmen's Guild) will address the meeting, supported by the executive officers of the Guild and local gentlemen interested in the preservation of the People's Rights in Mitcham Fair.

A DEFENCE OF BRITISH FAIRS,

Addressed to all Admirers of Shows and Showpeople by Lord George Sanger, President of the Showmen's Guild.

Especially Dedicated to the People of Mitcham.

I venture to draw public attention to the meeting organised by the Showmen's Guild, with which I have been closely allied since its origination. A meeting in the open air on the Fair Green at Mitcham, on Thursday evening, to protest against the attempt now being made to abolish Mitcham's old-time and honoured fair. I have recently read in the daily Press sound and reasonable leading articles and letters on the preservation to London City of Crosby Hall and other places of historical importance and memorable antiquity, and am led to ask—Is not Mitcham Fair worthy, on account of its historical associations, to be preserved? Is it consistent with common-sense that this fair that has outlived every other fair within the Metropolitan district should be abolished? Why should it not remain as a link with the past and an honoured heirloom to the people of Mitcham? For, indeed, it has a history of no ordinary importance.

Within Living Memory.

Within my time I have seen great and glorious exhibitions maintaining the fair on Mitcham Green—exhibitions now forgotten by both showmen and the public. The great Jacky Richardson, with his magnificent booth, I have seen pitched on the triangular ground where the fair has been held for generations. Both upon the outside parade and upon the splendid stage within the theatre the great actors and actresses of his day strutted and fretted their many parts upon the classic boards of that portable theatre. Again, I have seen at Mitcham Fair the great Paul Herring and Joey Grimaldi, the clowns, and with them Jim Burke, the pantaloon, Waters, the Simpkin, Hartley, the Johnny Wapstraw, and others the funmakers of those days, who convulsed with laughter the fathers, grandfathers, and some of the great-grandfathers of the present Mitcham inhabitants. These celebrities of their day, although they were not of blue blood or high estate, still they deserve the reverence of the present and coming generations. It is to me lamentable that in liberty-loving England there should be found still "the cloven-footed and the forked-tongued monsters" eager to trample down and to destroy the innocent enjoyment of the public, more especially the poorer classes; it is, to my thinking, an outrage and a crime.

The Glorious Past Record of Mitcham Fair.

To your fair came the great travelling menageries, in their day and generation of the famous George Wombwell, and the similar wild-beast shows of Atkinson, Hilton, Wright, and Manders. These travelling menageries made your old fair a notable landmark and a sharer in the showman glory of the nation. When we turn to the record of the circus world, we find that the great William Batty, William Cooke, Ducrow, John Clark, Fraser, and innumerable others have delighted Mitcham men, women, and children by their classic performances in the sawdust arena; and my earnest expectation and hope is that all good men and women who love to see and to join in the happiness and merriment of their friends and neighbours will unite their forces for the preservation of one of England's great historic fairs, and the last link with the venerable and distinguished past that Mitcham has in its fair.

The Attempts to Abolish the Fair.

From what I have read, the Right Hon. H. J. Gladstone, the Home Secretary, has not yet abolished the fair, nor will he do so. The good son of a great father (a father whose memory is reverenced by the whole civilised world), bearing a name that will be honoured as long as time shall last, I confidently anticipate that such a son will not dishonour the principles of such a father by signing a decree that merely plays into the hands of a few fanatics, who see nothing but wrongdoing in the light-hearted enjoyment of their more unsuccessful brethren.

A Final Appeal to Save the Fair.

We have already seen the many links that Mitcham possesses of the grand and glorious past in this ancient Charter Fair. That fair must be preserved, and it is to the people of Mitcham that we—the showmen of the Empire—look, not only for its maintenance, but for its continuance under such better and more modern conditions that will extend its usefulness and increase its prosperity. To the showmen, as a veteran and a father in their midst, I say that they must meet the abolitionists with a determined and stubborn resistance. Their cause is honourable and just, and I feel convinced that the general public, not only of the locality itself, will be with them, but that the sympathy of the show-loving people throughout the Empire will be extended to the movement that endeavours to preserve to people and showmen alike the old-time fair of "Lavender Land" at Mitcham.—Respectfully yours,

GEORGE SANGER,
President, the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain.

The Demonstration on the Fair Green.

Despite the deterrent aspect of the weather, the people of Mitcham began to gather in goodly numbers some considerable period before the time fixed for the meeting. Groups of eager men and women were discussing the question of the fair and its continuance, and reading the stirring words of Lord George Sanger's manifesto. The centre of attraction was the middle of the fairgreen. There a lorry had been drawn to serve as the platform for chairman and speakers. A long table stood before the platform to be used later on for the purpose of receiving signatures to the local petition against the abolition of the fair.

Under the energetic guidance of Mr. Alf. Ball, a rapidly-increasing band of local workers were busy perfecting the final arrangements, a marked feature of the demonstration being the hosts of ready volunteers among the workingmen of Mitcham.

A good number of local showmen answered the call of the executive of the Guild, and were present and took part in the detail work of organisation and obtaining signatures from the people present. Amongst these we noticed Mr. Tom Norman, vice-president of the Society, Messrs. Robert Clasper, D. Searle, G. Elliott, T. Stone, D. Stevens, and a number of the old tenants of Mitcham Fair. By seven o'clock there were a thousand people gathered round the improvised rostrum, and well before the ending of the chairman's speech between two and three thousand were present.

The Local Interests

were admirably stated by Councillor Baker, who prefaced his remarks by reading the following telegram from Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, of The Era:—"DEAR MR. HORNE,—Sorry that I am prevented by important business at The Era offices presiding over your Guild meeting. Wish you all success." In Mr. Pedgrift's absence he readily responded to the vote of the meeting and occupied the chair. He had, however, to attend a committee meeting of the Council in half an hour's time. Notwithstanding the time limit, he was glad to have the opportunity of identifying with the movement for retaining their ancient fair. Ever since he had been a member of Mitcham Parish Council it had been borne in upon his mind that the real interests of the great bulk of the people were being sacrificed to the private interests of privileged parties in the parish. On this question of the fair it was evident to him that interested parties were moving in the matter, and he felt sure that the mind of the people was being ignored by the abolitionists. They had in their town affairs and upon their Parish Council representation—over-representation of the classes and under-representation of the masses—private interests were cleverly advocated and the wider and more urgent interests of the people subordinated. The last election had sent to the parish men like-minded to himself, and they were trying—this sturdy minority—to defend the rights and interests of the workers. (Cheers.) He spoke against the abolition of their fair at their Council, but the interests of the few prevailed over the greater good of the many. He was doubly glad that the Showmen's Guild had taken this matter in hand, there had been too much "hole-and-corner" work, too much scheming by the people interested in the exploiting of their good old town for selfish purposes, in the past. No opportunities had been given the democracy to express its views on this question. He was glad that the Home Secretary had again refused the legal order that alone would justify (in law) the action of the abolitionists. Until the meeting of show tenants on the fair Sunday last year, and yet again this meeting, the working classes had had no chance given them of saying yes or no in the matter. This, he maintained, was unjust to the great bulk of the workers of Mitcham. He took his stand on the broad platform of social justice. He was ready at all times and in all questions to trust the democracy. He denounced with all the vigour he possessed the high-handed proceedings of those gentlemen—whatever their public standing, whatever their principles and motives—who abused the trust and confidence of the people, and used their position on public bodies to over-ride the wishes and to flout the desires of the people. (Great applause.) It was high time they had a real people's party (and in power) to express the people's will in their town affairs. Why, he asked, should these enemies of the people's rights be permitted to ride rough-shod over the cherished ideals, the material and mental needs, of their poorer neighbours? The open meeting held on that historic spot at the last fair was evidence sufficient to these spoilers of the people's rights that the abolition of the fair was detestable to the vast majority of the people of Mitcham. Here was unmistakable evidence of what the people wanted, yet that was contemptuously ignored, and the people's vote scoffed and derided. (Shame.) These traffickers in the seats of power not only treated the voice of the people with contempt, but proceeded to enter action in the High Court of Justice to enforce their autocratic will. He was glad to be able to express in public his own repudiation of this gross example of class abuse of popular powers, and to say that he and those who worked with him stood for the people's rights utterly—the whole people, not a class, or the masses against the classes, but the whole body of their townspeople. He looked forward to the time when this class and private interest coterie would be relegated to the private life they were so eminently fitted to adorn. (Cheers and laughter.) He again expressed regret that public work demanded his presence at the Vestry, but he confidently left the issues of fairplay and justice in their hands.

MR. ALF BALL, as member of the Executive of the Showmen's Guild, then introduced Mr. T. Watson Wright, Guild solicitor, to the meeting.

The Guild Solicitor's Speech.

MR. WATSON WRIGHT, who was received with cheers, said that the issues before the people of Mitcham involved more than the possible abolition of their ancient charter fair. To deprive a free community of valuable rights and privileges without coming before that community and taking a vote of the people was a gross attack on the rights of the community. This had been done, as they all knew, in Mitcham. There existed proper and constitutional methods to abolish undesirable or obsolete fairs. If a community for public reasons wished to abolish a fair, they could proceed under the Abolition of Fairs Act, a statute of the realm with machinery provided for all the interests, whether landlord or tenant, showman or resident. These provisions were ample and reasonable. Why had it remained, he asked, for the showmen to take the trouble and to incur the cost of taking a vote in public meeting of the people? Was the cause of the abolitionists so hopelessly unpopular that they dare not face a public meeting on this question? The Showmen's Guild came before the people, the people who alone had the rights to relinquish their ancient charter rights and privileges. At a mass meeting last August they had voted to move against abolition, and he trusted that the resolution he was about to read to them would be also carried—a resolution for preserving inviolable and intact the rights of Mitcham people. The showmen for whom he spoke were not unreasonable, nor yet law-breaking men. Let Mitcham, properly canvassed, properly addressed, determine that it no longer wanted a fair, then the show-people, as business-folk, would move their goods to a better market. (Applause.) He gave a résumé of the action taken by the old tenants of the fair at the last fair, and its culmination in the acceptance of an injunction by Messrs. Ball, Hill, and Wilson not to commit a technical trespass by drawing upon the old fairground without the consent of the conservators.

He showed how the clear and simple issue of the position as defined by the Home Secretary (who still refused abolition) had been complicated by the raising of a new issue or issues—the claim of the conservators, under a private Act of theirs obtained in 1891, to cover their arbitrary action by propounding an improvement scheme. The weakness of their action may be gauged from the fact that again they asked the Home Secretary to abolish the fair, and again he has refused. (Cheers.) He rejoiced that Mr. Gladstone had refused at the bidding of the abolitionists to interfere with or restrict the fair rights of the people of Mitcham. He told them the Abolition of Fairs Act set out certain reasons as a condition precedent to abolishing a fair. Not one of these reasons had been proved true of Mitcham, hence the fair still remained their right in law and their franchise. (Great applause.) Who were the gentlemen who now held the Lord of the Manor of Mitcham rights in the fair? These gentlemen were Messrs. Foss-Cubison, A. Mizen, and R. M. Chart. These gentlemen had bought out Mrs. Bailey's rights, and were now the legal owners of the franchise, and entitled, if they cared, to hold the fair, to draw the tolls, and to keep the profits arising therefrom; but that did not, either in law or justice, entitle them to say that the people of Mitcham should cease to enjoy their old pleasure fair. (Cheers.) The legal gentlemen amongst these four had recognised the parlous position in which they were placed, and had again approached, and had again been repulsed, by the Home Secretary. Now we hear that yet another essay is to be made to secure abolition. This time your parish council has been induced to lend itself to the third attempt. (Shame.) He trusted that the voice of that magnificent meeting would reach the council chambers, and that, in face of the constitutionally-expressed will of the people, the council would, even at the elventh hour, re consider its decision, and accede to and vigorously support the wishes of the people. (Applause.) In stirring words the Guild solicitor reminded the men and women of Mitcham that their rights and liberties were threatened by this wealthy, persistent, and narrow-minded set of men, who had banded themselves together to ignore the strongly-expressed opinion of the whole body of workers, and were determined to still ignore that opinion, however openly and constitutionally set forth. The people's rights were theirs by Magna Charter, No despot, however benevolent, no philanthropist, however wealthy, had a right, in this liberty-loving country of ours, to overrule the people's will, or to abrogate the Statute law of the realm for their narrow or fanatical purposes. He moved, therefore, that "This meeting of residents of Mitcham objects to the abolition of the fair, and respectfully urges the Parish Council, the Conservators of Mitcham Common, the owners of the fair franchise, and the showmen traders, to speedily arrive at a friendly agreement whereby the fair may be removed to the more commodious site on the Three Kings Common, and a joint petition by all parties concerned may be sent to the Home Secretary seeking permission to remove the fair to the new site." (Loud and continued applause.)

When the Rev. T. HORNE, who received a warm ovation, rose to second the resolution, the long-threatened rain came down in earnest; yet in spite of that the crowd remained.

The Chaplain's Speech.

AFTER a humorous allusion to the weather, he told the crowd the story of "Pomposity Wilks," the custodian of the parish pump at Little Pedlington. It transpired, he said, that the parish waters had been polluted and then used by certain "naughty boys and girls" of the parish, who had used the water to soften the clay wherewith they made mud-pies. Pomposity Wilks, rising to the gravity of the situation, moved at the meeting of the Vestry "That a padlock and chain be provided, and that the pump-handle be fastened down except at certain specified times per diem, so that naughty boys and girls had no further facilities for making vulgar mud-pies." The faithful historian of Little Pedlington thus records the glowing periods of the historic oration of Pomposity Wilks:—"The eye of both Upper and Lower Pedlington are upon us, and woe betide us if we fail in our trust and work to preserve and to conserve the pure waters of our parish from the desecration and misuse of these rude makers of mud-pies. Nay, I go further and say that the eyes of all civilised nations and peoples are upon us, and that mighty and far-reaching revolutions may give point and force to the story of our pusillanimity if we fail to do our duty by preventing the abuse of our virgin waters." (Laughter and applause.) The story of Pomposity Wilks reminded him of a speech recorded of one of their Parish Councillors at its last meeting. Mr. Councillor Aldwinckle, in moving a resolution to secure the support of the Mitcham Parish Council for abolition, made this astounding remark: "The Council, by grant and public subscription, had acquired the right of the fair from the owner, Mrs. Bailey, with a view of getting it abolished. These rights could not be abolished except by an order signed by the Home Secretary. He thought they were nearly all agreed in England that the present Home Secretary was by no means a strong man, a man not likely to do anything of that kind on his own initiative unless he was forced to or backed up by public opinion. He therefore asked for the unanimous support of the Council." He ventured to think that Pomposity Wilks' oration paled before this brilliant assault of the valiant councillor of Mitcham. He trusted that the worthy councillor was blessed with a sense of humour, and that he would take it in a Pickwickian sense, when he further committed himself to a little parable set to music in one flat, and entitled

"THE WINKLE AND THE TURTLE."

"Said the little Mitcham 'Winkle,'
As he set his brows a-wrinkle,
'Hurry up,' Mr. Turtle, don't you lag;
Or I, the Pushful Winkle, will teach you many a wrinkle—
Scoot! or I'll smoke you out with 'Mitcham shag.'

"Then the Turtle cast his gaze on't;
His searching eye did blaze on't;
And the Turtle squelched the Winkle with a snort.
Now the moral of my tale is that all Winkles must bewail is,
Never push a Turtle, lest you're caught."

(Laughter and applause.) To come to grips with these would-be masters of the people, these would-be dictators of what they (the people) ought to do, what sheer impudence! What amazing ignorance, this wanton attack on the Home Secretary betrayed! A weak man, indeed! A man without initiative! Waiting to be kicked by the parish of Mitcham. What a grotesque comedy, yet, within it all, a tragedy, that speech contained! (Loud and continued applause.) Mr. Gladstone, the worthy son of a noble sire, bearing an imperishable name, this famous and highly-placed servant of the Crown, waiting in the Home Office for "force" and "initiative" from Mitcham. It was eminently sad, yet they were thankful for a little grace of saving humour. (Applause.) Why, he asked in conclusion, should Mitcham people lose its fair? It was true, doubtless, that a certain section of the people did not enjoy its freedom, its comradeship, its neighbourliness. Well, he fully allowed such people all liberty to "gang ther ain gate," to please their little selves in their own high and intellectual manner. Granting that—and even more than that—why deprive the poor dwellers in Mitcham back slums and its many poorly-paid labourers, the wives and little ones of the annual holiday and pleasure of Mitcham Fair? He appealed to the kindly tolerance, to the deeper and wider Christian charity of these men who needed not a fair to still continue it to their poorer (ay, and even if they would have it thus) their weaker brethren, who still harboured precious memories of the past, and still desire to preserve—under conditions in the future—Mitcham Charter. He seconded with all his heart the resolution before the meeting. (Prolonged applause.)

The resolution was then put from the chair and passed, with great cheering, unanimously. The complimentary votes to the two chairmen were then passed, and the meeting terminated.

Until a late hour the tables for signing the petition against abolition were crowded, and many hundred names were signed.

The petition is as follows:—

To the Right Honourable H. J. Gladstone, His Majesty's First Secretary of State for the Home Department:—

We, the undersigned residents of Mitcham, object to the proposed abolition of the ancient pleasure fair. We regard it as an occasion of local holiday and as affording wholesome open-air amusement for us and our neighbours.

We therefore beg that you will not consent to the abolition of our ancient Fair Rights.

We regret to find that the Conservators of Mitcham Commons have not acceded to your suggestion and the suggestion of the organised Showmen to remove the Fair to a more commodious site under their control. Had this been done we should not have taken this present step in petitioning you in the matter.

EQUESTRIANS IN AMERICA.

Lord George Sanger, the doyen of the circus world, sends to us for publication a very sad account of a fatality to well-known English equestrians in America. "I am enclosing you," he writes, "a letter just received from a friend of mine, who was last summer one of Rowland's troupe of equestrians. The company included Mr. and Mrs. Rowland, Swallow, Hickey, Milly Ginnett (daughter of Claude Ginnet), and Miss Davies. They toured with Barnum and Bailey's show last year, but have since joined another company (whose name I cannot at present recall). George and Harry Austin were with the same show last year, and were offered considerable increase in salary to remain, but refused on account of forebodings of luckless times. As I have not seen any reference to the accident, I feel convinced that their many friends would like to know the sad details of the awful fate of the unfortunate Rowland. It adds to the tragedy of the event when we recall that his brother was accidentally drowned whilst making his way to the railway-cars after the performance. A drawbridge having been opened, and the young man running in the dark, fell into the rushing flood below, and his body never recovered. The widowed mother was a Miss Caroline Crockett, one of the first equestrienne leading ladies of her day."

The enclosed letters reads as follows: "I have some bad news to tell you. Poor George Rowland met with a sad and terrible death last week, and was buried yesterday. He was going to the sleeping-car when the performance was over, with a lot more of the performers, when they saw an express train coming on the line they were on, and they stepped off that line on to the next one. At that moment, a train coming the other way hit poor Rowland, killing him on the spot. He had a factured skull, his ribs were broken, his arms broken in several places, and both his legs cut off and his neck broken. What a terrible death for a young man just in his prime, and how sudden! Poor Mrs. Rowland is nearly out of her mind; I feel very sorry for her in her sad trouble. It is said that there were more than Rowland killed at the same time, but I do not know how true it is. They say that a clown had both his legs cut off.—A. HICKEY, Family Theatre, Gloversville, N.Y., June 7, 1907."

We feel quite certain that these doubly sad communications will evoke the most profound sympathy for the bereaved and desolated Rowland family, and we comply with Lord George Sanger's wishes in order that sympathy may immediately go out to those who are now lamenting their beloved ones.

Dronfield Fair.

HERE the chief providers of amusements were Alfred Twigdon, who exhibited gallopers and swings, shooters' stalls, and throwing games by numerous caterers.

PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

The Bioscope pictures continue to do excellent business at this well-managed house, where large audiences are the rule at all performances. The well-varied subjects are portrayed on the screen with a vividness that meets with unbounded appreciation, the many interesting and exciting incidents being followed with keen attention. The proceedings are enlivened by a small orchestra which puts in some useful work, and the general-manager, Mr. C. Melville Lurring, is unceasing in his efforts for the comfort of his patrons. This week the films are particularly good, especially the "Launch of the Brighton Lifeboat," "Death of the Iron Horse," with its wealth of detail, and "The Troubadour," who effects wondrous changes with sheets of music and a fan. Humour is strongly presented in "After the Matinée," in which two University Proctors suffer much ignominy; "Unforeseen Bathing," with the disadvantages the fair sex endures when swimming in prohibited waters; "The Bigamist," who is deservedly punished by his eight wives; and "Caught in a Trap," which shows how a gendarme is rendered powerless by two burglars with a simple basket contrivance. Enthusiasm is roused by the adventures of "The Village Witch" and the "Highwayman's Fatal Leap"; while, from an educational point of view, "Scenes at the Zoo" and "Life of a New York Policeman" are extremely instructive. "True to his Trust" is a dramatic episode in the everyday routine of a village priest, and applause is gained by the exhibition of "The Adventures of a Negro King," "The Spring Fairy," "The La Patrie Balloon," and "Pay Day."

THE PICKETS!

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As secretary and treasurer of a presentation fund for Mr. Leonard Mortimer, subscribed wholly by the ladies and gentlemen of the profession who acted as pickets during the late dispute, I would ask your indulgence to make an explanation to them, as they are no doubt wondering what has become of their subscriptions, my hands having been tied until the declaration of the Arbitrators' award. It was understood that the executive committee of the V.A.F. proposed to give their support to a complimentary dinner to the pickets if withheld until after the award. On writing to the executive committee of the V.A.F. last week asking that body if they intended to subscribe towards the evening of the presentation, I received a reply from the V.A.F. as follows: "Re enjoyment of the pickets, I am requested to inform you that the committee cannot accede to your request." I informed Mr. Mortimer of the intention of the pickets, and he expressed his opinion that under the circumstances it had better fall through. As the presentation is in my possession, I would ask the Picket Committee to meet at the Ship Hotel, Kennington-road, on Tuesday next, July 2, at 1 o'clock, to make final arrangements and fully discuss the disappointing and wholly unexpected situation. Thanking you for your indulgence.—Yours truly,
HAL BROUGH, Hon. Sec.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER,

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

THE DIABOLO. Code Word, COHORTE.

A harmless toy, bought to amuse the children, causes more fun than expected. The father gets hold of this toy and plays with it for hours. First in one room, then another, he tries to get a little quiet. He upsets everything he comes near—chairs, ornaments, &c.—and causes more and more confusion every minute. At last his wife catches him. . . Was the game worth the candle?

198ft. The Subject, £3 6s.

DRUNKARD IN SPITE OF ALL. Code Word, CHIRURGIE.

Robinson is delicate, and can take nothing but mineral water. One day, however, he meets with divers accidents, and is obliged to take something—well, not soda water. It has a curious effect, and thus he returns home to his wife, who speaks her mind on the subject.

445ft. The Subject, £7 8s. 4d.

CHASING A MOTORIST. Code Word, CLEMATITE.

A "bust-up" motor. A chauffeur in a bearskin lying under the machine. Great terror and excitement amongst the passers-by. Very amusing.

230ft. The Subject, £3 16s. 8d.

A SEAMAN'S WIDOW. Code Word, CLAVECIN.

A splendid sea picture. A fishing smack starts on its dangerous voyage. The wife bids her husband, the owner of the smack, goodbye, and returns home to her children to take up her daily task and await his home-coming. What a day it will be, such rejoicings! There is a storm at sea. Next morning the coastguards pick up a body washed ashore. It is the smack-owner. With their sad burden the men make their way to the cottage. The wife and children are broken-hearted and surround the loved one, now so cold and still. Very impressive.

528ft. The Subject, £8 16s. Colouring 10s.

SAMBO AS FOOTMAN. Code Word, CLAVIER.

Have you ever tried a black servant? Well, here you have a little idea of what the result might be. Was he worth the trouble?

198ft. The Subject, £3 6s.

VICTIM OF SCIENCE. Code Word, CLIMAT.

Two young people, walking in the country amongst the most gorgeous surroundings, are carried away with the charm and plight their troth. The young man, unfortunately, meets with an accident and loses his sight in an explosion, and is thrown over by the girl. Together with his mother he visits the places where he went with his beloved, but the past memories being too much for him, he throws himself over a great precipice. His mother finds him at the bottom—broken, bruised, and dead, but free from pain and at peace. Very touching, original, and full of interest.

843ft. The Subject, £10 14s. 4d.
